"When these two profound mysteries are fused, my attacks in Dragonform will reach a new level." Linley said confidently. His strength in Dragonform was tremendous to begin with. He had a very good base. Once he fused these two profound mysteries...

It was frightening just to think about how powerful he would be.

Linley's 'Blackstone Prison' could be used to trap people, but his attack was too weak, and the energy in his body was only at the God level. He had to rely on his Dragonform...but although his strength was great, he still wasn't able to kill someone in one blow.

"Once I fuse these two profound mysteries, I'll first use my 'Blackstone Prison' to trap the enemy, and then give him a punch. Even if he doesn't die, he'll be badly injured." Linley was completely confident.

Delia laughed as she watched Linley grow so animated as he spoke.

"Boss!" Suddenly, a voice rang out.

Linley and Delia both turned, only to see Bebe fly over, beaming merrily. "Boss, I need to go out on a trip."

"Go out on a trip? To Meer City?" Linley laughed.

"Right. It's been quite a while since I've seen Tarosse, Dylin, and the others. I'll go visit them." Bebe mumbled. "I hear that Olivier has already left Meer City. He's gone out for an adventure. Who knows if he's still in Meer City."

"Fine, go then. Have a safe trip." Linley laughed.

"Heh heh, no worries." Bebe chortled and waved, then flew into the skies.

Linley suddenly had a thought. Ever since he had returned to the gorge, Delia hadn't made a single trip. Linley couldn't help but turn to look at Delia. "Delia, do you want to go out as well? How about this time, we'll go to Meer City together?"

"No rush." Delia shook her head. "Linley, you'd best focus on your training. After you've mastered your fusion of the Profound Mysteries of Strength and the Throbbing Pulse of the World, we can go together."

"Thank you." Linley said gratefully.

Delia just smiled at him.

Linley ignored the chaos that was happening in the outside world, focusing solely on his training. Occasionally, his original body would pause for a while to spend some time with Delia. After beginning the fusion of the Profound Mysteries of Strength and the Throbbing Pulse of the World, he continued to advance and improve...

As he trained, he barely noticed the passage of time.

In the blink of an eye, five hundred years had passed since he had left Bloodbath Gorge.

In the great gorge, the place where Linley lived.

Delia was seated quietly within her room, flipping through a book in her hands. Right at this moment...

"Haha..." Suddenly, loud laughter rang out from within the room.

Delia was startled, but then turned to look, overjoyed. She saw Linley, his long hair fluttering loosely, walk in with great strides. As soon as he saw Delia, he laughed, "Delia, I finally broke through. After five hundred years, I've finally broke through."

"What did you break through in?" Delia hurriedly stood up.

"I've finally mastered the Profound Mysteries of Strength. And, I've completely fused the Profound Mysteries of Strength and the Throbbing Pulse of the World." Linley was exceedingly delighted.

After this day, Linley had mastered a total of five of the six profound mysteries of the Laws of the Earth, with only one remaining – Vitality.

"However, fusion really is hard. The Profound Mysteries of Strength have only been fused with the 'Throbbing Pulse of the World'. I haven't fused it at all with the 'Gravitational Space' or the 'Essence of the Earth', Linley said with a sigh.

He had originally hoped to be able to fuse it with the other two as well, so that he could strive to fuse four profound mysteries.

But from the looks of it, the path of fusion was indeed an extremely long one.

"You are already doing quite well." Delia laughed encouragingly. "Didn't you say that after you fuse the Profound Mysteries of Strength and the Throbbing Pulse of the World, that you will have a powerful material attack?"

"Of course." Linley laughed as he thought of this.

The Profound Mysteries of Strength and the Throbbing Pulse of the World were both suited for material attacks.

"However, although I've fused these two profound mysteries, I still need to carefully analyze them and develop an attack technique suited to these profound mysteries." Linley said. "Still, it won't take too long. At most half a year or a year, but perhaps as little as two weeks."

Linley himself was rather eager.

Once he developed it, he could pair this attack with his 'Blackstone Prison'. Even if he were to encounter Bulu again, he wouldn't just launch a simple fist without injuring Bulu at all. Even if he was unable to kill Bulu, he'd still be able to heavily wound him.

Book 17, Indigo Prefecture – Chapter 39, Firmament Splitter

The Skyrite Mountains. At the borders of the great gorge.

“Boom!” “Boom!” “Boom!” “Boom!”

One massive vibration after another shook the earth. Many of the residents within the gorge could clearly sense these vibrations. They all felt puzzled, and quite a few headed to the place where the vibrations were emanating from. When they did, they saw...

That Linley was sending one punch after another into the ground.

Although his fist didn't actually impact the ground, the pulsating power of his blows still spread into the ground, causing it to tremble.

“It's Elder Linley!”

Those clansmen who had been somewhat annoyed, upon seeing that it was Linley training, didn't dare to say anything.

“Still not right.” Linley shook his head, then unleashed yet another heavy punch.

Although the punches seemed to be coming out at an extremely slow speed, they gave off the sensation of carrying the force of a mountain. When Linley's fist stopped at the end of each punch, vibrations passed through space.

But Linley just frowned, once more changing his style of attack.

When testing techniques, Linley wasn't in Dragonform. After all, once he was in Dragonform, the power of each fist would be simply too terrifying. Linley was completely absorbed in his training, constantly testing. In his mind, one type of attack after another arose, and then was quickly discarded.

Constant improvement...

"Patriarch, Elder Linley is currently in his gorge, punching the ground repeatedly, as though he is testing out some sort of technique. Elder Linley has already been training like this for a month." A black-robed figure said respectfully.

Patriarch Gislason couldn't help but laugh. "Oh? Punching the ground? It seems he must be testing out a material attack. He's been wasting his advantage of having such a powerful body. He should've started training a more powerful material attack long ago."

Relying on one's advantages was the intelligent choice.

Since Linley's body was powerful, he naturally had to focus on it.

"I want to see what he's developed." Gislason immediately walked out of his residence.

In the past five centuries, Gislason had been worrying about the future of the Four Divine Beasts clan. He was also in a very bad mood. For him to go out and take a look was also a way by which he could relax.

Gislason flew at a very fast speed, soon arriving in the air above the gorge.

"Rumble..."

Gislason could clearly sense the ripples in air.

"It seems he's doing quite well." Gislason flew over at high speed, arriving at a place in the sky directly above Linley's training location. Linley was currently completely absorbed in launching one attack after another, gaining insights and improving with each blow, and so he didn't notice that anyone had arrived.

Linley's right fist once more struck out...

His fist seemed like a giant millstone that was grinding slowly, and yet actually moved as fast as lightning. This punch actually created ripples in space that could be seen with the naked eye.

"Oho." Gislason's eyes lit up.

"Not right. Still not right..." Linley was shaking his head.

Each time he discarded a technique, he did so because he had gained a better understanding of it, and so he had made new breakthroughs. As he discovered flaws...he would once more seek an attack with greater power.

One technique discarded after another. One breakthrough after another...

A look of surprise slowly appeared on Gislason's face.

"Strange. Why has the ground stopped trembling?" Everyone had gotten used to the ground trembling. When the ground stopped trembling, the clansmen who lived in the gorge were actually surprised, and quite a few hurried towards Linley's training area.

"Can it be that Elder Linley has stopped training?"

The clansmen all hurried over, but as they did, they saw that Linley was still repeatedly punching towards the ground.

"All of you, leave." A voice rumbled and echoed throughout the minds of the spectators. "Don't disturb Elder Linley."

These clansmen were all shocked. Only now did they discover that there was a person standing there in the air above. This person was their Patriarch, Gislason. But these ordinary clansmen had never before met their Patriarch.

"That person...seems to be an expert of some sort."

The clansmen didn't dare to disturb Linley, and so they all left.

Gislason turned to look at Linley, a hint of a smile being revealed on his face.

Linley struck out with his fist yet again, and at the edges of his punch, many spatial ripples appeared. The strange thing was, these spatial ripples all folded upon each other, rather than emanating outwards.

It was as though all of those spatial ripples were connected and building onto each other.

"Break!"

Linley had been training for more than three months. After three months of silence, Linley suddenly let out a growl, striking out with a massive punch. At the edges of this punch, a large number of spatial ripples appeared, and then they vanished.

"I finally succeeded!" A look of surprise and joy appeared on Linley's face. With a 'crackle' sound, draconic scales immediately tore apart his clothes as they appeared from his body. Those savage spikes jutted out as well...

Dragonform!

"Let's see how my most powerful material attack does." Linley wanted to give it a test and see how he could do with a full force attack.

"Eh?" Linley suddenly turned and stared behind him, only to see Gislason watching him while grinning. Linley was shocked, and he hurriedly said, "Clan leader!"

"Haha, go ahead and test your attack." Gislason laughed. "Given the strength of your body in Dragonform...I am quite eager to see what the power will be like, myself."

"Yes, Patriarch." Linley couldn't help but feel itchy in his heart as well, and he immediately prepared for a test blow.

Linley's draconic scale covered right fist suddenly swung out, and in the instant that it did, with a sudden rumble, the sound of space itself exploding could be heard. Wherever his right fist swung past, space trembled violently.

The power of this punch was akin to a flood dragon leaving its lair!

As the punch struck out, a large number of spatial ripples appeared at the edges of his draconic scale covered fist, causing the space around his fist to form a rippling half-sphere that was like a bubble of ripples...

And then, the explosion!

"BANG!"

A sound which caused the soul to tremble. The space surrounding the fist all blew apart, revealing a large black hole in space. Through this hole in space, one could clearly sense the vibrations from the region of chaotic space.

In an instant, the hole in space disappeared.

"Haha, good, good!!!" Gislason's loud laughter rang out.

Linley was filled with joy as well. Although he had developed this attack in human form, that was just hypothetical. There was no way he could be sure what the power of the attack would be like when he was in Dragonform. But now it appeared...the power exceeded his expectations.

"Linley, what's the name of this technique of yours?" Gislason laughed loudly.

Linley paused for a moment, then said, "This attack was formed from the fusing of the Profound Mysteries of Strength and the Throbbing Pulse of the World. Its name is 'Firmament Splitter'!" This blow was capable of shattering space with a single punch. One could imagine how great its power was.

"Come, have a spar with me." Gislason laughed loudly.

"Patriarch?" Linley couldn't help but feel astonished.

"Hurry up!" Gislason couldn't help but frown. "What, do you think you can actually beat me?" As he spoke, Gislason's body became covered with azure draconic scales as well. The color of the scales was identical to Linley's, but he didn't have any sharp spikes on his body.

Linley began to laugh. "Patriarch, so you have this desire, then I will accompany you in a spar." Linley was very confident right now as well.

"Linley, even just by comparing bodies, I'm more powerful than you. You have to use all your force." Gislason laughed.

Linley laughed, and then immediately set up his 'Blackstone Space'. Instantly, a blurry earthen yellow light sprang up, trapping Gislason within. Even the body of Patriarch Gislason couldn't help but tremble, and he couldn't help but let out a low curse, "This punk is really..."

But before he finished his words, Linley came flying at him.

"Patriarch!" Linley laughed loudly, his right fist flashing forward like thunder.

"Hmph!" A low snort. Gislason, his long azure hair fluttering, also sent his own right fist forward.

"BOOM!"

Two draconic scale covered 'metal fists', carrying countless tons of force, collided. Space itself was immediately torn open like a thin piece of paper. Gislason's right fist couldn't help but shake, and Gislason hurriedly move backwards, a hint of blood having actually appeared on his fist.

“Not bad, kid!” Gislason’s eyes were shining. “It seems as though it’s not enough for me to just use raw force against you.”

Linley, looking at the Patriarch who seemed to have gone berserk, was shocked inwardly. “The Patriarch’s body truly is tough. I used my most powerful blow, but the Patriarch only used raw strength.” But of course, the result of the Patriarch just using raw strength was that the draconic scales atop his fist had shattered.

From this exchange of fists, Linley was made clearly aware that Patriarch Gislason’s reputation of having the most powerful body in the Azure Dragon clan was indeed a solid one.

It only made sense. When he had his arm captured by Gislason that time, he hadn’t been able to resist at all.

“What technique is this?” Linley was somewhat astonished as he saw that a layer of frost had actually appeared on Gislason’s entire body, completely covering the Patriarch, including even his fist.

The ice-clad Gislason, under the glow of the sun, gleamed with beautiful light.

“Kid, I’ll just use half my strength.” Gislason laughed as he flew directly towards Linley. He was trapped in the ‘Blackstone Space’, but thanks to Gislason’s powerful body, his speed was still astonishing.

Linley didn’t retreat either, excitedly charging forward to meet him.

When drawing nearer to Gislason, Linley felt a freezing aura invade his body, so cold that Linley was astonished.

"Bang!"

Neither of the two dodged. Their fists slammed against each other, and where their fists passed, space itself directly collapsed. Linley couldn't help but fly backwards after the collision.

"Haha..." The Patriarch immediately chased after him.

"Swoosh!" Linley immediately retreated.

"Kid, don't run." The Patriarch shouted.

Within the 'Blackstone Space', although the Patriarch was still very fast, he was still slightly slower than the Dragonformed Linley. Linley, relying on his speed, was dodging by relying on his speed, occasionally unleashing a powerful punch or kick.

"Whap!"

"Bang!"

"Boom!"

One enormous, world-shaking vibration after another. These vibrations attracted quite a few spectators from the gorge, and this battle between Linley and the Patriarch caused them to stare, slack-jawed. Every single exchange of blows caused space to collapse.

If these blows had landed on them, how many of them could withstand it?

Linley and Gislason finally came to a halt.

"Haha, Linley, your material attack is now at Blue's level, at least." Gislason was very satisfied.

But Linley discovered that just now, when he was exchanging blows with the Patriarch, even though the Patriarch was using only half of his might, he was still able to fight the Patriarch to a standstill. "Patriarch, your body is far more powerful than mine. How is it that your attack...?"

Linley didn't understand. The Patriarch, in terms of profound mysteries, shouldn't be weaker than him.

"This is a difference in the Laws." Gislason said resignedly. "I primarily train in the 'Elemental Laws of Water'. The defense of the Elemental Laws of Water isn't bad, but its ability to unleash power isn't that great."

Linley nodded as well.

Of the Elemental Laws of Water, only the 'Profound Mysteries of Ice' allowed one to use one's physical strength.

"In terms of physical strength, I'm no weaker than the Patriarch of the Black Tortoise clan. But if we were competing in power attacks, he vastly outstrips me. This is because he trains in the Laws of the Earth." Gislason said.

Linley laughed.

The Laws of the Earth even had the specialized 'Profound Mysteries of Strength'. Thus, it was only natural that those who trained in the Laws of the Earth were able to easily bring out the power of their bodies.

Every single Law had its own areas of specialization.

The four Edicts, as well, had their own differences.

The Elemental Laws of Water had superb defenses, with exceedingly strong defense against both soul attacks as well as material attacks. The Elemental Laws of Fire, by contrast, was different; it was weak in defense, but specialized in offense.

The Edicts of Fate, meanwhile, specialized in the soul, while having some deficiencies on the material side.

It was hard to be truly perfect.

"The power of your fists is already very great. It even poses a bit of a threat to me." Gislason praised. "In the past, your fleeing abilities were excellent. But now, you will pose a great threat to your foes.”

Linley knew very well that when he clashed fists with the Patriarch, in truth, Linley’s own ‘Firmament Splitter’ had ablated much of the force of each of the Patriarch’s punches. Only an extremely small amount of power remained from the Patriarch’s punches.

Otherwise, each blow from the Patriarch would have been able to easily smash Linley’s fist.

Similarly...

In receiving each blow of Linley’s, the Patriarch had to rely on his profound mysteries to ablate the force. Otherwise...it would have been like their first exchange, with the results being shattered draconic scales and a hint of blood.

“Even someone like you, Patriarch, with such terrifyingly strong defense, was injured. How can ordinary Seven Star Fiends resist it?” Linley laughed.

In the past, Linley, thanks to his Blackstone Space, was very proficient in fleeing. His attacks, however, were far weaker than those which Seven Star Fiends normally possessed. However, the situation now was different. Even if that Elder Bulu once again encountered Linley, it would be very hard for him to win.

Deep within the Skyrise Mountains.

Linley, Delia, and Bebe were at the edges of a cliff. Above the edge of the cliff, there was a large metallic lifeform in the shape of a black phoenix.

“Delia, I haven’t accompanied you on a single trip since arriving in the clan. This time, I definitely will accompany you.” Linley held Delia’s hand. They had agreed that once he fused the profound mysteries, the two would go on a trip together.”

Delia couldn’t help but reveal a smile of true happiness. “Right. This is our first trip...we’ve been here at the clan for almost six centuries now, but I barely noticed anything. I wonder how Sasha and Taylor are doing.”

“Taylor?” Linley couldn’t help but think of his children.

However, Linley still felt that the decision he had made that year was wise. The Infernal Realm truly was too dangerous. Wharton and Taylor, back at the Yulan continent, would at least be able to enjoy peaceful lives.

“Elder Linley.” A soft voice rang out.

Linley turned to look. The person who had come was Elder Tewila [Te’wei’la] of the Azure Dragon clan. Elder Tewila was a very good-tempered person who had never before entered Bloodbath Gorge. Not only was he not strong enough, he also preferred hiding like a turtle.

Linley actually felt very positively towards Tewila. Tewila, at least, wasn’t as sinister and vicious as Emanuel and Forhan.

"Elder Tewila, you are the escort this time?" Linley laughed.

"Right." Tewila laughed so hard, his eyes creased into slits.

"Then I'll be troubling you to protect us this time, Elder Tewila. I'm going to Meer City on this trip as well." Linley laughed.

A look of delight and joy immediately appeared on Tewila's face. "Elder Linley, you are going as well? Haha, this is wonderful. With the two of us present, even if anything dangerous appears on this journey, we won't have anything to fear."

Linley laughed, then nodded.

"Oh, Elder Tewila, Elder Linley, you are here as well." A familiar voice rang out. Linley turned to look. The person who had just arrived was Forhan. Forhan's golden eyebrows raised up, and then he laughed. "This time, Elder Tewila is the escort, right?"

Tewila nodded. "Right. Elder Linley is going to Meer City this time as well."

"Oh." Forhan nodded. "Then, Elder Tewila, Elder Linley, have a safe journey. However, I imagine that with both of you present, there's no way anything untoward will happen."

"Elder Tewila, let's go." Linley couldn't be bothered to pay attention to Forhan.

For some reason, Linley always felt as though there was something in Forhan's gaze that made him feel uncomfortable.

Elder Tewila nodded in acknowledgment towards Forhan, and then flew alongside with Linley into the metallic lifeform, entering it. Quite a few people were hurriedly flying into the metallic lifeform.

As for Forhan, he just stood there at the cliff, looking upwards at the metallic lifeform, watching until it flew away.

"Hmph. This Linley remains so brash?" Forhan's face sank, his heart filled with rage.

He had always viewed Linley with some disfavor. As he saw it, in their clan, only the second and third generation members of the clan were the noble figures of it. Even if Forhan's mother didn't want to use the ancestor's Azure Dragon ring, he, Forhan, should be the one using it.

What was Linley?

Forhan's son, Emanuel, had lost his most powerful divine clone, and would never be able to advance again. He wanted to act against Linley, but...the four clan leaders had ordered that Linley not be required to carry out any missions.

Forhan's heart had been smoldering with rage this entire time without any place to let loose. The more time passed, the angrier he became!

“Going to Meer City, eh?” Forhan’s gaze was growing cold. “Hmph. Then I’ll let the forces of the eight great clans deal with you. When you die, you’ll be able to kill a few of their people as well. It won’t be a waste at all. Sadly...others will have to accompany you to the grave as well.”

Book 17, Indigo Prefecture – Chapter 40, Betrayal

The Skyrite Mountains. In the ground beneath the palace where Forhan lived. A dark, lightless underground hall.

The hall was chilly and forbidding. Currently, the only person within it was Forhan. Forhan was seated upon the throne in the hall, slouched over it like a beast in ambush, his eyes flashing with dim light, thinking thoughts only he knew.

“Inform the forces of the eight great clans?” Although Forhan did want Linley dead and to have the eight great clans do it, it was nothing more than a thought. As he seriously considered it, however...he began to hesitate.

This was because the only way to let the forces of the eight great clans know was to inform them.

As for the act of informing them, there was no way someone else could carry out this task, nor could anyone else be allowed to know of it. This was because this act would be considered a ‘betrayal of the clan’, a grave crime! Forhan, as an Elder, was confident that he would be able to easily pass this information regarding Linley to the eight great clans. If it were to leak out that he had done so, however, he, Forhan, would never have a place again amongst the Four Divine Beasts clan!

“Betrayal of the clan...is punishable by execution of all bodies.” Forhan remembered this punishment very clearly.

“For the sake of taking revenge upon Linley...to take such a great risk...is it worth it?” Forhan wanted to do it, but he still hesitated.

Without question, Forhan was deeply proud of the fact that he was a descendant of the Four Divine Beasts clan. He wouldn't betray the clan. But he also wanted to kill Linley and worry about the consequences later!

“The Azure Dragon ring belonged to our ancestor! This Linley, of a generation that is so many times removed from us...by what right does he hold it?” Forhan's eyes were cold. Jealousy constricted his heart, causing him to dislike Linley all the more.

“If Linley is permitted to continue to grow, there will come the day when he will be riding on my head.” Forhan still clearly remembered the conversation he had with his mother, the Grand Elder.

That time, the four clan leaders had ordered that Linley was to no longer participate in Bloodbath Gorge missions. Forhan was puzzled, and so later on, he went by himself to speak with the Grand Elder to ask her about this in detail, to try and understand why the clan leaders had made this decision.

The Grand Elder didn't want to discuss the Redbud Sovereign, and so this is what she had said to Forhan: “Forhan, are you aware that Linley is just a God? A God who has the power of a Seven Star Fiend...when he becomes a Highgod, how powerful do you think he will be? He is the future hope of our clan. He can't be put in danger for now!” Forhan, upon hearing the Grand Elder's explanation, was shocked.

He had always believed that Linley was hiding his ability, but unexpectedly, Linley actually really was just a God.

Within that dark, cold, underground hall.

Forhan suddenly stood up, his gaze cold and sinister. In a low voice, he said, "This Linley is already a Seven Star Fiend. If this continues, once he becomes a Highgod, he will definitely become a trump card of our clan. His status will be even higher than mine, and he'll be riding on my head! Can it be that in the future, I'll have to forever watch him act so arrogantly in front of me?"

When Forhan imagined how glorious and influential Linley would be in the future, the look on Forhan's face became all the uglier!

"No!" Forhan bellowed in a growling voice. "Absolutely not. Be beneath him for the rest of my life? I'd rather die."

"Linley must die. He must!"

Forhan's body was trembling slightly. "Right. I'm just getting rid of Linley. I'm not destroying the clan. This can't be considered betraying the clan. It can't! Also, I'm not personally killing him, I'm just letting the eight great clans kill him. Linley can be considered to have died in service to the clan, battling the eight great clans!"

"That Azure Dragon ring..."

Forhan couldn't help but frown. "If Linley dies, wouldn't that mean that the Azure Dragon ring would end up in the hands of the eight great clans?" Forhan was rather worried. The Azure Dragon ring was, after all, a precious treasure of the clan.

"No. It's fine. It'll only be Linley's most powerful clone that dies. The other clones will remain alive in the Skyrise Mountains. Even if the eight great clans acquire the Azure Dragon ring, they won't be able to bind it." Forhan convinced himself. "Afterwards, when I have the chance, I'll seize it back. And what's more, Linley's death won't have a major impact on the clan. Our Four Divine Beasts clan was in a position of weakness to begin with...at most, we'll just stay in the Skyrise Mountains. Our clan won't be destroyed."

After frantic pondering, Forhan finally came to a decision.

"A clan with Linley in it is a place I cannot live in, no matter how powerful the clan is. A clan without Linley in it, no matter how weak, is a place I can live comfortably." Forhan quirked his lips. He had already made up his mind.

"Whoosh!" Forhan's cloak fluttered as he walked out from his underground hall. He had already decided on what he was going to do.

A shadow appeared out of nowhere in the mountain villages, solidifying into a Forhan's figure. However, this was just a divine clone of Forhan's. Forhan let out a low chuckle, then his appearance changed, from that of a golden-haired old man to a bald youth.

Forhan, in his disguise as a 'bald youth', flew directly outwards...

"Rumble..." The waters of the river roiled about, and the 'bald youth' Forhan stood there, hovering in mid-air, sweeping the area below with his icy gaze. In a low voice, he said, "Men of the eight great clans. Come out."

On the pre-determined routes, the people who were hidden belonged to either the intelligence networks of the Four Divine Beasts clan or of the eight great clans. Forhan knew exactly who his own clan's agents were and where they were. If someone was present who didn't belong to the Four Divine Beasts clan, then naturally they belonged to the enemy!

"Who are you?" A low voice transmitted down from below the river.

"Remember this. An Elder Linley of the Azure Dragon clan has already mounted an azure, phoenix-shaped metallic lifeform, and is heading to Meer City. If you want to kill him, then seize this opportunity. There's another Elder travelling with him!" Although the metallic lifeform was in the shape of a black phoenix when they left, Elder Forhan knew that each time, when it headed out, the metallic lifeform would change to a different color and appearance. And so, Elder Forhan had investigated in advance.

This time, the transformation would be to the appearance of an azure phoenix.

At the same time, Forhan waved his hand, and a crystal ball fell down from the skies.

"In this crystal ball, there is stored the appearances of Linley's wife Delia, as well as his good friend, 'Bebe'."

When the crystal ball fell to the surface of the water, a ray of azure energy appeared, wrapping around the crystal ball and pulling it underwater. Forhan, seeing this, smiled coldly, then turned and flew away at high speed.

Long after Forhan left, a green-haired figure emerged from the surface of the river.

"Elder Linley of the Azure Dragon clan?" A look of disbelief was on the face of this intelligence agent. "I didn't expect I'd be able to render such a meritorious deed today." The eight great clans had issued the order to find and kill Linley long ago. Naturally, they had ordered their intelligence agents to be on the lookout for him as well.

However, all these years, there had been no one who was successful in locating him.

The news from the intelligence agent came very quickly. That very day, the eight great clans were made aware of this, and immediately, the leaders of the eight great clans were all excited. None of them had expected this news to come so suddenly.

After a discussion, this mission was assigned to the Edric clan and three other clans.

The eight great clans were, after all, separately located at two different sides of Indigo Prefecture. The four clans on the west were the Edric clan who had come from the Higher Plane of Life, the Venna clan from the Divine Plane of Wind, the Dean clan from the Divine Plane of Earth, and the Reinales clan, native to the Infernal Realm.

The western borders of Indigo Prefecture. The Edric clan and the other three clans were gathered together. Below the main palace, there were eight figures dressed in gray robes.

"Although this Linley is only a God, he has the power of a Seven Star Fiend. In a few short missions, he has caused our eight great clans to lose multiple Seven Star Fiends." A graceful, gentle voice came from a handsome, rather elfin-looking man who stood within the hall.

His long green hair fell to his waist, and his eyes seemed to glow like stars. This was Patriarch Edric, in the flesh. He had led his clan here from the Higher Plane of Life. It was he who had founded this clan.

"He isn't a major threat to us yet, but if a few more years pass and he becomes a Highgod, then it will be terrible."

"Thus, the eight of you must execute this Linley, no matter what the cost." The voice was as gentle as ever.

"Yes, Patriarch." Outside the main hall, two handsome gray-robed men bowed, while the other six gray-robed men hurriedly followed.

Within the hall, another Patriarch said calmly, "Here are three drops of Sovereign's Might. Of the eight of you, Elder Zabu [Zha'bu], the strongest, will naturally carry one. As for the other two...Elders Tempah [Tan'pu] and Nice [Ni'si] will carry them."

"Yes!"

The three immediately bowed respectfully. Of the three men, one was of the elfin-looking race.

"Remember. You must be successful in this endeavor. Even if you have to spend all three drops of Sovereign's Might. Even if all eight of you have to die. You must kill Linley!" Another voice, a forceful, hard one, rang out.

"Yes!"

The eight Elders below couldn't help but feel their hearts tighten.

Although they knew that this target of theirs, 'Linley', was just a Seven Star Fiend who was accompanied by a single other Seven Star Fiend, and that given the power the eight of them possessed, killing Linley shouldn't be a problem...hearing the words from the Patriarchs, they couldn't help but feel the pressure.

"Go, then! Move quickly, so that you might arrive at Meer earlier." The gentle voice said.

The eight gray-robed Elders bowed fractionally, then immediately left.

Within the hall, the four Patriarchs began to chat amongst themselves. "This is an excellent opportunity. Failure is not an option. Only after we kill that Linley will we be able to relax slightly. I refuse to believe that the Four Divine Beasts clan will be able to produce yet another genius who has the potential to become a Highgod Paragon."

“Don’t worry. These eight Elders are the elites which we have selected from our four clans. Linley will unquestionably die!”

“Eight mighty Elders, equipped with three drops of Sovereign’s Might. Even if I had to face them, I wouldn’t dare to resist head on.”

.....

The metallic lifeform in the shape of an azure phoenix was currently soaring through the horizons. Within this metallic lifeform, Linley and Delia were currently holding hands, seated in front of a window, staring at the outside through the translucent metal.

“We’ve flown for so long. We should arrive at Meer City soon.” Linley laughed.

Delia looked at the window, carefully inspecting the outside area. “I came here last time. If I remember correctly...we should arrive at Meer City in half an hour.” And then, Delia glanced at Linley, saying with resignation, “Elder Tewila really is cautious. He insisted on you changing your appearance.”

Linley currently had a beard, and even his height had been reduced slightly.

Linley chuckled. “It’s not as bad for you, but for us Elders, our enemies generally know exactly what we look like...although the chances of encountering them are low, it’s always better to be careful.”

“What, do you feel uncomfortable, seeing me like this?” Linley laughed and asked.

Delia shook her head, then closed her eyes. “Even with my eyes closed, I can still sense your aura. How could I feel uncomfortable?”

Linley laughed.

On the way over, Linley and Delia enjoyed a quiet, calm life as a couple. Soon, Linley and Delia saw an ancient city appear in the distance, and an endless flow of people entering and exiting the gates of the city.

“Wow, we finally made it!” Bebe was the first to jump up, sprinting outside.

Linley and Delia stood up together, following their clansmen out of the metallic lifeform. They followed Elder Tewila towards the gates of Meer City. Because Linley was a Fiend, he didn’t have to pay the city entrance fee.

“It’s been so many years since I’ve seen Tarosse, Dylin, and the others.” Linley laughed as he strode into the city.

But what he didn’t notice was that not far away, there were people maintaining a nonstop watch on the city gates. The arrival of the metallic lifeform of the Azure Dragon clan, in particular, caused these people to grow excited.

“The Azure Dragon clan’s metallic lifeform has arrived. Have you found Linley?"

"We haven't."

"We haven't seen anything either!"

"I haven't seen Linley, but I saw that Delia and Bebe. They have a man next to them. He looks like a God. That should be Linley!"

"A God? Then that should be him!"

The intelligence agents of the eight great clans conversed amongst themselves through divine sense, having already located Linley's group.

There was no way they could be certain of the route the Azure Dragon clan's metallic lifeform would take. The intelligence agents of the eight great clans were unable to find out, and so they had to wait at the gates of Meer City, like waiting for a rabbit to fall into their trap. After all, sooner or later, Linley's group would have to arrive at Meer City.

Now that they entered the city, there was naturally no way for them to do anything.

But when Linley's group exited to return to the Four Divine Beasts clan, the eight great clans would be able to make their move.

Book 17, Indigo Prefecture – Chapter 41, A Mysterious Visitor

On the wide streets, people were coming to and fro.

Within the city, battle of any kind was absolutely forbidden. It didn't matter if you were a member of a strange race, and it didn't matter if you were a Highgod or were a Demigod. Here, you could comfortably, peacefully enjoy life, without any fear or danger.

"I haven't gone to a city a single time ever since the return to the clan." Linley looked at the two sides of the street, at the various stores.

"Boss, the city is far more interesting than the mountains. There's many places for entertainment, and also many places for watching scryer recordings. Boss, last time, when watching scryer recordings in the city, I discovered..." Bebe's eyebrows were dancing animatedly as he spoke, and at this point, he switched to divine sense. "There was one scryer recording that was of the battle at Miluo Island between you and those many island warriors, as well as a scryer recording of the battle against the red-robed elder afterwards." Bebe said.

"Places for watching scryer recordings?" Linley was rather surprised.

The Bagshaw clan considered some precious scryer recordings to be treasures.

"How are the scryer recordings, in those places within the city where they are available for viewing? Are there many recordings of experts doing battle?" Linley asked.

“Not many. Although there’s quite a few Highgod battles, the skill level is roughly on par with the ‘Arena’ at Miluo Island. On occasionally, there will be a battle at high skill levels, but the price for watching those is quite high as well.” Bebe was rather unhappy. “Boss, when they show the scryer recording of your battle at Miluo Island, they should give you a share of the money.”

Linley began to laugh loudly.

The nearby Delia began to laugh as well. “Bebe’s words are well-spoken. They are releasing those scryer recordings without your permission.” Delia, Bebe, and Linley chatted about scryer recordings while walking. Moments later, from up ahead, Tewila and the others turned around and started walking towards Linley.

Elder Tewila sent through divine sense, “Elder Linley, we’ll stay here in Meer City for roughly a month. A month from today, we will head out once more to the Skyrise Mountains. During this month, Elder Linley, you can roam around in the city as you please. Remember, one month. If you miss it...then Elder Linley, if you want to return, you’ll have to wait for the next group. Or go back by yourself.”

“Don’t worry. I know.” Linley nodded. “Elder Tewila, please don’t mind us, go do what you want to do.”

After walking for a while further, Linley’s group separated from Tewila and the others, and then Linley, Delia, and Bebe headed directly for Tarosse and Dylin’s residence. When Tarosse, Dylin, and the others had arrived in Meer City, Bebe and Delia had been present as well. Naturally, they knew exactly where Tarosse and the others were living.

“Boss, Tarosse and the others purchased a large estate. They spent over a billion inkstones.” Bebe said hurriedly. “As for Dylin, Cesar, O’Brien, and the others, they are living there as well.”

Hearing this, Linley nodded. Tarosse’s group didn’t lack for money. It was right that they should buy a large estate in the city. As he thought about purchasing property, Linley couldn’t help but begin to laugh. “Bebe, Delia, do you still remember that year when we first went to Royalwing City? That time, when we saw those houses, the cheapest one was around sixty or seventy million, right? Back then, we were shocked when we saw those prices.”

Delia and Bebe, hearing this, began to laugh as well.

The cheapest houses in Royalwing City were around eight million, but people would seize the opportunity to buy houses like those. Normally speaking, empty houses would be worth nearly a hundred million. Generally speaking, only some fairly powerful Highgods were able to buy these things.

“At that time, I thought that only the ‘true elites’ of the Infernal Realm would be able to buy houses in cities. But now, it seems...” Linley shook his head and laughed. Indeed, those capable of buying houses in cities could be considered elites, but these so-called ‘elites’ were only elite in comparison to the many ordinary Deities of the Infernal Realm.

The true experts of the Infernal Realm, such as Six Star Fiends and Seven Star Fiends, primarily lived outside of the cities, taking over a piece of land for themselves. They would build their own castles and collect a large group of subordinates. Although it was safe inside the cities, life wasn't filled with as many challenges and as much excitement.

"Linley, we are here at Tarosse's residence." Delia pointed towards the front, and Linley followed Delia's pointing finger as he looked. He saw a large estate, hundreds of meters long. Within a city, where every inch of ground was utterly precious, purchasing such an enormous estate for the price of just over a billion inkstones was a fairly good bargain.

Within the residence. In the front courtyard, there was a round pool of water, by the side of which there were trees, shrubs, grass, and flowers. A cobbled, wide stone floor that was shaped in a curve led from the gate to a residential area.

"Elder Brother, why are you dawdling in the room? Hurry up." Currently, a muscular youth was shouting from below the residence. This was Dylin's third son, 'Clervaux'. He had gone with his elder brother that year along with Dylin to the Infernal Realm. As for his second brother, he had been killed on the eleventh floor of the Necropolis of the Gods by those Abyssal Blade Demons.

"Coming." A figure jumped down from the floor above, moving like lightning.

But right at that moment...

"Bang!" "Bang!" A loud, world-shaking knocking sound, joined by a thundering shout, "HEY, OPEN UP! Cleo, Clervaux, hurry up and open the door!"

"It's Bebe." The two siblings glanced at each other, then ran over.

"Rumble..." A rumbling sound, followed by the gates suddenly swinging open. There were three figures standing behind it.

"Linley." Cleo and Clervaux couldn't help but feel shocked. This was Linley's first time visiting them in five centuries. And then, Clervaux excitedly called out, "Father, Uncle Tarosse, Linley has arrived!"

"Linley came?" From the distant residence, multiple figures immediately flew over, with the first one being Cesar.

Linley, upon seeing his fellows from his homeland, laughed and greeted them, directly embracing Cesar in a tight hug. "Cesar, long time no see." "It has indeed been a long time. Elder Linley has a high rank, great power, and countless responsibilities each day, and thus has forgotten us minor figures." Cesar teased deliberately.

Linley, seeing Cesar be so irreverent, couldn't help but feel happy.

Cesar had finally returned to the way he had been in the Yulan continent; irreverent and uninhibited. It seemed as though the effects of what had happened in Miluo Island were wearing off.

"Linley." Tarosse, Dylin, and O'Brien came to welcome him as well.

"Eh?" Linley saw that Olivier wasn't amongst them, but there was a golden-haired beauty. Linley stared in surprise at the beauty who was at the back of the group. "She is...?"

Tarosse laughed devilishly. "Linley, she's one of us. Why don't you have a guess as to whose wife she is?"

"Wife?" Linley was stunned.

"Hey, someone's gotten married? That hadn't happened last time when I was here!" Bebe stared as well.

Tarosse began to laugh loudly. "When marrying a wife, of course you have to be fast. Have a guess as to whose she is?" Linley, Delia, and Bebe all turned to stare towards Cesar, Dylin, O'Brien, and Clervaux.

"Could it be Clervaux?" Bebe was the first to guess. "Or O'Brien's? Wait, that can't be right, O'Brien has that affair going on with the High Priest." The War God O'Brien couldn't help but feel awkward.

Immediately, Tarosse, Cesar, and the others all began to laugh. Dylin said hurriedly, "Alright, enough of that. Linley, Delia, I'll make the introductions. This is my wife, Kamina [Ka'mi'na]."

"Mr. Linley, they've often spoken about you to me." Kamina said with a laugh.

"Greetings, Kamina." Linley and Delia both greeted Kamina as well.

Linley's arrival caused the normally tranquil lives of Tarosse, Dylin, and the others to be slightly disrupted. Tarosse and the others immediately prepared a sumptuous welcome banquet that very day. Linley thus began to chat at the banquet table with Tarosse and the others regarding the affairs of the clan.

After knowing what had changed within the clan during the past five centuries, especially the viciousness of the battles that had occurred, Tarosse, Dylin, and the others couldn't help but sigh. Kamina was truly shocked; she was just an ordinary God, and in the past, although she had heard Dylin say a few things regarding Linley, it had always felt like hearing stories regarding legendary figures.

Right now, when she heard from Linley himself speaking of the deaths of so many Seven Star Fiends, there was a different feeling.

Those were Seven Star Fiends!

Generally speaking, only the master of a city was a Seven Star Fiend. But the ancient Four Divine Beasts clan and those eight great clans who had come from all the various planes, in their battles against each other, had lost one Seven Star Fiend after another.

"Did you just say that Olivier left?" Linley said, surprised.

"Right." Tarosse nodded. "Perhaps he's not accustomed to the peaceful life within cities. He went to accept Fiend missions. Generally speaking, he'll perhaps make a trip back here every ten years or every few decades."

Fiend missions?

Linley nodded slightly. At the same time, he suddenly remembered...it seemed as though he was only a One Star Fiend! Although he had taken on two missions, neither had been successful.

"Olivier, in the Yulan continent, had also desired to live an exciting life in the Infernal Realm. Thus, he was the first to come here. His temperament makes him unsuited for living forever in a city." Linley sighed.

Suddenly...

"Bang!" Suddenly, the sound of knocking against the door rang out yet again.

"Hey, someone is knocking at this time of the day? Everyone's here though. Nobody's outside." Tarosse was puzzled. "Can it be that Olivier is back?"

"It can't be such a coincidence, can it?" Linley laughed. Could it be that as soon as they discussed Olivier, he would arrive?

"Clervaux, go get the door." Tarosse said, and Clervaux immediately rose and ran outside.

"Hey, hurry up and open the door." A deep voice came from beyond the door, the voice shocking Linley. This was actually the voice of Phusro, the person who had saved him. Linley was very surprised to hear him.

Why had Phusro come here?

"Who are you?" Clervaux's voice rang out. Clervaux didn't recognize Phusro at all. As for Tarosse, Dylin, and the others, they quickly left the courtyard, seeing the big, red-haired man standing far away outside the gate.

But they didn't recognize Phusro.

"Haha, Phusro! Boss, it's Phusro!" Bebe called out, and Linley walked over as well, laughing, "Clervaux, he's my friend." Linley discovered...that Phusro actually had two subordinates trailing him.

"Kid, the first time we meet we are strangers, but the second time, we'll be acquaintances. In the future, you'll know who I am." Phusro slapped Clervaux on the shoulders, causing Clervaux's body to sway. Laughing loudly, Phusro walked in. "Linley, I knew you were here."

Linley, hearing this, was shocked.

He had changed his appearance when he had arrived. How could Phusro have known he was here?

"Don't be so surprised. The Governor of Meer City is my friend!" Phusro laughed. "When Delia accompanied these people to buy an estate, I arranged for people to pay attention."

Linley now understood. So they had seen Delia and Bebe, and thus had been able to guess at his presence. But Linley was still astonished at Phusro's connections; he actually was a friend of the Governor of Meer City!

"However, it wasn't me who discovered you this time." Phusro laughed. "It was another friend of mine who told me that you had arrived at Meer City."

"Another friend?" Linley was surprised.

Phusro nodded. "Right. That friend of mine is extremely strong. My friend knows that I'm familiar with you, and so asked me to come. My friend's wish is very simple...to meet with Bebe."

Linley frowned.

Phusro was very powerful, and thus his friends were no doubt impressive as well. One friend was the Governor, while the other friend had actually discovered that Linley had arrived in Meer City. And this other friend wanted to see Bebe?

"Meet me?" Bebe was shocked.

"Who is this person?" Linley asked.

Phusro shook his head and laughed. "I can't really say. If you want to ask, wait for Bebe to come back, then ask him. Right...do you agree for Bebe to make this trip?"

"To where? Is it within the city or outside?" Although Linley trusted Phusro, he was still worried about Bebe's safety.

"Don't worry. It is inside the city." Phusro laughed.

Linley finally relaxed. Not even Seven Star Fiends would dare to do anything inside the city. After all, the rule that no battle was permitted within cities was a rule that was shared throughout the Infernal Realm, a rule set by Sovereigns. Who would dare violate it?

"Bebe, what do you think?" Linley turned to look at Bebe.

Bebe's eyes were gleaming, and he laughed, "I very much want to see which mysterious person wishes to meet with me."

Book 17, Indigo Prefecture – Chapter 42, Nobody There

Phusro laughed and said, "Since Bebe agrees to meet that friend of mine, then how about this? You can follow my two servants. They'll take you there." Phusro looked towards Bebe, who was rather surprised. "Right now?"

"Of course. That friend of mine is currently waiting for you." Phusro said.

"Boss, then I'll head out now." Bebe turned to look towards Linley.

Although Linley was puzzled as to who this mysterious figure was, since the meeting spot was within the city, Linley felt very much at ease. He thus nodded and laughed, "Go quickly and return quickly. Phusro is intentionally hiding that person's identity. I'll be waiting for you to tell me who it is."

"Right." Bebe nodded solemnly, and then glanced sideways at Phusro. "I'm not like some people, trying to act so mysterious."

"You punk." Phusro couldn't help but begin to laugh.

Bebe strode outside while saying, "The two of you, hurry up and lead the way. I have no idea where this mysterious person who wants to meet me is living." Phusro's two servants immediately sped up the pace, leading Bebe away.

Linley watched as Bebe departed, the questions in his heart growing more and more numerous.

"Phusro." Delia chuckled as she looked at Phusro. "Since Bebe's already gone, there's no need for you to keep the secret any longer. Who is this mysterious friend of yours?" Linley turned to look towards Phusro as well, awaiting Phusro's answer.

But Phusro just laughed and didn't respond.

"Do I know this person?" Linley asked.

Phusro paused a moment, then said, "You...shouldn't know this person."

Linley looked at Phusro, puzzled. Shouldn't know this person? Knowing was knowing. Not knowing as not knowing. But Phusro's words were so... hesitant.

"Linley, has it been ten thousand years since you were born?" Phusro asked.

"Ten thousand years?" Linley couldn't help but laugh. "Up till now, I've only trained for a bit over a thousand years. I'm still quite a ways off from my second thousand years."

"So short?" Phusro was rather surprised, and then he said, "Then I'm certain that regardless as to whether or not you've heard my friend's name, you definitely haven't met my friend in person. This is because... ten thousand years ago, this friend of mine left your Yulan continent and came to the Infernal Realm."

Linley and Delia glanced at each other, astonished.

A person from the Yulan continent?

"Someone from the Yulan continent?" Tarosse, Dylin, Cesar, and the others, standing behind Linley, were surprised as well.

Phusro, seeing the looks of astonishment and confusion on their faces, laughed delightedly. "Haha, you can keep guessing. I refuse to tell...when Bebe comes back, you'll know. But I imagine that it'll be very hard for you to guess."

Linley couldn't help but shake his head and laugh. Phusro really did like to toy with people.

"Linley, how long will you be here?" Phusro suddenly asked.

"A month." Linley said.

"Oh, so long? Then I'll stay here for two days. If you have any free time, you can talk to me about the affairs of your Four Divine Beasts clan. I'm very curious about your Four Divine Beasts clan." Phusro chortled.

And just like that, that very day, Phusro moved in. Fortunately, the estate which Tarosse's group had purchased was large and had enough rooms.

Night.

Linley and Delia were still lying on the bed. After a passionate session, the night was now quiet, and the two of them, husband and wife, began to discuss that mysterious person.

"I had thought Bebe would be able to return the same day. I didn't expect him to take so long." Linley stroked Delia's hair, laughing as he spoke.

"Perhaps Bebe, after meeting that mysterious person, not only chatted but also had some other matters to take care of." Delia said. "This mysterious person actually came from the Yulan continent ten thousand years ago. We've never met this person before. I truly wonder who it is."

"At first, I thought it was Lord Beirut. Afterwards, when Phusro said that I had never met this person before, I no longer had any idea who it is." Linley was still puzzled.

And then Linley laughed and lowered his head, looking towards Delia.

"What is it?" Delia had the feeling that something was strange in Linley's gaze.

"The two of us have just a pair of children. Although the Four Divine Beasts clansmen have very few progeny, I refuse to believe that we won't have a third child." Linley laughed softly, and then lowered his head to kiss Delia.

"Mmmph..."

Delia's face flushed slightly. She couldn't help but give Linley a 'glare', and then she stretched out her jade-like arms, embracing Linley's neck. The two flipped over and entangled each other...

Who would have imagined that even by the time Phusro had left, Bebe still hadn't returned? Linley couldn't help but be rather nervous. How could a meeting with someone end up taking three days? Linley asked Phusro, but Phusro just told him not to worry.

After waiting five days...

"These scryer recordings I saw today were excellent. The ways in which those experts from the Higher Plane of Life do battle are quite peculiar. The ways in which they fly and the poses they adopt when attacking all seem so beautiful and alluring." Delia laughed as she praised.

Linley nodded. "Those in the Higher Plane of Life primarily train in the Edicts of Life. Those attacks are so beautiful to behold, yet their power is so astonishing."

While in Meer City, Linley and Delia would go wandering about in some of the more interesting parts of the city. It had to be said...that in Meer City, where so many people passed through, there really were many more interesting things than in the Skyrise Mountains.

Linley and Delia, laughing and chatting with each other, returned to their residence.

Upon reaching the gate, Delia let out a sigh. "I wonder if Bebe is back or not. This is the fifth day." Although Delia was often thinking about this, she still wasn't too worried. Firstly, Bebe was within the city and nothing would go wrong. Secondly, Linley and Bebe had a spiritual connection, and thus they could sense each other's locations.

Linley just grinned, not saying anything as he looked towards the gate of the residence.

His soul had sensed long ago that Bebe was within the estate. A jubilatory cry was heard. "Boss!" The gates swung open, and Bebe, wearing his straw hat, was standing right there in front of them, beaming towards Linley and Delia.

"Bebe's back?" Delia was startled, and then she turned to glare at Linley. Linley had to have sensed Bebe's return, but he hadn't said a thing on the way back

Linley began to laugh loudly.

"Bebe, you really are something. When you went to meet with that mysterious figure, you ended up spending so much time. This is the fifth day." Linley laughed while walking with Delia into the estate.

Within the estate, Tarosse, Dylin, Cesar, O'Brien, Kamina, and the others were all present. Upon seeing Linley and Delia enter, Tarosse laughed loudly, "Linley, you finally returned. We were asking Bebe who he had gone to visit, but he refused to tell us. He insisted on waiting until you were back and telling us all together."

Bebe wrinkled his nose and snorted.

Linley and Delia immediately laughed, walking over and sitting down. Linley looked towards Bebe. "Bebe, stop teasing everyone. Just spit it out. If you don't tell them today, Tarosse, Dylin, and the others will get angry."

Tarosse and Dylin began to laugh as well. This was just a small matter, and they were simply curious. How could they actually grow angry?

"Fine, I'll tell." Bebe raised his head. "This person originally came from our Yulan continent."

"We know this. It's precisely because this person is from the Yulan continent, that we are all curious." Tarosse immediately replied.

Bebe stared at everyone, then said smugly, "This mysterious person is... the wife of my Grandpa Beirut. My Grandma Carolina!"

"Carolina?" Linley immediately remembered that back in the Yulan continent, that year Bebe had indeed told him that Beirut's wife was 'Carolina'.

While at the Yulan continent, Linley had met Harvey, Hart, and Harry, the three brothers, but he had never met Carolina. When chatting with Harry and the others, Linley had heard that Carolina had long ago left the Yulan continent.

"It's her?" Tarosse let out a sound of surprise, and then began to laugh loudly. "I should've thought of her long ago. Lord Carolina is the wife of Lord Beirut. It's only natural that she comes to meet Bebe."

"Lord Carolina is the wife of Lord Beirut?" O'Brien was rather surprised.

When O'Brien and Cesar were born, Carolina had already left the Yulan continent. Naturally, they had never heard of this person. In fact, they didn't even know that she was Beirut's wife.

"My Grandma Carolina is very formidable." Bebe said smugly.

"Bebe, why did Grandma Carolina seek you out this time? And it took so much time as well." Linley was still puzzled.

"She was helping my Grandpa bring me something." Bebe chortled. "The fifth soul slice fragment."

Dylin, Tarosse, O'Brien, and the others had faces filled with puzzlement.

But Delia and Linley were rather surprised. Bebe had spoken to them regarding the 'soul slice' matter. Originally, it was because Bebe had absorbed those four soul slices, which contained memories of souls which held insights on profound mysteries, which was why he had been able to learn four types of profound mysteries in such a short period of time.

"In recent years, Grandpa finally helped me find the last one." Bebe said smugly. "Boss, you need to work hard. I might become a Highgod before you.”

Linley chuckled. By now, he had already mastered a fifth profound mystery of the Laws of the Earth, with one remaining. He trained extremely quickly in water as well, and had already mastered four.

“Haha, who knows which one of us will be Highgod first?” Linley laughed.

“What are you two talking about. What’s a soul fragment?” Dylin, Cesar, and the others were all puzzled. If a soul was shattered, it would be destroyed. How could there be ‘soul fragments’? What were soul fragments used for?

They couldn’t understand at all.

Time flew by very quickly. Life in Meer City was very relaxed, and in the blink of an eye, a month passed. On the day of departure, the Azure Dragon clan’s forces had already gathered outside the city. Everyone had arrived very early.

“Milord, the forces of the Azure Dragon clan are over there.”

“Do you see Linley and his family?”

“No! Most likely, they’ll arrive soon. The Azure Dragon clan’s people are still gathering.”

"Hurry up and notify the eight Elders. Let them make their preparations."

"Don't worry, milord. The eight Elders already know of this. Once the Azure Dragon clan's forces head out, the eight Elders will be ready to strike at a moment's notice."

"Good. The eight Elders care deeply about killing Linley. There can't be any mistakes made."

An intelligence agent of the eight great clans was currently monitoring the gathering of Azure Dragon clansmen. These intelligence agents had memorized the appearance of these Azure Dragon clansmen when they had passed through the city gates.

Those ordinary clansmen hadn't changed their appearance. Thus, when gathering together, they were immediately recognized.

Elder Tewila, his appearance changed, was currently waiting impatiently. Every so often, he would look towards the city entrance. "What's going on with Linley? He still hasn't arrived."

"Elder Tewila." A Highgod subordinate of Tewila sent through divine sense, "The other clansmen are all ready. We're only waiting for Elder Linley and his group of three. What should we do? Wait here?"

Tewila frowned.

"No. Since Elder Linley's group hasn't come, they'll most likely go back with the next group, or perhaps by themselves. We don't need to concern ourselves." Tewila immediately ordered, "Prepare to move out."

Tewila immediately produced his enormous metallic lifeform, in the shape of a black tiger, and the Azure Dragon clansmen immediately boarded.

"Milord, the Azure Dragon clan is about to head out. Only that Linley, his wife, and his friend haven't appeared."

"Still haven't appeared? Wait a while longer. That metallic lifeform will probably wait for some time before heading out."

However, the black tiger-shaped metallic lifeform took the clansmen and left, not hesitating at all, immediately embarking and disappearing into the horizon. This sight caused quite a few intelligence agents to be stupefied.

"Milord...now what? Linley's group of three truly has not arrived. There are three fewer people in that metallic lifeform than had arrived in the city."

"Three fewer? Then it seems as though Linley's group of three has yet to leave. Hurry up and inform the eight Elders...eh. Let the eight Elders rest for now, and continue to wait patiently."

Book 17, Indigo Prefecture – Chapter 43, Wade

Linley and his group of three hadn't departed, causing the intelligence agents of the eight great clans to have wasted their efforts, and causing those eight Elders, who had been preparing for so long, to have become excited for nothing.

Meer City. The residence of Tarosse and the others.

"Tarosse, I'm afraid we'll have to disturb you for a while longer." Linley's face was covered in smiles. He couldn't help but glance at Delia. He had been planning to return to the clan, but the previous night, Delia had actually told him...

That she...was pregnant!

"We were in the Skyrite Mountains for so long without her becoming pregnant. Who would have expected that now, she would?" Once Linley knew this news, he was unbelievably happy. Since Delia had become pregnant, Linley was no longer in a hurry to return to the Skyrite Mountains. After all, in terms of living environment, Meer City was much habitable than the Skyrite Mountains.

The plan was to first let Delia rest here. After giving birth to their child, they could go back.

"Haha, you can stay here as long as you like." Tarosse was puzzled. "But Linley, just yesterday, didn't you say that today was the day for you to head out? Why did you suddenly change your decision?" Cesar, by Tarosse's side, looked towards Linley as well, puzzled.

"Delia's pregnant." Linley said happily. Delia, by his side, couldn't help but blush.

Tarosse and Cesar immediately stared, and then began to laugh loudly.

"Haha, this is wonderful news. We have to celebrate!" Tarosse said hurriedly.

The news that Delia was pregnant caused everyone in the residence to be overjoyed. When Phusro came over, he discovered to his surprise that Linley actually hadn't left yet. When he asked, he learned about Delia being pregnant. He, too, was happy for Linley, and so the entire residence was filled with joyous sounds.

With Delia pregnant, Linley spent every single day by her side, watching as her belly grew bigger by the day. He grew more and more excited, and every so often, he would press his ear against Delia's belly, listening to the sounds.

When he drew near to Delia, Linley could even sense the blood pulsing through the veins of the unborn child, which seemed to reverberate slightly with his own lineage.

"Milord, our people have discovered Linley's friend, 'Bebe', within Meer City. We've quietly tailed him and finally discovered Bebe's residence. Our brothers plotted and schemed...and finally discovered the estate where Linley and Delia are living in!"

Meer City was a large city with a circumference of a thousand kilometers.

But to Deities, especially to the intelligence agents of the eight great clans, who stayed in Meer City for a long time, it wasn't hard for them to find Bebe, given how often Bebe went out. Upon finding Bebe...given the abilities of the eight great clans, finding Linley and Delia wasn't too hard.

"Excellent! Now that we've found their residence, everything else will be simple. Now, always have someone watching that place. Remember, you can't let Linley's group discover us. Whenever Linley heads out, immediately report it to us."

"Yes, milord!" "But, milord, what if Linley's group just remains in Meer City without leaving? What should we do?"

"Then..."

Fighting within the cities was forbidden. Even the eight great clans wouldn't dare to violate this rule.

"We'll just watch for now. I refuse to believe Linley will remain forever in Meer City. As for if Linley will really stay there without coming out...the Elders will decide what to do."

The eight great clans' intelligence agents continuously watched that residence. However, despite their careful attention, Linley just spent his time happily accompanying his wife, seemingly not intending to leave at all.

.....

Linley was seated outside, holding a cup of wine. He was rather rattled, occasionally turning to look back into the room. This was because Delia was in the room, and Delia was already close to the point of birth.

"Whew..." Linley couldn't help but take a deep breath.

He hadn't been as nervous as this, even when he was fighting against Seven Star Fiends.

"I wonder if it's a boy or a girl. I wonder if the child has been born yet or not. I wonder if Delia is..." Countless thoughts flitted through Linley's mind in a jumbled fashion. The hand holding the wine cup was trembling slightly.

"Boss, it isn't as though you haven't had any experience. Still so nervous?" Bebe, by his side, was snickering.

Linley couldn't help but glance at him, then forced out a smile. "Bebe, when one day you are about to become a father, you'll know. Each time you wait...the tension isn't any less than when battling against ultimate experts."

While waiting outside, Linley felt as though his heart was tight against his chest.

Next to him was O'Brien, Dylín, Tarosse, and the others. Even Phusro had come over today, and was chatting with the others while teasing Linley. Linley didn't spend any time chatting with them.

His attention was focused on the room.

"Waaaaaaaaaaaa!"

An ear-piercing infant's cry broke the silence of the entire estate. It was like a ray of sunlight flashing within Linley's mind, causing all the countless doubts and worries to vanish. At this moment, he had only a single thought...

The child had been born!

"Whoosh!" Linley charged towards the door, and at this moment, the door was opened. Dylín's wife, 'Kamina', laughed as she walked out. "Linley, congratulations. Delia's given birth to a son!"

Linley, not caring whether it was a boy or a girl, immediately entered the room.

Within the room, a faint sheen of perspiration could be seen on Delia's forehead. She was seated on the bed, cradling an infant. Seeing Linley enter, she immediately stood up then walked over. "Linley, look. He's very quiet. Just now, he was crying, but now he's calmer."

Linley took a careful look at the infant in Delia's arms. That pouting face, that tiny body and head...he looked so similar to how Taylor and Sasha had been.

"Let me hold him." Linley's heart was beating rapidly.

No matter how powerful an expert was, upon becoming a father and holding his son for the first time, he would feel excited, nervous, and agitated.

Holding the infant in his arms, he could feel the slight weight of his son against him. Although infants were very light, especially to a powerful expert like Linley, to whom this sort of weight was nothing, Linley felt as though this light weight was pressing down against his heart.

"Son. My son!" Linley couldn't help but shout in his heart, "This is my son!!!"

Holding his son, Linley had that sensation of his blood being passed down, of life continuing.

"Linley, what's the child's name? Have you come to a decision?" Delia said.

"We'll call him Wade." Linley looked dotingly at the child in his arms.

"Wade...Wade...say 'Father'?" Linley said, gently stroking his son's little nose. The skin was so soft. But perhaps Linley hurt him as he touched him, as Wade, who had just stopped crying moments ago, began to bawl loudly again.

Delia immediately stretched her arms out to take him back. "He's just a newborn, and yet you want him to call you 'Father'. The child's crying already. Quick, let me hold him."

"It's fine. The son of Linley doesn't need to be pampered that much." Linley said. "Let me hold him for a while longer."

Holding his son 'Wade' in his arms, Linley felt utter joy in his heart. The feeling of holding his son in his arms was even more exciting and happy for him than the feeling of holding a Sovereign artifact.

Seeing how reluctant Linley was to part from Wade, Delia couldn't help but laugh.

Linley lowered his head to look at his son. He felt as though he could never get tired of looking at him.

"Waaaaaaa...." Wade cried for a while, then stopped crying. His big guileless, pure eyes, containing no artifice at all, stared at Linley. This was the first man he had seen after his birth!

He didn't know yet that this was his father!

He was the son of Linley! It was guaranteed that his life would not be an ordinary one!

"Linley, why haven't you come out yet?" Cesar's voice rang out.

"Boss, hurry up and carry your son out. We uncles want to hold him too!" Bebe called loudly. At this moment, Linley and Delia, within the room, came to their senses. They couldn't help but grin at each other, then walked out while holding the child.

As soon as they walked outside, Bebe, Clervaux, and the others all rushed forward.

"Lemme hold him!" Bebe said jubilantly.

Their son was born. Linley and Delia felt utter bliss as they played with their son. They were in no rush to return to the Skyrise Mountains at all. But although they weren't in a rush, the intelligence agents of the eight great clans, especially those eight Elders, were frantic.

None of them had any idea how long Linley would stay here before returning.

However, they obviously couldn't go and tell him to hurry up. They just had to watch as Linley spent every day enjoying his time with his son.

"Milord, our men are always in wait and always watching. But it's been a year already. When will this come to an end?" The intelligence agents of the eight great clans were watching day and night, not daring to slack off at all.

"Linley is currently holding that infant right now. Are we supposed to just watch and wait until the infant grows up to become an adult?"

Just watching every day was indeed tiring, especially since they didn't even know how long they would have to keep doing it.

"Don't be impatient. I've already reported this to the Patriarchs, and the eight Patriarchs sent back a single word in response; 'Wait'! No matter what, we are not to arouse Linley's notice. He can't always stay in Meer City. There will be a day when he comes out!"

"Yes, milord."

The intelligence agents had no choice but to grit their teeth and keep watching.

On the streets of Meer City. Linley and Delia were walking shoulder to shoulder, with their son 'Wade' being taken care of by Kamina. The reason they had come out today was to buy some nutritious foodstuffs. Wade was still young. When he started to grow, he would need to eat many things.

"When we return later to the Skyrise Mountains, there won't be so much food available for sale." Linley laughed. "We should have bought enough this time."

"Of course we bought enough. These things we bought cost us tens of millions of inkstones. It's more than enough for Wade to eat for over ten years." Delia laughed. "Compared to Sasha and Taylor, the food which Wade will eat while growing up will be much better."

“Wade doesn’t know that he has an older brother and sister right now. When he grows up and knows more, we’ll tell him.” Knowing that he had his son by his side, he felt full of energy in everything he did, be it training or eating!

Just as Linley and Delia were chatting mentally on the way back, they suddenly saw someone...

“Eh?” Linley stared, astonished, at a distant figure. It was a member of the Azure Dragon clan. All of the clansmen had emblems of the clan, and they could all sense each other’s presence. This was why Linley sensed this person in front of him.

In Meer City, Linley had already run into quite a few members of the Azure Dragon clan. But this was the first time Linley had run into someone he knew.

“Elder Linley.” The other person had discovered Linley as well, and hurriedly reached out with divine sense.

“Elder Tewila.” Linley immediately responded with divine sense.

Linley and Tewila had both changed their appearances, but they looked exactly the same as they had when they last left. Naturally, the two could easily recognize each other.

Tewila smiled while walking over and saying through divine sense, “Elder Linley, you didn’t return with us last time. Did something happen?”

"I'm truly sorry. I really didn't expect that in the month I had been at Meer City, my wife would become pregnant." Linley laughed while sending back. "At that time, I came to the decision that I would return after my child was born."

"Ah! Congratulations, congratulations." Elder Tewila hurriedly sent back.

Linley was all smiles as well.

"Right. Elder Tewila, are you escorting the metallic lifeform this time?" Linley asked. "The clan sends a batch every half year. It's only been a year and a half, but it's your turn again?"

"Nothing for it. In the past four, five hundred years, we've lost too many Elders. The clan has too few Elders now, and most have entered Bloodbath Gorge." Tewila said helplessly. "Thus, there're only a few Elders on rotation for escorting the metallic lifeform."

Linley now understood.

Linley knew that the clan had suffered tremendous losses over the past five centuries. As for exactly how many Elders had been lost, however, Linley had never asked in detail. However...in the first two hundred years, they had lost five Elders. Most likely, over five hundred years, more than ten Elders had been lost.

"Tewila, when will you head back? We were just preparing to head back ourselves. Let's go together." Linley laughed.

"Oh. We're heading out in two days." Tewila was very happy as well. "Elder Linley, if you head out with us, then it will be much safer with us having joined forces."

"Very well. We'll meet in two days at dawn." Linley said.

"Definitely. However, when the time comes, make sure you show up this time." Tewila laughed.

"That won't happen again." Linley laughed.

Two days later. Dawn. The gates of the estate. Delia was holding little Wade, bidding farewell to Tarosse and the others, Linley and Bebe by her side.

"Tarosse, no need to send us off." Linley laughed.

"In the future, you must often come visit. I love this little Wade." Tarosse laughed.

Bebe laughed as well. "By the time you come again, Wade will be all grown up."

After bidding farewell to their friends, Linley, Delia, and Bebe took little Wade to head directly towards the gates of the city. This scene, in turn, was noticed by a figure located within a distant, tall building who was watching through a window. "Linley's group...seems to be preparing to head out."

Book 17, Indigo Prefecture – Chapter 44, Catching a Ride

The gates of Meer City. The intelligence station for the eight great clans' intelligence agents.

"Milord, Linley's group of three, along with an infant, have already headed out. They will reach the city gates soon."

"Oh? They even brought the infant out? It seems they really are prepared to leave the city. However, there's no rush. Let's take it slowly. After you see Linley's group reach the city gates, only then should you make the report to the eight Elders." The speaker was a seemingly honest-looking youth.

This honest-looking youth was standing in front of a window, a casual look on his face as he glanced downwards.

He could very clearly see the gates from his current position.

A long time later...

The pupils of the honest-looking youth contracted. Within his field of vision, amidst the massive, thronging crowds, Linley's group had appeared.

"Oh, Linley, Linley, Linley. You finally show yourself. I thought you'd end up spending millions of years in Meer City, but it seemed as though you decided to just spend a year or so." The honest-looking youth narrowed his eyes, a very innocent-looking smile appearing on his face.

"Quick. Spread this news to the Elders." The honest-looking youth immediately sent through divine sense.

"Yes!"

In a mountain forest roughly a thousand kilometers away from Meer City, there was a very ordinary stone house constructed there. This stone house was very wide, and it had eight prayer mats within the building. Eight gray-robed men were seated in the meditative position on those prayer mats, quietly awaiting.

It had been more than a year!

They had brought with them a murderous intent as they had prepared to kill Linley. However, they had ended up waiting here the entire time. Slowly, their killing aura had decreased.

"If Linley doesn't want to leave the city, who knows how long it will take? Ten years, a thousand years, ten thousand years?" A gray-robed man with long black hair and a beard said, rather upset.

Without a specific timeframe, it would be easy for anyone to grow impatient while waiting.

"Tempah!" A graceful voice rang out. "The members of your Reinales clan are still unable to be calm, it seems."

The bearded gray-robed man let out a snort, saying nothing else.

"Someone is coming." Suddenly, a sharp voice rang out. As soon as the words finished, a figure flew in at high speed. This person was one of the intelligence agents assigned to this place, who would be able to bring news to the eight Elders at any time.

"Eight Elders, Linley, Linley is leaving the city!" An excited voice rang out.

"Boom!" The eight gray-robed figures immediately rose to their feet. Even the most stolid of the eight, their leader, 'Elder Zabu', revealed a look of joy on his face. He immediately said, "Linley has finally shown himself. Everyone...remember, when attacking, immediately use your Sovereign's Might. We must use full force and immediately kill Linley."

Outside Meer City. The Azure Dragon clan's clansmen were gathering together. Because of the clan's seal, everyone could clearly sense everyone else.

"Elder Linley, you came fairly early today." Tewila said through divine sense.

Linley laughed and nodded. "I was afraid that if I came late, Elder Tewila, you would be angry with me." Tewila's gaze swept towards Delia and the infant 'Wade' in her arms, then he sent, "Linley, this is your son, right? He's so pretty."

"When Wade was born, he looked like an old man." Linley said. When someone praised his son, he naturally would be pleased.

"Right. When are we heading out?" Linley asked.

Tewila glanced around himself. "From the looks of it, we are almost all here. Let's just wait a while longer. Right, Linley. Today, on our metallic lifeform, we have a very special guest."

"Oh, a special guest?" Linley was rather surprised.

"Right. The Patriarch personally entrusted me with this task, ordering me to bring him to the Skyrise Mountains." Tewila laughed. "Follow me. I'll introduce you to him."

Linley, rather curious as to who this special guest was, followed Tewila's lead. Linley saw that this special passenger was a seemingly skinny-looking youth with short golden hair, and a guileless smile on his face.

However...when Linley looked at him, he had a familiar feeling.

"Haha, Linley." A clear and straightforward voice echoed in Linley's mind. Linley was shocked into awareness. This was Phusro! This voice was Phusro's voice!

"You?!" Linley stared in amazement at the skinny youth in front of him, and the skinny youth winked, sending mentally, "There's nothing for it. Your Patriarch said that due to my actions last time, the eight great clans probably know my appearance by now. I have to change my appearance, even when I'm riding on your metallic lifeform. Geeze...what's there to fear? Even if a few Elders come, I'll dispose of them by myself."

Linley couldn't help but laugh.

Phusro was a Sovereign's Emissary. Linley had personally witnessed his might before, and even Bulo, after using a drop of Sovereign's Might, was far from being a match for Phusro. It would be very simple for him to kill several Elders.

"Haha, the Patriarch is doing this for the sake of the clan." Linley laughed. "Right. How did you get involved with the Patriarch?" Last time, when Phusro had intervened and saved him, he hadn't known the Patriarch.

However, five centuries had passed. Anything could have happened in the mean time.

"You don't need to worry about that." Phusro sent through divine sense. "My meeting with your Patriarch will be beneficial to you, not detrimental. That's all that you need to know."

Linley laughed and nodded. "Everything else aside, you accompanying us back to the Skyrise Mountains alone is a great benefit." With Phusro present, along with himself and Tewila, they were a force of sizable power.

Phusro by himself was equal to multiple Seven Star Fiends.

"In addition, I've never even see Phusro unleash all of his power." Linley thought to himself.

"Linley, who is this?" Delia and Bebe looked at the skinny youth, puzzled. Linley chuckled. "When we board the metallic lifeform, I'll introduce you to him."

Phusro just winked deliberately.

"Uh....waaaaa...." Wade, in Delia's arms, reached out his pudgy fingers towards Phusro. Phusro had held Wade quite a few times before as well. Although Phusro's appearance had changed greatly, Wade, who had been born less than a year ago, seemed to possess some special sense.

"Wade, be good." Phusro beamed towards Wade.

Delia and Bebe were shocked. How did the skinny little youth in front of them know Wade's name?

"Everyone's here. Let's head out." Tewila walked over, and as he did, an enormous silver metallic lifeform in the shape of a silver wolf appeared. A tunnel appeared in its flank, and the clansmen of the Azure dragon clan all entered the metallic lifeform.

Linley, Phusro, Tewila Bebe, and Delia boarded as well.

"Swoosh!"

The metallic lifeform slashed through the air, turning into a blur and disappearing into the horizon.

“The metallic lifeform is flying towards position two. It is flying towards position two!” The intelligence agents of the eight great clans quickly relayed this information.

In mid-air, there were nine figures flying at high speed. Eight of them were dressed in long gray robes, while the last one was dressed in a long green robe. The green-robed man said hurriedly, “Eight Elders, Linley’s metallic lifeform was originally headed towards position two, but now they’ve changed directions slightly. They should be passing through position four. We’re still a few hundred kilometers away from that location. We’ll be there soon!”

The eight great clans’ intelligence agents had expended an enormous amount of effort on this.

With the gate as the center, they had fanned out and set up many gathering points within thousands of kilometers. No matter what direction the Azure Dragon clan’s metallic lifeform headed towards, they would be easily detected by those intelligence agents.

As for that green-robed man, one of his divine clones was at the headquarters, and so he knew the location and route of the metallic lifeform at all times.

“Excellent.” Elder Zabu laughed calmly and spoke mentally. “Everyone, we’re only a few hundred kilometers away. We’ll reach the metallic lifeform soon. When we do, immediately cover it with your divine senses and locate Linley. At that time...Annecy [An’ni’xi], you’ll be responsible for covering the Elder who is protecting the metallic lifeform. Everyone else, myself included, will all attack simultaneously, joining forces to kill Linley. We can't give him any chance at all.

"Yes." The seven Elders assented.

Of these eight Elders, three were in possession of Sovereign's Might. Annecy was one of the 'ordinary' Elders without it.

On this joint mission to kill Linley, three Elders would use their Sovereign's Might, with four other Elders joining them. With such a tremendously powerful squad...even if Patriarch Gislason came, it would be hard for him to endure such an attack, much less Linley!

"Actually, Elder Zabu, if you use your Sovereign's Might, you'll be more than strong enough to kill Linley by yourself. Even if we don't use Sovereign's Might, the joint attacks of seven Elders against Linley will result in a surefire victory." The bearded Elder sent mentally.

"We can't be the slightest bit incautious!"

"Remember. Immediately use your Sovereign's Might. Don't entertain any notions of being frugal. Kill Linley. Nothing is permitted to go wrong." Elder Zabu ordered solemnly yet again. "Nice, Tempah, the two of you must use your Sovereign's Might right away when attack."

It was like killing a chicken with a blade meant for slaughtering cows. It was an utter waste.

Using three drops of Sovereign's Might to kill a single Linley? It was indeed extravagant.

The enormous wolf-shaped silvery metallic lifeform was speeding forward at a fast pace. The clansmen within the metallic lifeform were chatting amongst each other. Linley, as an Elder, naturally had his own room.

Linley and Delia were within the room, while Delia was holding little Wade.

"Wade, Wade." Linley teased his son.

"Wuuu, wuuuuu...." Wade, not yet able to speak, could only stare with his big, clear eyes at Linley, mumbling something incomprehensible.

Delia watched this scene, watched as her husband teased her son. As she did, Delia's face couldn't help but reveal a smile. She felt surrounded by bliss, and celebrated once more her decision to steadfastly wait ten years for Linley, so long ago in the past.

Linley turned to look and smile towards Delia. "Delia, what are you laughing about?"

"I'm just looking at you and our son." Delia's smile was so brilliant.

But right at that moment...

Eight divine senses simultaneously spread out, covering the metallic lifeform and everyone within it. The faces of many clansmen couldn't help but change, and Delia, as a Highgod, felt the divine senses as well.

Eight divine senses had suddenly swept out? This definitely couldn't be a good.

"Linley, eight Highgod divine senses just swept through this metallic lifeform." Delia immediately said through divine sense. There was no time to talk.

Shocked, Linley's face changed. He immediately spread his divine sense towards the outside...

And in mid-air, eight gray-robed figures were charging at high speed towards the metallic lifeform. Three of them, in particular, were emanating a terrifying, heart-stopping aura from their entire bodies. Linley could instantly recognize the aura for what it was. Sovereign's Might.

"Sovereign's Might!" Linley's face changed dramatically.

One of the eight gray-robed men was moving fairly slowly.

As for the other seven, especially the three whose bodies were completely covered by a layer of Sovereign's Might, charged straight for the metallic lifeform, directly towards the room which Linley was staying in.

"Die!"

"Linley, quick, flee!!!"

The voices of Phusro and Tewila instantly rang out in Linley's mind. They clearly noticed the enemies before Linley had.

But...there was no time!

"BANG!"

A terrifying energy wave struck the metallic lifeform, and in the face of that frightening energy wave, the surface of the metallic lifeform blew apart as though it were paper. The shards were sent flying wildly every which way by the explosion. Linley let a deep growl, and his draconic scales emerged as he entered his Dragonform.

"Slash!" Shards of metal flew about everywhere, and Delia immediately lowered her head, tightly embracing her son protectively.

"Delia, flee." Linley pushed Delia away powerfully, then shouted through divine sense, "Tewila, protect Delia!" The enemies were clearly here for him. This battle was one in which Phusro and Linley would play the primary roles.

"Linley!" Delia, pushed aside, shot backwards like an arrow. Her body immediately became covered with a shield of divine power, protecting little Wade. But Delia still turned to look back...

A blurry, earthen yellow light had suddenly spread out. Gravitational Space!

An azure light had also burst forth. Water-type Sovereign's Might!

In an instant, Linley had unleashed all of his power!

A fiery red form charged over while shouting through divine sense, "Delia, hurry up and flee, leave the battle to us!"

"Roaaaaar!" A ferocious draconic howl shook out!

"Bang!"

A terrifying, soul-shaking explosive vibration blasted out from the center of that earthen yellow light. Space itself cracked open in multiple areas, and wild blasts of energy emanated in every direction. Some of the weaker clansmen who were hit by it immediately exploded and died.

Book 17, Indigo Prefecture – Chapter 45, A Frantic Battle

Within the blurry, earthen yellow field, Linley, his entire body covered by that azure light, had just suffered the combined attacks of seven Elders. The seven mighty Elders had all unleashed the attacks they were most proficient at, either material attacks that tore through the air or invisible spiritual attacks.

Because this all happened within such a short time frame, and because he chose to first push Delia out of the danger zone, Linley wasn't able to dodge at all.

"Rumble..."

Seven bursts of terrifyingly powerful attacks all struck Linley, three of which were attacks which contained Sovereign's Might. The air around Linley blew apart, and his draconic scales shattered as blood splashed everywhere. Linley's ravaged body fell down like a meteor, plunging from the skies, smashing hard against the ground.

"BANG!"

The earth trembled, and a crater that was two or three meters wide and so deep that the bottom couldn't be seen appeared.

A dazzling, fiery red light slashed through the skies. "Aaaaaah!" A desolate, miserable scream. At the same instant that Linley fell from the skies, Elder 'Nice', his entire body filled with Sovereign's Might, fell down from the skies as well. His head had already been completely disintegrated and could no longer be seen.

In but an instant!

Linley's status was unknown. On the side of the eight Elders, an Elder who had used Sovereign's Might, Elder Nice, had died.

"You..."

The eight Elders, who had been radiating such an indomitable, martial spirit, were stunned by Phusro's sudden attack. The seven remaining ones stared in astonishment at this red-haired man whose entire body radiated fire-type Sovereign's Might, who was wielding a long awl in his hands.

In a single blow, he had killed Elder Nice, who had used Sovereign's Might!

"Linley!" Phusro immediately sent his divine sense into the ground.

"Linley!" Delia's face turned ashen, and at the same time, she howled desperately through divine sense, "Elder Tewila, quick, quick, go help Linley, quick!"

"Alright, but you have to be careful and stay far away. Don't be hit by the shockwaves." Tewila replied urgently through divine sense. Although he had experienced hundreds of battles, upon seeing the sudden, terrifying attacks just now, Tewila was tense as well.

Good heavens!

Phusro was himself a Sovereign's Emissary. It was only normal for him to have a drop of Sovereign's Might. But unexpectedly, the enemy had used three drops of Sovereign's Might as well!

"It seems that after hiding for so many years, it is time to let the eight great clans know the power that I, Tewila, possess!" Tewila said to himself. And then, not hesitating at all, he used his drop of Sovereign's Might as well.

A wild burst of water-type Sovereign's Might blasted forth.

This immediately caused the seven Elders in the distance to glance towards him, their faces changing dramatically.

"Elder Zabu, that person in the distance should be an Elder of the Azure Dragon clan. The person in front of him should be that Sovereign's Emissary named Phusro who saved Linley five centuries ago." Tempah's entire body was emanating the aura of Sovereign's Might. He hurriedly asked, "The enemy is more powerful than we expected. What should we do now?"

The seven surviving Elders had a bad feeling!

An ugly look was on Elder Zabu's face. He had heard of Phusro's power. If Phusro didn't have a Sovereign artifact, he wouldn't be afraid of Phusro, but Phusro had not only used his Sovereign artifact, but also Sovereign's Might...

He had to admit that he was one level weaker than Phusro.

Elder Zabu's eyes flashed with a decisive look, and he immediately gave the order. "The Patriarchs have given us our orders. In this battle...we must kill Linley, no matter what. Even if all eight of us die, we must kill Linley. Let me deal with this Phusro. I'll contain him for now...Annecy, you do what you have to do in order to contain that Elder of the Azure Dragon clan. The other five Elders...Tempah, I entrust Linley to you. Even if you die, you must kill him!"

"Yes!"

The other six Elders immediately became resolved.

Although this took time to describe, in truth, the communication through divine sense by these seven Elders happened in the blink of an eye. In that blink of an eye, there was only enough time for Tewila to begin to charge over...and as he did, Phusro laughed!

"Haha...you are so audacious. All of you, die." Phusro laughed wildly, and was the first to charge over.

"Remember, at all costs, kill Linley!" The elfin-looking 'Elder Zabu' shouted through divine sense, while he charged forward to meet Phusro. As for Elder Annecy, he went to go deal with Tewila.

"Swish." "Swish."

With Elder Zabū at the center, ten million strands of green branches erupted forth, sweeping towards Phusro. Those ten million green branches were filled with a green aura, encasing Phusro within.

This was Elder Zabū's ultimate technique...

The 'Dance of Life'!

The goal wasn't to kill the enemy, just to contain the enemy!

.....

"Bang!" "Bang!" "Bang"! "Bang!"

The five Elders led by Elder Tempah charged directly into the ground. The tough, unyielding ground, in the face of these Seven Star Fiends, seemed to be made out of tofu, and giant tunnels in the earth were created by each of them.

"What is going on, what in the world is going on?" Many of the Azure Dragon clansmen were hovering in midair in the distance. This sudden attack had made them all numb.

"It must be the forces of the eight great clans."

The Azure Dragon clansmen could only come to this conclusion. They all stared worriedly at the two battles going on in mid-air, while there was a massive battle going on below as well.

Delia, holding little Wade and with Bebe by her side, stood there in mid-air, staring worriedly towards the ground.

"Delia, don't worry. The Boss is fine." Bebe hurriedly said through divine sense. "I can sense that the Boss is still alive." But although this was what Bebe said, a hint of worry could still be seen in his gaze.

This was because...

Shattered draconic scales and a severed arm were lying on the distant ground. This was what Linley had left behind from the sudden attack just now, which had injured him badly.

Even though he used Sovereign's Might and even though his body's defense was tough, in the face of the combined attack of seven Elders, he was lucky to stay alive.

"Linley, you have to be fine." Delia's body was trembling.

Right at this moment, a metallic lifeform hovering in the distance came to a halt, and quite a few people flew out from within it, all of them staring at Phusro, Elder Zabu, Elder Tewila, Elder Annecy, and the two battles going on between these combatants.

"A battle between Seven Star Fiends, and they've even used Sovereign's Might!"

Shocked cries rang out.

"Quick, record it down. We can't miss a battle on this level."

Quite a few experts who trained in the 'Elemental Laws of Water' hurriedly set up 'Scryer Recordings', recording down the distant, incredibly rare battle between supreme experts. Not just them; even quite a members of the Azure Dragon clan were recording this battle.

Right at this moment...

"Rumble..." Beneath the ground, an enormous serpent seemed to be slithering about. The entire ground was rippling in waves, and wild bursts of energy were spreading about wantonly.

"There's a battle underground!"

The many spectators all lowered their heads to watch.

"Linley!" Delia was extremely worried.

Deep within the ground, Linley was tunneling at high speed. The draconic scales around his chest were still shattered, while his entire right arm had been severed. The water-type Sovereign's Might was currently slowly repairing Linley's body.

After all, the more powerful a body, the slower the repair would be!

“Those three who used Sovereign’s Might are too strong!” Linley still felt that his head was in a daze. At the most dangerous juncture, he had used his Dragonform as well as the Sovereign’s Might for defense.

Of those seven, two specialized in material attacks while the other five used spiritual attacks!

The physical attacks were used by Tempah and Nice, two Elders who had used Sovereign’s Might. By joining forces, not only had the two been able to break through Linley’s armor formed from Sovereign’s Might, they had also shattered Linley’s draconic scales...

If Linley’s defense had been just slightly weaker, he probably would’ve been finished.

“Fortunately, that person isn’t pursuing me.” Linley still clearly remembered how that elfin-looking gray-robed man who had used a drop of Sovereign’s Might had been able to, with a single spiritual attack, easily locate the weakness in Linley’s Sovereign artifact. Luckily, Linley had gone all out, and by using both the Sovereign’s Might as well as his hereditary azure light to defend, he had been able to withstand it.

“If that elfin-looking gray-robed man attacked again along with those four behind me with another barrage of spiritual attacks, I wouldn’t be able to take it.” Linley was truly stunned.

“Rumble...”

An enormous black claw suddenly emerged, effortlessly slicing through the impeding earth and clawing towards Linley.

"Haaaargh!" Linley turned and swept outwards with his left arm, which struck out as though it were an enormous millstone slowly grinding away. Space itself seemed to turn sluggish, until that moment when it clashed against the enormous black claw..."Bang!" The colliding blows caused space itself to be torn apart.

"Linley, you won't be able to escape!" A furious roar echoed in Linley's mind.

Linley turned to look.

The earth behind him was roiling as five figures sped over quickly.

Linley's face couldn't help but change. "So fast!"

Because Linley had just launched an attack, the five Elders had immediately hurried over and followed him. The leader was the big-bearded Elder Tempah, and currently, his entire body was covered with a black light which emanated the aura of Destruction.

The power of his material attack, when paired with Destruction-type Sovereign's Might, wasn't weaker than Linley's at all!

"Destruction-type Sovereign's Might and Death-type Sovereign's Might truly are troublesome." Linley still felt the pain in his shattered arm. The joint attacks from those two had left vestige's of Sovereign's Might in his body.

This was causing the healing speed to be even slower.

"If the only one present was this big-bearded fellow, I could still battle. But these other four..." Linley felt his head hurt. The five were in constant pursuit in a group, not giving him a chance to deal with them singly.

"Swoosh!" Linley suddenly burst into the skies.

"Bang!" Tempah and the other five Elders all immediately charged upwards as well.

The many clansmen of the Azure Dragon clan, as well as the spectators in the other metallic lifeform, were all watching this battle. Right at this tense moment...with a 'Bang!' sound, the ground exploded. Linley and five Elders charged outwards in rapid succession.

"Five on one?" Quite a few people called out in shock.

"Quick, record it down." Those people immediately set up more scryer recordings.

As for Delia, when she saw Linley, her tears began to fall. "Linley!" This was because she saw that Linley's arm was severed, and that blood was still flowing out. There was an even more astonishingly large hole in his chest, and the whiteness of his bones could be seen.

There was a black, foggy aura covering his chest. Linley wanted to repair himself, but the speed was very slow.

"Why haven't you caught Linley yet? Why haven't you killed him?" Elder Zabu, currently battling Phusro, saw that Linley and those five Elders had just emerged. He couldn't help but feel frantically angry, and he immediately sent out his divine sense and shouted towards them.

"Elder Zhabu, the power of Linley's Gravitational Space is simply too great. I have to help the other four Elders to jointly resist the power of that gravity. Otherwise, we'll be taken on one at a time by him!" Elder Tempah hurriedly sent back through divine sense as well.

But just as his words were finished...

"BANG!"

Elder Annecy's body collapsed from the skies. She was dead!

Elder Tewila shouted, "Linley, I'll come help you!" As he spoke, he charged over and attacked.

"Perfect timing." Linley was overjoyed. Although he had used his Gravitational Space, his Gravitational Space was an earth-type ultimate technique. When using water-type Sovereign's Might to execute it, although the power was still great, it wasn't too extravagant.

It was indeed hard for him to battle five others on his own.

“Haha, your Sovereign’s Might has almost been used up. I want to see how you’ll continue to contain me!” Phusro’s loud, delighted laugh echoed forth. The ‘Dance of Life’ was a trapping technique, after all.

Filling all those ten million branches with Sovereign’s Might exhausted it very quickly, as it the technique consumed an astonishing amount of energy.

“Tempah, you must kill Linley!!!”

A fierce bellow rang out. The elfin-looking Elder Zabu roared, and his entire body suddenly emanated countless specks of green light, which shot out in every direction at an astonishing speed.

“BOOM!” Phusro had finally, with great effort, used his long awl to kill Elder Zabu, the most powerful person on the enemy side!

However...those countless green specks of light still shot out at high speed, and many people who weren’t able to dodge in time had the green specks of light shoot into their bodies, and they all fell down from the skies, one by one.

“Delia, careful.” Bebe hurriedly pushed Delia aside as countless specks of green light directly entered Bebe’s body.

“Wade.” Delia didn’t care about herself. Using her own body, she completely covered up Wade, and as she did, two specks of green light directly entered Delia’s body.

Right at this moment...

"Bang!" Linley and Elder Tempah clashed against each other fiercely, and their bodies were sent flying apart. However, just as their bodies flew apart, Linley saw from the corner of his eyes...

Silently, soundlessly...

Her long hair was dancing in the wind. Delia had covered up Wade with her entire body, protecting him completely. She still had tears in the corner of her eyes, which caught and reflected a ray of sunlight. Just like that, Delia slowly, gently drifted down from the skies...

"Waaaaaaaaa!" Wade suddenly began to sob.

This sob was like a knife cutting into Linley's heart. In stunned silence, tears rolled down Linley's cheeks.

"No...." A desolate sound echoed in the heavens.

Book 17, Indigo Prefecture – Chapter 46, Spare No One!

Linley felt his heart be instantly ripped apart!

When Linley was together with Delia, he felt as though he were a lonely boat who had found his harbor, with his heart at peace. Their souls had become deeply intertwined, and neither could leave the other!

“No...no...no way...” Linley couldn’t accept it.

He would rather die than see what he just saw.

How many years had it been? From that first time when he had learned of his father’s death...when he had watched as Grandpa Doehring sacrificed himself for him...those two events had caused Linley to sink into an abyss of despair. Ever since those two times, Linley had buried hatred deep into his heart and then encased it in ice.

But because of Delia...

Linley once more felt the warmth of family. In front of Delia, Linley didn’t have to hold back anything. His heart and Delia’s heart were completely joined. Linley felt that he was blissful, that the heavens had treated him generously...

Because he had Delia, his partner in life!

But today...

His father had died. Grandpa Doehring had died. Those two blows had caused Linley to nearly collapse. But the blow he suffered today was even fiercer than the previous two. Delia had been together with Linley for simply too long!

A thousand years of taking care of each other. Their lives had become one!

"This..." Phusro was stunned as well.

"Delia!" Bebe was stunned as well. He, linked together spiritually with Linley, could feel the despair and deathly loneliness radiating out from Linley's soul. Bebe couldn't help but feel his own soul quiver.

What sort of despair was this?

"Boss!" Bebe was about to cry as well.

"Rumble..." Tempah, his entire body covered with that black aura, once more violently charged towards Linley, while Linley just stood there stupidly.

"Die." Tempah was shaking from excitement.

He sent a full-force fist smashing towards Linley's head. Before his fist arrived, the spatial ripples it generated arrived, striking at Linley's head. Linley, rather numbly, turned to look, but all he saw in front of his eyes was a fist glowing with flowing black light.

"Aaaaaaaaaaaaaaaah!" Linley seemed to have gone insane, as he let out a terrifying howl!

His undamaged left arm suddenly swung out, snatching the oncoming fist, delivering it into his own chest. "Bang!" The fierce punch cracked the Sovereign's Might covering Linley's body, smashing against his chest.

"CRUNCH!" His ribs shattered and his chest caved in.

"Eh?" Tempah was completely stunned. What was Linley doing?

"Whoosh!" Linley's draconic tail suddenly swung over, stretching out towards Tempah and wrapping itself around him. Linley's left arm was clutching Tempah's right arm, while his draconic tail was binding Tempah, pulling him into a tight embrace.

Tempah wasn't able to break free!

The two stared face to face, right next to each other!

"Aaaaaaaaaaaaaaaah!" Linley seemed like a madman. He suddenly turned his head, ramming it viciously against the opponent. That fierce, azure-golden spiked horn in Linley's forehead, covered with that azure light, stabbed down viciously.

"F*ck off!" Tempah wanted to break free.

But Linley's Sovereign's Might was on full power, and water-type Sovereign's Might was durable to begin with. Even worse, Linley's body was more powerful than his to begin with. Tempah, break free? Unlikely!

"Die!!!" Linley howled ferociously like a madman! His head savagely, repeatedly slammed towards his enemy's, and so too did that fierce horned spike, covered with Sovereign's Might!

What was the toughest, sharpest part of Linley's body?

It wasn't his fist. It wasn't his scales. It was these spikes!

They were just like the spikes of an Armored Razorback Wurm, which before death would unleash its most powerful attack by blasting out these spikes. An 'Armored Razorback Wurm' of the ninth rank was able to use these spikes to pierce through the body of a Saint-level magical beast. Linley's spikes, in turn, had been strengthened and intensified by the blood essence of the Azure Dragon, as well as that drop of Sovereign's Might.

The sharpness of those spikes was utterly terrifying.

For Tempah to have his head struck by Linley's...and especially given that Tempah's body was inferior to Linley's to begin with...

After his protective barrier of Sovereign's Might was broken through after three successive 'stabs', Tempah only had enough time to let out a bellow, and then stopped making any noise.

"Bang!" "Bang!" "Bang!" "Bang!" "Bang!"

In the blink of an eye, Linley's head had smashed into the opponent's countless times.

Bebe, Phusro, Tewila, and even those other four enemy Elders were staring in disbelief. Tempah's entire head had been slammed into pulp. His divine spark had been knocked flying...but Linley continued to smash.

Smash his head. Smash his body!

Blood flew everywhere. Muddy bits of flesh flew everywhere. The sight was utterly unbearable! Linley's eyes were as crimson as blood, and he was utterly wild.

"Boss..." Bebe had never seen Linley go so berserk before. Through their soul connection, he could feel that Linley had completely descended into a mindless savagery, the throes of which caused Bebe to tremble.

"This..." The four Elders were stunned as well.

How could a battle between Seven Star Fiends end up like this?

Linley didn't block Tempah's attack, but rather grappled Tempah, then used his own head to smash him to death?

As they looked at Linley, whose arm was severed, chest was caved in, and whose face was covered with blood, they felt their hearts grow cold.

"Linley, stop, stop!" Phusro shouted through divine sense. "Stop immediately!" Phusro rushed over, giving Linley a vicious punch, and Linley's body couldn't help but tremble.

This punch brought Linley back to sanity.

"What am I doing?" Linley felt as though he had gone completely insane. He then looked sideways at the distant Delia, lying on the ground. His eyes couldn't help but immediately turn red once again, and then he turned to look at the other four Elders.

Those four Elders hadn't used Sovereign's Might!

The four Elders had been stunned by Linley's display of savagery. Only now did they come to their senses.

"Elder Zabu and the others died. We aren't of any use here. The appearance of this Phusro was completely out of our expectations. Let's flee." The four Elders hurriedly spoke through divine sense, and then they fled in every direction.

But Linley just let out a bellow.

"Rumble..."

Azure light spread out everywhere to a diameter of hundreds of meters, trapping all four of those Elders in the distance who had sought to flee within. The azure light then transformed into an enormous cube!

Blackstone Prison!

A Blackstone Prison formed from Sovereign's Might!

This was water-type Sovereign's Might. Although it wasn't earth-type, it was still far more powerful than Linley's own 'God-level divine power'. The 'durability' was extremely powerful in particular. These four Elders, in turn, didn't have Sovereign's power.

Trapped within this Blackstone Prison, there was no way they could flee at all.

"Linley..." Phusro wanted to speak.

"Phusro. Tewila. Don't interfere. Leave this Blackstone Prison. Let me handle the four of them!" Linley growled, and a corridor split open from above. Phusro and Tewila let out sighs, then flew out.

Within the Blackstone Prison, Linley could defeat them one by one.

Given that the enemies were not in possession of Sovereign's Might, this was a battle between two people on completely different levels.

Darkness. Not a single hint of light could be seen.

The four Elders were trapped into different parts of the 'cube'. All of them wildly struck the walls, but how could they possibly break through this cube formed from Sovereign's Might?

Within one of the rooms.

"It's all over." The gray-robed Elder was in complete despair.

"Whoosh!" The wall suddenly split open, and a person walked in.

The gray-robed Elder's heart trembled as he looked at the Dragonformed Linley, his entire body covered with blood.

"It's all because of you." A growling voice.

"Whoosh!" Linley charged forward. Shocked, the gray-robed Elder wanted to resist, but a ray of spiritual energy spread forth. This was the 'Spiritual Chaos' formed from Sovereign's Might, and the gray-robed Elder instantly fell into a stunned state.

When Linley had dealt against Tempah and the rest of the five, he could have used this technique to put the other four into a stupor. However, Elder Tempah had Sovereign's Might to protect himself, and so Linley wouldn't have been able to influence him at all.

Tempah naturally would protect the other four in turn.

This was the reason why Linley hadn't used this technique yet. But now...the gray-robed Elder, under the effect of the 'Spiritual Chaos', was nothing more than a ragdoll target!

"Hello, Linley. My name is Delia..." In Linley's mind, that scene of his first meeting with Delia in the wind-style magic class at the Ernst Institute drifted to his mind. At that time, Delia was just an adorable little girl.

"BANG!" Linley's draconic scale covered fist smashed the gray-robed Elder's head.

Linley's form moved towards the direction of another room with an Elder.

"Linley, before I leave, can I hug you?" When Linley's father had died that year...that dark night in Wushan township...Delia had said that she wanted to give Linley a hug before she left.

But that time, Delia had kissed him instead.

"BANG!" Yet another gray-robed Elder died.

Linley walked forward, completely emotionless. In front of him, another corridor appeared within the wall.

"Milord, there's a person named Delia outside. She says that she was your classmate and that she wishes to see you." That first time they had met again after their ten years of separation. At that time, Linley had already become the world-renown Master Linley, while Delia was the Envoy of the Yulan Empire.

"Haaaaaargh!"

A fist swung out like a mountain, smashing against the body of a gray-robed Elder. Immediately, with a 'bang' sound, space itself exploded as a large hole appeared in space. Half of the gray-robed Elder's body was blasted apart.

Linley, his face expressionless, took a few more steps forward, entering another wall.

"Delia, what is it?"

"I cried." Delia clutched at Linley's chest. "I want to cry. When I think about how in the past, you were together with Alice, I want to cry. When I think about how I waited for you for ten years, I want to cry. Wuuu...."

The night of their wedding. Delia had been in his arms, throwing a tantrum.

After Linley killed the final gray-robed Elder, the Blackstone Prison vanished. That drop of Sovereign's Might had been completely used up as well.

"Delia..." Linley murmured.

His tears fell down, mixing in with the blood on his face.

The entire world was silent. The members of the Azure Dragon clan and the distant spectators didn't dare make any sound. They could all sense a terrible, deathly pressure. They just watched quietly as Linley flew towards Delia.

"Waaaaa....waaaaaa....." Wade's sobbing echoed in the mountains and forests.

Linley, hearing his son's sobs, couldn't help but tremble.

Linley quietly sat down next to Delia's body. Delia's face was still wet with tears. These were the tears she had shed upon seeing Linley be in dire straits during the battle. Linley reached his hand out, gently examining her. As of this moment...Delia's body didn't have any aura at all.

"Waaaaaaaaa...." Wade was sobbing nonstop.

Linley returned to human form as well. He stretched his arms out, picking up Wade. Wade, in his father's arms, continued to sob.

"Don't cry, Wade." Linley said softly.

"Boss, it's all my fault." Bebe was agonized as well.

"Linley, Delia isn't dead!" A sound rang out. Linley's entire body shuddered, and he suddenly rose to his feet, hurriedly turning to look towards Phusro. In disbelief, he said, "Phusro, what did you say?"

Phusro said seriously, "Linley, I'll tell you this. Delia isn't dead. Not only is she not dead, all of the other people who were struck by that elfin-looking Elder's dying blow aren't dead either."

"But...but..." Linley couldn't sense any aura from Delia at all.

Phusro said with certainty, "That elfin-looking Elder's dying blow sent out nearly a million green specks of light flying out. Many of those who were hit by just a single speck of green light all fell. Can it be that you think...that elfin-looking Elder was capable of killing a million Highgods with a single technique?"

Linley came to his senses.

Right. No matter how powerful an Elder was, he would at most be able to kill a hundred or nearly a thousand people with a technique. But to kill a million Highgods? Impossible! Utterly impossible!

In truth, when the elfin-looking Elder had released those green specks of light, although he had sent nearly a million, in reality, because the people in the area were tightly clustered together, most of the green specks of light were 'blocked' by the people standing in front.

It would be amazing if even ten thousand died.

"Then Delia isn't dead...but why doesn't she have any aura at all?" Linley turned to look at Delia. He sent a ray of spiritual energy out, slowly sending it into Delia's mind.

Within Delia's sea of consciousness, her divine spark was still there. Her sea of consciousness, however, wasn't moving at all. It was deathly still, without any hint of a living aura.

"That elfin-looking Elder should have been an expert of the Edric clan, which moved here from the Higher Plane of Life. He trained in the 'Edicts of Life'." Phusro said solemnly. "Although the people hit aren't dead, there isn't much of a difference between their state and death."

Linley hurriedly shook his head.

And then, he looked at Phusro. "Phusro, tell me. What is going on with Delia? Can she be saved?"

Phusro let out a low sigh. "Linley, the most powerful healing stems from the 'Laws of Life', but it is also experts of the Edicts of Life who have the most bizarre ways of attacking and harming the soul. That elfin Elder was an elite amongst them. Before dying, he released that technique, spreading out countless specks of green light, each of which is actually just a 'seed'."

"Seed?" Linley didn't understand.

"Linley, a person's foundation is the soul!" Phusro explained. "That green light burrows into the soul and begins to devour the energy of the soul, converting it to energy for its own use."

"Devour...convert?" Linley began to understand.

"A single speck of green light is very weak. Compared to the entire soul, it is miniscule. However, the single speck of green light, with each devour, will duplicate and result in two specks of green light. And then, those two specks of green light will continue to devour and become four specks. Four will then become eight...and as this continues..." Phusro's eyes were filled with awe as well. "It is very terrifying! Although the soul of a Highgod is very strong, under this sort of devouring, the soul will constantly weaken. There will come the day when one's soul will completely transform into green specks of light, at which point, Delia will die!"

Linley felt that this was unbelievable.

Souls could be described as strong, but also as fragile. Once they were shattered, they would be finished. But this devouring...it wouldn't immediately cause the soul to be destroyed. Because, to be precise, the green light was merging with the soul and was part of it.

Actually, this was a sort of soul transformation process. Once the transformation was complete, the soul would be finished.

"Then is there a way to save her?" Linley immediately asked. This Phusro had a very high degree of attainment in the soul as well.

"This has reached deep into her soul. Saving her will be very hard." Phusro shook his head. "I only train in the Laws of Fire. My attacks are powerful, but my healing...alas!"

Linley's face immediately changed.

“However, supreme experts who train in the Edicts of Life should be able to save Delia. However, we have to hurry to the Skyrise Mountains.” Phusro said. “But in the Skyrise Mountains, the Four Divine Beasts clan does not train the Edicts of Life. If we go to other places to find experts... there’s no time, there’s no time!!!”

There was no time!

These words caused Linley’s entire body to sway.

“There’s no time?” Linley was frantic.

“There’s too few people in the Infernal Realm who train in the Edicts of Life. The eight great clans do, but they are your enemies. How could they possibly help?” Phusro shook his head and sighed.

“No. We can go to another place.” Linley said hurriedly.

“Impossible. There’s no time. Based on the rate at which the devouring occurs...in a year or so, Delia’s soul will be completely devoured.” Phusro said resignedly. “In Indigo Prefecture, I have no idea of any other power aside from the eight great clans that has supreme experts who specialize in the Edicts of Life.”

Linley lowered his head to look at Delia.

Delia was lying there quietly.

"No...no..." Linley couldn't accept it.

Although she didn't die, in the future, she would?

But in a short year, even at maximum speed, he would still be within Indigo Prefecture. But within Indigo Prefecture, the strongest forces were the Four Divine Beasts clan and the eight great clans, while only the Edric clan from the Higher Plane of Life possessed supreme experts who trained in the Edicts of Life.

The other powers?

The Four Divine Beasts clan didn't have any such experts, at least.

What to do?

"Delia..." Linley was going completely mad.

Phusro looked about, seeing many Azure Dragon clansmen lying on the ground. "So many people!" He let out a sigh. "Although those green specks of light are weak, they are very hard to deal with. Ordinary Highgods aren't able to resist them, unless they have soul-protecting artifacts or have extremely powerful souls. But of course, one can block it if one had Sovereign's Might. This elfin Elder truly was vicious."

Linley, lost in his grief, suddenly heard those words, 'Sovereign's Might'.

"Sovereign's Might?" Linley's body trembled.

"Sovereign's Might can resist it!" Linley's heart shook!

"Linley, what is it?" Phusro looked at him. Linley suddenly turned to stare at him. "Phusro, did you just say that Sovereign's Might can block it? Are you saying that if I had given Delia a drop of Sovereign's Might and she had been struck, she wouldn't die?"

"Right. The elfin Elder's attack is powerful, but once it encounters Sovereign's Might, it will still dissipate. How could it possibly break through the defense of Sovereign's Might?" Phusro nodded. "However, don't be too heartbroken. After all, you need to use Sovereign's Might while battling as well."

Linley was stunned.

Battle? Battle?!

But he had three drops of it!

"Why didn't I give any to Delia? Why?" Linley's face turned ashen. "Why didn't I give it to her? Why? Why?!" With a flip of his hand, Linley retrieved a drop of Sovereign's might. Beneath the light of the sun, it seemed so resplendent.

"This..." Seeing this drop of Sovereign's Might, Phusro was stunned as well.

"Waaaaaaa...." Wade's sobbing cries continued unabated.

Linley lowered his head to look at the sobbing Wade, then at the 'slumbering' Delia, and then at this drop of Sovereign's Might. His gaze turned more and more savage, and the flesh on his face slowly began to twitch as his face slowly turned purple. And then, a hint of blood slowly began to leak from his mouth.

"Aaaaaaaaaaah!!!!" A howl of incomparable agony ripped forth from Linley's mouth, shaking the world.

Book 17, Indigo Prefecture – Chapter 47, Begging for Salvation

"It's me. It's my fault. If I had given a drop of Sovereign's Might to Delia, she wouldn't die!"

"Why didn't I give it to Delia. Why. WHY!!!"

Endless guilt wracked Linley's chest, with regret striking viciously at his soul. Linley's entire mind was in a state of chaos, and had sunken into a state of endless remorse.

Bebe, Phusro, and Tewila look at each other, worry appearing on their faces.

"Waaaaa....waaaaaaaaa!" Little Wade continuously cried, and his sobs seemed to be more ear-piercing than ever before in that utterly silent mountainous area. Linley felt that each cry from Wade stabbed against his heart!

"Don't cry, Wade, don't cry." Holding Wade, Bebe was growing frantic as well.

"Boss!" Bebe said frantically.

"Linley!" Phusro called out worriedly as well.

But Linley didn't seem to hear anything. He was completely lost in his regret and grief. The look on his face was one which made others tremble upon beholding.

“Right!” Linley let out a sudden growl. “It was my selfishness! I always thought about my own safety, and I didn’t think about Delia. I kept the Sovereign’s Might on my own person this entire time. It was my selfishness. I was too selfish!!!”

Self-criticism. Self-hatred!

Linley, his thoughts in a jumble, had pushed the blame squarely onto his own shoulders, due to his ‘selfishness’.

Actually, Delia was too weak. Even if she had Sovereign’s Might, she wouldn’t be able to defeat a Seven Star Fiend. It was only natural that Linley should be the one to use Sovereign’s Might to protect Delia.

If Linley truly was selfish...

Then when facing the combined strike of those seven Elders, he wouldn’t have pushed Delia aside at that critical moment, thereby wasting precious time. After all, at that time, he could have dodged instead.

All seven of those attacks had landed.

Linley had nearly died. Although he hadn’t died, the protective armor of Sovereign’s Might had been broken through, and even his body had been crippled.

However, Linley's thoughts had entered a state of confusion, and others were completely unable to dissuade him.

"It was my selfishness. It's all my fault. If I had given Sovereign's Might to Delia, she wouldn't die." Linley's mind was utterly chaotic. These words were the only thing that consistently echoed within his consciousness.

"Linley!" Phusro suddenly roared. "Hurry up and seize every moment to save Delia. By wasting time here, YOU ARE KILLING DELIA!!!"

These words suddenly brought Linley back to his senses.

He looked at Delia, lying there on the ground. Phusro's words suddenly brought Linley back into clear-mindedness. "Every moment, Delia's soul is being devoured and transformed. I can't waste any time, I can't!"

By now, Linley's right arm had already grown out to the elbow. The more powerful the body, the slower the recovery.

"Phusro." Linley turned to look at Phusro. "My mind is in shambles right now. Tell me, what should I do? What are my best options for saving Delia?"

Linley, in his current state, truly wasn't suited for making decisions.

Phusro let out a mental sigh of relief. For Linley to be able to say this meant that his mind was clear, at least. Phusro immediately said solemnly, "Linley, neither you nor I are as familiar with the experts of the Indigo Prefecture as your Patriarch, Gislason. Gislason is the leader of the Four Divine Beasts clan, and he knows far more than we do! Your Patriarch will know more than anyone else as to who will be able to save Delia. Perhaps the Four Divine Beasts clan itself has someone capable of rescuing Delia."

Linley's eyes immediately lit up.

"Right. The Four Divine Beasts clan has existed for so long. Perhaps it truly does have a supreme expert capable of saving Delia." A hint of hope appeared in Linley's mind.

"Right now, we need to hurry back to the Skyrise Mountains. Normally, metallic lifeforms will take nearly two months, but if we travel by day and by night without resting, we should be able to get there in ten days or half a month. Once we reach the Skyrise Mountains, there'll be more people and more ideas." Phusro said hurriedly.

Linley made up his mind as well.

"That's what we'll do, then." Linley's body once more Dragonformed. In terms of flying speed, his Dragonform's flying speed was indeed much faster.

Linley lowered his head to look at Delia, lying there on the ground. Delia looked as though she were asleep. Linley said gently, "Delia, you have to hold on." Stretching out his left hand, he took Delia into his arms.

"Phusro, please hold Wade." Linley said. "We'll immediately head out."

"Alright." Phusro took Wade from Bebe's arms.

"Boss, don't be too heartbroken. Delia will definitely recover." Bebe said consolingly. Linley forced out a smile, then nodded slightly. "Right. Bebe, you stay with the others. Phusro and I will go back first."

Bebe nodded, and then he watched as Linley and Phusro pierced through the skies, disappearing into the horizon.

Bebe's eyes had tears within them as well. Raising his head upwards, he looked at the sky. "Overgods...the Boss has already lost his father and his Grandpa Doehring. No matter what, you can't let Delia die as well. If Delia dies, then the Boss..."

Bebe and Linley had lived so many years together. He understood Linley very well.

No matter what sort of difficult circumstances or dire straits Linley was in, he wasn't afraid at all and would face them head on. But...when those close to him left, Linley suffered terrifying emotional blows.

"Alright. Everyone, hurry into the metallic lifeform. We'll make haste back home." Tewila's voice rang out. "All of you, stop being sad. Move all of our unconscious clansmen into the metallic lifeform. We will hurry backwards."

It wasn't just Delia who was unconscious. There were quite a few clansmen lying on the ground, while quite a few onlookers were injured as well. When they learned that these people weren't dead yet, they too felt a hint of new hope.

The Azure Dragon clansmen entered the metallic lifeform, and then it once more pierced through the skies, also making haste and flying towards the Skyrite Mountains.

When the Azure Dragon clansmen left, the only people remaining were those who were in that other metallic lifeform.

"Too powerful. Especially that expert from the Azure Dragon clan. He was actually able to fight five other experts by himself...and slaughtered them all!" These people weren't saddened for Delia, only stunned by this battle.

"That gray-robed who died was powerful as well...the one who sent all those terrifying green specks of light out."

"Did anyone hear what that expert of the Azure Dragon clan is named? I thought I heard that big fellow with long red hair shout 'Linley' loudly."

"Right. He is named Linley. I heard it as well."

"This Linley, judging from his power, has to at least be an Elder of the Azure Dragon clan."

A hubbub of conversation...but then, these spectators who had watched the battle and recorded it down with scryer recordings all returned to their own metallic lifeform and left.

Moments later...

Multiple figures flew over at high speed to the battlefield.

“Even Elder Zabu died. The eight Elders are all dead!”

.....

In mid-air, a fiery light instantly streaked in from the southern horizon, arriving at the northern skies.

Linley and Phusro were currently flying at maximum speed. However, even Dragonformed, in terms of flying speed, Linley was still far inferior compared to Phusro. Thus, Phusro spread out his energy, enveloping Linley within it and ‘carrying’ him.

This caused their speed to rise to a higher level.

Linley lowered his head, looking at Delia. Delia’s eyes were closed, and she was in a state of complete unconsciousness. Linley’s arms were now completely healed.

“Delia, you have to be fine.”

Linley spoke very softly. He felt boundless grief and regret towards Delia. If Delia truly were to die, Linley didn't know what he would do in the future. He wouldn't be able to accept it at all.

Phusro, seeing Linley like this, couldn't help but sigh.

"Can love truly cause a person to become like this?" Phusro said in his heart. He had been captured and tamed by Elquin when he was a Saint, and had always been used as a little golden kitten, without being given any chance to experience love.

"Linley, don't worry. Given my speed, we'll reach the Skyrite Mountains very soon." Phusro consoled.

"Right. Phusro, thank you for this. Truly." Linley, although frantic, still spoke with gratitude.

"Thank me for what? It's my fault, in a way. I let that elfin Elder have the opportunity to release that final attack." Phusro said guiltily. In truth, that Elder Zabu was the most powerful of those eight Elders.

He was so powerful that he nearly had the strength of an Asura. Once he also used a drop of Sovereign's Might, his strength was indeed terrifying.

"It isn't your fault. That person truly was powerful." Linley still remembered how, when he had suffered the combined attacks of those seven Elders, the most dangerous one of them had been that elfin Elder. With but a single attack, he had nearly caused Linley to be finished.

"I'm still not strong enough." Linley stared into the distance.

The two of them, transformed into that 'fiery light', continued to fly towards the horizon at high speed.

And finally, they arrived at the Skyrite Mountains!

After having flown for six days and a night, they arrived at the Skyrite Mountains just as nightfall came.

Linley, upon seeing the distant Dragon Avenue of the Skyrite Mountains, felt his heart tremble. While flying forward at high speed, he immediately called out frantically, "Patriarch, PATRIARCH!!!" Linley's roars shook the air above the entire Skyrite Mountains.

"Who is it? Halt!" The patrolling warriors of the Skyrite Mountains hurriedly shouted.

Linley and Phusro were flying too quickly. Their bodies were surrounded with fiery light as well, making it even harder for those patrolling warriors to see them clearly.

"Whoosh!" Phusro immediately retracted his fire-type divine power, and those patrolling warriors were immediately able to see the two of them clearly. One of them was in Dragonform, and clearly was a member of the Azure Dragon clan. They all couldn't help but feel relieved.

"It is Elder Linley!" Immediately, some patrolling warriors recognized him.

That savage, spike-studded Dragonform had become Linley's trademark.

"Linley, what is it?" A figure flew over at high speed. It was Elder Garvey. Elder Garvey, seeing Linley look so frantic, with his entire body stained with blood, couldn't help but ask in a hurry, "What happened? What's wrong with Delia?"

"Delia, she..." Before Linley even had a chance to reply...

"Linley!" A voice rang out, and a powerfully built figure with azure hair flew out at high speed. It was the Patriarch of the Azure Dragon clan, Gislason. Gislason immediately saw Phusro. "What happened?"

"We were attacked. Delia is now in critical condition." Phusro said hurriedly.

Gislason, seeing the situation, immediately said, "Come to my place right away." As he spoke, he immediately led Linley and the others towards his residence.

Within the residence of the Patriarch. The main hall.

Linley gently placed Delia onto a seat, and then turned his head to look at Gislason. "Patriarch, Delia suffered a spiritual attack from an Elder of the Edric clan, of the eight great clans..."

"The Edric clan? The Edicts of Life?" Gislason's face changed, and he immediately used his spiritual sense to probe Delia's situation.

Linley, keeping hope alive in his mind, watched this scene. Not only was the Patriarch physically powerful, he was also extremely formidable with respect to the soul. Perhaps the Patriarch might have some method for saving Delia. Linley waited, and as he did, his heart was trembling.

Elder Garvey and Phusro just stood there, not daring to say a word.

"Formidable, formidable!" Gislason sighed in amazement.

"What is it?" Linley said hurriedly.

Gislason turned to look at Linley. He said solemnly, "The devouring transformation in Delia's soul isn't too bad right now. However, the devouring will grow faster and faster...I've never imagined that the Edicts of Life contained a technique like this. With regards to this, I...alas..." Gislason shook his head and sighed.

Linley was stunned.

"But don't grow frantic. I can't save her, but that doesn't mean others can't either." Gislason said hurriedly.

Right at this moment, two people charged in, one of which was Forhan.

"What on earth is going on?" Forhan said frantically. When he saw Linley in the corner of his eyes, his face couldn't help but change. Linley was actually still alive...this was completely out of his expectations.

"Forhan, it's good that you are here. You and Garvey, hurry over to Bloodbath Gorge and have the Grand Elder and the others come. Oh, right, hurry and ask the other three clan leaders to come as well. Hurry!" Gislason shouted.

Book 17, Indigo Prefecture – Chapter 48, Their Proposals

“Yes, Patriarch!”

Elders Garvey and Forhan didn't dare to dawdle, immediately departing towards Bloodbath Gorge. The entire main hall immediately became silent, and even Wade had fallen asleep in Phusro's arms.

“Wade...give me the child.” Linley said.

Phusro handed the child to Linley. Linley, holding his son in his arms, looked at the nearby unconscious Delia, a sour feeling in his heart.

“Swoosh!” “Swoosh!” Multiple other Elders hurried over. Just as they were about to speak, Gislason immediately sent out his divine sense and barked, “Be silent. Linley's wife has just suffered an attack from an expert of the ‘Edric’ clan of the eight great clans. All of you who specialize in the soul, go take a look and see if you can save her.”

“You all came?” Linley looked in surprised delight at these Elders.

“Hurry over and take a look and see if you can save Delia.” Linley was at the point where whenever he saw someone, he would want them to go take a look.

The many Elders glanced at each other, and then they all walked towards Delia's side. A silver-haired Elder said, “Then I'll give it a try first.” As the Second Elder, he had reached an exceedingly high level of accomplishment with regards to the soul.

"Phusro." Gislason led Phusro to one side. "The Lord Prefect's..."

"This isn't the time for discussing that." Phusro couldn't help but frown.

Gislason was startled. He then glanced sideways at Linley, then nodded towards Phusro. "I understand. Right. What happened? You, Tewila, and Linley were present on this journey. How could this have happened to Delia? Tell me this story in detail."

As the Patriarch, Gislason knew that something was off.

"Hmph. It's all due to the situation between your Four Divine Beasts clan and the eight great clans." Phusro let out a low snort. Clearly, he was very dissatisfied. As Phusro saw it, Linley had been harmed by the Four Divine Beasts clan.

And then, Phusro described what happened in detail. "At first, Linley and I were riding in that metallic lifeform as we left Meer City..." Phusro gave a detailed description of what had happened, from start to finish.

At the same time, those Elders standing next to Delia were all using their own spiritual energy to enter Delia's mind, investigating the situation.

"How is it?" Linley held Wade as he looked at these Elders. He felt his heart trembling nonstop.

“Nothing I can do.” The silver-haired Elder shook his head and sighed. “These green specks of lights are too obstinate. They constantly devour, and as they do, they also become part of the soul itself. To use brute force to kill and eradicate these green spots of light will cause Delia to die immediately! To cure Delia will be hard. Very hard!” When he said those two words, ‘very hard’, the silver-haired Elder stopped speaking.

Linley hurriedly looked towards the other Elders.

The other Elders shook their heads as well.

“Linley, don’t be impatient. In our Four Divine Beasts clan, the most proficient at the soul are those members of the Vermillion Bird clan. They possessed the ‘Flames of Rebirth’, and perhaps...they’ll have some method for curing Delia.” The silver-haired Elder said.

“Right. Flames of Rebirth!” A hint of hope appeared in Linley’s mind.

Right at this moment, Linley felt space shudder. He couldn’t help but turn to look, and he saw multiple figures descending from the air. There were dozens of figures!

“Elder Brother!” A deep voice rang out. It was the Patriarch of the Black Tortoise clan.

The other three clan leaders, along with the Grand Elder, had all hurried over. Because of the commands of Gislason, a large group of people now filled this main hall, surging towards and looking at Linley and Delia.

"Phusro." These people noticed Phusro as well.

"Hurry and take a look at Linley's wife." Phusro just said.

"What's wrong with Linley's wife?" An Elder of the Vermillion Bird clan asked hurriedly.

Holding his son, Linley immediately stood up. Looking at the throng of people, all of whom were the most elite members of the Four Divine Beasts clan, he immediately said, "My wife suffered a spiritual attack from an Elder of the Edric clan. As for her situation...everyone, come take a look. I hope that someone who has the ability to rescue my wife will do so."

These Elders all noticed the look on Linley's face and in his eyes. They could all sense that Linley's heart had torn to pieces from worry.

"Everyone, go take a look. Perhaps someone will be able to do something." Gislason said hurriedly.

The entire Four Divine Beasts clan had, in total, just seventy or eighty Elders. More than fifty of them were present here; clearly, the majority of them had hurried over. The first to take a look were the three clan leaders, who all investigated Delia's situation.

And then, one Elder after another used their spiritual energy to investigate Delia's situation.

Seeing the large group of people, Linley felt a hint of confidence in his mind. "With so many people present...much like how I can train in other Laws, the Elders of the clan might include someone who trains in the Edicts of Life. Perhaps someone will be able to rescue Delia. In addition, the Matriarch of the Vermillion Bird clan is present. The Vermillion Bird clan possesses the 'Flames of Rebirth' ability. They can save themselves with it; perhaps they'll also be able to save Delia."

Holding his son, Linley just watched hopefully at these Elders.

He was like a drowning man staring at floating logs of wood.

Phusro, seeing the look on Linley's face, couldn't help but think back to the first time he had met Linley. At that time, although Linley had been in dire straits, he hadn't lost his composure like he currently had. "Alas..." Phusro sighed to himself.

Soon, the Elders completed their inspection. Some of them were extremely skilled with regards to the soul, but they all couldn't help but frown and shake their heads. Linley, seeing the looks on the faces of the Elders, especially when they shook their heads and sighed, felt his heart ache.

"How is it?" Linley's voice was hoarse now, but his gaze was firmly fixed upon the Matriarch of the Vermillion Bird clan.

The Matriarch just turned to look at the others. "Everyone, do you have any solutions? Fourth Brother, your soul is very powerful. Do you have a solution?"

"This is too bizarre. I've never seen an attack like this." The muscular, brown-haired man said with a frown. "To save Delia, there must be a step-by-step treatment process, much like the devouring process itself. There must be a slow counter-devouring, converting the green spots of light back into spiritual energy. In addition...during the treatment process, there can't be any mistakes at all. If any energy ripples strike the soul, the soul might collapse. Difficult. Difficult. Difficult!"

Hearing these words, Linley's heart fell into an abyss.

"Vermillion Bird Matriarch, how about you?" Linley hurriedly looked towards her.

But the Matriarch just said: "Linley, I'm truly sorry. Our Vermillion Bird clan's ability to save ourselves isn't bad...but even if we save ourselves, it takes a tremendous amount of energy. Save others? We don't have that ability."

Linley couldn't help but look at each of the other Elders.

However, all of the Elders either sighed or shook their heads. None of them had any solutions.

"To quickly and yet methodically advance and counter-devour those green lights...it's too hard!" That brown-haired man shook his head. "As I see it, in the entire Infernal Realm, there are only a few people who train in certain other Laws and Edicts who can rescue her, but I can count those off on one hand. Other than them, only supreme experts who train in the Edicts of Life can save her."

Not just Edicts of Life. A supreme expert in the Edicts of Life.

If one trained in the Edicts of Fate, the Edicts of Death, it would also be possible. Only, the requirements for those people would be even higher. They would have to be at the absolute pinnacle of their fields, with their souls nearing the point of perfection.

The requirements for an expert in the Edicts of Life would be lower; generally speaking, anyone who had reached the level of that elfin Elder would be enough.

"Are there none amongst you who train in the Edicts of Life?" Linley asked, unwilling to give up.

The Patriarch of the White Tiger clan nodded. "There are. However, to reach the level of the person who launched that attack is difficult...just being able to execute an attack like this requires an astonishing level of understanding with regards to the soul."

"Ah!" The Matriarch of the Vermillion Bird clan suddenly cried out. "My clan has a person who trains in the Edicts of Life, and his level of accomplishments is very high."

Linley immediately looked at her.

Gislason and Phusro all looked towards her as well.

The Matriarch said confidently, "His name is Kestrel [Kai'si'tai'er]. He's not an Elder; he's a Six Star Fiend. However, his level of accomplishments in the Edicts of Life is very high. I can't say for certain as to whether or not Kestrel will be able to save Delia, but...he has a teacher whose name is Alfonsus [A'fang'sa'si]. Alfonsus is not a member of our Four Divine Beasts clan. He is a supreme expert who trains in the Edicts of Life. Last time, I heard from Kestrel that his teacher was right here in Indigo Prefecture! Kestrel might not be able to save Delia, but Alfonsus definitely will!"

Linley's eyes immediately lit up.

Two experts in the Edicts of life had suddenly appeared.

"Hurry and summon Kestrel over." The Matriarch of the Vermillion Bird clan ordered a subordinate Elder of hers.

"Yes, Matriarch." That Elder flew out at high speed.

Phusro laughed as he walked over. "Haha...Linley, I told you, right? At the Four Divine Beasts clan, there will definitely be a way to save Delia. If this Kestrel can't do it, then his teacher definitely can. Don't worry."

Linley felt as the world, which had lost its color, suddenly became so bright and vivid once more, filled with hope!

Linley lowered his head to look at Delia. He said gently, "Delia, you have to hold on. There are two experts who train in the Edicts of Life. They will definitely save you. Definitely."

He then looked at his son in his arms. Linley's heart was filled with hope. "Everything will be well."

In the midst of the Elders, Forhan looked at the expression on Linley's face. In his heart, he snorted, "You really are lucky. You didn't die. But it's all for the best. Your wife is in such a state, causing you to be in such despair...I feel absolutely joyful to see you like this!"

"Linley." A deep voice rang out, and Gislason walked over. "This time, not long after you left Meer City, you actually suffered an ambush from eight enemy Elders, and three of them immediately used Sovereign's Might at the very beginning...this clearly was a premeditated ambush. How could the enemies have known about your whereabouts?"

Linley raised his head to look at Gislason.

"Patriarch, are you saying...?" Linley had a thought.

"A year or so ago, you rode that metallic lifeform to Meer City. In the past year, there have been three groups of visits on metallic lifeforms, but the eight great clans haven't launched any attacks. But as soon as you leave Meer City, they attack? Clearly, they were tracking your whereabouts, resulting in them being able to arrange for their forces to lie in wait." Gislason said. "How can the enemies know your whereabouts so clearly?"

Linley couldn't help but nod.

"Perhaps someone in your clan revealed the secret." Phusro snorted coldly. "Otherwise, how could they have found Linley so easily?"

"Phusro." Gislason couldn't help but frown and bark at him.

When Forhan heard these words, his pupils contracted. At this moment, Linley suddenly turned to look towards Forhan. Their gazes just so happened to meet, and Forhan couldn't help but be surprised. "Is Linley suspecting me?"

"If someone revealed the secret...it had to have been him or his son." Linley said to himself.

After all, in the clan, only the two of them had any grudges against him.

Right at this moment, two figures flew in from outside at high speed. Linley immediately turned to look, and his gaze immediately focused on a black-haired, handsome youth. This black-haired youth immediately walked towards the Matriarch of the Vermillion Bird clan and said, "Matriarch!"

"Hurry over and take a look at Elder Linley's wife and see if you can rescue her." The Matriarch said.

"Yes." The black-haired youth first nodded towards Linley, then looked towards Delia before closing his eyes in thought.

Linley watched this scene nervously.

But then, the black-haired youth opened his eyes, and he looked at Linley frantically. "Elder Linley, your wife's situation is very terrible. There's nobody in our clan capable of saving her."

"But don't you have a teacher..." Linley said worriedly.

"My teacher should be able to save her, but...although my teacher is within Indigo Prefecture, to go from the Skyrise Mountains to my teacher's place is a roundtrip of half a year, even for Seven Star Fiends who are making haste. I'm worried that based on the speed at which this devouring is occurring, your wife won't be able to hold on for that long!"

Book 17, Indigo Prefecture – Chapter 49, Three Months

After Kestrel finished speaking, the entire hall immediately fell silent.

Linley was frantically pondering. "Although the teacher of this Kestrel is in Indigo Prefecture, the distance is too far. I don't have enough time right now. If we make a round trip, there definitely won't be enough time! Can it be that I'll have to send Delia over there?"

If they sent Delia over, the amount of time it would take would definitely be much shorter.

But if they did that, then there wouldn't be enough time to find anyone else who might also be able to save her.

"Kestrel!" Linley stared at him. "Tell me. If I send Delia to your teacher's place, how likely is it that your teacher will be able to save Delia?"

Kestrel frowned. Hesitating momentarily, he stared at Linley then said with certainty, "If my teacher intervenes, although I can't say he will definitely be successful, he has at least a 90% chance of success!"

"90%?" Linley turned, looking at the unconscious Delia.

Linley then turned his head to look at Patriarch Gislason. "Patriarch, I have no other options. I'll have to send Delia to Mr. Alfonsus."

Gislason was frowning, and he slowly shook his head. "Linley, don't be impatient. There's another way."

"Another way?" Linley was stunned.

"Elder Brother." That cold, arrogant-looking Patriarch of the White Tiger clan spoke out. "How about this. I'll personally pay a visit and bring that Alfonsus over. A round trip for a Seven Star Fiend would normally take half a year, but if I go...the total time of the trip, including bringing Alfonsus back, will be just three months."

Linley couldn't help but feel a surge of joy.

In the Four Divine Beasts clan, the White Tiger clan was that of a wind-type divine beast. In terms of speed, the White Tiger Patriarch was definitely the fastest expert of the Four Divine Beasts clan, and was far faster than most Seven Star Fiends.

"No need." Gislason shook his head.

"Patriarch?" Linley said frantically.

Gislason laughed calmly. "Linley, don't worry. I just used my divine sense to give the order to an intelligence agent of our Four Divine Beasts clan to inform the Lord Prefect of Indigo Prefecture regarding your situation...and soon, we'll have an answer."

Linley was astonished. In fact, everyone in the hall was astonished.

The Lord Prefect of Indigo Prefecture was getting involved?

“Linley.” Phusro walked over, slapping Linley on the shoulders and laughing, “Don’t worry. The forces of the Lord Prefect of Indigo Prefecture are spread throughout the entire Indigo Prefecture. If he were to reach out to Alfonsus, it would be done very quickly! And perhaps the Lord Prefect even knows some other experts who can save Delia.”

Linley’s eyes couldn’t help but to light up.

The Lord Prefect, as the lord of Indigo Prefecture, had a level of influence in Indigo Prefecture that vastly surpassed the Four Divine Beasts clan. It must be understood that even the eight great clans dared not invade the Skyrite Mountains, all because of the Lord Prefect.

One could imagine how powerful the Lord Prefect of Indigo Prefecture was.

“Will the Lord Prefect be willing to help me?” Linley was rather nervous as well. After all, he was neither friend nor family to this person.

“Don’t be impatient. Wait a while. Our intelligence agents will soon send an answer.” Gislason laughed, and Linley nodded. All he could do was swallow his impatience, burying it in his heart as he quietly waited.

Moments later...

“We have a response.” Gislason’s smile became brilliant. Clearly, the intelligence agent had communicated with him through divine sense.

Everyone in the main hall immediately looked towards Gislason.

"Haha, good news, Linley! The Lord Prefect has spoken." Gislason laughed as he looked towards Linley, extremely happy. "Alfonsus is one of his friends, and in two or three days, his subordinates will reach and notify Alfonsus, who should be able to arrive here within three months."

Linley felt relieved.

"Not just that!" Gislason laughed. "The Lord Prefect himself will come over as well. He says he will personally help treat Delia."

"Elder Brother, the Lord Prefect is capable of treating the soul?" The Grand Elder asked, rather astonished. "I thought the Lord Prefect isn't very specialized with regards to treating the soul." The Grand elder and the others clearly remembered the scene, that year, of the Lord Prefect of Indigo Prefecture intervening and stopping the eight great clans.

That could be described as utterly terrifying!

Precisely because of that event, even figures as exalted as Gislason would respectfully address him as 'Lord Prefect'. After all, if it weren't for the Lord Prefect, their Four Divine Beasts clan would most likely have been annihilated.

"Haha, I'm rather surprised as well. However, since the Lord Prefect has already spoken, he definitely won't fail to live up to his word!" Gislason laughed as he looked towards Linley. "Linley, now both Alfonsus and the Lord Prefect will come, one after the other. Don't worry."

"I truly didn't expect that the Lord Prefect would be so incredible with respect to treating the soul as well!" The Matriarch of the Vermillion Bird clan sighed in amazement as well.

Linley felt a surge of excitement in his heart.

"Thank you, thank you all." Linley looked at everyone and spoke solemnly. "Since it will be a long time before Mr. Alfonsus comes, I'll go back for now."

"Alright." Gislason nodded and laughed. "Linley, go back and get some rest. Don't worry too much. With the Lord Prefect of Indigo Prefecture himself intervening, given his ability and influence, he can easily invite quite a few people to come. Delia will definitely be successfully saved."

Linley forced out a smile and nodded.

And then, he let the earth-type divine power swell from his body, which naturally formed a soft, cloud-like floating 'bed' which Linley placed Wade upon. And then, he took Delia into his arms, nodding towards the Elders, and flew out of the main hall.

"Alright. Everyone can go back now." Gislason said clearly.

The Four Divine Beast clan's Elders all bade farewell, and then flew away in small groups. Moments later, the only ones remaining in the main hall were Gislason and Phusro. The two looked at each other.

Gislason immediately set up his 'Godrealm', separating the sound within from the outside world, then said urgently, "Phusro, last time we were discussing..."

Linley returned to that gorge within the Skyrite Mountains. He spent every day either by Delia's side or taking care of Wade. But of course, Linley would occasionally let some of the other members of the Yulan branch take care of Wade.

A thin fog billowed about. Baruch was currently standing in an empty spot of land, staring towards Linley's distant abode.

"Father." Ryan walked over. "Are you worried about Delia and Linley?"

Baruch let out a sigh. "Right. Linley has already been back for half a month, but during this past half month, he's never dined with us. He's always remained within the room, hiding inside. In his eyes, the only person he can see right now, aside from Delia, is probably his son."

"Linley's sunken in too deeply." Ryan frowned.

"Love...is very complicated. It's something which is hard to explain." Baruch shook his head.

Right at this moment, a figure descended from the skies at high speed.

"Clan leader Baruch, how is my Boss doing?" The newcomer was Bebe. Bebe's group had arrived after Linley.

"Bebe?" A hint of a smile appeared on Baruch's face. "It's good that you've returned. Go speak with Linley. Even if you aren't able to persuade him to come out, if you can chat with him, perhaps Linley's mood will improvement."

"Right." Bebe nodded, then immediately ran over towards Linley's residence.

Gislason's residence. The main hall.

"Patriarch, nearly a hundred of our clansmen are unconscious. What should we do?" Tewila said frantically. "So many of our clansmen are sobbing!" Tewila's return had resulted in the return of a large group of unconscious clansmen as well.

Gislason, frustrated, frowned as well.

"Enough of this subject." Gislason ground out. "I know their situation well. They are just like Linley's wife. We aren't even able to save Linley's wife; how are we going to save anyone else?"

Tewila's face was full of worry as well.

"Let the clansmen make their preparations." Gislason said. "Fortunately, most of our clansmen have divine clones. But Linley's wife became a Deity through fusing with a divine spark. She doesn't even have a clone. If she dies, she'll truly be finished!"

Tewila nodded, letting out a sigh.

He had personally watched as Delia was hit by the technique and saw how Linley had reacted. "Most likely, in Linley's mind right now, his wife's life is more important than even his own. His wife is unfortunate as well, to have become a Deity through fusing with a divine spark!"

"Tewila." Gislason instructed. "These unconscious clansmen...you go make the arrangements. Most likely...some of them fused with divine sparks as well."

"Yes, Patriarch. I'll make all the arrangements." Tewila said.

"Fine. You can go now." Gislason said.

After Tewila left, Gislason's face became filled with exhaustion. To him, the matter of Delia and the other clansmen being unconscious was still a minor matter. What truly had him frustrated was the news which Phusro had brought him.

"Can it be...that there really is no hope?" Gislason raised his head, closing his eyes. A glimmer of tears flashed from between his eyelashes, like a gleaming, brilliant little jewel.

Gislason took a deep breath. The exhaustion disappeared from his face, and that resolute self-confidence once more appeared.

"Now..."

Gislason's eyes were hard and firm. "All we can do is entrust our hopes to the Redbud Sovereign who stands behind Linley, as well as the Bloodridge Sovereign who stands behind the Lord Prefect. Unfortunately, the Lord Prefect isn't willing to go all out for our clan's sake. Otherwise..."

In the blink of an eye, three months passed.

"Why isn't he here yet?" Linley stood outside his room, his head raised towards the skies. Ever since the three month mark approached, he had been watching the skies every single day, hoping that Alfonsus would descend into the gorge.

However, there had been no news of Alfonsus.

Bebe walked out from behind, looking at Linley's back. Bebe felt miserable for Linley as well. He spoke. "Boss, don't worry. He said three months, but that was just an estimate. It won't be exactly three months, but it shouldn't be too far off either. Most likely, Alfonsus will be here tomorrow."

Linley turned to look at Bebe and nodded slightly. "Right. He'll definitely arrive tomorrow."

"Linley! Linley!" A frantic cry rang out from the air.

Linley seemed to have been struck by lightning, and he immediately turned to look towards the skies, only to see a figure descending at high speed while saying excitedly, "Linley, Mr. Alfonsus has arrived. He's arrived!!!"

"Arrived?" After having waited so long, Linley's heart seemed to have suddenly been set ablaze. All the hairs on his body stiffened, as though he had been hit by electricity.

The newcomer was Elder Garvey.

"The Patriarch told me to notify you. Hurry and make your preparations. He is currently accompanying Mr. Alfonsus, and they will arrive soon." Elder Garvey's face was filled with delight. "Linley, your wife will be saved."

A look of joy was on Linley's face as well.

"Right. Delia will be saved." Linley turned and rushed into his room.

Delia was quietly lying on a bed in the room, as though she were asleep. By Delia's side, there was a smaller bed, where Wade was quietly slumbering as well. Fortunately, by the time they had left Meer City, Wade was already able to eat liquid foods.

"Delia, Alfonsus is here. You'll definitely recover." Linley said softly.

"Boss, they're here!" Bebe's voice rang out from outside.

Linley hurriedly ran out, looking towards the skies. He saw that within the mist, more than ten blurry figures were flying over at high speed, and they soon landed on the ground. It was Gislason, the Vermillion Bird Matriarch, Kestrel, and a group of Elders.

There were two non-Elders; one was Phusro, while the other was a silver-haired old man with a ruddy complexion and with skin as tender as an infant's.

"He must be Alfonsus." Linley's eyes lit up.

"Linley, this person is Mr. Alfonsus." Gislason laughed, and the silver-haired, baby-faced old man laughed as well, nodding towards Linley. "You are Linley, right? And your wife?"

Only now did Linley come to his senses, and he hurriedly said, "Mr. Alfonsus, please follow me." He immediately led them in.

The group entered the room.

"Mr. Alfonsus." Linley pointed towards his wife. "Please help save my wife!"

"I will try." Alfonsus smiled. He walked to the bed, standing there for a moment as he used his divine sense to investigate. His expression gradually grew solemn. This caused Linley's heart to clench. And then, Alfonsus reached out with his right hand, pressing it against the top of Delia's head.

A blurry green l flowed out from Alfonsus' hand, encapsulating Delia's head.

Immediately, the entire room fell completely silent, with no one daring to make a sound. Linley held his breath as well as he watched this scene. "Since Alfonsus is acting, he definitely must have confidence in his ability to succeed."

Book 17, Indigo Prefecture – Chapter 50, Between Life and Death!

Within the room, everyone was watching Alfonsus treat Delia. Linley was the most nervous of them all, and his forehead became matted with sweat. Linley, however, didn't even notice.

"Crackle..."

That green energy circulated, emanating a very faint sound. Alfonsus, his face solemn, suddenly let out a low growl, and the speed at which the green light circulated suddenly increased dramatically, constantly pouring into Delia's brain.

"Uhhh...." Delia, seemingly in pain, let out a soft sound, and her forehead creased slightly.

This soft sound, to Linley, was like a clap of thunder. His eyes lit up as though he had been hit by lightning. "Delia has regained consciousness! She's responding!" Linley was so excited, his entire body was trembling.

Looks of joy had appeared on everyone else's faces as well.

"Boss, Delia is going to be saved." Bebe hurriedly said through divine sense with joy as well.

"Right." Linley nodded. He felt as though he were filled with life and energy.

Gislason, Phusro, and the others began to chortle as well. Linley continued to stare at Alfonsus as the man treated Delia, and the hope in his heart continued to swell. "Delia, you absolutely must get better, you must."

Right at this moment...

Alfonsus took back his right hand, concluding the treatment.

"Mr. Alfonsus, is my wife treated?" Linley asked hurriedly. Alfonsus turned to look at Linley. He could clearly see the hopes and expectations held within the eyes of this youth. However, Alfonsus just let out a soft sigh. "Linley...make your preparations."

"Preparations for what? What preparations?" Linley immediately had a bad feeling.

"Mr. Alfonsus, what is going on?" Gislason, whose face had been all smiles, hurriedly asked as his face changed as well.

Alfonsus shook his head. "All I can do is tell you quite openly...I am not able to save this woman. In addition, I recommend that you give up. To save this woman is virtually impossible."

Hearing these words from Alfonsus, Linley felt his entire mind go blank.

"No!"

Linley suddenly growled, staring fixedly at Alfonsus, like a savage, maddened lion. "Mr. Alfonsus, you must be lying to me. Just now, Delia had a reaction. She was conscious. How can you suddenly said that you can't treat her?"

"Right. Didn't she improve just now?" Gislason said as well.

Seeing the savage, wild look on the face of the youth in front of him, Alfonsus let out a low sigh. "Linley, just now, your wife didn't actually regain consciousness. Rather, while I was treating her, her soul pushed at mine strongly, causing a slight involuntary response in her body."

"But...but didn't Kestrel say that you had a 90% chance of saving my wife? How can...now..." Linley couldn't accept this.

He truly couldn't accept it!

Three months ago, Linley had been convinced that Delia would definitely be cured. Over the past three months, Linley had been waiting constantly for this day. Just now, Linley had believed that Delia had already been cured.

But now...

Alfonsus let out a sigh. "Three months ago, if I were to treat your wife, I would definitely have been able to save her. But now, it's too late."

"What do you mean? You could save her three months ago, but not now?" Linley said frantically.

Alfonsus looked around at everyone, then said, "Everyone, this sort of spiritual attack is a very insidious, vile type. Those green spots of light invade the soul, then constantly devour and transform it. One spot becomes two, two becomes four, four becomes eight..."

"Although the souls of Highgods are powerful, and to devour and transform them is very difficult...as the multiplicative effects continue, the more time passes, the more extravagant the rate of devouring becomes." Alfonsus said solemnly.

Everyone present nodded.

"I know these things. But why are you unable to save Delia?" Linley said frantically.

Alfonsus looked at Linley, then sighed. "Linley, you still don't understand? The devouring and transforming speed continues to grow faster and faster. Three months ago, the speed of devouring and transforming...was a million times slower than it is now!"

Linley was stunned.

One becomes two, two becomes four, four becomes eight...as time went on, after a just a few dozen rounds, the numbers would become astronomically large.

"What I need to do in order to save your wife is to counter-devour and counter-transform those green spots of light!" Alfonsus said.

Linley knew this as well; that the treatment method was to counter-devour and reverse the transformation process.

"Only when my counter-devouring speed surpasses the devouring speed will I be able to save your wife." Alfonsus said, and Linley completely understood.

"Right now, my treatment speed is far too slow, compared to the devouring speed. Even if I go all out, at most I'll be able to slow the devouring speed and slightly extend your wife's life." Alfonsus sighed. "Three months ago, I could have easily saved your wife. But now...forgive my inability."

Linley stood there, stunned.

He completely understood. This sort of devouring speed was like a spark of flame that had become a prairie fire. The more time passed, the wider the burned area would become. A single spark of fire was enough to char the entire grassland. The same was true for these green spots of light.

The more time passed, the faster the devouring speed...and the more distant the hopes for saving Delia would be.

"Boss. Boss." Bebe called out repeatedly.

"Linley." Phusro called out as well.

But Linley stood there like an idiot, completely silent.

"Alas." Alfonsus let out a sigh as well.

Within the room, Gislason, the Vermillion Bird Patriarch, and the various Elders all looked at each other, speechless. The entire atmosphere was extremely tense and gloomy.

"Mr. Alfonsus." Linley suddenly said frantically. "I beg of you, please help treat my wife and extend her life. Let me have enough time to ask someone else to help treat her. Is that acceptable?" Linley looked hopefully towards Alfonsus.

Linley understood that Alfonsus' treatment speed was inferior to the devouring speed. Then...if Alfonsus wanted to extend Delia's life, he would have to constantly treat her. This request of his was indeed rather excessive.

But...he had no choice!

"Linley."

Alfonsus said solemnly. "Both because of your Four Divine Beasts clan as well as because of the Lord Prefect, I would definitely help extend your wife's life if I had the ability to. But...I have to tell you. Even if I help out, I'll at most be able to extend her life for a day or two."

"A day or two?" Linley was stunned.

He had been hoping the extension would be for several years. The longer the better.

"This sort of soul treatment...it isn't as simple as you think it is. To treat your wife...as I just said, because your wife's soul rejected my energy, even her body physically reacted." Alfonsus continued, "The soul is a very central part of a person. When treating someone, I have to be extremely, extremely careful. If just the slightest bit of energy spills out, I'll have injured your wife's soul and she will die."

"I can maintain this sort of peak performance for a short period of time, ensuring that I don't make any mistakes. But if the amount of time I spend in that state is just a bit too long, given how much spiritual energy that takes up, errors will naturally occur. And once an error occurs, your wife will..." Alfonsus said apologetically.

Linley was silent for a moment.

"Linley. The Lord Prefect will soon arrive. Perhaps the Lord Prefect will be able to save your wife." Gislason said hurriedly.

Linley's eyes lit up. "Right. There's still the Lord Prefect."

But Alfonsus said, "Linley, I already told you to make your preparations. Although I deeply admire the Lord Prefect, to be honest...I don't believe that the Lord Prefect has the ability to heal her."

"Mr. Alfonsus!" Linley was growing angry.

"To save your wife, there are only three methods." Alfonsus said.

Linley immediately started to listen attentively.

"The first is to have an expert who has trained to the utmost limits of the Edicts of Life come. Most likely, his treatment speed will be able to surpass the devouring speed. A person like this will be able to save your wife...but of course, you must understand that if three more months pass and the process reaches the late stages, most likely even the most powerful expert of the Edicts of Life will be unable to rescue her." Alfonsus said. "However, this type of person, who has trained to the utmost limits of the Edicts of Life, is extremely rare even in the Higher Plane of Life, much less in the Infernal Realm. The second method is to use Life-type Sovereign's Might. Devouring speed at this level, considering how powerful Life-type Sovereign's Might is, can be quickly cured!"

Gislason said frantically, "Our Four Divine Beasts clan does have Life-type Sovereign's Might!"

"Right, we have Life-type Sovereign's Might!" Linley said hurriedly as well.

"You didn't let me finish!"

Alfonsus shook his head. "Life-type Sovereign's Might is extremely powerful. Naturally, its restorative speed is astonishing. But...Life-type Sovereign's Might is in fact TOO powerful. There is no way a Highgod can control it perfectly. I imagine that those of you who have used Sovereign's Might know that it will leak out, right?"

Linley was stunned.

Right...

Sovereign's Might was too powerful. The spiritual strength which a Highgod could exert over it was not enough to perfectly control it. This would cause the user of Sovereign's Might to emanate an azure aura or a black aura or some other aura over their body.

This was caused by the natural leakage of Sovereign's Might.

It was said that Sovereign's Might could only be used a single time! This was because once a Highgod used Sovereign's Might, there was no way the Highgod would be able to prevent the Sovereign's Might from leaking out and dissipating. Even if he stopped fighting, the Sovereign's Might would still naturally disperse.

"Even if I used Sovereign's Might to save Delia by delving deep into her soul...if there was the slightest bit of imprecision, Delia's soul would be impacted and would die. To say nothing of the leakage of energy from the Sovereign's Might!" Alfonsus said. "Remember, to save Delia, there can't be a single hint of leakage of Sovereign's Might, or a single mistake!"

Linley's face couldn't help but turn ashen.

He understood this principle. Sovereign's Might was the energy of a Sovereign. He had never heard of a Highgod who could control it perfectly, to the point where not a hint was wasted or dispersed.

Gislason said, "There are indeed Highgods who are capable of controlling Sovereign's Might so perfectly...according to legend, Highgods who have reached the Paragon level are able to perfectly control Sovereign's Might. Unfortunately, I've never heard of a Highgod Paragon who resides within Indigo Prefecture."

Linley couldn't help but laugh bitterly.

"Mr. Alfonsus, didn't you say there was a third method?" Linley immediately asked.

Alfonsus said resignedly, "The third method is to ask a Sovereign to intervene! If a Sovereign is willing to intervene, no matter which Sovereign! Your wife would be easily saved. But...will you be able to convince a Sovereign to help?"

"Your third method is a waste of words." Bebe said unhappily.

But Linley was silent for a long time.

"Mr. Alfonsus, are there truly no other methods?" Linley asked again.

Alfonsus nodded with absolute certainty. "Given my understanding of the soul, I daresay that I am completely certain that aside from these three methods, there are no other methods available."

The first method was to find an expert who had reached the utmost limits of insight into the Edicts of Life, a supreme expert who vastly surpassed Alfonsus. But where in Indigo Prefecture would they go to find someone like that?

The second method was to find someone who was able to perfectly control Sovereign's Might, without allowing for any leakage or making any errors. This amount of spiritual control was something which only those legendary Paragons were capable of.

The third method...

The only Sovereign which Linley had a connection to was the Redbud Sovereign. But even aside from the question of whether or not she would help out, the amount of time it would take to go from the Bloodridge Continent to the Redbud Continent was far, far too long!

Delia couldn't wait for that long!

"Everyone...I've troubled you all in recent days." Linley forced out a smile. "You can all go back now. There's no need to worry yourselves over my affairs. Mr. Alfonsus, I wish to truly thank you for having hurried such a distance to come save my wife."

Gislason, the Vermillion Bird Matriarch, Phusro, and the others, seeing the look on Linley's face, all sighed in their hearts.

"Linley, we'll leave for now." Gislason and the others wanted to console him, but they didn't know what to say. All of them simply left.

Although they all knew that the Lord Prefect of Indigo Prefecture would arrive soon, after hearing Alfonsus' explanations, they all understood... that the Lord Prefect probably wouldn't be able to save Delia, unless his spiritual control was able to perfectly control Sovereign's Might. But unfortunately, according to legends, only Highgod Paragons were capable of this.

"Boss..."

Bebe looked at Linley's forlorn figure. He had the sudden urge to cry.

Linley turned to look at Bebe, forcing a smile out. "Bebe, you head out as well. Let me accompany Delia by myself." Linley patted Bebe on the shoulders. Bebe made a sound in acknowledgment, nodding repeatedly.

And then, Bebe left the room as well.

Within the room, the only figures now present were Linley, Delia, and that slumbering Wade, who had no idea what was going on.

Linley quietly looked at Delia, countless scenes flashing through his mind. Grief filled his breast, and he couldn't help but raise his head.

"Heavens! Why must you punish me so!!!"

His hoarse voice echoed and reverberated within the silent room. It was filled with regret, anger, grief...and despair!

Two streams of tears fell down from Linley's face.

Linley slowly walked to the bed, kneeling in front of it and looking carefully at Delia. He stretched his hand out, gently stroking Delia's face. A hint of a smile appeared on Linley's face as well, a peaceful smile. "Delia, I'll accompany you on the final leg of the journey. Never to part... ever!"

Time flowed on. In the blink of an eye, many days had passed.

Bebe stood outside the room, staring in from outside the window. At this moment, Baruch walked past. Afraid of disturbing Linley, he said softly, "Bebe, how is Linley doing right now?" Everyone knew Delia's situation, and they all understood...

That there was most likely no hope for Delia. Only, everyone feared that because of this, Linley would collapse and perhaps even do something which would cause everyone regret and pain.

"See for yourself." Bebe sighed. There wasn't a hint of a smile on Bebe's face right now. He didn't have any mood to laugh or joke around any longer.

Baruch looked in through the window.

He saw, within the room...

Linley was currently holding Wade, feeding Wade some liquid food. Every so often, Linley would look towards Delia and say softly, "Delia, Wade's been very good today. He hasn't caused any fuss at all."

Seeing this from outside the window, Baruch couldn't bear to watch any longer.

"I really hope!" Bebe said softly. "I really, truly hope, that Lord Prefect of Indigo Prefecture who is arriving soon will be able to save Delia! He has to!"

"Right." Baruch nodded as well.

Right at this moment, a figure suddenly descended from the skies. It was Phusro. Phusro said in a soft voice as well, "Bebe, Linley, he..."

"Phusro, you came?" A gentle voice rang out. Smiling, Linley walked out of the room, carrying Wade. "I came to take Wade out for a walk. Come, Phusro, you can hold Wade for a while as well. It's been so long since you last came. Wade has missed you."

Phusro, seeing the smile on Linley's face, couldn't help but feel stunned.

He hadn't expected that at a time like this, Linley would be smiling? But for some reason, he had this feeling...that Linley's smile caused him to feel even more miserable than a look of grief.

"Alright, I'll hold him..." Phusro immediately walked over.

"Hug..." Wade, seeing Phusro walked over, immediately reached out with his little hand while saying, "Hug...hug..."

Linley laughed. "Wade can say a few simple words already. He knows how to say 'mother'."

Right at this moment...

A figure descended from the skies at high speed. It was Elder Garvey. Elder Garvey flew over, hurriedly saying, "Linley, the Lord Prefect has arrived!"

Linley was stunned.

"The Lord Prefect came?" A hint of color appeared in Linley's lifeless eyes. Although Linley no longer held much hope in the ability of the Lord Prefect of Indigo Prefecture to save Delia, at least it was worth a try.

"Right. The four clan leaders and the Grand Elder immediately went to greet him. It'll be a while before he arrives!" Elder Garvey explained.

The four clan leaders of the Four Divine Beasts clan were naturally very arrogant, but they sincerely admired the Lord Prefect of Indigo Prefecture, admired and respected him. The great kindness this person had shown to their clan, as well as this person's power, was more than enough for them to act this way towards him.

"Oh, Linley lives right here?" A friendly voice rang out.

Ten figures descended from the skies. Linley, Phusro, Bebe, and the others all raised their heads to look. The person flying at the head was the Lord Prefect of Indigo Prefecture, while Gislason and the four clan leaders followed by his side, their attitudes very humble and meek.

But Linley just stared fixedly at that figure who was escorted by those four clan leaders, like the moon surrounded by four stars.

The person was dressed in a long black robe. His long black hair fluttered in the breeze, and his long black beard hung down to his chest. His eyes were very small, but they looked as lively and energetic as the stars. A hint of a smile was at the corner of his lips, and a very friendly look was on his face.

"Linley!" That person laughed while greeting him.

"Linley, this is the Lord Prefect." Gislason introduced.

But Linley just stared in disbelief. "Be...Lord Beirut?!"

"Grandpa!" Bebe called out as well, shocked. He excitedly charged forward, and Beirut opened his mouth and laughed loudly. "Haha, Bebe..." And as he spoke, he drew Bebe into his arms.

"Grandpa!" Bebe called out excitedly once again.

"Haha...you've missed Grandpa, eh?" Beirut laughed very happily.

As for Gislason, the Vermillion Bird Matriarch, and the rest of the four clan leaders, as well as the Grand Elder and the other Elders, and even Phusro...they all stared with wide eyes in disbelief at this scene.

"The Lord Prefect? 'Grandpa'?"

Looks of utmost amazement were on the faces of Gislason and the others.

Book 17, Indigo Prefecture – Chapter 51, Beirut's Abilities

Linley had originally sunk into despair. He believed that Delia had no hope for life, and he didn't place much hope into the arrival of the Lord Prefect of Indigo Prefecture. But he had never imagined that the person who had saved the Four Divine Beasts clan from the flames and the floods, the Lord Prefect whom Gislason constantly praised as unspeakably powerful, was actually Bebe's grandfather...Beirut!

When he saw Beirut, Linley couldn't help but feel hope surge within his breast.

Beirut, in Linley's mind, was unfathomably profound and powerful.

"Perhaps Lord Beirut truly will be able to save Delia." Linley, in his heart, began to feel rather eager.

Outside the door of the room, a large group of people stared in astonishment at Bebe and the Lord Prefect of Indigo Prefecture, Beirut, and at how close they appeared. They had no idea...that this unremarkable youth who had always been by Linley's side had actually had such a close relationship with the Lord Prefect!

"Beirut...you are his grandfather?" Phusro spoke out in amazement.

Grinning, Beirut glanced at him sideways, then nodded slightly. "Phusro, I truly do apologize. I lied to you previously. I was afraid that if you knew the real relationship between myself and Bebe, that you would go out of your way to take care of this little fellow...you have no idea how lazy a temperament this Bebe has. He absolutely has to be made to learn to take care of himself."

Phusro began to laugh as well.

When he had been just a little kitten in Elquin's arms, that first time he had met Linley and Bebe, he had guessed that Bebe had some sort of relationship with Beirut, especially after seeing Bebe use that godspark weapon.

Afterwards, when he had met Beirut, he had asked Beirut about this. But Beirut just gave a casual answer and had thus deceived him.

"Haha, yes, this little fellow does need a bit of forging in the crucible of life." Phusro laughed, looking at Bebe.

Bebe couldn't help but let out a snort. "Grandpa, I already have mastered five profound mysteries. It has only been a thousand years. My speed is already quite fast."

"How can you be so shameless!" Beirut didn't know whether to laugh or to cry. Of the five profound mysteries which Bebe had mastered, one came naturally from when he, as a divine beast, reached the age of maturity. As for the other four, they came from those soul slice fragments which Beirut had asked his friend to create.

But of course...

Bebe's comprehension ability wasn't bad, as he was able to break through four bottlenecks in a row.

Gislason, the Vermillion Bird Matriarch, the other clan leaders, and the Elders were all completely stunned. They truly had not imagined that Linley and Bebe actually had such a deep relationship with this unfathomably powerful Lord Prefect.

"Lord Prefect, Bebe is already quite impressive to have mastered five profound mysteries in a thousand or so years." Gislason said as well.

"You don't know the truth of the secrets within." Beirut said, his eyes half-lidded in amusement.

"Grandpa!" Bebe was rather unhappy.

Beirut chortled, "However, compared to the Yulan continent, you have indeed made great improvements. At least your patience has improved a bit...haha..."

Only now did Bebe smile as well.

"Lord Beirut." Linley finally spoke. "My wife, Delia, she..."

Beirut turned to look. Seeing Linley, his expression grew slightly more solemn. He nodded. "I heard of your wife's situation, which is why I hurried over. Back then, when the two of you were getting married, I even sent my son with a divine spark to your wife. Who would have imagined... that this would happen. Alas. Come, let me take a look."

“Right.” Linley immediately led the way forward, and the two stepped into the room, with Phusro and Bebe following behind.

In the past, Beirut had given her a divine spark out of good intentions. After all, the chances of becoming a Deity on one’s own in a material plane were extremely low. Although there were many benefits to becoming a Deity on one’s own...Delia, become a Deity without assistance? Forget about becoming a Deity; even becoming a Saint would be difficult. Who knew how long it would take for her to become a Deity?

The same was true for Wharton.

If Wharton didn’t undergo the Ancestral Baptism, it would also be very hard for him to become a Deity by relying on his own abilities.

“Linley actually has such a relationship with the Lord Prefect.” Gislason and the others were all outside the room, looking at each other. They were still stunned by this news. At the same time, Gislason set up his Godrealm, blocking out sound and not letting those inside the room listen to them.

“Didn’t you hear? When Linley got married in a material plane, the Lord Prefect even sent him gifts. Their relationship is an extremely close one.” The Vermillion Bird Matriarch’s lips crooked upwards in a smile, and she began to laugh. “To our Four Divine Beasts clan, this is a good thing as well.”

“Right. If the Lord Prefect truly decides to help us, the eight great clans won't dare to be so arrogant!" The Black Tortoise Patriarch nodded as well.

"The abilities of the Lord Prefect truly are frightening." Gislason sighed in amazement as well.

They all remembered that scene, from when Beirut had appeared to stop those eight great clans. He had wielded that long black staff in his hands, and moved like lightning as he roamed about in the midst of the many experts of the eight great clans. Not a single Seven Star Fiend who was touched by that staff had any chance at survival.

However, the experts of the eight great clans weren't able to harm Beirut in the slightest with their material attacks, and when their spiritual attacks landed on Beirut, there was apparently no effect at all.

In the blink of an eye, Beirut had laid waste to and slaughtered more than twenty Seven Star Fiends, terrifying the forces of the eight great clans so badly that they had immediately paused their attacks. Even when Patriarch Boleyn of the eight great clans had exchanged a blow with Beirut, he had been heavily injured, even though he hadn't died.

It must be understood that Patriarch Boleyn also had a Sovereign artifact. But when compared to Beirut...

They were on different levels!

Beirut was reputed to be the most powerful figure in the Bloodridge Continent, aside from the Bloodridge Sovereign himself! Not only did he have such a reputation; nobody even dared to question it. The other Asuras all tacitly accepted it. From this, one could tell how powerful he was.

“Back then, if the Lord Prefect had forcibly demanded the eight great clans to all f*ck off, even though they wouldn’t have been willing to do so, in the end, they still probably would have.” Gislason sighed. “However, it seems as though the Lord Prefect doesn’t want to offend the eight great clans too much. Most likely, he wants to give face to the Sovereigns behind the eight great clans. Thus, he just forbade the eight great clans from entering the Skyrte Mountains.”

“It already is very good for the Lord Prefect to be willing to do this for us.” The Vermillion Bird Matriarch said with a solemn look on her face. “Back in the day, when the four ancestors were all present, how many experts had aligned themselves with our clan? Our four ancestors had quite a few Sovereign’s Emissaries as well. But after the four ancestors died? Not a single one of those Emissaries cared about our clans.”

The other Elders all sighed quietly.

Indeed. As the saying went, ‘When the people are gone, the tea grows cold!’

Once the ancestors died, even their Emissaries simply watched, not assisting at all as the Four Divine Beasts clan tottered step by step towards annihilation. But fortunately, the Lord Prefect of Indigo Prefecture had finally intervened. Although he hadn’t completely shooed away the eight great clans, at least he had allowed the Four Divine Beasts clan to survive and not be annihilated.

A person couldn't be too greedy.

The Lord Prefect had already been very benevolent towards them. The Lord Prefect had done so much for them, but the Four Divine Beasts clan had been unable to do anything to repay him.

"Let's go. We'll go in and take a look." Gislason was the first to walk in, and the various Elders all followed him.

As soon as Gislason entered the room, he saw that Linley was standing there to the side, waiting quietly. As for Beirut, he was standing with his eyes closed. Moments later, his eyes opened and he let out a sigh. "Delia's situation is even more terrible than I expected!"

"Lord Beirut, can it be that even you are unable to save Delia?" Linley said frantically.

"Grandpa." Bebe said hurriedly as well.

"Haha..." Beirut began to laugh loudly. "I only said the situation is terrible. I didn't say I'm unable to save her! However, in order to save your wife, I'm going to have to waste a drop of Life-type Sovereign's Might!"

As he spoke, Beirut extended his palm, and a green drop of liquid appeared within it.

"Lord Beirut." As soon as Linley saw this drop of Life-type Sovereign's Might, he was worried. "In treating the soul, one has to delve deep into the core of the soul. If there's even a hint of energy leakage from the Sovereign's Might or a single error, then..."

Although Linley wanted to save Delia, he didn't want to watch as Delia died due to an accident.

"Lord Prefect, using a drop of Sovereign's Might..." Gislason interjected as well.

"Hey, do you think that I actually don't have common sense?" Puzzled, Beirut turned to look towards Linley and the others. "It's just a drop of Life-type Sovereign's Might. Although it is indeed hard to use a drop of it without letting any leak out, who says I'm not capable of it?"

As Beirut spoke, the drop of Life-type Sovereign's Might in his hand entered his body.

And then, Beirut pointed out with a finger from his right hand, and a green blurry illusion formed.

"Sovereign's Might!" Linley was stunned.

"How is that possible?" Gislason, Phusro, and the others were all stunned. Beirut had clearly already used his Sovereign's Might, but Beirut's body wasn't emanating a hint of it at all.

Normally speaking, after a person used Sovereign's Might, a colored aura would emanate from that person's body.

That light was the leaking Sovereign's Might. But Beirut didn't leak out any at all. From the outside, one wouldn't be able to tell at all...that Beirut was using Sovereign's Might.

Linley was overjoyed. "She'll be saved. Delia will be saved. I didn't expect Lord Beirut to be so formidable. He's able to wield even the heavy power of Sovereign's Might with precision, not letting a hint leak out."

Sovereign's Might was simply too overpoweringly strong for Highgods.

Using it was like letting an ordinary mortal wield a heavy sword that weighed fifty kilograms. Due to its great weight, it would be hard for the mortal to wield it accurately, agilely, and without any errors.

The same was true for a Deity who used Sovereign's Might.

It exceeded the bounds of control of their spiritual energy, and thus it would leak out. According to legend, only Paragon Highgods were able to perfectly control Sovereign's Might. But today, Beirut had accomplished it.

"Lord Prefect, can it be that you have already reached the Paragon..." Gislason said in shock.

"Quiet!"

Beirut frowned, his face growing solemn. "While I am treating Delia, none of you are permitted to speak. If you disturb me, then you will bear the consequences!" Beirut, for once, decided to show his fierce side.

Immediately, everyone in the room fell silent.

Linley's heart was pounding, and he watched everything nervously. He saw Beirut extend his right hand, clasp the top part of Delia's head with it. Immediately, that blurry, illusory green light began to flood into Delia's head.

As for Beirut, he closed his eyes, completely focused on healing her.

The entire room was completely silent. Not even breathing could be heard.

"She'll definitely get better. She'll definitely get better." Linley stared unblinkingly as he prayed nonstop. He was truly afraid. Prior to this, when that Alfonsus had treated Delia, he had also acted in a similar manner. Linley had believed that Delia would get better, but the result had been...

Utter silence...

Time passed, one second at a time.

Healing the soul was a very detailed, careful project. The insides of a soul were extremely complex, and the innermost core of a soul was extremely fragile. The slightest error would cause the soul to be finished. Even Beirut had to be very careful and slow in his treatment.

After a long time...

The sweat which had poured out of Linley's forehead had already dried.

"All done!" A long sigh shook the room. This sudden noise within the silent room caused Linley to feel shocked. He hurriedly looked towards Beirut. The moment of judgment had arrived!

"Lord Beirut, how is it?" When Linley said these words, his heart was trembling.

"How is it? Take a look for yourself." Beirut laughed.

Linley immediately looked towards Delia, only to see the slumbering Delia's eyelids tremble slightly. In that moment, Linley felt as though flames were scorching his chest, and a look of joy couldn't help but appear on his face.

Delia opened her eyes, a lost, uncomprehending look within them. She looked around herself. There were so many people here.

"Lord Beirut." Delia breathed in astonishment, then immediately looked at Linley. "Linley, what happened?" After Delia had been hit by the technique, she had lost all consciousness. She had no idea what had happened in the following period of time.

"Linley, why are you crying?" Delia felt completely baffled.

Why was it that as soon as she had woken up, there were so many people present, including the Patriarch. And even Beirut had appeared!

Tears uncontrollably fell down Linley's face. The moment Delia woke up, Linley felt as though the world, which had turned dark, had suddenly regained its brightness. It had regained its color!

"Delia!" Linley embraced Delia, hugging her tightly, afraid that he might lose her again.

"Lord Prefect, you...you are a Paragon Highgod?" Gislason said.

"Beirut, you..." Phusro said in astonishment as well.

Beirut simply began to laugh loudly. "What are you people talking about? Can it be that if I'm not a Paragon Highgod, I won't be able to control Sovereign's Might?"

Book 17, Indigo Prefecture – Chapter 52, Two Drops of Sovereign's Might Phusro, Gislason, and everyone else were momentarily speechless.

"Grandpa!"

At this moment, Bebe immediately spoke out, his face filled with delight. "I know why they are puzzled. It is because everyone says...that according to legend, only a Highgod who has become a Paragon is able to perfectly control Sovereign's Might."

Beirut looked around at the people within the room.

"Legend...all of you know that is just a legend, right?" Beirut laughed calmly. "Paragon Highgods are able to do it, but does that necessarily mean that no other Highgods are able to do it? All of you are too rigid in your thinking!"

Legends were nothing more than legends, after all!

Reality wasn't necessarily the same as legends.

"Beirut...admirable, admirable. No wonder your almighty Sovereign values you so much." Phusro laughed. Generally speaking, Emissaries were mere subordinates to their Sovereign. The death of a Sovereign's Emissary just meant that the Sovereign could go find another one.

But some Emissaries were exceedingly valued and held in high regard by their Sovereign.

For example, Highgod Paragons. Although Beirut wasn't a Highgod Paragon, his Sovereign still held him in extremely high regard.

"Forget about me; your Sovereign values you greatly as well." Beirut laughed.

Phusro, hearing this, couldn't help but laugh as well. That fire-type Sovereign had personally competed against him, starting with material attacks and spiritual attacks and moving to other aspects. Only at the very end did the fire-type Sovereign reveal his identity. For a Sovereign to lower himself to spar with Phusro...naturally, he didn't view or treat Phusro as an ordinary chess piece.

As Phusro and Beirut chatted, the four Patriarchs and Elders just stood there and listened, not daring to interject. After all, the two were both Sovereign's Emissaries.

Beirut turned to glance at Linley, and then instructed Gislason and the others, "Enough. Everyone, no need to keep crowding the two of them in this room. Linley and his wife undoubtedly have quite a few private words they want to share with each other. You can go out for now."

Only now did Gislason and the others come to their senses, and they hurriedly nodded.

"Lord Prefect, Linley's wife has been treated and cured thanks to your arrival. Tonight, our Four Divine Beasts clan will host a celebratory banquet for her cure and your arrival. What do you say?" Gislason said.

"Alright then. Tonight, you can send someone over. For now, I want to chat with Bebe for a time." Beirut laughed as he looked at Bebe, rubbing Bebe's head.

Bebe just cocked his head sideways, immediately dodging.

"Lord Prefect!" Suddenly, a clear voice rang out. "There's something I want to beg of you, Lord Prefect."

"Little Sis." Gislason couldn't help but hurriedly send through divine sense, "Let's hurry up and leave." Clearly, upon seeing that Beirut had already asked them to leave, it would be imprudent for them to stay.

Beirut couldn't help but frown, dissatisfied. He turned to look, and he saw that the speaker was the Grand Elder of the Azure Dragon clan. The Grand Elder clan said solemnly, "Lord Prefect, this time, quite a few others aside from Linley's wife had also fainted, and their situation is the same as hers! I wonder, Lord Prefect, if you would be willing to help..."

"Hmph!" Beirut let out a cold snort. His thick black eyebrows suddenly turned stiff, and his gaze turned cold as he looked at her.

"Little Sis!" Gislason barked as well.

"Laughable!"

Beirut's gaze drilled down towards the Grand Elder. "Saving a person uses up Sovereign's Might! Uses up my own energy! It is easy for you to say...and what's more, what do the lives of your people have to do with me? By your line of reasoning...whenever anyone in the entire Infernal Realm is wounded or in danger, I, Beirut, should appear and rescue them!"

Seeing Beirut angered, the clan leaders and Elders of the Four Divine Beasts clan were shocked.

Good heavens. The only reason why their Four Divine Beasts clan was able to survive here within the Skyrite Mountains was all because of Beirut. If Beirut simply stopped helping them, the entire Four Divine Beasts clan, under the combined attacks of their enemies, would be finished.

Faced with Beirut's anger, the Grand Elder didn't dare to say another word either.

"Lord Prefect, I apologize. My little sister is just worried about her clansmen." Gislason said apologetically, and then immediately led everyone away.

"Beirut, when you lost your temper, you frightened that female Elder so much, she didn't dare say another word. Jeeze, Beirut. You could've just said no. Why lose your temper?" Phusro laughed. Beirut's face returned to its normal, pleasant smiling expression as well.

"Phusro, there's no need to receive outsiders like them with a smile at all times. Otherwise, some people will go farther and farther out of bounds." Beirut said with a calm laugh

Beirut wasn't the soft-hearted type. In the battles in the Yulan continent, no matter how many people died, Beirut hadn't cared at all. As he saw it, life and death were both part of the laws of nature.

Each person would eventually die.

Deities would theoretically have an unlimited lifespan, true. But in the entire Infernal Realm, countless Deities were dying in battle each day. If they didn't have a connection to him, why would he care about them and why would he intervene?

"Grandpa, let's go back." Bebe urged.

Beirut began to laugh. "Right. We're disturbing Linley and his wife."

"Lord Beirut, thank you, truly." Linley held Delia's hand as he spoke words of gratitude towards Beirut. Beirut had saved Delia this time, yet there was nothing Linley could do to repay this.

"Haha...." Beirut began to laugh. "Alright. I won't disturb you two, husband and wife, any further."

Beirut immediately led Phusro and Bebe away, and in the entire room, only Linley and Delia remained.

Within the room.

Linley began to slowly explained what had happened in recent days to Delia. Delia just sat there listening. Although Linley was very calm when speaking, Delia could sense from Linley's words how much terror and despair Linley had felt, as well as the excitement he had felt when hope had been birthed from despair.

"Delia, if Lord Beirut hadn't saved you this time...I really cannot even begin to imagine what the future would be like, after you died." Linley sighed emotionally. "Training? Training for what? Even if I become powerful, what's the point? Without you, no matter how powerful I am, what's the point?"

Delia's death, to Linley, would have caused his future to fade to utter black.

He wouldn't have any hopes!

He wouldn't have any motivation!

Hearing his words, Delia's eyes glistened with moistness. She immediately stretched her arms out, hugging Linley. She hurriedly said, "Linley, say no more. I'm already healed now. I'm fine!"

"Right. You are fine!"

Linley stroked Delia's face and nodded. "Delia, I have never been so excited, so happy, so energetic before! When I saw you open your eyes, when I saw the colors in your eyes...I felt as though my entire body was filled with life!"

"For your sake, for our child's sake, I will continue to strive hard to continuously improve myself, to become powerful!" Linley looked at Delia. "With you by my side, I fear nothing!"

The tears began to roll down Delia's face as she listened, but her face was covered with a smile of contentment and bliss.

"Delia!" Linley stretched his hand out, and a drop of water-type Sovereign's Might appeared. "This is water-type Sovereign's Might. This time, if I had given you a drop of Sovereign's Might early on, you wouldn't have been in any danger. Fortunately, you are fine now, but I don't want this sort of event to occur again. Take this drop of Sovereign's Might!"

"Linley, no..." Delia, upon seeing the Sovereign's Might, immediately refused.

"Take it!"

Linley said solemnly, "Delia, after this event, I now understand that there will be times when I cannot protect you. By holding a drop of Sovereign's Might, at a critical point in time, you will be able to preserve your own life. This Sovereign's Might is highly effective in both soul defense and material defense. Delia, don't refuse!"

Delia looked at Linley. She knew him very well and understood his temper.

"Fine. I'll take it." Delia didn't refuse any further.

Only now did a smile appear again on Linley's face. He stretched his arm out, pulling Delia closer, and she nestled into his embrace. "After having lost something, one values it all the more. I've tasted loss once. I don't want to taste it again!"

"You won't, you won't." A smile was on Delia's face.

"Right."

Linley said in acknowledgement. For a moment, both fell silent.

And just like that, the two leaned against each other, sensing each other's breathing, enjoying that warmth, that peace...

That very night. The Skyrise Mountains. The four clan leaders of the Four Divine Beasts clan, a large group of Elders, and even many Elders who had lost their most powerful bodies were gathered together for a banquet. After all, the guest of honor this time was the savior of their Four Divine Beasts clan, the Lord Prefect of Indigo Prefecture!

When they knew of the relationship between Beirut, Bebe, and Linley, all of them were shocked.

Exchanging toasts and celebrating joyously, everyone drank together happily.

"Elder Linley!" Gislason, seated on the throne at the front of the hall, said in a loud voice, "This time, you battled against eight Elders. Although you used up a drop of Sovereign's Might, you also killed fully five of the enemy Seven Star Fiends."

Linley couldn't help but look towards him..

"I know that you specialize in the Laws of the Earth. This time, I had a meeting with the Patriarch of the Black Tortoise clan. Killing five enemy Elders is a major accomplishment. The clan thus bestows upon you two drops of Sovereign's Might; one drop of water-type Sovereign's Might, and one drop of earth-type Sovereign's Might." Gislason laughed as he spoke.

"Linley, by using this earth-type Sovereign's Might with your Gravitational Space technique, the power will be much greater." A deep, rumbling voice rang out. It was the Black Tortoise Patriarch Linley hurriedly stood up, moving to the center of the hall.

At the same time, Sovereign's Might floated out from the hands of Gislason as well as the Black Tortoise Patriarch. One was a blue drop of water, while the other was an earthen yellow liquid. Linley immediately accepted them, storing them into his Coiling Dragon ring.

"Thank you, Patriarchs." Linley bowed.

"After having rendered merits, one must be rewarded. This is the rule of the clan." Gislason laughed. "Alright. Take your seat again. Everyone, keep drinking."

Phusro and Beirut, also seated in the front of the main hall, exchanged glances, then laughed.

Below them, however, the unassuming Elder Forhan felt unhappiness in his heart.

"Father." Emanuel sent through divine sense.

This was a major celebratory event, and so many people had come. The clan still held in great esteem those warriors who had lost their most powerful divine clones in battle and who in terms of power were no longer worth of being called 'Elders'. These people still had a fairly high status within the clan, and they were invited to attend this banquet as well. Emanuel was one of them.

"The Patriarch seems to be too biased." Emanuel sent through divine sense. "According to the rules of the clan, if an Elder uses up a drop of Sovereign's Might in battle, generally speaking, he'll just receive another one in compensation. Even if the Elder rendered a significant amount of merit, at most he'll just receive some words of praise. After all, the clan no longer has much Sovereign's Might left."

"Hmph." Forhan replied through divine sense. "It's all because of the Lord Prefect of Indigo Prefecture. Otherwise, how could they give Linley two drops of Sovereign's Might? I really don't know how Linley has such bullshit luck. He actually even has a relationship with the Lord Prefect of Indigo Prefecture!"

Forhan was extremely unhappy.

Linley being in possession of the Azure Dragon ring was something which Forhan was already rather unhappy about. And now, it seemed as though Linley's relationship with the Lord Prefect of Indigo Prefecture was incredibly strong as well. Naturally, Forhan was smoldering. But although he was angry, he didn't dare show it on his face.

On his face, he was still smiling. He even raised his glass in a toast. "Elder Linley, truest congratulations. Come, cheers!"

Linley was seated on the left seat of honor, fairly close to Beirut, who was seated in the front of the hall. Beirut looked towards Linley, then said through divine sense, "Linley, I heard that on the way back, you suffered a joint attack from eight enemy Elders?"

"Right." Linley was puzzled by this as well. He sent back through divine sense, "This is indeed fishy. First of all, I changed my appearance. Second of all, as soon as I exited the city, they attacked en masse. And third, the enemy sent out eight Elders! They wouldn't do that without complete certainty."

Beirut was momentarily silent, then sent back through divine sense, "Phusro discussed this with me as well. I've carefully analyzed the situation, and I suspect...that someone within the clan probably leaked out your information."

Linley was stunned.

"Linley, tell me, is there anyone you suspect?" Beirut sent mentally.

Linley naturally had someone he suspected.

"Lord Beirut, I have no proof at all. And there's no way to be absolutely sure if there is even a traitor involved at all! Empty suspicions are useless to voice." Linley sent.

"Don't worry about if it is 'useless' or not. Just tell me, is there someone you suspect! Tell me who the person you suspect is!" Beirut said.

Linley hesitated, then said, "There is a person. That time, when I mounted on my metallic lifeform and left, he saw me leave as well. Within the clan, the only people I have a conflict with is him and his son."

"Who is it?" Beirut asked.

"Forhan!" Linley finally said the name.

"Which one is he? Is he within the hall?" Beirut asked.

"Yes." Linley replied. "He's the fifth one on the row in front of us."

Beirut followed Linley's gesture. Turning his head, he saw that Forhan was currently exchanging toasts with another Elder while saying, "The clan's situation is growing tougher and tougher. Last time, when I encountered an enemy Elder, I was nearly finished."

“Oh, the one with gold hair?” Beirut sent back through divine sense and asked.

Linley replied, “That’s the one!”

Book 17, Indigo Prefecture – Chapter 53, Putting on a Performance

“What exactly is Lord Beirut going to do?” Linley was puzzled. Whether or not the clan had a traitor and whether or not Forhan was that traitor... there was no evidence for it. Why was Lord Beirut asking so many questions?

Just as Linley was puzzled, Beirut, seated at the front of the hall, suddenly slammed his cup against the long table in front of him. That ear-piercing sound couldn't help but cause the four clan leaders and Phusro to all look towards him.

“Hmph!” Beirut let out a cold snort.

Instantly, the entire main hall went silent. Everyone understood that this Lord Prefect of Indigo Prefecture seemed to be rather upset about something. It didn't matter if they offended others, but they couldn't offend this person who was supporting their clan. Gislason let out two chuckles, then said, “Lord Prefect, is something amiss?”

Beirut glanced sideways at him, and then looked at the surrounding people, his gaze clear and fierce.

“Linley's group was assaulted by eight enemy Elders. He killed several of them; he rendered merits, and so he was rewarded. I must praise your clan for the way you handled this part...but, can it be that your Four Divine Beasts clan isn't preparing to investigate how this matter of a simultaneous attack by eight Elders came about?!”

Beirut let out a cold snort. "From what I know, when these eight enemy Elders attacked, three of them used Sovereign's Might! Clearly, they wanted Linley dead! And the shockwaves of battle even impacted my grandson, Bebe. Fortunately, I had forged a soul-protecting divine artifact for him long ago, which is why he was able to resist those green spots of light. Otherwise, he would have ended up just like Delia!"

"This was such a major affair, but your clan isn't investigating it? Hmph!" Beirut let out an angry snort, then didn't say anything further.

After these words came out, all of the Elders in the hall began to secretly speak to each other through divine sense. Even the four clan leaders seated at the front of the hall began to speak amongst themselves through divine sense. As they saw it...

The real reason why Beirut was so angry was probably because Bebe was impacted as well.

Although Bebe wasn't harmed, Beirut was clearly upset by this affair. The four clan leaders could completely understand this.

"Lord Prefect." The Vermillion Bird Matriarch immediately said apologetically, "We, too, feel that there must have been a plot behind the attack of the eight Elders. Otherwise, how could the eight Elders have suddenly appeared as soon as Linley's group left Meer City? But...there's no way to investigate!"

"No way to investigate?" Beirut said calmly. "It's simple. Your clan has a traitor."

“Traitor!”

This word caused the entire hall to descend into a cacophony of noise.

Forhan was so shocked that even the hair on his body stood up. His heart clenched tightly...but then he immediately calmed down. “It’s fine. It’s definitely fine. Aside from myself, there’s no one at all who knows that I notified the eight clans. If I don’t admit it, who would know? Even if Linley suspects me, does he have proof?”

Forhan’s thoughts immediately firmed and coalesced around one thing – No matter what, he wasn’t that traitor!

But as the saying went, a thief would always be nervous. Forhan knew that no one else knew, but he still felt rather tense.

“Father, do you think there really is a traitor?” Emanuel asked Forhan through divine sense as well.

“Possibly.” Forhan put on a pretense of calm as he sent back through divine sense. “Perhaps there is a traitor. However, it’s also possible that the eight great clans truly do have a way to clearly locate Linley’s whereabouts.”

The main hall was in a state of chaos. The Elders were all stunned.

As for Linley, he was in a state of shock as well. “Lord Beirut is being perhaps a bit too...” He didn’t know what he should say. He didn’t have any proof at all, but Beirut had actually acted in such a manner. Still, as Linley saw it, Beirut's behavior had always been different from that of normal people.

"Linley, is there really a traitor?" Delia, by Linley's side, asked through divine sense.

"There probably is." Linley replied.

"Who? That Forhan?" Delia glanced at Forhan as well. When thinking of possible traitors, the first person that came to mind for Delia was Forhan as well.

"If there really is a traitor, he is almost certainly the person." Linley replied.

Only now did Gislason, seated in the front of the hall, say hurriedly in response, "Lord Prefect, you say there is a traitor. Can it be that you have proof?"

"Of course I do!" Beirut laughed calmly.

Immediately, chaos erupted once more in the hall. Even Linley was stunned.

"He has proof?" Even Linley himself didn't know what proof there was.

"Proof?" Forhan, seated below, was shocked. "Impossible. Absolutely impossible. My divine clone sent the message after changing its appearance. There's definitely no one who knows about this situation."

"What is the proof?" Gislason immediately said. "If there really is a traitor who has betrayed the clan...Lord Prefect, worry not. No matter who the person is, our Four Divine Beasts clan will destroy all of the person's bodies, not leaving a single one behind!"

Gislason's words were firm and resolute.

"Right, the person must be executed!" The White Tiger Patriarch also said fiercely.

"Lord Prefect, what's the evidence?" The Vermillion Bird Matriarch said. Everyone in the hall turned to look at Beirut, while Linley and Forhan stared at Beirut as well. They all were wondering...

What the proof was!

"I can't say, I can't say!" Beirut laughed calmly.

Everyone was stunned.

"Lord Prefect, what are you..." Gislason and the others were stunned, and Linley frowned in bewilderment as well.

Beirut laughed calmly, "There's no point to me saying it. Only two individuals know about this. One is myself! The other is an almighty Sovereign! Do you think that a Sovereign will come bear witness about a matter like this? As for the details...it involves some of the secrets of the Sovereign. I dare not reveal them."

Everyone was stupefied.

Linley was dazed as well. How did a Sovereign get involved in this?

"Lord Prefect, are you saying that you are unable to provide any proof?" The voice of the Grand Elder rang out in the hall.

"Right. I am unable to provide any proof." Beirut nodded.

The Grand Elder said respectfully, "Lord Prefect, if you don't provide any proof, then there's no way this matter can be addressed. It's uncertain as to whether or not there is a traitor! In a situation where there is no proof, it is best not to cause everyone to worry."

"Laughable!"

Beirut stared at the Grand Elder. "What, can it be that you think I am lying?"

The Grand Elder was speechless.

"Little Sis." Gislason hurriedly shouted at her through divine sense, "This Lord Prefect clearly wants to pursue this matter to the end. Let him pursue it if he wishes to. If he wants to find a traitor, in the end, he'll still have to provide us with evidence that we find compelling. If he just randomly points at someone, our Four Divine Beasts clan won't accept it either! It is best not to irritate him just yet."

Gislason asked solemnly, "Lord Prefect, dare I ask, do you know who the traitor is?"

Immediately, the entire hall fell silent.

Linley listened carefully as well. Beirut laughed calmly, then stretched out his right hand, pointing down at Forhan, seated in front of them. "The traitor of your Four Divine Beasts clan is him! Forhan!!!"

"Forhan!!!" When Beirut barked out this name, it echoed throughout the hall, and Forhan's face immediately became exceedingly unsightly to look at.

Linley felt astonished and surprised. He immediately asked through divine sense, "Lord Beirut, what are you...?"

"Don't worry about it. I have my own plans. All you need to do is watch." Beirut replied through divine sense.

All of the Elders within the hall turned to look at Forhan, who immediately rose to his feet, a look of anger on his face. In a sonorous voice, he said, "Lord Prefect, I, Forhan, am a third generation member of the clan. In the past ten thousand years, I have killed two enemy Seven Star Fiends! My son lost his most powerful divine clone while battling the enemy as well. And you say I am a traitor? Haha..."

Forhan actually began to laugh loudly, from his 'grief and rage'. The anger and grief within that laugh caused many of the Elders present to believe Forhan.

Clearly, this Beirut hadn't been able to provide any real evidence at all, and yet he pointed to Forhan as being the traitor. If it was a junior member of the clan, or a member who had joined the clan just recently, the Elders might believe it.

But this was Forhan. The son of the Grand Elder!

They didn't believe Forhan would betray the clan!

"Lord Prefect." The Grand Elder stood up, those eyes of hers behind that silver mask radiating an angry look. In a fierce voice, she said, "This Forhan is my son. Over the course of countless years, I have always understood him very well! I dare to guarantee that he definitely is not a traitor! And he can't possibly be the traitor!"

A calm smile was still on Beirut's face.

"Oh, you don't admit it?" Beirut looked sideways towards Forhan.

"Forhan, you think that since you acted stealthily and secretly, as long as you don't admit it, no one would find out, right?" Beirut laughed calmly. "But you forgot something. There is no way for you to notice when a Sovereign is paying attention to you!"

Forhan's heart trembled. "Can it be that a Sovereign was aware of everything I did? Impossible, impossible! How could there be such a coincidence, that a Sovereign just so happened to notice what I was doing?" Forhan repeatedly tried to convince himself.

But on the surface, Forhan still had his head proudly raised, and he said firmly, "Lord Prefect, I, Forhan, dare to proclaim that I definitely have never betrayed the clan. Never!"

"I won't waste words." Beirut looked towards him. "You believe you are innocent, right??"

Forhan raised his head proudly, then nodded. "Of course!"

Beirut nodded slightly. "Very well, then. If you truly are innocent, then don't resist. I will use a hypnotic technique against you. While hypnotized, you will tell the truth to everyone."

Linley, by now, understood what Beirut intended. "Forhan is a Seven Star Fiend, after all, and even amongst the Elders, he is ranked amongst the most powerful. And he is also a member of the Azure Dragon clan, with that innate azure glow protecting his soul. Most likely even Lord Beirut isn't capable of hypnotizing him against his will."

Hypnotizing a Seven Star Fiend was very hard.

A Seven Star Fiend who also had, as an innate ability, that azure light protecting his soul...the number of people in the Infernal Realm capable of hypnotizing him could probably be counted on one hand.

"Hypnotize?" Forhan said angrily. "Lord Prefect, I am no traitor! You even want me to undergo 'hypnotism'. Although you are a lofty and mighty figure, Lord Prefect, I dare say that you are going too far in abusing others!"

"Impudence!" Gislason barked.

Forhan took a large step forward.

"Bang!" He fell to his knees.

"Patriarch!" Forhan said furiously. "Given the situation, there's nothing I have to say for myself. The Lord Prefect sullyng me is one thing, but he even wants to hypnotize me and wants me not to resist. I, Forhan, am an Elder of the mighty Four Divine Beasts clan! I am also a Seven Star Fiend! I won't accept an insult like this!"

Forhan raised his head proudly. "Patriarch, if you are afraid of the power and authority of the Lord Prefect, then today, I, Forhan, will grant the Lord Prefect his wish and accept death! The Lord Prefect can do as he pleases and execute me if he wishes! But you, Beirut...even though you are the Lord Prefect, even though you have shown great benevolence to the clan, I refuse to allow you to insult me any further! Even if you kill me, I won't let you sully me!"

Forhan closed his eyes. "If you want to kill me, then do so!"

Immediately, the Elders in the hall all began to speak through divine sense.

"Forhan, just accept the hypnotism. When the time comes, the Lord Prefect will naturally know that you are innocent." Gislason said.

"I've already suffered enough insults. To suffer hypnotism without resisting?" Forhan's tears began to fall down, and he said in a high-pitched voice, "Patriarch...when the ancestor was alive, who would have dared to treat an Elder of our clan in such a way?"

These words struck right at the hearts of quite a few of the Elders who were present.

When the ancestors had been alive, the Four Divine Beasts clan wouldn't have even held the Asuras of the Infernal Realm in much regard.

Beirut laughed.

"Haha!"

Beirut's laughter echoed in the main hall, and he stood up and walked downwards.

"If you want to kill me, then kill me." Forhan shut his eyes, kneeling there, the picture of rage and grief.

"Lord Prefect." Gislason said hurriedly.

Beirut just walked out of the hall, laughing calmly. "Kid, your acting abilities aren't bad. Fine. Today, I won't force you to die. You say that I sully your reputation? Then I will permit you to live a few more months... and in a few more months, I'll see what else you have to say for yourself!"

After finishing his words, Beirut, with a swirl of his cloak, exited.

"I, Forhan, am not a traitor. Several months from now, I still won't be a traitor!" Forhan knelt there, but his head was held high.

Book 17, Indigo Prefecture – Chapter 54, Nowhere to Run

Beirut's sudden departure caused the atmosphere at the banquet to become rather awkward. This celebratory banquet thus ended very early. Gislason and the other clan leaders bade farewell to Phusro, Bebe, and Linley, and then Linley's group left as well.

Most of the Elders were gone now, while Forhan still stood there in the main hall.

"Forhan." A cold, fierce voice.

Forhan raised his head. The Grand Elder was walking towards him, and she stared at him with a clear gaze. Through divine sense, she asked, "Forhan, I ask you, did those eight enemy Elders go kill Linley because of you?"

"No!" Forhan didn't hesitate at all. "Mother, I definitely am not a traitor! Mother, you must believe me!"

The Grand Elder stared at him, but since Forhan had decided to put on an act, how could he let her see anything amiss?

The Grand Elder seemed to relax slightly. In a slightly softer voice, she said, "Fine. I believe you. As long as you aren't the traitor, the clan won't permit any outsiders to kill you." After speaking, the Grand Elder left as well.

Within that cold and gloomy underground hall.

Forhan was there by himself. "Judging from Beirut's words, it seems as though he really is certain that I am the traitor? Can it be that a Sovereign truly was watching? But although Sovereign's are high and mighty, they have their own personalities and human characteristic. They'll often wander about as well. Perhaps one really did find out."

Forhan was currently pondering nonstop.

"Hmph. Who cares if a Sovereign found out or not. How could a mighty Sovereign intervene personally in a minor matter like this?" Forhan made up his mind. "As long as I confidently assert that I am not a traitor, then that means I am not!"

Forhan only had to do one thing; deny it, no matter what!

Within that gorge in the Skyrise Mountains. Beirut hadn't gone to live in the place which the Four Divine Beasts clan had arranged, instead electing to live in the gorge, with Linley and Bebe as his neighbors.

Within Linley's living room. Linley, Bebe, Phusro, Beirut were present and seated, while Delia was outside with Wade.

"Grandpa, since you and the Sovereign already know everything and know that Forhan is the traitor, just go ahead and kill him." Bebe snorted. "I've never liked that Forhan."

Linley laughed, "Bebe, deep within the hearts and minds of the clan leaders of the Four Divine Beasts clan is a certain pride. If Forhan is killed without any evidence of his guilt, although the clan leaders and Elders might not immediately have a falling out with Beirut over this, they will remember it and harbor hatred in their hearts."

"Right." Beirut nodded and laughed. "Don't be fooled by how respectful those four clan leaders act towards me. They are, after all, the sons and daughter of four Sovereigns. In their hearts, they are still quite prideful. I can't go too far."

Linley felt rather grateful towards Beirut.

Actually, why would Beirut care about if the Four Divine Beasts clan hated him or not? The reason Beirut was acting in this manner was because he was worried that Linley would be ostracized afterwards, and that his life in the clan would become miserable.

"Lord Beirut, you said that in a few months, you would make it so that Forhan would have nothing more to say for himself. What's the plan?" Linley immediately asked.

"Right, Grandpa, what is your plan?"

"Haha..." Beirut laughed.

Phusro laughed as well. "Bebe, have you forgotten that a year ago, you met your grandmother in Meer City? What did you acquire on that visit?"

"The soul slice fragment. What about it?" Bebe said, puzzled.

Beirut laughed, "That soul slice fragment was delivered by an old friend of mine. I had your grandmother give it to you because I was busy accompanying my friend, so I didn't have time to go find you."

"That Forhan is a descendant of the Azure Dragon clan. With that innate ability protecting him, I'm unable to forcibly hypnotize him. However, that old friend of mine can." Beirut was completely confident.

A supreme expert capable of making soul slice fragments?

"If this person is willing to help." Linley rejoiced in his heart. "There's no way Forhan will be able to escape!"

"This time, for Delia's sake, I had to hurry over here. I was worried that my old friend might have left, but just now, I managed to reach him. That friend of mine is still in Indigo Prefecture. He'll arrive here in a few months." Beirut laughed calmly.

"Grandpa, are you sure about this?" Bebe said, rather worried. "Forhan has the protection of his innate ability."

"Absolutely sure!" Beirut said.

Hearing this, Linley felt jubilant, but at the same time, he sighed to himself: "The friends which a supreme expert like Lord Beirut makes...are all supreme experts as well. Even someone like Forhan, protected by his innate ability, will still be mesmerized. What an amazing level of accomplishment does one have to be at, to be so skilled with regards to the soul?"

They waited leisurely, but as the days passed, the news that the Lord Prefect had accused Forhan of being a traitor quickly spread throughout the entire Skyrite Mountains. Quite a few clansmen were secretly furious, feeling the Lord Prefect to be abusing his power.

In the blink of an eye, several months passed. On this day, Linley and Delia were currently playing with little Wade in front of their house.

Wade was already able to walk wobbly.

While supporting her son, Delia suddenly raised her head. "Linley, news about that affair from last time has spread quite far. Even the people in our valley know about it. Just now, when I was taking Wade out for a walk, I heard clansmen from the other branches in our valley say that the Lord Prefect of Indigo Prefecture was sullying Elder Forhan. But of course, there were others who said that the reason Forhan refused to accept the hypnotism was due to fear borne out of guilt...still, the majority seem to support Forhan."

"Don't worry about it. When that expert comes, all shall be made clear." Linley said, then half-knelt. "Wade, you can do it. Take a few more steps. Come to your father."

"Uh...uh..."

Wade beamed, his dimply mouth curving upwards as he tottered forwards with small steps. Finally, he made it to Linley's arms.

"Father." Wade said sweetly.

"Come, give me a kiss." Linley said dotingly.

While holding his son, Linley glanced sideways at Delia. Just a few months ago, he had been lost amidst his despair. But now, everything had changed. All because of Beirut. "I will never, ever forget the kindness he has shown me."

Just as Linley's little three-person household was in the midst of their joy...

"Beirut!" A clear voice echoed in the air above the Skyrise Mountains.

"Eh?" Linley and Delia all raised their heads, surprised.

Beirut, Phusro, and Bebe immediately flew out, and Beirut laughed towards Linley, "Linley, that good friend of mine is here. Let's go. It is time for Forhan's true face to be revealed."

Linley and Delia, carrying their son, followed them out of the great gorge.

In the air above the Skyrise Mountains. A single, solitary figure hovered there in mid-air, his entire body covered with a bluish-black robe. His wavy, bluish-black hair was unbound, and his thick black eyebrows were shaped like two swords.

He just stood there, standing in the air above the Skyrite Mountains.

Not a single one of the patrolling warriors dared to go close to him. Gislason, leading a number of Elders, hurried over.

"Patriarch, this strange fellow flew there, shouted 'Beirut', then stood there without moving. We wanted to shoo him off...but all of our brothers who approached him lost their consciousness and plummeted to the ground. Only after landing did they regain consciousness." The captain of the patrolling warriors hurriedly reported.

Gislason, hearing this, couldn't help but frown.

Gislason immediately flew over and said sonorously, "I am Patriarch Gislason of the Azure Dragon clan. Might I ask who you are?"

Only now did this strange fellow open his eyes, glancing sideways as Gislason approached. Gislason couldn't but feel his heart tremble. He actually had the feeling as though within the strange man's eyes were a pair of illusory serpents.

"Gislason?" The strange man said calmly. "I'm waiting for Beirut."

Gislason frowned. Although the person in front of him was very powerful, Gislason wasn't afraid of him... 'soul defense' was Gislason's strong point. After all, he had a perfect, undamaged soul-protecting Sovereign artifact.

"Then please come to my place to rest while we await the Lord Prefect." Gislason laughed.

"No need." The strange man said.

"Haha...Dunnington [Dan'ning'dun], you were rather slow." A loud laugh rang out, and Beirut's form appeared in the distance. In but a moment, he arrived. As for Linley and Bebe, they flew over from behind as well.

"Beirut." The strange fellow began to laugh, immediately going to greet him.

Linley and Delia flew over as well. They couldn't help but look carefully at this person. But as Linley looked at him...he felt as though the wavy hair of this strange person had transformed into countless tiny serpents.

"Eh?" Linley was shocked. "What a strange feeling."

"Lord Prefect, this is Dunnington? The legendary 'Dunnington' of the Chaotic Sea?" Gislason said disbelievingly.

The Infernal Realm had quite a few legendary figures, which even the likes of Gislason had only heard of, not met. As for this Dunnington, in the Infernal Realm, he was a legendary figure on the same level as Beirut, or perhaps who had even surpassed Beirut!

"Right." Beirut laughed. "This friend of mine is the number one expert of the Chaotic Sea, aside from the Chaotic Sea Sovereign. Dunnington!"

The Infernal Realm was divided into five continents and two seas. The 'Chaotic Sea' was the largest region, with the most experts. Dunnington's name, for countless years now, had reverberated in the Infernal Realm.

Dunnington was strongest in the Edicts of Death.

Each of the Seven Elemental Laws all had their own specialties and mysteries, which were all divided up clearly and thus could be fused clearly. But the Four Edicts were different. The Four Edicts didn't have specific 'profound mysteries'; as to whether or not a person had mastered enough of them to become a God or a Highgod, the natural Laws themselves would judge.

Nobody could be certain as to whether or not Dunnington had reached the stage of being a Paragon or not.

But...

If one was to discuss who, in the entire Infernal Realm, had the most impressive accomplishments with regards to the soul, the vast majority would say the name, 'Dunnington'. A freakishly, monstrously powerful figure.

In describing Beirut's power, one could use the phrase 'sudden rise to prominence' in describing the manner in which he proved his power through blood-soaked battle.

But the power of Dunnington...had been publicly acknowledged through countless years through countless trials.

Many people believed that Dunnington had already reached the utter pinnacle of power in the Edicts of Death and had become a Paragon. But of course, Dunnington himself wouldn't tell anyone...and there was no way for others to be completely certain.

"Gislason, go arrange for Forhan to be found and brought here." Beirut laughed.

Gislason already could guess what was going on, but he still instructed that Forhan be brought over.

Beirut and Dunnington flew together, side by side, while Gislason, Phusro, Linley, Bebe, and Delia followed from behind.

"Phusro, this Dunnington, the number one figure of the Chaotic Sea aside from the Sovereign...he is very strong?" Linley asked through divine sense. Linley simply hadn't trained for long enough; he didn't know anything about some of the legendary figures of the Infernal Realm.

"Very strong? Are you joking?" Phusro sent back through divine sense. "This Dunnington is probably a Highgod Paragon. You tell me, is he strong?"

Linley was badly startled. He couldn't help but take a closer look at Dunnington. While flying, Dunnington's long, wavy, bluish-black hair billowed casually in the wind, but as it did, it gave off a very strange impression, as though each strand of hair had turned into a long serpent, or arrows of ice...

As he stared at Dunnington, Linley felt his head grow dizzy.

"How terrifying." Linley was secretly shocked.

"Boss, I keep on having the feeling as though the robe which Dunnington is wearing is actually a strange monster of the deep sea. So strange." Bebe sent through divine sense. It wasn't just Linley who felt strange things when looking at Dunnington.

Within the main hall of Patriarch Gislason's residence. Everyone sat down. Linley raised his head, looking towards the outside. The Grand Elder was walking in. "Elder Brother, which person was the one who had been loudly shouting for the Lord Prefect?"

Gislason rose to his feet, introducing, "Little Sis, this gentleman is Mr. Dunnington of the Chaotic Sea."

The Grand Elder was shocked.

"Mr. Dunnington." The Grand Elder said in a friendly manner. They addressed Beirut as 'Lord Prefect', because they felt grateful towards him for his kindness. As for others, even if they were as powerful as Beirut, they would at most address others as 'Mr.'.

As soon as the Grand Elder sat down, footsteps rang out from outside as well.

"Haha, they finally came." Beirut laughed.

"Which one is it?" Dunnington spoke out calmly.

"The one with the yellow hair." Beirut said. Forhan and several other Elders walked in together. When Forhan entered the main hall and saw Beirut, the look on his face turned rather ugly.

"Oh?" Dunnington said.

Very suddenly...

Twin illusory blurs shot out from Dunnington's eyes, which suddenly surrounded and enveloped Forhan. Forhan wasn't able to react at all, and Linley's eyes couldn't help but light up. "Dunnington's actions appeared simple, but there definitely must have been a struggle within Forhan's mind."

Forhan's facial muscles twitched slightly, but then he calmed down.

"All done." Dunnington laughed, turning his gaze towards Beirut. "The innate ability of this Azure Dragon clan really is formidable. I had to use some real power."

Beirut laughed back. "Stop showing off and help me interrogate him."

"What are you doing?" The Grand Elder said frantically.

"Just hypnotism." Beirut laughed calmly. "You can see for yourselves if he is innocent or not"

Gislason gave the Grand Elder a meaningful look. Since the hypnotism had already been used, then they might as well let this thing come to a conclusion. "Hmph." The Grand Elder let out a low snort, but in the end, still sat down. "I want to see what you'll have to say for yourself after it is proven that my son is no traitor."

"That's Beirut's responsibility, not mine." A hint of a smile appeared on Dunnington's face.

"Forhan, tell me, were you the one who leaked information about Linley's whereabouts to the eight great clans, resulting in the eight Elders attacking Linley?" Dunnington said calmly.

Immediately, everyone in the hall, including Gislason, the Grand Elder, the various other Elders, and Linley all looked nervously towards Forhan. Linley stared at the dazed Forhan. "If it wasn't him, this will be very awkward."

A calm look was on Forhan's face, and his eyes were lifeless. He said mechanically, "Yes!"

"Yes!"

The voice echoed in the hall. Instantly, everyone fell silent. The Grand Elder wore her customary silver mask, and there was no way to see the look on her face...but disbelief could be seen filling her eyes.

"Did you hear that?" Beirut laughed as he looked towards the Grand Elder and Gislason.

"How is that possible?" The Elders in the hall were all stunned.

"Ask him....ask him why!" The Grand Elder's entire body was trembling. The Grand Elder didn't want to believe it. She truly didn't understand... why had her son come to this decision? When a person was hypnotized, they wouldn't tell any lies. This was an ironclad rule.

Dunnington continued, "Why did you leak the information and want Linley to be killed?"

"He deserves to die!"

Forhan said mechanically, "He is a junior descendant of the clan. By what right does he hold the Azure Dragon ring, the Sovereign artifact of our ancestor!?"

"Sovereign artifact?" Dunnington couldn't help but look at Linley with surprise. The other Elders all were looking towards Linley in surprise as well.

Forhan continued, "Acquiring the Sovereign artifact was one thing, but my son lost his most powerful divine clone because of him. And he's just a mere God...and yet he's already so powerful. When he becomes a Highgod, his status in the clan will definitely be higher than mine. I, Forhan, look up at him and live beneath him, day in and day out? This sort of life is nothing but torture...and so he must die."

"A God?" Quite a few Elders in the hall all looked towards Linley, astonished.

They didn't know Linley was a God! They also didn't know that Linley had a Sovereign artifact.

"So that's what this was all about. So that's what this was all about." The Grand Elder stood up, murmuring softly.

"Whoosh!"

The Grand Elder's body suddenly appeared next to Forhan's. With a vicious palm blow, she smashed down at Forhan's head. With a 'bang' sound, Forhan's head exploded, then two divine sparks fell out as well.

Linley sucked in a sudden breath. "The Grand Elder.."

The entire hall instantly fell silent. Even Beirut and Dunnington stared at the Grand Elder in shock.

"All the clones of those who betray the clan are to be put to death!" The Grand Elder said in a low voice. Her eyes turned moist...but in an instant, they dried out.

Book 17, Indigo Prefecture – Chapter 55, Beirut's Craftiness

It had been Forhan who had leaked the information. This had already shocked quite a few people, but the sudden attack by the Grand Elder, who had personally executed Forhan...this caused the entire hall to fall completely, utterly silent.

"I didn't expect that it really was him!" A long, low sigh echoed in the main hall.

The speaker was Gislason. At this time, Linley was looking very carefully at the Grand Elder. "The Grand Elder actually straightforwardly executed her own son!" Linley was completely astonished.

"Elder Brother, Forhan has already been punished accordance with the rules of the clan!" The Grand Elder said in a cold, calm voice. "This matter is concluded. I'll leave for now."

"Alright. You can go back and rest." Gislason understood that his little sister was feeling terrible right now.

"Wait a moment." A voice suddenly rang out.

The Grand Elder had already started to leave, but now she came to a halt, turning to stare at the seated Beirut. In a low voice, she said, "Lord Prefect, is there something else you need?" Although her voice was very calm and tranquil, Linley could sense the unbridled anger that was hidden within that calm!

Her son was already died, but Beirut still wouldn't give it a rest?

Linley couldn't help but look towards Beirut, who had a calm smile on his face. Beirut said, "According to the rules of the Four Divine Beasts clan, those who betray the clan shall have all their bodies and clones destroyed, correct?"

"Correct." The Grand Elder raised her chin, looking towards Beirut. "Lord Prefect, why do you ask this?"

"I simply would like to ask, how many clones did Forhan have?" Beirut laughed calmly.

The Grand Elder was silent for a moment. The mask on her face prevented others from seeing her expression, but Linley could see that the Grand Elder's entire body was trembling slightly. Clearly, she was already utterly livid.

"Including his original body, three clones in total." The Grand Elder said in a low voice. "However, my son's original body was still at the Saint level. Thus, when I killed him, only two divine sparks came out. Lord Prefect, I wonder if my answer is satisfactory for you?"

"Little Sis." Gislason reproved softly.

The Grand Elder's words and attitude were clearly hostile.

Beirut let out a calm laugh. "It's fine. She just killed her own son with her own two hands. I can understand why she is in a poor mood. But...Gaia [Gai'ya], I hope that you will remember that your son was a traitor to the clan. He deserved his death!" Beirut spoke with no mercy or remorse.

The Grand Elder's body shuddered once.

"Alright." Beirut stood up. "This matter is at an end! Dunnington, Phusro, Linley, come, let's all go back."

Linley's group immediately rose.

As Beirut walked past the blood-stained corpse, he glanced sideways at it and said calmly, "Hurry up and dispose of the body. It is foul to behold!" After speaking, Beirut left, while Dunnington and the others followed.

As Linley left, he glanced at the Grand Elder. The Grand Elder just waved her hand, and the corpse on the ground transformed into dust.

"Let's go. Let's go. I didn't expect that Forhan was a traitor." The Elders left, all disgusted. In but a few moments, the only ones remaining in the hall were Gislason and the Grand Elder.

The Grand Elder stood in the center of the hall, not moving at all.

"Little Sis, Forhan was a traitor to the clan. He deserved to die!" Gislason walked over, resting his hand on the Grand Elder's shoulder. Once a person became known as a traitor to the clan, the other members of the Four Divine Beasts clan would hold that person in contempt. Even though Forhan was dead, nobody felt pity for him.

"I know."

The Grand Elder's voice was very low. "But I still feel miserable. Alright, Elder Brother. I'll go back now." The Grand Elder didn't say anything else. She turned and immediately left. Her son had become a traitor to the clan and had been killed by her with her own two hands. Perhaps the person hurt the most by Forhan's affair, in the entire Skyrise Mountains, was the Grand Elder.

Linley and the others flew down, entering their gorge.

"Haha, awesome, awesome!" Bebe laughed loudly. "I never liked that father-son duo. They lusted after the Boss' Coiling Dragon ring from the very beginning, and I suspected them long ago regarding this event as well. So it really was them. An excellent death! An excellent death!"

Linley laughed as well.

He, too, had suspected Forhan, but he wasn't sufficiently certain. Why, however, had Beirut dared to act in such a way? Wasn't Lord Beirut concerned...that Forhan might have been wrongly accused? How would Lord Beirut have resolved the situation, if that had been the case?

Linley was puzzled about this the entire time.

Beirut, Dunnington, Phusro, and Linley sat down within Linley's home, around that stone table. Linley hesitated for a moment, but in the end still voiced his puzzlement. "Lord Beirut, how could you be so certain that Forhan was the traitor?"

Beirut looked at him, a hint of satire in his gaze. "You were the one who told me that it was he!"

"I told you that I didn't have any evidence, just suspicions." Linley said hurriedly.

"Haha..." The nearby Dunnington seemed to have heard something enormously funny as he began to laugh loudly.

Linley couldn't help but feel lost. What was so funny? The nearby Bebe spoke out. "Grandpa, can it be that you really did learn about this early on from a Sovereign?"

"How could I have known about this early on?" Beirut laughed. "If I had known early on, I would have sent someone to warn Linley long ago. In truth, before today, I wasn't completely certain either."

Linley was stunned. Not completely certain?

"But Lord Beirut, you even invited Dunnington over, then did a forcible hypnotism. If Forhan hadn't been the traitor, wouldn't that have been embarrassing?" Linley immediately said.

"Haha..." Dunnington once again started to laugh loudly as he glanced sideways at Beirut. "Beirut, stop intentionally teasing Linley. I'll tell him!" Dunnington immediately began to explain the truth.

As for Linley, he listened intently.

"This Lord Beirut of yours wasn't sure at all about whether or not Forhan was the traitor." Dunnington laughed. "That's why he invited me over. After I hypnotized Forhan, I first did a quick review of Forhan's memories!"

Normally speaking, there was no way to review a Deity's memories.

But once a person was hypnotized and completely unable to resist, a terrifying figure like Dunnington was able to easily review the memories of the hypnotized person.

"After reviewing his memories for just a moment, I knew!" Dunnington laughed. "That he was the traitor!"

"But what if he wasn't?" Bebe immediately asked, and Linley looked at Dunnington as well, puzzled.

Dunnington laughed. "If he wasn't? Easy!"

"Then I would have immediately allowed Forhan to regain consciousness." Dunnington glanced sideways at Beirut. "Afterwards, I would say a few words of praise, along the lines of, 'The Azure Dragon clan really does live up to its name. Even I am unable to forcibly hypnotize him.'"

Dunnington's words completely flabbergasted Linley, Delia, and Bebe.

Indeed, when a person was hypnotized, they would lose their consciousness. If Dunnington was successful in his hypnosis attempt, he could let Forhan regain his consciousness after investigating Forhan's memories. Even Forhan himself would only have felt that his head had gone dizzy for a moment. He wouldn't feel much else.

"Formidable." Linley sighed to himself.

If Forhan wasn't the traitor, Dunnington could just deliberately lie and claim that he had been unable to hypnotize Forhan. The end result would simply be that Gislason, the Grand Elder, and the others would feel that they had gained a great deal of face. After all...even a supreme expert such as Dunnington had been unable to forcibly hypnotize an Elder of the clan.

"This really was an excellent idea." Bebe sighed in amazement as well.

"Excellent my ass." Dunnington stroked his beard. "If Forhan truly hadn't been the traitor, then I, Dunnington, would have suffered a blow to my reputation."

"Stop worrying." Beirut began to laugh. "Your reputation wouldn't have suffered anything. Even if you publicly acknowledged that you were unable to hypnotize Forhan, others would just think that this innate ability of the Azure Dragon clan is incredible. They wouldn't think that you are weak."

Dunnington raised his eyebrows, laughing.

His power was something that was publicly acknowledged, after countless shocking, world-shaking battles. The number one expert of the Chaotic Sea, aside from the Sovereign. Who would dare belittle him?

"Linley, Bebe." Beirut suddenly said. "After this affair, although the Grand Elder has nothing to say for herself, in her heart, she certainly is unhappy. I think you'd best leave the Skyrise Mountains and come to my place."

Leave the Skyrise Mountains? Linley couldn't help but turn and look at Delia.

"Excellent!" Bebe said jubilantly. "The Skyrise Mountains are rather boring. I haven't even gone to Grandpa's prefectural manor. I want to go and have some fun."

"Delia, what do you think?" Linley looked towards Delia as he spoke to her through divine sense.

Delia looked at Wade, nestled in her arms, then replied through divine sense, "Wade is still young. It's best not to make him tired by running all over the place. When Wade can take care of himself, we can go out wandering again."

"Right." Linley nodded. After their discussion through divine sense, Linley had come to his decision.

"Boss, wanna go?" Bebe immediately asked through divine sense.

Linley laughed, then shook his head. "Lord Prefect, Bebe, I won't go for now. Wade is still young...and with Delia and myself living in the gorge with the other members of the Yulan branch, life is still fairly comfortable. As for what the Grand Elder will do...I won't go to Bloodbath Gorge. Even if she isn't happy, what can she do?"

"Fine, then I won't pressure you to come." Beirut laughed calmly and nodded.

"Alas." Bebe let out a sad sigh. "Boss, you accompany Delia and your son, then. I'll head there for now."

Linley laughed and nodded. He could tell that although Bebe had always stayed here with him, Bebe's heart wasn't here. "Most likely, Bebe is still missing Ninny." Linley sighed to himself. "However, Nisse is in the Jedefloat Continent."

That very night, Beirut, Dunnington, Phusro, and Bebe all left the Skyrise Mountains. The four clan leaders of the Four Divine Beasts clan as well as a large group of other people came to send them off. Afterwards, Linley's life returned to a rare calm.

Linley spent the calm days accompanying his wife, his son, and training.

In the blink of an eye, three years passed.

Linley was currently in his room, reading a book, while his four divine clones were all in the midst of training.

"Father, the snow is so thick. Quick, come look!"

Suddenly, a bright, clear voice rang out in the room. Hearing it, Linley couldn't help but grin as he stood up, walking towards the outside. A youthful, tender-looking lad was outside, grabbing fistfuls of snow, while Delia was there playing with him.

"Father, look. That's the snowman that I made." Wade, seeing Linley come out, immediately ran over while calling out to him.

As Wade ran over, he leapt off the ground, giving Linley a flying hug. "Father, the snowman is over there. Look." Wade's little face was tender and ruddy, so soft, it seemed as though one would be able to squeeze water out of his face with a pinch.

Linley liked Wade very much.

By contrast, when he had been in the Yulan continent, Linley had always been training when Sasha and Taylor had been growing up. He hadn't spent any time with his children.

"Oh, Wade. This is the snowman you made?" Linley turned to look. The snowman was just a pair of snowballs, one large, one small, with a few gems serving as the eyes and nose. There were actually a total of three snowmen; two large ones and one smaller one.

"Right." Wade nodded solemnly, as though this were a weighty matter. "Father, look. That one is you. That one is Mother. That one is me."

Hearing this, Linley couldn't help but start to laugh.

"Wade, stop hanging on to your father. Come down." Delia said.

"Oh." Wade obediently let go of Linley and fell down, but the ground was slick. As he landed, he slipped and fell, and Delia couldn't help but immediately go help him back up.

Linley chuckled, then casually, leisurely began to walk forward on the snowy ground. With each step, he left a footprint behind. The snow had come to a halt long ago, but the snow on the ground was fairly thick. Everything within his field of vision had turned a silvery white color.

"Father, Father." Wade's call rang out from behind.

Linley turned to look, but as he did, he saw out of the corner of his eyes his own footprint. He had left a deep impression in the snow, but a hint of green grass was still forcing its way out from within it. In that instant, when Linley saw that hint of green...

And when he heard his son calling from afar, 'Father, Father!'

Linley's mind suddenly swept through the various events of recent years, from Delia's life-threatening crisis to his own despair, then his escape from that despair, followed by last few years of calm, blissful life.

"BOOM!"

A green spot of light suddenly sprang into existence within Linley's mind, and in the next instant, it transformed into a green sun, illuminating his entire mind.

Book 17, Indigo Prefecture – Chapter 56, Vitality

Delia was by Wade's side, but she noticed that Linley wasn't moving at all. Even his eyes had closed. "What's going on with Linley? Can it be..." Seeing Linley in such a state, Delia naturally would suspect...

That he had gained a sudden insight and broken through!

This was indeed the case. At this moment, Linley finally moved through the initial threshold of gaining a basic understanding of the Profound Mysteries of Vitality. Training in a profound mystery always had two major barriers; the first was the initial threshold, while the other was the bottleneck before mastery. Although there might be some difficulties encountered while training, as long as one persevered, one would be able to overcome them.

But that initial threshold as well as the bottleneck before mastery couldn't just be overcome through effort. It required talent, luck, and that instant of sudden enlightenment.

Once that moment of sudden enlightenment came, the speed at which one gained understanding would be astonishingly fast, allowing one to advance very rapidly. However, moments later, the speed at which Linley gained comprehension began to slow down. After all, that moment of insight only allowed a person to gain a portion of understanding. The rest required training.

Linley opened his eyes, and as he did, he saw Delia.

"You made a breakthrough?" Delia said softly.

Linley laughed and nodded. "I've finally passed the initial threshold for understanding the Profound Mysteries of Vitality...and indeed, understanding this profound mystery isn't an easy task. I had to experience many things first, and have my entire mentality change...only after all of these things was I able to grasp that sudden moment of spiritual awakening and enlightenment."

Delia couldn't help but reveal a smile on her face.

"Linley, didn't you say that after becoming a Highgod, it would become much harder to fuse profound mysteries?" Delia couldn't help but ask.

When fusing profound mysteries, the difficulty level was lessened if one fused the mysteries while gaining insights to them. This was much like how if a large tree was crooked when it was young, if it kept on growing crookedly until it reached maturity, it would naturally become a crooked tree. But if you were to have a straight tree begin to grow crooked only after it reached maturity, it would be hard.

"Fusing is far more difficult than gaining initial insights into a profound mystery." Linley shook his head. "Otherwise, there wouldn't be so few Paragons, despite the passage of countless years."

"The further one advances, the harder fusing becomes." Linley sighed. "Look at me. It took me less than a thousand years to fuse three profound mysteries, but to fuse the fourth...although six centuries have passed, I have still only been able to fuse the Profound Mysteries of Strength with the Throbbing Pulse of the World. I haven't been able to improve at all."

He hadn't made any improvements; was he supposed to just keep on wasting time?

Based on the historical pace of advancement by other people, even the greatest of geniuses would find it virtually impossible to fuse a fourth profound mystery in under ten thousand years.

"In addition, once I become a Highgod, my power will increase tenfold." Linley said confidently. "By then, even if I encounter an Asura, I will at least be able to stay alive."

When his soul was improved to the Highgod level, he would be able to absorb more amethysts and reach a new peak.

In addition, Linley's 'Blackstone Space' had previously used God-level divine earth power. Once he became a Highgod, he would be able to use Highgod-level divine earth power to execute it. The power of his Blackstone Space would therefore rise once again!

When Purgatory Commander Resigem set up his Gravitational Space, he used Highgod-level divine earth power.

Once Linley became a Highgod, the 'Spiritual Chaos' component of his Blackstone Space would also become more than ten times stronger! The gravitational pull would also rise to a terrifying new level. By then, even Seven Star Fiends would find it hard to move freely within the Blackstone Space.

By then...

Linley's Blackstone Space wouldn't be too far off from Purgatory Commander Reisgem's.

"In addition, only after becoming a Highgod will I have any hope of being able to repair the Coiling Dragon ring." Linley sighed. "Although spiritual energy can be used to repair it, this is a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact, after all. My current spiritual energy is too weak. Once I become a Highgod, I can rely on amethysts to strengthen my soul to the limits of spiritual strength for a Highgod. Even if I'm not able to completely repair it, I can still make it so that it recovers a portion of its power."

If one was too greedy, one would be like a python who attempted to swallow an elephant. The consequences would be obvious.

At present, as soon as Linley broke through to become a Highgod, his strength would become terrifying. Thus, it was best for him to become a Highgod as quickly as possible.

Time flowed on like water, advancing silently and soundlessly. Linley quietly trained within the gorge, slowly advancing step by step. As for Wade, he grew up and became an adult as well. When the hundred year event came, Wade went to undergo the Ancestral Baptism and became a water-type Deity.

"Wade's power is too weak. In the Infernal Realm, a Demigod's power is absolutely insufficient for roaming about." Although Linley wanted Wade to experience some hurdles and hardships, he didn't wish for Wade to throw his life away.

Wade normally remained within the Skyrite Mountains, sparring with the other Deities.

More than a century had passed since Forhan had been killed. However, the higher level members of the Four Divine Beasts clan felt tremendous pressure! This was because the enemy eight great clans had become more and more savage, while the Four Divine Beasts clan had lost too many Elders.

The residence of Patriarch Gislason.

"Patriarch!" Garvey said frantically. "We can't let this continue. If this continues for another millennium, our Azure Dragon clan will probably not have Seven Star Fiends left!"

Gislason's back was turned towards him, and he was silent.

"Patriarch." Garvey called out frantically.

"Then you tell me. What should we do?" Gislason said in a low voice.

Garvey hesitated slightly, then gritted his teeth. "Patriarch, order all of our forces to be withdrawn. Forget about those forces of the eight great clans and their arrogant patrols...we should just stay quietly within the Skyrite Mountains and build up our strength!"

Gislason was silent.

In the past, how glorious had the Four Divine Beasts clan been? Their fame had spread throughout all the Higher Planes and Divine Planes. Not a single clan dared to underestimate them, and the lives of the clan leaders of ordinary clans wasn't worth as much as the lives of ordinary members of the Four Divine Beasts clan.

The glory of the clan was utterly inviolable.

For countless years, although the descendants of the Four Divine Beasts clan might die, they had never lowered their heads. This was because these descendants all understood that even if they died, the clan would avenge them! The descendants of the Four Divine Beasts clan were proud and arrogant!

"Let our Four Divine Beasts clan lower our heads? Hide like turtles within the Skyrite Mountains and not go out?" Gislason said in a low voice. "Garvey, do you know what people will say about us in the outside world? They will say...that our Four Divine Beasts clan was beaten so badly by the eight great clans that we are hiding like turtles, afraid to show ourselves. That we are a pack of cowards! I am absolutely certain that this is how the eight great clans will spin the story, and that they will spread this news throughout the Infernal Realm, as well as the rest of the Four Higher Planes!"

To ordinary people, Gislason's line of thought was laughable.

That was because ordinary people had never reached the heights that Gislason had. Even in material planes, ordinary people would be willing to sacrifice their lives for the glory of their clan, much less Deities who possessed eternal life. To them, the glory of their clan was even more important!

"Garvey, you can go back for now." Gislason sighed.

"Patriarch." Garvey couldn't help but feel frantic.

"I told you to leave!"

Gislason growled. Stunned, Garvey had no choice but to leave, resigned. In the hall, the only remaining person was Gislason. His entire face was furrowed with wrinkles as he frowned, his heart filled with frustration.

He had never imagined that the incomparably firm mountains behind their clan, the ancestors, would all die.

With the ancestors dead, all the pressure now came crashing down upon the clan.

Within the gorge.

Linley, Delia, and Wade were eating together. But of course, Wade was now a handsome young man, slightly taller than even Linley, albeit somewhat thinner.

"Linley!" A voice suddenly rang out.

Linley raised his head and saw Garvey's figure appear in mid-air, then descend. Seeing Linley's family happily eating, Garvey let out a sigh..
"Linley, your life really is carefree and worry-less."

"Sit." Linley pointed in front of him. "What, are you feeling frustrated over the clan's matters?"

"Right!" Garvey sat down.

"Uncle Garvey." Wade called out.

Garvey laughed and nodded. "Time moves so very fast. Linley, I still remember how, over a century ago, you held Wade and Delia and hurried back. That really was a major event."

Laughing, Linley nodded. "Right, Gravey. What happened within the clan?"

Upon hearing this subject, Garvey said bitterly, "Just today, yet another Elder of our clan lost his most powerful clone! Currently...our Azure Dragon clan, including you, Linley, only has seventeen Elders who truly possess the power of a Seven Star Fiend."

"Seventeen?" Linley was stunned.

He still remembered how when he had accepted the position of Elder, the clan had more than thirty Elders. But now, only seventeen remained.

"After I learned this, I thought for a long time, then went to find the Patriarch. I advised the Patriarch that he should order the Elders to no longer go out and do battle, and that we should all return to the Skyrite Mountains." Garvey clearly felt very miserable for having given this advice.

After all, he too valued the glory of the clan, did he not?

"What did the Patriarch say?" Linley asked.

"He didn't agree." Garvey raised his head, gulping down a cup of wine. "Every ten years, sometimes every few years, our Four Divine Beasts clan loses yet another Elder. If this continues, in a few centuries, how many Elders will our Four Divine Beasts clan have left?"

Linley felt resigned as well.

In this sort of clan war, the strength of any individual was simply insufficient.

"Enough of that. Come, drink." Garvey raised his cup.

"Drink." Linley responded.

Delia and Wade left the table shortly, leaving behind Linley and Garvey to chat and drink wine.

"Eh?" Linley raised his head, a hint of a smile on his lips. "He's finally back."

"Boss!" A figure descended from the skies, wearing a straw hat on his head. It was Bebe. Ever since he had left with Beirut, Bebe hadn't returned a single time in the past hundred-plus years.

Linley rose to his feet.

"Boss, I missed you to death." Bebe rushed forward, giving Linley a bearhug.

Linley and Bebe were as close as real siblings. After not having seen Bebe for so long, he naturally felt extremely happy.

"Bebe, long time no see." Garvey greeted as well. After that affair nearly a century ago, all the Elders of the Skyrise Mountains had learned that Bebe was the grandson of the Lord Prefect of Indigo Prefecture.

"Elder Garvey." Bebe greeted as well.

"What have you been doing for the past century?" Linley laughed as he spoke. Bebe rubbed his nose, then laughed smugly, "In the past century, I've roamed the entire Indigo Prefecture and visited many secret locations. Indigo Prefecture really is large. In the past hundred-plus years, I've only managed to visit some of the more important areas."

"Oh, so why didn't you continue touring?" Linley said.

Bebe pursed his lips, saying in an unruly manner, "I got bored. Didn't want to continue." But although he was acting in a seemingly unrestrained manner, Linley could sense a desolate aura.

At this moment, Delia and Wade hurriedly walked over from afar. Delia laughed and said from far away, "Bebe, it's been so long since you left. Look at this fellow next to me. Do you know him?"

"The fellow next to you?" Bebe was stunned.

"Wade." Delia laughed. "Remember now?"

"Ah?! That little fellow?!" Bebe immediately began to laugh.

Linley watched as Bebe immediately begin to chat warmly with Wade, but could still sense that within Bebe's heart...

"Bebe's too lonely! Once the affairs of the clan have been resolved, I'll immediately accompany Bebe on a trip to the Jedefloat Continent. Let's go find Ninny."

The Infernal Realm. The Jedefloat Continent. Jingan Prefecture. The city of Bayfay [Bei'fei].

The streets of Bayfay City. A man and a woman were walking side by side.

"Ninny, I've come out for the express purpose on a stroll with you. Smile, won't you?" The man and woman were Salomon and his little sister, 'Nisse'. Ever since that event at the volcano range, Nisse had believed Bebe to be dead, having perished after diving into that golden magma pool.

Bebe's death had come as a tremendous blow to Nisse.

It had also caused her attitude towards her elder brother to change.

"Alright." Nisse just responded with a single word of acknowledgement.

A passerby on the street was chatting with another person.

"That scryer recording really was exciting. It's been so many years since I've seen supreme experts like that do battle. Wow. There were actually more than ten Seven Star Fiends, and six of them used Sovereign's Might. And that Azure Dragon clan's Elder named Linley, he killed five Seven Star Fiends by himself. Too terrifying!"

That year, when Linley had suffered an attack from those eight Elders, many people had recorded scryer recordings of the battle. The recordings of such an enormous battle very naturally spread very widely. Since Linley's name had been verified, it also spread with the battle.

In the past hundred years, it had finally spread from the Bloodridge Continent to the Jedefloat Continent.

Hearing this conversation, both Salomon and Nisse were stunned.

“Linley?” Nisse was stunned. She had always believed that Linley and Bebe had both died. “Someone of the same name?”

“Linley? Six people who used Sovereign’s Might?” Salomon was stunned as well.

Book 17, Indigo Prefecture – Chapter 57, Dangerous

The contents of that conversation had simply been too stunning. More than ten Seven Star Fiends in a single battle, six of whom had used Sovereign's Might? This sort of group battle between supreme experts was simply too rare. Even if they occurred, scryer recordings of such battles would rarely spread out.

"How could it be Linley?" Salomon was completely stunned.

But from the contents of that conversation, Salomon had learned that the 'Linley' these people were discussing as a member of the Azure Dragon clan. The Linley which he knew was also a member of the Azure Dragon clan! "Can it really be him?" Salomon didn't dare believe it. "He was just a God. How could he kill five Seven Star Fiends? No way. No way!!!"

A single person, kill five Seven Star Fiends? This sort of accomplishment was simply too terrifying.

As Salomon viewed it, no matter how powerful Linley was, there was no way he could've reached such a level.

"Big Bro, did you hear that? They said 'Linley'!" Nisse turned to look at her elder brother, Salomon. Her eyes were filled with disbelief. At the same time, a hint of hope appeared in her heart...

She had believed that both Linley and Bebe had died.

But Linley was alive. Bebe, perhaps, was still alive as well! When she thought of the possibility that Bebe was alive, her heart, dormant for a thousand-plus years, began to come to life again.

"They might just be two people of the same name." Salomon chuckled, intentionally saying disdainfully, "You know how strong our Linley was. He was just a God. It would be hard for him to face even an ordinary Highgod. Kill five Seven Star Fiends by himself? Do you believe it?"

Nisse was stunned.

"Alright. Don't pay any attention to the idle chatter. Most likely, it's just a supreme expert who also shares the name Linley." Salomon laughed calmly. "Let's go. We're shopping for clothes today. Pick whatever you like."

Salomon didn't want Nisse to go look at the scryer recordings. It wasn't an issue if it wasn't Linley, but if it really was Linley...given Nisse's temperament, she would definitely immediately go look for Bebe. That would be terrible.

"Let's go look at scryer recordings." Nisse said.

Salomon shook his head. "Why look at scryer recordings? What? Do you think Linley is still alive?"

"I don't know...but regardless of whether or not it is the Linley we know, a scryer recording of a battle including more than ten Seven Star Fiends is worth watching, no matter what." Nisse turned and immediately walked away.

Salomon had no choice but to follow, and he secretly consoled himself, "That Linley died long ago. And he was very weak! This supreme expert, in turn, is very strong. It definitely isn't him. It has to just be someone with the same name!" Salomon had unjustly accused Linley in the past. Naturally, he didn't want to see Linley grow strong.

There were three locations in Bayfay City that were dedicated to viewing scryer recordings.

Large groups of people were gathered in front of the gates of all three locations today, all of them handing over strips of inkstone and azurite to go in and watch the scryer recordings. By the time Salomon and Nisse arrived, they were shocked by how many people were present.

At the same time, those who had finished watching the scryer recordings were coming out from a side door.

"Truly astonishing. That Azure Dragon Elder was simply too terrifying!"

"Right. That azure prison of the Azure Dragon Elder appeared, and when it vanished, all of the enemy Elders were dead!"

Listening to this discussion, Salomon and Nisse felt all the more curious. They immediately handed over the entrance fee of a hundred inkstones and entered. There were six halls for viewing scryer recordings.

"Go to hall number five. The last viewing just completed, and will start anew soon."

Salomon and Ninny both entered the fifth hall, looking for places to sit. The number of people within the fifth hall rose rapidly, but Nisse just stared at the front of the hall, her body trembling slightly.

"Ninny, relax." Salomon said consolingly. "Don't have too much hope."

But Ninny didn't say a single word.

Suddenly....

A large amount of water-type elemental essence coalesced in the front of the hall in mid-air, transforming into a recording. At the same time, a voice rang out. "Everyone, this battle occurred in Indigo Prefecture, at the Bloodridge Continent, in a mountain forest that was a few thousand kilometers outside of Meer City.

Everyone in the hall fell silent.

The explanatory voice continued, "These battling experts are eleven Seven Star Fiends! Based on my calculations, in Indigo Prefecture, only the Four Divine Beasts clan and the eight great clans have such a high number of experts. The two just so happen to be in a state of war...and now, everyone, please watch. When the scryer recording started, a Seven Star Fiend had already died, and his corpse is on the ground, still emanating the aura of Sovereign's Might. Everyone, if you look carefully, you can see it.

After speaking, the recording in the front of the main hall began to play.

Everyone in the hall went silent. Ninny and Salomon held their breaths as well.

Within the enormous scryer recording, one battle scene after another appeared; these were the scenes of Phusro and Tewila battling their enemies. However, just by watching these two battles, the people watching this recording for the first time were already stunned.

Their bodies were all covered with light, and with each punch and kick, space itself split open.

"Three of these four are using Sovereign's Might!" Salomon was stunned.

"Where is Linley?" Nisse was searching desperately. "And Bebe?"

However, at present, the scryer recording was primarily focusing on these two battles. At the same time, the scryer recording also recorded gray-robed corpse that lay on the ground, also emanating that aura. It was the Seven Star Fiend who had been killed by Phusro at the very beginning.

And then...

The scryer recording switched the point of view to the ground. The ground was roiling like the waves of the sea. Moments later, the ground suddenly exploded, and someone suddenly charged to the skies, blood matting his scales...but Nisse and Salomon were both shocked.

Those ferocious spikes, that tail, those dark golden eyes...they were so familiar!

Afterwards, five Seven Star Fiends pursued and attacked Linley. Linley's body was emanating that blue light; it was water-type Sovereign's Might. As for the five Seven Star Fiends behind him, one of them was emanating a black aura.

"It is Linley!" Nisse felt excited in her heart.

"This..." Salomon was stunned as well.

They had both seen Linley's Dragonform.

"Big Bro, it's Linley, it's Linley." Nisse could no longer suppress her excitement, and her divine sense reached out again and again to Salomon. "It's definitely him. There's no mistake."

"Nisse, that's not necessarily the case." Salomon tried to equivocate through divine sense. "The Azure Dragon clan has many people, and their Dragonform appearances are all quite similar. In addition, in a thousand years, do you think Linley would become so powerful? It's impossible."

Nisse was stunned. Could it be true that there was someone with a Dragonform similar to Linley's?

Nisse didn't know too much about the Four Divine Beasts clan, and didn't understand how unique Linley's Dragonform was.

And then, Salomon and Nisse continued to watch. In the scryer recording, Linley began to go insane, actually using his spiked forehead to batter a Seven Star Fiend to death. The other four remaining Seven Star Fiends wanted to flee, but they were all trapped within that massive blue cube.

After the blue cube vanished, the four Seven Star Fiends were dead as well.

The scryer recording was focused on Linley now, and after killing those four Seven Star Fiends, Linley actually flew to the ground. The recording showed how Linley knelt down by the side of a woman who was lying on the ground.

The recording clearly captured the image of that woman's appearance.

"Delia!!!" Nisse's eyes instantly turned round.

"It is Delia!" Salomon was stunned as well.

And then, in the scryer recording, Linley returned to his human form, clutching his infant child by his wife's side. Phusro and Bebe walked over as well, also entering the recording zone.

"Linley, Bebe!!!" Nisse instantly felt so overjoyed that her head went numb.

Linley, Delia, and Bebe; the three of them were all within the recording range.

There was no question about it! This mighty Azure Dragon clan Elder was that Linley which they had met.

"How can this be? How is this possible?" Salomon didn't dare to believe it, but the truth was plainly visible for anyone to see.

"Big Bro, it really is them. It really is them. They didn't die, didn't die!" Nisse excitedly sent through divine sense. The scryer recording was almost over now. Linley took Delia in his arms while Phusro held the infant, and the two flew away side by side.

The scryer recording ended!

"That Azure Dragon clan Elder, based on the descriptions of the person who made this scryer recording, is named Linley. The woman on the ground should be a family member of Elder Linley's. That woman died, which is why Elder Linley was so grief-stricken."

Salomon and Nisse walked out to the street. Nisse's face was filled with irrepressible excitement.

"Big Bro, they didn't die, they really didn't die." In the past thousand years, Nisse had never been as happy as she was now. "Bebe is still alive. Still alive!"

"Right. This is good news." Salomon responded.

But Salomon's mind was currently in a state of chaos. Originally, he had mistakenly believed that Linley had exposed his secret, and thus in his rage had wanted to kill Linley. Afterwards, Linley and his wife had both plunged into that golden magma pool. But who would have imagined...

That Linley not only was still alive, he had become so very powerful!

"But what happened to Delia?" Nisse said, rather worried. "Did Delia die in that scryer recording?" Nisse still clearly remembered how, in the scryer recording, Linley had let out that howl of grief and rage by Delia's side.

Although Nisse couldn't actually hear any sound, she could already sense his agonizing grief just from watching.

"Big Bro!" Nisse suddenly said.

"Eh?" Salomon looked towards her. Nisse looked at Salomon. Determinedly, she said, "Big Bro, I have decided...I am going to the Indigo Prefecture of the Bloodridge Continent!"

"Nonsense." Salomon couldn't help but grow impatient. This was exactly what he feared. "Ninny, going from the Jadedfloat Continent to the Bloodridge Continent is no joke. How would you, a God, make it there? It is too dangerous. Unacceptable. Completely unacceptable!"

Nisse just glanced at her elder brother, not saying another word. She had already made up her mind. She was just letting her elder brother know of her decision.

Seeing the look on his little sister's face, Salomon grew frantic.

"Ninny, you are too weak, and to go from the Jedefloat Continent to the Bloodrige Continent, you have to pass through the sea...the trip truly is too dangerous." Salomon said frantically.

"It's pointless for you to say anything." Nisse wasn't going to listen to her elder brother this time.

Salomon, seeing how his sister was acting, felt helpless in his heart. They were within the city, and within the city, there was no way he could possibly act to imprison his little sister. If his little sister truly wanted to go, there was nothing he could do about it at all.

"Ninny, are you really going to make me worry about you like this??" Salomon said, worried. "How about this. Train to the Highgod level, then go!"

Nisse glanced at him, not saying anything.

Nisse had already made up her mind, and there was nothing Salomon could do about it. Although Salomon kept a careful watch on her after the day they viewed the scryer recording...the next month, Nisse left.

Within his room.

Salomon stared at a piece of paper. It was a letter which Nisse had left him.

"Alas!" Salomon threw the paper to the table hatefully. "The journey from the Jedefloat Continent to the Bloodridge Continent will be so dangerous...why won't Ninny listen?"

Salomon was frantic, but there was nothing he could do. He didn't even know where Nisse had gone.

As he thought of this, Salomon couldn't help but somewhat blame Linley. It was because he had wrongly accused Linley and Bebe that the relationship between himself and Nisse had fractured, and he rarely would be able to see her smile these days. And now, this time...she left on her own.

"How is it that Linley didn't die, and instead became so powerful?" Salomon couldn't understand it either. How had Linley risen to such a level?

At the same time that Nisse departed from Jingan Prefecture, Linley and Bebe, in the distant Indigo Prefecture of the Bloodridge Continent, were living peaceful lives in the Skyrise Mountains. In the blink of an eye, a few decades passed.

"Linley!" A deep voice rang out.

"Father, Father!" Wade called out. "The Second Elder is looking for you."

Linley walked out from within his room. From the corner of his eye, he saw that in the distant, the Second Elder was walking over with a very complicated expression on his face. "Linley, come. Our Four Divine Beasts clan is about to hold a joint Conclave of Elders."

"Now?" Linley was rather surprised. "It hasn't been a thousand years yet. In addition, the four Divine Beast clans, hold a joint Conclave?"

"Right! It will be in Bloodbath Gorge, at the Palace of the Four Divine Beasts." The Second Elder sighed. "This time, the reason why all the Elders are being summoned is to discuss what our Four Divine Beasts clan should do with respect to the eight great clans."

Linley's heart trembled. "It seems though the clan is finally unable to keep fighting like this!"

Book 17, Indigo Prefecture – Chapter 58, Unwillingness

The Skyrite Mountains. Bloodbath Gorge. The Palace of the Four Divine Beasts.

When Linley entered alongside the Second Elder into the palace, he saw that quite a few people had already arrived. Linley swept them with his gaze. "Including me, a total of forty two Elders!" But of course, as time passed, more Elders entered, one by one.

"Linley." Elder Garvey had a good personal relationship with Linley, and so he walked over. "The clan leaders are finally willing to lower their heads."

Linley was stunned. "Garvey. Are you saying...?"

Garvey let out a low sigh. "Last month, our Four Divine Beasts clan suffered yet another severe setback. The clan leaders primarily aren't able to endure it any longer either. Thus, they organized this Conclave. Or perhaps the clan leaders are also irresolute and so they wish the Elders to come discuss it. If the Elders agree, then..."

Linley understood as well.

Once the Conclave concluded, most likely the Four Divine Beasts clan would choose to turtle up within the Skyrite Mountains, no longer leaving. Although by doing so, the Four Divine Beasts clan would be able to preserve its strength, the reputation of the clan, built up over countless years, would suffer a huge blow.

To the many clansmen, the honor of the clan was more important than life itself. This was a hard choice for the four clan leaders to make.

"We suffered a severe setback last month? What happened?" Linley hurriedly asked.

"You never pay attention to anything!" Garvey shook his head. "A month ago, our Four Divine Beasts clan lost another three Elders. One of the Elders belonged to our Azure Dragon clan. Factoring in the last event twenty years ago...our Azure Dragon clan has only fifteen Elders who truly possess the power of Seven Star Fiends.

Linley's heart couldn't help but clench in worry.

"Rumble..." The main door to the palace slowly slid closed.

Linley couldn't help but feel startled. Garvey said in a low voice, "The Elders are all here. Soon, the four clan leaders will arrive." Linley took a careful look about. In the hall, there were a total of fifty three Elders, including the Grand Elder.

From a side room, four figures walked out in a line, sitting down together at the front of the palace. It was Gislason and the other clan leaders.

The entire hall immediately fell silent for a time.

Gislason and the other three clan leaders swept everyone with their gaze, then looked at each other. In the end, it was Gislason who spoke. His deep, rumbling voice echoed in the hall. "Everyone, today, we have invited all of you over. I trust that all of you have already guessed what the purpose of this meeting is!"

As soon as these words came out, everyone felt misery in their hearts, and even Linley felt a surge of grief.

They no longer had the strength to save the situation!

"Ever since our four ancestors died, our Four Divine Beasts clan has suffered one heavy setback after another. Fortunately, thanks to the assistance of the Lord Prefect of Indigo Prefecture, we were able to find out footing here in the Skyrite Mountains. Otherwise, our Four Divine Beasts clan would most likely have been turned into ash and disappeared like smoke, more than ten thousand years ago.

The palace was completely silent.

"Over the past ten thousand years, the Elders of our Four Divine Beasts clan have all fought fearlessly against the enemy for the sake of the glory of the clan. Ten thousand years ago, our Four Divine Beasts clan had a total of over two hundred Elders! But today, we only have fifty three remaining! It has only been ten thousand short years, but we've lost nearly two hundred Elders! Two hundred!!!" A moist light flashed in Gislason's eyes.

The Elders below, thinking back to the other Elders who had perished over these years, all felt grief in their hearts.

Linley, as well, thought of the various members of his own Squad Thirteen who had died, as well as the forlorn image of Elder Arhaus, who had lost his most powerful clone.

For the sake of the clan, far too many Elders had sacrificed their most powerful divine clones. They had previously been Seven Star Fiends, lofty and mighty individuals. But after having lost their most powerful divine clones, they were now perhaps just ordinary Highgods.

"All these years, the other three clan leaders and I have been pondering...how long will we hold out for?" Gislason's voice was hoarse. "Especially in the past few centuries. The eight great clans seem to have gone insane. They want to kill our Elders at all cost, even if they have to die with us. According to this current rate, in another few years, our Four Divine Beasts clan will most likely not have many Elders left."

The Vermillion Bird Matriarch spoke out as well. "Right. One month ago in particular, we lost another three Elders! We four clan leaders have discussed this carefully...if this continues, we will only be able to endure for a few more centuries at most."

The White Tiger Patriarch spoke out in a cold voice. "Since even if we continue to hold out, the only result will be that everyone will die, what's the point?"

The Black Tortoise Patriarch rumbled, "This is why we wish to make sure that at least some of our elites will survive. After all, it isn't so easy for someone to become a Seven Star Fiend and an Elder."

Gislason said in a strong, forceful voice, "And so, we four clan leaders are united in agreement that we are to no longer fight against the eight great clans...all of the members of the clan are to enter the Skyrise Mountains. We will build up our strength!"

The Elders below were all stunned.

They had thought that the clan leaders would let them discuss this matter and vote on it, but who would have thought that this came as a simple declaration?

"Patriarch!"

"Matriarch!"

Instantly, quite a few Elders grew frantic.

"Patriarch!" A rushed voice rang out, and a youth with silver hair and a callous-looking face raised his head towards the four clan leaders. He frantically said, "Are we supposed to just surrender, just like that? Just admit defeat?"

Linley glanced at this silver-haired, callous-looking youth. It was the 'Genius Elder' of the Azure Dragon clan, Elder Blue.

"You can consider it as us admitting defeat!" Gislason no longer had the imposing, majestic aura that he previously always had.

"Blue." The Vermillion Bird Matriarch looked down at him. "Even if we continue to fight, how much longer will the forces of our Four Divine Beasts clan be able to hold out for? Can it be that you want the remaining, final fifty three Elders of the clan to also be lost?"

Blue's gaze was unyielding.

"Four clan leaders!" Blue raised his head slightly. "I, Blue, have submitted and surrendered to others, but that was because I was too weak. Ever since I became a Seven Star Fiend, I have never surrendered to anyone. The eight great clans are worthless! When our Four Divine Beasts clan was in the height of our power, they didn't dare to oppose us in the slightest. But now? Hmph. Have me, Blue, surrender to them? Never!"

"Blue!" Gislason felt heartsick.

In their hearts, they not only hated the eight great clans, they also looked down on them. For them to surrender...they naturally didn't wish to, given their pride. But Gislason and the other three were acting in the best interests of the clan.

"Patriarch, I understand that this is a hard decision for you. But I am just a single person. I am willing to go out and do battle...and to die on the field of war! After I die, the Infernal Realm will no longer have the Seven Star Fiend Blue, only the ordinary Highgod Blue. By that time, even if I want to do battle, I wouldn't have the ability to." Blue laughed softly as he spoke.

Linley, hearing this, couldn't help but tremble.

At this moment, a black-haired Elder stood out and said in a somber voice, "Patriarch, for our clan to flourish again, what we need is a supreme expert like Beirut or Dunnington. I know that I have no more hopes for improving...I hope that you will let me go die in battle, Patriarch! Even if we lose, I refuse to let those eight great clans get off lightly."

"Patriarch, in my life, I've given many things a try, but lowering my head? Never! Not even in death!" Yet another Elder stood up.

"Matriarch..."

Linley watched this scene quietly. Although to ordinary people, these Elders might appear to be too rigid and inflexible, Linley understood... these Elders had lived for countless hundreds of millions of years.

They weren't afraid to sacrifice themselves, but they cared deeply about certain beliefs and values which they held.

Fifty three Elders. Amongst them, there were more than twenty who were willing to sacrifice their most powerful divine clones, just for the sake of making the enemies suffer. The other Elders were silent, but Linley knew that so long as the clan leaders gave the order, they wouldn't hesitate in the slightest.

"Linley!" Suddenly, a voice rang out.

Linley was stunned.

The Grand Elder was looking at him, her eyes filled with panic. "Linley, you are on very close terms with the Lord Prefect. Can't you just...discard your pride and go beg the Lord Prefect for him to help us? Given the Lord Prefect's power, he is more than strong enough to force the eight great clans away. Linley, go beg him...for the sake of the clan, go beg him, just this once!"

Quite a few Elders immediately looked towards Linley.

Just now, these Elders had been in a state of despair, and many of them had been willing to throw away their most powerful divine clones in an attempt at vengeance. Even if their clan was submitting, they would make the eight great clans suffer. But hearing the words of the Grand Elder...

It seemed as though they had one last straw to clutch at for survival!

"I..." Linley didn't know how to respond.

"Little Sis." Gislason, seated at the front of the hall, let out a deep shout. "Having Linley do this would just make the Lord Prefect feel awkward. The Lord Prefect has already done many things for our Four Divine Beasts clan, and he has never asked for anything in return. You actually want the Lord Prefect to intervene yet again? Can it be that you think the Lord Prefect has an obligation to help us?"

The Grand Elder couldn't help but fall silent.

"We're able to preserve the clan, and it won't be destroyed. We should know when to be content with what we have." Gislason let out a sigh.

The Elders below all fell silent.

"Elders, I am unable to forcibly prevent any of you from deciding whether or not you wish to go do battle with the enemy. I just want to say...let the clan preserve a bit of power." Gislason rose after speaking, then looked towards Linley. "Linley, no matter what, don't go beg the Lord Prefect."

Linley couldn't help but raise his head and look towards Gislason.

"I know what sort of temper the Lord Prefect has. If we go too far and anger him by our actions...he doesn't even need to personally do anything. All he needs to do is to stop caring about our Four Divine Beasts clan and allow those eight great clans to freely attack us. That... would be disastrous!"

Quite a few Elders seated below, upon hearing those words, felt their hearts tremble.

Whether or not to surrender and submit, that was a question of the clan's honor and glory.

But angering the Lord Prefect...that was a question of the clan's survival. If the entire Four Divine Beasts clan was eradicated, there would no longer even be a question of honor or glory.

Ever since that decision was made, the Four Divine Beasts clan no longer openly battled against the eight great clans. Even though the forces of the eight great clans continued on their predetermined patrol routes and acted provocatively, they were ignored.

The clan only needed to preserve its strength.

But although this was the order of the clan, there were still quite a few Elders who weren't willing to accept it. They chose to go out to fight, causing the battles with the eight great clans to rise to a new crescendo... and the eight great clans, seeing that the Four Divine Beasts clansmen dared to act so brashly, couldn't help but feel enraged and send even more people out.

A wild, savage, brutal war!

The most eye-catching of them all was the Genius Elder, Blue. Elder Blue travelled by himself, and he actually managed to kill eight enemy Elders. Afterwards, the eight great clans were enraged, and they actually sent out one of their Patriarchs, along with multiple experts.

In that battle...

Elder Blue's most powerful divine clone...died!

Elder Blue, in those ten short years, accomplished the feat of killing nine enemy Elders.

But of course, although some did well, others did poorly. Other Elders went out to do battle as well, but some Elders weren't able to kill anyone at all, as they were set upon by many others or were killed by enemies using Sovereign's Might.

This sort of wild slaughter persisted for thirty years.

Twenty two Elders lost their most powerful divine clones in battle! As for the eight great clans, their losses were even greater. Thirty eight of the Elders perished. After all, the Four Divine Beasts clansmen were fighting with the intention of killing as many as they could in exchange for their own lives.

But after that, the Four Divine Beasts clan went silent, no longer seeking out battle.

For a short period of time, this actually threw the eight great clans into a period of wild speculation. After all, in thirty short years, they had lost thirty eight Elders, causing some shock to the eight great clans...after all, the Elders of their clans were the elites of their clans as well.

They, too, felt heartache at the losses!

The Skyrite Mountains returned to calmness. The roving patrols continued their patrols, but normally, very few people would come to the Skyrite Mountains. But today, a female youth flew out from a metallic lifeform.

Afterwards, that metallic lifeform flew away, while that young lady drew closer and closer to the Skyrite Mountains.

"These are the Skyrite Mountains. Outsiders are forbidden entry." Immediately, more than ten patrolling warriors flew over from above, and one of them shouted at her.

This young lady had her hair tied into a ponytail, and she appeared very attractive. The strange thing was, she was wearing a straw hat on her head. The young lady hurriedly replied, "Hello. I am the friend of your Elder Linley. I've come to find him!"

"Elder Linley?" The patrolling warriors were all puzzled.

"Do you have any proof?" A patrolling warrior asked.

"Uh..." The young lady hesitated. What proof could she provide? But then, she immediately said, "How about this. Just go tell Elder Linley that my name is Nisse. He'll know who I am."

"Nisse?" The leader of the patrolling warriors glanced at her, then nodded. "Wait here." After speaking, he flew away.

Book 17, Indigo Prefecture – Chapter 59, Suspicion

Although life within the gorge was peaceful, Linley's heart was not at peace. He had continually been paying attention to Elder Blue and the others. These Elders all had chosen to sacrifice their most powerful divine clones for the sake of one last act of defiance. After hearing of their accomplishments in battle, Linley's blood couldn't help but boil, while at the same time, he felt rather saddened.

"Power. The problem, in the end, is still that our power is inferior to theirs!" Linley stood in front of his room, staring towards the sky, sighing in his heart.

From the Yulan continent to the Infernal Realm, Linley had experienced many things. Naturally, he understood that honor and glory wasn't something which others would 'give' you; it was something you had to fight for and obtain for yourself by relying on your own power! The Four Divine Beasts clan was much weaker than before now, but they still wanted to have as much glory as they had in the past? This was nothing but a dream!

When you had power, others naturally would revere you.

For example, Beirut. He alone was enough to strike terror into the hearts of the eight great clans. A single order from Beirut resulted in the eight great clans not daring to make a single incursion into the Skyrise Mountains!

The Four Divine Beasts clan was in dire straits. Linley, in his heart, wanted to help his clan, but his current level of power was a good deal weaker than Patriarch Gislason. How was he supposed to help the clan? The final conclusion of all that pondering was...Linley still wasn't strong enough.

"How long will it take for me to train to Lord Beirut's level?" Linley's heart was filled with desire...but then he shook his head and laughed.

Beirut and Dunnington could both be said as having reached the very peak of Highgod power. To reach the same level as Beirut was too hard!

"Once I train to the Highgod level, my power should begin to approach the Patriarch's." Linley was rather eager. Once he became a Highgod, although his body would still be physically weaker than the Patriarch's, Linley had his Blackstone Prison.

If a Highgod Linley was to use the Blackstone Prison, the power of the technique would be very close to the level of the technique used by Purgatory Commander Reisgem. Only then would the true power of the Blackstone Prison be put on display!

Linley turned to look towards a nearby area. Bebe was lying on the grass.

"Bebe, what are you doing?" Linley laughed.

"Sky watching." Bebe lay there, not moving at all. His gaze was focused on the skies. Through the mist, he could see the winding Dragon Avenue.

Bebe would often lie there and stare dumbly at one place, or perhaps at his straw hat. Occasionally, he would go out and have fun with others, but given how well Linley knew Bebe, he understood how Bebe was truly feeling. As more time passed...

Bebe longed for Nisse all the more.

"Bebe." Linley walked over, sitting on the grass as well, laughing as he looked at Bebe. "Are you thinking about Ninny?"

Bebe was slightly startled, but he still nodded lightly. "Right. I...kind of can't keep myself from thinking of her. Whenever I'm not focusing on something, I'll begin to think random, foolish thoughts, at which point I'll often think of her. However, what's the point of thinking? Ninny thinks I am dead."

"Bebe, in a little while, once you become a Highgod, or perhaps once I become a Highgod...let's make a trip to the Jadenfloat Continent." Linley said.

"Whoah!" Bebe immediately sat up, turning to stare at Linley in shock.

"What, you don't want to go?" Linley laughed.

Bebe had a rather awkward look on his face. "Boss, this is a rather complicated subject. I...do somewhat want to see her. But think about how her elder brother Salomon treated you. Treated us. If Phusro hadn't shown us mercy, you and Delia would most likely be dead."

Linley and Delia truly had nearly died, back then.

If they truly had died, Salomon would indeed have been the instigator and cause of their deaths.

"Whenever I think of Salomon, my belly fills with rage." A savage light flashed in Bebe's eyes, but then he said resignedly, "Tell me, if I go see Ninny, if I see Salomon, what should I do?"

Linley couldn't help but laugh. So this was what sticking in Bebe's craw, eh?

"No matter what, Bebe, in the end, Delia and I are still alive. In addition, the person you like is Nisse, not her elder brother. Just ignore her elder brother." Linley urged.

"Ignore? Do you think I'll be able to ignore him just because you said so?" Bebe pursed his lips resignedly.

Linley suddenly turned to stare towards the skies. A patrol warrior was flying towards him, and as he saw Linley on the ground below, he immediately landed next to Linley. Bowing, he said, "Elder Linley. There's a woman at the borders of the mountains. She says that she is your friend. Her name is Nisse, and she wants to see you!"

Linley was stunned.

"Nisse?" Bebe immediately stood up, his eyes huge and round. He hurriedly said, "You said that woman is named Nisse, right?" "Right." The patrol warrior was rather annoyed.

"Tell me, what is she like? Anything special about her?" Bebe said.

The patrol warrior paused momentarily. Describe a woman? This was rather hard. But then, the patrol warrior noticed the straw hat which Bebe was holding. His eyes lit up, and he hurriedly said, "Right. That woman was also wearing a hat on her head that looked identical to yours."

Bebe was so excited, his face instantly turned red.

Linley felt both extremely shocked and delighted as well. How did Nisse end up coming over here?

"Boss!" Bebe hurriedly turned to look towards Linley. "Quick, slap me twice. See if I'm in a dream or not!" Bebe's mind was completely numb right now, and he felt as though his body was light and airy, as though he wasn't completely in touch with reality.

Linley acted quite simply. "WHAP!" He landed a palm blow on Bebe's shoulder, knocking him straight to the ground.

"Haha, I'm not dreaming, I'm not dreaming." Bebe instantly crawled back up.

Linley, seeing that Bebe was so excited that he was beginning to tremble, sighed to himself. It had been many years since Bebe had been excited to the point of going crazy.

The outside activities drew Delia out from the room as well. As she walked out, she said, "What just happened?"

"Nisse came. Bebe and I are going to go welcome her." Linley laughed, then he grabbed Bebe and immediately flew into the air.

"Nisse came?"

Delia was slightly shocked, but moments later, she recovered. "Ninny actually came all the way from the Jedefloat Continent?"

The base of the Skyrise Mountains. Nisse was constantly staring into the depths of the mountains, her heart filled with worry. "What if Bebe doesn't want to meet me? Will Bebe and Linley still be angry at what had happened in the volcano range that time?"

Worried. Panicked.

Nisse knew that her elder brother had wrongly accused Linley, and even wanted to cause the deaths of Linley and the others.

"Haha, Nisse!" A clear voice rang out.

Nisse couldn't help but turn her head to look, and as she did, she saw two familiar figures fly towards her, shoulder-to-shoulder. Bebe, like her, wore a straw hat on his head. When Bebe saw Nisse, his eyes immediately lit up, and he was so excited that his speed instantly rose to a new level.

"Swoosh!"

"Bebe!" Nisse excitedly flew over as well.

But just as he drew near her, Bebe's body suddenly trembled and his speed lessened. But Nisse ignored everything, rushing straight over to Bebe, clutching him in her arms. "Wuuuu...wuuuuu...I thought you wouldn't want to meet me...wuuuu...." As she spoke, she actually began to cry.

Bebe opened his mouth a few times. In the end, his first words were..."Where is your elder brother?"

Hearing this, Linley didn't know whether to laugh or to cry. Bebe actually asked such an awkward question?

Nisse's body trembled, and she released Bebe. She stared into Bebe's eyes, as though she wanted to learn something from them. "My brother is still in the Jedefloat Continent." Bebe seemed to have realized something, and in a low voice, he said, "This time...you came here by yourself? From the Jedefloat Continent?"

"Right!" Nisse nodded lightly.

"I almost...I almost...almost never would have been able to see you again." As she spoke, tears once more began to appear in her eyes.

Hearing this, Linley couldn't help but suck in a cold breath. Nisse was just a God. From Jingan Prefecture of the Jedefloat Continent to Indigo Prefecture of the Bloodridge Continent required passing through the Starmist Sea. One could imagine what a difficult journey this was, but Nisse had actually come by herself.

"You..." Bebe was completely stunned.

He had thought that Salomon had escorted Nisse here. The uncomfortable feeling that had been present in Bebe's heart instantly vanished.

"You...did you want to die?!" Bebe instantly took Nisse into his arms.

Nisse was crying so hard that both her eyes had turned red. But her face was filled with a beautiful, overjoyed smile. Linley just stood there to the side, beaming as he watched. He felt very happy for the two of them, that they were able to have a reunion like this.

"Haha, the two of you have been holding each other for some time now. Do you want to continue to allow all those patrol warriors to watch this little drama?" A while later, Linley finally spoke with a smirk. "Come. Let's go back first."

Only now did Nisse and Bebe come to their senses.

Their reunion after a thousand years...they had both been so excited that they hadn't noticed the passage of time.

Time flowed on. Nisse and Bebe, having reunited, naturally wouldn't separate again. Bebe changed, once more becoming full of jokes and laughter, and spent every day with a delighted smile on his face. He was so happy he could die.

But although life for Linley and Bebe was comfortable, the eight great clans were frustrated.

Within the main hall of the Boleyn clan.

Four Patriarchs as well as four Deathgod Golem 'clones' of four other Patriarchs were gathered together. This meeting of the eight great Patriarchs had just begun.

"In the past few decades, the Four Divine Beasts clan has actually turtle up and refuse to come out. No matter how our clans' forces challenge and provoke them, they don't respond at all. What's going on? Can it be that the Four Divine Beasts clan is admitting defeat?" A deep voice rumbled out.

"Impossible." A hoarse voice rang out. "Everyone should still remember how savage and insane those Four Divine Beasts clansmen were, thirty years prior to this. It won't be so easy to make them turtle up and submit."

"Patriarch Boleyn, that's not necessarily the case." A devilish voice rang out.

"Nether Serpent. In the past countless years, have the Four Divine Beasts clan ever submitted? Don't think so simplistically." Patriarch Boleyn's hoarse voice rang out once more.

The Four Divine Beasts clan had always been arrogant, prideful, and unyielding. They had never submitted. This was the impression that the Four Divine Beasts clan had always given others, throughout the countless years. Because the arrogance of the Four Divine Beasts clan had already been deeply engraved into everyone's hearts, within a short period of time, there were quite a few members of the eight great clans who were unable to believe that the Four Divine Beasts clan would lower their heads and submit.

"As I see it, the Four Divine Beasts clan must be plotting something." A forceful, unyielding voice rang out. "Their recent reactions have been too bizarre. Everyone, it is best to be careful."

"Plot. What sort of plot could they have?" A high-pitched voice rang out.

"Enough, everyone." A gentle voice rang out. "For now, it doesn't matter whether or not the Four Divine Beasts clan has surrendered, or if they are plotting something. Let's wait a while and take a good look. After a century, we will know for sure...if they have submitted, or if they are plotting something."

"Right. I concur." Patriarch Boleyn said as well.

"I concur."

The hiding of the Four Divine Beasts clan, for a short period of time, caused the eight great clans to feel suspicious. However, once the Four Divine Beasts clan remained in hiding for a longer period of time, the eight great clans would be completely certain as to what the situation was, at which point, they had other options at hand.

The Skyrite Mountains. Within the gorge.

Today, the gorge was filled with the sounds of celebration and laughter. The surviving Elders of the clan, as well as the four clan leaders, and even many former Elders who had lost their most powerful divine clones had all gathered here on this day.

Because today...

Was the day of Bebe and Nisse's wedding. Even Beirut, Carolina, and Phusro had hurried over. Today, Bebe was dressed in a very sharp manner, and for once, he was very humbly and courteously greeting every single guest who came.

"Getting married is exhausting." Bebe secretly grumbled to the nearby Linley.

Linley couldn't help but laugh. Suddenly, he noticed that Beirut was walking over. "Your grandfather is coming."

"Haha..." Beirut weighed Bebe with his gaze, nodding in satisfaction. "You look proper today. But Linley, you and Bebe really are something. Bebe and Nisse have been together for a few decades now, but you didn't even tell me. You only notified me after arranging the wedding."

Linley could only chuckle.

Nisse had indeed been within the gorge for decades. Originally, Nisse and Bebe weren't even planning a wedding, but...just a few months ago, Nisse suddenly discovered that she was pregnant!

Bebe and Nisse were both stunned. Having a child while not married? They frantically discussed this matter, then they came to a decision...they had to get married right away!

The two of them immediately wanted to notify everyone. However, Beirut was simply too far away, which was why they had decided to get married half a year later!

Today was the day of the wedding, but Nisse was already quite a few months pregnant and had a big belly. Each time Linley thought of this, he couldn't help but want to laugh.

Book 17, Indigo Prefecture – Chapter 60, A Major Event

The day of the grand wedding. The gorge was filled with the nonstop sound of laughter.

Due to having chosen to submit and to retreat, the four clan leaders had been feeling quite depressed. Today, they seized the opportunity to have a good celebration. Beirut and Carolina were very happy as well, and so they happily chatted and drank with the four clan leaders and the various Elders.

"Lord Prefect, congratulations!" Gislason raised his cup to Beirut.

"Haha." Beirut laughed as he looked towards Gislason, then lowered his voice. "Gislason, your Four Divine Beasts clan has truly retreated, and will no longer do battle?" Beirut paid attention to the struggle between the two sides as well.

Gislason was startled. He nodded.

"How have the eight great clans reacted?" Beirut asked.

"No reaction yet." Gislason shook his head. "Most likely, in the near term, they will be unable to believe that we have truly submitted."

"Right." Beirut nodded. "But you still need to be careful. Once the eight great clans realize that you have retreated, even though they won't dare to invade the Skyrite Mountains, they will think of ways to take their revenge upon you nonetheless."

Gislason said self-mockingly, "We've already decide to hide in the Skyrte Mountains and not come out. What more can they do?" Gislason's words had an undertone of grief and desolation to them.

Beirut didn't say anything else.

"Hey." The nearby Carolina laughed. "Tell me, will that Nisse of Bebe's give birth to a boy or a girl?"

"How should I know?" Beirut laughed. "However, I can guarantee that it won't be a Godeater Rat!"

If both husband and wife were Godeater Rats, their children would definitely also be Godeater Rats. Unfortunately, throughout the countless planes, only Beirut and Bebe were Godeater Rats. Generally speaking, especially terrifying divine beasts were also especially rare.

For example, the Azure Dragon, the White Tiger, and even the Nether Serpent were all unique divine beasts. There was only an extremely low probability that if their descendants married each other, they might be able to produce a true divine beast. But the chances were too low, far too low. As for the likes of the Ba-Serpent and the Suanni Lion, there were quite a few of them spread throughout the countless planes.

The more powerful a divine beast's innate ability was, the rarer the beast was as well.

Those with weak innate abilities would be more common.

In the blink of an eye, months passed. Within the gorge. Outside Bebe's room.

Linley, Beirut, Carolina, and the others were all present. Delia and Nisse were in the room. Nisse was about to give birth. The most nervous, restless person present was, of course, Bebe.

"She's giving birth. She's giving birth!" Bebe stood outside the room, mumbling to himself while walking back and forth, completely unable to come to a halt.

"Bebe, just sit down." Linley couldn't help but laugh.

"How can I sit down?" The muscles throughout Bebe's entire body were taut and quivering. He glanced at Linley. "Boss, I'm so nervous, my heart's about to leap out of my body. You want me to sit? Ugh. Why isn't it out yet? It's been so long."

Beirut laughed. "Bebe, Nisse just went in. It's going to be a good while longer."

Bebe had no choice but to endure it. Right now, the passage of every single second, to Bebe, felt very long and slow.

"Waaaaa!" Suddenly, a high-pitched sobbing sound rang out.

Bebe seemed to have been hit by lightning, and he stood there stupidly.

"Creeaaak!" The door swung open, and Delia walked out. She glanced sideways at Bebe. "Bebe, why are you standing there like an idiot? Aren't you going to go in?" Only now did Bebe come to his senses, and his body transformed into a blur, entering the room.

Delia laughed. "Bebe actually went numb."

"When you were giving birth to Wade, Bebe was telling me I was too nervous. But he's even more nervous than me!" Linley laughed.

Delia glanced at him grumpily. "Don't be so smug. When Taylor and Sasha were born, I heard that you were so nervous, you were sweating everywhere. You, a mighty, venerable Saint-level expert. So nervous that you were sweating?"

Linley could only laugh awkwardly.

Moments later, Bebe and Nisse walked out from the room. Bebe was beaming so widely, his mouth threatened to split apart. He was holding an infant in his arms. Nisse was a human, and so her baby was naturally a humanoid as well. However, this infant....

Was like Gislason. Although it had the lineage of a divine beast, it wasn't a true divine beast.

"Boss." Bebe looked excitedly at Linley. "Look, this is my child. This is the child of me, Bebe! Haha...I, Bebe, have a child of my own as well!" Bebe was so excited, his entire body was shaking.

"Come, let me hold the child." Beirut laughed.

"Right." Bebe very carefully handed the child over to Beirut.

Beirut took a careful look at the child. "Oh, so it's a girl. The lineage of the Godeater Rat in her veins isn't bad. Still, to activate the divine beast lineage in her blood will be rather difficult." Up till now, Beirut still had yet to find a perfect way to draw out the innate divine ability of his descendants.

The Four Divine Beasts clan had their 'Ancestral Baptism', allowing their descendants to possess the ability to Dragonform and even have the innate divine ability of a divine beast. But of course, the strength of the innate divine ability was connected to the purity of the lineage.

"Girls are good. Girls are good." Bebe continued to beam, his lips wide.

Today he was simply too excited.

Bebe was a divine beast, the Godeater Rat. With such a monstrously powerful innate ability, naturally he wouldn't have too many progeny. For example, although Beirut had three sons, they were triplets; that was the only reason why he had three. After that one time, Carolina never gave birth to any more children.

As for Linley, although he wasn't a divine beast and thus wasn't restricted as tightly by the universe, Taylor and Sasha were a 'dragon-phoenix' pair of twins as well who were born together. As for Wade, he was only born after they came to the Infernal Realm.

From this day onwards, Bebe eagerly devoted himself to raising his daughter.

The skies were clear and the air was fresh. Linley walked out of his room, and as he did, he saw that in the distance, there was a young woman seated in the meditative position on a patch of grass, training. This young woman had black hair, and her skin appeared crystalline, like jade.

This was Bebe's daughter, Ina [Yi'na].

"It will be very hard for Ina to even become a Deity." Linley sighed to himself. Although Ina had the lineage of a divine beast, she wasn't a divine beast, after all. As for Beirut, he did not yet have a method which would have the effect of the 'Ancestral Baptism'.

For now, Ina had to rely on herself. This was why, despite having trained for over a century, Ina was just a Saint.

"Uncle Linley." Ina's clear voice rang out. She had already stood up, and her lively, agile eyes looked just like her father's. "You seem to be in an excellent mood. Do you have good news?"

Linley couldn't help but laugh, "Ina, good eye. Right. I made a breakthrough."

"Oh?" Ina's eyes immediately lit up. "In which Elemental Law?"

"Fire." Linley didn't hide it.

Linley improved the slowest in fire. Although he had trained in it for over a thousand years by now, by now, Linley had only mastered four profound mysteries. In addition, Linley hadn't even gotten a basic understanding of the other two profound mysteries.

By comparison, as for water, in which Linley had only trained for six or seven hundred years, he had already reached the late stage in his fifth mystery.

As for the wind, although he had mastered seven profound mysteries, he hadn't gain any insights into the last two at all.

He still trained fastest in the Laws of the Earth.

The Laws of the Earth had six profound mysteries. Linley had already trained to the 'bottleneck' level in 'Vitality'; with but a final step, he would reach the level of Highgod. In addition, he had begun to fuse the Profound Mysteries of Strength as well as the Essence of the Earth.

"One's mentality really does have an impact on the speed of one's training." Linley side to himself.

"Uncle Linley, you are too amazing. Alas, I still haven't become a Deity. In the entire gorge, I'm the only non-Deity. Last time, when I went to great grandfather's place, everyone I saw was a Deity as well." Ina said helplessly.

Beirut and Carolina both doted on Ina, and often invited her to visit them at their place.

"Don't be dispirited." Linley said consolingly. "When training in the Elemental Laws, one must be fully absorbed in pondering them and focus in training them. If you do that, you will improve. I have faith in you. You are much more patient than your father."

"Right." Ina nodded and laughed. "Father has no patience for training."

"Hey, are you people talking about me?" A voice rang out from nearby, and Bebe walked out from his own room, staring at Ina. "Nana, are you saying bad things about me?"

Ina let out a lovable snort, turning her head and ignoring Bebe.

Bebe just rubbed his nose. "This kid isn't as obedient as she used to be when she was young."

Linley didn't know whether to laugh or to cry. He originally had thought that since Bebe had a daughter, she would become the center of attention. But he was wrong...even after having a daughter, Bebe remained the same.

"Rumble..."

A spatial tremble suddenly swept out.

Linley's face changed. He couldn't help but turn his head. Although the spatial tremble came from far away and was already very weak, Linley could still sense it.

"What just happened?" Bebe's expression grew focused as well, and he looked towards Linley.

"What is it?" Delia, Nisse, and Wade ran over as well.

"Come. Let's take a look." Linley led the way, flying into the air. Immediately, Bebe, Delia, Nisse, Ina, and Wade all followed, but as they flew out of the gorge, Linley's group saw...

"This..." Linley stared, slack-jawed.

In the southern skies of the Skyrite Mountains, the entire area was clustered with people, who flew about like a horde of locusts. Quite a few people were launching attacks towards the mountain forests below.

"Boom!" "Boom!" "Boom!"

Those tree trunks exploded, and crevices in the ground appeared. Those spatial tremors from earlier had been caused from these attacks. However, these people were quite careful; despite attacking downwards, their attacks didn't actually cause any harm to the Skyrite Mountains at all.

"So many people?" Linley felt his heart turn cold.

"Uncle Linley, how many people are there? There must be at least a few hundred thousand." Ina stared dumbly.

"Not just a few hundred thousand!" Linley muttered.

At this moment, it wasn't just Linley who felt his heart growing cold; throughout the Skyrise Mountains, members of the Four Divine Beasts clan were flying over, staring at the terrifying scene of countless people in the skies south of the Skyrise Mountains. Those people were currently attacking the mountain forests south of the Skyrise Mountains.

"Stay here. Don't move." Linley shouted. "If there's any danger, immediately hurry back to the gorge. I'll go to see the Patriarch first."

"Don't worry." Bebe nodded.

Linley nodded slightly. He immediately flew at high speed towards the 'dragon's head', the end of Dragon Avenue. And not just Linley; a good number of Elders were flying towards the Patriarch's residence at high speed as well. On the way over, Linley met the Second Elder.

Linley saw Patriarch Gislason and some others in the distance. They, too, were looking towards the south.

"Patriarch." Linley flew over.

"Linley, you came." Gislason chuckled towards Linley. "Take a look and see the sort of game the eight great clans up to!"

"They really are the members of the eight great clans?" Linley had suspected this long ago.

"See for yourself." Gislason turned his head to look towards the south.

Linley looked towards the south as well. Many experts were attacking the mountainous forests, and moments later, Linley understood as well. "They...they are setting up a foundation!" Within a large area, the trees were all destroyed, while at the same time, a solid foundation was being laid.

Soon...

Many of the clansmen belonging to the forces of the eight great clans came bearing giant stones, and they began to build one castle and estate after another! Given the power Deities possessed, especially when such an astonishingly large number of Deities worked together, in but half a day...

One castle and another was finished in the area to the south of the Skyrise Mountains.

The area in which these many castles were built was extremely close to the Skyrise Mountains. In addition, one could clearly tell that these castles were divided into eight areas.

Seeing this, the Four Divine Beast clansmen were stunned.

"What are they doing?" Elder Garvey couldn't believe it.

"What are they doing? Setting up house next to us!" Gislason said gloomily.

Suddenly...

"Cowards of the Four Divine Beasts clan!" A wild, savage sound echoed throughout the air above the Skyrite Mountains. "Haha, I didn't expect that the descendants of four Sovereigns would actually turtle up here in the Skyrite Mountains and be afraid to come out. Haha..."

All the clansmen living within the Skyrite Mountains heard this laughter.

All the clansmen were enraged.

"You fellows are quite good at hiding, aren't you? Fine, then. Hide. Our eight great clans will just live right here next to you! As long as a single member of your clan exits the mountain, we will kill him or her! If you want, you can forever hide in there like cowards and never come out!"

"Haha...Four Divine Beasts clan? More like Four Pests clan! Haha..."

"Anyone with courage, step out. Our eight great clans will welcome you at any time! If you don't have any courage...then just keep hiding!"

Waves of laughter continued to echo out from outside. Their voices shook the heavens like thunder, echoing within the Skyrise Mountains.

Book 17, Indigo Prefecture – Chapter 61, Group Battle

The countless members of the Azure Dragon clan who lived in the Skyrise Mountains all heard these insults and the mockery. Many clansmen were infuriated. Fierce looks flashed through their eyes, and they could no longer endure it. Bellowing, they flew out from throughout the Skyrise Mountains.

“Kill!”

“Kill these bastards!”

A large number of figures rose from within the Skyrise Mountains. Moving as fast as lightning, they wildly charged towards the south. Many of them were patrol guards. Many of them were so angry that their eyes had turned crimson, and quite a few other warriors charged towards the east as well.

They had gone mad!

The Four Divine Beasts clansmen had been enraged to the point of insanity! Being killed was nothing more than their severed heads falling to the ground, but the insults the other side was hurling caused these clansmen to go wild. Countless years of pride made it so that these tribesmen weren't able to endure it any longer.

“Bastards!” Elder Garvey, standing by Linley's side, was staring angrily, his eyes crimson as well.

They had elected to retreat, because they had realized the hopelessness of the clan's situation. But now, the enemy had come right up to them, cursing them out while pointing their fingers towards the Four Divine Beasts clansmen's noses. Everyone found it hard to endure this. All of the Elders were growing utterly enraged. Even Linley, upon hearing the mocking laughter, felt fury rise in his heart. "These eight great clans are forcing us to go battle them!"

"Return! All of you, return!" Gislason roared loudly.

Those reproving shouts echoed throughout the Skyrite Mountains, but many of the ordinary clansmen had never even met the Patriarch. In their rage, how could they possibly recognize their Patriarch's voice? They didn't care who was ordering them to stop; they still charged towards the south. All of them wanted to drink the enemy's blood and devour the enemy's flesh!

"Rumble..."

More than ten thousand clansmen filled the skies. They threw themselves towards the outside. Even though they were still quite some distance away, they attacked wildly, causing material attacks and spiritual attacks to instantly fill the heavens.

"Kill!" Many clansmen within the Skyrite Mountains who hadn't flown out yet attacked savagely as well.

"Rumble..."

The skies shone with all sorts of lights, which rushed towards the south in a wave.

"Rumble..."

The many clansmen of the eight great clans all unleashed their terrifying attacks. The color of the sky itself changed. The countless attacks clashed and intersected in mid-air, causing an ear-piercing, rumbling sound. Many attacks, however, passed through to the other side.

"Bang!" "Boom!"

The Four Divine Beasts clan. The eight great clans. The bodies of their clansmen exploded in mid-air or tumbled directly to the ground.

"Kill them!"

Their blood boiling, these enraged clansmen attacked, ignoring all else. However, because many of the clansmen had halted after being ordered to stop, only ten thousand or so had truly charged over. All of those clansmen who had charged over immediately Dragonformed. They would either kill their enemies, or they would themselves die!

The world shook with countless rumbles.

Surrounded like this, those clansmen who had originally elected to remain within the Skyrise Mountains felt their own rage rise as well. They weren't able to endure any longer. Even Linley felt a murderous intent rise in his heart.

"Quick, all of you, go stop our clansmen. Quick!" Gislason roared angrily towards Linley and the others. "They are just throwing their lives away!"

"Yes, Patriarch!"

Linley and the group of Elders were enraged, but all of them had no choice but to forcibly swallow their anger. They scattered everywhere throughout the Skyrite Mountains, loudly shouting, "Stop. All stop!"

"Stop. Stop!"

After all, it was the clan leaders and the Elders of the Four Divine Beasts clan who had made the decision to stop fighting against the eight great clans. The high level members of the clan knew, but the ordinary clansmen didn't know. The ordinary clansmen were as proud and arrogant as they had been, ten thousand years ago. They weren't able to endure this sort of humiliation.

Thanks to the shouts and roars of the Elders, as well as the shouts of the many patrolling warriors who were following the commands of the Elders, the insanity slowly began to fade away.

In that short while...

Tens of thousands of Four Divine Beasts clansmen had died. But of course, the losses of the eight great clans weren't light either.

"All of you, back!" Linley roared at one clansman after another.

Many of those clansmen had unwilling looks in their eyes, which were filled with rage. They all stared towards the south. After so many years, quite a few members of the Four Divine Beasts clan had gotten to know Linley. The prestige and authority of the Elders was still very effective. All of them thus refrained from charging over.

"Elder Linley, are we supposed to just take it without fighting back?" A youth looked at Linley frantically, his face completely red with rage.

Linley was stunned.

"Just let them ride roughshod over us. To just let them insult us like this?" The youth's body was trembling. "I would rather die and take a few of them with me, rather than accept this sort of humiliation!" "Elder Linley...are we really not going to fight back?" Quite a few clansmen looked towards Linley, their eyes filled with a hint of despair.

Being insulted and cursed at by others, but not fight back? This was more agonizing to the Four Divine Beasts clansmen than killing them.

"We will have our revenge!" Linley growled. "Don't worry. We will have our revenge!"

Only now did the clansmen feel slightly better. They all listened to Linley and began to return, but as Linley stared at the surrounding area... he saw that most of the infuriated clansmen had been stopped by his shout.

When Linley had just arrived at the Four Divine Beasts clan, he hadn't felt too strong a sense of belonging towards the clan.

This was because, deep in Linley's heart, he had always considered himself to be Linley Baruch! He had a very strong sense of belonging towards the Yulan branch, but that wasn't the case for the Azure Dragon clan as a whole.

However...

Much time had passed. He had lived here with the Four Divine Beasts clansmen for eight or nine centuries. Over the past eight or nine hundred years, Linley had met too many of his clansmen, all of them who were capable of Dragonforming, and who would all greet him as 'Elder Linley' upon seeing him. Unconsciously, without even realizing it...in the Infernal Realm, Linley had already grown to completely consider himself a member of the Four Divine Beasts clan.

"The eight great clans!" Linley stared towards the south, his eyes narrowing.

And then, Linley flew back to the residence of Patriarch Gislason. But right at this moment, yet another wave of mockery and derisive insults rang out.

"Haha, what? Your Four Divine Beasts clan only has this much courage?"

"Just keep hiding. I daresay that even though the Four Divine Beasts clan has people at their very doorstep mocking them and insulting them, they still don't have the courage to fight back. This news, without a doubt, will spread throughout the Infernal Realm in just a few centuries, and even the rest of the Higher Planes. Haha...we will make sure that the people of the various planes all know what cowards you Four Divine Beasts clansmen are. How spineless!"

The voices continued to echo in the skies.

The Elders had already returned to the side of Patriarch Gislason, all of them utterly enraged.

"I didn't expect the eight great clans would be this despicable!" The Second Elder was so angry that even his beard was trembling. "When they spread this news throughout the other planes, the various clans will look down upon them as well."

"Look down upon them?" Patriarch Gislason laughed coldly. "You are wrong. The eight great clans, when spreading this news, will definitely make it all the more colorful. They'll say that it was the Lord Prefect of Indigo Prefecture who forbade them from attacking the Skyrise Mountains, which is why they were forced to remain outside the borders of the mountain range. This news will perhaps enhance the reputation of the Lord Prefect of Indigo Prefecture. It won't have much of an impact to the eight great clans. But to our Four Divine Beasts clan..."

Linley understood as well. Once this spread out, the reputation of the Four Divine Beasts clan would forever be tarnished. Others would say that all they were capable of was hiding behind the protection of the Lord Prefect of Indigo Prefecture, and that even when others came to their gates to insult them, they still didn't have the courage to fight back!

"Patriarch Gislason of the Azure Dragon clan. You are a Patriarch and the son of a Sovereign, and yet you are so spineless and cowardly. You really are an embarrassment to your father. Why don't you just kill yourself? Haha..."

"You, Gislason, are an embarrassment to the almighty Sovereign. Haha..."

Laughter rang out continuously.

Even after the four Sovereigns died, these people wouldn't dare to casually besmirch the Sovereigns themselves. After all, even a dead Sovereign was still a Sovereign. The prestige of a Sovereign was inviolable...and if it was violated, if any of the other Sovereigns were to hear their words, be irritated by them, and decide to punish them, they would be doomed.

Gislason's gaze was like ice.

"Patriarch." The nearby Elders couldn't help but look at him.

"These bastards." Elder Garvey let out a growl, and he immediately transformed into a ray of light, flying towards the north.

"Get back here." Gislason's face changed. He immediately flew in pursuit, and Linley and the other Elders followed him.

Although Gislason was far faster than Elder Garvey, the Skyrite Mountains were only so large. By the time they caught up, Gislason and the others had already reached the borders of the Skyrite Mountains.

"Garvey. What are you doing?" Gislason grabbed Elder Garvey.

"Patriarch." Garvey stared at Gislason.

"Oh. You finally found the courage to come out?" Ten or so figures were hovering there in mid-air, and they glanced over. They clearly had noticed Gislason and the others. "Gislason, what are you doing? Not only are you not fighting back, you aren't going to let others fight back either? Haha..."

Gislason turned to look at them.

"And who the hell do you think you are?" Gislason's eyes radiated frost. "Let the Nether Serpent, Edric, and the others come over!"

The leader was a big fellow that was more than three meters tall. Snickering, he said, "Gislason, a hundred years ago, I might have asked the Patriarchs to come over upon hearing your words. Unfortunately...you are not nothing more than a coward who doesn't even dare to fight back. What right do you have to invite my Patriarch over? I feel ashamed just speaking with you!"

"Impudence." Gislason's face seemed to have been covered by ice.

"Bastard!" Garvey, furious, gnashed his teeth, charging forward once more.

"Hold it." Gislason grabbed Garvey and shouted at him.

"Patriarch!" Garvey turned to look at Gislason, shouting angrily.

"Hey, kid." The muscular fellow glanced disdainfully at Garvey. "From the looks of you, your rank in the Four Divine Beasts clan should be fairly high. But in all these years, in all the battles between our eight great clans and your clan, I've never seen you."

Garvey's body trembled.

Indeed. Over the many previous years, because Garvey was one of the slightly weaker Elders, he had never gone to Boodbath Gorge, nor had he fought on behalf of the clan. He had watched as the other Elders sacrificed themselves for the clan, and as he did so, he had always felt guilt in his heart.

"Patriarch. I, Garvey, am an Elder, but in all these years, I've never had the chance to do battle." Garvey's eyes were bloodshot, and he stared savagely at the Patriarch. "I imagine that in the future, I won't have the chance to battle the eight great clans either. Today...just grant me my wish."

Gislason was stunned.

"Elder Garvey..." Linley hurriedly spoke out as well.

"Garvey, don't..." Gislason hadn't even finished his words before Elder Garvey let out a low laugh.

"BANG!" Suddenly, a terrifying azure aura emerged from Elder Garvey's body, and he immediately broke through Gislason's grip as his body split into two. One was an ordinary divine earth clone, which remained. As for that body which was brimming with azure light, it seemed to have transformed into an illusory dragon, bellowing as it charged towards the south.

Sovereign's Might!

"Retreat!" The face of that burly warrior changed dramatically.

The ten-plus people by his side had changed as well. They hurriedly scattered in each direction, while the leader let out a low growl. His own body became covered with an azure aura as well; this man was an expert of the Barbary clan, skilled in using water.

"Garvey..." Linley watched, stunned.

Garvey opened his mouth, and instantly, an enormous illusion of an Azure Dragon that was more than ten thousand meters long appeared. An enormous Dragon Roar shot out, immediately enveloping all of the ten-plus people who had wanted to flee. Their bodies stiffened, and they became paralyzed.

Innate divine ability – Dragon Roar!

"Swoosh!"

Elder Garvey immediately scurried over, attacking those people who had been affected by the Dragon Roar in quick succession. "Bang!" "Bang!" Garvey only had the chance to kill two of them, before that man who had also used Sovereign's Might interposed and blocked him.

The two experts began to battle wildly, exchanging multiple blows. Garvey's thigh was torn open, and blood splattered everywhere. In terms of power, Elder Garvey was still quite a bit weaker than this muscular man of the Barbary clan.

"Patriarch, quick, save him!" Linley let out a low growl, and he charged forward as well. At the same time...

"BOOM!"

An earthen yellow light surged out from Linley's body. It was a drop of earth-type Sovereign's Might.

But right at this moment...

"Swish!" "Swish!" "Swish!" "Swish!"

Six more figures flew out from the eight great clan's forces, their bodies also radiating that terrifying, powerful aura of Sovereign's Might. Clearly, they had come to jointly attack and kill Linley. Linley was by himself; how could he possibly overcome these six enemies?

Gislason's face changed dramatically. He shouted loudly, "Quick, retreat!" At the same time, an azure aura burst forth from his body, and he too transformed into an azure ray of light, streaking through the skies.

Book 17, Indigo Prefecture – Chapter 62, The Thorn in Their Side

Elder Garvey's battle against the enemy expert resulted in the aura of Sovereign's Might filling the area, causing the other three clan leaders of the Four Divine Beasts clan to hurry over. When they saw those six figures simultaneously attack Linley, their faces all changed.

"Not good. All six of them are using Sovereign's Might, and two of them are Patriarchs!" The Vermillion Bird Matriarch recognized the enemy experts from far away.

"How can this be?! The eight great clans have gone mad!"

The White Tiger Patriarch, the Black Tortoise Patriarch, and the other Elders couldn't understand what they were seeing. No matter how powerful Linley was, he was just a Seven Star Fiend. How could he have angered the eight great clans to the point where without hesitating at all, six enemy members would immediately use Sovereign's Might to attack him, with two being Patriarchs!

Of the eight Patriarchs, seven were a Sovereign's Emissary, while the eighth was the most powerful of them all.

What sort of status did the eight of them have? And yet, two of them, not hesitating at all, immediately joined forces to shamelessly attack a junior like Linley? This was inconceivable!

"Linley, quick, flee!!!" A furious shout echoed in Linley's mind. At this moment, Linley also noticed out of the corner of his eyes that six enemy experts were attacking. He couldn't help but feel shocked. "Six? All using Sovereign's Might?"

Murderous looks were in the eyes of the six, and they looked like six tigers that wanted to devour a little lost sheep. "Haha, Patriarch, this Linley actually flew out of the Skyrite Mountains. This really is an opportunity which the heavens had gifted us with." An extremely muscular man whose entire body was covered with a white robe sent through divine sense.

"We have to seize this opportunity. We must kill him, no matter the cost!"

"He won't be able to run!"

The six stared at Linley fixedly. Over the past thousand years, their eight great clans had wildly attacked the Four Divine Beasts clan, precisely because they were afraid that that they might take too long and allowed Linley to become a Highgod. They wanted to force Linley out.

But...over so many years, Linley had never come out.

Linley's existence was a thorn in their side, a bone sticking in their craw. Even in their dreams, they dreamt of destroying this disaster waiting to happen. And now, today, heaven had given them the opportunity to do so! How could the six of them show any mercy? They didn't show mercy...

But as for Linley, he was no fool. He knew his own limits.

Seeing the six of them charge over, Linley hurriedly retreated while shouting frantically with divine sense, "Garvey, retreat!"

In the same instant as he hurriedly retreated, with Linley at the center, an earthen yellow light sprang out in waves, immediately extending to create an enormous spherical region with a diameter of five hundred meters. It immediately caught the distant Elder Garvey and his opponent, still locked in battle.

Blackstone Space!

The Blackstone Space was the ultimate technique of Reisgem. Today, Linley actually used earth-type Sovereign's Might to unleash this technique, which was an earth-type attack to begin with. Using earth-type Sovereign's Might to unleash it...the power of this Blackstone Space had been lifted to an unprecedented, powerful level.

The divine power of a God, when using this Blackstone Space, was capable of affecting weak Seven Star Fiends.

The divine power of a Highgod, when using this Blackstone Space, was capable of affecting even experts who were close to the rank of Asura; Reisgem's level.

But when using earth-type Sovereign's Might to execute this Blackstone Space...the enemy would have to use Sovereign's Might and also be a supreme expert in order to be able to resist it even slightly...as otherwise, within the Blackstone Space, there would be no way for them to fight back at all.

“Ahhh!” The Barbary clan’s warrior who was battling against Elder Garvey, when affected by the gravitational pull, was caught off guard and sank down. In a battle between experts, the slightest flaw was enough to cause one’s death!

“BANG!” Elder Garvey seized the opportunity to launch a palm slap against the head of the Barbary clan warrior, whose head exploded as a divine spark flew out.

The Barbary clan Elder had died!

But right at this moment...

“Swoosh!” Six figures charged straight into the Blackstone Space. The Blackstone Space was simply too large. If they wanted to kill Linley, they would have to draw close to him. Even though they knew how powerful the Blackstone Space was, they still had to charge in first.

But the power of the Blackstone Space was even greater than they had expected!

Blackstone Space – Repulsive Force!

The six figures that had been charging into the Blackstone Space suddenly slowed down. Caught off guard, two of the figures even were pushed backwards by the repulsive force of this Blackstone Space. They had charged straight in, but then suddenly were thrust out by the repulsive force. These two conflicting momentums caused their bodies to tremble, and their faces couldn’t help but turn red. Just like that, they were injured.

This was the terrifying power of a supreme Blackstone Space!

"How is that possible?" The other four, although just barely able to resist from being repulsed outwards, were also slowed dramatically.

There was no way they would be able to catch Linley!

"Attack!" The leader, Patriarch Boleyn, roared through divine sense. At the same time, white, glowing wings appeared from his back, and a white, holy aura of Fate-type Sovereign's Might emanated from his entire body. The expression on Patriarch Boleyn's face was incomparably emotionless as he stared at Linley!

"Swish!" A semi-translucent white arrow pierced through the air, shooting towards Linley.

"Hmph!" A low growl.

A man with two icy blue eyes swung out his right arm, his blue eyebrows fluttering. A blue scimitar instantly shot out. The spatial fabric of the Infernal Realm was cut open like a piece of paper, wherever that blue scimitar sliced past.

If a blade was very sharp, when you sliced it through someone's head, the only thing that would happen would be that a red line would appear.

This scimitar cut through space in the same manner; when it sliced through space, it just left behind a thin crack, one which was almost invisible if not examined carefully. However, the power of this scimitar had reached an astonishing level.

The white arrow and the blue scimitar shot out simultaneously.

"Hmph!" With but a thought, Linley suddenly made layers upon layers of earthen yellow walls appear out of nowhere, blocking in front of that white arrow and the scimitar. But the gliding speed of that scimitar was simply too fast; it was even faster than the white arrow, and it easily sliced through one wall after another.

Linley was shocked. "This scimitar..."

This earthen yellow wall was formed from earth-type Sovereign's Might, and its defensive power was very terrifying. But this powerful defense, in the face of that scimitar, was like nothing more than wet paper, unable to block it in the slightest.

"Can it be a Sovereign artifact?" Linley continuously retreated.

"Whoosh!" The scimitar sliced through the air, and had already arrived in front of Linley. Only now did Linley clearly see...that as the scimitar slashed towards him, a neat cut in space itself could be seen at the edge of the scimitar. "Too fast. Too fast!" Linley wasn't able to dodge at all.

Right at this fatal moment...

A black fist slammed down in front of Linley like a mountain. This enormous black fist lightly brushed past the scimitar. There was a clear, ringing sound, and the direction of the blue scimitar was changed. "Swish!" It slashed past Linley's chest, effortlessly piercing past it.

"Quick, back!" That black hand snatched Linley, then dragged him backwards.

"Patriarch." Linley saw from the corner of his eyes who this person was, and he felt gratitude in his heart. The person who had saved him was Patriarch Gislason.

The half-translucent white arrow was slightly slower than the 'scimitar', and it landed on Gislason's body. Gislason didn't seem to even notice it, nor did he counter-attack; he just grabbed Linley and flew back into the Skyrite Mountains.

Although this took time to describe, the time it took between Linley flying out, Elder Garvey killing his enemy, and then Linley and Gislason both fleeing back was nothing more than the time it took to blink one's eye. But such a heart-palpitating series of events had occurred in that blinking of an eye!

The Skyrite Mountains.

Gislason and Linley both flew back. Only now did they let out sighs of relief. Elder Garvey had been lucky enough to flee back as well. In truth, the enemies had considered Linley to be their real target, and so Elder Garvey had seized the chance to flee back.

"Patriarch, thank you for saving my life." Linley looked at his chest, terror flashing through his mind at what almost happened.

"You really are audacious." Gislason let out a long breath, then looked towards the front. "Just now, the enemy actually sent out six people at once, all using Sovereign's Might. Even I was shocked...in particular, the Patriarch of the Venna Clan even attacked with his weapon-type Sovereign artifact!"

Linley was shocked. That had actually been a Sovereign artifact!

"However." Gislason laughed as he looked at Linley. "The power of your Gravitational Space truly is terrifying, especially after you used a drop of earth-type Sovereign's Might. Those two weaker individuals, even after having used their Sovereign's Might, were actually repelled outwards. As for Patriarch Boleyn and the other Elders, they weren't able to chase after and attack us at all."

Indeed!

After Linley set up his 'Blackstone Space', the enemies could only attack from afar; they weren't able to pursue at all.

"Linley, thank you." Elder Garvey, his face ashen, drew near and said gratefully.

"Linley!" A deep, rumbling voice echoed out. The Black Tortoise Patriarch, the Vermillion Bird Matriarch, the White Tiger Patriarch, and a number of other Elders flew over as well. "What is going on? Why is it that as soon as you attacked, the eight great clans would suddenly attack you like mad? Even two Patriarchs joined forces. Is there some sort of huge enmity between you and them?"

Linley felt completely baffled as well.

"I don't know either. I only fought for the clan on a few occasions and killed a few enemy Elders. Nothing else." Linley stared into the distance. He didn't understand why the eight great clans wanted to kill him this badly. Their madness had already reached an all-encompassing state, and they viewed him as the greatest thorn in their side.

"What a wonderful chance that was..." Patriarch Boleyn shut his eyes, unwilling to accept what had just happened.

"The two of you joined forces, and yet you still weren't able to kill Linley. What a waste of a wonderful opportunity!" A cold, insidious man, dressed in voluminous black robes and with vipers hanging from his ears said in a low voice. "Patriarch Venna, how could you have missed with your blade?"

The man with the long, blue eyebrows let out a cold snort, not explaining.

"There's no point to discussing this now." A gentle voice rang out. Patriarch Edric. "What is done is done. What we now need to do is come up with a way...to find another chance to kill Linley. Linley's Gravitational Space is simply astonishing. It isn't so bad if he doesn't use Sovereign's Might, but once he does...only we Patriarchs have a chance to kill him."

"It doesn't matter who kills him. What matters is forcing him out to fight again." A growling voice rang out.

"I'll give it a try. Let's see if I can force Linley out." Suddenly, an elfin-looking Elder flew out.

The clan leaders and Elders of the Four Divine Beasts clan were all together. The actions of the eight great clans had caused them to be utterly enraged, but all they could do right now was to endure it. After all, the number of experts the enemies had was simply too overpoweringly greater.

"Boss, you were too rash." Bebe hurried over as well.

Linley could only chuckle. "I didn't expect that the eight great clans would attack me so madly." Linley had thought that when he attacked, the enemy would at most send out a single Elder to stop him...and in that sort of situation, Linley was confident he would be able to save Elder Garvey. But the reaction of the enemy side was simply too astounding; even he was terrified by it.

Right at this moment, a mocking voice rang out from the other side.

"That should have been Elder Linley of the Azure Dragon clan just now, right? Oh, excuse me, the Azure Pest clan's Elder. I had thought that you, Linley, were an impressive figure. But from the display you just put on, Elder Linley...haha, you really disappoint me!" The snickering laugh rang out. "I, an ordinary Elder of the Edric clan, am here right now. Elder of the Azure Pest clan, dare you fight me?"

This mocking laugh echoed throughout the Skyrise Mountains.

Azure Pest clan?

The Four Divine Beast clansmen were all enraged, and many stared hatefully at the enemy clansmen.

Linley couldn't help but look towards the gray-robed, elfin-looking Elder. In his heart, he was pondering. "What is going on with the eight great clans? They want to make me step out and fight again? Why are they focused on me?" Linley felt that there was something amiss.

"Linley, don't go." Gislason immediately instructed.

"Hey...!" Bebe shouted loudly. "You claim to be eight 'great' clans? Just now, six of you attacked Linley, and two of you were Patriarchs. The eight great clans truly are great; two Patriarchs and four Elders jointly attacked Elder Linley, and yet Elder Linley wasn't even injured in the slightest!"

On the side of the eight great clans, all of the Elders were pondering on how to make Linley fly out of the Skyrise Mountains. They viewed Linley as being the member of the Four Divine who was a true thorn in their side, a burr in their paw.

Book 17, Indigo Prefecture – Chapter 63, A Turn Of Events

The borders of the Skyrise Mountains. The clan leaders and Elders of the Four Divine Beasts clan were all gathered together, holding a secret meeting. This tactic of the eight great clans wasn't a particularly brilliant one, but it really was vile, venomous, and vicious!

When the Four Divine Beasts clan had decided to withdraw from battle, this decision had already caused them teeth-gnashing agony.

But now the eight great clans came and openly mocked them and satirized them. This was like pouring oil onto a flame. The battle that resulted caused the Four Divine Beasts clan to feel angered, enraged, hate-filled. The four clan leaders and Elders were discussing how to resolve this matter, while Linley was pondering this matter as well. "Why exactly do the eight great clans want to kill me so badly? To the point where even two of their Patriarchs would be so shameless as to join forces to attack me?"

Linley was filled with confusion.

At the same time, Linley also looked towards the outside, but as he did, Linley suddenly frowned in puzzlement. "Hey, what are they doing?" The eight great clans had actually sent out several warriors who, working together, were shifting over a small mountain that was a thousand meters wide and nearly a hundred meters tall. The mountains of the Higher Planes were astonishingly heavy; given the size of this dwarf mountain, one could imagine how much it weighed.

"Why did they move a mountain over?" Bebe looked over, puzzled.

Gislason and the other clan leaders, as well as the Elders, all looked over as well. Everyone was rather puzzled.

Those warriors sent out their strengths in unison, directly tossing the dwarf mountain in front of them. It landed to the ground with a massive 'boom' sound, striking heavily down at the demarcating region between the Skyrise Mountains and the base of the eight great clans.

That arrogant looking man with the long green eyebrows flew towards the dwarf mountain.

"Him?" Linley wouldn't forget this man. It was he who had used the weapon-type Sovereign artifact to attack Linley.

The green-eyebrowed man flipped his hand, and instantly, a large amount of green energy knives flew into the air, slashing past the dwarf mountain. Immediately, large amounts of rocks and stones were smashed apart. The wind howled and pebbles blasted everywhere. In but a few moments, the appearance of the dwarf mountain had changed.

It was now eight hundred meters in diameter and fifty meters in height.

An enormous dueling platform!

"Swoosh!" A skinny youth with cold, insidious eyes suddenly flew over to the dueling platform. He swept everyone with his gaze, then said brightly, "You say that we are fighting you in groups? Fine. Today, let's fight one on one. Nobody will be permitted to interfere in a duel. Linley, you killed my older brother. Today, I challenge you, Linley. Linley, dare you accept my challenge?"

"Linley, dare you accept my challenge?"

This voice echoed throughout the Skyrite Mountains, reverberating in the heavens. Even Delia and Wade, originally in the gorge, heard this voice calling out to Linley. Worried, they all flew out.

Everyone looked at Linley, waiting for Linley to respond.

"Linley, don't go fight." Gislason said softly.

"Linley." Delia had already flown out. Linley nodded towards Delia, then smiled.

At this time, the voice turned satirical. "You don't even have the courage to fight one on one. Hmph!" Mocking, disdainful words. Despite that, however, quite a few people on the enemy side were staring at Linley, waiting to see his reaction.

"Bebe, Delia, Wade. Let's go back." Linley just smiled calmly, then turned and left.

Linley could tell that the eight great clans clearly wanted to incite him to go out and do battle. But after the previous experience, where six major experts had attacked him en masse, Linley had come to an understanding. The eight great clans wanted to kill him very much. "If I go accept a challenge now, that isn't valor, that's idiocy."

Seeing Linley fly into the inner regions of the Skyrite Mountains, the Patriarchs and Elders of the enemy clans couldn't help but feel resigned. "Just now, when all of you attacked without killing Linley, I knew that Linley would definitely grow cautious. To force him to come out now... difficult!" A deep, rumbling voice rang out.

"There's no point to saying these things now!"

The eight Patriarchs were filled with regret. They had the perfect chance just then, but they had missed it. Kill Linley now? Linley wouldn't be so impulsive as to give them the chance!

Within the Skyrite Mountains. The great gorge. Three days had gone by since the eight great clans had moved over. During the past three times, the eight great clans had especially arranged for a group of people who, working in shifts, spent their entire time cursing, insulting, and mocking the Four Divine Beasts clan. Of course, they would occasionally have to rest, but the majority of the time in each day was spent cursing and mocking.

It seemed as though mocking the Four Divine Beasts clan was a source of amusement for them.

And of course, they would call out some Elders and clan leaders by name, including Gislason and the other three clan leaders, as well as Linley. These names were often singled out for ridicule. Even though Linley knew that this was a treacherous plot by the enemy side, Linley still grew infuriated upon hearing it.

"Linley, during this period of time, you must not go out, no matter what." Gislason instructed him solemnly.

Linley laughed bitterly and nodded. "Patriarch, don't worry. I understand. Only, to tell the truth..." Linley could still clearly hear the constant mockery and insults drifting down from above. The eight great clans had already spent three days here at the borders of the Skyrise Mountains.

"To be insulted like this...anybody, no matter how good their temper is, will be furious." Linley said somberly.

"In the past few days, quite a few of our clansmen were unable to endure it any longer, and they went to battle the eight great clans on the dueling platform." Gislason let out a sigh. "When one's rage reaches a certain level, one might not be able to endure it. These clansmen will even ignore the orders of their Patriarch and go do battle. But the eight great clans have held to their word as well; the fights have all been one against one. However, the results of the duels have actually been slightly favorable to our side." Gislason, when saying these words, felt rather helpless as well.

The clansmen were going all out, but the experts of the clan weren't able to overcome the enemy.

The battles of the Infernal Realm relied on supreme experts.

Linley understood that this was a gloomy subject, so he changed the topic. "Right, Patriarch. That day, when you saved me, you were able to block that Sovereign scimitar artifact. Are those black gloves of yours also Sovereign artifacts?”

“No.”

Gislason shook his head. “I don’t have any weapon-type Sovereign artifacts. The Lord Prefect gifted me with this set of black gloves. They are godspark weapons.”

“Godspark weapons?” Linley’s eyes lit up.

Bebe had a godspark weapon as well. Divine sparks were indestructibly tough, and so godspark weapons naturally were extraordinary.

“Sovereign artifacts are nourished by Sovereigns. Sovereigns contain astonishing levels of energy in their body, and so Sovereign artifacts have terrifying attack power. Godspark weapons, however, don’t actually have much energy in them. But they do have one strong point; their toughness!” Gislason laughed. “By relying on this godspark weapon, I am able to block even Sovereign artifacts. Still, that day, that wind-type Sovereign scimitar really was too frighteningly powerful. Even I only dared to rely on knocking it sideways and borrowing its own momentum, rather than taking it head on. After all, godspark weapons, compared to Sovereign artifacts, are still slightly inferior.”

Linley nodded.

Perhaps in terms of toughness, godspark weapons weren’t inferior to Sovereign artifacts. But Sovereign artifacts were formed from large amounts of Sovereign’s power nurturing them over countless years. Their attack power was simply too frighteningly great.

"If you have the chance, you should ask for a godspark weapon from the Lord Prefect as well. I trust the Lord Prefect would give you one." Gislason laughed. "The power of your 'Blackstone Space' is indeed great, but your attack power is still a little weak. With a godspark weapon, you will be much stronger."

Linley couldn't help but feel stirred.

He had already witnessed the toughness of a godspark weapon for himself; it was far harder than even his own draconic scales.

"Don't these people grow tired?" Gislason frowned, raising his head to stare into the distance.

"Four Pests clans, why is it that you have only sent ordinary Highgods? Where are the Elders? You let all these minor figures come out to fight, while the Elders all hide like cowards. Haha..." Mocking laughter drifted in from outside.

Linley couldn't help but furrow his brow in anger.

Although he was able to forcibly restrain his anger, he was still annoyed when hearing these things. When one grew annoyed, one would become irritable as well.

"Endure for a few more days. The clan is currently carving out an enormous magic formation that will form a giant elemental barrier. By then, all sound will be blocked out between the outside world and us.” Gislason said helplessly. Being constantly assaulted by those voices was a form of torture.

.....

In the air above the Skyrite Mountains, an enormous elemental barrier had taken form. No matter what the forces of the eight great clans were saying, the clansmen were unable to hear it. But although they couldn’t hear it...everyone still felt unhappy.

This sort of action was akin to just holding their hands over their ears. They felt humiliated!

“The final bottleneck of the Profound Mysteries of Vitality truly is hard to break through.” Linley sat in the meditative stance atop a grassy area. Linley had been seizing every moment, wanting to reach mastery in the Profound Mysteries of Vitality, so as to become a Highgod.”

In the past few days, although at first, the eight great clans had continued their insults and mockery, the clan had erected that enormous magic formation, sealing off all sound.

These things caused Linley to constantly feel a suppressed rage in his heart.

“Boss.” Suddenly, Bebe’s voice rang out. “Grandpa came.”

Linley opened his eyes. He saw that in mid-air, Beirut, Bebe, and Phusro were flying down. Beirut had that perpetual smile on his face. Linley immediately stood up, walking forward to greet them.

"Linley, you are actually able to keep calm, eh?" Beirut chortled.

"What other choice do I have, other than keep calm?" Linley said helplessly.

"Aren't they holding one-on-one duels outside? Why don't you go?" Phusro asked with curiosity, while Linley said resignedly, "Phusro, those eight great clans are definitely fixated on killing me. In addition...I'm still a bit too weak. I'm not a match for those eight Patriarchs."

Phusro laughed. "I have to tell you, if you don't go now, in the future, it'll be hard for you to find another opportunity like this."

"What do you mean?" Linley asked disbelievingly.

In the future, he wouldn't have a chance to go out and fight? Linley looked suspiciously at Beirut and Phusro. "Lord Beirut, what are you two...?"

"It is about time for this noisesome performance to come to an end." Beirut laughed calmly. "Come. Take me to your Patriarch."

"Grandpa, the Patriarch doesn't know that you are here?" Bebe was rather astonished.

Phusro laughed resignedly. "Your Grandpa wanted to see you right away, so he flew over here directly...those patrolling warriors recognize myself and Beirut, so they didn't dare stop us." Just as they spoke, several whooshing sounds rang out.

"Lord Prefect." Gislason and several others flew over.

"Lord Prefect, you should have informed me that you were coming. I would've gone to welcome you." Gislason said with a laugh.

Beirut just laughed calmly. "Enough, Gislason. Hurry up and give the order to your Elders as well as important clansmen. Have them all be summoned here. Today, I will help your Four Divine Beasts clan and the eight great clans resolve the bonds of enmity and hatred that have ensnared you."

Gislason was stunned, and the Elders behind him were stunned as well.

In recent days, especially after the eight great clans had moved to the Skyrise Mountains, Gislason and the others had long ago begun to feel exhausted from the ongoing mental pressure. None of them knew...when this would come to an end.

Sometimes, they too wanted to act as those ordinary clansmen had. To go crazy, and to go battle against the enemy!

But they were clan leaders and Elders. They had to consider what was in the best interests of the clan!

The pressure of carrying these heavy burdens had nearly driven them mad.

"Lord Prefect, you...what did you just say?" Gislason stuttered.

"Isn't this what you've always wanted me to do?" Beirut laughed calmly.

A look of wild joy appeared on Gislason's face. With a 'bang' sound, he actually fell heavily to his knees, his eyes glistening with tears. "Lord Prefect, I...our Four Divine Beasts clan will never forget the kindness you have shown us!" Involuntary tears came to the eyes of the Elders behind him as well.

"Hurry up and go invite the other three clan leaders. Have the Grand Elder and the others come as well." Gislason hurriedly instructed.

"Yes, Patriarch!"

These Elders were moving with vigor and purpose now.

Linley just stared sideways at Beirut, who turned and looked back at him. "Linley, why are you looking at me like this?"

"I...I somewhat can't believe it." Linley still felt as though he were in a dream.

Although nobody in the eight great clans was capable of overcoming Beirut, still...the clan had multiple Sovereign's Emissaries. If Beirut was going to force them to resolve their hatred with each other...wasn't this going to cause a huge amount of trouble for him?

"Patriarch! Terrible news!" A figure flew over at high speed. "The Grand Elder, the Grand Elder, she's gone to the dueling platform. She's currently battling against the forces of the eight great clans!"

"What?!"

Gislason instantly grew frantic.

"Let's go have a look." Beirut just laughed as he spoke.

Book 17, Indigo Prefecture – Chapter 64, Supremacy

“The Grand Elder went to the dueling platform?” Linley was very puzzled as well.

He immediately followed Beirut, Phusro, and the others as they flew out of the great gorge. After flying out of the gorge, Gislason glanced sideways at the elemental barrier covering the entire Skyrite Mountains, then shouted towards a group of patrolling warriors above Dragon Avenue, “Convey my orders. The entire elemental barrier is to be withdrawn and dispersed!”

“Uh....yes, Patriarch!”

These patrol warriors were rather surprised, but then they immediately came to their senses.

Linley stared at the elemental barrier covering the entire Skyrite Mountains. “This is an insult. A humiliation for the clan!” Others were insulting them, but all they could do was hold their hands over their ears, not daring to fight back? If this wasn’t humiliating, what was?

The dueling platform between the Skyrite Mountains and the eight great clans. After multiple battles, it was filled with countless holes already, and dark red blood stained the entire dueling platform.

“Haaaargh!”

An illusory draconic claw pierced through the enemy's skull, then retracted. The Dragonformed Grand Elder glanced calmly into the distance. "Hmph. Next!" This was the third person she had killed on the dueling platform.

The first person she had killed had been an ordinary Highgod who had won a previous battle.

The second person she had killed was just a Six Star Fiend.

But the third she had killed, that was an Elder-level expert.

"Gaia! It seems today, you are looking to die." The experts of the eight great clans hastened over as well.

"Looking to die? I want to see which of you members of the eight great clans will be capable of killing me today." The Grand Elder's icy gaze swept through them, no fear in her eyes at all. The past ten thousand years had already pressured the Grand Elder to the point of madness.

Her father had died, causing the Grand Elder endless grief.

The clan had been unable to escape from this disaster, and as they had fled and been pursued, her husband had died.

And now, a few centuries ago, her one and only son, Forhan, had died as well. And she herself had been forced to kill him with her own two hands.

Who could understand the level of grief, pain, and depression in the Grand Elder's heart? Still, in her heart, she always remembered the clan, and that she had to remain strong for the clan. But in the past few days...

The eight great clans had been like mosquitoes, constantly mocking and insulting the Four Divine Beasts clan to the point where the clan had even been forced to set up an enormous elemental barrier. This sort of action caused the Grand Elder to feel humiliated.

She wasn't able to endure it any longer. She didn't want to continue suppressing herself either. She was afraid that she would go insane!

Kill, then!

Kill to her heart's content! Only in slaughter would she be able to vent the rage and grief in her heart.

The Grand Elder stood there arrogantly on the dueling platform, her silver masked smudged with a hint of blood. "Who will come fight against me? No matter who comes, I will accept the challenge." The Grand Elder's gaze swept past the eight Patriarchs as she snickered.

The eight Patriarchs all felt that this was rather troublesome.

The second generation members of the Four Divine Beasts clan all had Sovereign artifacts. Gislason, for example, had a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact. As for the Grand Elder, Gaia, she had an armor-type Sovereign artifact that was fused with her draconic scales.

Although the eight great clans didn't fear her, the Grand Elder was very hard to deal with, given that she had an armor-type Sovereign artifact.

"Patriarch Barbary, it should be easier for you to deal with her. You go." Patriarch Boleyn said.

Patriarch Barbary swept his tiger-like gaze forward towards her. Nodding slightly, his body suddenly flickered as he flew atop the dueling platform.

"I knew that it would either be you or Venna. None of the other six dare." The Grand Elder snickered. This armor-type Sovereign artifact made it so that the Grand Elder could ignore the material attacks of the enemies, while she herself could use her powerful body to attack.

The Grand Elder's soul defense was also very strong; after all, she had that azure glow that was her innate ability, as well as an ordinary soul-protecting artifact.

But of course...

Although she was powerful, the eight enemy Patriarchs were also powerful.

"Gaia, today is the day of your death." A deep voice rang out, which seemed to reverberate within that mighty chest. Patriarch Barbary, more than three meters tall, extended his right arm. A long blue whip suddenly appeared, tens of meters in length, like an enormous blue serpent.

“Who knows which of us shall be the one to die!”

The Grand Elder said in a fierce voice. And then, her body suddenly shot forward, instantly passing through the dueling platform. Patriarch Barbary leapt forward as well, his long whip lashing out, forming multiple circles that sought to wrap themselves around the Grand Elder.

By the time Beirut, the Patriarch, and the others hurried over to the borders of the Skyrise Mountains, the Grand Elder and Patriarch Barbary had already been locked into fierce combat. Still, in this battle, the Grand Elder was at a disadvantage.

That long whip was too monstrously powerful.

“This...this is the power of the Grand Elder?” Linley stared, amazed, at the scene before him. The Grand Elder and Patriarch Barbary had completely transformed into two balls of dancing shadows, but the low sound of hammer-like blows and the spatial explosions that could be seen everywhere caused Linley to stare in disbelief.

Beirut glanced sideways at Linley, then laughed calmly. “Don’t be so surprised, Linley. Gaia’s draconic scales includes an armor-type Sovereign artifact in them. Naturally, her punches and kicks are formidable. As for her opponent, that long whip is a weapon-type Sovereign artifact. Sovereign artifact against Sovereign artifact...the collisions will naturally be very powerful.

Linley took a deep breath.

“Linley, the power of your weapons are a bit weak. Would you like a weapon that is a bit more powerful?” Beirut laughed calmly.

Linley turned to look towards Beirut, his eyes filled with amazement. No matter how stupid he might be, he could tell that Beirut seemed to be offering him a powerful weapon. What sort of weapon? The first thing Linley thought of was...a godspark weapon!

“It isn’t easy for me to make a godspark weapon either.” Beirut laughed calmly. “So you work hard first. Once you become a Highgod, I’ll make one for you.”

Linley’s heart surged with excitement.

With a godspark weapon, he would at least have some capability of resisting the attacks of an enemy with a Sovereign weapon.

“Work hard and become a Highgod soon.” Beirut chortled.

Linley turned his head to stare at the platform. The Grand Elder’s battle against Patriarch Barbary had already reached a feverish point, and that long whip seemed to have transformed into countless giant serpents, surrounding the entire dueling platform.

“How could it become like this?” Linley stared at the dueling platform in surprise. The longer Patriarch Barbary fought, the more relaxed he seemed to be. That long whip had already reached the level of seeming to have a million branches, constantly and endlessly encircling the Grand Elder.

The more he watched, the more Linley realized how truly limitless the profound mysteries were.

"He's trained quite well in the Laws of Water." Beirut said in praise.

"Eh?" Beirut glanced sideways at Linley. "This kid...he really does get absorbed so easily." Beirut finally began to understand why Linley trained so quickly.

While Beirut's group was watching the duel, the Patriarchs and Elders of the eight great clans were staring towards them in shock. "That Beirut came. He actually came!"

"Beirut won't interfere, will he?" A hint of panic flashed through Patriarch Boleyn's eyes.

"We didn't violate his orders. He won't interfere." Patriarch Reinales said with certainty, but despite saying that, he still felt worry in his heart.

The eight great clans felt a hint of dread towards Beirut.

When one reached the level of the clan leaders of the Four Divine Beasts clan, the Patriarchs of the eight great clans, or the Grand Level, it could be said that their power was comparable to the Asuras of the Infernal Realm! But although they were powerful, they weren't monstrously powerful.

Soul defense, material defense...they had no weaknesses.

At their level, they had no need to fear each other. For someone on the other side to kill them would be difficult. But for them to kill someone else on the same level? Also difficult! It was much like how right now, Patriarch Barbary and the Grand Elder found it very hard to make this battle a life-and-death battle!

But Beirut was different!

Monsters like Beirut and Dunnington stood at the very peak of Highgods. They were capable of killing Asuras of the Infernal Realm. The power of individuals such as them was on a terrifyingly strong level.

If Beirut truly wanted to unleash a bloodbath, he could massacre the eight great clans. One could imagine how terrifying he was!

"Life without end, in a constant cycle...life without end, in a constant cycle..." Linley murmured to himself. He actually closed his eyes, and in his mind appeared the blurry shadow of that whip, and the profound mysteries held within it...

Seven Elemental Laws. Four Edicts.

Although they had different names, they all had some commonalities; for example, earth had the Essence of the Earth, while fire had the Essence of Fire. Some soul mutants, in turn, were capable of fusing and simultaneously using profound mysteries from different Laws.

Why were they able to fuse them?

Because they had commonalities and shared characteristics!

Different Laws weren't completely separate; their profound mysteries were all interconnected. The Elemental Laws of Water had a hint of a connection with the 'Profound Mysteries of Vitality' of the Laws of the Earth. At this moment, Linley just so happened to seize that connection...

Linley was completely absorbed in his insights, but Gislason and the others were growing somewhat frantic. "Lord Prefect, my little sister's situation is becoming worse and worse. Let's pause it." Gislason wanted to pause it, but he didn't have the ability to.

Two Sovereign artifacts were clashing against each other. He didn't dare to intervene!

"This sort of battle is indeed pointless." Beirut laughed calmly.

"Swish!"

He moved so quickly, it seemed as though he had teleported!

Beirut instantly inserted himself into the center of the dueling platform. With a low thudding sound, the entire battle suddenly ground to a halt. Beirut was gripping one end of the long whip in one hand, while clutching the Grand Elder's draconic claw in the other.

"Whoah..." Bebe stared, wide-eyed.

"Too powerful." Gislason, the Vermillion Bird Matriarch, the other clan leaders, and even the Patriarchs of the eight great clans couldn't help but feel their hearts clench tightly. The Grand Elder's punches were comparable to the attacks of a Sovereign artifact, while the long whip really was a Sovereign artifact, and had transformed into countless movements.

But Beirut had effortlessly grabbed each with a single hand.

He dared to actually grab Sovereign artifacts with his bare hands...the power and might of Beirut caused Gislason and the others to be completely stunned. Although Beirut was also an Asura of the Infernal Realm...he vastly outstripped the other Asuras.

"Enough. Let it be finished." Beirut said calmly.

The Grand Elder and Patriarch Barbary were both stunned. The Grand Elder silently retreated, while Patriarch Barbary opened his mouth as though he wanted to say something, but he didn't dare to. In the end, all he could say was, "Since the Lord Prefect has made the request, I will spare her life." After speaking, all he could do was fly back.

The eight great clans on one side. The Four Divine Beasts clan on the other. And between them, standing in the center of the dueling platform, surrounded by countless experts, was Beirut.

"Lord Prefect, why didn't you tell us that you were coming?" Patriarch Boleyn laughed merrily, seeming to be quite friendly. There weren't many clans that would dare offend monstrous individuals such as Beirut or Dunnington.

Even when the Four Divine Beasts clan was at the height of their power and glory, with the four Sovereigns behind them, although the clan didn't fear Highgod Paragons, they wouldn't want to offend figures on that level either.

"Oh. Today, I came to help your two sides resolve your differences with each other." Beirut laughed calmly.

The Patriarchs and Elders of the eight great clans couldn't refrain from having stiff looks appear on their faces.

"It has been more than ten thousand years now. You have been battling in my Indigo Prefecture this entire time, and I have been watching everything. By now, the Four Divine Beasts clan have lost enough of their Elders, and their reputation has been badly damaged as well. This punishment is sufficient! As I see it, your eight great clans should return to the places from whence you came." Beirut said elegantly and lightly.

Return to the places from whence they came?

The eight Patriarchs were so furious, their faces reddened. The Elders of the eight great clans were also so angry that they could die.

"Lord Prefect." Unable to restrain his fury, Patriarch Edric spoke out. "In all these years, our eight great clans have never disobeyed your orders. We have never attacked into the Skyrise Mountains. Back then, you said... that as long as we do not attack into the Skyrise Mountains, you will not interfere. So why is it that today you are interfering?"

The eight Patriarchs felt hatred.

Hatred for Beirut for not honoring his promises. They were indeed afraid of Beirut, but no matter how powerful Beirut was, he couldn't just ignore his promises.

Beirut just let out a calm laugh. He didn't say a word.

Patriarch Boleyn's hoarse voice rang out as well. "Lord Prefect, it is true that many members of the Four Divine Beasts clan have died. But over these years, haven't our eight great clans also lost many people? What's more, when the four Sovereigns were alive, the Four Divine Beasts clan's actions left behind one blood debt after another. My own son was killed by the members of the Four Divine Beasts clan, and the reason? That person took a fancy to my son's wife!"

"Lord Prefect." The Nether Serpent Patriarch also said in a low voice. "I had nine sons and daughters, but now? Only one is left! The other eight all died, and all of them died unjust deaths. Even if our Barbary clan ignores the other blood debts which were incurred...if it weren't for the fact that we hate them so much, why would we be willing to sacrifice even our Elders, for the sake of eradicating them?"

"Beirut." Reinales said in a low voice. 'You and I are both Emissaries under the command of the Bloodridge Sovereign. I imagine you know my story...you tell me. Can I possibly so easily give up the enmity I hold against them?"

"Lord Prefect..."

All eight Patriarchs spoke out angrily.

They had killed many members of the Four Divine Beasts clan, yes...but had it been easy for them? Their Elders had died as well, one after the other. In addition, the stockpile of Sovereign's Might which their eight great clans held was smaller than the stockpile held by the Four Divine Beasts clan. In fact, over the course of revenging themselves upon the Four Divine Beasts clan, the eight great clans had actually lost slightly more Elders.

It was only because those losses were evenly spread amongst their eight clans that they had been able to withstand these losses.

Over all these years, they too had lost around two hundred Elders! Their Elders were also the pillars of their clans. Did they want their Elders to die? They weren't willing for it to happen...but over the course of countless years, from ancient times till now, the amount of hatred that had accumulated was simply too great!

They were willing to move their entire clans and willing to spend the lives of their Elders in order to fight. They were even willing to use words to insult and mock. These actions were very despicable, and they cared about their face as well. Did they want to do these things?

No...but they had no choice!

The Four Divine Beasts clan had retreated into the Skyrise Mountains. This was their only way to get them to come out!

"I know that your eight great clans and the Four Divine Beasts clan have great enmity. But the Four Divine Beasts clan has lost nearly ninety percent of their Elders, and their reputation has suffered greatly as well...I expect that the entire Infernal Realm will come to learn of these things. The glory of the Four Divine Beasts clan is over, and many of their Elders died...it is enough!"

Beirut said calmly, "And what's more, in the past, they didn't exterminate your clans either."

"Lord Prefect, originally, you said that if we didn't attack the Skyrise Mountains, you wouldn't interfere. But today!" Patriarch Boleyn couldn't help but speak out. The other seven Patriarchs as well as a large group of Elders were all staring at Beirut as well.

The Four Divine Beasts clan was staring at Beirut as well.

The members of the Four Divine Beasts clan had nearly been pushed to the brink of madness. Each of them was filled with the utmost agony. They now hoped...that the issues between the two sides would come to an end!

"I did indeed give my word!" Beirut laughed calmly. "And it is true that you have never attacked the Skyrise Mountains. However...today, I'm not the one interfering in this matter. Rather...the almighty Sovereign is!"

Beirut waved his hand, and a piece of lambskin parchment with complicated magic runes appeared within it.

"Crackle..." The lambskin suddenly ignited, and a strange energy ripple spread out.

The eight Patriarchs were stunned.

"Sovereign?" They didn't dare believe it.

But right at this moment, a very unique sort of energy appeared in the world. A black energy quickly began to coalesce in the skies, and this black energy was the awe-inspiring 'Destruction-type Sovereign power'. To coalesce Sovereign power out of thin air...what sort of ability was this?

A large amount of Destruction-type Sovereign's Might took form in mid-air, coalescing into an enormous black face that was tens of meters high.

A terrifying, awe-inspiring aura of supremacy spread out.

"Sovereign!" Reinales was the first one to sink to his knees in supplication. He could immediately recognize...that this was the Bloodridge Sovereign whom he served.

The enormous black face floated there in mid-air, staring down at the various Patriarchs and Elders, as well as the millions of clansmen of the two sides. Everyone felt as though they couldn't breathe. "Whooooosh." Countless people fell to their knees, all of them incomparably nervous.

"Sovereign." Beirut bowed.

The enormous black face revealed a hint of a smile towards Beirut, and then said in a voice that echoed like thunder, "Let the matter between the eight great clans and the Four Divine Beasts clan come to an end. Return to the places from whence you came."

"Yes!" Reinales was the first to respond.

Although the other seven Patriarchs were reluctant in their hearts to do so, they still said in a respectful voice, "Yes!"

Beirut alone was enough to engender terror in them, to say nothing of a Sovereign. It would be utter simplicity itself for a Sovereign to annihilate all eight of their clans. The supremacy of a Sovereign...was inviolable and irresistible!

"Beirut." The enormous black face turned to look towards Beirut, his gaze like pillars of light.

"Sovereign." Beirut bowed.

"Who is that youth standing over there?" The enormous black face said. "In this place, aside from yourself, only that youth remains on his feet." The Sovereign's gaze was focused towards the distance. When a Sovereign descended, who would dare to be so wild and arrogant as to remain on his feet? Puzzled, Beirut turned his head to look, and Gislason and the others did so as well...

And they saw that Linley was standing there, his eyes shut, not moving at all. It seemed as though he even had a hint of a smile on his face.

"Linley?" Beirut felt rather amazed as well.

Just now, when they saw the Sovereign appear, Gislason and the others had all immediately knelt down nervously to await the Sovereign's edict. Who would pay attention to Linley? Even if they had noticed anything, they wouldn't dare to make a sound.

"Boss." Bebe said frantically through their soul connection, but Linley didn't react at all.

"Sovereign, he's Linley, the one I mentioned to you before." Beirut said in a low voice.

"Oh." The Sovereign looked towards Linley curiously, and the beam of light emanating from his eyes fell upon Linley. "Someone is actually absorbed in gaining insights during the moment when I descend. In all my years, I've never seen this sort of situation happen before."

And right at that moment...

"Rumble..."

A unique ripple surged out as the Laws of the universe descended. This sort of Law-ripple was one which everyone here was all too familiar with. These were the ripples of the Law which appeared when one became a Deity, or when one's divine spark transformed. From within Linley's body, a divine spark emanating an earthen yellow aura flew out.

The Laws of the Earth were transforming this divine spark, and at the same time, the soul was being transformed as well...

A Sovereign. The four clan leaders of the Four Divine Beasts clan. The Patriarchs of the eight great clans. Hundreds of Elders. Countless clansmen. They all watched as Linley became a Highgod. This perhaps had never before happened in the entire history of the Infernal Realm.

Some time later...

Linley opened his eyes.

"What's going on?" Stared at by countless people, Linley couldn't help but feel badly startled.

And then, Linley suddenly sensed a terrifyingly powerful presence. He couldn't help but raise his head to stare into the air, where that enormous black face was staring at him. The twin beams of light emanating from those enormous eyes caused Linley's heart to clench.

Linley, having seen a scryer recording of a Sovereign, instantly understood in his heart.

"Sovereign? When did this Sovereign come?" Linley was completely awestruck.

The lips of that enormous black face crooked upwards. "Amusing. Amusing." And then, the enormous black face suddenly vanished. That enormous swirl of Destruction-type Sovereign power suddenly vanished, as though it had never existed.

Beirut flew over, staring at Linley, not knowing whether he should laugh or cry. "Linley, I told you that I'd make a godspark weapon for you when you became a Highgod, but there was...there was no need to make your breakthrough right away."

"I..."

Linley didn't know what to say.

He himself hadn't known that he would suddenly gain that moment of insight.

Book 18, Highgod – Chapter 1, What Type of Weapon?

Linley had suddenly gained an insight and broken through, right at that critical moment when the Sovereign had descended, and became a Highgod. This caused Beirut and a few others to snicker in amusement, but quite a few others present were completely shocked. The most stunned of all were the experts of the eight great clans.

“This Linley...became a Highgod?” Patriarch Boleyn stared at Linley.

“He actually became a Highgod!” Patriarch Edric and the others all had very complicated looks on their faces.

“Even if the Sovereign hadn’t descended, we probably would still have to leave.” The Nether Serpent Patriarch sighed.

The reason behind their thousand years of savagery was because they were worried about Linley. They believed that the God-level Linley had to have fused at least five profound mysteries for him, given his power. And once Linley became a Highgod, he probably would have fused all six types and become a Highgod Paragon!

The terrifying power of a Highgod Paragon would be no lower than Beirut’s!

“Fortunately, he didn’t make his breakthrough earlier.” Patriarch Reinales whispered.

"Right." The various Patriarchs all had very chaotic, mixed emotions right now.

The descent of the Sovereign had caused them to make an unwilling decision. But now that Linley had become a Highgod, they were frightened at the 'close call' they had.

Once a Highgod Paragon began a slaughter, the experts of their eight great clans would be like ragdolls for dismembering. Just look at Beirut! He even dared to block attacks from Sovereign artifacts head on. Who could resist such a monster?

"The Four Divine Beasts clan is so lucky, for such a genius to have appeared in their ranks." Patriarch Barbary said in a low voice. "Let's hurry up and leave."

"It really is time to leave."

The various Patriarchs all turned and left. They didn't dare to violate the orders of a Sovereign, and Linley's presence made it so that they left of their own accord as well. No matter what...today, the matters between the Four Divine Beasts clan and the eight great clans had come to an end.

The members of the Four Divine Beasts clan were all completely delirious with excitement and joy. Quite a few clansmen began to weep on the spot. From this day onwards, their Four Divine Beasts clan would no longer have to experience countless dangers and live a life of humiliation.

"It's over!"

"Haha, it's finally over!"

Celebratory voices rang out in the air above the Skyrite Mountains. Many clansmen were so excited that they fell to their knees, sobbing. The constant insults and taunts they had suffered in recent days from the eight great clans had been a sort of psychological torture to the Four Divine Beasts clan.

Finally...it was over!

"The forces of the eight great clans have left." Bebe said.

Linley turned to look as well. The Patriarchs and Elders led the way, and the clansmen of the eight great clans, like a massive, roiling flood of locusts, flew into the air, then boarded multiple metallic lifeforms and left at high speed, leaving behind only those many empty castles and buildings.

"It's all over." Gislason had a very complicated look on his face.

The White Tiger Patriarch let out an emotional sigh as well. "Ten thousand years. Ten thousand nightmarish years. Finally, it's over! Our clansmen won't have to hide in the Skyrite Mountains, and won't have to always be afraid."

Every single member of the Four Divine Beasts clan felt extremely relaxed now.

"Lord Beirut. We will forever remember your great kindness!" Gislason was the first to bow, and then all of the other three clan leaders and Elders all bowed respectfully as well.

Beirut laughed calmly. "If you want to thank someone, thank the Sovereign."

But Gislason and the others all understood that the Bloodridge Sovereign and the Four Divine Beasts clan didn't have much of connection. If the Bloodridge Sovereign had truly wanted to save the Four Divine Beasts clan, he would have shown himself long ago. But he had only done so today...

Most likely, the reason for this had something to do with Beirut.

"Everyone!"

Gislason's voice suddenly rang out, and it echoed in the air above the Skyrise Mountains. Instantly, the countless clansmen all turned their gazes towards him. Gislason said in a sonorous voice, "Today is a day of rejoicing. Over the past ten thousand years, our Four Divine Beasts clan has always been under tremendous pressure, and one Elder after another has perished in battle for the clan...today, we members of the Four Divine Beasts clan have finally once more regained our freedom to roam the skies of the Infernal Realm. We absolutely must celebrate this wonderful event. All clansmen will celebrate for three days!"

"Wonderful!"

"A three day grand celebration!"

Instantly, countless joyful voices rang out, reverberating throughout the air above the Skyrite Mountains.

"Lord Beirut, Phusro, the two of you absolutely must attend our celebration." Gislason looked towards Beirut.

"Definitely." Beirut laughed calmly and nodded.

"Haha." Phusro chortled, then glanced sideways at Linley. As he did, he couldn't help but laugh loudly. "Linley, you made a breakthrough just as you saw the Sovereign. I, Phusro, have lived countless years, but I've never seen such a thing."

Linley could only grin rather awkwardly.

"You did see the Sovereign, right?" Beirut laughed.

"As soon as I saw him, he left." Linley still felt rather stunned. Actually, at the moment of the Sovereign's descent, Linley had already become absorbed in the insights he had gained upon watching the battle between the Grand Elder and Patriarch Barbary.

Linley had no idea as to when the Sovereign had arrived and what he had said.

However...from what everyone else was saying, Linley realized that the departure of the eight great clans was due to them obeying the orders of the Sovereign.

"Sovereigns really are Sovereigns. With but a single sentence, the eight great clans were forced to obediently leave." In Linley's mind, he could still see that massive black face, tens of meters high, that stood in mid-air. He also remembered the terrifying gaze of those two eyes.

The supremacy of a Sovereign. Linley, having experienced it, would never forget it.

"Let's go. Your clan is going to have a huge celebration." Beirut laughed, then flew into the air.

Linley, Bebe, Phusro, Delia, and the others all followed Beirut into the air. As for Gislason and the other clan leaders, they had left early on to go arrange the banquet. This celebration would be one that was held throughout the Skyrise Mountains.

While flying, Beirut suddenly began to laugh at himself.

Linley couldn't help but to turn and look at him. Beirut glanced at him, then said resignedly, "Linley, I really did make more work for myself. I wanted to give you some encouragement, so said that I would give you a godspark weapon after you became a Highgod, but who would have imagined that a few moments later, you would suddenly break through?"

Indeed...

Linley really was a bit too efficient.

"Grandpa, you have to forge a good godspark weapon for my Boss." Bebe said hurriedly.

"Since I've given my word, of course I'll do it." Beirut nodded, then looked at Linley. "Speak, Linley. What sort of weapon do you want me to make for you?"

Even Phusro began to laugh loudly. "Linley, although Beirut's godspark weapons aren't Sovereign artifacts, in terms of toughness and hardness, they are comparable to Sovereign artifacts. In the Infernal Realm...the godspark weapons of Beirut are priceless treasures that can't be bought."

"I want..."

Linley pondered for a moment. He had the Coiling Dragon ring, and his soul had just improved greatly. After he refined more amethysts in the future and repaired the Coiling Dragon ring, his soul defense would rise to an extremely high level. What he lacked right now...was defense against material attacks.

"Lord Beirut, you can go ahead and forge a set of godspark armor that can fuse with my scales, just like the one the Grand Elder has. That'll let my punches and kicks become tremendously powerful as well." Linley said eagerly. With a set of armor, he could use it for both attack and defense.

A dual-purpose artifact!

The smile on Beirut's face suddenly turned stiff and forced.

"Boss...you want a set of armor?" Bebe stared at Linley as well.

"Linley...you really are something." Phusro stared at Linley, not knowing whether to laugh or to cry.

Linley was rather amazed, and he looked at them in confusion. "What? Is this request of mine very excessive?"

Beirut had a very strange look on his face. For a moment, he didn't know what to say. In the end, it was Bebe who explained. "Boss, forging godspark weapons is an ability inherent to and unique to us Godeater Rats. It requires us to devour divine sparks, then refine the essence within, then coalesce the essence into the shape of a weapon."

"But every single divine spark is very small, and the amount of essence that can be refined from each one is tiny. Digesting a divine spark takes a long time as well...thus, to forge a large weapon, just think about how many divine sparks will be needed, how much time would be needed, and how much effort it would take! It's very hard. That's why godspark weapons are generally very small." Bebe explained.

Linley began to understand.

He also remembered how the godspark weapon in Bebe's possession was just a dagger. As for Gislason's set of godspark weapons, it was a pair of gloves. They were all very small weapons.

But what he requested was a set of armor that could cover his entire body. In terms of size, it was probably dozens of times, perhaps even a hundred times larger than Bebe's dagger.

"A set of armor that can cover your entire body...to make this, I'll probably have to work for thousands of years without resting." Beirut felt quite a bit of pressure.

But he had already given his word.

"Lord Beirut, I apologize. I didn't understand much about the forging of godspark weapons." Linley said hurriedly. He didn't want to make things too hard for Beirut. "Just make a sharp sword for me. It just needs to be comparable to Bloodviolet in length."

What Linley lacked right now was attack power. With an extremely sharp godspark sword, his attack power would rise significantly.

"Comparable to Bloodviolet?" Beirut let out a sigh of relief.

Perhaps the amount of divine spark essence needed to make a longsword was somewhat more than what was needed for a dagger or a set of gloves, but...what Linley needed right now was, quite clearly, that sort of thin, sharp sword. The amount of divine spark essence needed would just be a few times more than what was needed for a dagger.

"Lord Beirut, what I lack right now is attack power, and so the sharper this godspark weapon, the better.” Linley said.

Beirut said confidently, “Forging something as hard as a godspark weapon and making it sharp is very easy...however, to forge this godspark weapon, I’ll still need to spend roughly a hundred years. You have to wait for a time.”

“No rush, I’m in no rush.” Linley laughed.

The Four Divine Beasts clan was in a state of peace now, and he himself had become a Highgod. Linley couldn’t think of anything he had to do right away. The only thing he ‘had’ to do was spend time with his family, and continue training as much as he could.

The members of the Four Divine Beasts clan all went wild. They all celebrated madly, and be it at the Patriarch’s residence or remote areas such as that great gorge, banquets could be seen everywhere. Everyone from the Patriarch to recently born Saints were all celebrating.

Linley, as an Elder, naturally was toasted by many people.

After three days passed...

Within the great gorge.

“The clansmen have all gone crazy with joy.” Linley laughed as he looked outside the window. The three days of mad celebration had caused the entire Skyrite Mountains to be filled with a festive aura. The stifled, depressed aura that had been present for so many years had been wiped away all at once.

Everyone was exceedingly happy.

"You've been smiling non-stop for the past three days." Delia couldn't help but laugh.

Linley laughed and nodded. "Right, Delia. That day, when I became a Highgod, I didn't have the chance to carefully inspect myself, and I've been too busy the past three days as well. You go take care of something else. I'm going to spend some time investigating myself." Linley said, then sat down in the meditative position on their bed.

Delia, seeing this, just laughed, then walked out of the room.

After having reached the Highgod level, he had been baptized once more by the natural Laws. The soul of Linley's Highgod earth clone had increased in power nearly tenfold. Although the other souls weren't strengthened much, still...

Linley's five souls were in reality all one soul. Under the influence of his divine earth clone's soul, the other four souls were slowly improving as well.

Actually, as long as Linley took his divine earth clone into his original body, then the spiritual strength of the divine earth clone would become the spiritual strength of his original body. After all...they were one to begin with.

"A little while later, I'll need to spend some time refining some amethysts." With a thought, Linley reached out and connected with the plane of the Elemental Sea.

The Elemental Sea.

This was a vast, roiling, endless, boundless sea of earthen yellow light. The deeper into the sea one looked, the higher level the quality of the energy of the 'seawater'.

By now, Linley had become a Highgod. He could already see very deep into the sea, and deep within the sea, a large amount of liquefied Highgod-level divine earth power was present.

"What a thick, dense layer of Highgod-level divine earth power. When I had become a Highgod earlier, I was too worried about the clan, so I didn't spend much time examining this bottom layer, and to see what it has!" Linley controlled his divine sense to delve still deeper into the Elemental Sea.

An incredibly dense and incomparably powerful aura spread out as waves of earthen water swirled about at the bottom.

The earthen yellow water was clearly different from the ordinary liquefied divine power.

"That should be...?" Linley's divine sense wasn't able to go down any further, but he was able to vaguely sense..."The aura of Sovereign's Might? Right. It is Sovereign's Might!" After having seen Sovereign's Might for so long, Linley completely understood.

After all, the depths at which he could investigate was still a ways off from the deepest reaches.

"The bottom of this Elemental Sea is filled with Sovereign power?"
Linley was rather stupefied.

The bottom of the Elemental Sea was boundless and limitless. So much Sovereign power made one grow desirous just looking at it...but Highgods had a limit to the depths at which they could investigate. There was no way they would be able to actually acquire any of it!

Book 18, Highgod – Chapter 2, Mirage

Deep within the Elemental Sea, invisible currents of power swirled about, and the endless waves of water formed from Sovereign power rolled forth.

“I can see it, but I can’t get it.” Linley felt an itchy feeling in his heart.

So much Sovereign power! However, the Elemental Sea was something which every single Deity could sense. Highgods had more powerful souls, and thus were generally all able to sense the region containing Sovereign power. “The souls of Sovereigns are far more powerful than the souls of us Highgods.”

Linley quickly cast it aside.

If he couldn’t get it, there was no point obsessing over it.

“Who knows if there is perhaps a region of even more powerful energy beneath the region of Sovereign power?” This thought suddenly appeared in Linley’s mind, but moments later, Linley shook his head, no longer considering it. “I don’t even have Sovereign power. Why think of other things? But it really is odd. Divine power is divided into Demigod-level divine power, God-level divine power, and Highgod-level divine power. But I have never heard anyone say that there are different levels of Sovereign power.”

After having lived in the clan for many years, Linley had come to learn...

The Seven Elemental Laws and Four Edicts each had seven Sovereigns, with one being a High Sovereign, two being Intermediate Sovereigns, and four being Lesser Sovereigns. Clearly, Sovereigns were divided into levels as well.

“But why is it that I’ve never heard of there being different levels of Sovereign power?” Linley was very puzzled.

The Four Divine Beasts clan and the eight great clans all had Sovereign’s Might. In addition, Linley had never before gotten the feeling that one person’s Sovereign’s Might was more powerful than another’s. It seemed as though they were all the same.

“Can it be that different levels of Sovereigns all have the same type of Sovereign power? But why then are they divided into High, Intermediate, and Lesser Sovereigns?” Linley couldn’t understand it, and so he stopped thinking about it. After all...each Law had only seven Sovereigns.

Every single Sovereign was a lofty figure. Even the most powerful of Highgods was incomparably weak in the face of a Sovereign.

Linley then inspected his soul-protecting Sovereign artifact. He saw rays of spiritual energy circulate throughout it, and a small membrane had appeared over the flaw as well. As spiritual energy continued to circulate through the artifact, the bandage over the flaw was slowly transforming.

“Indeed...only after becoming a Highgod can I truly begin to repair this soul-protecting Sovereign artifact.” Linley sighed in amazement.

The repairing speed was now far faster than it had been when he was a mere God.

It was like a situation where floodwaters were bursting through a broken dam. If you threw little pebbles down into the hole, even if you threw many pebbles nonstop, they would be effortlessly wiped away by the floodwaters. But if you threw large numbers of boulders down, boulders which were dozens of times larger, then the effect would immediately be much better.

The same was true for repairing this artifact. The spiritual energy of a God was, qualitatively, too inferior to a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact. Thus, repairing with it was too difficult.

Ever since the Sovereign's descent, the Four Divine Beasts clan and the eight great clans had ended their struggles against each other. The lives of the members of the Four Divine Beasts clan had returned to tranquility. Linley's family and Bebe's family thus began to live a peaceful life within the gorge as well.

Linley constantly consumed amethysts, strengthening his soul.

Towards the end, Linley actually used up all of the amethysts which he had. He had to end up asking Bebe for many amethysts, allowing himself to continue refining them. Bebe had said magnanimously: "Boss, you just keep refining. I'll give you as many as you want."

In the past, Bebe had spent ten full years harvesting amethysts in the Amethyst Mountains. The number of amethysts he had collected was truly astronomical.

In the blink of an eye, a century passed.

Within the gorge. Linley's room. A long table was covered with food. Linley's family of three and Bebe's family of three were all gathered here. Delia, Nisse, Wade, and Ina were all handing plates of food back and forth, while Linley and Bebe were seated comfortably.

"Boss, how much more can your soul absorb?" Bebe asked. "You've already absorbed so many amethysts."

Upon reaching the Highgod level, Linley's amethyst refining speed had increased tens of times over as well. As his soul had risen in power, his refining speed had only grown even faster. The number of amethysts he had absorbed over the past century was an astonishingly high figure. But clearly...the soul of a Highgod truly was capable of absorbing a great deal of power.

"What, jealous?" Linley pursed his lips. "Bebe, as I recall, in the past, you wanted to compete with me in seeing who would become a Highgod first."

Bebe rubbed his nose. All he could do was manage a resigned laugh.

That time they had gone to Meer City, Bebe had acquired from his grandmother that final soul slice fragment. After absorbing it, Bebe only needed one final step before reaching the Highgod level. But Bebe's speed clearly was much slower than Linley's.

Linley had gained his sudden insight, but Bebe had not.

"Boss, you are amazing. Happy?" Bebe said resignedly, a sour look on his face. "Still. Grandpa told me that once I become a Highgod, my power will be close to Grandpa's power in strength. Boss, you are powerful right now, but when I become a Highgod, I might end up being even more powerful than you."

"Being more powerful than me is a good thing." Linley laughed.

Linley knew well what innate gifts Bebe had. This innate divine ability, 'Godeater', could be described as something which made Bebe invincible amongst his peers. Once Bebe reached the Highgod level, who would be able to resist his Godeater ability?

Perhaps only Highgod Paragons would be able to resist it.

In addition, as a Godeater Rat, Bebe's body was frightfully strong. Just by watching how Beirut dared to use his hands to block Sovereign artifacts, one could imagine how astonishing a Godeater Rat would be at the Highgod level. Bebe hadn't fused any profound mysteries at all...but by relying on his innate gifts, he would still be comparable to Linley after he became a Highgod..

Still, Linley wasn't jealous in the slightest.

Over all these years, Linley and Bebe truly were like siblings, and they were happy for each other as they grew strong.

"I want to break through and gain a sudden insight too. Why is it so hard?" Bebe let out a long sigh.

Right at this moment, Wade walked over, carrying a platter of food. Hearing these words, he couldn't help but say, "Uncle Bebe, I want to make a breakthrough also. When I became a Deity, I only did so thanks to the Ancestral Baptism. It's hard for me to even become a God by myself."

"Hmph."

A low, dissatisfied snort. Ina walked in, carrying a plate of food as well. "Big Bro Wade, in the future, can you not complain about your situation? I'm still...not even a Deity yet." Immediately, Linley and Bebe both began to laugh.

"Daaaad! Uuuuncle!" Ina couldn't help but stare at them, but Linley and Bebe only laughed all the harder.

"Haha, what has all of you laughing so happily?" A loud, clear laugh rang out, and two figures descended from the skies. Linley turned his head to look. It was a black-robed Beirut and a red-robed Carolina.

Beirut's appearance made Linley's eyes light up.

This was because when he saw Beirut, he thought of that godspark weapon. Beirut hadn't come to visit a single time over the past century. This time...had he come because he had finished forging the godspark weapon

"Grandpa." Bebe was extremely happy as well.

Beirut just laughed, then turned his head to look at Ina. "Ina, come over here." Beirut and Carolina both doted dearly on Ina. Ina immediately walked over to greet them and chatted with Beirut and Carolina for a while.

"Grandpa, is this visit of yours because the godspark weapon is finished?" Bebe went straight to the point.

Beirut, hearing this, looked towards Linley, then laughed loudly. "Linley, for the sake of this godspark weapon of yours, I spent a full hundred years. I've finally finished now. Take it!" As he spoke, Beirut waved his arm...

And suddenly, an illusory black blur sliced through the air.

Linley stretched his hand out, directly snatching that sharp sword. But the illusory shadow of the sword was too blurry, and Beirut had thrown it out too quickly, with the intention of making Linley look bad. When Linley caught it, he grabbed it by the blade instead of the hilt.

"So sharp." Linley felt pain in his hand, and a line of blood sprang out from his palm.

He lowered his head...

The sword was long and slender, as thin as a butterfly's wings. This longsword was actually translucent. If one took a close look at the sword, one would see that a black energy was circulating inside of the sword. It was very bizarre. Generally speaking, divine swords would have energy circulating on their surface, but this sword had black energy circulating inside of it, causing one to be stupefied.

In particular, the sharpness of the sword was so terrifying as to make one's heart grow cold.

Although Linley hadn't transformed, he was a Highgod; his body was fairly tough. This sword wasn't bound by anyone, but just by its sharpness alone, it had cut through the palm of Linley, a Highgod.

"This sword..." Linley couldn't believe it.

"Sharp enough for you?" Beirut laughed.

Linley hurriedly nodded. "It truly is sharp. I've never seen such a sharp weapon before."

"Grandpa, how did you make it? Why isn't my dagger this sharp?" Bebe said hurriedly.

Beirut laughed and said, "Actually, I myself am puzzled as to how this sword ended up like this." These words caused Linley, Delia, Bebe, and everyone else to be puzzled. Beirut continued, "I knew that Linley trained in earth, wind, fire, and water; four types of Elemental Laws. Thus...when I forged this sword for you, I consciously only chose to devour and digest Highgod divine sparks of earth, wind, fire, and water."

Linley couldn't help but feel a surge of gratitude.

Actually, when making a godspark weapon, one could just pick some divine sparks at random for the forging. However, Beirut had gone out of his way to be very detailed and careful in this forging for Linley, and so had only used those four types of divine sparks.

"I was very careful in the forging. In the later stages, though..." Beirut laughed. "This sword actually somehow became like one solid whole. Those four different types of divine sparks essences actually fused to become a perfect whole. The power of this godspark weapon is such that it is the finest godspark weapon I have ever made in all these years."

Linley couldn't help but feel a surge of excitement.

"Lord Beirut. Thank you." Linley said gratefully. Beirut truly had expended significant effort in forging this weapon for him.

"Bebe, as for your dagger, I only used darkness-type divine sparks to forge it. After all, you have only become a Deity in darkness." Beirut laughed calmly. "As for Linley's sword...I'm not too clear as to why the power of it is so great, myself."

Sometimes...one might end up creating a perfect masterwork, for reasons one might not even understand.

Perhaps a true masterwork required a bit of luck as well.

Linley carefully stroked this sharp sword. The blood from his cut palm fused into the sword, and this sharp sword which had never before had an owner soon became wholly accepting of Linley, becoming Linley's personal sword.

"Curious. Curious." Linley discovered, after taking complete control of the sword...

That with but a thought, the energy flowing within the sword could suddenly become hidden, resulting in the entire sword becoming translucent. Someone looking at it would think that Linley wasn't even holding a sword at all.

"Linley, pick a name." Beirut laughed.

Linley stared thoughtfully at this incredible weapon. "When using this sword at high speed, even experts will just be able to see a blurry shadow...so let's just call it 'Mirage'." Linley's third weapon...

Mirage! Had arrived in this world!

After acquiring this precious weapon, 'Mirage', he naturally would often use it to train. The more he used it, the happier Linley became. Once this precious weapon was filled with Highgod-level divine power and matched with Linley's tremendous physical strength in Dragonform...

Even Linley was astonished by the power of each sword stroke.

Linley had originally used his fist to execute the 'Firmament Splitter' with enough power to punch a hole in space itself. But...when this incomparably sharp and tough 'Mirage' used the technique...

Space itself would tremble, and wherever the shadow of the sword passed, a tear in space would be left behind.

Within the gorge. On the grassy field outside of Linley's house. Linley was currently wielding Mirage, casually twirling it about. His entire body seemed to have become a gust of wind, fusing with it. One could only see the blurry shadow of an illusory sword, also as agile and untraceable as the wind.

"Slash!"

"Swish!"

Wherever the sword passed, rips in space appeared. It must be understood...this was Linley in his normal, human form. But of course, this was Linley as a Highgod and in possession of a godspark weapon. Nonetheless, one could still imagine how powerful Linley had become now, thanks to these factors.

"Great. Uncle, you are so powerful!" Ina stood off in the distance, her eyes shining as she watched Linley train with the sword.

Right at this moment...

"Rumble..."

Ripples born from the descent of the natural Laws suddenly descended. Even Linley, in the midst of training with his sword, came to a halt. He turned his head to stare towards the location where the ripples were emanating from. "Huh? Bebe's residence? Can it be that Bebe has made a breakthrough?"

Linley still remembered the words that Bebe had spoken to him..."Once I become a Highgod, maybe I'll be even more powerful than you."

Book 18, Highgod – Chapter 3, Goals

The descent of the natural Laws attracted attention from many of the dwellers within the gorge. The members of the Yulan branch all hurried over, looking towards the building where Linley, Ina, Delia, and the others lived.

The clansmen watched as Baruch walked over as well, and they immediately parted for him.

Baruch walked towards Linley. "Linley, who made the breakthrough? Is it Bebe?" Baruch knew that this building was one where Bebe lived in, and so it was very normal for him to come to this conclusion. Linley was in an excellent mood, and he laughed while nodding.

"Bebe actually became a Highgod? He's even faster than me." Baruch shook his head and laughed. Baruch had also reached a bottleneck in the Laws of Water, and would become a Highgod with one more step.

"Clan leader, perhaps tomorrow, you'll become a Highgod as well." Linley said consolingly.

How could Baruch compete against Bebe?

Bebe had those soul slice fragments, and thus rose in power at an unnatural speed.

"Uncle, my father is now a Highgod as well. Is he going to be as powerful as you?" Ina's eyes were shining as she looked towards Linley.

"Not so fast." The nearby Wade said confidently. "Uncle Bebe just reached the Highgod level; he's going to need time for training, whereas my father was able to kill Seven Star Fiends even before he reached the Highgod level. He's much more powerful now." Wade clearly felt very proud of Linley.

"But Father himself said..." Ina didn't really understand.

"He'll be a match for me." Linley laughed calmly.

"Father..." Wade looked towards Linley, puzzled.

"Wade, even I don't feel confident in my ability to resist your Uncle Bebe's innate divine ability." Linley explained.

Once Bebe reached the Highgod level, his normal attacks might be ordinary in power, but his innate divine ability, 'Godeater', was without question an absolutely dominating ability. How many Highgods would be able to endure the 'Godeater' attack? After all, there wasn't even a way one would be able to counter the Godeater technique.

"Boss, stop boasting about me." A voice rang out, and Bebe, wearing that straw hat, walked out of the room with a chortle.

"Father." Ina immediately ran over.

Linley just laughed in surprise. "Bebe, being so modest? How rare." This was completely different from Bebe's normal temperament. Linley could sense...that Bebe had indeed reached the Highgod level.

"Come inside and sit." Nisse welcomed everyone warmly.

Linley, Baruch, and the others all immediately entered the living room. Nisse quickly prepared beverages for everyone. Bebe's face was all smiles, and he was so delighted that even his eyebrows were jumping up and down. Laughing loudly, he said, "Boss, don't boast about me any longer. After having become a Highgod, I know what level of power I now have."

"Oh?" Linley said, puzzled.

"I finally understand that Grandpa Beirut...tricked me!" Bebe said resignedly.

Beirut had once told Bebe that once Bebe became a Highgod, his power would be close to Beirut's.

"My most powerful attack is indeed comparable to Grandpa Beirut's. But that's just my innate divine ability. I'm at most able to use my innate divine ability twice before my spiritual energy is essentially used up. Without my innate divine ability, all I'm good for is taking hits...I'm pretty much an unkillable humanoid golem." Bebe clearly was rather unhappy. "Compared to Grandpa, I'm still a long way off."

Linley laughed.

"Bebe, with that innate divine ability, within a short period of time, you'd at least be able to kill two supreme experts. That's enough." Linley said. "Your grandfather didn't lie to you. When you execute that innate divine ability, how many Highgods can possibly overcome you?"

Bebe sighed emotionally, "I heard that when Grandpa blocked the eight great clans in the past, he only used a single black staff. Every single Elder of the eight great clans who was struck by that staff immediately died, and even the Patriarchs who used Sovereign artifacts against it were badly injured. Grandpa never even used his innate divine ability..."

Linley couldn't help but shake his head.

"Bebe, your grandfather has fused quite a few profound mysteries." Linley said. "You haven't even fused one. How can you compete against your grandfather?"

Lord Beirut's punches and kicks already possessed such tremendous power...but as for Bebe, he had to use his innate divine ability to fight at that level. Clearly, Bebe was rather unhappy about this.

The nearby Baruch said in a booming voice, "Bebe, innate gifts is one thing, but hard work is necessary as well...I, too, have heard that the strength of your body is even greater than Linley's Dragonform. But you haven't fused any of the profound mysteries at all. I imagine that given how Lord Beirut can be one of the ultimate figures of the entire Infernal Realm, he surely must have fused quite a few profound mysteries."

"Right." Bebe nodded.

Linley could guess, however, that the toughness and strength of a Highgod Godeater Rat's body was probably comparable to a divine spark. Most likely, it was tens of times or even a hundred times more powerful than his Dragonform. As for Lord Beirut, most likely, even if he only fused four or five profound mysteries, he would still be more than powerful enough to dominate the continents.

With a powerful body as the base, matched with four or five fused profound mysteries...Beirut definitely had the ability to trample all comers in the Infernal Realm, especially since he had a Sovereign artifact...

"Who knows how many profound mysteries Lord Beirut has fused." Linley was curious.

In the past, from the conversation between Linley and Beirut, Linley had learned...that Beirut hadn't reached the Paragon level. However, his innate gifts were simply too powerful; even if he 'only' fused four or five profound mysteries, he would be comparable to a Highgod Paragon.

"I need to work hard to fuse profound mysteries as well." Bebe clenched his teeth.

Seeing the look on Bebe's face, Linley couldn't help but laugh. "Then Bebe, I'm just going to wait and see how well you do in your fusing."

"Bebe." Suddenly, the nearby Nisse spoke out.

"Hm?" Bebe looked towards her.

"Have you forgotten something?" Nisse stared at Bebe. "Something very important!"

Nisse's stare caused Bebe to feel rather puzzled. He couldn't help but scratch his head. "What are you talking about?" Nisse was so upset, she didn't know whether to laugh or to cry. In the end, she explained, "Back then, you told me that after you became a Highgod, then..."

"Oh...are you saying, go pay a visit to your brother, Salomon?" Bebe immediately realized what she was talking about, and his face went sour. "You were serious about that?"

Nisse's face immediately became unsightly, and she fell silent.

That look on Nisse's face caused the atmosphere of the entire hall to become rather awkward. Linley frowned, then immediately sent through divine sense, "Bebe, what's this about?"

Today clearly was a festive day; how did it end up being so unhappy?

"Boss, Nisse's been here all these years, and has always wanted to go visit her elder brother, Salomon. But you know as well as I do...Salomon, that fellow who forgets the kindness of others, should feel lucky that I don't go kill him. Go pay a visit to him? But at the time, I didn't want Nisse to feel so awkward, so I coaxed her and told her that I wasn't strong enough yet, and that the trip back would be dangerous. I said that after I became a Highgod, I would have enough strength to escort her to the Jadefloat Continent. I just spoke casually, wanting to make her feel better, but who would've imagined...that she always kept these words in her heart." Bebe had a sour look on his face.

Linley completely understood.

Bebe hadn't been serious about it, but Nisse had always remembered it. After all, after the death of her parents, all she had left was her elder brother. Although Salomon hadn't treated Linley and the others with sincerity, he had always been devoted to his younger sister.

"In the past...you just said that to make me feel better?" Nisse finally spoke, a hint of moisture in her eyes.

Bebe was stunned...but he was the obstinate sort.

Back then, he used his ultimate attack with that godspark weapon, wanting to kill Salomon with that dagger. Afterwards, the Seven Star Fiend, Elquin, blocked his attack to save Salomon, resulting in Elquin even losing a divine artifact of his own.

Given the situation, how could Bebe willingly lower his head and go 'pay a visit' to Salomon? Most likely, in Salomon's heart, he also felt a hint of hatred towards Bebe.

"Ninny, the way your elder brother acted towards me that year...and the fact that he tried to get my Boss and Delia killed..." Just as Bebe said these things, Nisse's tears actually began to uncontrollably leak outwards.

Nisse only had this one brother, after all.

Delia, seeing this, knew that things were headed in a bad direction. She immediately said through divine sense, "Bebe, stop saying these things. Although Salomon's actions back then could be considered unrighteous, it was because he falsely believed Linley had betrayed him. For Nisse's sake, make the trip. Otherwise, Nisse will forever have a thorn in her heart...Linley agrees with me on this." Delia simultaneously sent the divine sense into Linley's mind as well.

Clearly, Delia knew that Linley's words were the most effective for persuading Bebe.

"Forget it, Bebe. Give Salomon a chance. If Salomon refuses to show regret and change his ways, then you can act accordingly." Linley sent mentally.

Linley could imagine how Nisse felt.

After all, Nisse hadn't done anything wrong. She was blameless in this matter.

"Fine, Boss. I'll give that fellow one chance!"

Bebe glanced at Linley, then said towards Nisse, "Your elder brother really was a bastard for doing what he did!"

"My brother has regretted it ever since. He really didn't know. He mistakenly accused you, which is why he acted that way. Afterwards, he really regretted it." Nisse said hurriedly.

Bebe reached out with his hand, taking Nisse's. "Ninny, fine then. For your sake, I'll accompany you on a visit to see your elder brother...but with regards to the question of whether or not I'll give him face when I see him, that will depend entirely on his attitude! If he still acts that way... then you can't blame me."

Bebe still couldn't swallow his anger.

"My elder brother will definitely apologize." Nisse said hurriedly, and a hint of a smile appeared on her face once more.

"Father, Mother." Ina finally dared to speak out. "I want to go with you as well!"

"No way." Bebe frowned. "Ina, you haven't even become a Deity. We'll be going to the Jedefloat Continent. The journey will be a long one, and if we encounter any danger on the way over, the slightest shockwave will kill you."

Nisse agreed. "Nana, wait for the future."

Seeing that both her father and her mother were of one mind, Ina felt helpless as well.

The next day, as per Nisse's request, Bebe accompanied Nisse. The two left the Skyrise Mountains, heading towards the Jingan Prefecture of the Jedefloat Continent. This was a very long trip, and the roundtrip would most likely take nearly a century.

As for Linley and Delia, they accompanied Wade and Ina in a tour of Indigo Prefecture.

Despite having been in Indigo Prefecture for so many years, they hadn't had a chance to visit many of the famous places of Indigo Prefecture. While they encountered some difficulties when adventuring in the Indigo Prefecture, given Linley's power, he was able to effortlessly resolve them.

In the blink of an eye...

A hundred years of roaming about had passed. During these hundred years, Linley's four divine clones had focused on their training, with the fastest gains being made by his divine water clone, which finally started on a sixth profound mystery. His divine wind clone was working on the eighth profound mystery as well...but his divine fire clone was doing terribly, still stuck on four mastered profound mysteries, and not having made any progress in gaining even a basic understanding of the other two."

Clearly, Linley's talent with regards to fire was significantly weaker.

Within the metallic lifeform. Linley was seated on a chair.

"Linley, you've reached the sixth profound mystery in water. Look at how happy you are!" Delia brought over a plate of food and wine."

Linley's eyes were gleaming. "Wrong. I'm not happy because I've reached the sixth profound mystery in water. Rather...it's because my Profound Mysteries of Strength and Gravitational Space have started to connect just slightly." Linley was indescribably happy. "It's been two hundred years. More than two centuries have passed since the affairs between our Four Divine Beasts clan and the eight great clans have come to an end. I've finally made a small improvement in the Laws of the Earth! This improvement signifies...that I have hope of fusing four profound mysteries."

"Fusing four? How long will it take?" Delia asked.

"Not sure. Although the Profound Mysteries of Strength are fusing with the 'Essence of the Earth' and 'Gravitational Space', it's just a connection; they aren't completely fused yet. Fortunately, it is completely fused with the Throbbing Pulse of the World. After the other two are completely fused...I'll have four profound mysteries, fused into one." Linley knew very well that in order to have four mysteries fused, he would have to separately fuse the Profound Mysteries of Strength with the other three profound mysteries.

And then, he would begin a final, complete fusion.

"But how long will it take?" Delia asked again.

"If I'm fast, a few centuries or a thousand years. If I'm slow, ten thousand years." Linley laughed.

"So long?" Delia laughed as well.

Linley said solemnly, "Delia, I've been training for roughly two thousand years now, in total. If I continue to train at this rate...to be able to fuse four profound mysteries within ten thousand years is a cause for celebration." Linley stared out at the Infernal Realm from outside the window.

"I no longer have any regrets. I only hope that one day, I will reach the peak of training. Whether it be in ten thousand years, a million years, or even longer...I will continue to pursue my goals." Linley's eyes were filled with a hopeful light.

That year, Doebling Cowart had set him on the path of training. Although Linley's number one priority had been revenge, while training to gain his revenge, Linley had fallen in love with training, and the feeling of constantly exceeding his own limits.

"Linley, you will definitely succeed. I will accompany you the entire time, and wait for you to reach that peak!" Delia couldn't help but take Linley's hands into her own and say in a soft voice.

Book 18, Highgod – Chapter 4, Ironknife Gorge

Linley tightly held Delia's hand as well.

"The pinnacle...right. That day will definitely come, one day." Linley, in his heart, would forever remember the figures of Beirut and Dunnington. They were his goals!

Suddenly, a snicker from his side.

Linley turned to look, only to see Wade and Ina secretly looking towards them. Upon seeing that Linley had noticed them, the two quickly retreated to their own rooms. Linley couldn't help but laugh. "Wade, Nana, hurry up and come over. Right, Nana...your father and your mother have already returned to the Bloodridge Continent. They are now heading to Indigo Prefecture. Most likely, in a year or so, they'll have returned."

"Father is about to return?" Ina stuck her head out, a look of surprise and delight on her face.

Linley laughed and nodded. As he and Bebe were spiritually linked, the two could sense the rough location of each other.

"Oh, that was pretty fast." The nearby Delia said. "Bebe and Nisse, on this round trip, just spent a bit more than a century. It seems they didn't stay too long in the Jingan Prefecture. I wonder how Bebe and Salomon acted towards each other."

Linley laughed calmly. "No matter what, Bebe won't let himself get the worst of it."

Given Bebe's current level of power, how could Salomon be a match for him? Although Salomon was Nisse's older brother, given Bebe's temper, Linley knew very well that if Salomon went too far, even if Bebe didn't kill him out of consideration for Nisse, he would still punish Salomon.

"Linley, how about let's go visit Lord Beirut? It's been so many years since we have visited. We can wait for Bebe there as well." Delia advised.

"Great, great. Let's go to Great-Grandfather's place!" Ina was the first to react.

The Lord Prefect's residence of Indigo Prefecture. Linley, indeed, had never visited this place before. He immediately laughed and nodded, "Fine, then. Let's go to Lord Beirut's place. Bebe knows exactly where I am, so he'll head directly there as well."

Linley's group immediately turned the direction of their metallic lifeform, sending it towards the Lord Prefect's residence.

Indigo Prefecture. The Lord Prefect's residence. This was located in the northern part of the northern district of Indigo City, the chief city of the ten great cities of Indigo Prefecture. The more than half of the entire northern district seemed to reserved for the Lord Prefect, while the personal soldiers and servants of the Lord Prefect numbered in the tens of thousands.

Linley's arrival naturally resulted in a warm welcome from Beirut. Linley's group thus settled down here for now.

In the blink of an eye, nearly a year passed.

Linley and Delia were currently strolling through a flower garden, which was filled with all sorts of fresh flowers. Red ones, blue ones, yellow ones; flowers were spread everywhere. The couple strolled while enjoying the fragrance of the flowers. This was indeed a very enjoyable thing. But suddenly...

Linley turned to look towards the west, smiling slightly. He then turned his head to look at the nearby Delia. "Delia, Bebe and Nisse have already reached Indigo City. I imagine that they'll arrive soon."

"They'll arrive soon?" Delia couldn't help but reveal a hint of joy, but then she was rather puzzled.

"Delia, what is it? Speak." Linley and Delia had been together for so long that Linley could tell from a single glance or a look on Delia's face what she was thinking. Delia hesitated, then said, "Linley, we've been in the Infernal Realm for nearly two thousand years. The Four Divine Beasts clan has already solved its crisis, and you have become a Highgod. I think... that it might be time for us to return to the Yulan continent, right? Sasha and Taylor, our two kids...I really want to see them."

Linley was stunned.

Return to the Yulan continent?

Instantly, Linley's mind became filled with countless scenes. Going to study when he was young at the Ernst Institute. Playing around with Boss Yale, George, and Reynolds. Bitter training within the Mountain Range of Magical Beasts. And the many friends and family he cared about.

Before they discussed the topic of returning, Linley hadn't felt anything, but now that Delia raised it...Linley actually suddenly felt as though a pressing fire was burning in his heart, surging and charging through his emotions and filling his chest with ardor. "Right. It is time to return to the Yulan continent to have a look. After so many years, I wonder how Boss Yale is doing. And Wharton and the others. Sasha and Taylor, those two...I wonder how they are doing." Linley was filled with eagerness.

"Right. Let's go back together." Delia, seeing that Linley had agreed, couldn't help but feel overjoyed. As a mother, the care and concern she felt for her children came from the deepest recesses of her heart. "I wonder how my elder brother is doing..."

Linley also remembered Dixie. Back then, when he had just entered the Ernst Institute, Dixie had been proclaimed its number one genius. But afterwards, due to Linley learning from the Straight Chisel School of sculpting, Linley's spiritual energy had rapidly improved, allowing him to make constant breakthroughs until he had finally surpassed Dixie.

"It has been a long time since Bebe's been back as well. Now that he's returning, let's have him accompany us on a trip to the Yulan continent." Linley said eagerly. "To tell the truth, up till now, I remain quite curious as to what the Necropolis of the Gods within the Yulan continent holds. This time, we can take a look."

After having trained for so long, Linley no longer felt too much interest in the Necropolis of the Gods, but he was still curious, after all.

He still clearly remembered how, that year, Olivier and the others had risked their lives in adventuring through the Necropolis of the Gods. But of course, to the current Linley, the Necropolis of the Gods no longer posed much of a challenge.

"The Necropolis of the Gods?" Delia sighed. "You spent ten full years on that trip to the Necropolis of the Gods. I was worrying about you the entire time in Dragonblood Castle." Hearing this, Linley felt rather ashamed of himself.

"Boss!" Bebe's voice suddenly rang out from afar.

"Bebe arrived. Come, let's go." Linley immediately headed with Delia towards the outside. Once Linley and Delia reached the outside, they discovered that Beirut, Wade, Ina, and the others were already there waiting.

Bebe and Nisse were warmly chatting with Beirut and Ina.

Seeing Linley walk over, Bebe immediately walked towards him and laughed, "Boss, long time no see." As he spoke, he gave Linley a firm hug. Linley just grinned. "How was your trip to the Jedefloat Continent?"

"What do you think?" Bebe quirked his lips.

Linley couldn't help but look at him in puzzlement.

“That Salomon hurriedly apologized, of course. Hmph, fortunately, he knew to act. If it hadn’t been for that...hmph. Hmph.” Bebe let out two snorts, and Linley couldn’t help but let out a sigh of relief. It seemed as though Salomon cared about his younger sister as well, and so had been rather meek in his attitude.

In reality...

After Salomon had seen Linley’s performance in the scryer recording, and after Nisse had let him know about the relationship Bebe had with the Lord Prefect of Indigo Prefecture, Lord Beirut...how could he dare to have a poor attitude?

“Haha, everyone, let’s chat inside.” Beirut laughed.

While walking towards the inner halls, Linley quietly discussed with Bebe, “Bebe, Delia and I have come to an agreement that we are planning to travel to the Yulan continent. We’ve been in the Infernal Realm for so many years, but have never gone back. Do you want to go back with us?”

Bebe’s eyes lit up upon hearing this.

“Yes, of course, yes!” Bebe immediately sent mentally. “Boss, let me discuss this with Nisse. She’ll definitely agree.”

Everyone sat down in the main hall.

Some servants walked over, carrying all sorts of fine delicacies and offering them. Linley said directly, "Lord Beirut, we've been in the Infernal Realm for so long...Bebe and I have decided that we are planning to return to the Yulan continent."

"Returning to the Yulan continent? I'm going too!"

"I'm going as well."

Wade and Ina simultaneously called out.

Beirut let out a surprised sound, but then laughed and nodded. "Makes sense. It has indeed been quite some time since you came to the Infernal Realm. If you want to return to the Yulan continent, you need to be transported back through the 'Ironknife Gorge' of our Bloodrige Continent."

Linley knew that there were teleportation portals scattered throughout the five continents and two seas of the Infernal Realm.

But the price of each trip through these portals was very high.

"Lord Beirut, how much is the transport fee?" Linley asked.

"Generally speaking, moving between the Higher Planes or Divine Planes isn't as expensive. But moving from the Higher Planes or Divine Planes to material planes...now that is exceedingly costly. From material planes to the Higher Planes or Divine Planes, however, is free." Beirut explained.

Linley understood this as well. He knew that it was expensive...but how expensive, exactly?

"I don't know if I have enough money on me." Linley was rather nervous.

Beirut laughed. "But when you go for your trip, as long as you show this medallion, you will be able to use the teleportation portals for free." With a wave of his hand, Beirut pulled out a blood red medallion which emanated a heart-stopping aura.

Linley and the others looked at it.

"Teleport for free?" Bebe's eyes lit up. "Grandpa, give it to us as a gift."

"Hey, I'm just loaning this to you for a single use." Beirut said hurriedly. "This medallion was given to me by the Sovereign himself. In the past, when I casually roamed throughout the countless planes, I relied on this toy. Otherwise, no matter how much money I might have, I wouldn't be able to afford all those teleportations. I'm only giving it to you for a single use. After you use it, you have to return it to me. In the future, if you need it again, I can loan it to you again."

Bebe couldn't help but pout.

Clearly, he was unhappy at how 'stingy' his grandfather was.

"Thank you, Lord Beirut." Linley said hurriedly.

"Haha..." Beirut laughed. "Once you reach the Yulan continent, if there's anything you need, feel free to come to the Forest of Darkness to look for me. My clone has remained in the Forest of Darkness this entire time."

"Clone?" Linley was surprised.

Beirut laughed and nodded.

Linley couldn't help but feel rather surprised...because the 'Beirut' he had met in the Yulan continent looked absolutely identical to this one, in both aura and clothing. Was the 'Beirut' which he had met the person in front of him now...or the clone that was currently in the Forest of Darkness?

"I'm giving this medallion to you. Don't lose it." Beirut said solemnly, then tossed it to Bebe.

Bebe caught it. "Don't worry. How can I lose it?"

On this trip back to the Yulan continent, Linley's family of three and Bebe's family of three headed out together. On the second day after they acquired the medallion, Linley's group of six headed directly towards Ironknife Gorge.

Ironknife Gorge. The teleportation formation for the Bloodridge Continent was located here.

Linley's group flew over, and saw Ironknife Gorge from far away. Ironknife Gorge was an extremely easy-to-recognize landmark, but of course, what sealed its status was the large number of patrolling Bloodridge Soldiers which surrounded the area.

"Newcomers, halt!" The Bloodridge Soldiers called out loudly.

Linley's group immediately landed, and the leader of the Bloodridge Soldiers, a man with short, golden, metallic-looking hair swept Linley's group with his icy gaze, then barked, "Why have you come to Ironknife Gorge?"

"We are going to return to a material plane through the teleportation portal." Linley said.

The golden-haired man couldn't help but be surprised. Quite a few people passed through the portal to the other Higher Planes and Divine Planes, since the price was much cheaper, but returning to a material plane? The price was terrifyingly high.

"Oh. Then come with me." The golden-haired man led the way forward.

Linley's group of six immediately followed after the Bloodridge Soldier, heading deeper into Ironknife Gorge. Moments later, Linley's group arrived at the castle situated at the peak of Ironknife Gorge, where the teleportation array was located. The magic formation which formed the teleportation portal was identical to the one Linley had seen when he had arrived in the Infernal Realm.

"There's actually six of you!"

There were quite a few Bloodridge Soldiers present. One of them weighed Linley's group with his gaze. "Three Highgods, one God, one Demigod, one Saint. According to the rules...returning to a material plane will cost each Highgod one trillion inkstones, and each Highgod can bring ten Gods with them..."

Linley, hearing this, was badly shocked.

He finally understood why it was that almost no Deities had returned to the Yulan continent, despite the passage of so many years. This price was too extravagant. A trillion inkstones...that was most likely the entire networth of most Seven Star Fiends. There was no way an ordinary Highgod could possibly afford it.

"So in total, you need to pay three trilli...uh..." The Bloodridge Warrior only finished half his sentence before seeing the medallion in Bebe's hands.

"Hurry up and activate the transportation magic array." Bebe said calmly.

"Yes!" The surrounding Bloodridge Soldiers, seeing the medallion, instantly stood up ramrod straight, then quickly flew to the various parts of the array, starting to activate it. Suddenly, one of them turned to look at the group. "Milords, where are you heading to?"

"The Yulan continent plane." Linley said.

Book 18, Highgod – Chapter 5, Back to the Yulan Continent!

A cold, desolate wind swept across the world, carrying countless shards of ice and snow and hurling them randomly about. Within this icy world, multiple icebergs rose into the skies. After countless years of being 'carved' by the freezing wind, the icebergs had become completely smooth. If one stared into the surface of the icebergs, one could even see one's reflections.

Within one of the tall icebergs.

Eleven mystical hexagram-shaped magic formations were set here, and next to them, not far away, was a house of ice. Currently, an old man with a white beard and white robes was walking out from within the house of ice, his blue eyes sweeping through the surrounding area. "It's so rare to encounter someone, here in the Arctic Icecap! In recent years, the Saints that have come here to the Arctic Icecap are fewer and fewer in number. It seems I should go on a trip and roam the Yulan continent as well."

This person was Hodan, the Planar Overseer of the Yulan Plane.

Just as Hodan was preparing to fly away, suddenly...

Hodan couldn't help but turn and look. He saw that one of the eleven magic arrays suddenly began to glow with light. Rays of light rose into the heavens in an eye-catching manner, seeming so illusory and dreamlike. Hodan couldn't help but be greatly shocked. "The Infernal Realm. Someone is coming from the Infernal Realm back to the Yulan Plane, a material plane?"

Hodan knew exactly how astonishing the teleportation fee was. Even most Seven Star Fiends probably wouldn't be willing to pay for such a trip.

Originally, his clan's forces had sent out a group of people led by Sadista. Amongst that group, Sadista was the only Highgod present. Because of the cost of the teleportation fee, and how expensive it was to teleport a Highgod, a certain number of Gods and Demigods who teleported alongside the Highgod would be permitted to come for free.

That time, when his clan had sent Sadista and the others, they had spent a trillion inkstones!

"I wonder which wealthy, extravagant person it is." Hodan wondered to himself. He unconsciously bowed from the waist. How would Hodan dare to be disrespectful to a figure who came from the Infernal Realm to the Yulan Plane? Although Hodan bowed, he still looked carefully into the magic array. He wanted very much to know who this person was.

Blurry rays of light formed, slowly coalescing into six figures.

The six figures solidified, and the light of the array faded away.

"Lin...Linley!" Hodan stared with disbelief at the six figures before him.

"Hodan, it's been nearly two thousand years since I saw you. You look the same as always." Linley laughed calmly.

Hodan swept Linley's group with his gaze, shock in his heart. "There are three amongst these six whom I cannot sense the auras of at all. There's actually three of them who are Highgods. Based on the teleportation fee...they spent three trillion inkstones." Hodan was terrified by this figure. "Linley's only been in the Infernal Realm for two millennia. How did he become so powerful?"

More than two centuries ago, the Reinales clan and the rest of the eight great clans had ceased their struggle against the Four Divine Beasts clan.

But Hodan was just a minor figure of the Reinales clan, and was assigned here as the Planar Overseer. He didn't know too much regarding the situation of the clan in the Infernal Realm. Naturally, he didn't understand...what sort of status Linley now had! If he knew that Linley was an Elder of the Azure Dragon clan, Hodan probably would have been stunned.

"Lord Linley, you, on the other hand, are far more powerful than before." Hodan was very respectful. He was just a God; how would he dare to be anything but respectful?

Linley turned to look at the endless world of ice and snow. The vast world was frozen and desolate, but Linley felt warmth in his heart. Because this was his home!

"Wade, this is the Arctic Icecap!" Linley clearly was rather excited. "The Arctic Icecap of the Yulan Plane! The Yulan Plane...my homeland! After two thousand years, I've finally returned! Finally returned, haha..." Linley was so excited that he couldn't help but laugh loudly.

Delia's eyes were moist as well. She was weeping from joy.

"We're back. I wonder how my Leon clan is doing. If my older brother is doing well or not." Delia was incomparably excited.

In the Infernal Realm, nearly two thousand years of time had passed. But the longer they had stayed in the Infernal Realm, the more they had longed for their homeland.

"So this is Father's homeland?" Wade looked everywhere, also quite curious.

"Not even close. The Yulan continent is to the south." Linley laughed. "Come. Let's go to the Yulan continent. Hodan, we'll leave now." Laughing, Linley summoned a surge of earth-type divine power, sweeping them all up to fly away alongside him at high speed, departing from the Arctic Icecap and flying towards the Yulan continent.

As for Hodan, he stared into the distance as Linley left. "That year in the past, I kept on feeling as though Linley was a genius. But who would have imagined...in less than two thousand years, he would have returned from the Infernal Realm. Terrifying. Terrifying!"

To be able to return from the Infernal Realm was a proof of power. How could ordinary Highgods possess a fortune of a trillion inkstones?

Flying was restricted and cumbersome in the Infernal Realm. Upon returning to a material realm, Linley felt his flying speed rise dramatically, and he was now ten times faster than when he had been in the Infernal Realm. He used his divine earth power to wrap everyone up, so as to help Ina, Wade, and the others move more rapidly as well.

After flying a short period of time, Linley saw, off in the distance, the sinuous, coiling northern shorelines off the North Sea.

"Boss, we're at the Yulan continent!" Bebe called out excitedly.

"So this is the Yulan continent?" Ina looked around curiously.

Linley and Delia's faces were slightly reddened. Clearly, both were very excited. It had been two thousand years since they had left, after all. Delia turned to look towards Linley. "Linley, where should we go first? To the Forest of Darkness? Or to Dragonblood Castle?"

Linley let out a low sigh.

"It's been so many years since I've paid my respects to Father. Let's go to Wushan township." For some reason, Linley missed Wushan township the most. Perhaps it was because that was where his roots were. His youth had been spent there. That was where he had met Grandpa Doehring. And that was where he had met Bebe.

"Wushan township. Right. Let's go to Wushan township." Bebe said as well.

"I was born in Wushan township." Bebe turned, explaining to Ina and Nisse.

Wushan township was a place of tremendous meaning for both Linley and Bebe. That was the start of their life.

"Right. To Wushan township. I want to see it." Ina said jubilantly.

"Wushan township is probably covered with magical beasts." Linley sighed. "After nearly two thousand years...I wonder what it has become like." Two thousand years was too long a period of time, after all. It was enough for many things to occur.

"Father, I want to see our ancestral manor as well." Wade was very eager as well.

"Then, let's go."

Linley immediately led everyone directly to the western side of the Mountain Range of Magical Beasts, pressing forward towards Wushan township at a fast pace. Given that he was now a Highgod, he flew hundreds of times faster than in the past, when he was a Saint. Flying through this material plane, where the restrictive forces were much weaker, Linley quickly arrived at the Mountain Range of Magical Beasts.

"When I was young, when I travelled from the Holy Union to the O'Brien Empire, I spent more than half a year. But now, from the North Sea to here, I only spent as much time as is needed to drink a cup of water...oh, and there's Wushan township!" Just as Linley finished his words, he arrived in the air above Wushan township, emerging from the mountains.

But in the air above Wushan township, Linley's group came to a pause, puzzled.

"Uncle, you said there must be many magical beasts here. But when we flew over here from the mountains, we saw many buildings and many people." Ina didn't understand. "Also, is this Wushan township? Why is it so densely populated? There has to be tens of thousands of people here."

"Right. This is the former Wushan township." Linley was certain about this.

As a Highgod, how could he be mistaken about the geography of such a place?

"Look, that's Mt. Wushan over there! Mt. Wushan is still there. So this is Wushan township." Linley pointed to the east, where there was indeed a large mountain. Although nearly two thousand years had passed, Mt. Wushan hadn't changed much. The western side of Wushan township had, however. Because...

There was an extremely beautiful educational institute built here, with an astonishing number of people.

This institute, in terms of size, was far larger than the former Wushan township.

"What's going on here?" Linley was completely confused.

Delia was puzzled as well. "In the past...this place should have been covered with magical beasts. We just flew past the Mountain Range of Magical Beasts. We saw so many buildings on the way over. Look...there are humans in other places nearby as well, but no magical beasts." After that 'Apocalypse Day', the Holy Union and the Dark Alliance had much of their territory taken over by magical beasts.

However...

After nearly two thousand years, this area was actually reclaimed by humanity.

"Two thousand years. Too many things have occurred." Linley sighed. "Come. Let's go to my ancestral manor." As Linley spoke, he flew forward.

Although Linley's group of six flew through the air, the people below didn't notice them at all, partially because they were too high up, and also because Linley used elemental energy to form a cloud around them. Linley slowly flew forward while looking down below carefully. Linley's vision was extremely good...

And he instantly found the centermost location of the institute; his ancestral manor!

"My ancestral manor remains standing?" Linley was surprised.

"Boss, the ancestral manor is actually in perfect shape. In fact, it seems to be in much better shape than it was in the past." Bebe said in surprise as well.

The other areas in this enormous institute were newly constructed, but Linley's former ancestral manor had been preserved and even renovated. Although it had been only two millenia, due to long-term caretaking, it wasn't damaged in the slightest. Linley and Bebe, seeing it, couldn't help but feel excited.

They had so many beautiful memories from this place.

"Let's go down." Linley said softly.

And then, with a 'swish' sound, their six shadows flashed through the skies, landing directly within the courtyard of the ancestral manor. Because they were too fast, they dropped down in less than the twinkling of an eye from the skies. There was no way ordinary people could possibly catch Linley's movements with their eyes.

Within the manor.

"Everything is fine...everything is fine." Linley stood there in the courtyard, looking around carefully. Suddenly, he saw that there was a chair in the courtyard. His eyes instantly turned red. "This chair is still...?" Linley couldn't believe it. Staring at the chair, Linley's memories returned...to when his father, Hogg, had often reclined on this chair, reading books.

Linley took a deep breath.

He could instantly tell that the chair had been recreated in that style; the original chair, after two thousand years, had probably rotted away long ago.

"Wade, this is the chair which your grandfather often sat in." Linley pointed towards the chair as he spoke. "And there...that place. I used to study and learn culture from your grandfather there." Linley still remembered how, every day, he intensively flipped through books and studied, and often had to go through Hogg's strict tests.

"Wow..." Wade stared, wide-eyed, at every location.

"This is the place where I used to sleep. Bebe lived with me as well." Linley pointed to a nearby room.

Bebe couldn't help but grin as well.

"Come. In the back yard is the ancestral hall of our clan. In the past, Bebe was born in a courtyard near the ancestral hall." Linley's face was all smiles, and Bebe laughed as well. "That year, the Boss seduced me by cooking ducks and wild hares for me. Poor me. I was so young and naïve back then."

Linley and Bebe laughed as they headed towards the inner courtyard.

As they walked through the ancestral manor, Linley and Bebe's hearts were filled with warmth.

Right at this moment...

"Eh? Someone is coming." Linley, Bebe, and the others moved away, instantly scurrying into the rear courtyard.

Creeaaak! The door to the ancestral manor swung open.

An old man led dozens of youngsters and youths into this room. "Everyone, this is the place. It was here that the mighty genius grandmaster sculptor, also a genius warrior-magus double-expert, also the founding emperor of the Baruch Empire, and also the master of the sacred place 'Dragonblood Castle', used to live in his youth. The legendary Deity, Linley Baruch. Be careful. You are only allowed to look, not to touch."

The old man explained. "This room was the place where Grandmaster Linley used to live."

"Wow...Grandmaster Linley used to live here. It'd be so awesome if I could go sleep there as well." A youth said softly, his eyes bright.

"Hmph."

The old man couldn't help but frown as he swept these students with his gaze. "Pay attention. This is the ancestral manor of Grandmaster Linley. During your studies here, this will be the only chance you have to come visit. In the future, you won't have another chance! Enough. Let's go to the study now. That's the place where Grandmaster Linley used to read when he was young."

Book 18, Highgod – Chapter 6, After Two Thousand Years, Even Seas Can Become Plains!

Within the rear courtyard of the ancestral manor, Linley listened to the voice coming from the front, rather amazed.

“Boss.” Bebe laughed as he looked at Linley, then gave him a big thumbs up.

Wade and Ina looked worshipfully towards Linley. Ina even repeated, ‘The mighty genius grandmaster sculptor, also a genius warrior-magus double-expert, also the founding emperor of the Baruch Empire, and also the master of the sacred place ‘Dragonblood Castle’...the legendary Deity, Linley Baruch!’ Uncle, you have so many titles. You are amazing.”

“There’s one missing, actually. The Dragonblood Warrior of the Supreme Warrior clans!” Bebe grinned.

Linley could only laugh.

Those visiting students in the front courtyard only viewed some areas in the front, and then left in a group. Clearly, the rear courtyard of the ancestral manor was not open to these students. It made sense....the rear courtyard had always been in a state of disrepair. Only the ancestral hall had always remained protected.

But how could these ordinary students be allowed to view the ancestral hall?

Of course, the true ancestral hall of the Baruch clan had already been moved to Dragonblood Castle, and so there wasn't anything within the 'ancestral hall' in this ancestral manor.

"Just now, I believe they mentioned the words, 'sacred place' and 'Dragonblood Castle'. So Dragonblood Castle has become a 'sacred place'." Linley let out a moved sigh.

Delia chuckled, "It has quite a few Deities. If it isn't a sacred place, what is it?"

"Father." Ina said to Bebe. "Where were you born?" Laughing, Bebe led Ina and Nisse to the side, while Linley headed towards the ancestral hall, with Delia and Wade following him as he pushed open the door to the hall and went into it.

Creaaaak. The door opened, and Linley carefully inspected the ancestral hall.

Compared to the past, the ancestral hall was virtually unchanged. Clearly, it had been maintained very well. But of course, the many spirit tablets that had been placed here had been moved long ago to Dragonblood Castle. The counter was completely empty.

Linley stared at the ancestral hall. His mind thought back to the first time his father, Hogg, had introduced the background of their Baruch clan. "The Four Supreme Warriors actually represent four ancient clans. Our Baruch clan is the ancient clan which contains the exalted bloodline of the Dragonblood Warriors!"

In the ancestral hall, his father had explained these things to him excitedly. This seemed to have happened just yesterday.

But now...

His father was dead!

"Father. Do you know? I've gone to the Infernal Realm, and met with our clan leader, 'Baruch'. Ryan. Hazard. And the other ancestors of the clan as well...they are all doing very well, very well!" Linley felt sourness in his heart. His father had always hoped for his clan to return to glory. His clan had indeed flourished, but...his father would never be able to see it again.

Wade and Delia stood there quietly, just watching, not daring to disturb Linley.

Linley suddenly frowned and turned. "Someone is coming?"

"Who are you people!" A voice rang out from not too far away.

"Let's go take a look." Linley, Wade, and Delia all walked outside. By the time they reached the outside, they saw that a middle-aged man dressed in gray magus robes was staring at Bebe, Nisse, and Ina. When Linley's group walked out, the middle-aged man said, stunned, "There's actually six of you?"

This middle-aged man was the chancellor of this institute, the Saint-level expert, Hamelyn [Ha'mu'lin].

Chancellor Hamelyn was already a peak Saint. While he just so happened to walk past the courtyard, he sensed the presence of outsiders within the ancestral hall. Normally, it was forbidden for outsiders to enter this hall, and so Hamelyn naturally shouted at them. Actually, Hamelyn had only sensed Ina's presence; he hadn't sensed the other five.

He had thought there was only one person present. Who would have imagined that there were actually six!

Clearly, the other five were more powerful than him!

"Who are you?" Linley looked at him.

Hamelyn said composedly, "This is a core area of my Linley Institute. How did you come in? As for me, I am this institute's chancellor, Hamelyn!"

"Hey, what did you say this institute is called?" Bebe immediately said.

Linley was badly startled upon hearing this. It seemed as though this Hamelyn had just said the words, 'Linley Institute'.

Hamelyn, puzzled, looked at these six. "What? Can it be that you've never even heard of the Linley Institute, one of the three great institutes of the continent? Can it be that you didn't see the sculpture of Grandmaster Linley which lies right past the main gates to our institute?" This was common knowledge, but the looks on the faces of Linley's group did indeed make Hamelyn feel puzzled.

“Linley Institute?” Wade’s eyes widened, and he turned to look at Linley. “Father, did you hear that? The Linley Institute.”

Linley was speechless.

Although Hamelyn had seen the sculpture of Linley, first of all, the sculpture wasn’t at the grandmaster level of accuracy, and second of all, compared to when he was a Saint, Linley’s aura had completely changed. Thus, Hamelyn didn’t make any mental connection at all between the person in front of him and the legend of the continent, Linley.

“We just came for a look.” Linley laughed calmly. “Enough. We will leave now.”

Linley spread out his divine earth power, including Ina and Wade within it. An earthen yellow light flashed, and Linley’s group of six disappeared into the horizon.

“This speed...”

Hamelyn stared, stupefied. “He’s far faster than even my teacher...and Teacher Reynolds is a Deity-level expert. Who on earth are these people?”

The Baruch Empire had existed for nearly two thousand years now, and the holiest site in the empire was Dragonblood Castle. The successive generations of emperors, upon giving up the throne, almost all moved to live here at Dragonblood Castle. Dragonblood Castle had quite a few Deities, and also quite a few Saint-level magical beasts who guarded it.

Nobody dared to act wildly in Dragonblood Castle.

Dragonblood Castle had expanded long ago. By now, it was many times larger than it had been in the past. The 'Adamantine Garden' of Dragonblood Castle was where Wharton lived. Currently, in a grassy area of the Adamantine Garden, two young-looking men were seated in the meditative position, facing each other while drinking wine and chatting.

"Taylor, what? You don't want another woman??"

"Uncle Wharton, I'm tired." The thick-eyebrowed, muscular youth was Tylor. Although nearly two thousand years had passed, Taylor's appearance had barely changed compared to the past. Right now, Taylor was sighing. "Uncle Wharton, we have eternal life, but our spouses? We have to just watch as our spouses age, then die. This sort of feeling is too painful."

In the past two millennia, Taylor had taken two women as his wives in succession.

But these two wives had both died of old age, filling Taylor with the utmost of pain.

"Alas." Wharton let out a low sigh as well. "I still remember how, that year, my big brother, for the sake of letting me marry Nina, did everything he could, even going so far as to duel Olivier in the arena. After a few centuries, even Nina was unable to resist the flow of time...and it's been nearly two thousand years since my big brother went to the Infernal Realm. Nina died more than a millennium ago." Wharton laughed at himself. "Sometimes, eternal life is a painful thing."

Only upon becoming a Saint would one possess eternal life.

But becoming a Saint required talent and luck. To most commoners, it was too difficult.

"Gates and the others were lucky." Wharton let out a sigh. Of the five Barker brothers, Barker and Gates had married Rebecca and her sister, both of whom had very pure souls and thus were extremely suited and talented for training in Necromantic magic. After a hundred or so years, they had reached the Saint-level.

Only when both members in a couple were both in possession of eternal lifespan would things be ideal. If only one side possessed an eternal lifespan, then the result would be watching the other slowly age and die. This was indeed agonizing.

"Uncle Wharton, as I see it, we should go to the Infernal Realm sometime as well." Taylor said.

"Go to the Infernal Realm?"

Wharton nodded slightly. "In the Yulan Plane, although we have a great enmity against the Odin Empire, there's nothing we can do. It can be said that there is nothing holding us here...after some more time passes, let's go visit the Infernal Realm. It has been a long time since I've seen Big Bro.

I truly wish to see him.”

“I want to see Father as well.” Taylor said softly.

“WHARTON! TAYLOR!” A voice echoed in the minds of Wharton and Taylor.

Wharton and Taylor seemed to have both been struck by lightning, staring at each other in disbelief. At the same time, they too sensed a powerful aura spreading out from the war training grounds in the front courtyard of Dragonblood Castle. Although this aura was powerful, it had such a familiar feeling to it. This was Linley’s aura!

“Swoosh!” “Swoosh!”

Wharton and Taylor simultaneously transformed into streaks of lightning, flying out at high speed.

Dragonblood Castle. The war training grounds.

Linley’s group of six was standing here. Linley was actively emanating his aura while greeting one familiar figure after another through his divine sense. However, when he used his divine sense to investigate, Linley discovered that many familiar figures of the past had disappeared, such as Grandpa Hiri, Uncle Hillman, Wharton’s wife Nina, Jenne...

“Are they all dead?” Linley wondered to himself.

Just because they weren't at Dragonblood Castle didn't necessarily mean that they were dead. But Linley, too, understood that the lifespan of normal humans who didn't reach the Saint-level would generally reach at most three or four centuries. Five centuries was the utmost limit. Only by reaching the Saint-level would one possess eternal life.

One figure after another flew over at high speed from places throughout Dragonblood Castle.

"FATHER!" A deep voice rang out. Linley's eyes lit up. It was Taylor.

"BIG BRO!" It was Wharton.

"Lord Linley." The incredibly muscular Barker.

A large group of people flew over at high speed, and in an instant, nearly a hundred had gathered here in the training grounds. Linley only recognized less than half of these people, and didn't recognize the majority. However, upon seeing all those familiar faces, Linley couldn't help but feel excited. These were his comrades, his friends, his family!

"Big Bro!" Wharton immediately gave Linley a tight, vicious bear hug.

"Wharton." Linley hugged his little brother as well, unable to refrain from feeling regretful.

"MASTER!" Linley turned to look. There was a man dressed in a long black robe. It was the transformed Haeru. Haeru was staring at Linley in excitement as well. So many years had gone by. As a King amongst magical beasts, Haeru felt extremely grateful towards Linley for what he had given him.

Wharton and Linley released each other. Wharton was completely unable to suppress his excitement. "Big Bro, I really didn't expect you'd be back. We were just talking about going to the Infernal Realm to look for you. Big Bro...there are many people here you don't recognize, right? Let me introduce them...this is Arnold's son..."

Wharton, in one breath, introduced more than ten important people.

These people all stared at Linley, their eyes filled with shock, awe, and veneration. It was like they were staring at a titan from legends.

"Wade, come, meet your uncle. Also, this is your older brother, Taylor..." Linley was incomparably overjoyed right now.

Right at this moment...

"THIRD BRO!" A voice suddenly rang out from behind.

Linley turned to look.

It was a Demigod, dressed in a long black robe. Those intelligent eyes looked the same as they always had, only they appeared slightly older than before. This was the man who had been one of Linley's closest friends...his Fourth Bro. Reynolds.

"Fourth Bro." Linley immediately went to welcome him, tightly embracing his 'Fourth Bro', Reynolds.

"Third Bro." Reynolds couldn't help but shed tears as well.

They hadn't met for nearly two thousand years. He had thought that they would never be able to meet again. Now that they saw each other, how could he not feel excited?

"Third Bro, it's been so many years." Reynolds was so excited, his entire body was trembling.

"Right." Linley nodded repeatedly as well.

Linley immediately thought of Yale and George. He hurriedly asked, "Right, Fourth Bro, where's the Boss and Second Bro? How are the two of them?" Linley had a hint of hope in his heart. After all, Yale and George were very talented as well. Maybe...maybe they had reached the Saint-level as well.

The chance was low, but Linley held out hope in his heart.

"All dead." Reynolds voice sank.

Linley was stunned.

"Dead..." Linley sighed.

Actually, Linley had mentally prepared himself in advance for this return. After all, he hadn't come back in nearly two thousand years. Anyone not at the Saint-level would age and die, just from the passage of time. Becoming a Saint was extremely hard, after all. In the past, it was only because Delia had received Beirut's gift, that divine spark, that she was able to become a Saint and then a Deity.

In truth, only a Saint should have been able to fuse with a divine spark. As for those who were not yet Saints, divine sparks weren't of much use.

The reason why Delia's training speed had risen so rapidly didn't have anything to do with the divine spark itself. In truth, it was due to some special materials which coated that divine spark!

Because...

That divine spark was no ordinary divine spark.

It must be understood that wind-type divine sparks should emanate a faint green aura. But on the day of the wedding, the divine spark which Delia received had no color at all. It was very ordinary! Actually, that divine spark was something which Beirut had refined and reforged after using up quite a few treasures. The core of that spark was a divine spark, but the outside layer was of some precious materials which allowed Delia to more easily sense elemental essences.

And thus, she was able to quickly rise in power.

"However, they didn't die of age." Reynolds said in a low voice.

Linley was stunned. "What?"

"Big Bro, it's best for us to go inside to talk about this." Wharton said hurriedly.

Linley stared at Reynolds, who let out a sigh as well. "Third Bro, let's go into the hall to slowly discuss this."

Linley felt that things were a bit strange, but he tamped down his disquiet and questions, following Reynolds and Wharton into the castle, to the hall for discussing major events. Only twenty or so people actually entered the hall.

The other juniors were stopped and kept outside.

Within the great hall.

Linley's family, Bebe's family, Wharton, Taylor, Sasha, Zassler, and the Barker brothers were all present.

"Fourth Bro, what happened, exactly? You said the Boss and Second Bro didn't die normal deaths?" Linley couldn't help but speak out.

"Right."

Reynolds said in a low voice, "Third Bro, let us finish. Don't grow impatient. You have to be calm!"

"Hurry up." Linley couldn't endure any longer.

Reynolds nodded. "Third Bro. At present, in the Yulan continent, there are only two Empires remaining. One is the Baruch Empire, while the other is the Odin Empire. As for the land west of the Mountain Range of Magical Beasts, where the Holy Union and the Dark Alliance used to rule, that has devolved into various duchies and kingdoms that aren't worth mentioning."

"Odin Empire?" Linley frowned.

"Right. The former O'Brien Empire, Yulan Empire, Rhine Empire, and Rohault Empire, as well as the great plains of the far east, have all been unified into the Odin Empire." Reynolds said.

Linley couldn't help but feel startled.

This Odin Empire took up more than half of the entire Yulan continent.

"Actually, not long after you left, Lord Beirut sent us a message through his divine sense, informing all Deities of some information. After that, those Deities gave up their plans of entering the Necropolis of the Gods and left to the Higher Planes or Divine Planes." Reynolds said slowly. "As for the Yulan Empire and the O'Brien Empire, they were restored. Second Bro, 'George', became a pillar and an important official of the Yulan Empire, while Boss Yale worked hard for the Dawson Conglomerate...with our help, the Dawson Conglomerate truly absorbed the other two major trading unions, become the number one trading union of the Yulan continent."

Linley just listened quietly.

"But...our calm and peaceful lives lasted for just two centuries. And then, a person appeared!"

Reynolds said in a low voice, "His name is Odin. In just a single short year, he unified the various other Empires, and even wanted to annihilate our Baruch Empire. But when he attacked...fortunately, Lord Beirut appeared and stopped him with a rebuke. Ever since then, he's not invaded so much as a single inch of the territory of our Baruch Empire. Based on the information we received from Lord Beirut, this Odin was also one of the five Kings of Gebados, and was nicknamed the 'Vile King'."

Book 18, Highgod – Chapter 7, Parting Words

“One of the five Kings?” Linley couldn’t help but narrow his eyes. Each of the five Kings of the Gebados Planar Prison was a supreme expert. Bluefire was one of the five Kings. Since Odin was titled the ‘Vile King’, on par with Bluefire, then Odin’s power was definitely at an astonishing level as well.

“The deaths of the Boss and of Second Bro have to do with him?” Linley couldn’t help but ask.

“Yes, Third Bro! You know that our Second Bro, George, was very talented in magic. In addition, he was fairly diligent in his training...a century after you left, he reached the Saint-level. He should have had eternal life, but...”

Reynolds’ face turned dark. Clearly, this filled his heart with boundless rage. However, Reynolds forced it down, so that he could continue to speak. “The first time Odin attacked, he struck at the imperial capital of the Yulan Empire. With just a flip of his hand...that Odin destroyed half of the imperial capital. In addition, he had a group of subordinates, all of whom were Deities!”

“Odin issued an order. Everyone within the imperial capital at or above the Saint level was to be killed. No one was to be spared!”

“Second Bro, ‘George’, was killed there.” Reynolds continued to speak, but as he did, his tears began to fall.

Although Linley had mentally prepared himself, he still felt his head go dizzy. He still clearly remembered how of the four brothers, George was amiable, good-tempered, and yet always willing to share in the shouldering of any burdens. "Second Bro died, just like that?" Linley couldn't believe it. George, who had always had such distant, lofty goals, had died?

How could Linley swallow his rage, after his close friend had been killing like this?

"Odin...must die." Linley's face was like iron.

"Big Bro." Wharton said hurriedly.

"Third Bro." Reynolds hurriedly called out as well.

"Reynolds, you, you said..." A trembling voice rang out. Delia, standing next to Linley, stared at Reynolds nervously, her eyes filled with fear and worry. "You said that everyone at or above the Saint level in the imperial capital was killed? What about my elder brother? How is my elder brother?"

In the Leon clan, aside from Delia, the only person to reach the Saint level was Dixie.

Over the course of two thousand years, those previous family members of hers had turned to dust long ago.

Delia truly hoped to see her elder brother, Dixie, on this return. The genius elder brother who had always taken care of her.

"Dixie?" Reynolds was stunned.

"Right, my brother! Is my brother still alive?" Delia's entire body was trembling.

"Delia..." Linley couldn't help but take Delia's hand in his own. He could clearly sense how her hand was shaking.

"Dixie is dead!" Wharton said. "The ten Saints who were at the imperial capital were all killed, and Dixie was one of them! Odin and his subordinates were too vicious, and he even had Highgods serving him. There was no way such a powerful force could be resisted at all. How could any Saints flee?"

Delia's face instantly turned pale.

"My brother died?" Delia lowered her head, two streams of clear tears falling down her face.

"Delia.." Linley said hurriedly.

Delia suddenly opened her eyes, grinding her teeth. "Odin. I must kill him!" Delia turned to look at Linley. "Linley...I must kill him, I must!!!"

"We must. We must." Linley felt his own killing intent surge as well.

"No, don't." Taylor was absolutely frantic. "Mother, Father, don't go! This Odin is truly too powerful. Back then, Odin even attacked Dragonblood Castle. It took Lord Beirut making an appearance to stop him. Lord Beirut said...that even in the Higher Planes, this Odin would be considered a top-tier expert."

"Right." Reynold said frantically as well. "Third Bro, no matter what, don't put yourself at risk."

"I remember Lord Beirut said something about a Seven Star Fiend. That this Odin could be considered a Seven Star Fiend." Sasha said hurriedly as well.

It was evident that they clearly remembered the scene of how Lord Beirut had appeared when Odin had attacked. They, too, were filled with the utmost of hatred towards Odin, but Lord Beirut had solemnly warned them of how powerful this Odin was, and that they would die if they fought him.

"Seven Star Fiend?" Linley's gaze flashed with cold light.

The nearby Bebe said angrily, "Even if he is an Asura, he will still die!"

Reynolds and the others didn't understand the meaning of this. They didn't understand what the terms 'Seven Star fiend' and 'Asura' entailed.

"Right. Boss Yale?" Linley suddenly thought of Yale.

Yale was a member of the Dawson Conglomerate. Odin had unified an empire, but what did Yale have to do with that?

"Third Bro, first calm down. Don't act rashly out of anger." Reynolds said hurriedly. As Reynolds and Wharton saw it, their biggest concern was that Linley would go insane and go try and make trouble for Odin. As they saw it...although Linley was a genius, he had only trained for two millennia, while that Odin was someone who was far more monstrously powerful than even the now-deceased Adkins.

"Fine. I won't act impetuously. Speak, hurry." Although Linley said these words, rage was blazing within his chest.

The death of Second Bro as well as that of Delia's elder brother...they had to be avenged!

"Fine. I'll speak." Reynolds shut his eyes. He took a deep breath before opening them again, but tears began to uncontrollably appear within them nonetheless. "When Boss Yale was young, he didn't work hard in his training, and he was also the least talented of us four brothers...and so he became stuck as an eighth rank magus. However, this didn't prevent his becoming as the Chairman of the Conglomerate."

Linley nodded slightly.

He remembered that Yale had once said that he dreamed of becoming the Chairman of the Dawson Conglomerate and swallowing up the other two trading guilds, becoming the single largest trading guild of the entire Yulan continent.

"That year, although the Yulan Empire and the O'Brien Empire were restored to power, they had too few experts and were too weak. In the entire Yulan continent...only the Baruch Empire could be considered a powerhouse." Reynolds said slowly. "With our help, the Dawson Conglomerate naturally expanded nonstop, moving as easily as a fish does in water. The other two trading guilds were squeezed and nibbled down. In the end, they completely collapsed and were swallowed up by the Dawson Conglomerate. Boss Yale accomplished his goal and was extremely happy. Myself and Second Bro, along with Boss Yale, even had a special get together and celebration for this event."

A drifting look was in Reynolds eyes.

"That year, the three of us celebrated together. We even sighed that it was unfortunate that you, Third Bro, weren't here. Otherwise, the four of us would've been able to have a good get-together."

Linley couldn't help but feel a deeply buried part of his heart tremble. It was the deep recesses of his heart, where the love he bore for his brothers lay.

"When the three of us were together, everything was fine. But...after we separated and went about our own business, not long afterwards the 'Vile King' Odin appeared. He first showed off his brutal, domineering, unstoppable power by forcefully uniting the various empires into his 'Odin Empire'. Reynolds said in a low voice. "But Odin wasn't satisfied with just that. He took a fancy to the Dawson Conglomerate! Although the Dawson Conglomerate was just a merchant conglomerate, as the largest one in the continent...it had astonishingly great power secreted throughout the continent."

Linley's face became ugly to behold.

In the past, when the Dawson Conglomerate was just one of three major trading guilds, it was already very powerful. By the time it swallowed up the other two...Linley could imagine how formidable the hidden power of the Dawson Conglomerate was.

"One of Odin's clones trains in the Edicts of Death." Reynolds said somberly. "He easily took control over several major empires because he was able to spiritually dominate quite a few critical members of the various empires, and so he was able to easily unify the nations. As for Boss Yale...his soul was dominated as well."

Linley couldn't help but feel pain in his heart.

Boss Yale had been dominated once in the past as well. That time, Linley had rescued Boss Yale, but...this time, he wasn't there. Nobody was there to rescue him.

"In a short year, with Boss Yale's cooperation, the management structure of the Dawson Conglomerate was completely changed and replaced with Odin's people. It can be said...that aside from Boss Yale, not a single member of the Dawson clan remained, out of all the important, high-level members of the Dawson Conglomerate. They were all replaced by Odin's men." Reynolds' voice was hoarse.

Reynolds suddenly stared at Linley, letting out a grief-stricken laugh. "Third Bro, do you know why Odin is known as the Vile King?"

Linley was stunned.

"why?" Linley said.

"Because he truly is vile! Not only does he have all sorts of evil techniques, he himself is an evil, vile person!" Reynolds was unable to control his voice. "After the Dawson Conglomerate fell under his control, that bastard actually controlled Yale and made him personally kill one member of the Dawson clan after another. These people included Boss Yale's son, his wife, his descendants, his brothers...they all died. And Boss Yale personally killed them all."

Linley's heart grew cold.

"Boss Yale no longer held any more value for him, but he didn't just kill Boss Yale. He let Boss Yale regain his mind and his freedom!" Reynolds said in a low voice.

"This...that, that bastard! He has to die!" The nearby Ina couldn't help but growl out as well.

Linley's face was ashen.

"When Boss Yale regained his senses, he knew what he had done. Perhaps only an extremely few members of the Dawson clan were still alive; those who were in very distant, remote regions. The central members of the clan, however...Boss Yale's relatives...he had killed them all, sparing none. Boss Yale was in such agony, he went insane..."

Reynolds' body was trembling slightly.

Linley already felt as though countless knives were stabbing into his heart.

"But that Odin sealed up Boss Yale's mageforce, and then bound him and strung him up on a tree in the Odin Palace." Reynolds sobbed, his tears pouring forth. "When bored, Odin would often go sit beneath the tree, drinking wine and enjoying the services of the palace made. When he listened to Boss Yale's insane curses, he seemed to rather enjoy it...as though he enjoyed Boss Yale's madness, his despair!"

Linley felt as though his head was about to explode.

Vile?

This wasn't just 'vile'. This was utterly perverted! Odin was a pervert!

After having stolen away the Dawson Conglomerate, which Yale had worked for all his life, he then had Yale kill his own relatives, then gave Yale his mind back! And Odin enjoyed listening to Yale's curses, enjoyed Yale's madness...

"When I learned this, I frantically hurried to that place." Reynolds said bitterly. "Boss Yale barely had any life left in him. Odin was too powerful; he could've killed me with a single finger. So all I could do was secretly use my divine sense to enter Boss Yale's mind and speak with him!"

"By then, Boss Yale's mind was at the point of collapse! I am unable to imagine what sort of mental torment he must have felt during the time he had been hung up there. All I knew was that Boss Yale, ever so graceful and vigorous and carefree, was at the point of collapse."

Linley was so angry, he could no longer speak. He just stared at Reynolds.

"When I sent out my divine sense, Boss Yale reacted, very slightly. But he just repeated the words, 'I have sinned!' 'I have sinned!'" Reynolds' voice trembled. "He begged me to kill him. He was hung there and his mageforce was sealed; he was unable to kill himself. He wanted me to kill him! To release him from it all!"

Linley's body shook.

"I agreed." Reynolds said in a low voice. "Boss Yale was already insane. I had never seen him like that before."

"Before he died, Boss Yale told me that Odin was extremely strong, far more powerful than the last Highgod, Adkins. Afterwards, he said one thing to me...'Fourth Bro, no matter what, you and Third Bro are not to avenge me. Do not try to avenge me!" Reynolds' face was covered with tears now.

Linley just stood there, stunned.

"You and Third Bro, no matter what, are not to avenge me. Do not try to avenge me!!!"

Boss Yale's dying shout seemed to echo in his ears. "BOOM!" Linley's mind was utterly blank, but he felt as though an explosion had gone off within it.

"Aaaaaaah!" Linley knelt down on the ground, agonized, releasing a growling, agonized cry from his throat.

"Third Bro." Reynolds went to go lift Linley up.

He could imagine how agonized Linley was...because when Reynolds had seen Boss Yale and what terrible shape he had been in, Reynolds was utterly agonized as well. He had even killed Yale with his own hands, so as to grant Yale release.

Linley, kneeling there on the ground, lifted his head up. His eyes were red, and his entire body was shaking. He growled out, "Odin!!! I will definitely make him go insane from agony as well! I will make him go hysterical!!! Make him die!!!" Linley's voice seemed to have been ground out from every single tooth in his mouth.

Book 18, Highgod – Chapter 8, Marvelous Treasures

“Third Bro, calm down!” Reynolds immediately shouted.

“Father!” Sasha and Taylor called out in terror as well.

They were afraid that after Linley learned of this matter, he would be unable to contain his rage and go attack Odin. Wharton, Reynolds, and the others all knew what it meant to be a peak Highgod expert. This was why despite Yale dying heartbroken and furious, before his death, he had instructed that Linley and Reynolds were not to avenge him!

It wasn't that he, Yale, didn't want revenge. It was that he was afraid that Linley and Reynolds would die because of him as well!

“Boss, let's go kill him.” Bebe immediately charged outwards.

Linley suddenly stretched out his right hand, snatching Bebe. Staring at him, Linley said, “Bebe, don't be impetuous!”

“Right. Don't be rash.” Wharton said frantically as well. “Bebe, you and my brother need to calm down first. If revenge was possible, we would've taken it long ago. But if we aren't able to do so, the end result would just be that our lives are lost as well. It isn't worth it. We have to endure. Endure!”

“Endure my ass!” Bebe roared furiously. “So what if he's a Seven Star Fiend? Centuries ago, before the Boss made his breakthrough, he killed five Seven Star Fiends by himself, much less now! Forget Seven Star Fiend...even if that Odin is an Infernal Asura, the Boss and I don't fear him!"

When Linley had advanced from being a God to a Highgod, his power had risen by several levels.

He now not only had a godspark weapon, he also had Sovereign's Might to use in the event of any danger! And aside from Linley himself, Bebe's innate divine ability, 'Godeater', was a monstrously powerful technique. Although Bebe wasn't strong in his normal attacks, when executing his supreme, divine ability, his power was comparable to Beirut's!

If Linley and Bebe joined forces...how many people could possibly stop the two of them?

"What...what did you say?" Wharton was stunned.

"Before making a breakthrough? Killed five Seven Star Fiends?" Reynolds and everyone else was stunned.

Although they didn't know much about what a 'Seven Star Fiend' truly represented, based on the way Beirut had said it, they all understood that Seven Star Fiends should stand at the peak of power amongst Highgods.

"Don't worry. I'm confident in being able to kill Odin." Linley said in a low voice. "If Bebe and I are incapable of killing Odin...Lord Beirut probably would've warned me about him back when we were in the Infernal Realm." Beirut knew exactly what had happened back here in the Yulan continent. But Beirut hadn't said anything about it.

Linley didn't blame Beirut for Odin having tortured Yale. After all, Beirut couldn't possibly have his divine sense spread out every moment of every day, paying attention to everything.

Nor did Linley blame Beirut for not having killed Odin in revenge!

"The reason he didn't kill Odin was to let me do it myself." A killing look appeared in Linley's eyes.

"Third Bro, you are confident in being able to kill Odin?" Reynolds looked towards Linley disbelievingly.

"Big Bro." Wharton was stunned as well, and he looked at Linley in amazed joy.

"Completely confident." Linley's voice was like ice. He then turned to look at Bebe. "Bebe, this Odin is nicknamed the 'Vile King'. He tormented Boss Yale to the point of madness, to the point where life was worse than death. How can I allow this Odin to die so easily?" Only when a person was still alive would he fear terror and despair.

Once a person died, that person would no longer feel a thing.

But how could a bit of fear be enough to cause the blazing embers of rage in Linley's heart to subside? How could it allow Yale's tormented soul to be at peace?

"Third Bro!" Reynolds suddenly said loudly.

Linley turned to look. Reynolds' face was covered with tears, and in his eyes was an extremely complicated mixture of rage and delight. "Third Bro, you must avenge the Boss and Second Bro! You must! Let their wronged souls, in the Netherworld, find peace!" Reynolds had wanted to take revenge for all these years, but he didn't have the ability to do so.

He wasn't willing to accept this!

But all he could do was hate himself for his inability!

What could he do? With the little bit of power he possessed...he would probably die before even reaching Odin.

"Get revenge!" Reynolds stared at Linley, placing his hopes upon Linley's shoulders.

"Don't worry." Linley suddenly turned to stare at Wharton. "Wharton, immediately go make some arrangements. Have all of our intelligence reports on Odin be sent over, including those regarding his subordinates. Have everything sent over."

"Alright." Wharton hurriedly went to make the arrangements.

Turning his head, Linley stared at the nearby Delia, whose face was covered in tears as well. In a low voice he said, "Delia, don't worry. That Odin will definitely die, and his death will be agonizing. I swear it!"

The Baruch Empire had been founded nearly two thousand years ago, and so its intelligence agents were now spread throughout the entire Yulan continent. They even know what was going on within the Odin Empire's imperial palace. In the past, the Baruch Empire had constantly been collecting intelligence reports regarding the Odin Empire. Now that Linley had given the order...

The many intelligence reports were organized, collated, then delivered to Linley's table.

In but a single night, Linley made his preparations for vengeance.

Odin Empire. The capital city of Ides province. A lavish estate.

Within a flower garden, a young noble youth dressed in luxurious robes was resting on a reclining sofa. Although it was a 'sofa', in reality, it was more like a bed. A beautiful maid was curled up on the bed as well, her clothes half-removed, revealing her snowy-white skin. As for the noble youth, his head was resting within the maid's bosom.

"So slow." The noble youth snorted unhappily.

Right at this moment, one beautiful young lady after another entered the flower garden, along with a middle-aged man who looked like a housekeeper who barked, "Hurry up. Over there. Five of you in each line. Stand straight." Twenty five attractive, slender young women.

These twenty five young women all stood there in lines, rather nervous.

"Your Highness, they are all present." The housekeeper immediately walked over humbly and said in a respectful voice.

"Fine." The young noble replied, but his gaze was fixed on the twenty five women.

A wicked little smile appeared on his face. "They are indeed quite young, unlike those old maids of the Planar Prison who didn't have any womanly airs at all." With a wave of his hand, a flying dart flew out as he laughed loudly, "My pretty ladies, I'm going to play a game with you today. I'm going to blindly throw out this dart and whoever it hits, that person shall remove an article of clothing. Understood?"

The bodies of the twenty five women trembled, but none of them dared to resist.

"The dart won't kill you." The noble youth laughed softly.

He gave it a toss....

"Swoosh!" The dart flew out like lightning, striking towards the group of twenty five young women. But in the blink of an eye, it then returned into the hand of that noble youth.

"Ah." A weak, surprised cry. A hint of blood appeared on the chest of one of the young ladies.

"What fresh blood." The noble youth extended his tongue, licking the fresh blood from the flying dart, then laughed softly. "Undress." He was confident in his skills. The darts would just barely slash open the skin of these ladies. Although it would hurt, at most there would be a hint of blood. Nobody would die.

The young lady's body was trembling, but she still took off an article of clothing.

"Continue." The noble youth once more threw out the flying dart.

This 'game' continued nonstop. In but a few moments, each and every one of the twenty five women had undressed, all of them standing there, slick and naked, amidst the flower garden. The housekeeper had quietly left long ago. He knew...that his Imperial Highness hated it when other men looked at his female playthings. His Imperial Highness could play with them, but if others were to watch...they would die.

The twenty five women stood there, naked and trembling, thin lines of blood flowing from their bodies.

The strange thing was, the bloody lines actually formed words.

"Whore." "Love." "Slut."

Bloody words were on the bodies of every single woman.

This strange scene made it so that these women were all the more frightened, and unable to resist.

"Oh!" Seeing this, the noble youth suddenly grew so excited that his entire body began to tremble. "How wonderful. This is absolutely a work of art. Alright, 'whore', you come over. Yes, you, the one with the character for 'whore' on your body." The noble youth played with the dart, which danced in the air as though it were alive.

The naked woman, terrified, walked over one step at a time.

Right at this moment...

"Whoosh!" Suddenly, a wild wind stirred, and the clothes on the ground suddenly flew up, wrapping themselves around those twenty five women. At the same time, the twenty five women, along with the serving maid next to the noble youth, entered a dreamy, dazed state, losing all consciousness.

"Eh?" The noble youth turned to look, his gaze growing sharp as a dagger.

A brown-haired man had suddenly appeared, dressed in a white suit and with white ribbons wrapped in his hair. He was walking forward, one step at a time.

"Who are you?" The noble youth's face changed.

"Odin is your father, right?" Linley said calmly.

"If you know this, how dare you be so arrogant?" The noble youth said, but his body was already moving.

"Rumble..." A strange soul ripple spread out. The eyes of the noble youth instantly became dull and lifeless as he entered a dazed state. This was the supreme support technique, the 'Spiritual Chaos' component to Linley's Blackstone Space. When Linley had been a God, he was already capable of making ordinary Highgods enter a stupor.

And now?

"A kid who relied on fusing with a divine spark to become a Highgod thinks that he can run from me?" Linley cast him a calm glance.

Linley stretched his hand out. With a 'slash' sound, he drove his hand into the youth's skull, and a surge of divine earth power instantly reduced the contents of the youth's skull to mush.

"Time for the next one." Linley picked up the noble youth's corpse. With a flicker, his body disappeared.

Not long after Linley left, the women regained their consciousness, but they were completely lost and puzzled. That housekeeper wasn't too concerned; he knew that his Imperial Highness was a Highgod, and that in the entire Yulan continent, there wasn't much who could threaten him. He thought that his Imperial Highness had suddenly gone to take care of some business.

The Odin Empire. The imperial capital. This was a city that had been rebuilt atop the ruins of the former imperial capital of the Yulan Empire. The imperial palace was particularly majestic and tightly guarded. Today, the imperial capital of the Odin Empire was particularly rowdy...because a delegation of Envoys from the Baruch Empire had come to pay their respects to his Imperial Majesty, Odin. Ever since the founding of the Odin Empire a thousand years ago, the relationship between the two Empires had been extremely tense.

But now, Envoys had actually been sent to pay their respects to Emperor Odin. This was quite a rare occasion.

The Odin empire. The imperial palace. The main hall.

The senior ministers of the empire were all standing below the throne, smiles on their faces. As they saw it, for the Baruch Empire to send Envoys here was a show of subservience. This gave them a feeling of having dominated the Baruch Empire.

"Your Imperial Majesty, the Envoys are already outside the palace." The palace attendant said respectfully.

"Haha...let them enter." Odin, seated on the throne, laughed loudly as he spoke. Odin was someone who cared deeply about face, who cared greatly about perfection. He liked being above everyone else, liked making countless others look up to him. He liked the feeling of controlling someone's fate in his hands...and he loved to toy with people.

To be able to control the joy, the rage, and the grief of others...this was something that made him very delighted and very happy.

"Almighty Emperor Odin, we are here representing the Emperor of the Baruch Empire and conveying his most sincere greetings." The leading Envoy of the Baruch Empire bowed slightly, then continued, "On this visit, our Baruch Empire has prepared two marvelous treasures to offer you, Emperor Odin!"

A hint of a smile appeared on Odin's face. "Bring it up for me to look at."

Immediately...

The envoys brought two large chests in from outside the main hall, letting them rest heavily against the floor of the palace.

"Open them." Odin laughed calmly.

"Emperor Odin, please take a look." The Envoy opened one of the large chests, and as he did, shocked gasps could be heard throughout the main hall. As for Emperor Odin, seated on his throne, when he saw the 'treasure' within the chest, his face immediately changed. "Niemoller [Ni'mo'la]! No!" Niemoller was Odin's one and only brother.

"This...this..." The ministers in the hall were all shocked, not knowing what to say.

The Envoy just laughed cold as he opened the other chest.

"Clang!" The lid of the chest swung upon, then clanged against the floor.

Odin felt his heart clench violently, and he stared fixedly at the corpse within the chest. "Son! My son!" Odin couldn't believe it. He shook his head repeatedly.

Life in the Gebados Planar Prison was extremely dangerous. When Odin had entered it, he was a weakling as well. Although he was wild, although he liked to toy with others, although he liked to kill...he didn't wish for his loved ones to die. Throughout all those years he had spent in the Planar Prison, he had always protected his son and his brother!

This time, they had passed through that dangerous weakness in the spatial walls and had returned to the Yulan continent.

Passing through a weakness in the spatial walls was something which had to do with the amount of energy one possessed. The strength of the spatial bindings was variable, and the more energy one had, the stronger the spatial bindings were and the harder to break through them. The spatial bindings didn't have much to do with insight into any profound mysteries; after all, insight was illusory and immaterial.

The strength of the bindings facing ordinary Highgods and Seven Star Fiends was the same, when they attempted to pass through a spatial weakness.

He had only taken two Highgods with him.

One was his son. The other was his brother. He had risked his life to take the two of them with him, and they had managed to flee the prison. As for his other subordinates he had brought, they were only Gods and Demigods. For him to be willing to risk his own life to bring these two with him made it obvious how much he cared about them. But today...

Both his brother and his son had died!

Their corpses were right here in front of him.

He had been very careful in the Planar Prison, but in the Yulan continent, aside from his own forces, the only Highgod present was Beirut. There were no other Highgods. He didn't believe his brother and son would ever be in any danger. But today...their corpses were in chests in front of him.

"No...no...." Odin bellowed in rage.

"Seize him!" Odin stared viciously at that Envoy.

Immediately, many soldiers flooded forward, surrounding those Envoys.

With but a flicker, Odin's body appeared next to the two chests. He stared at the corpse in the right chest, then at the corpse in the left chest, his face like iron. "Niemoller! Chester [Qie'si'te]! You...how could you..." His entire body was trembling, and not a hint of blood could be seen in his face.

"My brother. My son! Don't worry. I will definitely avenge you. Definitely!!! I will make them regret it. I will make their lives worse than death!!!”

Odin turned suddenly, staring at the Envoy.

“Tell me who killed them.” Odin roared. He knew very well that only a Highgod could have killed his son and brother.

“Hmph!” The Envoy just let out a cold snort.

“Me!” An icy voice rang out in the main hall.

Instantly, everyone in the main hall, Odin included, turned to look.

A figure had suddenly appeared outside of the main hall. This person was striding into the hall, one step at a time, the soldiers by his side completely unable to block him. He wore white mourning ribbons in his hair, and was dressed in ceremonial white robes. Seeing this, the ministers in the hall were all stunned...this clearly was a ceremonial mourning outfit meant for mourning deceased family members.

Odin stared at Linley, his eyes spitting fire.

“Who are you?” Odin growled.

“If you have decent memory, you should remember that you once killed two people. One was my second brother, while the other was my elder brother!” Linley said in a soft voice.

He hadn't appeared for nearly two thousand years. There was nobody who recognized him today.

Odin frowned, completely unable to tell who this person was.

"It seems you really have killed quite a few people."

Linley stared at him coldly. "Listen up. I...am Linley Baruch!"

The ministers in the great hall were all shocked. They stared at Linley in disbelief. This youth dressed in ceremonial mourning robes was actually the founding emperor of the Baruch Empire, a figure of legend in the history of the Yulan Empire...Linley!

Book 18, Highgod – Chapter 9, Battle!

“Linley Baruch?” Odin immediately knew who this person was. Linley’s reputation in the Yulan continent was simply too great. In terms of status, he was on a higher level than even the War God and the High Priest had been on in the past. After all, Linley’s accomplishments were simply too legendary.

Odin’s face was ashen, and he stared fixedly at Linley, grinding out one word at a time, “You dare to come!”

“If I don’t come, how am I going to kill you?” Linley’s voice was like ice.

“Ha..haha...” Odin laughed from sheer rage.

The deaths of his brother and his son had caused Odin’s rage to rise to the heavens. In addition, he knew what Linley had accomplished. Nearly two thousand years ago, Linley had just become a Deity. As Odin saw it, no matter how great a genius Linley was, he would at most be able to become a Highgod. To fuse profound mysteries?

That wasn’t something that could be done in such a short period of time.

In the instant in which Odin laughed from rage, his entire body transformed into a blur, instantly appearing before Linley. With a ‘crunch’ sound, Linley’s body was struck and sent flying outside of the palace. Odin let out a cold laugh towards the outside of the palace, then flew out as well.

“Linley and Emperor Odin are battling...”

Immediately, all of the ministers within the hall flooded outwards. Even many of the palace maids and attendants ran out as well. All of them looked about wildly and also towards the skies, hoping to see Linley and Odin. But they saw nothing.

“His Imperial Majesty against Grandmaster Linley...who do you think will win?” The ministers discussed this amongst each other.

“With a wave of his hand, his Imperial Majesty destroyed half of the imperial capital of the Yulan Empire. Given his power...he will definitely win.”

“Grandmaster Linley has disappeared for two thousand years. Given his dominating talent, he’s definitely grown even more powerful.”

Just as the many ministers were chatting amongst each other, suddenly, a terrifying explosive sound rang out from the corner of the imperial palace.”

BOOM!

From afar, a palace suddenly blew apart, sending countless pieces of rocks and tiles shooting everywhere at high speed. When these pieces of rocks smashed into the palace walls hundreds of meters away, they smashed giant holes into them. Countless miserable cries could be heard as well as many helpless maids and attendants were struck by then.

Some had their heads smashed apart, others had their limbs severed...

But the ministers continued to stare into the skies.

As for those Envoys who were being guarded by the palace guards, they were watching as well.

In the air above the Odin Empire's imperial palace, Linley and Odin had come to a pause. Linley was in full Dragonform, his entire body covered with draconic scales. He stared coldly at Odin with his dark golden eyes. As for Odin, a look of disbelief was on his face. "Imp...impossible. Impossible!"

The exchange of blows from earlier had completely stunned Odin.

"Material attacks?" Linley said coldly. "I understand that you are specialized in the Edicts of Death. Why don't you use those attacks?" Linley realized through the exchange of blows with Odin that this person was only using wind-type Laws, and was emanating a wind-type aura as well, with no hint of a Death-type aura.

Based on what Linley knew...

This Odin, reputed to be the 'Vile King', was an expert who specialized in the Edicts of Death.

Odin gritted his teeth, staring fixed at Linley. "Against you, I don't need it! I'll let you know...what regret is!" After speaking, his body suddenly moved as a tornado sprang into being out of nowhere. Odin, in the center of the tornado, charged towards Linley with an aura of power that seemed capable of destroying the world, landing a powerful knife-edge palm blow against Linley...

"Crackle..."

A clearly visible crack in space appeared...but this was a material plane. Highgods were capable of easily shattering space here.

"Laughable." Linley didn't even dodge. He just charged at Odin, allowing this 'knife-edge palm' to land on his body.

"CLANG!"

When the knife-edge palm blow landed on Linley's body, a metallic ringing sound could be heard. A faint white smudge appeared on Linley's draconic scales, but that was it. This absolutely stunned Odin, leaving him gaping. But Linley seized the opportunity to reach out with his draconic claws, grabbing Odin by his right shoulder and giving it a vicious twist...

Riiiiip.

Blood and flesh flew everywhere, as the right arm was directly ripped off.

"Whoosh!" The draconic tail came sweeping over as well, moving as fast as lightning.

Odin hurriedly dodged, but despite how fast he moved, a deep wound was left upon his waist, with fresh blood dripping out of it. Odin stared at Linley, stunned. "How can your body be so..." He muttered, as his wounds quickly healed. Only, it took a bit of time for his severed arm to grow out.

"Too weak. Too weak!"

Linley said calmly. At the same time, he released his right hand, allowed the torn-off right arm of Odin's to fall down from the skies, smashing into pieces on the surface of the imperial palace. The material attack Odin had launched, the one which had created the tornado, had caused quite a bit of destruction in the imperial palace. Those ministers had their faces smudged with dirt and ash, and they were hiding behind the protection of the palace guards.

"Impossible!" Odin bellowed, charging forward once again. Odin's entire body transformed into a blurry sword-shape, and the illusory greatsword chopped directly at Linley.

Linley let out a cold, calm laugh. His speed suddenly increased dramatically as he dodged this sword attack, while at the same time delivering a mighty blow with his claws to Odin's face. A large chunk of flesh was ripped off of Odin's face, and he was knocked flying backwards.

"Too slow as well." Linley continued. After having become a Highgod, Linley's speed had improved dramatically as well, especially given how powerful his draconic body was. His speed was vastly superior to Odin's divine wind clone. Odin wasn't able to fight back at all; after all, Odin was only using his divine wind clone at present, not his strongest Death-type clone.

Odin turned to stare at Linley, his eyes filled with shock and rage. He wasn't able to accept this!

"How can he be so strong?" Odin couldn't believe it.

"Where is your Death-type clone?" Even as Linley's words came out, Linley himself appeared before Odin, launching out his right leg in a kick that was like a decapitating blade towards Odin's neck. Terrified, Odin frantically dodged backwards, but although he was able to dodge the kick, and before he even had the chance to take a breath, with a 'bang' sound, Odin was slashed by Linley's draconic tail, which slammed against his waist.

Odin's body was bisected into two. His bones and his organs all came flooding out from his upper torso.

The upper half of his body was knocked flying back.

"Aren't you supposed to be very powerful?" Linley's voice rang out.

"Bang!" Linley's fist smashed against Odin's chest, which split open like mud, caving in at Linley's blow, fresh blood spewing out. However, Odin's lower torso quickly began to grow out, and his left arm swung violently against Linley's body.

"Aren't you supposed to be the 'Vile King'?"

"Bang!" A leg landed against that left arm, sending Odin flying away yet again.

"Aren't you supposed to make me know what regret is?"

Linley landed a palm against Odin's head, and Odin was shot out like an arrow, smashing downwards with a 'bang' into the stone floor, causing the entire ground to shake and split apart, while Odin himself was completely submerged into it.

Linley slowly descended, landing on the ground.

"Come on. If you aren't dead, that is." Linley said calmly.

From the very beginning, Linley had refrained from using killing blows. If Odin were to die so easily, that would be too merciful towards him. Linley clearly remembered how Odin had tormented his Boss Yale.

There were quite a few people watching this battle, and there were tens of Deity-level experts in the imperial palace of the Odin Empire. These were all Odin's subordinates. They were watching in disbelief...their invincible 'Vile King' was being utterly trampled, without being able to fight back at all.

"His Imperial Majesty...." The senior ministers were all stupefied as well.

"Hmph. Your Odin Empire is finished!" Those surrounded Envoys of the Baruch Empire raised their heads high.

At this moment, a group of people watching this battle from afar in the sky flew over as well. It was Bebe, Wharton, Delia, Taylor, and some others. They all flew into the imperial palace. To them, the imperial palace was a place where they could roam about as they pleased. Nobody was able to stop them.

Reynolds, watching this battle, couldn't help but shed tears. "Boss. Second Bro. Odin is going to die. Your deaths will be avenged!"

Right now, in the center of this 'arena', the earth lay cracked and shattered. A figure slowly crawled out from within. It was Odin. Odin's body was now completely repaired, but his eyes were still filled with rage and disbelief.

"Any other 'ultimate attacks'?" Linley laughed coldly.

As he spoke, Linley's body suddenly advanced at such speed that although Odin struggled to dodge, Linley's leg flashed out and kicked him viciously in his crotch. An explosive, ripping sound could be heard, followed by Odin's anguished howl as he was sent flying upwards before landing on the ground again.

"Where is your Death-type clone?" Linley stared at him emotionlessly. "What, would you rather sacrifice your divine wind clone than let your Death-type clone come out?" As Linley saw it, this clone of Odin's wasn't very strong. Linley's true target was Odin's Death-type clone."

"You...you..." Odin stared towards Linley with utter hatred.

He wanted to kill Linley, but he wasn't able to.

"Linley. You are vicious. You are a piece of work!" Odin said with fury. "But you won't be able to kill me!" With a bellow, Odin instantly transformed into thousands of doppelgangers, all of which fled wildly every which way. This was the 'Doppelganger' technique of the Laws of the Wind. Seeing this, Linley didn't even move.

Suddenly...

A blurry earthen yellow aura instantly spread out to a diameter of a thousand meters, and a terrifying gravitational pull was instantly applied to all of Odin's doppelgangers. But of course, the other people within this area, such as the maids, servants, Reynolds, Bebe, and the others weren't affected by it at all. "Bang." "Bang." A series of explosions could be heard as those doppelgangers began to implode from the terrifying pressure! Explosive bursts of energy rocked the grounds of the imperial palace, and the palace walls were once more damaged by it. The scene was one of utter chaos.

Linley's most powerful technique...Blackstone Space! The gravity was centered towards Linley!

The only one of Odin's bodies which had yet to explode was his divine wind clone.

This was normal. After having become a Highgod, Linley's Blackstone

Space had risen tenfold in power, far greater than it had been in the past. In such a terrifyingly powerful area of gravity, even Seven Star Fiends would find it hard to resist. If a body was too weak, it wouldn't just sink downwards. It would...

Collapse and implode!

Bodies that were formed purely from energy had to be stable; if the stability was impacted and unable to withstand such a powerful gravity, the only result was collapse and explosion.

"Crackle..." Odin frantically tried to resist the gravitational pull, but his body continued to be drawn towards Linley's.

"This...this..." Odin didn't dare believe it.

"What, you still aren't going to reveal your Death-type clone?" Linley laughed coldly. He had already sent out his divine sense, encompassing the entire Yulan continent. But Linley wasn't able to find or sense the aura of Odin's Death-type clone.

"I admire you." Odin returned to his icy calm. "In two thousand years, you've become so very powerful. Your Gravitational Space is indeed formidable. Go ahead and kill me..." Odin actually chose not to fight back. It wasn't that he didn't want to; it was that he understood he wasn't able to.

Thus, he chose death!

"You want to die?"

Linley snickered. "Have you forgotten what you did to my big brother, Yale?"

Odin's face had a stunned look on it.

"Rumble..." Spiritual energy came sweeping out, and the 'Spiritual Chaos' affect was applied to Odin's soul. Linley's 'Spiritual chaos' technique was extremely monstrous by now...as a Highgod, he was able to cause ordinary Five Star Fiends and Six Star Fiends to enter a state of stupor.

And indeed...

Odin's eyes grew dim and lifeless.

"So indeed, he only has the power of a Five Star Fiend. At most, he just barely approaches the power of a Six Star Fiend." Linley's appearance changed as he returned to human form, while at the same time, those white funeral robes appeared around him once more.

Odin just stood there dumbly.

Linley turned to look, sweeping the imperial palace with his gaze, then said in a clear voice, "Odin is no longer able to fight back." As he spoke, Linley gave Odin a kick, and Odin, like a puppet, was kicked into the ground, not moving at all.

The experts who saw this all felt stunned. Clearly...Odin was unconscious.

"Now...the eighty two Deities within the imperial palace are all to come out. If you do not, the next to die will be you!" Linley's cold voice rang out, while he also spoke out with his divine sense, allowing it to enter the minds of those eighty two. Those eighty two were originally the subordinates of Odin. Now, terrified, they immediately flew over.

Linley's gaze turned towards Odin.

"Die? I will make sure you die in agony and humiliation." Linley's gaze was as cold and emotionless as ice.

Book 18, Highgod – Chapter 10, The Manner of Death

Dozens of figures flew over in the air in an impressive host, and the tens of Deities already present in the imperial palace flew over as well, terrified. In a short period of time, all eighty two Deities were assembled. Frightened and nervous, they stared at Linley. They didn't know...what Linley was going to do to them.

They were frustrated as well. How could Linley be so powerful? They had come with Odin from the Planar Prison to the Yulan continent, but they had never held the 'legendary' Linley in any regard.

But it seemed...as though Linley was unreasonably strong.

"Lord Linley, these things have nothing to do with us. We just obeyed the orders of Lord Odin." One of them, a green-haired, middle-aged man said hurriedly.

"It had nothing to do with us. Lord Linley, spare our lives."

The eighty two all begged for mercy. Having seen Linley's power, they understood that Linley was completely capable of just using his divine sense to attack all eighty two of them. Not a single one of them would escape.

"Shut your mouths." Linley said emotionlessly.

Immediately, all of the eighty two Deities fell silent, not daring to say a word. The entire devastated imperial palace was deathly silent. Those ministers, palace attendants, maids, and guards who stood in the distance were in a state of panic as well. All these years...they had known that the experts under the control of Odin were all exceedingly strong.

But today, Odin had been beaten like a dog and was now lying on the ground. Those eighty two figures were standing there like a pack of slaves, not daring to make a sound. And the person who had caused all this was that brown-haired man!

"Fourth Bro. Delia. If you want to take revenge, do what you please to him." Linley sent mentally.

Linley had no other options. He was unable to seal this clone's divine power, because this person was a Highgod! Linley had to rely on the black stone in order to send Odin into a dazed stupor.

"This bastard!" Reynolds bellowed, and he flashed forward, moving like lightning. His entire body began to blaze with flames, and his right leg spun out like a tornado. "Bang!" It violently clashed against Odin's waist, smashing Odin and sending him rolling forward on the ground into the distance, colliding with a distant stone pillar of the devastated palace. As Odin's body smashed into the stone pillar, the stone pillar collapsed as well.

"Bastard. Bastard!" Reynolds muttered, his eyes crimson as he stared at Odin. He flew over once more, stepping on Odin repeatedly.

"Bang!" "Bang!" "Bang!"

Reynolds was giving vent to his rage.

As for Linley, he just emotionlessly watched this happen. At the same time, a ball of water floated out from Linley's forehead, and a blurry blue light reflected the events in the distance. Linley was using his divine water clone to execute the scryer technique, and was recording these events.

"Reynolds." Delia growled.

Reynolds took a breather, turning to look at Delia, then stepping away to make way for her. As for Delia, she held the Spear of Cortez in her hands, then stabbed it viciously at Odin's body. Chest, legs, thigh, arms, waist...Delia savagely used the spear to stab him while cursing nonstop at him, and as she did, her tears began to fall as well. "Big Brother..."

Dixie had died. No matter what sort of revenge she took, Delia still was unable to accept it.

"Delia, she..." Linley could completely imagine what sort of pain Delia was in...because he was suffering that same pain! Death wasn't frightening, in and of itself, but to die the way Yale had, after having been tortured to the point of insanity? That was terrifying. "No matter what we do to torture this Odin, it won't be enough. Won't be enough!!! And his Death-type clone...I will definitely destroy it as well!"

"How vicious." Those eighty two distant Deities watched as Delia and Reynolds took their vengeance, and their hearts quailed as they watched.

Reynolds and Delia were both taking a breather.

"The eighty two of you." Linley turned to look at them.

"Lord Linley." The eighty two were extremely respectful.

Linley said icily, "Each of you, come up with a method to humiliate Odin. Remember – humiliate! Just stabbing him with a sword isn't enough! If someone is unable to come up with something...I will kill that person."

The eighty two Deities were stunned.

"Oh?" Linley's gaze was like an icy dagger as he swept them with his eyes. "Would you prefer death instead?"

The eighty two Deities stared at each other. Odin was their leader, after all. But after hesitating slightly, they all began to walk towards Odin. They knew their own limits...and they could tell that Odin was definitely going to die. Since he was going to die, humiliating him wasn't a big deal.

"Odin, who would've thought that you'd have a day like this?" One of the Deities said, stabbing Odin viciously in the throat.

"Don't kill him!" Linley growled.

The most important part was the head, as that was where the divine spark was located.

"Remember. Humiliate him!" Linley said coldly. "You call that humiliation! Not enough!"

These Deities looked at Linley, and then, gritting their teeth, they began to use all sorts of methods to humiliate him, either using the spears to stab at Odin's nether regions, or even tearing his clothes off. Moments later...Odin's body had become utterly horrific to behold. But seeing this, Linley didn't feel satisfied at all.

His eyes were still like ice.

"Big Bro, everything's ready." A voice rang out from behind. It was Wharton.

"Bring those people over." Linley ordered.

Immediately, a group of people began walking over from the various shattered walls of the palace. They were...beggars! These were beggars that had been summoned over from all over the imperial capital. Although the imperial capital was fabulously rich, it had its poor regions as well, along with a large number of beggars. Hundreds of filthy beggars had entered the imperial palace.

"Oho, so this is the imperial palace." The eyes of the beggars were all shining.

"Go. Please, use your imagination to come up with ways to humiliate that person on the ground. Each of you will receive a gold coin, and whoever does well will be gifted with a hundred additional gold coins."

The youthful looking man leading these beggars said in a clear voice.

"A hundred gold coins?"

The eyes of the beggars lit up.

"Haha, humiliate someone? Easy." A big fellow rushed forward.

"Those hundred gold coins are definitely mine."

The hundreds of beggars, all wanting to be first and none wanting to be last, charged forward. They had no idea that the person on the ground was a Highgod. No idea that this was the emperor of the Odin Empire. All they knew...was that if they performed well, they would receive a hundred gold coins. To these beggars, a hundred gold coins was a sum of money which could make them go crazy.

"All of you, come." The youthful leader immediately barked.

"Haha..." The first beggar immediately urinated into Odin's mouth.

"That's nothing." The second beggar sneered, walking to Odin as well.

One beggar after another came forward, summoning all of their imaginations in their desire to win the hundred gold coins, and using all sorts of ways to humiliate this person.

"This...this..." Seeing this, the eighty two Highgods were in shock, and their faces turned white.

Compared to these beggars, they were simply too gentle; what they did could only be considered 'punishing'. What these beggars were doing truly caused one to be in a state worse than death.

"Hey, this fellow's skin is so tough. I'm not able to cut it open no matter what I do!" One beggar called out. This beggar was holding a needle, as though wanting to do something to punish him, but unfortunately...this was the body of a Highgod, after all. Although Odin didn't specialize in body training, his body was still made from divine power.

How could an ordinary beggar possibly pierce the skin of a body formed from divine power?

"Next." The young man said emotionlessly.

"I should be the winner. Those hundred coins should be mine. I haven't even had the chance to use my skills." The needle-holding beggar immediately called out.

"F*ck off." A beggar in the rear pushed him aside. "Haha, it's daddy's turn now." As he spoke, he flipped Odin's body over...

"That's...going a bit too far." Some of the ministers weren't even able to watch any further."

But Linley just watched this emotionlessly, not a single hint of an expression on his face. Linley had to admit...these techniques did go a bit too far, and were enough to make a person go insane from humiliation. But he was only humiliating a single person, Odin. As for Odin? He destroyed all of the core members of the Dawson Conglomerate, forcing Yale to kill his own family.

In addition, he didn't even let Yale die; he tormented Yale instead.

Compared to this, what was happening to Odin was quite 'benevolent'.

"Let them go." Linley said calmly.

"Yes." The youth said respectfully, immediately leading the beggars away.

Linley stared at the filthy, naked, bloodstained body wearing tattered clothes, but felt no pity in his heart at all. At the same time, Linley retracted his spiritual power, but expanded his Blackstone Space once more, trapping Odin within.

Odin's eyes opened!

"Eh?" Odin looked at himself. His face immediately changed.

"Bang!" Divine wind power swirled, and Odin's body became completely purified, and a new set of robes appeared as well.

Odin forced himself to his feet, staring at Linley. "What did you do to me?"

"What did I do?" Linley laughed calmly. "Why don't you watch for yourself as to what was done" With but a thought, Linley made the crystal ball above his head shoot out rays of blue light, forming a massive image in the air above them. The images began to move, replaying what had just happened.

Linley naturally had recorded it all.

After all, Odin had been in a state of spiritual stupor. If he didn't know what had happened, how could Odin be tormented by it?

"This..." Odin's face changed, and he couldn't help but look towards Reynolds and Delia.

The scryer recording had finished displaying the images of what Delia and Reynolds had done. Next, it began to broadcast what the eighty two Deities had done. The tactics the eighty two Deities had used were far more excessive. Odin's face was ashen, and he couldn't help but turn to stare at those eighty two men. "You had the gall!"

The group of Deities couldn't help but feel startled...but then they recovered, and one laughed, "Hmph, Odin, you are about to die. What are you being so arrogant for?"

"You..." Watching the various events occur, Odin grew speechless from rage.

"Odin, keep watching. The best part has yet to start." Linley said calmly.

In the scryer recording, the beggars had appeared.

Odin's eyes turned round. "Beggars?" He, Odin, was a venerable, exalted Highgod. To Highgods, even Saints were like ants. As for ordinary mortals, they were to be killed as he pleased...people as lowly as these beggars, Odin couldn't even be bothered to look at.

He, a Highgod, to be spat on by mortal beggars? He thought he might go insane.

But the scryer recordings showed something even worse than he imagined.

The first beggar had urinated into his mouth.

Odin's fists were clenched, and his face first turned ashen, then turned black, before turning red. His eyes seemed to spit fire at the images.

Those beggars, for the sake of the hundred gold coins, had used up all of their imagination, each one more excessive than the last. The scenes were utterly depraved and utterly disgusting. Odin was a person who pursued perfect and who cared deeply about his face. But what was happening in the scryer recordings was even worse to him than killing him. Odin's entire body was trembling, and his mind was in a state of chaos.

Humiliation!

Incomparable humiliation!

Worse than death!

"Linley, you will definitely die in my hands. Definitely!!!" Odin stared at Linley with a deathly gaze.

"Odin, today's just the first day. We'll continue tomorrow." Linley said calmly.

Odin was so angry that a hint of blood came out from his lips.

But then, Odin suddenly turned his head to the skies, laughing wildly. "Haha...you are vicious. Vicious!" Odin stared at Linley, as though he wanted to skin Linley alive. "Linley, I have to say though...your skill in humiliating someone is still rather lacking. Compared to what I did to your older brother, Yale? You are a long way off! Do you know how I tortured him, when I hung him up on that tree in the palace? Haha, I imagine...that he wouldn't dare tell anyone of it. He wouldn't even dare think about it. Haha..." Although he was saying this, Odin had already been tormented to the brink of madness.

Linley just stared at him coldly.

"No matter how incredible you are, all you will be able to do is destroy my divine wind clone. My most important body is my Death-type clone. If my divine wind clone is destroyed, it is destroyed. It doesn't matter. If my son dies, I'll have another one. Haha...let me tell you this. My Death-type clone went to the Netherworld long ago. If you have the ability to do so, come find me in the Netherworld! Haha, as for further humiliating me... haha, in your dreams!"

"BANG!"

While wildly laughing, Odin's body suddenly exploded.

"Self-explosion?" The surrounding group of experts were all stunned. None of them had imagined that Odin would actually choose to die like this. Clearly, Odin was no longer able to withstand this sort of torment and humiliation, and had chosen suicide instead.

Linley's gaze was like ice.

"The Netherworld?" Linley murmured to himself.

Book 18, Highgod – Chapter 11, A Pleasant Surprise

Odin's sudden self-detonation caused the eighty two Deities to be shocked. They all waited nervously.

Suddenly...

Linley turned to look towards them. The eighty two Deities immediately said, "Lord Linley, we completely obeyed your orders. Please spare us." "What we did in the past, we did at the orders of Lord Odin. We had no choice."

They were all begging for mercy.

"Father, you cannot spare them!" Taylor's frantic shout came from behind.

"Hrm?" Linley turned to look.

Reynolds, by Taylor's side, said in an equally frantic voice, "Third Bro, these eighty two absolutely cannot be spared. When those Saints were killed, it wasn't Odin who personally did the deed; it was these 'claws' of his. George was killed by this group of people as well, and Dixie was killed by them as well!"

"It was them." Delia couldn't help but turn and look, her eyes filled with hatred.

What sort of status did Odin have? How could he possibly lower himself to kill Saints? All of these vicious acts had most likely been carried out by these 'claws' of his.

The eighty two began to panic. "Lord Linley, we can't be blamed. It was Lord Odin's orders."

Linley swept them with a cold look. One of the Deities, terrified, actually began to flee while frantically calling out through divine sense, "Flee, quick!" He could already sense that things were growing grim from Linley's gaze. As he fled, immediately, the other eighty two began to flee as well.

Some flew into the skies, others drilled into the ground.

"Rumble..."

An earthen yellow aura instantly spread out in every direction, forming an enormous sphere that was thousands of meters in diameter. It even sank two thousand meters into the ground. Within this sphere, the eighty two Deities were completely trapped. Even Seven Star Fiends would find it hard to resist this gravity.

"Bang!" A minority of them, those who had weak bodies, crumbled and collapsed from the gravity alone.

Fortunately, as long as a Deity's soul wasn't destroyed, death would not come. The eighty two Deities, although controlled by that powerful gravity and being pulled towards Linley, didn't die at least.

"Lord Linley." The Deities who had been trying to flee were frantically begging for mercy.

"Father. Kill them. Avenge Uncle." Taylor said frantically.

"Third Bro." Reynolds said as well.

Linley swept the eighty two with his cold gaze. "True, you were the subordinates of Odin and had to obey his orders. But in the past thousand years, none of you have departed from the Yulan Plane. You willingly remained behind...and so you were serving Odin and obeying him out of your own free will. You cannot blame others for your death!"

If these Deities had wanted to escape Odin's control, they could've simply gone to the Arctic Icecap and departed to the Higher Planes. Odin wouldn't have cared.

"Linley, you, you..."

The eighty two Deities began to beg for mercy in terror, curse in rage, or just mumble. But under that gravitational pull, they flew at high speed to Linley's side. Linley sent out a surge of divine earth power like arrows into the eighty two.

A low rumbling sound could be heard. The eighty two figures transformed into dust.

"Wharton, you take care of these things." The floor was littered with divine sparks, interspatial rings, and divine artifacts. They were caught up in a surge of divine power and floated towards Wharton. These Demigod sparks and God sparks, in a material plane, were still very precious.

Wharton immediately collected all of the things.

"Let's return." Linley didn't have a hint of a smile on his face. He just charged into the skies.

The forces of Dragonblood Castle immediately flew into the skies as well, leaving behind only two Saints. These two Saints immediately headed towards the surrounded and bound Envoys of the Baruch Empire. Seeing the situation, the soldiers around the Envoys were so frightened, they hurriedly loosened the bonds.

"Haha, your Odin Empire is finished." An Envoy said in a clear voice.

The ministers of the Odin Empire all looked at each other. They understood as well...that in front of the overwhelming power of the Baruch Empire, the Odin Empire had indeed been finished.

"The Empire is finished."

This battle in the imperial capital of the Odin Empire and Linley's sudden appearance and killing of Odin as well as eighty two Deities caused the entire Yulan continent to once more enter a state of chaos. Those experts who previously had been subjugated by Odin's power... how could they remain loyal to the Odin Empire now? They immediately rebelled against the Odin Empire.

In the space of a single night, the entire Odin Empire collapsed.

Although Odin had more than eighty two Deities under his control, with a few more scattered throughout the Yulan continent, once they learned that Odin and the eighty two Deities had died, they were so terrified that they immediately fled to the Arctic Icecap, all of them leaving the Yulan Plane.

The Odin Empire disintegrated at an astonishing speed.

And the Baruch Empire? It expanded at an astonishing speed. The entire Yulan continent once more knew of Linley's presence.

Grandmaster Linley, who had disappeared for nearly two thousand years, had suddenly reappeared.

That Emperor Odin had been killed.

The entire Yulan continent was rocked by the news of this battle.

Dragonblood Castle.

It had been nearly half a month since the killing of Odin. During this half month, Linley and Bebe had remained within Dragonblood Castle. Although Linley knew that Odin's Death-type clone was in the Netherworld, the Netherworld was simply too vast. How could he find him? It was like searching for a needle in the sea.

"Third Bro, drink less." Reynolds said.

At this moment, Linley and Reynolds were seated facing each other within a courtyard, drinking wine. None of them wanted to discuss Odin or Yale. Linley was actually just drinking nonstop, gulping down one bottle after another of wine into his belly.

"Third Bro." Reynolds grabbed Linley's arm, forcing Linley to halt.

Linley slammed the bottle to the side, then looked bitterly at Reynolds, sighing softly, "Fourth Bro, I feel miserable!"

Linley raised his head, tears in his eyes. "When I think of what happened to Boss Yale, I feel miserable. Have I 'avenged' him? With all my power, all I did was kill Odin's divine wind clone. To Odin, his divine wind clone wasn't nearly as important as his Death-type clone. And that clone is in the distant Netherworld."

"And Boss Yale? He was so shattered that you had to go kill him, Fourth Bro." When Linley thought about what Yale had experienced, he couldn't help but feel the rage build in his heart, making it ache. "I want to go to the Netherworld and kill Odin, but...finding Odin is too difficult. The Netherworld is simply too vast, too vast!"

The Netherworld was like the Infernal Realm; both were Higher Planes.

Just by looking at the Infernal Realm, one could imagine how if Odin had secreted himself into a corner of the Netherworld, that Linley could spend countless years without being able to find him.

“Third Bro.” Reynolds was heartsick as well, but he consoled Linley, “This isn’t your fault. Boss Yale did die an unjust death...and extremely unjust one! But if you hadn’t returned, we wouldn’t have been able to kill even as much as Odin’s divine wind clone. You’ve already done very well. I think...if Boss Yale knew of this, he would also feel slightly consoled.”

Linley laughed bitterly.

At most, ‘slightly consoled’.

In terms of pain, in terms of humiliation, in terms of torment...Yale had suffered far more than Odin had. The loss of his divine wind clone didn’t have too great an impact on Odin. He was still a Seven Star Fiend, and was still a powerful figure in the Netherworld. Whenever Linley thought about how Odin was free to roam the Netherworld, Linley felt the unjustness of it all.

He wanted to torment Odin, but in terms of what he was capable of, he had done all that he could.

“Odin truly deserves to die.” Linley couldn’t help but say this yet again.

“He does deserve to die. Ten thousand deaths wouldn’t be enough.” Reynolds said viciously as well. “If he had simply killed Boss Yale, I wouldn’t hate him as much as I do right now. But he...” Whenever Reynolds thought of the last time he had seen Yale and had seen how Yale was at the point of collapse, of that dispirited, tormented body...

Yale had been too pitiable!

He had already gone insane.

"Alas!" Linley was still furious. He couldn't help but slam the table, and with a 'bang', the table split apart.

"Boss, Boss!" A voice rang out from afar.

Linley turned to look, only to see a black robed Beirut and Bebe enter together, with Wharton, Delia, Nisse, Wade, and the others following from behind. Beirut looked at the shattered table in surprise. "Oh, Linley, what is it? Why'd you smash the table?"

"Lord Beirut." Linley forced a smile out. He was indeed in a terrible mood.

"Feeling angry and upset over what happened to your friend?" Beirut laughed calmly.

Linley didn't say a word. Actually, deep in his heart, Linley was still slightly upset at Beirut. Beirut definitely had known that Odin's Death-type clone had left the Yulan Plane. But Beirut hadn't stopped him at all. Still...Linley didn't say anything.

Because...

Why should Beirut help him? The fact that he occasionally helped out was enough. He couldn't always be looking after Linley's affairs.

"I know exactly what happened." Beirut let out a low sigh. "Originally, I was planning to leave Odin for you to handle. But on one occasion, I was on a visit to inspect the Necropolis of the Gods. During that period of time, Odin's Death-type clone left to go to the Netherworld." Beirut voluntarily explained, making Linley feel a surge of gratitude.

Actually, Beirut hadn't needed to explain.

The reason he explained was because he now considered Linley as a member of his family.

"The Netherworld." Delia shook her head. "The Netherworld is too vast. Finding Odin will be too hard."

"Unfortunately, yes." Beirut sighed as well.

Bebe said resignedly, "Grandpa just so happened to be in the Necropolis. Jeeze!" Suddenly, Bebe's eyes lit up and he looked at Beirut. "Grandpa, my Boss said that this time, we should go adventure in the Necropolis of the Gods. Help us open it up sometime." This was something which Linley and Bebe had already discussed in the Infernal Realm.

On this return trip, investigating the Necropolis of the Gods was indeed something they had planned. But after the Odin event, Linley was no longer in the mood.

"Investigate the Necropolis?" Beirut raised an eyebrow, then shook his head. "Bebe, there's no point for you going to the Necropolis. As for Linley..." Beirut looked towards Linley.

Linley couldn't help but listen carefully, musing to himself, "When I went to the Necropolis of the Gods, I sensed that deep within it, something was beckoning to me. I wonder what lay hidden deep within."

"Linley, you should indeed make a trip to the Necropolis of the Gods." Beirut laughed calmly. "However, your strength isn't sufficient yet."

"Not yet sufficient?" Linley was startled.

In terms of power, he should be decent by now. He was definitely approaching the Asura level. But Beirut actually said his strength wasn't sufficient yet?

"Based on what I know, the reason you are at such a level of power has something to do with the Redbud Sovereign." Beirut laughed gently. "Your true power is far weaker."

"Lord Beirut, when will it be enough?" Linley asked.

Beirut laughed softly. "When you reach Bluefire's level."

Bluefire's level?

Linley was slightly puzzled, but then he understood. Actually, he wasn't in the mood to investigate the Necropolis of the Gods either. Yale's affair had caused him to feel mentally exhausted and worn out. He had no interest in going right now.

"Alas, your friend did indeed die an unjust death." Beirut let out a sigh. "Unfortunately, I'm not the Emissary of a Netherworld Sovereign. Otherwise, I could go beg a Netherworld Sovereign to have him help you find the undead which your friend's spirit was transformed into after dying and being drawn into the Netherworld. If a Sovereign were to intervene, then it would be easy for the undead to regain its former memories."

Linley was stunned.

"Spirits are drawn into the Netherworld?" Linley's mind seemed to suddenly explode. "Right. If a soul isn't destroyed, then a person hasn't truly died. Even if one is drawn into the Netherworld and becomes an undead...the soul will remain! They can regain their memories as well! Right, Boss Yale, Second Bro, Dixie, and...and my father!!!"

Linley's face instantly turned red.

Red from excitement!

Linley's greatest regret was his father's early death, and the unfairness of it. His father didn't know that he had gotten revenge and killed their enemies, and also didn't know that the Baruch clan had been restored to glory.

And Yale, who had died so unjustly. His friend.

"Lord Beirut..." Linley hurriedly spoke out.

"Lord Beirut, my elder brother, he..." Delia spoke out hurriedly as well.

"Lord Beirut, then Boss Yale, he..." Reynolds spoke out as well.

Instantly, everyone began to ask questions frantically and excitedly.

Book 18, Highgod – Chapter 12, Entering the Netherworld

Linley was so excited, he felt his heart was about to explode. He had never been so excited before. "Father can regain his memory, and can come back to life! And Yale, George, Dixie..." The depressing emotions he had felt the past few days suddenly disappeared. Linley was incomparably excited. He felt as though the world had instantly become colorful and beautiful.

"Don't be hasty. All of you, don't be hasty." Beirut quickly urged.

Everyone forcibly repressed their excitement.

"I was speaking casually, just now." Beirut said hurriedly. "After ordinary mortals die, their souls will enter the Netherworld and become undead. There's no way for a Highgod to find the specific undead which a person's spirit became. Only the seven Netherworld Sovereigns who rule the Netherworld can find them! However, Sovereigns are Sovereigns; do you think that they'll help you just because you ask?"

Immediately, everyone fell silent. Linley felt his heart tighten as well.

Sovereigns were lofty, proud individuals. They most likely wouldn't pay any attention to the request of a Highgod.

"If I don't try, how would I know what the result is?" Linley said hurriedly.

Whether it was for the sake of Yale, George, Dixie, or his father, Linley wasn't willing to give up.

"Give it a try. Maybe you'll succeed." Delia said hurriedly as well.

Beirut shook his head helplessly. "To do this, there're two great difficulties. The first is to find and see the Sovereign, while the second is to have the Sovereign agree to help you. These two difficulties are tremendously hard to overcome. Linley, I know you want to see your father and your brothers. But do you know where the Netherworld Sovereigns live?"

Linley was stunned.

Where a Sovereign lived? That was a deeply guarded secret. For example, the Redbud Sovereign. Although Linley had visited the Amethyst Mountains, he only later learned that place had been the residence of the Redbud Sovereign.

"To find a Sovereign...even if you find the right location and the Sovereign happens to be there at that moment, if the Sovereign doesn't wish to meet you, what will you do?" Beirut said. "In addition, even if you see the Sovereign, why would the Sovereign so easily accede to the request of yourself, a mere Highgod?"

It was too difficult!"

"I want to give it a try." Linley said determinedly. "No matter what, I will not give up. There are a total of seven Netherworld Sovereigns. I'll go searching for them. If the first one doesn't work out, I'll find another one."

Beirut, hearing this, couldn't help but shake his head.

"You really are stubborn."

"Fine, then." Beirut nodded. With a wave of his hand, he made a ten centimeter thick book appear. "Linley, this book describes the Netherworld. Take a look. It will help you understand the Netherworld better."

"Thank you." Linley accepted the book.

While in the Infernal Realm, he had never paid much attention to the affairs of the Netherworld. He had thought that he would never go there, but who would have imagined that all of these things would have occurred?

"If you truly are going to go to the Netherworld, then let me give you this bit of advice." Beirut said resignedly. "This isn't really advice; I imagine you can think of it as well. When you go find the Netherworld Sovereigns, first find the Emissaries of the Sovereigns...there are quite a few Emissaries, and you should be able to find them. If you aren't able to find them, then find a Lord Prefect of a Prefecture. Those Lord Prefects might know where the Sovereign that manages them is located."

Linley nodded.

Although it might be possible to find a Sovereign through seeking out a Sovereign's Emissary or a Lord Prefect...would the Emissary or Lord Prefect be willing to tell him?

"Continue carrying that medallion I gave you." Beirut said. "The medallion, after all, represents the Bloodridge Sovereign. With that medallion, perhaps it'll be a bit easier for you."

Linley's eyes lit up.

Right, the medallion! It had been bestowed upon Beirut by the Bloodridge Sovereign. That thing might convince a Netherworld Sovereign to at least listen to what he had to say.

"Grandpa, thank you." Bebe beamed with wide eyes.

"If I didn't do this, you'd say that Grandpa is being stingy." Beirut laughed loudly.

Bebe beamed. There was no question that he was going with Linley to the Netherworld.

"Thank you, Lord Beirut." Delia said gratefully as well. Beirut laughed, "Alright then. You have your plan. I'll go back now. If there's anything else you need, go to the Forest of Darkness and look for me there." After he spoke, Beirut transformed into a black blur, disappearing into the distance.

In mid-air.

Beirut turned to glance at Dragonblood Castle, a hint of a secret smile appearing at the corners of his lips. "Just as I predicted! Only...I don't know if this kid is going to live up to my expectations or not." And then, chortling to himself, he flew back to the Forest of Darkness.

After learning this news, everyone in Dragonblood Castle was in a state of excitement. But immediately afterwards, they felt a sense of pressure. To go ask for a Sovereign to assist them...this was simply too hard. Everyone was worried about whether or not Linley would be able to succeed. They also feared...that the Sovereign might be enraged and kill Linley!

"Sovereigns...shouldn't have bizarre, violent personalities, right?" Wade said, worried.

"Don't speak rashly." Delia immediately scolded.

Bebe laughed in a very certain manner. "Don't worry. After the Netherworld Sovereigns see the Bloodridge Sovereign's medallion which the Boss and I have, they shouldn't kill us." Bebe, although appearing outwardly confident, was still very nervous in his heart. After all...would a Netherworld Sovereign necessarily give face to the Bloodridge Sovereign?

In fact, it might be possible that the Netherworld Sovereign might just so happen to have a grudge against the Bloodridge Sovereign.

Nobody could be certain!

"Sovereigns view themselves as far above us. As long as we don't offend them, they won't lower themselves to kill us." Linley said calmly. "As for this trip to the Netherworld, only Bebe and myself will go." Linley and Bebe had already discussed this through their spiritual connection. There was no telling what would happen on this trip to the Netherworld.

If he and Bebe headed out by themselves, they would have nothing to fear. But if they brought others along...they wouldn't be able to protect them in a dangerous situation.

"Right." Delia, hearing this, nodded as well.

"Bebe." But Nisse was rather reluctant.

"We'll return soon." Bebe chortled. At this time, Linley's body split into two, as a fiery red haired Linley walked out.

"Delia, my divine fire clone will remain here. And Nisse...if there's anything you need, you can just tell my divine fire clone. I will immediately know and notify Bebe." Linley laughed calmly. By leaving behind a divine fire clone, communication became easier.

Nisse and Delia both felt slightly mollified. With Linley's divine fire clone present, they would know Linley's situation in the Netherworld at all times.

The second day after Beirut's departure from Dragonblood Castle, Linley and Bebe decided to head out. In but a single night, Linley finished reading the book on the Netherworld, and gained a basic understanding of the place.

The Netherworld. Sacred Undead Mountain.

This was a great mountain, tens of thousands of meters high. The entire mountain was the color of white bones, and white skeletons could be seen throughout the mountain. At the peak of the mountain, there was an enormous, ancient castle that was entirely black and surrounded by black fog. This castle had already existed for countless years.

Occasionally, metallic lifeforms would fly out from the castle, with some voices coming from within as well.

The Infernal Realm had seven teleportation locations. But the Netherworld only had two. Sacred Undead Mountain was one of them!

"Hey, all of you, stand there obediently." A group of white-robed warriors shouted out casually.

Within the enormous teleportation array, rays of light were shooting everywhere, with some figures appearing on occasion. These figures stared in surprise around them. These people were Saints or Demigods, with a very few Gods. As for Highgods...the chance of a Highgod coming was very low!

"Only at the Saint-level, and yet they came to the Netherworld. They really have come to throw their lives away." A black-haired, young-looking warrior in white robes kicked a middle-aged Saint away, sending him flying out of the teleportation array into the corner of a wall.

The person who had been kicked turned around angrily. "What are you looking at, kid. Do you want to fight?" The white-robed warrior smirked as he spoke. The middle-aged Saint just gritted his teeth, lowering his head and leaning against the corner of the wall, not daring to make a sound. Seeing this person didn't resist, the white-robed warrior couldn't help but shake his head and chuckle. "Saints are everywhere in the Netherworld. If you don't learn to endure, you will probably die on the very first day!"

"Bucher [Bu'si'er], you always like to tease them." A white-robed warrior in another corner laughed while drinking wine.

The black-haired youth, Bucher, laughed as well. "If we don't help them learn the rules now, when they really enter the Netherworld, they'll die even faster."

Quite a few people had already been teleported in by now.

"More coming." The black-haired, white-robed youth immediately turned to look. The enormous teleportation array once more lit up with that hazy glow, and two figures emerged from within. After the glow disappeared...

"Highgods!"

The surrounding white-robed warriors immediately turned to look. Even the white-robed warriors who had been seated all came to their feet. It was very rare for Highgods to come through the teleportation array. If one appeared, it generally meant someone was coming from another Higher Plane, and an extraordinary individual at that.

The group of white-robed warriors stared carefully at these two figures.

One was a brown-haired youth, while the other was a skinny youngster wearing a straw hat. The brown-haired youth's body suddenly lifted into the air, glancing around himself before saying, "This is the Sacred Undead Mountain! It seems we will need to move to the south. Still, before leaving, let's take a trip around the 'Undead Realm'."

Hearing the words 'Sacred Undead Mountain', these white-robed warriors immediately grew certain that these two came from other Higher Planes.

"Fine, Boss."

The brown-haired man nodded slightly towards the nearby white-robed warriors, then led the youngster with the straw hat into the air, flying away from Sacred Undead Mountain.

"Adventuring through the Higher Planes...how long will it be before I, too, am able to do this? But the teleportation cost truly is high! I've been here so many years, but I still haven't earned enough netherstones for a single teleportation." The black-haired youth in the white robes let out an admiring, praising sigh.

The horizons were vast and endless. Dark black clouds covered the world, and tongues of lightning would occasionally flash out from the dark clouds, like dragons of lightning dancing about within.

This was an empty, desolate plains.

Two endless hordes of undead which stretched as far as the eye could see were arrayed into two camps, staring at each other. There were many skeletons, foul zombies, drifting, translucent wraiths, and also grim, forbidding black knights. There were also strange wights and ancient liches, all of which were separated into different levels.

There were weak skeletons, but also skeletons at the Saint-level.

"Kabuser [Ka'bu'si'er], you only have two choices..." A booming voice shook the heavens. "Submit to me or die!"

But the reply was just a cold laugh.

"Attack!" Immediately, the booming voice roared in anger.

"Attack." Another voice, a cold, fierce one, howled as well.

Immediately, the vast swarms of undead in the two camps attacked the other side wildly. A battle between undead was like waves crashing against each other. The entire world was filled with skeletal dragons, and skeletal griffins howled through the skies, while venomous fogs billowed out, filling the world. Large numbers of undead on both sides died.

Right at this moment...

The two armies of undead came to a sudden halt, as their leaders both stared towards the skies, stunned.

In mid-air, two figures flew past at high speed. The terrifyingly powerful aura they emanated was causing the countless undead below to feel terror in their hearts. This was an aura that was countless times more powerful than the auras of the two undead who ruled them. They didn't dare to resist it at all. But moments later, the two figures disappeared into the horizon.

"We just released a hint of our aura, but they were so terrified they wouldn't even dare move." Bebe laughed with a chortle.

"You really are bored, aren't you." Linley didn't know whether to laugh or to cry.

Just now, when they had departed from Sacred Undead Mountain and began to fly towards the northern part of the 'Undead Realm' to take a look. Bebe realized that his Highgod aura would cause these undead to be extremely terrified, and so he constantly released his aura, intentionally frightening those undead. As for Linley, there was nothing he could do with regards to Bebe's trouble-causing antics.

The Netherworld was different from the Infernal Realm. It was just a single, terrifyingly enormous continent. This vast continent was even larger than the five continents of the Infernal Realm put together!

The northern part of the continent had countless undead populating within it, and so this area was known as the 'Undead Realm'.

As for the southern part of the continent, this was the real, so-called 'Netherworld'.

As for the Sacred Undead Mountain, it was located at the borders between the Netherworld and the Undead Realm.

"Large numbers of undead are dying at every moment in the Undead Realm. Undead grow in power by devouring the spirits of other undead! What I fear the most is that the undead which Yale, George, and my parents have become have already been devoured by others." Linley was rather worried. Still, he flew with Bebe away from the Undead Realm, flying south towards the border it shared with the Netherworld.

Book 18, Highgod – Chapter 13, Northbone Prefecture

The vast continent of the Netherworld was filled with undead in the north, and thus it was known as the 'Undead Realm'. The weak undead who lived there were at most Saint-level undead. Generally speaking, upon becoming Deities, the vast majority would fly to the south, entering the world of experts...the Netherworld.

South of Sacred Undead Mountain. That was the place which was viewed as the true Netherworld.

As one of the four Higher Planes, the management structure of the Netherworld was quite similar to that of the Infernal Realm; the Netherworld had a total of eighty one prefectures. As Linley and Bebe flew into the Netherworld from Sacred Undead Mountain, the first prefecture they entered was the number one prefecture of the northern Netherworld...Northbone Prefecture!

Currently, in the air above Northbone Prefecture, a metallic lifeform that was less than ten meters long was flying forward at high speed. Linley and Bebe were within it, but right now, Linley was frowning in concern. Just now, Linley and Bebe had gone to the borders of the Undead Realm to take a look. After doing so, Linley began to worry.

The slaughters happening in the Undead Realm were even more terrifying and even more common than the Infernal Realm's! The undead constantly battled each other, devouring each other's souls to strengthen their own, increasing their own power! "Father died nearly two thousand years ago, while George, Yale, and Dixie died a thousand years ago. So much time has passed...have they, too, died within in the battle between undead?”

Linley was worried about this.

Once the undead creature a departed soul was formed into was killed, the soul would be devoured, and the person would truly be dead! Even if Linley managed to find a Sovereign, it would be useless.

Linley couldn't help but feel concerned. Too much time had passed, after all, and the battles in the Undead Realm were too vicious!

“Boss...don't worry!” Bebe said hurriedly. “Your father, George, and Yale...none of them have weak souls. Even if they were transformed into undead upon entering the Netherworld, they would be powerful undead. The chances of a powerful undead surviving are much better.”

“That's all I can say to myself.” Linley nodded slightly.

But Linley understood that with each passing moment in the Undead Realm, countless powerful undead were being killed and devoured.

“What we need to do is make use of every moment.” Linley frowned. “If I want to find a Sovereign, I can't just run about blindly. It's best to find a Sovereign's Emissary or a Lord Prefect and make an inquiry.”

“Boss, do you know who the Emissaries are, here in the Netherworld? Or where the Lord Prefects live?” Bebe asked.

Linley shook his head.

“Best I find a Highgod and ask, first.” Linley only knew some basic information regarding the Netherworld. As for where the various Lord Prefects of the Netherworld lived, that was hard to say. Some lived within their prefectural palaces, while others lived in cities. But some Lord Prefects lived in very distant, remote mountain ranges.

Since he had to find a Highgod, Linley began to pay attention to the outside world.

He couldn't just scan every single metallic creature that flew by for Highgods, then stop them and force them out and ask them. That would just anger them, and although they might be afraid of Linley's power, they might lie to Linley out of enmity.

While flying, Linley paid close attention to the outside.

On the third day, while drinking fruit wine and staring through the translucent window, Linley's eyes suddenly lit up.

Several kilometers away, there were nearly ten thousand Gods under the command of tens of Highgods who were in pursuit of ten or so people.

“Bebe, here's our chance!” Linley said.

“Chance?” Bebe glanced sideways casually. “What chance? It's just a group of bandits fighting outside.” On the way over, Linley and Bebe had encountered quite a few scenes of bandits fighting people. However...the forces involved were small, and the conflicts were also small-scale.

"Just follow me." Linley said in a low voice. The metallic lifeform immediately vanished, giving Bebe no choice but to follow Linley and fly towards the distant battlefield.

The many bandits were attacking in every which way as those ten or so people wildly tried to flee in every direction. However, the Highgod leaders of those bandits were chasing after two Highgods in particular.

"Which bastard revealed our information! Almost as soon as we entered Northbone Prefecture, the bandits of eighteen mountain ranges joined forces to attack us!" A three meter tall, red-skinned man with a single horn on his forehead sent through divine sense, his ox-like eyes bloodshot with rage.

"Big Bro, don't be angry. Fleeing is more important." The other, a younger man, said.

"Once we escape, we definitely must investigate." The ox-headed man was extremely angry, but he still flew away at high speed. "We'll be lucky if we can escape." The youth glanced back sideways. Those who had been slow to flee were all dead now, and of those who had fled to the south, only the two of them remained.

But of course, they had some comrades who had fled in other directions. By now, nobody was able to take care of anybody else.

"Swoosh!" "Swoosh!"

Eight figures suddenly appeared in front of the ox-headed man and the youth. The eight stared at them coldly. "Not good!" The ox-headed man and the youth immediately came to a halt. As they looked to the other sides, they found out that the other directions also had people barring their path.

"The two of you still want to flee?" A deep voice rang out, and a muscular, bearded dwarf who was 1.5 meters tall said. The dwarf floated there in mid-air, staring at them with his emotionless golden eyes.

"Big Bro, we're finished!"

The youth and the ox-headed man looked at each other, feeling powerless.

Surrounded by bandits. Their losses were catastrophic this time!

"If you are able to kill us, then do so." The ox-headed man swept the surrounding bandits with his gaze, then laughed coldly with anger. "Even if you kill us, you won't be able to obtain our things." Generally speaking, people with valuable possessions would keep clones in their headquarters. If this ox-headed man was killed, his clones would remain alive...and thus, his interspatial ring would still be inaccessible.

The dwarf laughed coldly.

As the general commanders for the bandits of the eighteen mountain ranges, these people had done this more than a few times before. They were quite experienced. They knew that others had clones in other places, and so even if they killed these people, they wouldn't be able to acquire the treasures within.

"I'll give you two choices." The dwarf's deep voice echoed in the heavens. "Choice number one, you hand over these treasures and give us the interspatial rings' contents. We'll let you two leave. Choice number two...you don't hand them over. Then none of us will gain anything, while the two of you will die!"

"Then you die first." The ox-headed man bellowed, and his entire body instantly transformed into that of a mighty black bull, surrounded by blazing flames. He shot out towards the dwarf like a flaming mirage.

The dwarf just laughed disdainfully, and in his hands, a two-meter long black greataxe appeared. Hefting the black greataxe, the dwarf gave a casual chop towards the flaming mirage, and where the greataxe passed, space itself trembled like ripples in water.

Suddenly...

An earthen yellow aura descended from the heavens, spreading out to a diameter of a thousand meters, forming a hemisphere of earthen yellow light and trapping all of the Highgod bandits within, as well as the ox-headed brothers. In addition, beneath that hemisphere of earthen yellow light, a round 'plate' formed from divine earth power was formed, 'covering up' this hemisphere.

"Swoosh!" "Swoosh!" "Swoosh!"

In an instant, the thirty three Highgod bandits and the two ox-headed brothers trembled as their bodies irresistibly were drawn downwards, smashing heavily against the 'round plate' formed by divine earth power. The group stood there in terror, unable to take to the air.

They all raised their heads, looking towards the skies in terror.

A brown-haired youth dressed in a sky-blue robe was there, along with a youngster wearing a straw hat. They stood in the air, side by side.

"Milord!" The big-bearded dwarf immediately bowed respectfully. "My name is Kleopatra [Ke'li'ao'pa'te'le], the overall leader of the eighteen northern mountain ranges of the Northbone Prefecture. I don't know what you need, milord. Our eighteen mountains will definitely comply!" Instantly, the other thirty two Highgod bandits bowed as well.

Within this field of gravity, they could already sense the terrifying power of the gravitational pull. "Good heavens, there's actually such a powerful Gravitational Space. If he wanted to kill us, he could slaughter us with ease."

In this sort of area, killing them would be utter simplicity for Linley.

"Milord, my name is Amos [A'mo]. I'm willing to serve you, milord." The ox-headed man immediately bowed as well, and the youth by his side also bowed. In the Netherworld, they all knew when to be arrogant and when to be respectful. Clearly, the person who had just appeared was an invincible expert.

A hint of a smile was on Linley's face.

"I have a question, gentlemen." Linley asked.

"Milord, pray tell." The big-bearded dwarf immediately said, and the ox-headed man was listening carefully as well.

Linley laughed calmly. "I want to know if a Sovereign's Emissary lives in Northbone Prefecture!"

"I know the answer to this. The Lord Prefect of our Northbone Prefecture is himself a Sovereign's Emissary." The big-bearded dwarf immediately replied, while the ox-headed man also said, "The Lord Prefect of Northbone Prefecture is one of the supreme experts of the Netherworld, and he is indeed a Sovereign's Emissary."

Linley felt a surge of delight.

It seemed as though this Northbone Lord Prefect should know quite a bit about the Sovereign.

Bebe immediately asked as well, "Where does the Lord Prefect live? You, speak!" Bebe pointed at the ox-headed man.

The ox-headed man said respectfully, "The Lord Prefect of Northbone Prefecture lives in a grassland located thousands of kilometers to the east of the city of Hide [Hai'de]. Ordinary people aren't able to enter...but of course, given your statuses, milords, it will be very easy for you to pay a visit."

"Outside the city of Hide?" A map instantly appeared in Linley's mind. Linley already knew the general locations of the cities of the Netherworld like the back of his hand, and currently, Linley had already focused on a specific location.

"Is he outside of Hide?" Linley looked towards the dwarf, who hurriedly nodded as well.

Only now was Linley certain.

"Fine. You can leave now." Linley said calmly, retracting his Blackstone Space.

The group of bandits and the ox-headed brothers were stunned, looking at each other.

"Thank you, milord!" The ox-headed brothers immediately bowed, then fled to the south at high speed.

Quite a few bandits immediately prepared to give chase.

"You still want to kill them?" Bebe barked. Instantly, the group of bandits halted. Linley glanced at them, then at the dwarf and said calmly, "Perhaps you should just forget about this particular business transaction."

"Right, right." The dwarf immediately acknowledged the other.

"Kleopatra. A fine name." Linley laughed calmly, then flew with Bebe into the skies, disappearing into the horizon.

"Boss, should we chase or not?" The other bandits looked at the big-bearded dwarf.

"Chase my ass. We won't be able to catch up. And...if we really chased just now, I imagine that lord would've been able to kill us all with the wave of a hand." The dwarf snorted coldly. The other bandits couldn't help but feel a surge of fear. "Enough. Let's collect the interspatial rings from the battlefield, then go back."

The dwarf immediately led the vast host back to their headquarters.

The bandits of the eighteen northern mountains of Northbone Prefecture were indeed a powerful force, and their leader, Kleopatra, was someone who was nearly at the Six Star Fiend level of power.

The bandits had eighteen chiefs, but of course the dwarf was the overall leader. In one of the eighteen mountain ranges, a bald man dressed in black battle armor flew into a castle, and the bandits at the gates of the castle all bowed and said, "Chief!"

"Hmph." The bald, black-armored man just strode into the hall, filled to the brim with rage.

"Chief, why are you so angry?" A gentle voice rang out.

"Ugh!" The bald man sat down upon his throne in the main hall, grumbling unhappily, "You have no idea. Today, we brothers of the eighteen mountain ranges all joined forces, and were at the verge of success. But who would have imagined that a pair of supreme experts would suddenly appear out of nowhere, and ask us questions about the Lord Prefect and Sovereign's Emissaries? And they even forced us to let those two fat sheep escape."

"Then our luck really was terrible." The gentle voice said.

"Ugh." The bald, black-armored man stood up again. "Enough, George. Quite a few of the brothers of our mountain range died this time. The squads need to be rearranged. Help me handle it. I'm not in the mood."

"Yes, Chief." The reply came from a youth with a very friendly smile on his face.

If Linley was here, he would have immediately recognized that this was his brother...George!

Book 18, Highgod – Chapter 14, Sayant

The bald, black-armored warrior glanced sideways at George, then went to rest. He was very satisfied with George's performance as his housekeeper. First of all, George was a Demigod, and thus didn't pose any threat to him. Second of all, George was indeed talented, and made suitable arrangements for all of the forces throughout the mountain range. He now believed that his decision in the past to not kill George was one of his wisest decisions.

This time, there weren't many casualties, and so George quickly finished the arrangements.

Night. Within the mountain castle. George stood in front of a window, staring through it at a curved, devilish red moon. This curved devilish red moon reminded him...this was the Netherworld! Not his homeland, the Yulan continent.

"How much longer will this sort of life continue for?" George mused to himself. "I wonder what has happened to the Yulan continent in the past thousand years. According to the tyrannical actions of that Odin, most likely Boss Yale and even Dragonblood Castle suffered greatly."

George was a very calm and cool-headed person. No matter what sort of environment he encountered, he would quickly adapt to it.

In the Netherworld, there was something that everyone knew – undead wouldn't possess memories of their past lives. Only after they evolved and transformed into Deities would their souls be baptized by the natural Laws, and in that moment, the dusty memories of their past life would be restored to them as well.

When George died, he had been a Saint.

When his soul had been drawn into the Netherworld and had been transformed into an undead departed soul, his power had been determined by his soul's power. George's soul had been that of a Saint, and so when he had become an undead, he had become a Saint-level undead. When George had been a Saint-level undead, George hadn't had any memories regarding his past life; all he knew was to kill other undead, to devour their souls, and to strengthen himself!

As he strengthened himself, his soul constantly grew in power. And then, as he continuously, slowly gained insights...suddenly, he had broken through and become a Deity!

In that instant of becoming a Deity, George had regained all of his memories.

He knew that in the past his name had been...George.

As a senior minister of the former Yulan Empire, George's diplomatic skills and interpersonal relationship skills were far superior to Linley. When they were young and at the Ernst Institute, George made friends very easily, and in the government of the Yulan Empire, he had been at home as a fish in water.

Now, he was in a base for bandits.

Perhaps bandits were talented in training and battle, but with regards to management, they were far inferior to George. Thus, everyone acknowledged wholeheartedly George's talents as housekeeper.

"Right now, my first goal is to gain enough money in order to buy a house within a city." George had already made a plan for himself. "Afterwards, I will train within the city in safety! By then, I won't have to spend so much energy." As housekeeper for this mountain range, George's status was very high, second only to the leader of their mountain range. He could have easily acquired a God-level divine spark and fused with it, but he didn't want to.

He wanted to independently become a Deity!

Thus, although he didn't dare to openly embezzle, given his abilities, if he were to secretly secrete a large amount of wealth into his own interspatial ring, how would others be able to find out?

If someone had enough money, why would they want to stay in a bandit's nest?

"Unfortunately, Third Bro is in the Infernal Realm. It will be very hard to see him again." George sighed to himself.

Northbone Prefecture was indeed vast. The metallic lifeform Linley was riding flew for several months before reaching the grasslands outside the city of Hide.

"This residence of the Lord Prefect of Northbone Prefecture feels like a city." Bebe stared through the window and spoke out in praise. "The forces stationed here station in the hundreds of thousands, and they are arranged into rows of houses. They really do seem quite imposing. And that tall castle in the center...that must be the actual residence of the Lord Prefect."

Linley looked over as well. That tall castle was over a hundred meters tall, and was an ivory white color.

"I hope the Lord Prefect is at home." Linley sighed to himself. "If this Lord Prefect isn't present, we would've made this trip for nothing." Linley immediately stored away his metallic lifeform, and then he and Bebe flew towards the distant residence.

The residence of the Lord Prefect of Northbone Prefecture was naturally under heavy guard, and many prefectural soldiers were on patrol.

"Who goes there!" The distant soldiers shouted from far away, before Linley even drew near.

But Linley and Bebe continued to fly over. Tens of prefectural soldiers immediately flew forward, with the leader being a soldier with a single horn on his forehead. The leader barked, "This is the residence of the Lord Prefect. Outsiders are not permitted to wander about freely here. The two of you had best leave immediately."

"Please go report to the Lord Prefect that Elder 'Linley' of the Four Divine Beasts clan wishes to pay his respects." Linley laughed calmly.

"And are we supposed to believe that you are an Elder of the Four Divine Beasts clan just because you say you are?" The leader of the soldiers snickered.

Linley laughed calmly. An earthen yellow aura spread out from his body, immediately capturing the soldiers within it, catching them completely off-guard. Their bodies trembled, and they fell down to the ground. Gritting their teeth, they just barely made it back to their feet.

"Now do you believe me?" Linley laughed calmly, while at the same time withdrawing the earthen yellow light.

"I believe you, I believe you." The soldier said hurriedly.

He had been completely stunned. The power of the Gravitational Space made him completely convinced that this person in front of him was definitely someone of the Seven Star Fiend level. "The two of you, please wait here a moment...I'll go make the report." The horned soldier said, and then immediately turned and flew towards the tall castle.

"Is your Lord Prefect present?" Linley queried the other soldiers.

These soldiers all understood that the two in front of them were extraordinary figures. One of them, a big-bearded soldier, laughed in response, "Milord, We are just ordinary soldiers. If the Lord Prefect was to leave, we probably wouldn't be made aware of it. Soon, when the captain returns, we'll know."

Linley could only wait there quietly, while Bebe mumbled, "I hope the Lord Prefect didn't head out."

Moments later...

"Lord Linley, Lord Linley." The soldier who had made the report shouted from far away as he flew back, moving like a flash, his face covered in smiles. "When the Lord Prefect learned that you had arrived, milord, he was extremely happy. He's already ordered a feast to be prepared for you. Lord Linley, please follow me this way."

Hearing this, Linley couldn't help but exchange glances with Bebe.

"So friendly?" Bebe mumbled.

"That's a good thing." Linley laughed, then immediately flew forwards. "Lead the way!"

While hurrying towards the castle, Bebe asked through divine sense in a puzzled manner "Boss, it seems as though this Lord Prefect of Northbone Prefecture is being very courteous upon knowing that you are here. Can it be that he has heard of you? Can it be that your fame, Boss, has spread all the way from the Infernal Realm to the Netherworld?"

"We'll know when we see him." Linley felt very joyful right now. "Also, when we meet the Lord Prefect, don't cause any trouble. We're here to ask him for help."

"I know. If necessary, I just will stay silent." Bebe rubbed his nose.

Linley couldn't help but chuckle. This trip to the Netherworld seemed to be going rather smoothly. He was able to so easily meet with the Lord Prefect of Northbone Prefecture.

"Lord Linley, here we are." The soldier stood outside the castle gates.

Linley could already see quite a few maids moving towards the castle with platters of food. Linley and Bebe immediately entered this castle.

A few hundred meters away from the Lord Prefect's castle, there was another, slightly smaller castle. At this moment, a man dressed in long gray robes was standing on the veranda, casually enjoying the scenery. If Linley were to see this person, Linley would immediately recognize him. This was the person he dreamed about killing...the Vile King of the Gebados Planar Prison, 'Odin'.

When Odin had arrived in the Netherworld, he had been transported here by the Sacred Undead Mountain as well.

Thus, his first stop was to Northbone Prefecture. While journeying through Northbone Prefecture, he quickly understood that given his current level of power, although he could be considered a supreme expert in the Netherworld, he hadn't truly reached the pinnacle of power. There was no way he could compare to the Lord Prefects of the Netherworld. And while journeying, he had encountered the Lord Prefect of Northbone Prefecture.

After sparring multiple times with the Lord Prefect, he wholeheartedly submitted to the other man's power, and so had become the Lord

Prefect's subordinate, becoming the third Envoy controlled by the Lord Prefect of Northbone Prefecture.

"Eh?" Odin looked into the distance in surprise.

He saw two figures be led into the Lord Prefect's castle.

"Them!" Odin's pupils suddenly contracted, and his face changed dramatically. "How has Linley come to the Netherworld as well?" How could Odin forget the humiliation his divine wind clone had suffered, back in the Yulan continent? Even though that sort of humiliation, to him, was quite basic...

But to Odin, it was still the greatest humiliation he had ever suffered!

He hated Linley!

Back then, he had viciously snarled at Linley, telling Linley to come to the Netherworld to find him.

But who would have thought that Linley would actually come to the Netherworld! "It seems he is fixated on killing me." Odin's gaze was cold. "He even dares to come meet with the Lord Prefect. Does Linley know that I'm here, or is he here on other business?" Odin was still rather puzzled as to whether or not Linley knew he was here.

If he did, would Linley dare to so openly meet with the Lord Prefect?

It must be understood that Odin was the Lord Prefect's subordinate.

"I had wanted to just let things be done with. Who would have imagined that you would chase me into the Netherworld? Hmph." Odin was so angry that he suddenly moved, flying out of his own castle towards the Lord Prefect's castle.

His divine wind clone had gotten a complete sense of Linley's power. Odin understood...that in terms of material attacks, Linley far surpassed him. Even in soul attacks...Linley had enough power to make him, Odin, enter a dazed state and lose consciousness. Through this, Odin had become certain...

That Linley wasn't weaker than him in terms of soul attacks either!

"To kill Linley...by myself, I won't be able to do it. I'll have to ask the Lord Prefect to help." Odin immediately flew in through a side door, entering the Lord Prefect's castle. The guards all knew who Odin was, and so didn't block him.

Within the guest hall.

A long table was covered with all sorts of delicacies, and bottles of precious wine had been prepared as well. Linley and Bebe were seated off to one side, while facing them was a blue-robed, graceful woman. In the host's seat, there sat a handsome, middle-aged white-robed man with a white beard, beaming so widely his eyes were creased.

This middle-aged man was the Lord Prefect of Northbone Prefecture.

“Linley, although I’m of the Netherworld, I’ve heard of the famous name of Elder Linley of the Azure Dragon clan. For you to come visit me today, Linley, is truly a joyous occasion.” The middle-aged man said in a very gentle voice. “Let me make the introductions. This is my wife, Anita [A’ni’ta]! Oh, and I forgot to introduce myself. My name is Sayant [Sai’yin’tē]!”

“Mr. Sayant. Madame Anita.” Linley smiled. “This is my good friend, Bebe.” Bebe immediately squeezed out a smile.

Linley was still quite happy. Given the reaction of the Lord Prefect, it should be easy to negotiate with him.

“I just heard of you not too long ago, Lord Linley, and now you are here in my prefecture. This truly is a joyful surprise. Lord Linley, might I ask if there’s a special reason for your presence?” Sayant beamed, his eyes twinkling. “If there’s anything you need, just speak. If I, Sayant, can help, I will.”

Linley felt relieved, and the nearby Bebe immediately laughed, “You’ll definitely be able to help. You are a Sovereign’s Emissary, after all.”

Sayant was startled, then laughed and nodded.

“Mr. Sayant, the main issue is that I have some very important business, and so I need to meet with a Netherworld Sovereign. Only...I have no idea where they live. I’d like to ask you, Mr. Sayant, to give me some guidance as to where I should go in order to meet with a Netherworld Sovereign. It doesn’t have to be a specific one of the seven; any of the seven will suffice." Linley said hurriedly.

"You wish to see a Sovereign?" Sayant was shocked, and his nearby wife also stared at Linley and Bebe in surprise.

"Can you tell me why you are going to meet with a Netherworld Sovereign?" Sayant asked.

Linley hesitated slightly.

Sayant immediately laughed, "I'm just asking. Right...if you want to meet a Netherworld Sovereign, this will be rather tricky. I do know where a Netherworld Sovereign lives, but even if you go there, if the Sovereign isn't willing to meet you, your trip will have been in vain. Sovereigns are proud and lofty individuals."

Linley felt overjoyed. So Sayant did indeed know!

"Mr. Sayant, please tell me where a Sovereign resides. As for whether or not the Sovereign is willing to meet with me, that'll be up to my own luck." Linley said hurriedly.

Sayant hesitated momentarily, then nodded slightly.

Right at this moment...

"Lord Prefect!" A voice echoed in Sayant's mind. Sayant couldn't help but frown, then sent back in response through divine sense, "Odin, what is it?"

Book 18, Highgod – Chapter 15, Throwing One's Life Away

Odin's interruption did indeed irritate Sayant.

"Lord Prefect, there is currently a person named Linley present visiting you, correct?" Odin sent through divine sense.

"Right, that is indeed the case." Sayant was rather surprised at how quickly Odin had found out.

Odin hurriedly sent back through divine sense, "Lord Prefect, why has Linley come?"

"Linley wishes to meet with a Sovereign, and asked me where a Sovereign lives. Why?" Sayant was rather puzzled.

Odin was shocked as well. "Meeting with a Sovereign?" Odin thought it had to do with him, but he still immediately responded frantically, "Lord Prefect, this Linley and I have an irreconcilable enmity between the two of us. My son and my brother were both killed by him! Even my divine wind clone was humiliated and tortured to death by him. Lord Prefect...please, help me get revenge. So long as we can kill Linley, I, Odin, will never forget your benevolence, Lord Prefect."

As Odin saw it, Lord Prefect Sayant was a Sovereign's Emissary who had a Sovereign artifact. He was definitely a truly supreme expert.

He should be absolutely confident in being able to kill Linley!

"Kill Linley? Out of the question." Sayant was rather angry now.

"Lord Prefect." Odin was frantic. "Lord Prefect, if I was able to kill him, I would have killed him long ago. But I'm not able to. Lord Prefect, I beg you, kill Linley. So long as you kill him, if you have any orders for me, Lord Prefect, even if it costs me my life, I will carry them out."

Sayant sent back angrily through divine sense, "Listen clearly. It isn't that I don't wish to help you gain revenge. Only...I'm not confident in being able to do so either!"

"Not confident?" Odin didn't dare believe it. "How can you not be confident?"

"Odin, you should be aware that not long ago, I went to visit an old friend and that I just returned not long ago." Sayant said.

"Right." Odin knew of this.

"I had gone to visit the Patriarch of the Ashcroft clan. It was the Nether Serpent himself who told me about Linley. Do you know...that when Linley was a God, he was able to kill multiple Seven Star Fiends by himself!" Sayant barked back through divine sense.

Odin was stunned. "God? How is that possible?"

"Based on the projections of the eight great clans, now that Linley is a Highgod, it is very likely that he has reached the level of being a Paragon! Even if the projections of the eight great clans are incorrect, given his amazing performance as a God, now that Linley is a Highgod, his strength is such that even I am not certain of victory against him!" Sayant sent back.

Not to mention, 'victory over' and 'killing' were two different concepts.

Sayant wasn't confident of even being able to defeat Linley, much less kill him.

"Tell me, am I supposed to go kill a presumed Paragon-level expert?" Sayant sent back.

Odin was stupefied.

He knew that Linley was powerful, but not even in his wildest imaginings would he have thought that the Ashcroft clan's Patriarch would acknowledge Linley's power, and even suspect him to be a Paragon. This was an extremely high-level appraisal! After all, there was no way to judge from the surface if someone was a Highgod Paragon or not.

For example, Dunnington. Others only 'suspected' him of being a Paragon.

Even after someone fused all six profound mysteries, others wouldn't be able to judge that just from looking at the person.

It was precisely because he knew Linley to be incredibly powerful that Sayant was so courteous. Otherwise, given his status as a Sovereign's Emissary, why would he act in such a manner? Unfortunately...none of them knew that Linley had the 'black stone' which the Redbud Sovereign had bestowed upon him, which was why he had such astonishing power.

"Lord Prefect. Lord Prefect!" Odin sent back frantically. "Linley is fixated on killing me. Lord Prefect, I beg of you, please help me come up with a way to kill Linley. Oh, right...Lord Prefect, Linley wants to meet a Sovereign, right? Have the Sovereign kill him."

"Have you gone stupid?" Sayant was truly beginning to grow angry now. He immediately sent back, "Do you think the Sovereigns will act at your beck and call?"

Only now did Odin come to his senses.

"But your suggestion does remind me of a method." Sayant said.

"You have a method?" Odin was overjoyed.

"Enough. Don't speak to me through divine sense again. Wait there." Sayant barked.

Conversations through divine sense occurred at lightning speed. Although they had exchanged tens of sentences, in truth, not even a second had passed. In the banquet hall, Linley and Bebe were looking at Sayant, awaiting Sayant's answer.

"I do know where a Sovereign lives, but Linley." Sayant said with a solemn expression. "The residence of a Sovereign is set up to prevent others from disturbing them. Thus, their residences are in very dangerous locations...even Seven Star Fiends wouldn't dare to casually go barging in. Thus, Linley, I urge you to reconsider it."

"Mr. Sayant, no need for you to be concerned. Please tell me where to go." Linley said urgently.

"Tell us where it is. We're growing really impatient." Bebe mumbled to the side.

Syant hesitated momentarily, but then nodded. "Fine, then. Our Netherworld has a very dangerous location; the number one mountain peak of the Netherworld, the Abyssal Mountain! Everyone in the Netherworld knows that the Abyssal Mountain is an extremely dangerous place, but what they don't know...is that within the Abyss Mountain lies the residence of a Sovereign!"

Syant's wife, 'Anita', glanced towards Syant in surprise upon hearing this. Clearly, this response by her husband caused her to feel surprise!

"Abyssal Mountain?" Linley frowned.

In the book provided him by Beirut, the descriptions of the various places had also included a description of the number one tall mountain of the Netherworld...Abyssal Mountain. According to what the book said, the Abyssal Mountain was the most dangerous location of the Netherworld, and that no matter what, no one was permitted to barge in.

"I want to see how dangerous it can be." Linley made his decision.

"Madame Anita, what's that look on your face?" Bebe's eyes were keen, and he noticed that Anita's expression seemed strange. "Can it be that the Lord Prefect's words are incorrect?"

"That's not it." Madame Anita laughed in response. "I'm just surprised. Abyssal Mountain actually has a Sovereign living there? I didn't know about it prior to this either."

"Oh." Bebe nodded as though suddenly enlightened.

"Boss, I feel as though something is off." Bebe sent through divine sense to Linley. "When Madame Anita heard Sayant say 'Abyssal Mountain', the look in her eyes was very strange. Something is off." Although Bebe had a rather childish disposition, as a Godeater Rat, his senses were very keen.

"Don't guess rashly." Linley sent back.

Syant then urged, "Linley, Abyssal Mountain is far too dangerous. I urge you not to go. How about this...why don't you stay here with me? As a Sovereign's Emissary, although I'm not able to actively reach out to the Sovereign, perhaps at some point, the Sovereign will summon me...at which point, I'll be able to help you convey the message to the Sovereign."

"Unable to actively reach out to the Sovereign?" Linley frowned.

How long would he have to wait?

"That's not necessarily so." Bebe snorted. "I saw a Sovereign's Emissary burn a sheet of sheepskin parchment covered in magic runes, and the Sovereign appeared."

This was what Beirut had done, and then the Bloodridge Sovereign had appeared. With but a single word, he had sent the eight great clans away, dispersing them.

Sayant glanced at Bebe in astonishment, then laughed. "Bebe, I didn't imagine that you'd even know about this. Indeed, this is a type of method by which one can summon a Sovereign. Only, that paper with magic runes isn't something that I can create; the Sovereign has to personally create it. That's the only reason why the Sovereign would sense the paper being burned."

"However, the Sovereign didn't bestow one upon me." Sayant said apologetically.

And Linley understood that even if Sayant had one, why would he use up such a precious item on behalf of Linley?

"Mr. Sayant, I am already extremely grateful to you. But Abyssal Mountain is deep within the Netherworld, and it will take me thirty or forty years to travel there from here. It will take too long. I wonder...if you know any of the residences of the other six Sovereigns?" Linley asked.

Linley wanted to waste no time in saving his father and brothers.

Abyssal Mountain was indeed a bit too far.

"I'm not." Sayant shook his head regretfully. "Linley, although I'm a Sovereign's Emissary, I don't know where the Sovereigns live. The only reason I know of Abyssal Mountain as being one such place is because I once heard the Sovereign speak of it. As for the others...I truly have no idea. I imagine the Sovereigns don't wish to be disturbed."

Linley felt rather resigned.

Still...

He had already gained something on this visit. At least he now knew that Abyssal Mountain was the residence of a Sovereign.

"Abyssal Mountain!" Linley had made up his mind.

His father and brothers had spent nearly two thousand years in the Undead Realm. If they had been able to last for so many years, lasting a few more decades probably wouldn't be too hard.

"Linley, let's not just chat. Come, taste some of the special delicacies of the Netherworld." Sayant laughed while speaking.

Linley and Bebe continued to chat casually with Sayant and his wife while drinking wine...spending quite a bit of time in the process.

Afterwards, Lord Prefect Sayant of Northbone Prefecture and his wife,

Madame Anita, escorted Linley and Bebe all the way out to the perimeters of the guard camp.

“Mr. Sayant, Madame Anita, no need to see us any further.” Linley said gratefully.

Sayant let out a sigh. “Linley, to be honest, I truly do not wish to see you go to Abyssal Mountain. Abyssal Mountain truly is dangerous...although I haven’t gone deep into it myself, I’ve heard others speak of how dangerous it is long ago. Watching you head to Abyssal Mountain, I... alas! Linley, I urge you to just wait. In a few hundred thousand years or a few million years, perhaps the Sovereign will summon me.”

Hundreds of thousands of years? Millions of years?

If his father and siblings hadn’t transformed into Deities, they would die in the battles between undead. No matter how hard Linley worked, by then, it would all be fruitless.

“No need.” Linley laughed.

Bebe, standing there to one side, seemed rather unhappy.

Linley suddenly thought of something. On this trip to the Netherworld, aside from helping his father and his brothers regain their memories, which was his primary goal, he had another goal...if he had the chance, he would kill Odin!

As Linley saw it, since Sayant was the Lord Prefect of Northbone

Prefecture, he should know quite a few experts.

"Mr. Sayant, Madame Anita. I would like to ask you if you've heard of a person. This person is roughly at the Seven Star Fiend level of power. His name...is Odin!" Linley looked at Sayant and Madame Ania. Sayant raised an eyebrow, but Anita began to laugh.

"Haha, Odin. Of course we've heard of him." Madame Anita laughed as she spoke.

Linley's eyes immediately lit up, and Bebe turned to look as well.

"You know him?" Linley said in surprised delight.

Madame Anita let out two chuckles. "Yes. When Sayant and I were roaming within the borders of Northbone Prefecture, we once ran into Odin. Odin's power was indeed not bad...but compared to my husband, 'Sayant', he was still quite a ways off. He lost multiple times, and submitted whole-heartedly, and so chatted with us for a time. We asked him to stay with us for a while, but he said that he had just arrived in the Netherworld, and wanted to roam about the other regions of the Netherworld and do some adventuring. We didn't stop him. I have no idea where in the Netherworld he is now."

"Oh." Linley and Bebe couldn't help but feel disappointed.

"Then we won't disturb you any further." Linley and Bebe bade them farewell, then entered their metallic lifeform and flew to the south, disappearing into the horizon.

"Why did you want me to deceive them?" Anita turned to look at her husband. When she said these words, Anita also vigilantly set up a Godrealm, preventing others from hearing.

Sayant laughed calmly, "Do you know that between Linley and Odin, there lies a tremendous and irreconcilable hatred?"

"Ah?" Anita said, surprised. "Then just now, when you said that the Sovereign was at Abyssal Mountain, it was also because...?"

"Right." Sayant laughed calmly. "Odin is one of us, after all. In addition, Linley and the Nether Serpent can be considered antagonistic...although Linley isn't an enemy, he can't be said to be a friend either! However, Linley is very powerful. It isn't worth offending Linley for the sake of Odin. Still...all I did was give him a location."

"But you are having him throw his life away." Anita said.

"He is indeed throwing his life away."

Sayant laughed. "However...Abyssal Mountain is indeed the residence of a Sovereign!"

"Huh? It really is?" Anita looked towards him in surprise.

"Right. And not an ordinary Sovereign; the most powerful of the seven Sovereigns of the Netherworld. It is the residence of the Chief Sovereign of Death!" Sayant laughed calmly. "I urged Linley not to go, but he insisted. If he dies, it has nothing to do with me."

"The Chief Sovereign of Death..."

Sayant let out a sigh.

Book 18, Highgod – Chapter 16, Abyssal Mountain

That eerie, crescent red moon hung up high in the void.

A metallic lifeform flew through the skies, bathed in that eerie red glow. Linley peered through the window towards the outside, seeing the occasional castle pop up in the distant mountain forests. Surrounding those rare castles were some massive flying dragons, immortal phoenixes, and other Saint-type magical beasts. These enormous magical beasts were reared in captivity.

Within the metallic lifeform.

"Boss." Bebe was holding a goblet of wine. Sipping from it, he frowned. "Are we really going to the Abyssal Mountain? The book Grandpa gave us spoke of it, and said that it was the most dangerous location in the entire Netherworld. Although I want to adventure as well, I keep on having the feeling that Sayant's words are unreliable."

"Whether his words are reliable or not, we can't be certain for now."

Linley put down his goblet, laughing calmly. "We've just spoken to a single Lord Prefect. The Netherworld has more of them than just Sayant himself. When we reach the next Prefecture, we'll ask again. After having spoken to a number of Lord Prefects, we can make our decision!"

Speaking with a Lord Prefect would only take a day or two, but travelling to the Abyssal Mountain would require decades.

Nursing his goblet while walking to the front of the metallic lifeform, Linley stared through the window again, into the ancient night-time scenery of the Netherworld. Linley sighed emotionally, "I hope that the souls of Father, Yale, George, and Dixie were able to stay alive in the Undead Realm."

From Northbone Prefecture to the Abyssal Mountain was a journey that entailed crossing through six other prefectures. In two of them, the Lord Prefects were situated in rather remote, distant corners. If Linley was to go visit with them, he would have to deviate significantly from his route by hundreds of millions of kilometers...and so Linley gave up and didn't go visit them.

He went to visit the other four Lord Prefects instead.

Of the other four, two of the Lord Prefects were not present within their residences. It was possible that they were outside adventuring, and so Linley left empty-handed. But Linley did, in fact, meet the other two. One of the two was present in his prefecture and received Linley, but this Lord Prefect didn't know a thing about the residences of the Sovereigns.

As for the other Lord Prefect, this one did indeed know a bit regarding the Sovereigns.

He said to Linley, "Linley, based on what I know, deep within the Nether Sea, in the Azurewave Island, there lies the residence of a Sovereign. But of course, based on what I know, the 'Abyssal Mountain' which Sayant mentioned also does indeed have the residence of a Sovereign. Only, Abyssal Mountain is far too dangerous. It is best if you go to the island instead!"

Upon hearing this, Linley immediately expressed his gratitude and leave.

The entire Netherworld was formed from one enormous continent which was vaster than the five continents of the Infernal Realm put together. At the ends of the Netherworld was a vast, endless sea which was known as the Nether Sea. The Nether Sea was truly endless, and the Azurewave Island was deep within it.

"Go to Azurewave Island?"

Linley shook his head internally. "Traversing the entire Netherworld alone will take nearly two centuries. To then venture into the Nether Sea and travel to Azurewave Island will most likely take another century or two. The trip to Azurewave Island will take at least three or four centuries!" Linley sighed to himself. "In addition, who knows if I will even be able to meet the Sovereign once I reach Azurewave Island? If I'm not even able to meet the Sovereign, I'd have to leave and head to the Abyssal Mountain and spend another three or four centuries! This round trip would take seven or eight centuries. Not worth it. Not worth it!"

The danger level of Azurewave Island was much lower, but it was too far.

Time. Time was precisely what he couldn't afford to waste right now. The sooner he could save his father and the others, the better. If too much time passed, his father, Yale, and the others might have truly died.

"Boss, you made your decision? We are going to the Abyssal Mountain?" Bebe asked.

“Right. We’re going to the Abyssal Mountain. So what if it is a bit dangerous? At least I am now certain that the Abyssal Mountain is indeed the residence of a Sovereign. If we fail in our journey to the Abyssal Mountain, we can then hurry to Azurewave Island. No matter what, we can’t waste any time on roundabout trips!” Linley said.

“Hey, Boss, take a look outside.” Bebe suddenly said in astonishment.

Linley looked through the translucent metal to the outside as well. He saw that far in the distance, above a tall mountain, in the air above an ancient castle, two men were standing in mid-air, staring at each other. Both were dressed in long black robes, while one had long silver hair and the other had long violet hair. The violet-haired man’s entire body was crackling with lightning.

The two flashed like lightning across the skies, exchanging blows.

BANG!

A large crack in space appeared.

“These two are both fairly strong. They should be at the Seven Star Fiend level of power.” Linley evaluated.

“This journey was so boring. All we saw were some Gods or some weak Highgods fighting amongst themselves. It’s rare to see supreme experts battle. Boss, let’s take a break and see who wins!” Bebe’s eyes were shining as he spoke. Bebe was rather interested in battles between supreme experts.

Linley was helpless.

"We'll only stop for a short period of time." Linley still brought the metallic lifeform to a halt.

In the distant horizon, those two supreme experts exchanged multiple blows, their power causing the skies to split open time and time ago. But a few moments later, the body of the silver-haired man suddenly vanished like an illusory shadow as he fled at high speed into the distant skies. As for the violet-haired man, he pursued at high speed.

"Hey...that's boring. They ran away before anyone died." Bebe said resignedly.

"Enough. It doesn't matter who lives or dies. We aren't too far from the Abyssal Mountain by now. We'll be there in a few months. Let's make haste." Linley once more controlled the metallic lifeform, sending it flying forward.

"A few more months? Whoaaaaah. I look forward to it. They say the Abyssal Mountain is dangerous, but how dangerous, really?" Bebe's eyes were gleaming.

"We'll know when we get there." Linley laughed, while his mind thought back to the descriptions of the Abyssal Mountain the book he had read.

The Abyssal Mountain was the greatest of the mountains of the Netherworld. It was more than a million meters tall, with a circumference of over ten thousand kilometers. The Abyssal Mountain was constantly surrounded by tri-colored fog clouds, which actually formed Heaven-Earth Chains around the entire mountain. The wall of fog was not to be touched, as any who touched it was almost guaranteed to perish. The Abyssal Mountain was filled with dangers, and people were not to casually enter it!

“Tri-colored fog clouds? Heaven-Earth Chains?”

Linley’s mind was filled with questions. The descriptions the book had regarding the Abyssal Mountain was very sparse. It just repeatedly warned that the Abyssal Mountain was not to be entered, and that it was very dangerous. As for the tri-colored fog clouds and the Heaven-Earth Chains, it didn’t describe them in detail.

Linley spent the next few months in quiet training, and time passed quickly. On the thirty-plus years of this journey, Linley’s divine clones remained constantly in training, while his original body assisted his divine earth clone in meditating on the Laws of the Earth. However, the amount of improvements he made in thirty years wasn’t that significant. For example, his divine water clone had reached the bottleneck in the sixth mystery long ago, but despite so much time having passed, he had yet to make any breakthroughs and reach the Highgod level.

“Boss, Boss!” Bebe’s jubilant cries rang out. “Hurry, hurry, look, look! Abyssal Mountain. Abyssal Mountain!!!”

Linley, who had been seated in the meditative position within the metallic lifeform, absorbed in training, suddenly opened his eyes.

Swoosh!

Linley hurried to the front of the metallic lifeform, staring out through the metallic metal. In the distance, a towering, dazzling mountain spire had appeared, surrounded by a layer of faint blue light. It looked like a blue mountain, but upon taking a closer look, Linley realized that the blue light was constantly flashing.

"It lives up to its reputation as being the greatest mountain of the Netherworld." A smile appeared on Linley's face.

Bebe rubbed his chin, then said in praise, "The Abyssal Mountain really is tall. The books say that it is a million meters tall, and before seeing it, I doubted if that was true!"

Seeing this tall mountain, Linley couldn't help but laugh.

The mountains of his homeland, the Yulan continent, were tens of thousands of meters high at most. In the Infernal Realm, he had seen some extremely tall mountains that were hundreds of thousands of meters tall, but he had never once seen a mountain that was a million meters tall.

"The Abyssal Mountain. We're here!" Linley let out a sigh.

"Woo, we're here!" Bebe called out jubilantly. "Goshdarnit, the past thirty years have bored me to death. We finally made it! Everyone says the Abyssal Mountain is very dangerous, but I want to see what exactly is so dangerous about this place. I want to see what it can do me, Bebe."

Linley glanced sideways at Bebe, not knowing whether to laugh or to cry.

It truly was quite hard for Bebe to feel as though he was in any danger!

Bebe's body was so tough that it could be said to be even tougher than godspark weapons. His material defense could be said to be invincible. As for his soul defense...although Linley wasn't certain, given that Bebe was capable of executing an innate divine ability such as the 'Godeater', Bebe's soul was definitely not weak, and he also had a soul-protecting artifact.

"Don't be incautious! The Abyssal Mountain is the residence of a Sovereign. No matter how mighty you are, can you be mightier than a Sovereign? Be low-key, be low-key!" Linley laughed.

"Sovereigns wouldn't lower themselves to attack me, and as long as it isn't a Sovereign, what have I to fear?" Bebe laughed.

Although they were able to see the Abyssal Mountain from far away, in truth, Linley and Bebe were still more than a hundred thousand kilometers away from the mountain itself. It was precisely because the Abyssal Mountain was incredibly high that they were able to see it from such a distance. However, a hundred thousand kilometers...given the flying speed of the metallic lifeform, they were able to traverse it in less than an hour.

The nearer they drew to it, the harder Linley and Bebe found it to breathe.

"Boss...it really is ridiculous!" Bebe was completely stunned.

"Heaven-Earth Chains, tri-colored fog clouds...so this is what the book referred to!" Linley couldn't help but feel astonished as well."

The Abyssal Mountain, as they saw when they drew near, gave off the feeling of being so tall that it pierced the very heavens.

But it wasn't the height of the Abyssal Mountain which was the most astonishing.

The Abyssal Mountain was completely wrapped in fog. The lower half of the mountain was wrapped in a white fog, while the top half of the mountain was wrapped in gray fog. As for the very peak of the mountain, that area was wrapped in a violet fog. Because fog of three different colors surrounded it...there was no way to see deep into the Abyssal Mountain.

The strange thing was, Heaven-Earth Chains had appeared!

They saw...

That like waterfalls, from the top of the Abyssal Mountain to the bottom, countless chains of lightning snaked downwards. These countless chains of lightning were as thick as a normal-sized person, covering the surface of the fog. There was roughly just one or two meters between each chain of lightning.

"Good heavens...every single chain of lightning has to be a million meters long." Bebe said in praise.

Linley sighed in praise as well. "No wonder they are described as Heaven-Earth Chains! These countless lightning chains that cover the entire mountain...where in the world do they come from? Only a place like this could possibly form such oddities. How marvelous."

"Let's go in."

Linley and Bebe flew out of the metallic lifeform. After storing it away, Linley headed directly to the base of the Abyssal Mountain, flying at high speed. Although they were already quite close, they still had to fly for some time before reaching the base of the mountain.

"Boss, let's go in." Bebe began to fly inwards as he spoke.

"Hey, you two, milords, halt, halt!" A cry suddenly rang out from nearby.

Bebe couldn't help but come to a halt, and Linley turned to look as well. A youth dressed in a long green robe flew out, his face filled with tension. He hurriedly said, "Milords, this area is covered with Heaven-Earth Chains. No matter what, don't go inside. If you run about inside wildly and touch any of the Heaven-Earth Chains, you'll die for sure."

"We know that the Heaven-Earth Chains cannot be touched. We'll go in from between them." Bebe laughed.

Linley nodded as well.

Although countless chains of lightning descended from the peak, there was still one or two meters between each pair of lightning chains. This space was more than enough for people to fly through.

"It seems you two don't know anything." The youth picked up a rock from the ground, then casually tossed it towards the 'crack' between a pair of lightning chains. As the rock passed through the space between the lightning chains...

"CRACKLE!"

Between the chains of lightning, a semi-translucent membrane suddenly formed, which completely blocked the space between them. In addition, it had countless electric spark snaking across its top, flowing between the two 'chains'. These electric sparks reduced the stone into nothingness.

Linley and Bebe were both stunned.

"Under normal conditions, the translucent membrane between the chains of lightning are invisible. But they are always present. Thus...if you want to go through, you'll suffer attacks from countless sparks of lightning. This lightning is no ordinary lightning...even powerful Highgods will instantly be reduced into ash by those lightning bolts!" The green-robed youth repeatedly warned.

Book 18, Highgod – Chapter 17, Abyssal Fruit

Linley and Bebe both couldn't help but feel stunned.

"If I truly were to fly through, I probably would have died!" Linley felt seized by terror. He hadn't been in Dragonform, and had been planning to Dragonform upon entering the Abyssal Mountain. But who would have imagined that the safe 'cracks' between the chains of lightning would be so dangerous as well? If he wasn't in Dragonform, he definitely wouldn't be able to take it. Still...

Since Bebe was flying in front of him, once Bebe drew near and was struck by the sparks of lightning, Linley would've been able to react in time.

Linley turned to look towards the green-robed youth, saying gratefully, "Thank you, truly. Right. If I may ask, why are you in the Abyssal Mountain region?"

Linley couldn't be blamed for feeling puzzled, because this green-robed youth was just a God.

The danger level of the Netherworld was no less than that of the Infernal Realm. For Gods to roam about in the outside world was as good as courting death.

"I live right over there." The green-robed youth pointed with a laugh to a nearby location.

Linley followed the pointing finger, only to see that a few thousand meters away, there were a number of constructed courtyards, in front of which was a three-story building. The three-story building had some words in front of it: 'Abyssal Inn'!

"Someone opened an inn here?" Linley was rather astonished.

"Abyssal Inn?" Bebe said, puzzled. "Who opened this inn of yours? Someone is capable of opening an inn here in the wilderness...how formidable." In such a desolate area, opening an inn was the equivalent of giving bandits a place to be robbed. Only a supremely powerful being would dare to open an inn in such a desolate area.

The green-robed youth said proudly, "Our inn belongs to Greenleaf Castle. Who would dare cause trouble here?"

"What's Greenleaf Castle?" Bebe asked, and Linley looked at the green-robed youth in puzzlement as well.

The youth was startled, and looked towards Linley and Bebe as though he was looking at a pair of strange creatures. "Can it be that you haven't even heard of Greenleaf Castle? You are both Highgods. You've spent so many years in the Netherworld; can it be that you've never interacted in the outside world?" The green-robed youth didn't dare believe that these two had never heard of Greenleaf Castle.

"We came from the Infernal Realm." Linley said.

"Oh, so that's the case. I didn't expect you two came from the Infernal Realm." The green-robed youth said, now understanding.

"Let me tell you, then!" The green-robed youth said with a laugh. "Our inn is owned by Greenleaf Castle. Greenleaf Castle, in our Netherworld, is extremely famous! Our Greenleaf Castle has a total of three castle lords, and these three castle lords...are all powerful Sovereign's Emissaries!"

Linley and Bebe, hearing this, couldn't help but feel startled.

The three castle lords were all Sovereign's Emissaries? No wonder Greenleaf Castle was so mighty.

"Where is your Greenleaf Castle located?" Linley asked. He had read that book, which had some rough geographical information regarding the Netherworld, and which included descriptions of some of the more famous areas of the Netherworld. If Greenleaf Castle truly was so famous, why hadn't the book described it?

"I don't know."

The green-robed youth shook his head. "The exact location of Greenleaf Castle is one of the secrets of the Netherworld."

Linley laughed, then no longer discussed this subject, going to the main point. "Might I ask, do you know...how one would enter the Abyssal Mountain?"

"Enter the Abyssal Mountain? Oh...at the base of the Abyssal Mountain, roughly a thousand kilometers from here, there is a mountain entrance.

All who enter the Abyssal Mountain must pass through this entrance.” The green-robed youth laughed. As he lived here, he understood everything clearly.

“Oh. Thank you.” Linley laughed, then prepared to leave with Bebe.

“Hey, wait a moment.” The green-robed youth saw Linley was preparing to leave, and hurriedly called after him.

“Eh?” Linley and Bebe turned to look at him.

The green-robed youth said, “The two of you are in such a hurry. It seems as though you really don’t know anything about the Abyssal Mountain at all! The Abyssal Mountain is very dangerous...”

“We know it is dangerous.” Bebe snickered. “Danger is nothing to be afraid of.”

The green-robed youth said resignedly, “I know the two of you are powerful, milords, but...the layer of fog clouds covering the Abyssal Mountain are extremely bizarre. However...on the night of each full moon, the fog of the Abyssal Mountain will grow sparse and the danger will dramatically decrease as well. Generally speaking, those who enter the Abyssal Mountain will enter at that time!”

“The night of each full moon?” Linley did some mental calculations. “Five more days!”

“Milords, if you truly insist on entering, I advise you to do so after waiting five days. By then, the danger level will lessen as well. You can enter then." The green-robed youth said.

Linley and Bebe looked at each other, coming to a decision.

"Fine then. We'll wait five days. Then for now, we'll stay at your Abyssal Inn." Linley said with a laugh.

"Wonderful. I'll lead the two of you there." The green-robed youth said with a laugh. Actually, as soon as he had seen Linley and Bebe fly towards the Abyssal Mountain, he had immediately hurried over towards them... he had already used this sort of method to pull in customers on many occasions.

The Abyssal Inn was right next to the Abyssal Mountain.

The main door of the inn was situated on a grassy area, at the center of which was a pool of water. Once Linley and Bebe flew over, under the guidance of the green-robed youth, the first thing which drew Linley's attention was the young, pretty, red-haired girl who was fishing by the side of the pool. The pretty young lady even gave Linley and Bebe a glance, then continued fishing as though completely uninterested.

"How interesting." Linley chuckled.

"Hey, who is that lady over there?" Bebe asked the green-robed youth.

The green-robed youth immediately responded with a laugh. "The two of you need to be careful. That lady is the boss of our inn. She was sent over by Greenleaf Castle. I don't know much about her either...but I hear that she, our boss, has an extremely close relationship with one of the three castle lords of Greenleaf Castle. The Boss is extremely powerful as well."

"Quin [Ke'win], don't be a blabbermouth!" A cold, sharp rebuke rang out.

"Ahhh! Sorry, Boss!" The youth bowed, then said with a laugh to Linley and Bebe, "Our boss is very cold towards outsiders, but she's very good to us."

While speaking, the green-robed youth led Linley and Bebe into the inn.

The main hall of the inn was extremely large, and it was divided into two parts. The first part was for welcoming guests, while the other part was the restaurant. The restaurant had tens of tables within it, and there were roughly ten or so people in the restaurant right now, drinking and chatting.

"Gentlemen, how long will you be here for?" A green-robed woman seated behind the counter.

"Five days." Bebe said.

"Ten thousand netherstones each day! Five days, fifty thousand netherstones." The green-robed woman said.

Hearing this, Linley couldn't help but to turn his head and look at her. Ten thousand netherstones a day? The netherstones of the Netherworld were comparable to the inkstones of the Infernal Realm. In the Infernal Realm, even the inns and hotels within the city would usually only charge a few hundred inkstones for an entire year. But this Abyssal Inn actually had a much higher price that was more than ten thousand times greater!

"This is robbery." Bebe said rather angrily.

The green-robed woman just laughed calmly. "That's the price of our inn. We can guarantee the safety of anyone who stays within our inn. Every year, quite a few experts will stay here...ordinary inns wouldn't dare entertain such experts."

"Experts?" Linley lifted an eyebrow.

He noticed that the people chatting within the hotel were all Highgods. As for what level of power they were at, without fighting, it was hard to judge within a short period of time. But from what the green-robed woman was saying, these people should all be quite powerful.

"We only have inkstones." Linley said. Immediately, quite a few people drinking wine in the restaurant turned to look at them. Someone who only had inkstones had to have come from the Infernal Realm. To travel from the Infernal Realm to the Netherworld...this was enough to draw quite a bit of attention.

"Our Abyssal Inn welcomes guests from all planes." The green-haired woman wasn't surprised in the slightest. "The same price. Ten thousand inkstones a day...fifty thousand inkstones in total. Right. If you want to eat and drink, you have to pay extra.”

Laughing Linley waved his hand, paying the fee.

“How is it that this place of yours has so many customers?” Bebe looked towards the woman, asking in puzzlement. “The Abyssal Mountain is in such a desolate location. Can it be that so many people have come here to enter the Abyssal Mountain and throw their lives away?” These words caused quite a few people in the restaurant to look at Bebe, with quite a few unkindly looks.

“Hmph, throwing our lives away? Aren’t the two of you coming to ‘throw your lives away’ as well?” A cold voice rang from nearby, within the restaurant.

Linley glanced calmly at the speaker as well.

“Bebe, stop causing trouble.” Linley said with a calm laugh.

Although he didn’t fear them, Linley didn’t want to cause trouble either.

“You had all best remember that here in our Abyssal Inn, you are not to fight.” The green-robed woman said.

“Don’t worry.” Linley laughed as he spoke.

And then, Linley led Bebe into a corner of the restaurant and sat down. Immediately, a waiter came to greet him and brought over a menu.

"These prices are extraordinarily high." Bebe muttered. Still, Linley and Bebe were mentally prepared. They casually ordered a few dishes and two bottles of fine wine, with the cost being near ten thousand inkstones.

"Boss, why do you think these people are here? Can it be that they are like us, here to meet the Sovereign?" Bebe sent mentally. He didn't understand why these experts had come.

"Sovereign? There's not many who know that the Abyssal Mountain has a Sovereign here." Linley sent back.

He had met with three Lord Prefects after coming to the Infernal Realm, one of whom hadn't known at all that the Abyssal Mountain held a Sovereign. And Sayant had said...that he had only learned it from his own Sovereign. Clearly, the fact that Abyssal Mountain held a Sovereign was a secret.

"Don't worry about other people's business." Linley laughed calmly.

Linley was in quite a good mood after arriving here. Linley and Bebe began to drink the fine wine and eating while chatting leisurely.

"Motherf*cker, even people from the Infernal Realm have come over here to fight over the Abyssal Fruit!" A grumbling, unhappy voice rang out from another side of the restaurant, and the words attracted the attention of Linley and Bebe.

"Abyssal Fruit?" Bebe looked towards Linley. "Boss, do you know what the Abyssal Fruit is?"

"No idea. Never heard of it." Linley shook his head, puzzled.

Because this wasn't a secret, Linley and Bebe continued to chat.

"Friends from the Infernal Realm, you've come for the sake of the Abyssal Fruit, and yet you won't admit to it? This is a bit too laughable. You've come all the way from the Infernal Realm to our Netherworld and now are at the Abyssal Mountain. If it isn't for the sake of the Abyssal Fruit, what is it for?" A calm voice rang out from nearby.

Linley turned to look. The speaker was a silver-haired, seemingly quite soft and feminine looking youth.

"Hey, what's so amazing about the Abyssal Fruit? Tell me about it." Bebe said, raising an eyebrow.

Quite a few of the other guests in the restaurant gave Bebe an unfriendly look. None of them said anything.

"The Abyssal Fruit is a legendary treasure." A cold, fierce voice rang out. The red-haired woman who had been fishing walked in, carrying her fishing rod in one hand and a bucket in another. "It is a priceless treasure which only the Abyssal Mountain has. Anyone who acquires and eats an Abyssal Fruit will not only become a supreme expert of the Netherworld, this person will also...be met by a Sovereign and become the Sovereign's Emissary!"

Linley's eyes turned round upon hearing this.

Someone who acquired and ate the Abyssal Fruit would become a Sovereign's Emissary?

"Truly?" Bebe didn't quite believe it.

"Of course it's true."

The pretty red-haired lady cast her cold gaze across Linley and Bebe. "Over the course of countless years, three Abyssal Fruit have appeared here, in the Abyssal Mountain. If this news was false...why would there always be groups of people coming here to try their luck?" As she spoke, she glanced at the people in the restaurant. And then, the red-haired beauty headed upstairs, her footsteps ringing out against the stairs.

Linley and Bebe exchanged glances, still unable to believe it.

"Friends from the Infernal Realm, can it be that you truly don't know that the three castle lords of Greenleaf Castle were the three lucky fellows who acquired Abyssal Fruits? Upon eating an Abyssal Fruit, one's power will grow rapidly and one will become a supreme expert on par with a Lord Prefect. In addition, one will have a Sovereign artifact bestowed upon them and become a Sovereign's Emissary!" The soft, feminine-looking youth laughed coldly as he glanced at them. "If you want the Abyssal Fruit, no need to pretend you don't know what it is."

Bebe couldn't help but grow angry.

"Bebe, drink." Linley said with a calm laugh, while sending mentally to Bebe, "Bebe, there's no need to waste your time on these people."

Linley and Bebe, in truth, had never heard of the Abyssal Fruit. Still, Linley and Bebe weren't too interested in it either. Since only three had appeared in countless years...they clearly were far too rare. But of course, the allure of the Abyssal Fruit was quite great, as it allowed one's power to dramatically increase and even become a Sovereign's Emissary.

Suddenly...

Footsteps rang out, and someone entered from outside.

Linley turned to look. "Him?"

The person who had come wore a long black robe and had long violet hair. This was the person whom Linley and Bebe had seen on their journey here to the Abyssal Mountain; the victor of the battle between those two supreme experts who had fought high up in the air.

Book 18, Highgod – Chapter 18, The Young Red-Haired Lady

The black-robed, violet-haired youth had a calm look on his face. He swept the others in the restaurant with his gaze, then directly paid the fee at the service counter and followed the waiter to his room.

“More and more intriguing.” Linley’s face was all smiles. Nursing his cup of wine, he took a small sip. “Bebe, this Abyssal Fruit does seem to be rather enticing to people.” While chatting, Linley voluntarily set up his Godrealm, preventing others from hearing the conversation between himself and Bebe.

Otherwise, these words would definitely irritate the others.

“All of them dream of suddenly increasing in power, acquiring a Sovereign artifact, and becoming a Sovereign’s Emissary, I suppose.” Bebe snorted. “I don’t understand it. What exactly is this Abyssal Fruit, anyhow? Why is it that if you eat it, you’ll increase in power so much, and even be granted an audience by a Sovereign and become an Emissary? I don’t get it. I don’t get it!”

“I don’t get it either.” Linley shook his head. But then, Linley suddenly thought of something...his black stone!

The black stone he had acquired in the Amethyst Mountains!

“That single precious black stone caused my power to advance greatly. If I didn’t have the ‘black stone’, given that I am a Highgod who has completely fused three profound mysteries, as well as possess the Coiling Dragon ring and have the innate divine ability 'Dragon Roar', I would at most be at the level of ordinary Seven Star Fiends. But with the black stone...I'm able to easily kill Seven Star Fiends."

Linley began to wonder whether or not the Abyssal Fruit was something similar to his own 'black stone'.

"It is quite possible!"

"Over the passage of countless years, there have only been three Abyssal Fruit." Linley had come to a conclusion regarding this.

Linley and Bebe finished their meal in the restaurant, then left and entered their own reserved residences as well.

Life in the hotel was very peaceful. In the blink of an eye, five days had passed. On the fifth day, early in the morning, Linley and Bebe made a rare trip to the restaurant and ordered some dishes as well as two bottles of wine. Linley and Bebe sought out an empty corner of the restaurant, sat down, then chatted while eating, waiting for night to come.

"Boss, there's quite a few people in the room." Bebe swept the room with his gaze.

"Everyone is preparing to enter the Abyssal Mountain tonight, so they all came today." Linley also noticed that many people were in the room today, more than thirty in total. In addition, every single person present was a Highgod. As for what level of Highgod, that was hard to say.

Linley had to sigh in amazement at how enticing the Abyssal Fruit was to people.

"However, we are different from them." Linley sent mentally. "Reaching the peak of the Abyssal Mountain and meeting with the Sovereign is our goal." Abyssal Fruit? It held no interest for Linley. Although it was a treasure, there had only been three found in countless years. One could imagine how hard it was to acquire one.

"Creak..." A nearby seat was pulled aside, and the black-robed, violet-haired youth sat down.

Linley glanced sideways at the black-robed, violet-haired youth who was only four or five meters away from him. "Him again!"

This youth only ordered some wine and nothing else. He sat there alone, quietly drinking. Although he just sat there, Linley had the feeling...that although this person was like a glacier, if someone were to anger him, however, he would explode like a volcano.

"Big Sis, we have a guest." The green-robed youth ran in, and behind him was a muscular youth with a single, cyclopean eye. The muscular youth strode in, sweeping the group of people in the room casually with his single eye.

But when he did so!

"Huh?" The youth's face suddenly sank, and a two meter long blade suddenly appeared in his hands, brimming with fiery flames.

"Swish!"

From the counter to the restaurant was a distance of twenty meters. The muscular cyclopean youth left behind only a fiery red shadow as he swept forward, that blade of his chopping down directly at the head of the black-robed, violet-haired youth. Wherever the blade passed, tears in space could be seen.

This sudden attack caused everyone else in the restaurant to feel startled.

"Hmph!" The black-robed youth, who had been drinking his wine, let out a low snort. He suddenly threw out the winecup in his hand, and that tiny winecup, wreathed in an electric light and howling desolately through the air, flew out and smashed directly against the edge of the blade. With a low, shuddering sound...

The winecup transformed into dust.

As for the black-robed youth, he disappeared, transforming into a bolt of lightning and retreating backwards at high speed.

"Halt!" The fee-collecting green-robed lady at the counter shouted angrily.

But the cyclopean youth didn't pay her any mind. Wielding his blade, he charged into the skies like an ascendant divine dragon, continuing to pursue and attack the violet-haired youth. Because he was too fast, cracks in space began to appear, and the earth itself trembled. These ripples caused the tables, chairs, winecups, and plates touched by it to transform into dust.

"You are looking for death!"

A low, gravelly voice echoed in the restaurant, and a devilish electric light flashed.

"Bang!" The fiery red shadow and the electric shadow collided within the restaurant.

"Whoosh!" The two shadows instantly exploded backwards, both retreating!

The fiery red figure was just about to smash into the counter, but the green-robed woman behind the counter, her face like ice, stretched out with that 'weak', soft right hand of hers. The entire arm suddenly turned jade-green, and almost as translucent as jade as well. The jade-green hand slapped against the back of the fiery red figure.

"Bang!" The explosively retreating fiery red figure was brought to a sudden halt by that palm slap.

As for that electric figure, when it retreated, it was clearly being sent flying towards Linley and Bebe. Linley frowned. He continued to nurse his wine, but an earthen yellow aura suddenly emanated from his body, forming a hemisphere that extended only as far as was necessary to protect himself and Bebe.

Blackstone Space – Repulsive Force!

The electric figure, as soon as it fell into the Blackstone Space, was pushed outwards by that astonishingly strong repulsive force. His body swayed for a moment, and then he found his bearings. The violet-haired youth, his body wreathed in lightning, turned to glance at Linley, his eyes filled with surprise and ardor.

“So powerful!” A desire for battle had actually awoken in the heart of this violet-haired youth.

“You dare fight in our Abyssal Inn. How truly audacious of you two.” An angry roar rang out, and the green-robed woman walked out from behind the counter, staring angrily at the two combatants. However, the two combatants were staring at each other, not paying any attention to that green-robed woman.”

“Bloan [Bu’long]!” The cyclopean youth stared angrily at the violet-haired youth. “What a coincidence for us to meet here!”

“You are still too weak. Come find me when you grow stronger.” The violet-haired youth said emotionlessly. And then, the violet-haired youth gave the nearby Linley a sidelong glance, his cold eyes filled with a powerful desire for battle. The black-robed youth clearly had noticed Linley’s power, and wanted to have a tussle with Linley.

As for the other Highgods in the restaurant, they just watched this all happen in astonishment.

"How powerful." These people were all stunned.

The cyclopean youth. The violet-haired youth. The green-robed woman. Linley. In that split second, they had all revealed a hint of their power. That hint, however, was already enough to make these people quail.

"The two of you!" The green-haired woman's face seemed to be covered with frost. "You are going too far!"

"Swoosh!"

The green-haired woman charged directly towards the cyclopean youth, while at the same time, green palm shadows appeared, seeming to cover the sky, each of them seeing so soft and weak. The cyclopean youth, with a growl, swung his blade in a vicious chop against the green-robed woman, a merciless chop!

"Bang!" "Bang!" "Bang!"

When those green palm blurs collided against the blade, that blade which was enough to create tears in space seemed to have been trapped and surrounded by many of them while still other palm blurs came smashing down towards the chest of that cyclopean youth. "Crunch!" The cyclopean youth's chest caved in, and he spewed out a large mouthful of blood as he was sent flying backwards.

This scene caused the entire restaurant to fall silent.

"Oh!" Linley's eyes lit up. "An expert of water!"

This green-robed lady, who collected fees for the Abyssal Inn, was actually an expert who was very nearly at the Seven Star Fiend level of power.

"And you!" The green-robed woman turned to stare at the black-robed youth. "I'm going to ask you to leave as well!" The green-robed woman thrust out her hand, and a jade-green whip appeared, which instantly transformed into countless willowy branches, sweeping and swirling towards the black-robed, violet-haired youth.

The violet-haired youth's eyes lit up.

"Wonderful!" An explosive shout, followed by a dazzling bright violet electric light. A devilish sword shadow chopped directly through the countless willowy branches, then continued to chop down towards the green-robed woman.

"Bang!" Her many willowy branches shattered, the green-robed woman had to retreat.

"You aren't a match for me yet." The black-robed youth said arrogantly.

"Boss, this fellow is quite powerful." Bebe sent mentally in praise, while Linley nodded slightly as well. "His lightning-type swordplay is quite devilish, very similar to my own Bloodviolet."

Right at this moment...

"Tap, tap..."

The sound of footsteps from the stairs rang out. The fishing pole carrying, bucket-holding red-haired beauty walked down the stairs, her eyebrows creased in a frown. The red-haired beauty gave the black-robed, violet-haired youth a cold look. "What's this all about?"

"Boss!" The green-haired woman immediately bowed slightly. "This violet-haired youth and the person outside were fighting. However, this violet-haired youth is very strong, slightly stronger than me. I'm not able to handle him."

"Tap, tap..."

Still carrying her fishing pole, the red-haired beauty walked towards the violet-haired youth, a hint of a smile on her face. "You dare fight in my inn? You really are audacious! There's no need for you to pay compensation for these things, but...I still need to give you a bit of a punishment." The beauty said, while the violet-haired youth just smiled coldly.

"Swish!"

The red-haired woman suddenly whipped out her fishing pole, which arced bizarrely through the air towards the violet-haired youth.

"Hmph!" An icy snort. The violet-haired youth's body suddenly shot forward, while that electric longsword in his hands arced out, piercing through the air and causing space to slightly crack apart.

“Rumble...” In the instant when the electric longsword and the fishing pole collided, the electric longsword actually slid to one side, while the violet-haired youth’s own body flew forward with it uncontrollably. This sliding of his longsword, however, caused it to slide towards the nearby guests who were drinking wine and watching this scene.

These people, frightened, hurriedly dodged, but the longsword was too fast. This off-base slash caused ripples of power to strike the guests within ten or so meters, including Linley’s group. The other Highgods all dodged, but Linley did not, because...

“Crunch!” A palm suddenly stretched out, clamping onto the electric sword’s blade.

The violet-haired youth was stunned, while the red-haired beauty looked over in amazement as well.

Bebe, gripping the electric longsword in his right hand, said in a discontented manner, “Hey, we aren’t here in this inn to watch you fight. If you want to fight, then fight, but don’t interfere with me and my Boss in drinking wine!” As he spoke, he casually tossed the electric longsword aside. This scene caused everyone in the room to be stunned.

To use one’s hand to snatch the sword of a Seven Star Fiend who was attacking with it?

Linley just shook his head and laughed. Even in Dragonform, if he were to use his hand to snatch or block the longsword, he would have been injured. He couldn't have acted as Bebe had, and Bebe's hand was completely uninjured.

"Oh...formidable." The red-haired beauty laughed. "Well-spoken. We shouldn't disrupt you."

As she spoke, the red-haired beauty once more swung out with her fishing pole, which sent out a fishing line which constantly danced in the air. The strange thing was...with each twirl of the fishing line, it was as though a wave of power was emanating from it, forming a strange vortex which surrounded the violet-haired youth.

Linley and Bebe's faces instantly changed.

"A supreme expert! A supreme expert of water!" Linley was stunned.

The swirling of the fishing line was causing space itself to form into a vortex. In an instant, Linley could sense countless rays of invisible spatial matter swirl about in a vortex like a dense fishing net, surrounding the violet-haired youth. The violet-haired youth was the fish!

Even though he frantically struggled, those countless strands of space surrounding him grew tighter and tighter!

In but the blink of an eye...

The 'fishnet' had completely bound up the violet-haired youth, and it seemed to shine with a green light. The violet-haired youth was completely immobilized, and his eyes were filled with amazement. He stared at the red-haired beauty in disbelief. "You? Who are you?" The youth had the power of a Seven Star Fiend, but compared with this red-haired beauty, he was far weaker.

"There's no way you are a member of Greenleaf Castle. You...right...you must be...one of the castle lords of Greenleaf Castle!" The violet-haired youth said hurriedly.

Book 18, Highgod – Chapter 19, Warning – Snakes and Trees!

Everyone in the restaurant had fallen silent. The technique displayed by the red-haired woman had stunned them all. The dancing fishing line had seemed to take control of the surrounding space, forming countless vortexes that transformed into a spatial fishnet. This was simply too bizarre!

“So powerful!” The Highgods in the restaurant all understood why it was proclaimed...that nobody was permitted to fight within this inn.

“Hmph!” The violet-haired youth let out an angry snort. His entire body flashed with explosive electric light, while he himself transformed into a bolt of lightning, seeking to escape from this fishnet. But the fishing line which bound him flashed with green light, completely surrounding and sealing off this violet-haired youth’s movements. No matter how he struggled, he wasn’t able to escape!”

“Causing trouble in MY inn? You really are audacious.” The red-haired beauty said with a cold snort. “There’s no need for you to pay me for the things you broke, but you’ll have to serve as my fishbait.”

As she spoke, the red-haired woman lifted up the fishing pole, with the violet-haired youth trundled up at the other end of the fishing line. And, just like that, the red-haired woman walked out of the inn, towards that grassy area. Once she arrived by the side of the pool, with a flick of the pole and a ‘plonk’ sound, the violet-haired youth was sent flying into the water of the pool.

“He really is being used as fishbait.” Bebe said in surprise. “Boss, that woman...hey, Boss!"

At this moment, Linley was currently processing the astonishing scene he had just seen. The waves formed by the fishing line, which had twisted into countless swirling vortexes in a never-ending stream. Linley had trained for so many years in the Elemental Laws of Water. He had reached the bottleneck in the sixth Profound Mystery, 'Circular Softness', and had been unable to break through.

The Profound Mystery of Circular Softness was one of the easier profound mysteries of the Elemental Laws of Water to begin training in, but it was hard to master.

Water...was extremely soft!

Something as soft and gentle as a fishing line was capable of causing space itself to move like a wave of water, forming countless spatial lines that entangled a person like a spatial fishing net, trundling them up. This sort of technique required a person to have reached a terrifying level of power in the Elemental Laws of Water. And when Linley saw this, he suddenly understood something.

He suddenly gained an insight!

"Rumble..."

A surge of natural Law ripples descended into the hotel, and a large amount of water-type elemental essence gathered in the air above Linley, forming into a watery fog. A terrifying presence descended. This awe-inspiring presence was lofty and noble. Faced with this presence, everyone would choose to submit to it.

Within Linley's body. Suddenly, Linley's divine water clone flew out...that 'green-haired Linley'.

"Boss, you made a breakthrough?" Bebe was delighted.

By the pool outside the hotel, the red-haired beauty who was currently using a person as fishing bait frowned, turning to glance towards the restaurant in surprise. "Hey? After seeing that technique of mine, he was able to make a breakthrough? This person's comprehension abilities is quite astonishing." At the same time, the red-haired woman gave the fishing pole a flick, causing the 'fishbait' to be whisked out and tossed to one side.

The violet-haired youth rolled on the ground, then immediately stood up.

"Enough. I'm not in the mood to punish you!" The red-haired beauty said coldly. "Remember. You had best not cause trouble in my inn. This time, I'll spare you, but if there is a second time...I will just kill you!"

The black-robed, violet-haired youth looked at her silently, then walked to a nearby area, closed his eyes, then sat down and began to meditate.

As for the red-haired woman, she put down the fishing pole, standing up and heading towards the inn.

Within the inn, the waiters were currently cleaning up. Quite a few Highgods in the restaurant were chatting amongst themselves, discussing either the red-haired woman, Linley, or the violet-haired youth.

"It seems we have no chance this time. Even if we are lucky and the Abyssal Fruit appears, we won't be able to overcome them."

"Those two from the Infernal Realm are truly strong."

"Let's not give up. The insides of the Abyssal Mountain are shrouded in fog, and everyone will be spread around searching. Just because a person is strong doesn't mean that this person will acquire the Abyssal Fruit! Perhaps we will be lucky and be the ones to acquire it instead."

Those people, after seeing how strong Linley and the violet-haired youth were, knew they wouldn't be able to out-fight them. They still didn't wish to give up, however. In searching for the Abyssal Fruit, strength was one part of it, but luck was very important as well. In countless years, only three Abyssal Fruit had ever emerged. Although their chances of acquiring it was low, they still wanted to give it a try.

If they didn't even try, they would remain ordinary Highgods in the vast Netherworld.

But if they gave it a try, perhaps they might suddenly gain in power and become Sovereign's Emissaries, and stand at the peak of the Netherworld.

"Boss, congratulations." Bebe happily raised his goblet while setting up his Godrealm, preventing others from hearing their conversation.

"It seems my luck is excellent." Linley was all smiles. "My divine water clone actually reached the Highgod level at a time like this. It seems as though our visit to the Abyssal Mountain tonight will be a successful one!"

"Right, it definitely will be a successful one!" Bebe said as well.

To enter the Abyssal Mountain and to see the Sovereign! This was indeed too difficult. Even the likes of Linley and Bebe felt worried.

"Eh?" Linley turned to look.

He saw the red-haired beauty walk towards his table, then pull out a chair and sit down at their table. The red-haired woman pulled out a goblet, pouring herself a glass with Linley's wine. Not saying a single word, she drained it.

Linley and Bebe couldn't help but look at the red-haired woman, puzzled.

"Kid." The red-haired woman looked at Linley, her lips curving upwards. "You just became a Highgod in water. Shouldn't you thank me?"

"Right." Linley laughed, raising his own winecup. "I do indeed need to thank you. Otherwise, who knows how long it would have been before I made a breakthrough?"

"Boss, what does this woman intend?" Bebe sent mentally, puzzled. Linley was puzzled as well, and he sent back, "Bebe, I also have the feeling that this woman is very weird. An expert who seems to be at the level of power of an Asura of the Infernal Realm is actually here running an inn? This really is unfathomable."

The red-haired woman drained a few more cups of wine, tilting her head back.

"The two of you are here for Abyssal Fruit as well?" The red-haired woman laughed calmly. "From the power you revealed, you two are at least at the Seven Star Fiend level of power, or perhaps even stronger. It seems to me as though the two of you don't need this sort of lucky break or the Abyssal Fruit, right? The power you already wield is already enough to allow you to become heroic, renowned figures in either the Netherworld or the Infernal Realm."

"Nobody ever complains about being too strong." Linley laughed calmly.

Linley didn't wish to let others know that he wanted to meet a Sovereign.

"Oh, that's true." The red-haired woman nodded. "But let me give you some advice. It's best if you don't enter the Abyssal Mountain."

"Why is that? Because it is dangerous inside?" Linley asked.

The red-haired woman laughed gently. "It is indeed dangerous! Only three Abyssal Fruit has ever appeared in the Netherworld. Countless billions of years will pass between each fruit. These people who have come in search for it..." The red-haired woman glanced sideways at the others. "These are all people whose lives in the Netherworld are not to their satisfaction, and so they have come to try their luck. But trying one's luck comes with a cost! Even someone as strong as you two, in the Abyssal Mountain, might lose your lives if you aren't careful!"

Linley couldn't help but narrow his eyes.

"The power you wield is more than enough to allow you to roam about and dominate the Netherworld. Why risk your lives for a single Abyssal Fruit that only appears once in countless years?" The red-haired youth said.

Linley nodded.

Although ordinary Highgods, Five Star Fiends, and Six Star Fiends were powerful, it was impossible for them to stand at par with the peak experts of the Netherworld. These people would thus risk their lives and hope that their destinies would be changed by it. But for experts who were nearly at the Asura level, it wasn't worth it. Their lives were precious!

"We are willing to go risk it." Bebe just laughed. "I'm very curious as to what is so dangerous about this Abyssal Mountain."

"I'm just giving you some advice. It's none of my business whether or not you go in and whether or not you die." The red-haired woman laughed calmly. "Only, far, far too many people have gone into the Abyssal Mountain without being able to come out!"

"Can you tell me what is so dangerous about the Abyssal Mountain?" Linley asked.

Since this young woman owned and operated an inn next to it, and seemed to be connected to the three castle lords of Greenleaf Castle, and perhaps was one of them...she definitely knew things about the situation in the Abyssal Mountain.

"Why should I tell you?" The red-haired woman asked.

Linley and Bebe were stunned.

The red-haired woman giggled as she stood up. "The higher up you go in traversing the tri-colored fogs of the Abyssal Mountain, the more dangerous it is! Remember. Beware the snakes, and the trees!" After speaking, the red-haired woman turned and left, leaving behind Linley and Bebe, both of whom were befuddled.

Linley had been prepared for the higher parts of the Abyssal Mountain to be dangerous.

But...

"Snakes? Trees?" Bebe muttered. "Of course there's going to be trees in mountain forests. Can it be that we need to beware every single tree? Then how are we supposed to go up the mountain?"

“Don’t worry about it. Let’s just remember to be wary regarding ‘snakes’ and ‘trees’. Still, we can’t be incautious about other things either.” Linley said after reflecting. “That woman might know many things about the Abyssal Mountain, but she doesn’t necessarily know everything about all the dangers of the Abyssal Mountain.”

The night of the full moon. An eerie red moon, as round as a plate, hung there in the skies. Under the light of the moon, the Abyssal Mountain, always crackling with faint electric light, seemed to have a red aura emanating from it as well.

The northern base of the Abyssal Mountain.

The vast, endless chains of lightning fell down from the peak of the mountain like waterfalls. At the northern base of the mountain, there was an enormous gate that was ten meters long, and the gate was covered in carved runes as well. Large amounts of electricity crackled and flowed around the mountain gate, but the gate itself didn’t have any electricity present.

Tens of figures were at the gate.

“This is the only entrance.” Bebe murmured. “I really want to enter from other areas and see how powerful that lightning is, exactly.”

“It’s always best to be careful.” Linley raised his head as well.

The entire mountain was covered in the tri-colored fog, but the density of the fog was now a bit lower.

"My four brothers!" Next to them, five Highgods were gathered together, one of whom had a very solemn look on his face. "For many years, we've lived a dazed, blurred life...let's go in and give it our best shot. At worst, we might just fail and die! But if we succeed...the brother who succeeds has to help the others take care of their matters."

"Don't worry, Elder Brother."

Those people all had steely, resolved looks in their eyes. They stepped forward, passing through the gate and entering the Abyssal Mountain.

"They are just throwing their lives away!" An effeminate, soft voice rang out.

The speaker was the silver-haired, effeminate man. "They think they are worthy of acquiring the Abyssal Fruit?" The silver-haired man entered the Abyssal Mountain as well. The other Highgods were speaking to each other as well, and they all entered the Abyssal Mountain. Those who dared to enter it...had already decided to risk their lives for it.

"Abyssal Fruit?" The black-robed, violet-haired youth entered as well.

"Boom!" Linley instantly Dragonformed. Azure-golden draconic scales covered his entire body, and savage spikes appeared on his back, forehead, and other areas. With a flip of his hand, a nearly translucent longsword appeared as well. "Let's go, Bebe." Linley and Bebe entered the Abyssal Mountain.

Linley's sudden Dragonforming badly startled the others.

"So this person was concealing his strength!" Those people felt their hearts quail.

"That sword seems to be a treasure as well."

Although the other Highgods were stunned, they still passed through the gate.

Moments later, only two people were left outside the gate; the red-haired beauty and the green-robed woman.

"Boss, those two from the Infernal Realm really are powerful." The green-robed woman said.

The red-haired beauty had a hint of a smile at the corner of her lips. "If my guess is correct, that weapon from the Azure Dragon clansman should be a godspark weapon made by Beirut! It really is extremely rare to see such a large godspark weapon. The relationship between this youth and Beirut is definitely quite special. As for that youngster, he was able to grab the sword of a Seven Star Fiend with his bare hands without suffering any wounds at all, but his body doesn't have any Sovereign artifact's aura...as I see it, he most likely is that legendary successor to Beirut, the second Godeater Rat."

"Oh. Let's go back." The red-haired woman turned and left.

"Boss, how many of them do you think will make it out alive?" The green-robed woman asked.

"Based on past precedence...the strength of this group isn't bad. Several of them should be able to return. But if they get too greedy and attempt to go to the peak of the Abyssal Mountain? Quite possibly, not a single one of them!" The red-haired beauty said calmly. "Don't worry about them. The Netherworld is filled with people. So what if a group of people die?"

The green-haired woman followed the red-haired woman, heading back to the hotel.

Book 18, Highgod – Chapter 20, Lost

As soon as Linley entered the Abyssal Mountain, he felt a heart-palpitating presence spread out from it.

“What a powerful presence!” Linley’s face turned solemn. “Even in the Infernal Realm, when I faced the Bloodridge Sovereign, I didn’t feel such a terrifying pressure!” After having been pressured by this presence as soon as he entered the Abyssal Mountain, Linley had a feeling...as though he had returned to his childhood years in Wushan township, and was once more facing that magical beast, the ‘Velocidragon’ for the first time. It was that sort of terror and shock that he now felt.

His heart was shaking! This sense of pressure pressed down on his soul!

“Boss, I can’t even spread my divine sense out.” Bebe turned to look at Linley. “This pressure is too powerful, even more powerful than that of the Bloodridge Sovereign.”

“That’s because when the Bloodridge Sovereign appeared, it was just an energy construct, rather than his true form.” Linley carefully inspected his surroundings.

Behind him was the Abyssal Mountain gate. For now, none of the Highgods who had entered dare go any deeper into the mountain, as they were all carefully inspecting and getting accustomed to their new surroundings. The Abyssal Mountain was filled with danger. Even Seven Star Fiend level experts who entered might perish. Such a dangerous area...how could any of them dare to be incautious?

“Within the Abyssal Mountains, even gravity is gone. It is as though this place is completely cut off from the outside world.” Linley just hovered there.

“This white fog can even cause people to go dizzy. However, for myself and Bebe, the influence is negligible.” Linley was still constantly weighing his surroundings.

There were many trees, bushes, and other types of vegetation growing atop the Abyssal Mountain, which was completely covered by the white fog. Outside of the white fog was the ‘Heaven-Earth Chains’. The power of the endless chains of lightning was something which Linley had heard of long ago. Linley didn’t want to touch them or to personally experience how powerful that lightning was.

“Whoosh!” Linley’s body sank down, and he descended until he stood atop the mountain stone.

“Bebe, within the Abyssal Mountain region, let’s advance while on the ground.” Linley sent mentally, speaking solemnly. “If we fly, the white fog will completely block our field of vision. If we aren’t careful, we might run into the lightning chains. That would be terrible.”

“I rather want to give them a try.” Bebe laughed, but he still descended until he stood atop the mountain stone as well.

“Remember, beware the snakes and the trees!” Linley sent, while at the same time, he stared vigilantly at the trees nearby. The trees who were living in this unique environment of the Abyssal Mountain were all fairly short, and had unusual shapes as well. "Perhaps these trees are capable of attacking people."

Linley didn't dare to be incautious.

"Don't worry." Bebe looked at the nearby trees as well. "These trees won't be able to hurt me."

The other Highgods had gotten a good sense of their surroundings by now as well, and they all began to head out.

"Let's move out." Linley gave the order.

Linley and Bebe, sticking close to the surface of the Abyssal Mountain, began to fly forwards. However, they didn't dare to fly too quickly...for fear that the trees might suddenly attack them mid-journey. In addition, Linley had yet to see a single 'snake' which the red-haired woman had warned him about.

Moments later...

"Swish!" Linley and Bebe came to a halt, puzzlement in their eyes.

"Boss, which direction should we advance towards?" Bebe stared around himself.

"This damn place." Linley was frustrated as well.

Linley was surrounded on all four sides by endless fog. Despite Linley and Bebe's ocular prowess, they were at most able to see to a distance of a few dozen meters. In addition, given the terrifying pressure emanating from the Abyssal Mountain, they weren't able to make their divine sense leave their body. And given that the Abyssal Mountain had no gravity within its borders...

These things combined to make it impossible to determine a direction!

Although the mountain did have slopes and inclines, given that there was no gravity at all, even though Linley and Bebe might be standing atop the mountain they wouldn't be sure which direction they were standing. The trees that grew in this gravity-less region also grew in strange, distorted directions.

"It's impossible to even tell directions clearly within this Abyssal Mountain. There's no way to tell which way is 'up' the mountain and which way is 'down'!" Linley carefully inspected the surroundings, but everywhere around him were those bizarrely shaped trees and some ordinary plants. As well as that thick, endless white fog...

Bebe had a sour look on his face. "All I know is that if we leave the surface of the mountain and fly upwards, we'll encounter those lightning chains. As for front, back, left, right...I have no idea where to go."

Linley and Bebe had encountered the first difficult trial of the Abyssal Mountain...

The loss of a sense of direction!

"Forget it. Let's just move forward." Linley gritted his teeth. "The white fog only extends for a few hundred thousand meters, a distance of less than a thousand kilometers. We'll just charge forward blindly...and perhaps we'll be able to charge out." By now, the only option left to them was a foolish method such as this; by relying on their speed to burst out of it.

"Right." Bebe said in approval.

The two immediately began to advance in the direction they considered 'forward'!

But Linley and Bebe didn't dare to run forward at full speed. They still had to be vigilant of the nearby trees, as well as the heretofore unseen 'snakes'. Thus, of course they moved a bit slower.

"Someone's there!" Bebe sent mentally.

Linley and Bebe immediately came to a halt. From afar, there was a blurry figure in the white fog, which was also drawing closer to their direction. Only now did Linley and Bebe clearly recognize who this person was; it was the black-robed, violet-haired youth. He, too, had noticed Linley and Bebe, but with a low snort, he simply continued to move forward.

Suddenly...

"CRACK!"

A bolt of lightning suddenly descended from the heavens, smashing directly against a large tree that was only ten meters or so away from Linley. The tree was instantly transformed into ashes.

"What's going on?" Bebe was badly startled.

"You two, be careful!" The violet-haired youth, who by now was fairly close, said in a cold voice. "Within the Abyssal Mountain, lightning will occasionally descend from on high. This lightning is the lightning contained within the Heaven-Earth Chains, and the power of it is exceedingly great! When flying forward, best pay attention to what is going on above you. If you are struck...hmph..."

His voice slowly grew distant, and then faded away.

The reason why the Heaven-Earth Chains were always filled with endless amounts of electric power was because the Heaven-Earth Chains were constantly absorbing the natural surrounding lightning-type elemental essence to nourish itself. But once the Heaven-Earth Chains absorbed a certain amount of lightning-type elemental essence, it would begin to randomly cast down bolts of lightning as some energy began to leak out.

This was why...

Even if you didn't go touch the Heaven-Earth Chains, sometimes, the Heaven-Earth Chains would still strike you.

Linley and Bebe couldn't help but raise their heads, staring upwards.

"This damn place." Bebe gritted his teeth. "This is ridiculous. Lightning bolts that will suddenly descend for no reason? If we aren't careful and end up getting hit, that would have been such an unfair death."

"Anyone who dares to enter the Abyssal Mountains has to be mentally prepared for death." Linley laughed calmly. "Let's go. Let's continue to move forward."

Both Linley's group and the other groups which entered the Abyssal Mountain knew that since they had chosen to enter the Abyssal Mountain...if they died, they couldn't blame others. The Abyssal Mountain was the residence of the mightiest of the seven Sovereigns of the Netherworld, the Chief Sovereign of Death. How could it be a place where others could easily enter?

Linley and Bebe felt as though their path forward was a straight line.

After advancing for a long time...

"Hmm...we haven't reached an end yet?" Bebe said, puzzled. "We should've advanced for more than a thousand kilometers by now."

"It seems as though we went the wrong way." Linley said.

There were no other possibilities. If they had gone the right way, they would've left the region of white fog long ago.

In an ordinary place, Linley and Bebe would've been able to walk out of it by now, even if their eyes were closed. But the Abyssal Mountain constantly radiated that terrifying pressure, and the white fog was somewhat impacting their souls. Thus, Linley and Bebe's senses of direction were inaccurate, and so, unknowingly, they had gone off-track and begun to move in a circular manner as opposed a straight one.

"Forget it. Let's just keep going forward." Bebe said.

Linley nodded as well, and the two immediately advanced deeper into the white fog. On the way over, Linley still didn't discover any 'trees' or 'snakes' that were able to attack. Aside from the occasional bolts of lightning that descended down and the disorienting loss of direction, the Abyssal Mountain didn't seem to hold any other dangers.

"Hm. The white fog is growing sparse." Linley was immediately excited.

The tri-colored fog clouds of the Abyssal Mountain represented that the mountain was divided into three regions. The borders of the three regions were areas with fairly sparse fog. The sparseness of the fog here was an indication that they had reached the borders!

"We made it!" Bebe said with surprise and delight, but then Bebe's expression changed. "How can this be?!"

Linley and Bebe walked out of the white fog, but within their field of vision, the Heaven-Earth Chains once more appeared. The thick chains of lightning had that invisible membrane between them, and through the membrane, Linley could see that on the opposite side...was the vast, endless plains.

"We...returned to the base of the mountain?" Linley couldn't help but laugh bitterly.

After entering the mountain through the gate, they had blindly wandered for so long, but in the end, they had actually walked back to the base of the mountain. Still, at least they hadn't walked back to the gate.

"Let's go. This place is only one or two thousand kilometers in size. In an hour, we should be able to criss-cross it several dozen times. I refuse to believe that we won't be able to make it in an hour." Linley turned and immediately re-entered the white fog, while Bebe followed from behind.

"CRACK!" From not too far away, yet another bolt of lightning descended.

Linley and Bebe didn't slow down, continuing to advance forward.

Linley had believed that leaving the white fog region would be fairly simple, but three times in a row, he ended up returning to the base of the mountain. Even by taking a circuitous route, however, the distance was just a few thousand kilometers. Given Linley's speed, each trip was a very fast one, and so Linley had more than enough patience to continue advancing.

"There is someone up ahead." Bebe's eyes lit up.

Linley had noticed the person up ahead as well. It was a muscular man with short golden hair, who was carefully advancing forward. As though he sensed something, he turned to look towards them, and when he did, he was badly startled...Linley's Dragonform made him think that he had encountered some sort of monster. But he quickly realized who it was.

At the mountain gates, they had all seen Linley's Dragonform.

"The two of you haven't made it out yet, either?" The man with the short golden hair actually moved towards them as he spoke.

"There's no sense of direction in this damn place." Bebe said.

"The white fog region of the Abyssal Mountain is actually the safest place here." The golden-haired man laughed calmly. "It's just an inability to tell directions, right? If we try a few extra times, we might get lucky and make it out. It's just a matter of time. If once isn't enough, then ten times, a hundred times...we have plenty of time."

Linley said with a laugh, "Then good luck to you in being able to make it out. We won't disturb you any further. Bebe, let's head out."

Linley and Bebe immediately advanced forward.

The golden-haired man had a hint of disappointment flash past his eyes. He had come to chat with Linley because he wanted to travel alongside Linley and Bebe. This was because at the hotel, they had all learned that Linley and Bebe were supreme experts. It would be much safer if he travelled alongside them in the Abyssal Mountain.

"They are ignoring me?" But then, the golden-haired man's eyes lit up, and he actually chased after Linley and Bebe while saying, "The two of you came from the Infernal Realm, and so I imagine you aren't familiar with the Abyssal Mountain. I know a few things about this place."

As he spoke, he caught up.

Linley and Bebe couldn't help but turn and glance at the golden-haired man.

"Boss, this guy is really annoying." Bebe sent mentally.

"Just let him follow if he wants to." Linley didn't mind. But suddenly, Linley saw a hint of a green blur flash past from the corner of his eyes, shooting out from a nearby tree. Linley instantly grew guarded, and the semi-translucent godspark sword, 'Mirage', appeared in his hands. But that green blur shot towards the golden-haired man behind Linley instead.

Linley and Bebe immediately turned.

"Haaaargh!" A bellow rang out, and the golden-haired man's hands suddenly became filled with a warblade, which he swung directly towards the green blur. At the same time, a black aura sprang up, ensconcing the golden-haired man in layers of defense.

"Swish!" The green blur twisted in mid-air, dodging past the golden-haired man's blade chop.

The green blur slammed directly onto that black aura, which actually wasn't able to block it at all. The green blur instantly broke through the black aura, and also shot directly towards the golden-haired man. The strange thing was...the green blur actually merged into the man's body. The layer of light surrounding the golden-haired man vanished, and the warblade in his hand fell to the ground as well.

"Ah...ahhhh!" A terrifying sound rang out from the man's mouth, and his entire body trembled. But an instant later, the man's body became stiff, and no more sound came from his lips.

"Thud!" The man fell down to the ground, smashing against a nearby tree, and then floating up into the air and drifting about randomly.

Linley and Bebe stared carefully at the man's corpse.

"Hiss..."

From the forehead of the corpse, a hole suddenly appeared, and a thin green serpent that was only the size of a man's palm wriggled out from the hole. The green serpent's body suddenly trembled, then it transformed into a green flash of light, disappearing into the white fog.

Linley and Bebe's facial expressions turned solemn.

"Snake!"

Book 18, Highgod – Chapter 21, Green Snakes

That red-haired beauty had warned Linley about the 'snakes' and the 'trees', and so Linley and Bebe had been on their guard the entire time. But only now did Linley realize that the so-called 'snakes' referred to that extremely slender green snake.

"Crunch!" Linley and Bebe walked forward, stepping on thick layers of fallen leaves and branches as they walked towards the corpse. Linley and Bebe both carefully inspected the golden-haired man's corpse. Linley first inspected the corpse's chest, from whence the green serpent had entered the man's body.

"As I thought!" Linley realized that there was a tiny hole in the man's chest, identical to the hole in the man's skull.

"And I had originally believed that the green serpent had truly merged into his body. So the snake actually bit a hole into the body, then entered it. Only, the green snake really was quite fast, and its burrowing abilities are very powerful!" Linley said with a sigh. "That man was a Highgod, but his divine power defense wasn't able to block the snake at all."

The divine power that had surrounded and protected the Highgod had been as weak as paper in front of the green snake.

"That green snake's fangs really are sharp." Bebe laughed.

"Don't be careless." Linley looked at the corpse in a weighing manner. "That green snake was extremely fast, and it was able to easily change direction in midair.”

“Right.” Bebe had seen the earlier scene as well.

“Boss, that green snake killed that man, but why didn’t it continue to attack us next? Instead, it fled.” Bebe asked.

“The green snake most likely wants to rely on ambushes.” Linley said. “We were already on guard against it, and so it gave up attacking us. Be careful...perhaps that green snake might return to attack us again.”

“Don’t worry. If it comes back, I’ll just squeeze it to death!” Bebe said confidently.

“Let’s keep moving.” Linley laughed. At this point, Linley and Bebe both felt slightly relieved. Before this, they didn’t know how the ‘snakes’ and the ‘trees’ would attack, and so were extremely nervous. The more mysterious something was, the more frightening it was. But now they knew that the ‘snakes’ referred to that sort of small green snake.

Even though the small green snakes were dangerous, Linley and Bebe now at least knew what they were up against.

On the path forward, Linley and Bebe paid careful attention to whether or not there were any little green snakes in the surrounding areas. But of course, Linley and Bebe were very careful when they saw those short dwarf trees as well.

“Whoosh, whoosh!”

Linley and Bebe moved as fast as lightning as they passed through the white fog. On a green leaf of a nearby dwarf tree, a strange green energy suddenly emerged from the leaf, transforming into a green serpent. This little green serpent was currently staring at Linley and Bebe's backs.

Suddenly...

The green serpent once more merged into the leaf, disappearing. A few hundred meters away, on the leaf of a large tree close to Linley and Bebe, a green energy once more appeared, forming into a green serpent. The green serpent stared towards Linley and Bebe. Its stealth abilities really were quite impressive.

Although it didn't immediately attack, it continued to stare, ready to attack at any moment.

It quietly, stealthily followed them. Linley and Bebe didn't notice it at all. In fact, Linley and Bebe didn't even sense that there were any energy signatures near them.

"Eh?" Linley turned to look up ahead.

A human figure appeared. It was that silver-haired, effeminate youth. That effeminate youth gave Linley and Bebe a cold look, then continued to advance, disappearing into the white fog.

"Hey, that fellow always looks so cocky, but he's not able to make it out either, eh?" Bebe snickered. "I'm irritated just looking at him. He always has that ugly look on his face, as though someone owes him something... if he gets close to me, I really want to teach him a lesson. How dare he be so arrogant without the power to back it up?"

At this moment, on a leaf of a tree that was ten meters or so behind Linley, the green serpent was staring at the grumbling Bebe. A light suddenly flashed through its oily green eyes.

"Don't get distracted. Focus on the road." Linley growled.

"What's there to be afra..." Bebe was in mid-sentence, but suddenly...

"Swish!"

The green serpent shot out from behind at high speed towards Bebe, its speed so fast that it left behind only a green blur in the air. The animatedly talking Bebe only noticed the green blur when it had already drawn close to him, and Linley noticed it now as well, but...it was too late!

Bebe sent a backhand slap directly towards the green blur.

The green blur strangely twisted in mid-air, easily dodging past the blow, then biting straight towards Bebe's waist..

"Crunch..."

The green snake had used this technique to chew through the bodies of countless people, burrowing through their organs and killing them. It had felt certain that the same would happen to this handsome-looking youngster, but when it bit down, it discovered...that this youngster's skin was so tough that it made his fangs go numb.

It knew that the situation was bad, but before it had a chance to escape...

"WHAP!" A large hand descended, seizing it!

"Your mother...you bit me?!" Bebe stared with furious wide eyes. "I'll squeeze you to death!" As he spoke, he suddenly applied force with his hands, and darkness-type divine power coalesced. With an explosive 'bang' sound, the little green snake blew apart from the force of the squeeze, and a strange violet blood flowed out.

With a toss of his hand, Bebe pushed out some more divine power and got rid of the vestiges of blood on his palm.

"Hmph. It dared to bite me. It really wanted to die!" As he spoke, he gave the shattered remnants of the serpent's corpse on the ground a few stomps for good measure.

Seeing this, Linley couldn't help but start to laugh. "Enough, Bebe. You already killed the green snake." Linley sighed in praise as well. Bebe's physical toughness was indeed astonishing. Since the green serpent lived on the Abyssal Mountain, it was capable of threatening many Highgods and so its attack power was certainly tremendous...but in front of Bebe, it wasn't even able to break his skin."

"Hey, green snakes, little green snakes...I'm right here. If you have the ability to bite me, come bite me! Bite me!" Bebe intentionally shouted to the surrounding area.

"Hurry up. Let's leave." Linley couldn't help but urge.

Bebe chortled, then followed Linley from behind. Clearly, Bebe was very self-delighted at how easily he had squeezed the green snake to death.

On their fourth trip...they still ended up returning to the base of the mountain!

"I have a premonition that we'll succeed on the fifth try for sure." Bebe gritted his teeth as he spoke. Ending up at the base of the mountain four times in a row had clearly caused Bebe to become rather unhappy.

"Be patient! We spent thirty-plus years just travelling to this Abyssal Mountain. What's a little bit of extra time?" Linley had an excellent attitude regarding this situation. Not flustered and not in any haste, he continued to advance forward while carefully inspecting his surroundings, giving it yet another attempt...within the Abyssal Mountain, although not many green snakes attacked, quite a few bolts of lightning descended.

"Boom!" Occasionally, the sound of a thunderbolt could be heard from afar.

"Fortunately, the Abyssal Mountain is so large that the chances of being struck are very low." Linley laughed as he spoke.

"If we get hit, we get hit. But Boss, tell me, how do you think the lightning bolts of these Heaven-Earth Chains are formed? How can they be so powerful?" Bebe asked, not understanding.

Linley laughed calmly, "This is the number one tall mountain of the Netherworld, the residence of a Sovereign. It'd be strange if there was nothing special about it."

While chatting, Linley and Bebe continued to advance forward.

On the leaf of a dwarf tree a few dozen meters behind Linley, a green mass of energy appeared, then formed into a small green snake. The green snake stared fixedly at Linley and Bebe's backs, and then merged into the leaf once more.

As Linley and Bebe advanced at high speed, the little green snake constantly moved forward as well, as though it was following Linley and Bebe.

Only, the green snake was choosing to wait for an opportunity.

"Boss, this..." Just as Bebe was speaking, he suddenly sent mentally in astonishment, "Boss, careful!"

"BANG!" From high up above, a bolt of lightning came crashing down towards Linley. The speed of the lightning bolt was simply too astonishing, but since Linley had been vigilant this entire time, as soon as he noticed it, without hesitating at all, he launched off from the ground, his body dodging away to one side at high speed.

“BOOM!” The lightning bolt hit the ground, and the branches and leaves on the ground instantly turned into dust, and a large hole in the ground appeared.

Right at this moment...

“Swish!” The green serpent that had been following them the entire time suddenly shot out, and a green blur appeared in midair, charging straight towards Linley.

Linley was in mid-dodge, having just avoided the dangerous lightning bolt. His attention was all on the lightning bolt as well, and so the amount of attention he was paying to rest of his surroundings had lowered. When the green snake reached a distance of five meters from Linley, its speed suddenly lessened dramatically, and only now did Linley suddenly turn to look at it.

“Fortunately, I kept up my Blackstone Space this entire time.” Linley, upon seeing it, was badly startled.

After Bebe had suffered that last attack, Linley had immediately set up his Blackstone Space within a range of five meters. Although the green serpent had seen that earthen yellow glow, it thought that it was the ordinary divine power protection which normal Highgods used, and so it hadn't paid it any heed...but that earthen yellow aura had caused it to suffer a major disadvantage now!

Blackstone Space – Repulsive Force!

This repulsive force was proportional to an object's size. The little green snake's speed slowed down dramatically when affected by the repulsive force, but it was still able to fly forward towards Linley at high speed. From this, one could imagine how astonishing its original speed had been.

"Die." A calm look on his face, Linley swept out with his godspark sword, 'Mirage'.

His divine power filled Mirage, when instantly turned completely translucent as it swung towards the serpent, and wherever it passed by, a clear tear in space appeared. The green snake, its speed lessened, was unable to dodge easily. It strove to turn its body, but Linley's 'Mirage' sword still chopped down towards it.

One sword blow. Two pieces!

"Swoosh!" The remaining half of the green serpent, its speed not lessening in the slightest, charged directly towards Linley.

"Oh? It's fine?" Linley was shocked.

They were too close, and Linley wasn't able to use his sword to block. He immediately swept out with a draconic claw, clawing down towards it.

The green serpent delightedly charged straight towards Linley's draconic claw, and then 'bit down' towards the 'palm' of Linley's claw.

With a 'crunch' sound, Linley's draconic scales in the palm of his hand split apart, but at the same time, Linley squeezed down with his claws. A terrifying energy pressed down, instantly reducing the green serpent into mush.

Violet blood flowed everywhere.

"Not good." Linley's face changed.

Linley felt a strange, numb sensation that instantly passed through his entire body. The strange energy poured directly towards his head.

"Hmph." Linley's spiritual power in his mind flowed out like repeated waves, completely obliterating that strange energy.

"Boss, are you alright?" Bebe asked hurriedly.

"I'm fine. Fortunately, it was just a little bit of serpent's venom that entered my body. If this green serpent had entered my body, however, it would have been troublesome." Linley was still very nervous. That strange energy had indeed been quite powerful. The only reason why he had been able to defeat it so easily was because after becoming a Highgod, he had been absorbing amethysts for centuries and strengthened his soul tens of times over, compared to when he was a God.

But if the entire snake had entered his body...

Even Linley felt rather apprehensive.

"His fangs really are sharp." Linley lowered his head to look at his palm.

A small patch of draconic scales in the palm of his hand had been split apart, revealing two very small 'spots'.

The defensive power of Linley's draconic scales was simply too powerful. When the green serpent had bitten down upon them, although its fangs had broken through at those two points, it hadn't been able to completely bite out a hole which it could burrow through. Naturally, the green snake was then crushed to death. Only...as the fangs of the serpent had pierced the draconic scales, its venom had passed into Linley's blood and flesh.

"And this is the white fog region, the 'safest' region! What of the gray fog region, or the highest violet fog region?" Linley couldn't help but feel a sense of pressure. "No wonder anyone who acquires the Abyssal Fruit will become a Sovereign's Emissary! Given the danger level of the Abyssal Mountain, anyone capable of acquiring the Abyssal Fruit should be at an impressive level of power already. With the help of the Abyssal Fruit, the victor would indeed have enough power to become a Sovereign's Emissary."

Linley and Bebe continued to advance.

Moments later...the white fog grew sparse.

"We returned to the borders again. Hopefully, we reached the base of the mountain." Bebe no longer was calling out in celebration as he had previously.

But then, Linley and Bebe's eyes both lit up. As they walked out of the white fog region, they saw that up ahead, there was an empty area of no fog. And further up ahead...was a dark, gloomy region of gray fog.

"We made it out?" Bebe said in delight.

"Haha..." Linley couldn't help but start to laugh. "Bebe, your premonition was an accurate one, it seems. We really did succeed on our fifth try."

Just as Linley and Bebe were celebrating, a series of angry bellows rang out from the gray fog region.

"Eh?" Linley and Bebe couldn't help but feel puzzled, and they looked towards the gray fog region. What was within this gray fog region?

Book 18, Highgod – Chapter 22, The Gray Fog Region – Slaughter!

The white fog region and the gray fog region had an empty region between it which encircled the mountain. Linley and Bebe were in no hurry to enter the gray fog region. They remained outside, carefully listening to the sounds emanating from within.

“Humans, shouting angrily.” Linley frowned.

“What’s going on inside this gray fog?” Bebe was puzzled as well.

Even if the gray fog held danger within, only a few people had entered it, most likely. In addition, those people should have been spread out throughout the area. “Even if they are fighting, the fighting shouldn’t go on nonstop. Why are those angry shouting sounds ringing out again and again? And we are here at the borders, but can still hear them!” Linley’s forehead was creased.

The gray fog region was similar in size to the white fog region.

Given the enormous amount of surface it took up, battles that went on within it from afar shouldn’t be hearable by Linley and Bebe, who were only at the border.

“Eh?” Linley suddenly turned his head.

In the distant white fog region, two male figures suddenly emerged. These two had azure armor formed over their bodies, and when they emerged, they looked vigilantly towards Linley and Bebe. Seeing the two of them, they relaxed slightly. "Haha, I didn't expect to run into you two here. It seems we two brothers are meant to encounter you."

The man who spoke was a skinny man who had a smile on his face. The other man by his side seemed rather sturdy, and had some stubble on his chin.

"Indeed." Linley said. "I am Linley, and this is my brother, Bebe. Who are you??"

"Lache [La'qi]!" The skinny man laughed.

"Valette [Wa'li'te]!" The bearded man said emotionlessly.

"Lache, Valette, we come from the Infernal Realm and don't know much about the Abyssal Mountain. Listen...there are angry bellows and roars constantly ringing out from the gray fog region. Do you know what is going on in there?" Linley immediately asked. The reason why he was conversing with these two was for the sake of gaining information.

Lache and Valette both listened carefully, frowns appearing on their faces.

"Hey, that is rather queer." Lache said with a frown. "There were a few dozen people who entered the mountain this time, and there should have been less than ten people who entered the gray fog region ahead of us. Such an enormous region...if ten people entered, they would be like drops of water in the sea. How could the sounds of angry shouts and battle ring out nonstop?"

Bebe said helplessly, "You don't know either?"

"No idea. The affairs of Abyssal Mountain are very mysterious." Lache explained. "The outside world has some rumors, at least, of the white fog region, but no one knows anything about the gray fog region or the violet fog region. Most likely, even if someone knows something, they wouldn't tell anyone. What do the two of you plan to do?"

Linley and Bebe looked at each other.

"Wait!" Linley said.

"The same decision as we two brothers." Lache chortled. "Most likely, the people who go in will come back here due to having no sense of direction within. When they emerge, we'll ask them and so be better prepared."

Linley nodded slightly.

Lache laughed, "Then we two brothers will go over there to that part of the mountain. You two can move over there. That way, the two of us can keep watch over a region of a hundred kilometers. We'll easily see anyone who emerges."

"Fine." Linley nodded.

And then, Linley and Bebe immediately hurried to a prominent, arching spot on the mountain. They stood there, able to see to a great distance.

"Boss, we're just going to wait here?" Bebe was rather impatient.

Linley swept the gray fog region with a glance, then shook his head and said, "Let's wait half a day. If we don't find anyone in half a day's time, we'll go in! The white fog region we passed through just now was already rather dangerous. This gray fog region will most likely be even more troublesome. It is best if we go in after finding out what the situation inside is like!"

They had hurried for thirty years to get to this place. Linley had the patience to wait here for half a day. Rashly running inside might result in them suffering for it.

They waited quietly.

The distance between Linley's group and Lache's group was roughly ten kilometers. But because there was no fog here, they were still able to see each other at a glance. Roughly half an hour of quiet waiting went past, and the result was...Linley's 'squad' grew more powerful!

Another person had walked out from the white fog region; the effeminate-looking silver-haired man.

The effeminate-looking man was patient as well. He was in no hurry to enter, and began to wait quietly.

A long time later...

"Eh?" Linley, who had been seated atop a rock in the meditative posture with his eyes closed, suddenly opened his eyes, turning to look into the distance. That black-robed, violet-haired youth emerged from the gray fog. Seeing that the black-robed youth was about to turn and re-enter the gray fog region, Linley immediately called out, "Bloan!"

During the battle in the inn, Linley had heard the violet-haired man's name be called out.

"Swoosh." Linley and Bebe immediately flew over, while more than ten kilometers away, the three other Highgods also saw them and immediately flew over.

"Eh?" The violet-haired youth, Bloan, turned his head.

"Hello, Bloan." Linley greeted him.

"Oh...is there something you need?" There was no expression on Bloan's face. At the same time, he noticed that the other three were hastening here as well. Lache laughed and said, "So it's Bloan. I knew that given your power, Bloan, you would be able to easily emerge from the white fog region. Right, my friend Bloan, we aren't familiar with the gray fog region. Can you tell us a bit?"

The violet-haired youth, Bloan, glanced at them, seeming rather concerned about Linley and Bebe. He still said calmly, "I can tell you, but there's a price!"

"Pray tell." Lache laughed.

"In the gray fog region, I will travel with you two!" The violet-haired youth, Bloan, looked towards Linley and Bebe..

Linley, hearing this, raised an eyebrow. Travel with them? Although he wasn't too familiar with the violet-haired youth, in the short period of time they had known each other, Linley had come to understand that this Bloan should be a very cold, arrogant person. But...Bloan was asking to travel alongside Linley. Clearly, the gray fog region was very dangerous!

Lache and the other two immediately looked towards Linley and Bebe.

"Fine." Linley nodded.

The violet-haired youth said calmly, "The 'fog' in this gray fog region is actually a type of unusual energy. If your soul is weak, the gray fog region will ensnare you in countless, endless illusions! By then, you won't be able to tell friend from foe, and you'll constantly slaughter others...you will never be able to emerge from the gray fog region, and will forever be trapped in illusions!"

Everyone who heard this felt their hearts tremble.

Forever be trapped in illusions?

They had eternal life, but if they were eternally trapped in illusions...that would be more miserable than death.

“There are many, many Highgods within!” The violet-haired youth, Bloan, said emotionlessly. “Over the course of countless years, I imagine that on each trip, there are Highgods who are trapped within the gray fog region. Because Highgods will not starve to death, the only possibility for death is in battle. Thus...over the course of countless years, an astonishingly high number of Highgods have accumulated within this region. Once we encounter those Highgods who have become trapped in illusions, they will consider us to be their mortal foes and immediately battle against us.

The faces of Linley and the others grew ugly.

“On each night of the full moon, some people will go in.” Lache said with a frown. “This Abyssal Mountain has existed for who knows how many years...how many Highgods are there in this gray fog region?!”

Linley couldn't help but look towards the gray fog region as well.

Angry shouts. The sounds of slaughter. Bellows. They continued to ring out nonstop from within. Linley's group now understood why these angry roars were continuing unabated; it was because the number of Highgods within was far too great!

“I want to warn you of something; don't underestimate the Highgods who have been trapped in illusions.” The violet-haired Bloan said with a cold laugh. “In training, there are those who specialize in the soul and those who specialize in material attacks. Those who were trapped in illusions were just a bit weak in terms of the soul, but their material attacks might be terrifyingly strong, even at the Seven Star Specter level.”

Linley couldn’t help but take a deep breath.

“In addition, slaughter goes on unabated within this region. Over the course of countless years, this has resulted in the deaths of many Highgods, but those who remain alive are virtually all exceedingly powerful in terms of material attacks.” The violet-haired Bloan said solemnly. “Just now, when I entered, if it hadn’t been for the fact that I am fast, I probably would have...”

Lache and the other two had ugly looks on their faces now.

They knew how strong Bloan was. A Seven Star Specter! And yet, he had almost been destroyed as well.

“However, don’t worry. Those who were trapped within and still alive are roughly at the Six Star Specter level of power. Seven Star Specters are rare.” Bloan said.

Linley and Bebe glanced at each other.

“Boss, the experts within the gray fog region are most likely even more numerous than within the Four Divine Beasts clan.” Bebe said.

Linley nodded slightly. Who could say how many experts had been attracted to the Abyssal Mountain over the course of countless years?

Bebe sent mentally, "No wonder he wants to go with us."

Linley swept the others with his gaze, all of whom felt the pressure. "Everyone, prepare to enter. Those who enter should enter together. If you feel that you don't have the power to do so, wait outside."

"I'll go." The effeminate looking man was the first to speak.

"Enter." Valette nodded.

"I...will go in as well, then" Lache hesitated momentarily before speaking.

"Big Brother." Valette immediately barked. "It's best if you don't enter. Your soul..." Lache just shook his head and said, "Don't worry. Although I'm somewhat weaker than you in terms of the soul, I'm not actually weak. I should be able to handle it!"

Linley gave this Lache a calm look.

"Let's head out." Linley said calmly.

This squad naturally accepted Linley and Bebe as their leaders. In a dangerous situation, everyone, mortal or Deity alike, would naturally follow the most powerful individuals around.

As soon as he entered the gray fog region, Linley felt his head go slightly dizzy, while at the same time, Linley noticed....that a misty layer of gray energy was already beginning to accumulate atop the translucent membrane that was his soul-protecting Sovereign artifact. The gray fog energy was currently trying to invade his soul, but Linley was able to resist it.

"Halt!" Linley barked.

After having just entered the gray fog region, everyone was now under the influence of the gray fog. Bebe had a soul-protecting artifact and so was able to resist it as well. As for the violet-haired youth, he had prior experience. The effeminate man was frowning, but he maintained his clarity of mind. Valette, that sturdy-looking fellow, remained clear-headed as well. But that Lache...

Lache's face began to change, and his entire body was quivering.

"Aahhhhh!" Suddenly, a furious, insane roar rang out. A warblade appeared in his hands, and he angrily chopped down towards the nearby Valette. Valette was too close to him, and didn't even have enough time to dodge.

"Bang!"

An azure-golden light flashed past, and Lache was knocked bodily backwards, flying out of the gray fog region.

"Eh?" The violet-haired youth and the others couldn't help but look towards Linley's draconic tail, flashing with azure-golden light. In that instant, Linley had actually used his draconic tail to strike out and knock Lache out of the region.

"Big Brother, are you alright?" Valette said frantically.

Having left the gray fog region, Lache had regained his presence of mind. His chest was caved in, and blood stained his clothes, but he immediately called out, "I'm fine. Mr. Linley, thank you for your kindness in saving me!" If it hadn't been for Linley, he probably would have killed Valette, and would have forever been trapped here?"

"Know your limits." The effeminate-looking man let out a chuckle.

"Let's go." Linley said calmly.

"Valette, be careful. I won't be able to accompany you inside." Lache called out from outside.

"Right." Valette immediately bade his brother farewell, and then immediately followed Linley and the others as they truly entered the gray fog region.

Within the gray fog region, Linley's squad advanced very carefully, always paying attention to their surroundings. The sounds of constant battle and slaughter and angry shouts continued to ring out nonstop in their ears. Suddenly, Linley saw from the corner of his eyes a ray of black light shoot towards them.

"Swish!"

The black light was shooting towards the seemingly-weak Bebe.

"Crackle..." Wherever the black light passed, space itself split apart. This sight caused the violet-haired youth, Bloan, to be secretly amazed as well. Bebe just let out a loud laugh and went forward to welcome it. Bebe used his left hand to block and the dagger in his right hand to stab forward...

"Clang!" A ray of black light chopped down across Bebe's chest, but Bebe grabbed the enemy, ensnaring him while stabbing down into the enemy's head with the dagger in his right hand.

The person died. Even in death, he had a crazed, bloody look in his eyes...but then, his eyes dimmed and lost all life.

"Madman." The effeminate-looking man said in a low voice.

A madman who would ignore the attacks of the enemy if it meant being able to kill the enemy. These were the actions of a madman, but when Bebe did it, it was actually perfect...because Bebe didn't have even a hint of a scar on his body.

"Boss, what do you think?" Bebe delighted glanced at Linley.

"Let's hurry!" The violet-haired youth suddenly shouted explosively.

"Eh?" Bebe and Valette couldn't help but glance at him. Similarly, the look of puzzlement on Linley's face suddenly changed, because he could sense tremors coming from the surrounding areas. Clearly, quite a few people were making haste towards them. Linley didn't understand why these Highgods who had been trapped in illusions could be so sensitive and perceptive to their presence.

But...

They were attacking!

"Flee!"

No one knew how many Highgods had been trapped in the gray fog region over the years. Linley's group immediately fled, but what they didn't realize was that atop the leaf of a tree, a green snake was staring at them.

The green snake merged into the leaf, disappearing.

Book 18, Highgod – Chapter 23, A Strange Situation

Multiple blurs shot through the mountain forests of the gray fog region of the Abyssal Mountain.

"Halt." Linley growled.

Linley's squad of five realized that no one had been able to catch up to them. "Those Highgods trapped in illusions...why are they chasing after us like madmen?" Bebe said, rather discontented. That effeminate man snickered, "They ARE madmen!"

"They are trapped in illusions!" The violet-haired youth, Bloan, barked rather angrily.

"I called them madmen, not you. Why are you so upset?" The effeminate man said with some surprise.

The violet-haired youth just gave a cold snort.

"Stop arguing." Linley stared at the surroundings, then said in a low voice, "Regardless of whether they are madmen or just trapped in illusions, their souls are already abnormal thanks to the influence of this gray fog region. I didn't expect that as soon as a battle started, they would be drawn here. It seems...we have to move faster and quickly leave this gray fog region."

"No rush." The effeminate man laughed. "Perhaps this gray fog region will have Abyssal Fruit within it.”

Linley glanced sideways at him.

The Abyssal Fruit might be at any place within the Abyssal Mountain, but of course, the chances of it being within the violet fog region was the greatest, while the chances of it being in the white fog region was the smallest.

“If you want to remain here in the gray fog region, I won’t oppose it.” Linley said calmly. “Let’s head out!” Immediately, Linley and Bebe continued advancing. Valette and the violet-haired Bloan didn’t hesitate either, immediately following after Linley. As for the effeminate man, he frowned unhappily, but after glancing at the surroundings, he still followed as well.

On the way over, gray fog swirled as far as they could see.

Linley’s squad of five carefully advanced. If they sensed that battles were occurring ahead of them, they would take a roundabout path and maneuver past it. Linley’s group realized that in the Abyssal Mountain, if they tried to walk in a straight line according to their senses, it would actually be impossible to reach their destination. If, however, one just walked about randomly and made multiple attempts, one might succeed.

One step at a time.

Although it seemed as though they were advancing slowly, in truth, all of them were very fast.

“Whoosh!”

A fiery blur suddenly descended from the skies, and space itself instantly began to boil and froth. An unstoppable aura suddenly pressed down towards Linley; the fiery blur had chosen to throw itself directly at Linley, the leader. Linley's dark golden eyes swept towards the blur coldly, and from his body, an earthen yellow aura suddenly spread out, capturing the blur within it!

Blackstone Space – Repulsive Force!

At the same time, Linley swept out with his wrist. The completely translucent 'Mirage', with a slash, cut a large tear through the space above Linley, as easily as cutting through paper.

As for the figure which had been trapped within the Blackstone Space, his speed immediately lessened, and he was caught off-guard. Linley's sword slashed directly through his skull.

One sword. Two halves!

He died!

The violet-haired youth Bloan, the effeminate man, and Valette couldn't help but feel astonished. The aura of the ambushing attacker had caused even space to tremble violently; one could imagine how powerful the person was. But the attacker hadn't been able to withstand a single stance of Linley's!

"Let's hurry." Linley said calmly while accelerating! The others accelerated as well. After each battle within this gray fog region, they had to immediately leave the scene of the battle, as otherwise, in the blink of an eye, the crazed Highgods of the surrounding area would all immediately charge and attack.

"He really is powerful." The effeminate man looked at Linley, frowning. "Given his strength, if I follow him, even if I encounter the Abyssal Fruit...I won't be able to obtain it." Although it was safer following Linley, if they ended up fighting over the Abyssal Fruit, they wouldn't be able to overcome Linley. After all, even ordinary Seven Star Fiends who fell into the Blackstone Space would be slaughtered by Linley.

After having become a Highgod, Linley's power was now close to that of an ordinary Asura of the Infernal Realm.

"Whoosh!" Linley's group continued to advance. As soon as they sensed any spatial ripples, they would immediately change directions. This strategy resulted in them not encountering any more crazed Highgods for a time.

.....

With the mountain forests of the gray fog region of the Abyssal Mountain.

Beneath an enormous tree that would need five or six men holding hands to embrace its trunk, dozens of figures were seated in the meditative posture. These people had bloodshot eyes which held madness in them, but they didn't fight against each other. They were seated in different locations beneath the trees. When they looked at each other, they seemed like wild animals vigilantly watching other wild animals.

"Whoosh!"

Multiple blurs suddenly flashed past at high speed.

In almost an instant, those dozens of people silently seated in the meditative posture all looked over. And in that moment....the gazes of these people and of Linley's squad of five intersected.

"Eh?" Linley's squad of five was stunned.

The expressions on the faces of these dozens of figures became twisted, and they all shot out from the ground, flying forward as fast as lightning.

"Let's go!" Linley immediately bellowed.

It wasn't that he feared these people; rather, he was afraid that these people would slow them down, with the resulting battle attracting hundreds or thousands of crazed Highgods who would attack. That would be truly disastrous! To be able to survive here meant that these crazed Highgods were all powerful experts, most approaching at least the Six Star Fiend level of power.

"Haaa!" A violet-haired woman wildly brandished a scythe, chopping down with it. A circular arc of black light immediately sprang out towards Linley's group at high speed.

"Grrr!" A muscular, armored warrior also wildly struck out with his fist. When his fist punched out, round ripples of power sprang forth from his hand, piercing out in a straight line at high speed towards Linley's group.

In that instant, those dozens of figures had all launched their most powerful attacks. And, without question, these were all material attacks.

These varied, beautifully multicolor types of material attacks caused multiple cracks in space to appear. Other attacks were translucent or blurry...the attacks completely surrounded Linley's squad of five. No matter how fast they were in fleeing, they weren't faster than the speed of these attacks.

The dozens of attacks, because they were focused on a region rather than a person, were rather spread out. Thus, each person only had to face three attacks. In this group, Bebe naturally had it the easiest. He just casually used his fist to smash apart the oncoming attacks. As for Linley, by relying on his godspark weapon, he was also able to easily resist.

But the other three were in terrible shape.

"Flee!" The violet-haired youth just barely managed to block two attacks, with the third attack injuring his left arm. He bellowed while flying forward at high speed.

"Bastards!" The effeminate man let out a growl as a black blur flashed in his hands as he chopped apart a ray of black light that was attacking him.

The effeminate man's chest had been pierced through as well, but he still gritted his teeth and fled.

The worst off was poor Valette! Valette specialized in soul attacks, and clearly he found it rather difficult to defend against these material attacks. He was barely able to defend against the first one, but of the two successive attacks, one slashed past his lower body while the other slashed past his shoulder. Instantly, one of his legs was torn off and sent flying, while his right arm was severed as well.

But Valette continued to frantically fly forward at high speed.

"Faster." Linley barked, while at the same time setting up his Blackstone Space. Linley's squad of five advanced forward at high speed. As for tens of maddened Highgods, they continuously howled as they chased after the squad of five without resting, as though they were chasing after their most hated enemies.

Giant trees could be seen everywhere throughout the Abyssal Mountain. On the leaf of one large tree in particular, a green serpent suddenly appeared, staring at Linley's fleeing squad of five.

Moments later, Linley's group of five re-emerged in the space between the white fog region and the gray fog region. Clearly...the route they had taken was wrong, and they had not reached the violet fog region.

"We're back." Bebe said helplessly.

"It's fortunate that we made it out." Valette let out a sigh of relief. He hurriedly seized the opportunity to heal the wounds on his body. The violet-haired Bloan and the effeminate man also began to heal themselves. That wild flight had indeed caused them to be extremely nervous. If they had been surrounded by a second group of Highgods, it would have been disastrous.

Fortunately, as they fled frantically, they had quickly emerged from the gray fog region.

"Make your preparations. In a while, we will re-enter." Linley said.

"You can go in. I'll travel by myself." The effeminate man said with a calm laugh. "Thank you for your assistance, Mr. Linley...but I'm still more used to being by myself. In addition, a squad of five is too large a target and easily attracts more enemies."

"Eh?" The violet-haired Bloan and Valette both looked at him.

"As you wish." Linley said calmly.

Bebe glanced at him, snickering. "Oh, by yourself? As I see it, you want to find the Abyssal Fruit."

The effeminate man's facial muscles twitched, but he still said with a laugh, "Abyssal Fruit? That's completely a matter of luck. I can't find it just because I want to find it."

Bebe let out a snort, not saying anything further.

Moments later, Linley looked towards Valette and the violet-haired Bloan. Their wounds were already healed. Linley spoke out. "The two of you should be ready now. Then let's head out!" Valette and the violet-haired youth both followed Linley and Bebe, once more advancing into the gray fog region.

When Bebe entered the gray fog region, he even turned his head to glance at the effeminate looking man, chuckling disdainfully.

The effeminate man maintained his smile, watching the four leave.

"Hmph!" The effeminate man let out a cold snort. "Finding the Abyssal Fruit isn't just a matter of strength, but also luck. You are currently more powerful than me, but if I end up finding the Abyssal Fruit, my power will greatly improve. Once I acquire a Sovereign artifact...then at that time...!" The effeminate man became covered by a layer of swirling black energy, causing him to become very indistinct and blurred.

Like an illusion, the effeminate man silently slipped into the gray fog region.

Linley's group continued to advance carefully, not daring to move too quickly.

"So these maddened Highgods aren't always fighting. Sometimes, they will quietly hide somewhere." Linley vigilantly watched his surroundings. "These maddened Highgods are just like the magical beasts of the Yulan continent's Mountain Range of Magical Beasts, savage and ruthless."

As he moved through the Abyssal Mountain, Linley suddenly felt as though he were in his younger days, adventuring through the Mountain Range of Magical Beasts.

Only, back then, what he had to deal with were magical beasts. But now, what he faced was...a group of maddened Highgods! And the place he was at was the number one mountain of the Netherworld, the residence of a Sovereign...Abyssal Mountain!

"Look!" Bebe suddenly let out a low breath.

Linley's group immediately looked over. Right in front of them, a corpse was hovering there, caught by some branches. On this journey over, Linley's group had seen quite a few corpses. But...this corpse was of a familiar person. That effeminate man!

"Him?" Linley frowned, drawing closer.

The effeminate man's face was ashen, and there was a hole in his forehead.

"It was the green snakes!" Linley instantly deduced, and Bebe snickered, "This fellow always had an incredibly arrogant attitude about him. He thought he was so amazing, and wanted to go find the Abyssal Fruit for himself...hmpf, I didn't expect that he wouldn't even be able to deal with a single green snake!"

Linley secretly shook his head as well.

If he hadn't even been able to deal with a green snake by himself, why travel alone? He was perhaps too self-confident.

"Let's go. Be careful on the way." Linley continued to advance.

Valette and the violet-haired Bloan also gave the effeminate man's corpse a vigilant look as they, too, shook their heads inwardly. And then, they advanced as well.

But what Linley's group hadn't noticed was...

There was more than just a single hole on the effeminate man's body. His chest and thigh had them as well. Three holes in total! If they had noticed all three holes, Linley's group probably would have become even more vigilant.

"Boss, I feel as though something is off." Bebe sent mentally.

Linley's expression was solemn. "I have the same feeling. There're no sounds of slaughter in this region." After having become accustomed to the angry shouts of battle, now that everything was silent, it did indeed feel strange. As for the black-robed, violet-haired youth, Bloan, as well as Valette, they too looked around vigilantly as they continued to follow Linley in slowly advancing.

In the surrounding area...

On the green leaves of one large tree after another, one green snake after another was secretly staring at Linley's group. The number of green snakes was so high...that Linley's group would have gone numb in fear had he known. Unfortunately, Linley's group wasn't able to detect the presence of the green snakes in the slightest.

"Boss, a green snake!" Bebe suddenly sent mentally, his gaze staring towards an unremarkable tree in front of them. A green snake was stealthily staring at them from it. But when the green snake realized that Bebe was staring back at it, it instantly vanished, transforming into green energy which merged into the leaves of the tree and disappearing.

"It disappeared? It was able to merge into the leaves?" Linley couldn't help but feel astonished.

Linley had a sudden suspicion, and he instantly turned to look. His gaze flashed lightning-fast towards the leaves of the surrounding trees, and as he looked carefully, what he saw caused his face to change dramatically...

This single visual sweep turned up more than ten green snakes!

Book 18, Highgod – Chapter 24, Fortune? Misfortune?

“Hurry, let’s go!” Linley’s face was savage as he barked furiously.

The others, hearing Linley shout so frantically, didn’t dare to dawdle and see what was going on. All of them, like Linley, quickly fled, advancing forward.

“There were actually so many green snakes. What is going on?” While flying forward, Linley was frantically pondering this question. “In addition, when we entered the gray fog region originally, we didn’t see so much as a single green snake. But here, there’s so many! These green snakes....how are they able to merge into the green leaves without causing any energy ripples at all?”

When Deities used techniques such as Worldwalking or the Flamebody technique, they too would transform their bodies into energy. But these sorts of techniques would result in energy ripples. There was no way they would be like the green snakes, so silent and stealthy that those nearby wouldn’t be able to notice anything.

Linley felt that this was extremely bizarre!

But at this moment, he didn’t have any time to think carefully.

“It should be about time now. Those green snakes won’t be chasing after us.” Bebe sent back mentally. “Continue, faster.” Linley didn’t hesitate at all.

As Linley's group of four fled forwards, suddenly...

"Swoosh!" "Swoosh!" "Swoosh!"

In an instant, dozens of green blurs shot out into the sky. They seemed to be primarily coming from both the sides as well as from behind, with only a small number of green blurs coming from the front. The green snakes flew forward at an astonishing speed...they were like green arrows, instantly slashing through the skies. The number of them was too great!

The faces of everyone in Linley's group changed dramatically.

"Rumble..." The Blackstone Space suddenly expanded.

It expanded from a diameter of five meters to fifteen meters.

Every single green snake which entered this Blackstone Space slowed dramatically, but they still charged at Linley's group of four. The strange thing was...not a single one of these dozens of green snakes attacked Bebe. They all attacked Linley, Bloan, and Valette instead. Each person suffered an attack from nearly ten green snakes.

Linley's eyes turned cold. Instantly, with a 'crackle' sound, the space around him formed into an earthen wall.

"Crunch!" The green snakes easily pierced through the earthen wall.

Linley wielded Mirage in his hand, and it instantly transformed into a gust of wind, consecutively slicing countless times towards the green snakes like multiple sword blurs. After having battled the green snakes, Linley knew...that to kill them, he had to completely obliterate their heads. However, the green snakes were too agile, and their heads were too small. To kill them and crush their heads was very hard!

One green snake after another entered the Blackstone Space, and they too felt the tremendous impact of it.

"Crackle..." The countless rays of sword light were like a meat grinder, instantly crushing one serpent after another.

Within the Blackstone Space, the green snakes were 'slower', yes, but that was comparatively speaking. Their original speed was simply too astonishing...and within the space of less than ten meters, they still worked hard to dodge past Linley's sword blur. In an instant, of the nine green snakes attacking Linley, six of them had their heads smashed to a pulp, and they immediately fell to the ground.

As for the other three green snakes, although they were wounded, they still charged towards Linley.

"Swish!" Linley's draconic tail flashed out, smashing two of the green snakes into pulp.

The remaining green snake...just as it was about to bite Linley, it was smashed to death with one palm blow!

"The two of them..." Linley turned to look.

That violet-haired youth, 'Bloan', had actually been able to deal with the green snakes very easily, given how their speed had been dramatically lessened. The violet-haired youth had first relied on his devilish longsword to slaughter five of the green snakes, and then set up a field of lightning fog around his entire body.

Those green snakes had already been slowed down within the Blackstone Field. Once they entered the lightning fog field, they had been slowed yet again.

The violet youth naturally found it very easy to slaughter the remaining green snakes.

"Valette..." Linley frowned.

Valette was an expert who trained in the Edicts of Death, and he dispatched a few green snakes as well. But there was still a single green snake which broke through Valette's hand, tunneling into Valette's body.

"Is he alright?" Bebe and the violet-haired Bloan all looked as well.

Valette was still standing there, not moving at all.

Moments later...

"Everyone, I'm fine now. Let's continue." Valette laughed, but his face was somewhat ashen.

"The snake entered your body. What's it like?" Bebe asked.

Valette nodded and replied, "When the green snake entered my body, I immediately grew frantic and used both divine power and spiritual energy to simultaneously attack!" Linley laughed to himself; if the green snake had entered his body, he probably would have hastened to use the same methods.

"But who would have imagined...the green snake actually transformed into a ray of green energy and threw itself at extremely high speed towards my mind? Still...the green snake constantly weakened under my spiritual attacks. I had to go all out in order to just barely, completely obliterate all of that green energy!" Valette said with a hint of fear.

Linley nodded to himself.

"So these green snakes, when under spiritual attack, will constantly weaken!" Linley began to somewhat understand. The 'green energy' which formed the green snakes should be something akin to spiritual energy based constructs.

"Alright. Everyone, be even more careful!" Linley said. "I've done all I can to help out. Whether or not you'll be able to survive is up to you." Linley continuously maintained the Blackstone Space, and with it present... Bloan and Valette were under much less pressure as well.

Otherwise, the two would have died long ago in that earlier situation.

"Linley, thank you." Valette and Bloan both felt rather grateful. After all, Linley was absolutely capable of just discarding them.

"Let's continue." Linley said.

Shortly after Linley left, a brown-haired man slowly emerged from the ground, his gaze as cold as the deep sea. He carefully inspected the surrounding area.

"So many green snakes..." The muscular man's eyes slowly brightened. "It's been so many years. I've forgotten the very existence of time itself. But this day has finally come!" The muscular man was so excited that his body trembled. He then carefully inspected the surroundings, and then, as though he sensed energy ripples from up ahead, he hurriedly advanced forwards.

Linley's group never would have imagined that after having fought with such a large number of green snakes not too long ago, after having travelled for a short period of time, they actually suffered yet another attack from a large number of green snakes. In addition...the scale of the attack from the green snakes was clearly much greater than last time. There were more than a hundred green snakes.

And it was just the same as last time...

The green snakes didn't attack Bebe, only attacking Linley, Valette, and the violet-haired Bloan.

"Hiss..."

A large group of green snakes threw themselves towards Linley in mid-air, utterly crazed.

"Boss!" Bebe scurried over as well to help Linley.

"These snakes are insane!" Linley's godspark sword, 'Mirage', began to move. In an instant, Linley had created countless sword blurs, and those green snakes which were struck by Mirage were all crushed into pulp. Of the nearly fifty snakes, only a single one broke through Mirage's block.

And this one was captured by Bebe.

"Hey, Boss, why is it that your sword is so much faster than last time?" Bebe asked in astonishment.

Linley let out a calm laugh. "Because this time, I used the Elemental Laws of the Wind!"

Linley, too, had to sigh emotionally. All these years, because his insights in the Laws of the Earth surpassed his insights in the Elemental Laws of the Wind, Linley almost exclusively used the Laws of the Earth...it had become a matter of habit. But just now, when faced with so many green snakes, Linley finally came to his senses! Given how powerful his body was and how sharp his godspark weapon was, his attacks were more than strong enough to slaughter the green snakes.

If he used the Laws of the Earth, the only effect would be to make his attacks even stronger, to the point of causing space to tear apart!

But against these green snakes, his Dragonformed strength and Mirage was more than enough! Further strengthening his attacks would be a waste.

His swordplay with the Laws of the Earth was indeed powerful, but it didn't improve his speed much.

As for the Elemental Laws of the Wind...although each sword attack with Mirage wasn't improved in power, the speed of each attack was thousands of times greater. Even though there were many more green snakes this time, almost all of them were crushed into pulp.

"Only, my rate of improvement in the Elemental Laws of the Wind is too slow. It has been nearly two thousand years, but I've only been able to fuse the Profound Truths of Velocity with the Profound Mysteries of Spatial Wind just slightly." Linley sighed to himself. There were nine profound mysteries in the Elemental Laws of the Wind, and he had only managed to master the Profound Truths of Velocity back in the Yulan continent, when he merged the 'fast' and 'slow' profound mysteries together.

The Profound Truths of Velocity and the Profound Mysteries of Spatial Wind were somewhat close in nature, which was why Linley was just barely able to begin fusing them.

But he was still far off from completing fusing them.

“Still, against this sort of group attack, using the Elemental Laws of the Wind is already enough.” Linley let out a relieved sigh.

In terms of attacks, his attacks with Earth were clearly more powerful, but against this sort of group attack by green snakes, it clearly gave him some trouble.

Still, only someone like Linley was capable of using a method like this!

This was because each individual green snake had very strong defense as well. It was fairly hard to kill them. One had to have enough attack power! How could Bloan and Valette be like Linley, who could kill the green snakes just based on physical strength and the sharpness of his weapon?

“Those two...” Linley turned to look.

The violet-haired Bloan and Valette were still standing there.

“Valette died.” Bebe said with resignation.

In that dangerous situation, Linley had to completely focus on himself, and Bebe naturally helped Linley. Valette and Bloan had to rely on themselves.

“Whew!” Bloan opened his eyes, his forehead covered with cold sweat.

“Valette died?” The violet-haired youth, Bloan, was stunned.

"Right." Linley nodded.

Bloan looked at Linley, a complicated look on his face. "Linley, where should we go next? I keep on having the feeling that something is off. The first time, we were attacked by tens of snakes, and this time, by more than a hundred. I'm worried...that next time, there will be even more!"

Bloan had lost his confidence as well.

This was because just now, a green snake had entered his body. Luckily, Bloan's soul defense was very strong, and so he had just barely managed to extinguish it.

"Where should we go?" Linley looked at the surroundings.

The area was surrounded by fog, dwarf trees, and mixed bushes. Linley didn't know where to go either.

"Straight forward." A voice rang out.

Linley, Bebe, and Bloan immediately turned to look. A muscular, brown-haired man emerged from the ground. The brown-haired man glanced at Linley, whose aura and posture in Dragonform caused the muscular, brown-haired man to unconsciously frown slightly.

"Bloan!" The muscular man turned to look at Bloan, his face wreathed in smiles.

The violet-haired youth, Bloan, upon seeing this man was completely dazed.

"Big Brother..." Bloan called out in disbelief.

The muscular man immediately laughed.

"You...you are still alive, Big Brother?" Bloan's formerly cold face was now filled with excitement, and even his tears began to fall uncontrollably. Bloan would never forget...those days he had spent by his elder brother's side as they had roamed the Netherworld. When the two of them had been together, he had relied on his elder brother!

He had never feared anything, because his elder brother had been with him!

But on the very day he became a Highgod, his elder brother had gone to the Abyssal Mountain! But then...countless hundreds of millions of years had passed. Bloan couldn't even be sure as to how much time had gone by. He had thought his elder brother had died long ago, but...

"Haha."" The muscular man laughed and immediately walked over, embracing Bloan.

The icy, cold Bloan seemed to have become a child. He tightly clutched the muscular man. "Big Brother, you didn't die. This is wonderful, wonderful!"

"Big Brother, let me make the introductions. These two came from the Infernal Realm. He is Linley, while this other one is Bebe. I was only able to just barely stay alive here in this gray fog region thanks to Mr. Linley." Bloan said.

The muscular man gaze Linley an astonished glance, then said, "Mr. Linley, my name is Bailey [Ba'le'lei]. Thank you for looking after my little brother."

Linley nodded.

"Bloan, follow me." Bailey grabbed Bloan, wanting to move forward.

"Big Brother?" Bloan just looked at him, puzzled.

Bailey glanced at Linley, then laughed straightforwardly. "It can be said that you showed kindness to my little brother, so I'll tell you...normally, there's no way so many green snakes would appear within the gray fog region. Countless years ago, when I first arrived here, I encountered the very same situation. That time...the Abyssal Fruit appeared within the gray fog region. However, that time, someone else acquired it. Based on my predictions, most likely, the reason there are so many green snakes is because the Abyssal Fruit is about to appear once again. You showed kindness to my little brother, so I'll give you this chance. The Abyssal Fruit will belong to whoever acquires it!"

"The reason the snakes are attacking you is because you are headed the right way. If my predictions are correct, a thousand meters or so up ahead is where the Abyssal Fruit lies!" Bailey said.

Bloan was stunned.

"Big Brother..." He wasn't surprised at the presence of the Abyssal Fruit; rather, he was puzzled at why his big brother would actually tell this secret to Linley and Bebe.

"Let's go. It can be considered that we've repaid your debt." Bailey immediately strode forward. "However, if you encounter the Abyssal Fruit, that can be said to be both a stroke of fortune as well as misfortune. If you want to acquire the Abyssal Fruit...you need to be prepared to lose your life."

Linley gave Bailey's retreating back a curious glance.

"Bebe, should we go?" Linley laughed calmly. Originally, Linley hadn't planned to go after the Abyssal Fruit, as the chance was too low, but...it had now appeared.

"Of course we have to go take a look." Bebe laughed.

Linley and Bebe, not hesitating at all, hurried forward.

Book 18, Highgod – Chapter 25, The Abyssal Fruit Appears

Bailey and his brother, Linley and his brother; the two groups walked in a line, striding forward. However, the four of them didn't advance at too high a speed, and on the way over, they continued to vigilantly watch the surrounding areas.

"Boss, tell me, what do you think that power-increasing Abyssal Fruit looks like?" Bebe's eyes were filled with curiosity as he sent mentally.

Linley looked at the surroundings as well. "Abyssal Fruit...Abyssal Fruit... it might look like an ordinary fruit. Hmm...something feels weird!" Linley sniffed the air, and as he did, he felt a very unusual odor waft by, entering his body. His mind instantly grew clear, and the bewildering effects of the fog, which had always been present, dissolved away greatly as well.

"Boss, the gray fog is much fainter up ahead." Bebe said hurriedly.

Linley had a thought. "It seems we are almost there. Let's go!"

He strode forward hurriedly, and Bailey and his brother did the same. Linley advanced by roughly another hundred or so meters, then discovered that the fog had completely dissipated. "What sort of tree is that?" Linley stared towards the center of the empty area up ahead, and saw that an extremely large and flourishing dwarf tree was present.

The main trunk of the dwarf tree was large enough to need two people holding hands to wrap their arms around it, and was less than thirty meters tall.

However, the tree had ten million branches, each of which was at least one or two hundred meters long. These extremely long branches also had many more twigs extending from them. This resulted...in this single large dwarf tree to take up an area with a diameter of hundreds of meters.

"Boss, look, what's that?" Bebe called out in surprise.

Linley's pupils contracted.

At the crown of that dwarf tree, on a particularly large branch, within the leaves, there was a fruit that was slightly larger than the size of a fist. This fruit was almost completely spherical, with a violet skin that was crystalline and translucent, swirling with brilliant light, dazzling to behold. At the same time, it continued to faintly emanate that hazy fog.

"What a refreshing feeling." Linley took a deep breath, and his mind felt all the clearer, and his soul felt very comfortable as well. "This...? Is this the Abyssal Fruit?"

Linley couldn't help but glance at the nearby Bailey and his brother. Bailey's eyes were shining as he stared at the Abyssal Fruit, but he didn't charge forward. Instead, he said in a clear voice, "Linley, that's the Abyssal Fruit! However, I must warn you, Abyssal Fruit isn't so easily harvested. The Spirit Snake which guards the Abyssal Fruit has yet to appear."

Having already undergone the Abyssal Fruit harvesting process countless years ago, Bailey clearly knew how dangerous it was.

Linley knew as well...

That although it looked as though the Abyssal Fruit was simply placed there, if he were to rashly charge forward, he would undoubtedly suffer for it.

"Boss, I'll go." Bebe very confidently prepared to charge forward.

"Bebe, don't be rash." Linley barked.

"Eh?" Bebe looked towards him.

"Just watch for now." Linley stared appraisingly at his surroundings. Suddenly...

"Rustle..." The green leaves on the branches of the tree with the Abyssal Fruit, as though stirred by the wind, began to tremble. That sound instantly disrupted the surrounding, quiet calm. At the same time, the leaves which were spread out over that space of hundreds of meters all began to glow with a green energy. And slowly...

One green snake after another, each the size of a palm, began to form atop the green leaves.

"So many!" Bebe sucked in a breath of cold air.

Although he didn't fear the green snakes, upon seeing so many of them, he still felt his scalp crawl. Linley couldn't help but narrow his eyes; with but a single sweep, he saw thousands on thousands of green snakes. The countless green snakes were visible on virtually every single part of the tree.

"And that's just the opening course." Bailey said coldly.

"Spirit Snake, you might as well come out." Bailey's voice rang out. "What, do you want me to come over for you to ambush?"

Linley and Bebe were stunned.

Spirit Snake? Could it be that these green snakes weren't the Spirit Snake?

"Haha, I didn't expect that you would be aware of my existence!" A clear, evil sound rang out from amidst the branches. "This is absolutely too intriguing. I wanted to play with you a bit more first. For me to reveal myself now...spoils the surprise." As the voice continued to ring out, it slowly began to reveal its true form atop the Abyssal Fruit tree!

Linley, Bebe, and Bloan couldn't help but feel startled.

A large green snake that was nearly ten meters long and as thick as an arm suddenly, slowly emerged from a branch of the tree. This large snake coiled around the tree trunk, its head raised and its cold, insidious eyes flashing with a violet, serpentine light as it stared at the distant Linley, Bailey, and the other two.

The serpent's violet gaze seemed to stab at them!

Linley and Bebe couldn't help but narrow their eyes, not willing to stare directly into the green snake's gaze.

"Linley, what we need to do is...while being attacked by countless green snakes, and also being blocked by the Spirit Snake, acquire the Abyssal Fruit." Bailey said calmly. "Let me warn you of one thing; the Spirit Snake is capable of controlling the Abyssal Fruit Tree to attack and constrict you! Alright...whoever gets the Abyssal Fruit is whoever it will belong to."

After speaking, Bailey's entire body slowly began to emanate an earthen yellow aura.

"Divine earth power?" Linley frowned.

Bebe excitedly licked his lips. "Boss, watch me get that Abyssal Fruit! I have no fear of those little green snakes. The Abyssal Fruit...will definitely be mine!" That godspark dagger appeared in Bebe's hands, and he gave Bailey a careful look as well.

Bailey was clearly building up his power...

"Haaaargh!"

With a sudden, explosive shout, the earthen yellow aura on Bailey's body suddenly coalesced around his right leg. Bailey lifted up his right leg, and then smashed down in a vicious, straight line towards the ground. "BOOM!" The entire earth roared with a terrifying explosive sound as an earthen yellow light emanated outwards from his feet through the earth.

The strange thing was...

The ground beneath Bailey's feet wasn't damaged at all.

"An explosive burst of the Throbbing Pulse of the World?" Linley could guess at what profound mysteries were contained within this attack, but for now, Linley himself wasn't capable of it. Linley immediately looked towards the tree.

"Bang!" "Bang!" "Bang!" "Bang!"

In the ground beneath the giant tree, one explosive rumbling sound after another rang out, and a large hole appeared in the rocky mountain terrain as shattered rocks flew everywhere. The smaller branches of the Abyssal Fruit Tree were also smashed and flattened and sent flying, as many green serpents hurriedly dodged as well.

Even the main trunk of the Abyssal Tree trembled, but the main trunk and the larger branches weren't damaged much. Clearly, they were very sturdy; only the smaller branches and leaves were damaged.

Chaos!

The shattered small branches and many leaves were flying everywhere, causing the Abyssal Fruit Tree to turn into a picture of chaos.

"Let's go!" Linley's eyes lit up, and he shot forward like an arrow from a bow.

"This is the moment!" Bebe simultaneously charged out as well.

But Bailey had reacted slightly faster than even Bebe and Linley. He charged forward at high speed, his body once more beginning to emanate with that earthen yellow aura which was constantly emanating ripples. Bailey's gaze was firm, and in his hands, a pitch-black warblade appeared.

"Haha..." An evil laugh rang out from the tree.

Instantly...

"Swish!" "Swish!" "Swish!" "Swish!"

Countless green snakes rained down from the green leaves of the tree like raindrops in a storm. The countless green snakes simultaneously attacked Linley, Bebe, and Bailey. As for the violet-haired youth, Bloan, he stood far away and didn't charge forward.

Linley, seeing so many green snakes fill the skies and charge towards him, was forced to go all out as well.

An earthen yellow light suddenly emanated from Linley's body as well, instantly encapsulating both himself and Bebe and forming into a hemisphere that was fifteen meters across in diameter. When those green snakes, moving like arrows, fell into the Blackstone Space, their speed suddenly dropped and they became much slower.

Under the command of the Spirit Snake, these green snakes were aware of the repulsive power of the Blackstone Space.

But if they didn't enter the Blackstone Space, they wouldn't be able to harm Linley at all. Thus, they had no choice but to charge in.

"Haha, come bite me, all of you come bite me." Bebe bellowed loudly as he charged in front of Linley, where a large number of green snakes were gathered and charging. At the same time, Bebe's body transformed into dozens of figures, and with banging sounds, his dagger began stabbing into the bodies of the snakes, while his palm began to crush their bodies...these sounds rang out unabated!

With Bebe up in front, the pressure on Linley was greatly reduced.

The dispersed green snakes began to cluster around them from all sides. Linley calmly began to brandish about Mirage, filling it with wind-type elemental essence and causing it to transform into countless sword blurs, filling the surrounding space. The drifting, agile movements of the sword blurs were so fast as to seem devilish, and even space itself seemed to constrict and tighten around those green snakes.

"Hiss...."

The green snakes, their speed greatly lessened within the Blackstone Space, when faced with Mirage...a dense cluster of sounds could be heard as one snake after another was instantly ground apart by those countless sword blurs and transformed into pulp. Last time, Linley didn't have experience, but this time, Linley was prepared in advance, and so his execution of this technique became all the more relaxed.

The vast majority of the thousand-plus tightly clustered snakes which flew towards Linley were all struck.

However, there were still three which were only slightly wounded and thus fearlessly charged towards Linley, wanting to bite him.

"Hmph." Linley just instantly changed the direction of the gravity.

Blackstone Space...the gravity suddenly changed to go downwards!

The sudden change in the direction of the gravity caused the three green snakes to be caught off-guard and sink downwards, not able to bite Linley at all.

"Swish!" "Swish!" "Swish!" Those three fast sword blows cleaved down upon the green snakes which had sank down to the ground, instantly killing them.

Sometimes, suddenly changing the direction of gravity was an extremely effective tactic.

"That Bailey..." Linley glanced at him out of the corner of his eyes, and couldn't help but feel startled. The layer of earthen yellow light on Bailey's body was constantly trembling. When the many green snakes attacked, Bailey just let them strike at him, but as soon as they entered the range of that earthen yellow light, their bodies would begin to tremble and then, moments later, with a 'bang' completely crumble into pulp.

"The Throbbing Pulse of the World, the never-stopping 'Vitality', as well as the Essence of the Earth." With a single glance, Linley realized which three Profound Mysteries were being used by Bailey.

Different fusions of profound mysteries had different results.

What Linley didn't know was that this was the best technique Bailey had come up with, after countless years of painstaking pondering, for dealing with these green snakes. He had spent nearly a hundred million years coming up with this technique. But in terms of flying speed...Bebe, who didn't have to pay the green snakes any mind at all, was a bit faster than even Bailey. Bebe moved like lightning, scurrying to the side of the tree trunk.

"Haha, the Abyssal Fruit is mine!" Bebe called out jubilantly as he snatched towards the Abyssal Fruit.

"Hiss..." A strange sound entered Bebe's mind, and Bebe couldn't help but feel his head grow dizzy.

Suddenly, the giant head of the large green snake suddenly emerged from next to Bebe. It opened its mouth wide and bit downwards towards Bebe. The emergence of this snake head happened as fast as lightning, and Bebe, his head dizzy, wasn't able to react in time. The giant green snake landed a vicious bite against his head, and the giant green snake bit down with full force...

"CRUNCH!"

"Bebe!" Linley was shocked.

"F*ck off!" Bebe bellowed, furiously shaking it off and escaping from that giant maw.

But that giant green snake stared towards Bebe in shock. A black, illusory object fell out from within the mouth of the giant green snake. Linley glanced at it...and saw that, amazingly enough, it was a shattered poisonous fang!

"When the green snake bit Bebe, it broke its tooth?" Linley couldn't help but feel speechless.

While the giant green snake was dealing with Bebe, Bailey scurried towards the Abyssal Fruit Tree. But just as Bailey was about to seize the Abyssal Fruit...

"Swoosh!"

The Abyssal Fruit Tree violently twisted, flashing past and dodging Bailey's snatch while many branches suddenly swept towards Bailey, clutching at him like countless arms.

Bailey's face couldn't help but change.

"Big Brother!" The violet-haired Bloan, watching this from afar, couldn't help but feel shocked. Bailey instantly roared angrily, using full force with the pitch-black warblade in his hands. Instantly, a booming sound rang out, and spatial ripples and cracks were given birth to as the warblade chopped towards the surrounding, encircling tree branches.

Right at this moment...

"Swoosh!" Linley also charged towards the Abyssal Fruit.

"Bastard." Bebe, bellowing, charged forward once more as well.

"Raaaaaaawr!" The giant green snake angrily opened its maw, emitting a thick black fog towards Linley and Bebe, and the poisonous black fog instantly trapped Linley and Bebe once more within it.

Book 18, Highgod – Chapter 26, Choice

The black fog instantly invaded Linley's sea of consciousness, and even began to invade and corrode the repaired part of the 'flaw'. The level of the current repair work was something which Linley had accomplished after spending nearly two hundred years after becoming a Highgod. If it was broken, then the efforts of two centuries would have all been for naught!

"Hmph." Linley's spiritual energy instantly surged out in waves against the black mist.

His spiritual energy, glowing with that azure light, moved as fast as lightning, constantly clashing against the poisonous black fog and extinguishing it.

"Boss, this big snake is rather tough to deal with." Bebe sent mentally.

"Raaaaaaaaaaaaaawr!" The large green snake's tail swung about angrily, transforming into multiple blurs which struck towards Linley and Bebe.

Linley's gaze turned cold.

"Swish!" Linley's draconic tail swung out viciously as well, intersecting with the snake's tail. With a 'whap!' sound, Linley couldn't help but be knocked back by a few dozen meters, while the giant green snake once more coiled itself around a branch of the Abyssal Fruit Tree.

"This large snake's skin really is tough." Linley was secretly surprised.
"And quite slippery!"

"Hmph." After Linley was sent flying backwards, Bebe charged straight towards the Abyssal Fruit. The giant green snake naturally struck out with its tail again, which twirled about like a tornado, causing the nearby space to twist and distort as it lashed out towards Bebe. Bebe just gave a sinister grin, and the godspark dagger suddenly appeared in his hands. He gave the oncoming serpentine tail a vicious swipe!

"Slash!"

The dagger, when meeting the serpentine skin, couldn't help but slip aside. It only left behind a fairly deep white impression, and only managed to crack three of the thin scales.

"Hey?" Bebe was surprised, and at the same time he also sent mentally, "Boss, this big snake's body is much stronger than those of the little green snakes, and it is also quite slippery. Not even my godspark weapon was able to break through it at one blow! Right, Boss...you hurry up and get the Abyssal Fruit, and let me tie down this big snake! He's not able to do anything to me!"

"Punk, I'm going to make you die!"

The giant green snake, seeing that three of its serpentine scales had been cracked, was instantly enraged. Bellowing, it once more coiled towards Bebe. Its venomous fangs were sharp, but they weren't that tough; in terms of toughness, its skin was the toughest. Over the course of countless years...nobody had ever been able to leave behind any wounds on its body.

"Swoosh." Linley was very confident in Bebe, and so he charged straight for the Abyssal Fruit.

"Rumble..."

Bebe was surprised. As soon as the giant green snake touched Bebe, it instantly began to wrap around and constrict Bebe, as though wanting to crush him to death. "Hey, you are pretty strong. But if you want to crush me to death with this bit of strength...keep dreaming." Bebe raised his head proudly, staring directly at the giant green snake's head, not afraid at all.

The giant green snake was exerting pressure with every part of its body as it sought to crush Bebe to death.

Constriction was one of its innate talents. It was very easy for it to rely on its body to constrict Highgods to death. Even Highgod artifacts, when gripped and ground down upon by its body, would begin to twist and distort. But today, it discovered...that the youth it was currently constricting was like an incomparably tough and resilient chunk of metal.

"Hey, use more strength." Bebe chortled. Bebe was happy to be keeping the giant green snake occupied, and he also paid attention to Linley's situation..

"Eh?" Bebe was suddenly startled.

When Linley drew near the Abyssal Fruit, many soft, willow-like branches suddenly coiled towards Linley. Irritated, Linley lashed out with Mirage, filling it with divine earth power and raising its attack power to the limit. With a gentle sound, tears in space began to appear.

"Slash!" Mirage chopped down upon one of the branches.

This branch was as thick as a person's thighs, but when Linley's Mirage godspark sword chopped down, it was only able to cut to the center of the branch and no further. "Eh?" Linley suddenly had the feeling...that when the branch of the Abyssal Fruit Tree and Mirage collided, a surge of powerful, rippling force was transmitted through.

It was attacking his mind!

"Rumble..." Linley's mind couldn't help but go momentarily dizzy, but he was still able to endure the attack. At this moment, many other branches swung towards him as well.

"Retreat!" Linley hurriedly pulled his sword out, retreating at high speed!

At the same time, an earthen yellow aura emerged from his body, immediately forming into his Blackstone Space. The powerful repulsive force immediately activated against those branches. Although the branches now moved much more slowly, they still came wrapping around towards him from every direction. Linley could only choose to run even farther away.

Linley was in a tough situation, but it wasn't easy for Bailey either. He, too, was unable to do anything against the Abyssal Fruit Tree.

"Bailey, you said the Spirit Snake controls the Abyssal Fruit Tree? Then how is it that the tree is capable of using spiritual attacks?" Linley couldn't help but bark. He had already retreated a hundred meters, while Bailey had also retreated to a distance of a hundred meters. Shaking his head, Bailey replied, "Back then, when I first encountered the Abyssal Fruit Tree...there were simply too many green snakes, so I couldn't draw near at all. I didn't know the Abyssal Fruit Tree was capable of spiritual attacks. Now, it seems, the Abyssal Fruit Tree itself possesses sentience!"

Linley suddenly realized...

What the 'tree' and 'snake' the red-haired beauty was referring to.

"The 'snake' should be this sort of large snake, while the 'tree' should be this Abyssal Fruit Tree." Linley was now aware of the power of this Abyssal Fruit Tree. A single branch...was actually able to endure his full-force sword blow. Despite using a godspark sword, he was only able to chop to the center of the branch.

"Eh? It already repaired the damage?" Linley discovered to his surprise that the damage he had done by chopping down against the branch was already repaired.

"This Abyssal Fruit Tree is just like normal Deities; its body can easily repair itself when damaged." Linley felt a headache oncoming.

"Haha...nothing left? Then it's my turn!" Bebe's voice suddenly rang out.

Linley couldn't help but to turn and look...

Bebe was currently still being constricted by the giant green snake, which seemed to want to crush Bebe. But suddenly...

"SHKREEEEEEEEEEEE!"

With an ear-piercing, savage sound ringing out, Bebe opened his mouth, while at the same time, around his body an enormous illusion of a Godeater Rat appeared, which stared coldly at the giant green snake.

The giant green snake was stunned. It couldn't help but have a bad feeling!

A cold look flashed through Bebe's eyes.

"Aaaaaah!" A miserable scream rang out, and from the head of the giant green snake, a black divine spark flew out, entering Bebe's mouth. As for the giant green snake, it fell down lifelessly, dead!

Innate divine ability – Godeater!

In the same instant of the giant green snake's death, the surviving little green snakes which had remained on the leaves of the Abyssal Fruit Tree all transformed into green energy, then disappeared from the world. They, too, had died!

"Oh?" Linley suddenly understood.

Those little green snakes should have been a part of the giant green snake. Or perhaps their lives were linked to the giant green snake's soul. Now that the Spirit Snake was dead, the little snakes perished as well.

"How dare you be arrogant in front of me!" Bebe snorted.

The distant Bailey and Bloan both stared towards Bebe in disbelief. Just now, they had both seen Bebe use the 'Godeater' divine ability. This innate divine ability didn't belong to any sort of Law or Edict. It surpassed them, and once it was used...Bailey and Bloan were completely stunned.

In the face of this technique, what could they do against it?

This technique acted directly against one's divine spark. Most likely, even if you had incredibly deep understandings of the Laws, you still wouldn't have any chance to use your techniques!

"The Abyssal Fruit is mine!" Bebe once more charged towards the Abyssal Fruit Tree.

"Rustle, rustle..." The Abyssal Fruit Tree seemed to have gone mad, and many of its branches began to swing about, encircling and wrapping towards Bebe. Linley, seeing the situation, activated his Blackstone Space with a thought, instantly spreading it out to a circumference of hundreds of meters.

Gravity, downwards!

Those branches couldn't help but drop downwards, but they all strove to rise up and go snatch Bebe.

"Swish." Linley charged forward as well.

"Swoosh." Bailey didn't hesitate either, hurriedly seizing the chance to charge forward.

The Abyssal Fruit Tree's movements were indeed now much slower, and it found it hard to catch Bebe and Linley, but...the tree branches didn't try to seize Linley. Many of the branches actually easily began to twist and distort, completely wrapping up the Abyssal Fruit.

Linley, Bebe, and Bailey were stupefied.

Now that the Abyssal Fruit was wrapped up in branches, how would they acquire it?

"Last time, the Abyssal Fruit Tree just casually blocked for a time. It wasn't as savage as this!" Bailey said uncomprehendingly.

Linley and Bebe floated in the air, staring at the Abyssal Fruit Tree.

"Boss, what should we do?" Bebe asked.

"This is rather tricky." Linley frowned, and then immediately launched Mirage against the Abyssal Fruit Tree. Mirage was already translucent, and as the sword ripples lashed out, one tear in space after another appeared. Mirage struck at the trunks multiple times, but each sword blow found it hard to break through.

Hundreds of consecutive blows! But after each blow, the branches immediately healed.

"Whoosh!"

Suddenly, many branches exploded forward, attacking the nearby Linley.

Linley's face changed, and the direction of his Blackstone Space suddenly changed to be...repulsive!

The branches couldn't help but slow down, and Linley flew back, retreating.

"Bebe, these branches are simply too tough, and there are too many of them. As soon as I launch one blow with my sword, the branch has already healed the damage before my second blow arrives. And it is also capable of a powerful soul attack. I'm not afraid of a blow from a single branch, but if hundreds of them strike me with the great power they possess...or if they constrict me, it'll be even tougher to deal with than the constriction of that giant green snake." Linley sent mentally.

"Looks like there's only one option." Bebe flew forwards.

Suddenly...

The illusion of a Godeater Rat that was tens of meters tall appeared before Bebe. That powerful aura caused Bloan and Bailey to both feel shock in their hearts, and a unique energy was applied to the Abyssal Fruit Tree.

"Yet again. After using it this second time, Bebe will need some rest." Linley couldn't help but say to himself.

Linley was very confident in Bebe, but the result caused Linley to feel astonished. "How is that possible?" No divine spark flew out from the Abyssal Fruit Tree, and it wasn't damaged at all. As for Bebe, he landed back on the ground, looking puzzled. "Boss, I...I can't sense its divine spark!"

"Can't sense it?" Linley was stunned.

"This Abyssal Fruit Tree has no divine spark." Bebe was completely certain.

"If that's the case, then this will be troublesome. This Abyssal Fruit Tree...no wonder it is capable of nurturing and creating a holy object such as the Abyssal Fruit. It is indeed hard to deal with." Linley frowned. "But from what Bailey said, last time the Abyssal Fruit appeared, the Abyssal Fruit Tree didn't prove to be such an obstacle. It just went through the motions of defending before allowing someone to harvest the fruit. Why is it that this time...?"

Right at this moment...

"Swoosh!" Bailey transformed into a blur, once more charging towards the Abyssal Fruit Tree. Linley and Bebe were in no rush, allowing Bailey to go make the attempt.

"There's no way he'll be able to deal with the Abyssal Fruit Tree." Linley said to himself.

He didn't believe that Bailey had any hope!

"Whoosh!" Those protective branches surrounding the Abyssal Fruit suddenly opened up, while at the same time reached out towards Bailey in an embrace...and Bailey suddenly struck hard against a nearby branch, relying on the counter-force to propel himself forward towards the Abyssal Fruit. As for those surrounding branches, their speed seemed to have been lowered significantly...

Bailey managed to just barely escape the embrace of those branches, and immediately plucked the translucent, crystalline Abyssal Fruit.

"It is mine!" Bailey was wildly overjoyed.

At the same time, without hesitating at all, Bailey chomped down, swallowing it into his stomach in a matter of seconds.

Linley and Bebe seemed to have been thunderstruck.

"What's going on?" Bebe didn't dare to believe it.

"Why didn't the Abyssal Fruit Tree try to block it?" Linley couldn't understand it either. Given how many branches the Abyssal Fruit Tree had, it was completely capable of blocking Bailey. Even if it didn't block him...it could do the same thing it had done to Linley and Bebe, just wrap up the Abyssal Fruit Tree. Bailey naturally wouldn't be able to acquire it.

But...

The Abyssal Fruit Tree had voluntarily opened its branches, just blocking him slightly.

"It seems as though the Abyssal Fruit Tree was partial towards Bailey." Linley said, not understanding.

"Rustle..." Suddenly, the entire Abyssal Fruit Tree began to tremble. The main trunk of the Abyssal Fruit Tree sank downwards into the ground, and then its many branches sank into the ground as well. It also pulled the corpse of the giant green snake into the ground. In but the amount of time necessary for a few breaths, the Abyssal Fruit Tree had completely gone undergone.

The Abyssal Fruit Tree had departed!

"Haha..." Sudden, excited laughter rang out. Bailey once more opened his eyes.

"Eh?" Linley had the feeling as though Bailey's very aura had changed.

"Thank you, you two." Bailey looked towards Linley and Bebe, while Bloan excitedly ran over as well. "Big Brother, you succeeded?" Bloan knew exactly how much suffering his elder brother had endured for the sake of this Abyssal Fruit. The first time he entered the Abyssal Mountain, although he had seen it, he hadn't acquired it.

And then, he had waited resolutely while training, preparing for the next time.

Countless years of loneliness. He had successfully endured and also succeeded.

"Gentlemen, last time, the Abyssal Fruit Tree just did some cursory blocks as well. This time, it clearly acted with intent against you two." Bailey laughed as he looked at Linley and Bebe. "I think...it should be because Bebe killed that Spirit Snake!"

"Spirit Snake?" Linley and Bebe both felt shock in their hearts.

"This Spirit Snake and the Abyssal Fruit Tree were always together. After countless years, they definitely must have formed an extremely strong emotional bond. Tell me...how could the Abyssal Fruit Tree possibly be willing to give you the Abyssal Fruit which it nurtured?" Bailey said, laughing.

Book 18, Highgod – Chapter 27, Sovereign's Emissary

Because they had killed the Spirit Snake, the Abyssal Fruit Tree felt enmity towards them?

Linley and Bebe couldn't help but look at each other, not knowing what to say.

"Haha." Bailey laughed as he spoke. "But of course, that's just my deduction! Otherwise, I have no other explanation for why the Abyssal Fruit Tree would act in such a manner towards you two, while differently towards me. But no matter what...this matter is at an end, and I need to thank both of you for me being able to acquire the Abyssal Fruit."

Linley laughed calmly.

Linley still felt a hint of goodwill towards Bailey. No matter what, Bailey had at least informed him of the appearance of the Abyssal Fruit. If Bailey didn't want for Linley to know...he didn't have to tell Linley at all. In addition, Bailey had toiled for countless millions of years for the sake of this Abyssal Fruit.

Such perseverance made him worthy of acquiring this most precious of treasures, the Abyssal Fruit.

"Wasn't it said that after acquiring the Abyssal Fruit, one would be received by the Sovereign and become a Sovereign's Emissary?" Bebe muttered. "So where's the Sovereign?"

Linley's eyes lit up, and he hurriedly swept the surrounding area with his gaze.

If the Sovereign appeared, his goal would be accomplished.

"Whooooosh."

Because of the departure of the Abyssal Fruit Tree, the gray fog once more filled this region. Suddenly, not too far away, a humanoid figure suddenly appeared, causing Linley and Bebe's eyes to light up. ""Could it be that the Sovereign has come??" Linley and Bebe were both very eager.

In but an instant, that figure appeared before them.

The person was very skinny but very tall, and he had a head of unbound, long silver hair. His eyes swept past Linley's group like the eyes of a hawk, finally halting on Bailey's body. Laughing calmly, he said, "Bailey, congratulations on acquiring the Abyssal Fruit! Come with me now to the Sovereign's palace and await the Sovereign's summons."

"It's you!" A look of astonishment appeared on Bailey's face. "Arthurs [A'se'si]!"

"Right."

The silver-haired man laughed calmly. "It's been so many years, but you still remember me. You've remained at the Abyssal Mountain all these years. I know all these things. I, too, was surprised...that you actually managed to endure all these years of loneliness and the countless years of waiting. I have to say, I admire you!"

Bailey began to laugh loudly. "That year, when we entered the Abyssal Mountain together, I swore an oath as we entered! That I, Bailey, would either die in the Abyssal Mountain or emerge as the Sovereign's Emissary!"

Linley and Bebe now completely understood.

So this person wasn't a Sovereign; rather, it was the person who had acquired the Abyssal Fruit on Bailey's first trip to the Abyssal Mountain.

"So this person is a Sovereign's Emissary!" Linley had a thought. "Since he lives at the Abyssal Mountain, his relationship to the Sovereign should be fairly close. Perhaps through him..."

The goal of Linley's trip to Abyssal Mountain was to meet the Sovereign.

"Big Brother, congratulations." The violet-haired youth, Bloan said with whole-hearted sincerity.

Bailey beamed towards his little brother as well.

"Bailey, let's go. Come with me to the Sovereign's palace." Arthurs urged.

"Arthurs." Bailey said. "How about this. Let me send my little brother out of the gray fog region, and then I'll accompany you."

"No rush." Arthurs laughed calmly. "Come with me, and bring your little brother as well. He can first wait at the border region between the gray fog region and the violet fog region. He'll just wait there a day or so. After you see the Sovereign and have the arrangements made for you, you can send your little brother away at that point. Your little brother is in no particular rush, right?"

"Big Brother, it's just a day." Bloan said very excitedly. "The next time we meet, you'll be a Sovereign's Emissary."

"Actually, the power your big brother now wields after having eaten the Abyssal Fruit is already comparable to that of ordinary Sovereign's Emissaries." Arthurs said calmly. "However, the reason why your big brother is so powerful is because of the Abyssal Fruit. After having acquired the Abyssal Fruit, he has already, naturally become the Emissary of the Netherworld Sovereign."

Bailey laughed and nodded. "Then Arthurs, let's go."

"Wait a moment." Only now did Linley speak.

"Eh?" Arthurs and Bailey both looked over, and Bailey hurriedly introduced, "Arthurs, this is Linley, who came alongside me. The two of them are reputedly from the Infernal Realm, and also exceedingly powerful."

"The two of them, even without Abyssal Fruit, are already quite powerful." Arthurs had a calm look on his face, and he said unhurriedly, "I know exactly what happened in that grand battle. Linley, you are an expert of the Four Divine Beasts clan, and yet you came to the Netherworld for this Abyssal Fruit? I rather don't believe it. What other business do you have?" Linley's Dragonformed appearance already caused quite a few experts to easily guess his status.

Linley's heart clenched.

This Arthurs seemed to have a rather poor attitude towards him.

"Mr. Arthurs." Linley said hurriedly. "It is indeed true that the purpose of my visit to the Abyssal Mountain was not for the sake of the Abyssal Fruit. I have an important matter which I wish to ask the Netherworld Sovereign regarding. I would like to ask for your help...to lead me forward to see the Sovereign! I have something extremely, extremely important to discuss!"

Linley's attitude, appearance, and manner of speech all gave voice to his sincerity.

"Arthurs." Bailey looked towards Arthurs. Clearly, he too wished for Arthurs to help.

Arthurs just let out a calm laugh, then said casually, "You've come an unimaginable distance from the Infernal Realm to the Netherworld, and charged into the Abyssal Mountain without any care for your own life. To do this...of course I know that you must have an important matter to discuss with the Sovereign. However, over the countless planes, there are also many people who wish to see the Sovereign! Can it be that just because you wish to see the Sovereign, that I must lead you? What sort of status does the Sovereign have? Why would the Sovereign be willing to see all of you? In addition, I'm not qualified to lead you there!"

Linley couldn't help but say frantically, "Ar..."

"Enough."

Arthurs said calmly, "I'm simply a Sovereign's Emissary. Don't make things hard for me. If you truly have made up your mind to meet the Sovereign, then continue adventuring forward. After exiting the gray fog region, enter the violet fog region! After you reach the violet fog region, you'll be able to reach the Sovereign's palace. By then, whether or not you will see the Sovereign is a decision for the Sovereign to make."

Linley understood now as well. Arthurs was just a Sovereign's Emissary; in other words, a servant. How could he be qualified to lead Linley over?

When he understood this, he no longer tried to persuade Arthurs.

Arthurs glanced at Linley, then shook his head and said, "Linley, I'll offer you one more word of advice. Just give it up and leave the mountain! The path up ahead isn't so easily walked. Bailey, let's go." As he spoke, Arthurs, Bailey, and Bloan all flew away at high speed.

Linley and Bebe didn't follow. They just stayed there.

"Boss?" Bebe looked at him.

"Continue forward." Linley said calmly. "Arthurs advised me to go down the mountain, yes, but I knew long ago...that the violet fog region is definitely dangerous. But no matter how dangerous it is...I will still go through it!" Whether for the sake of his father or for the sake of his dead friends, he had to go deeper into the Abyssal Mountain.

Bebe nodded slightly. "Wherever the Boss goes, I go."

Linley glanced at Bebe. He couldn't help but laugh, but in his heart, he felt a hint of apology. For now, no one could say exactly how dangerous the violet fog region was. Bebe, however, ignored it all and continued to loyally follow Linley deeper in. Still, over the course of thousands of years, there was no need for Linley and Bebe to say words of thanks to each other, as though they were outsiders.

"Let's go." That's all Linley said.

"Right." Bebe followed as well.

The two fearlessly advanced into the gray fog region. In the gray fog region, since they were no longer affected by the gray fog, it was just a matter of luck for exiting it. Linley and Bebe spent nearly half an hour searching, encountering and battling quite a few maddened Highgods on the way. Linley and Bebe didn't dare to engage in battle for too long, fleeing each time. After half an hour, they finally exited the gray fog region.

While they had been at the base of the mountain, they had seen that the white fog region and the gray fog region took up more than ninety percent of the entire Abyssal Mountain. When Linley and Bebe arrived at the empty space where the gray fog region and the violet fog region intersected, they discovered that, upon taking a closer look, the violet fog region was also fairly large.

"The two of you made it out?" A voice rang out.

Linley and Bebe, who had just made it out of the gray fog region, turned to look. They saw the violet-haired youth, Bloan, laugh while walking towards them. "The two of you came faster than I expected."

"We can't compete with you. You had a Sovereign's Emissary guiding you." Bebe pursed his lips.

Bloan laughed calmly.

In the past, Bloan had always been frost-faced, but now he often laughed and smiled. There was nothing for it...his only family member, his big brother, was still alive. To Bloan...this surprise was an even greater and better one than acquiring an Abyssal Fruit!"

"Linley." Bloan looked at Linley. "My big brother and the Sovereign's Emissary, when leaving, asked me to once more warn you that this violet fog region is very dangerous, far more so than the gray fog region. Although the two of you are very powerful, you killed the Spirit Snake... once you go in, you will have virtually no chance of making it out again."

Linley frowned.

"Killed the Spirit Snake?" Linley said.

"What does killing the Spirit Snake have to do with the violet fog region?" Bebe asked.

Bloan said, "That Arthurs told me that the Abyssal Fruit Tree normally remains within the violet fog region. Only once in countless years will it enter the gray fog region! Those Highgods have a chance in the gray fog region to acquire the Abyssal Fruit, but there's no way they will make it in the violet fog region. Now that you've killed the Spirit Snake, it's best if you don't go to the violet fog region."

Linley and Bebe exchanged glances.

They couldn't help but feel the situation was bad!

So over the course of countless years, the Abyssal Fruit Tree always resided within the violet fog region.

"Thank you for your warning. However, we will still go make the attempt." Linley said.

"Of course we'll go. Why should we fear the Abyssal Tree?" Bebe said disdainfully. Although he said this, however, in his heart, Bebe wasn't confident either. This was because earlier, when he used his innate divine ability against the Abyssal Fruit Tree, he hadn't been able to find its divine spark."

Bloan, seeing they wouldn't be dissuaded, had no choice but to say nothing further.

Linley and Bebe flew directly into the violet fog region. Bloan watched them fly in, then let out a sigh. "I hope the two of you will make it out alive." On this trip to the Abyssal Mountain, Linley helped him and also let him see his big brother. Bloan felt quite a bit of goodwill towards Linley and Bebe.

The violet fog region!

"Hey, it feels really nice." Bebe looked suspiciously around, while Linley also vigilantly kept watch. The surrounding area was filled with endless violet fog, and indeed, it was very different from the white fog and the gray fog. Within the violet fog region, not only were there no negative effects to the violet fog, the two felt refreshed and relaxed.

It was much like...

That refreshing feeling they had when they smelled the Abyssal Fruit.

"This violet fog region is so quiet!" Bebe sent mentally. "Boss, it seems as though the violet fog region doesn't have much danger."

"Don't be careless. Advance with caution." Linley said with a frown as he advanced.

Tri-colored regions. From the white fog region to the gray fog region, then to the violet fog region! Linley didn't believe that the violet fog region would really be as calm and peaceful as it seemed on the surface. That Arthurs had also repeatedly warned him as well; clearly, this violet fog region was extremely dangerous!

Large amounts of dwarf trees and bushes were growing on the ground.

There were no other lifeforms present.

Linley and Bebe didn't dare to relax at all, but after advancing for quite some time, they still didn't sense anything.

"Can it be that we are going to just be allowed to advance like this?" Bebe murmured.

Linley's pupils suddenly contracted as he stared to the front.

"What's that!" Bebe called out in shock.

From afar, a large number of branches and leaves could be seen at an astonishing density. The violet fog region had much greater visibility than the other regions, allowing nearly a thousand meters of vision, but despite that, all they could see up ahead was those dense clusters of leaves.

"Let's take a closer look." Linley said in a low voice.

Linley and Bebe advanced forward. Once they drew closer to the trunks of these trees, Linley discovered to his astonishment that..."This...this branch is actually the branch of an Abyssal Fruit Tree!" Linley could recognize it at a glance. The Abyssal Fruit Tree was not like ordinary trees; the branches were very unusual.

An enormous, sturdy branch of multiple meters was present, and not just one; many branches of similar thickness were present!

The many branches all intersected, giving birth to countless smaller branches.

"This is the crown of a tree! An astonishingly large tree crown!"

Linley couldn't help but feel stunned.

Originally, when they had been in the gray fog region, they had seen that the Abyssal Fruit Tree stretched out to hundreds of meters, with the main trunk being just two or three meters. But this same exact type of tree present here...the branches alone were multiple meters thick. What they saw was nothing more than the crowns of the tree. They hadn't even seen the main trunk yet. How enormous must this tree be?!

"There's more than just one Abyssal Fruit Tree?" Linley couldn't help but feel breathless.

Book 18, Highgod – Chapter 28, Repercussions

Clearly, the revealed portion of the Abyssal Fruit Tree was like the tip of an iceberg; this definitely wasn't the one which had appeared within the gray fog region. This tree was terrifyingly large, and its branches were sturdier than the trunk of the first Abyssal Fruit Tree.

"Boss, such an enormous Abyssal Fruit Tree." Bebe was somewhat numb.

He hadn't been able to do anything to the Abyssal Fruit Tree earlier.

"Continue forward." Linley growled. At the same time, he immediately set up his Blackstone Space, forming it into a hemisphere that was twenty meters in diameter. A powerful repulsive force was in effect within the Blackstone Space, and any outside objects that entered it would suffer from it.

As they walked...

After having walked for thousands of meters, as far Linley and Bebe could see, there was only that terrifyingly enormous tree crown. That astonishingly large tree crown was formed from countless thick branches in a titanic coil, which was why it was supportable.

"Boss, look up above." Bebe suddenly said.

Linley couldn't help but follow Bebe's gaze. Within the scattered green leaves, a small green snake had appeared atop one of the leaves.

"Green snake!" Linley was astonished. "This small green snake represents that a giant green snake must be here as well! These small green snakes all rely on the life force of the giant green Spirit Snakes. In other words...aside from the Spirit Snake which Bebe killed, there are other Spirit Snakes present!" Linley felt his heart begin to clench.

Suddenly...

Linley couldn't help but narrow his eyes. On many of the tree leaves above, one green snake after another began to emerge. These palm-sized, finger-wide green snakes all stared at Linley and Bebe, but they didn't attack.

"So many!" Bebe sent mentally in alarm.

"Keep going forward." Linley ignored the green serpents, continuing to advance forward.

While advancing forward, Linley discovered that a large number of green snakes were appearing everywhere. On the road over alone, hundreds of thousands of green snakes had appeared, far more than the number which had appeared within the gray fog region. Linley felt astonished and shaken as well.

There were so many little green snakes...then what of the Spirit Snake?

"There's the main trunk!" Linley and Bebe couldn't help but stare into the distance.

After first having seen the tree crowns, they had walked for nearly ten thousand meters. Linley and Bebe now finally saw the main trunk of this Abyssal Fruit Tree, and when they saw it...good heavens, how could this be a 'trunk'? This was a wall! A tall, towering wall! The main trunk of this Abyssal Fruit Tree's diameter was hundreds of meters long!

The main trunk had a diameter of hundreds of meters!

As for the crown, it reached nearly ten thousand meters!

How enormous a tree was this? And more importantly...it was an Abyssal Fruit Tree! In the Netherworld, there were other thick trees like this! But the material those trees were made of was inferior. It must be understood...the branches of these trees, which served as their arms, were unbreakable even for Linley, who only managed to chop halfway through with a full strength blow.

The more precious something was, the rarer it was.

This sort of large tree was far too sturdy, and so it should be a bit smaller. But this was too enormous.

"The trunk alone is hundreds of meters thick. There's no way I would be able to chop through it." Linley sighed to himself. The material a tree's trunk was made out of was generally of higher quality than even the branches. And given how thick the trunk was? How could it be destructible?

"Boss, look above, look, quick! Abyssal Fruit!" Bebe cried out in alarm.

Linley raised his head to look.

Above this Abyssal Fruit Tree, spots of violet light could be seen flashing through the branches. Although they were very far away and covered up by branches, making them hard to see, the dots of violet light were flashing like precious gemstones and so were very eye-catching. "Abyssal Fruit! And...there's dozens of them!" Linley couldn't help but draw nearer, and Bebe did the same.

After drawing closer, they were able to see it more clearly as well.

That crystalline skin, that tender, watery violet fruit...the Abyssal Fruits was amidst the green leaves. These fruits were like little lanterns hanging in the sky. There were dozens of them.

"So much Abyssal Fruit!" Bebe was stupefied.

"But in countless years, there's only been four Abyssal Fruit to appear in the Netherworld, including the one Bailey just acquired! But here, there are actually so many!" Linley was still calm, because Linley understood... that these Abyssal Fruits wouldn't be easily taken by him, as if they were, others would have taken them away long ago.

After entering the violet fog region, he hadn't met with any danger yet.

"Haha, Abyssal Fruit. So there are so many of them." Bebe's eyes were shining.

"Spirit Snake, where are you? Emerge." Linley said coldly. At the same time, his gaze flashed past the crown of a nearby tree, where the tightly clustered green snakes were all staring at Linley and Bebe. Bebe immediately laughed loudly, "Hey, why have so many little snakes pop out? Are you trying to scare us? Hurry up and have your main form pop out as well."

"As you wish!" A cold, fierce voice echoed out from within the Abyssal Fruit Tree.

Linley and Bebe immediately turned to look.

"Hisssss..."

A giant green snake that was as thick as an arm but which was tens of meters long slithered out from within the leaves. That soft, serpentine body coiled around one of the thick branches, its serpentine head raised and staring coldly at Linley and Bebe.

"You..." Bebe was about to say something, but he came to a sudden halt.

Because next to this giant green snake, yet another giant green snake appeared, its body slightly larger. This giant green snake also coiled around a branch, but its body drooped downwards slightly as it rested against it. Its twin eyes glowed with violet light as it also stared at Linley and Bebe, its gaze filled with a killing intent.

"Hissssss..."

The leaves constantly trembled as one giant green snake after another emerged from the depths.

Bebe kept counting aloud. "Three, four, five...eight, nine!"

He finally stopped counting. There were nine giant green snakes which coiled about, close to each other, wrapping themselves either around the trunk or the branches. These nine giant snakes all stared angrily at Linley and Bebe. In terms of size, these giant green snakes were all roughly comparable, and were similar to the giant green snake in the gray fog region as well.

"There's nine of them. This is a bit tricky." Bebe frowned.

These giant green snakes were very hard to deal with. If Bebe wanted to kill them, he would have to rely on his innate divine ability, 'Godeater'. After such a long period of time, Bebe's spiritual energy had recovered, true, but there were nine of the giant green snakes here.

"Nine of them!" Linley felt that this was rather nettlesome as well.

"Bebe, we don't want the Abyssal Fruit. Let's go now." Linley sent mentally. After so many years, nobody had been able to acquire so many Abyssal Fruit. Forget about the nine troublesome Spirit Snakes for now; what was truly terrifying was that frighteningly thick and enormous Abyssal Fruit Tree. If such an enormous Abyssal Fruit Tree were to attack the two of them, that would be troublesome.

It was best to leave quickly and depart the violet fog region.

"We don't want it?" Bebe was stunned.

"Hurry and go." Linley glanced at him, and Bebe acknowledged, "Fine, then."

"Swoosh!" "Swoosh!"

Linley and Bebe simultaneously transformed into two blurs, fleeing to the side at high speed.

"Running?"

Those nine giant green snakes instantly shot out from the Abyssal Fruit Tree. They were like nine bolts of green lightning, streaking directly towards Linley and Bebe. Unfortunately, Linley and Bebe were fleeing at high speed, and the space around them had the Blackstone Space set up. Those nine giant snakes weren't able to catch up to Linley at all.

"You want to chase us? In your dreams." Bebe laughed as he spoke.

"Rustle..." Suddenly, many branches from the tree crown up above lowered, pressing down like a mountain and falling to the ground. Linley and Bebe only felt the ground ahead of them turn black; the road was completely sealed off.

"The Abyssal Fruit Tree will block us when we flee?" After having previously tested the toughness of these branches, Linley and Bebe turned without even hesitating.

And as they did, they saw that the nine giant snakes had already come to a halt and were coiling on the ground in front of them.

"You want to flee! Haha..." A deep, rumbling voice echoed out from the mouths of one of the green snakes. Its insidious violet eyes flashed as it stared at Linley and Bebe. "Let me tell you this. The violet fog region of the Abyssal Mountain will be your tomb!"

A cold voice rang out from another giant green snake. "The two of you are called Linley and Bebe, right? You are quite formidable. You actually killed our elder sister! Over the course of countless years, we ten siblings have always been happily together. Our elder sister went to deliver the Abyssal Fruit to you, but you actually killed her! Haha...even if all nine of us have to die, we will kill you and avenge our elder sister!"

"Right, avenge our elder sister!" Another giant green snake howled angrily as well.

The nine giant snakes all had rage and hatred flashing in their violet eyes.

Linley couldn't help but feel that his head hurt.

"So that Spirit Snake really did have a connection to these nine Spirit Snakes. It was actually their elder sister?" Linley had known long ago that there would be trouble, but he hadn't expected that the Spirit Snake had nine siblings.

"Hey, what are you talking about? Your elder sister went to 'deliver' the Abyssal Fruit to us?" Bebe said angrily. "You all have mental issues. Your elder sister was 'delivering' us Abyssal Fruit? Then why did she do everything she could to impede us? If your elder sister hadn't gone too far, why would I be so bored as to kill her?"

Actually, acting as a guardian was the mission of the Spirit Snakes. It was the same each time.

By using the Spirit Snakes as guardians, a person with sufficient power would be selected.

As the other nine siblings of the first Spirit Snake saw it, their elder sister had indeed gone to deliver the Abyssal Fruit to these outsiders. That 'impeding' she did was nothing more than a test. She went to deliver Abyssal Fruit, but ended up being killed? How could her nine siblings not be infuriated?

"Second Brother, don't waste words with them. Kill them!" A giant green snake said.

"Kill!" The deep voice rang out again.

Instantly, the nine giant green snakes split up into nine directions, forming a spherical trap around Linley and Bebe. However, Linley's Blackstone Space was twenty meters in diameter, while this 'trap' was also very large. The nine giant green snakes were all outside of the Blackstone Space. The nine giant green snakes began to slither about, and nine pairs of three-star violet pupils stared unblinkingly at Linley and Bebe.

"Hiss..." They slithered about at high speed, forming countless blurs.

Linley and Bebe weren't able to clearly see the snakes at all, just nine streaks of violet light. The streaks of violet light actually started twisted about, seeing like strings which began to constrict the space between them, like a fishnet compressing down towards Linley and Bebe.

"What sort of technique is this?" Linley couldn't quite understand, but he didn't overthink things. His immediate response was...the sudden expansion of the Blackstone Space, which instantly expanded to trap the nine giant green snakes within. The powerful repulsive force was applied to the green snakes, and the speed of the green snakes couldn't help but drop, and their bodies couldn't help but be moved as well.

Their joint attack was disrupted!

"Attack that Linley!" A furious shout rang out.

Instantly, those nine giant green snakes almost simultaneously shot out, transforming into nine green streaks of light as they charged towards Linley, biting down towards Linley with their fangs bared. But because of the Blackstone Space, their speed wasn't that fast. Actually, the most powerful attack of these Spirit Snakes was to use their venomous fangs to bite others, but they knew...

Bebe's body was too powerful. Their elder sister's fangs had shattered, and yet she still wasn't able to harm Bebe.

Thus, they temporarily chose to deal with Linley first!

The venomous fangs of these Spirit Snakes were on a completely different level from the venomous fangs of the little green snakes. A bite from the venomous fangs of these Spirit Snakes was even more terrifying than the little green snakes wriggling in one's body!

Linley saw those nine giant maws swing open and bite towards him. He couldn't help but be stunned. "Given how troublesome it was to be bitten by those little green snakes, if these Spirit Snakes bite me...I'm not Bebe!" The defense of his draconic scales was indeed powerful, but even the draconic scales of Patriarch Gislason wasn't as powerful as the defense of Beirut and Bebe...the level of godspark weapons.

"Hmph." Linley, with a thought, made the repulsive force of his Blackstone Space transform into a downward pull!

The nine serpentine heads bit down, but as they did, they suddenly sank downwards. Linley instantly activated his 'Spiritual Chaos' technique. Linley's current Spiritual Chaos technique would somewhat affect even Seven Star Fiends.

"Eh?" Linley discovered, to his surprise, that these nine giant snakes weren't affected by the Spiritual Chaos at all. The nine giant green heads once more rose up, biting towards Linley. Linley wielded the godspark sword, Mirage, and delivered a full force blow using the Laws of the Earth. Where Mirage slashed past, space trembled and split apart.

In the Blackstone Space, the giant green snakes found it hard to dodge.

"Slash!" One of the giant green snakes was struck. Its entire body trembled, and a large wound appeared on its body, with violet blood oozing out of it.

"What tough skin." Linley was secretly surprised. His attack contained the profound mysteries of the Laws of the Earth, and in terms of attack power, was much stronger than Bebe's strikes. But he was only able to wound the giant green snake.

"Raaaaaaaaaargh!" The giant green snake howled in agony, biting down in rage as its two sharp fangs glistened with a strange black light.

"Swoosh." Linley instantly retreated, lightning-fast.

Nine in pursuit, one fleeing while occasionally delivering a few sword blows.

"Second Brother, the gravitational power of this bastard's Gravitational Space is too strong. We aren't able to catch up to him within the range of his effect." A giant green snake said frantically. These nine green snakes realized what the problem was now.

"Rustle..." Right at this moment, the Abyssal Fruit Tree began to tremble violently.

Book 18, Highgod – Chapter 29, Invincible

“Boss!” Bebe was alarmed.

Linley’s face changed dramatically as well. From the leaves of the Abyssal Fruit Tree, those truly innumerable little green snakes all shot out towards him, whether from close by or from afar. They formed a vast web in the sky, filling Linley’s field of vision as they shot out towards him from within. The number of little green snakes was so great, they were more than enough to completely bury Linley alive!

The nine giant green snakes laughed coldly as they watched.

“First kill that Linley, then deal with the other one.” They were very confident, because Linley’s draconic scales were not yet so powerful as to allow him to ignore the bites of those little green snakes.

“Hrm?” Linley, with a thought...

“Rumble...” A thick earthen yellow light sprang up, and large amounts of earth-type divine power wildly spread out. With Linley at the center, in a range of a hundred meters, an earthen yellow cube of a hundred meters in length suddenly appeared.

Blackstone Prison!

Many little green snakes had already entered the Blackstone Prison, while many other green snakes threw themselves against the walls of the Blackstone Prison, attempting to bite through and charge in. But when they charged in, they discovered that they were separated into yet another little room. Immediately, the little green snakes began to wildly bite everywhere and fly everywhere.

Every single sealed room was cube-shaped and was 2.5 meters long.

There were 64,000 little sealed rooms within this hundred-meter long Blackstone Prison.

"Raaaaaawr!" A furious roar rang out as the nine giant green snakes all twirled their bodies, biting through and smashing one room after another. But as soon as they shattered one wall, it would quickly reform. At the same time, the Blackstone Prison was constantly changing and moving about, quickly separating the nine Spirit Snakes.

Within the Blackstone Prison.

Linley suddenly emerged from within one of the sealed rooms, easily killing the little green snakes present within this room, then quickly departing. The other little green snakes, knowing that Linley had appeared, all hurried over, but by the time they arrived, Linley had moved elsewhere long ago.

In the Blackstone Prison, Linley was able to move about at high speed!

And given that the sixty four thousand rooms were all filled with a powerful gravitational pull, the green snakes were completely unable to surround him and attack en masse.

"You want to kill me with one move?" Linley laughed calmly as he slaughtered these little green snakes. "These little green snakes possess tremendous amounts of energy as well. By killing them, I am definitely injuring the nine Spirit Snakes as well." Linley didn't mind working a little harder and killing a few more of the little green snakes.

Linley began to wildly slaughter and massacre the little green snakes. The Blackstone Prison was under Linley's control, and Linley knew exactly where there were numerous little green snakes and where there were few of them. The little green snakes suffered, but were unable to group up en masse to surround and attack Linley. In the Blackstone Prison, they could do nothing but wait as though they were blinded.

The nine giant green snakes, now outside the Blackstone Prison, were already furious.

"What is this damn thing?" A clear voice rang out from the mouth of one of the giant green snakes. She stared angrily at the enormous earthen yellow cube. "It repairs as soon as we break it!"

"If this continues, we'll lose a great deal of energy." A hoarse voice rang out. "We won't be able to kill Linley within those rooms."

Immediately, under their control, the many green snakes began to wildly flee, biting through one wall after another before escaping the Blackstone Prison. All of the green snakes fled, returning to the Abyssal Fruit Tree.

"Rumble..." The Blackstone Prison transformed into energy, then vanished.

Linley and Bebe appeared.

"Haha, you wanted to kill us, right?" Bebe laughed from rage. "Come, then. Let me see what other tricks you have?"

Linley stared coldly at the nine giant green snakes as well.

"You are indeed very strong!" A deep, hoarse voice rang out. Linley and Bebe couldn't help but turn to stare at the crown of the Abyssal Fruit Tree. The sound came from there. With a 'rustle' sound of leaves parting, a serpentine form covered in golden scales and which was more than two meters thick slowly slithered out.

A powerful aura emanated forth from it.

Linley and Bebe couldn't help but hold their breaths.

"My heavens..." Bebe stared with wide eyes.

"This..." Linley couldn't help but narrow his eyes. The colossal golden snake continued to slither out from the crown of the trees. The part of its slithering, serpentine body that appeared was already more than two hundred meters long. Moments later, the entire body of the colossal golden snake was completely revealed. This was an enormous golden snake that was nearly five or six hundred meters long and two meters thick.

The golden snake coiled around the branches of the Abyssal Fruit Tree. Its ice-cold pupils were jade-green, and it stared down towards Linley and Bebe.

"Father." The nine giant green snakes immediately scurried over.

"Father, it's the two of them! You have to avenge our elder sister!" The nine giant green snakes all spoke in the human tongue.

"Don't worry." A low, hoarse voice rang out from the giant golden snake's mouth.

"Leave one of them for me." An icy cold voice rang out from behind. Linley and Bebe couldn't help but stare, then immediately swivel to look. A giant silver snake whose body was comparable in size to the giant golden snake flew out from afar. The thing which astonished about Linley about this giant silver snake was...

It had nine heads!

And each head of this nine-headed silver snake had black pupils, as black as the deepest recesses of the abyss itself.

"Mother." The nine giant green snakes immediately called out.

"You returned?" The colossal golden snake said.

"My daughter died. How could I not?" The nine-headed silver snake said coldly.

Bebe let out a snort. "No wonder you gave birth to a pack of little freaks. The parents are both freaks as well!" The aura emanating from these two colossal snakes was simply too terrifying, to the point where the aura alone made Linley and Bebe feel their heads go slightly dizzy. Linley and Bebe both understood that this gold-silver snake pair was far more powerful than their children.

"Hmph, aren't you a freak as well, you little creature?" The colossal golden snake stared at Bebe, its jade-green eyes filled with a cold look.

"The one who killed our daughter was him?" The nine-headed silver serpent stared at Bebe.

"Right." The colossal golden snake said.

"Then...let me deal with that little creature." The nine-headed silver serpent said in its hoarse voice.

The colossal golden snake's giant head turned slightly as it stared at Linley. "Fine, then hand this punk from the Four Divine Beasts clan to me! Hmph...even when his ancestor, the Azure Dragon, was still alive, they wouldn't dare act in this manner towards our Abyssal Mountain. But now, the Azure Dragon's descendants actually dare to kill our children!"

"Enough of that." The nine-headed silver serpent said emotionlessly.

Linley and Bebe exchanged glances.

With Linley at the center, an earthen yellow aura instantly spread out, encompassing an area of nearly a thousand meters, swallowing up the colossal golden snake and the nine-headed silver serpent. The two giant snakes, suffering the sudden attack of the gravitational pull, couldn't help but have their massive serpentine bodies droop down slightly. Moments later, however, they recovered and adjusted to compensate.

"What powerful gravity!" The colossal golden snake looked towards Linley. "You actually have some sort of a connection to the Redbud Sovereign of the Infernal Realm. However...despite that, you still must die!"

"What, you think you'll be able to kill us just because you say so? Do you have the ability?" Bebe said coldly.

Very suddenly...

The colossal golden snake opened its mouth, and instantly, a thick, jade-green light shot out from within the colossal golden snake's mouth, enveloping towards Linley. This jade-green light wasn't impacted at all by the Blackstone Space. Linley wasn't able to dodge in time, and was completely covered by the jade-green light, which instantly invaded Linley's body.

Within Linley's mind.

The green light formed into countless specks of green, wildly corroding, striking against, and chewing against Linley's soul-protecting Sovereign artifact. Much like attacking a city, the many green spots were dispersed everywhere, with quite a few of the green spots wildly attacking the 'bandage' over the flaw.

Linley had spent two hundred years of work on the bandage, and as a result of his repair work, the bandage was now exceedingly sturdy.

Although it couldn't compare to the other parts of the soul-protecting Sovereign artifact, it was still comparable to most ordinary soul-protecting artifacts.

"Crackle..." The bandage was quickly being depleted.

"Not good." Linley felt that things were going wrong.

He immediately controlled his spiritual energy to help defend as well. As those jade-green spots ravenously slammed against the bandage, with a 'bang!', the bandage was finally broken through. Only a sliver of green spots remained, however. Linley's spiritual energy wildly charged through, finally extinguishing the remnants of the energy.

Linley's defense had held.

But...the repairs he had carried out on the soul-protecting Sovereign artifact over the course of two centuries were completely wiped out in this single attack.

At the same time...

The nine-headed silver serpent used its supreme technique as well. The black eyes in its nine enormous silver heads stared at Bebe, while at the same time, its body began to form into an enormous illusion. The nine-headed silver serpent began to activate its awe-inspiring innate divine ability...

"Swish!" "Swish!"

The nine-headed silver serpent's nine pairs of eyes simultaneously shot out with nine rays of pitch-black light.

Eighteen rays of light shot towards Bebe. Bebe dodged, but the black light curved as though sentient, then pierced into Bebe's pupils.

"Arrrrgh!" Bebe let out an agonized call.

Linley just finished his defense. Turning to look, Linley was shocked.
"Bebe!"

"Not dead?" The colossal golden serpent, seeing that Linley had taken his attack without dying, couldn't help but feel amazed. It knew very well how powerful this technique of his was...even ordinary soul-protecting divine artifacts wouldn't be able to resist it.

"Haha...that was rather powerful." Bebe suddenly began to laugh loudly as he stared furiously at the nine-headed silver serpent.

Linley couldn't help but feel relieved.

"Impossible." The nine-headed silver serpent couldn't believe it. "This... his body is already so powerful. How could his soul be so powerful as well?" The heavens were equitable. Bebe's body was already so tough that even the nine-headed silver serpent was jealous of him. With his body so powerful, logically speaking, his soul should be a bit weaker.

But...

Bebe had actually been able to endure his innate divine ability.

"I don't want to kill you. Don't go too far." Linley shouted. He had come this time to ask the Sovereign for help. Linley had the feeling that these two giant snakes should have some sort of connection to the Sovereign, and so didn't want to unleash killing attacks.

"Roaaaaaaaaaaaaaar!" The colossal golden snake wasn't the slightest bit receptive to this. With a bellow, it suddenly shot forward, spreading wide its maw and biting viciously towards Linley.

"His speed is actually so fast." Linley was inwardly surprised.

However, Linley didn't dare to allow himself be bitten by this colossal golden snake.

"Boss, let's do it." Bebe sent mentally.

"Hmph." Linley stared at the attacking colossal golden snake. His eyes grew cold.

Behind Linley and Bebe, illusory blurs simultaneously appeared. Behind Linley was a coiling Azure Dragon Phantom, which was staring coldly at the colossal golden snake. As for Bebe, behind Bebe appeared the enormous illusion of a Godeater Rat, which was also staring at the nine-headed silver serpent!

Innate divine ability – Dragon Roar!

Innate divine ability – Godeater!

"BOOM!" Suddenly, the earth split apart, and large amounts of slender, long tendrils shot outwards, blocking directly in front of Linley and Bebe. The energy which Linley and Bebe had expended in using their innate divine abilities was directly blocked by these tendrils. Or, to be more precise...were all expended upon the tendrils.

Linley and Bebe were stunned.

The many branches and tendrils which were hit by these two mighty innate divine abilities weren't affected at all. "Why is there no response?" Bebe couldn't believe it. Suddenly, one of the tendrils shot backwards, landing upon Bebe's body. Although it passed through the Blackstone Space, the speed at which this tendril struck out still was enough to make it impossible for Bebe to dodge.

"WHAP!" Bebe was struck and sent flying far away.

Red blood splattered out into the air.

"BANG!" Bebe slammed into the ground. He stared at his chest, where a wound that was so deep that bones were visible had appeared. Blood was dripping out of it. Bebe stared at his wound, stupefied.

Linley stared at this in disbelief as well.

Bebe was actually injured?

His body was comparable to a godspark weapon...but he was actually injured?

"Bebe." Linley immediately moved to Bebe's side. Bebe's wound was naturally closing, but Bebe still stared at the branches in front of him in disbelief. These branches were clearly those of the Abyssal Fruit Tree.

"Enough. Killing their daughter was one thing. There's no need to kill any further." A deep voice rang out from within the Abyssal Fruit Tree.

Atop the main trunk of the Abyssal Fruit Tree, an enormous face suddenly appeared, hovering there and staring towards Linley and Bebe.

"This is...?"

Linley and Bebe both felt a powerful aura.

"Sovereign!" The colossal golden serpent and the nine-headed silver serpent immediately looked towards the Abyssal Fruit Tree and said hurriedly, "He killed our daughter. Sovereign, you cannot pardon them!"

"Sovereign?"

Linley and Bebe stared, stunned, at the Abyssal Fruit Tree.

Book 18, Highgod – Chapter 30, Unable to Help

Linley now completely understood everything. No wonder the Abyssal Fruit Tree which had appeared within the gray fog region was able to so easily deal with Linley and Bebe, and Bebe's innate divine ability, 'Godeater', wasn't able to locate the divine spark of the Abyssal Fruit Tree either. Now, it seemed, the former Abyssal Fruit Tree was nothing more than a small part of the Abyssal Fruit Tree before them. It wasn't strange for a part of a Sovereign to have such power.

The connection between the Abyssal Fruit Tree in the gray fog region and this Abyssal Fruit Tree was like the relationship between the green snakes and the Spirit Snakes. The green snakes didn't have a soul, and that small Abyssal Fruit Tree naturally had no soul either.

"Sovereign!"

Linley hurriedly called out, while at the same time, he sunk to his knees with a banging sound.

The colossal golden snake and the nine-headed silver serpent stared angrily at Linley and Bebe, then the colossal golden snake begged, "Sovereign, these two harmed my daughter. Sovereign, you know very well what occurred. Sovereign...you must avenge our daughter!" The colossal golden snake pressed its enormous head against the ground as well.

"Bang!" Bebe fell to his knees as well, saying urgently, "Sovereign, we can't be blamed. Back then, we didn't know." Bebe was afraid that the Sovereign wouldn't assist Linley.

"Hmph." The nine-headed silver serpent and the colossal golden snake stared angrily towards Bebe and Linley.

Linley didn't interject further. He just knelt there, awaiting the Sovereign's words.

"Enough." A hint of jade light flashed through the eyes of the enormous face atop the main trunk of the Abyssal Fruit Tree as the face stared at this group of people. Everyone its gaze swept past, whether currently nervous or enraged, instantly fell silent. "Gold, although it is true that they are at fault in this matter, their sins do not warrant death...as they didn't actually know the truth."

The Sovereign had branches present. Naturally, the Sovereign had seen everything clearly.

He, too, had wanted to save the Spirit Snake, but the power of the branches present was unable to block Bebe's innate divine ability.

The nine-headed silver serpent immediately glanced at the colossal golden snake.

She knew that her husband was on very good terms with the Abyssal Fruit Tree Sovereign.

The colossal golden snake hurriedly said in supplication, "Sovereign, my daughter, Tina [Ti'na]. You watched her grow up. Can it be that you truly won't avenge Tina's death?" Others wouldn't dare to speak to a Sovereign in such a matter, but he did! This was because he had slowly grown up over the course of countless years along with the Abyssal Fruit Tree, from antiquity until present.

"Gold!" The Abyssal Fruit Tree's enormous face frowned. "Leave it at this."

When these words came out, the nine giant green snakes, the nine-headed silver serpent, and the colossal golden snake didn't dare say anything further. Since the Sovereign had already made his proclamation, there would be no good result if they continued to persist.

"Linley, the two of you can leave." The giant face said emotionlessly.

"Sovereign!"

Linley knelt there and said in supplication, "I have come from the Infernal Realm to the Netherworld for the sake of meeting with you, Sovereign. I have something to beg of you. I hope..." As soon as Linley's words came out, and before he finished speaking, the nearby colossal golden snake and nine-headed silver serpent instantly breathed through their nostrils in rage.

"In your dreams!" The colossal golden snake bellowed. "The Sovereign has already shown grace and kindness to you by not killing you. You still dream of having the Sovereign help you? F*ck off! Immediately f*ck off!"

"Immediately f*ck off!" The nine green snakes also bellowed out in succession.

As for the nine-headed silver serpent, she was so angry that her serpentine scales began to shine as she stared at Linley. "Hurry up and leave, and we two, husband and wife, will spare you. If you stay here and futilely hope for the Sovereign to help you, then I, Yennaway [Yin'na'wei], will today kill you, even if it costs me my life!" The reason why she didn't immediately attack Linley and Bebe was first because of their power, and second because of the Sovereign's command.

Linley dared to ask the Sovereign for help? Naturally, they were no longer able to suppress their rage.

"The Sovereign hasn't even spoken, and yet all of you interject?" Bebe bellowed angrily.

It was indeed very impolite to interject in front of a Sovereign, but Bebe clearly had no idea about the nature of the relationship between the Abyssal Fruit Tree and the Spirit Snakes. The giant face atop the Abyssal Fruit Tree's trunk swept everyone with its gaze. "All of you, quiet. Let's listen to Linley speak first."

"Sovereign." The colossal golden snake stared in surprise towards the Abyssal Fruit Tree.

The Abyssal Fruit Tree glanced sideways at him, and he immediately fell silent.

Linley said gratefully, "Sovereign, the reason I have come to beg you for your help is that I hope you can help me...help me find my family and friends, who have become undead within the Netherworld. To let them regain their former memories! I know that you, Sovereign, are able to do this. I hope you will take pity on them, Sovereign." Linley pressed his forehead against the ground.

Bebe, seeing this, couldn't help but feel his eyes turn moist.

When had Linley ever acted in such a manner?

"I hope you will take pity on them, Sovereign." Bebe also knelt down, his head pressing against the ground.

Linley and Bebe both begged, while the Abyssal Fruit Tree was momentarily silent. Linley, on his knees, felt restless nervousness in his heart. He had come all this way for the Sovereign's response. What Linley feared the most was...the Sovereign's refusal. Linley didn't wish for his hope to be destroyed!

"You can leave." The deep voice rang out anew.

Linley's entire body trembled.

Bebe also raised his head in disbelief as he looked towards the Abyssal Fruit Tree.

"Sovereign, can't you just help out?" Bebe stuttered.

Linley raised his head to look at the Sovereign as well, his eyes filling with tears. He begged earnestly, "Sovereign..."

"Enough. There's nothing I can do to help." The deep voice rang out.

"Nothing you can do to help?" Linley raised his head, staring at the Abyssal Fruit Tree. Not a hint of emotion could be seen on the giant face atop the Abyssal Fruit Tree. Linley said frantically, "How could you be unable to help? I know, Netherworld Sovereign, that any of you are able to find the undead which the souls of the dead are transformed into, and to restore their memories to them."

"Hmph." The nearby nine-headed silver serpent let out a cold snort, while the colossal gold snake and the nine giant green snakes all stared coldly towards Linley and Bebe.

"You are begging the wrong Sovereign." The colossal golden snake snickered.

Linley and Bebe were stunned.

A deep voice rang out from atop the Abyssal Fruit Tree. "It is indeed a fact that I cannot help you in this. Because...I am not a Netherworld Sovereign. I am a Sovereign of Life."

Linley and Bebe, hearing this, were stunned.

The Sovereign of the Abyssal Mountain wasn't a Netherworld Sovereign?

"You've come to the Abyssal Mountain. If you wish to find a Netherworld Sovereign, it's still simple...continue forward, to the Sovereign's palace within the violet fog region and wait patiently. However, let me give you a word of warning...the Sovereign of Death's temper isn't as good as mine. This Sovereign of Death might just kill you because of Tina's death." The Abyssal Fruit Tree said.

Linley and Bebe exchanged glances.

So this Abyssal Mountain actually had two Sovereigns!

One, a Sovereign of Life. The other, a Netherworld Sovereign of Death!

Linley was able to guess why this Abyssal Fruit Tree said he had a good 'temper'. He had stayed here for countless years, and trained in the Edicts of Life. It was normal for him to be good-tempered. But the Sovereign of Death trained in the Edicts of Death. In the Infernal Realm and the Netherworld, Linley hadn't met a single practitioner of the Edicts of Death who had a good temper.

Most of them were resolute and violent!

"Boss, should we go?" Bebe sent mentally.

"Of course." Linley didn't hesitate.

Bebe hurriedly sent mentally, "Didn't you hear what the Sovereign of Life just said? That Sovereign of Death has a temper, and isn't as good-natured as this one. If he kills the two of us because that Spirit Snake died, then that would be such a stifling, unhappy death. As I see it, there are seven Sovereigns in the Netherworld. Let's go somewhere else and try."

Linley frowned.

Linley was prepared to make the attempt for the sake of saving his father and friends. Too much time had already passed, and so he definitely had to try. But if Bebe were to suffer for it...

"Bebe." Linley looked towards Bebe, then sent mentally, "Don't go see the Sovereign of Death. I'll just go by myself."

"Boss." Bebe stared at Linley.

"Don't go." Linley's mentally transmitted words carried the weight of an order. "I still have my divine fire clone, but if you were to die, you would have no divine clones left."

But Bebe hurriedly said, "Boss, say no more. If the Sovereign of Death truly wishes to kill me, even if I flee from the Abyssal Mountain, the Sovereign will easily be able to find and kill me. As I see it, it's best I don't run. I can't be completely blamed for what happened anyhow. That Spirit Snake tried to kill me, after all. Can it be that I am not permitted to fight back? I imagine that the Sovereign of Death will listen to reason."

Linley said helplessly, "Bebe, you think a Sovereign will listen to you reason with him?"

"We have the medallion from the Bloodridge Sovereign. The Sovereign of Death, for the sake of the Bloodridge Sovereign's face, probably wouldn't kill us." Bebe said hurriedly, "And if he wants to kill me, there's no point in running."

Linley nodded slightly.

Indeed. If a Sovereign wished to kill someone, there was nowhere to run.

"The two of you actually dare to go see the Sovereign of Death?" The nine-headed silver serpent snickered.

Linley and Bebe genuflected once more towards the Abyssal Fruit Tree. "Thank you for your guidance, Sovereign. Might I ask, how can we exit the violet fog region?"

"Just go straight, that will be enough." The Abyssal Fruit Tree's deep voiced echoed, and then the branches began to tremble. Instantly, the violet fog up ahead began to roil and billow. It parted into two sides, revealing a clear path with no fog at all. "Follow this path and walk straight forward. You will be able to reach it."

The Abyssal Fruit Tree had already given its advice.

Although it was good-natured, it wouldn't repeatedly warn them.

"Thank you, Sovereign." Linley and Bebe said gratefully.

The enormous body of that Abyssal Fruit Tree moved slightly, and then transformed into a hazy azure blur before vanishing. That enormous Abyssal Fruit Tree, which took up a space of ten thousand meters or more, vanished just like that. Linley and Bebe just stood there, immediately advancing forward along the designated route.

The colossal golden snake and the nine-headed silver serpent just laughed coldly.

"You really are useless." The nine-headed silver serpent snickered. "You've been with the Sovereign for so many years, but you still can't persuade him."

"Alas, the Sovereign is simply too good-natured." The colossal golden snake said resignedly.

"Watch me." The nine-headed silver serpent stared coldly at Linley and Bebe's backs. "Given my Sovereign's temper, as long as I say something... these two will definitely die!"

The colossal golden snake was on good terms with the Abyssal Fruit Tree, while the nine-headed silver snake was on good terms with the Sovereign of Death.

On the way over, Linley and Bebe moved extremely quickly, and they didn't encounter any dangers on the way over. Very soon, Linley and Bebe saw that in the distance, there was an empty area where there was no violet fog at all. Linley and Bebe immediately sped up, transforming into two blurred streaks and exiting the violet fog region!

"We finally arrived." Bebe said jubilantly.

Linley raised his head to look as well.

In front of them was an empty area filled with grass and flowers.

"Up above!" Linley couldn't help but look upwards, as in the skies above, a violet-black palace was hovering in the air. This violet-black palace was hundreds of meters tall, like a small mountain. The top of the violet-black palace was a tower-styled tip, and at the top of the tip was an enormous sphere.

The sphere flashed with countless bolts of lightning.

With the sphere as the origin, large amounts of lightning chains scattered downwards in every direction.

"So this is where the Heaven-Earth Chains come from." Bebe's eyes lit up.

"It seems this is the Sovereign's palace." Linley took a deep breath.

Right at this moment, outside the Sovereign's palace gate, two figures flew out. Linley immediately recognized that it was Arthurs and Bailey. The two of them, seeing Linley and Bebe, immediately flew over.

"Linley, you really came!" Bailey said in surprise.

Arthurs said in disbelief as well, "Yennaway and her husband, those two great snakes, didn't attack?" Arthurs knew exactly how strong those two were. Even he would find it hard to act against them.

"Of course they did, but they weren't strong enough and couldn't do anything to us." Bebe said with a snort.

Arthurs and Bailey couldn't help but feel surprised.

"Arthurs, Bailey, the Sovereign, he..." Linley just was about to speak.

"Hmph!" A cold snort rang out.

Linley and Bebe couldn't help but turn their heads to look back. Arthurs and Bailey looked over as well. Two skinny figures, a male and a female, were walking over. The grim-looking man was dressed in a long golden robe, while the woman with black pupils wore a long silver robe. Behind them were nine young men and women, all dressed in long green robes.

"We weren't able to do anything to them, true." The silver-robed woman snickered. "However...very soon, they will still die."

Book 18, Highgod – Chapter 31, The Chief Sovereign of Death

From the aura alone, Linley could clearly tell that this silver-robed woman in front of him was that nine-headed silver serpent. The others were her husband and her nine children transformed into human form.

"Arthurs, is the Sovereign back yet?" The silver serpent, Yennaway, said.

Arthurs shook his head. "Not yet. Bailey acquired the Abyssal Fruit and is awaiting the Sovereign as well. However, the Sovereign should know that Bailey acquired the Abyssal Fruit and should arrive soon." Linley and Bebe, upon hearing this, had no choice but tamp down their franticness and wait to one side.

"Linley." Bailey walked over, saying in a low voice, "You'd best hurry up and leave."

"Eh?" Linley raised his head, looking towards him.

"Bailey, he isn't willing to leave. Why get involved in something that is none of your business?" The silver serpent, Yennaway, snickered.

Bailey didn't pay any mind to that silver serpent. He continued, "Linley, this Yennaway is very close to the Sovereign, and when this Sovereign wants to kill someone...the Sovereign will do so without a second word. Nobody can disobey a Sovereign's will." Bailey clearly had learned quite a bit from Arthurs regarding the Sovereign of Death.

Linley frowned as he glanced sideways at the silver serpent, Yennaway.

A green-robed woman laughed coldly, "Now you are panicking? Let me tell you this. You won't even be able to flee! The Sovereign will quickly arrive...and by then, as long as you are within the Netherworld, the Sovereign will be able to quickly find and kill you two! You dared to kill my elder sister...hmph!"

The nine green serpent siblings were all furious, but they had tasted Linley and Bebe's power.

"What have you to be smug about?" Bebe let out low, muttering curse.

"Bebe, ignore them. We'll just wait over here." Linley sent mentally. And then, he and Bebe immediately walked to a fairly remote area in this grassy, flower-filled region, awaiting the return of the Sovereign.

Linley saw that in the distance, the snake couple and their nine children were all discussing something softly, occasionally looking over towards Linley and Bebe. As for Bailey and Arthurs, they just stayed there, silent. Clearly, Linley and Bebe wouldn't listen to their entreaties at all...so all they could do was await the Sovereign's return.

In the blink of an eye, three hours passed.

"The Sovereign still hasn't returned." Bebe sent mentally, rather impatient. "What's the Sovereign doing?"

"You and I can't possibly understand a Sovereign's mind." Linley had waited for three hours, and he felt as though he were steaming with impatience as well. "Bebe, judging from what that silver serpent Yennaway said, her relationship with the Sovereign must be excellent. Tell me...will the Sovereign be unwilling to help us because of this?"

Bebe gave Linley a glance.

Bebe had very few memories of Linley looking nervous, but right now, Bebe could completely sense how nervous Linley was.

"Boss, the Sovereign will definitely help out. Definitely." Bebe sent back.

Linley took a deep breath, feeling slightly calmer.

"Linley!" A voice suddenly rang out. Linley turned to look, and saw Arthurs flying over. As he looked at Linley, he couldn't help but secretly shake his head while saying solemnly, "The Sovereign just mentally spoke to me and ordered me to bring you and Bailey to the Sovereign's palace. The Sovereign should be returning soon."

Linley's eyes instantly lit up.

"The Sovereign's back?" Linley felt as though heart was about to leap out of his chest.

"Follow me in." Arthurs warned with a solemn expression, "You must remember, this Sovereign's temper is very poor. If the Sovereign takes a liking towards you, you might be treated very well, but if the Sovereign takes a disliking to you...you might die in a heartbeat. Thus, you and Bebe must not be the slightest bit disrespectful.”

Linley hurriedly nodded. “Understood.”

“I won’t anger a Sovereign.” Bebe said hurriedly as well. Bebe knew very well that at this point, they couldn’t afford even the slightest mistake.

Linley could already tell from Arthurs words...that this Sovereign of Death should be the sort of person with an odd, unusual personality who might very well kill someone for no reason at all. It was very hard to deal with this sort of person. Sometimes...one might die without even knowing why.

Arthurs glanced at Linley and Bebe. He couldn’t help but sigh to himself.

Arthurs knew very well that the silver serpent, Yennaway, was on very close terms with the Sovereign. Once Yennaway complained and indicted Linley, it was very possible that the Sovereign would kill Linley and Bebe without even giving them a chance to speak.

“Let’s go.” Arthurs immediately flew in front, while Linley and Bebe followed from behind. Bailey was waiting in midair. The four gathered together, then began to fly towards the palace that was floating above the peak of the Abyssal Mountain. The gates of the palace were open, as the colossal golden snake and the nine-headed silver serpent and their children had already entered.

The palace was made out of a violet-black material, and a bone-piercing chill slowly emanated from the palace.

"Follow me. Don't disobey in the slightest." Arthurs said in a low voice.

"Understood." Linley said.

"Don't worry." Bailey clearly was rather nervous as well. This was his first time meeting the Sovereign of Death as well.

Linley, Bebe, and Bailey immediately followed Arthurs, passing through the large front platform and entering the palace itself. Linley, Bebe, and Bailey didn't even dare to raise their heads to look, for fear of angering that Sovereign of Death.

"Boss, the cold aura of this palace is really oppressing." Bebe sent mentally.

At this moment, Arthurs knelt and said, "I pay my respects to the Sovereign!"

"I pay my respects to the Sovereign!" Linley, Bebe, and Bailey all knelt as well. After having entered the palace, the three of them didn't even dare to raise their heads without the Sovereign's permission. Or, to be more precise...to look directly at a Sovereign without permission was also quite presumptuous. Linley naturally didn't dare to act in such a way right now.

Right at this moment...

"Sovereign!" A grief-filled voice rang out. "Tina died. It was that person called Bebe. He was the one who killed her. That Bebe wanted to kill me as well. If it hadn't been for the Sovereign of Life interfering, most likely I would never have been able to see you again. You must avenge Tina, Sovereign!"

Hearing this, Linley felt his heart shake.

So the silver serpent was indeed complaining.

"Motherf*cker, I really want to kill her!" Bebe sent mentally. "Boss, that nine-headed silver serpent really makes me feel disgusted."

"Bebe, listen to what the Sovereign says." Linley continued to kneel there.

"Yen!" An icy cold voice rang out from above. "I will deal with this matter."

Linley and Bebe, upon hearing this, were both stunned.

The Sovereign of Death was a woman?

"The three of you can lift up your heads." The icy voice echoed in the palace. Only now did Linley, Bebe, and Bailey dare to lift their heads up. Only now did Linley discover that the interior of the palace was empty; not even pillars could be seen. Linley swept forward with his gaze, looking up until he saw the Sovereign of Death, seated on her throne!

A pitch-black throne.

Seated atop the throne was a woman dressed in long violet robes. The long violet robes were embroidered with branches and vines and a silver snake. This Sovereign of Death had long, blood-red hair, exquisite features, and a pair of eyes that seemed to flash with a bolt of lightning that struck into Linley's heart.

As soon as Linley saw the Sovereign of Death's face, he was stupefied.

Bebe was stupefied as well.

Bailey was stunned as well.

"You..." Bebe didn't know what to say.

"What, very surprised?" An icy voice rang out.

Linley, Bailey, and Bebe were momentarily speechless. This Sovereign of Death...her facial features looked completely, absolutely identical to the red-haired beauty who was the boss of the Abyssal Inn at the base of the Abyssal Mountain! Even the look in her eyes was the same. Linley and the other two immediately recognized...that this Sovereign was the owner of the inn!

"The Sovereign of Death...is the boss of the Abyssal Inn?" Linley felt his head go numb.

A Sovereign would actually go run an inn?

"Haha..." The Sovereign of Death let out a peal of utterly delighted laughter. "Those looks on your faces really make me feel quite happy. Over the course of all these countless years, I've remained at the Abyssal Inn, watching you people go in, one by one, in search of the Abyssal Fruit. I've watched you all risk your lives and die, and it was indeed quite interesting. But what really makes me happy...is this moment! Right, that look on your faces! Haha!"

Linley and the other two were completely stupefied.

The Sovereign of Death...acted like this?

She intentionally concocted the story of the Abyssal Fruit to entice countless experts of the Netherworld to adventure here, while she herself, a Sovereign, opened an inn and became the boss of it, happily watching one person after another enter and perish.

"The Sovereign of Death...really has nothing better to do?" Linley said to himself.

But indeed; the Sovereign of Death possessed an eternal lifespan. The Abyssal Fruit matter most likely really was nothing more than a game to the Sovereign of Death. And, to the Sovereign of Death...when she sat there in her Sovereign's palace and granted an audience to those who acquired the Abyssal Fruit and came to pay homage to her, when she saw the stupefied looks on the faces of those who saw her, she was indeed very happy and delighted!

The nearby Arthurs didn't dare to make a single sound either.

That year, he had been the same. When he had lifted his head up and looked at the almighty Sovereign of Death and saw that it was the hotel owner, he too had been stupefied. All Arthurs could do was think to himself, "This is how this Sovereign of Death is...this is a hobby of her, despite her being so powerful as to be invincible."

"Bailey! You wait over there for now." The Sovereign of Death looked with curiosity towards Linley and Bebe. "It really is surprising. The two of you actually managed to make it past 'Yen' and 'Gold'. Linley, for you to be able to take Gold's attack head on was within my expectations. But Yen's power is far greater than Gold's. Bebe, for you to be able to endure Yen's attack...I truly am astonished."

Bebe, hearing this, was rather smug, but he didn't dare to act too wildly, just revealing a hint of a smile instead.

"Don't be smug. The reason you were able to endure it should have something to do with that Beirut." The Sovereign of Death let out an emotional sigh. "I have to admit, that kid Beirut, to you, really is..."

Linley was secretly puzzled.

"Bebe?" Linley sent mentally.

"Boss, I don't know either. I just relied on myself to endure it." Bebe sent mentally.

"Linley, I hear that you have come on this trip for the sake of finding the souls of your family and friends, who have become undead. You wish for them to regain their memories, correct?" The Sovereign of Death said.

Linley raised his head to look at the Sovereign, saying with hope, "Yes, Sovereign. Please help me, Sovereign."

"Based on the rules which I myself laid down, since the two of you charged all the way to this place from the base of the Abyssal Mountain, I should grant a request of yours." The Sovereign of Death said. Linley and Bebe both stared at the Sovereign of Death, who continued, "However, you killed Tina. Logically speaking, I should also kill the two of you and avenge Tina!"

Linley and Bebe were stunned.

"I should reward you for making your way here. I should punish you for killing Tina! So then...the reward and the punishment cancel each other out. I will not agree to your request, but I won't kill you either. The two of you, leave immediately. When I think of the look on your face just now, you really...haha..." The Sovereign of Death couldn't help but begin to laugh again.

She refused?

"Sovereign!" Linley and Bebe immediately called out.

"Sovereign!" Yennaway also called out urgently.

Neither side was willing to accept this.

"What, you have an objection?" The formerly laughing Sovereign of Death suddenly turned cold as her face sank. She swept the three with her gaze. This sweep of her gaze alone caused Linley and Bebe to feel as though their souls had been shaken. As for Yennaway, she too was so frightened that she no longer dared to say a word. She knew very well what sort of temper the Sovereign of Death had.

Although she had been laughing happily, it was very possible that in the next instant, she would fiercely punish someone.

Yennaway didn't dare to say a word, but how could Linley be willing to give up?

"Sovereign." Linley hurriedly called out, while at the same time, he flipped out the medallion of the Bloodridge Sovereign. Linley once more knelt down and begged, "Sovereign, for the sake of the Bloodridge Sovereign, please give me a chance. Let me save my parents and my brothers. I just need a chance!"

"Laughable!" A cold voice rang out.

Linley raised his head to look.

The nearby Yennaway was snickering, "Linley, what's the big deal about the Bloodridge Sovereign? Do you know...that my mistress is the most powerful Sovereign of the entire Netherworld. The Chief Sovereign of Death! In the countless planes of the multiverse, only the other three Chief Sovereigns of the other three Higher Planes are equals who are on par with my mistress! And you mention the Bloodridge Sovereign to her? Even if you mentioned that Redbud Sovereign of yours, it would be useless!"

Book 18, Highgod – Chapter 32, The Netherworld Heart

Linley's heart trembled.

Chief Sovereign of Death?

Linley knew that each Law or Edict had seven mighty Sovereigns, with one High Sovereign, two Intermediate Sovereigns, and four Lesser Sovereigns! Seven Elemental Laws and four great Edicts. In total, there were only eleven High Sovereigns, and these eleven High Sovereigns were also termed Chief Sovereigns! They were the supreme kings of their Laws and Edicts, chief-like figures!

They were the greatest of existences beneath the Overgod level.

As for the Overgods, they were the personifications of the Edicts. They had no human emotions, nor would they interfere in struggles and battles. They couldn't be counted as people. Thus, the eleven Chief Gods could absolutely be considered the most supreme existences of the multiverse.

And, from what Yennaway was saying, it seemed as though the four Chief Sovereigns of the Four Higher Planes were the most powerful of the eleven Chief Sovereigns. One could completely imagine what sort of status this Sovereign of Death, seated on her throne, possessed! It was indeed laughable for Linley to mention the Bloodridge Sovereign to her!

"Sovereign." The nearby Bebe said frantically as well. "My Boss, he..."

"Shut your mouth." The Sovereign of Death, seated atop her throne, said calmly. Bebe instantly felt a tremendous pressure crush down on him, preventing him from speaking. "The decisions I have made are definitely irreversible. The reward and the punishment cancel each other out. I will not help you."

Linley raised his head to look at the seated Sovereign of Death.

She still was dressed in that long violet robe, and her hair was still long and blood-red. This woman had that beautiful, graceful face...but the aura she naturally emanated caused Linley to feel powerless. This was one of the four Chief Sovereigns of the Four Higher Planes...the Chief Sovereign of the Netherworld! A powerful, supreme, invincible existence!

"Sovereign, then my brother and I will depart." Linley rose to his feet, still bowing.

"Mm." The Sovereign of Death acknowledged calmly.

Bebe couldn't help but turn to stare at Linley, transmitting mentally with franticness, "Boss, are we leaving now?"

"Right, we're leaving right now! The Sovereign's decision is irrevocable. What we need to do is seize every moment and hurry to find the other Netherworld Sovereigns." Linley sent mentally. He had begged the Sovereign of Death repeatedly, but hadn't been able to move her in the slightest. "This Sovereign of Death isn't willing to help us, but I refuse to believe the other six will be the same!"

There was no way Linley would give up!

When he thought of how his father, Yale, George, and the others were in a life-and-death danger, Linley felt panicked! They had died in the Yulan continent, but that wasn't a true death, as their souls had survived. But dying in the Netherworld meant their souls would disperse, just like his Grandpa Doehring, never to come to life ever again!

Linley wasn't willing to stand by and watch their souls disperse!

Even if he risked his life, he would have to rescue them!

Linley glanced at the Sovereign of Death, seated on high. "Right. Let's go."

Linley and Bebe still bowed very courteously towards the Chief Sovereign of Death, then turned and strode outwards towards the outer palace. As for the gold snake and the silver serpent, as well as Arthurs, Bailey, and the others, they watched as Linley and Bebe left, the expressions on their faces varied. The gold snake and the silver serpent, husband and wife, just laughed coldly.

"Wait a moment." A cold voice suddenly rang out.

Linley and Bebe, who had already reached the doorway of the palace, suddenly came to a halt. Linley turned his head to look towards the Chief Sovereign of Death with surprise and joy in his eyes. Linley's eyes were blazing. "The Sovereign called out to me...can it be that she changed her mind? Why would the Sovereign change her mind? But then again, the Sovereign was once an ordinary person. Perhaps she might really change her mind. There's still a chance!"

Linley grew tense.

Bebe raised his head to look at the Chief Sovereign of Death as well, both puzzled and expectant.

"Linley, let me warn you that you do not need to go find the other Sovereigns of the Netherworld. You can go directly back to the Infernal Realm." The Chief Sovereign of Death said calmly, but her eyes continued to look with interest at the expression on Linley's face.

"Why?" Linley's heart trembled. He had a bad feeling.

"When ordinary people die, their souls will enter the Netherworld and form into an undead. This is part of the natural Laws, while control over the management of this Law was transformed into a treasure, the supreme treasure of my Netherworld, the 'Netherworld Heart'. If one wishes to find out which undead your father and friends transformed into, this Netherworld Heart must be used. And this Netherworld Heart... is under my control." The Chief Sovereign of Death said coldly.

Linley couldn't help but stare at the Chief Sovereign of Death.

Netherworld Heart?

So it was the Netherworld Heart which controlled everything. This supreme treasure was under the control of the Chief Sovereign of Death.

This was indeed reasonable.

The Chief Sovereign of Death stared down towards Linley, her lips curving upwards slightly. "I told you. As punishment, I will not save your father and your friends. Thus...forget about saving them. Even if you go beg other Netherworld Sovereigns, I will not permit them to use the Netherworld Heart. I imagine...they wouldn't have the gall to disobey me. And you aren't qualified to make them wish to disobey me!"

"Thus, you can go straight back to the Infernal Realm." The Chief Sovereign of Death said calmly.

"BANG!"

Linley felt as though an explosion had gone off inside his brain. 'Netherworld Heart'. 'Father'. 'Boss Yale'. 'George'. All sorts of things chaotically jumbled together within his mind. Linley's mind had completely lost all logical thought. He was completely stunned. It seemed a long time passed...Linley felt as though he were in a dream, as though his mind was in a stupor!

And suddenly, he awoke!

"No!" Linley suddenly raised his head, staring at the Chief Sovereign of Death. "Sovereign, you cannot do this, you cannot do this! Sovereign, if you aren't willing to save them, I, Linley, won't say a single word of complaint. But you cannot stop the other Sovereigns. You cannot. You cannot!" Linley had already sunk into despair.

Faced with the Chief Sovereign of Death, he was completely unable to resist her power or to require her to do anything. All he could do was speak powerlessly. In his despair, he even forgot to speak with respect. If he were clear-minded, he would never have erred in such a way.

Bebe stared at the Chief Sovereign of Death as well, his eyes also filled with disbelief.

"This is your punishment." The Chief Sovereign of Death said calmly.

"Sovereign!" Bebe suddenly strode forward.

"Impudence!" There were two maids standing at the two ends of the upraised dais of the palace. One of them barked coldly, "Stand back!"

Bebe stood there, his head raised as he stared at the Chief Sovereign of Death. "Sovereign, you are an invincible Chief Sovereign! Right, I did kill a Spirit Snake. As to whether or not that was 'Tina', I have no idea." Bebe held his head up high. "Sovereign, you arranged for people to test us. How was I supposed to know it was just a test? She was trying to kill me. Was I not allowed to fight back?"

"Bang!"

Bebe suddenly fell to his knees, but his head was held high as he stared at the Chief Sovereign of Death. "I don't believe that I was wrong. If the Chief Sovereign of Death feels I was wrong, then punish me. Just punish me directly, and not my Boss. It was I who killed the Spirit Snake. I did the deed, and I will accept the punishment for it. Don't get my Boss involved!"

Come, if you want to kill me, then kill me!" Bebe, head held high, stared straight at the Sovereign with an unruly, untamed look.

Linley, hearing this, was stunned.

Arthurs and Bailey, at the front of the palace, stared at Bebe in amazement. Even the golden snake and the silver serpent, that husband-and-wife couple, were rather stunned.

"Excellent." The Chief Sovereign of Death looked downwards calmly at Bebe.

"Bang!"

A terrifying presence swept out, and with a 'whap' sound, Bebe was crushed downwards, smashing into the floor of the palace. However, Bebe still pressed his fists against the ground, forcing his waist straight. He continued to hold his head high as he stared at the Chief Sovereign of Death.

"Swish!"

Linley suddenly moved in front of Bebe. He raised his head high, staring at the Chief Sovereign of Death. "Chief Sovereign, it was I who ordered Bebe to kill that Spirit Snake. At that time, we wanted to acquire the Abyssal Fruit. But that Abyssal Snake was preventing us, so I ordered Bebe to kill him, while I would seize the chance to acquire the Abyssal Fruit! Bebe was just obeying my orders."

"Bebe." Linley mentally shouted at him, "Are you insane? Once you die, you won't even have a divine clone left behind. You'll truly be dead. What will Ninny do? What will your daughter, Ina, do? And Beirut will be heartbroken as well."

"Boss." Bebe looked at Linley.

"Shut your mouth. Don't say a thing." Linley shouted mentally.

Bebe stuttered, but in the end, maintained his silence.

Linley raised his head to look at the Chief Sovereign of Death, seated high above him. That invincible aura was indeed enough to inspire dread. Linley stared at the Chief Sovereign of Death. "Sovereign, punishment is punishment, reward is reward. How can they cancel each other out? I am willing to take my punishment! I only ask you, Sovereign, to save my father and brothers. Even if you want to kill me, I won't say a single word of complaint!"

Kill Linley?

Bebe suddenly turned, staring at Linley, who was standing there with his back ramrod straight.

"What?" Arthurs and Bailey stared in disbelief. As for the colossal golden snake and the silver serpent, they and their nine children all stared in Linley in amazement.

"Boss, what are you doing?!" Bebe shouted back frantically.

“Bebe, if I’m killed, I’ll still have my divine fire clone back at the Yulan continent. Although I won’t be able to become a supreme expert by relying on my divine fire clone, for the sake of my father and my brothers, so what if I’m not able to be a supreme expert?” Linley sent mentally. “But if my father and brothers end up having their souls dispersed and destroyed in the Netherworld, even if I become an expert on Beirut’s level, I will never be at peace and regret it my entire life! Grandpa Doehring once, for my sake, allowed his soul to be dispersed. My brothers, my father, they still have hope. I can’t give them up just for the sake of becoming a supreme expert!”

Bebe was stunned.

“If I can let my family and friends all be alive and well, even if I give up glory and power, so what?”

Linley raised his head, looking towards the Chief Sovereign of Death.

“Reward is reward, punishment is punishment?” The Chief Sovereign of Death repeated these words, and then stared downwards at Linley. “Linley, your future is limitless. Are you willing to give up your future potential for the sake of those weak little undead?” The Chief Sovereign of Death’s words caused Linley’s body to tremble.

Clearly...

The Chief Sovereign of Death also knew that Linley had a divine clone in another plane.

"I am willing." Linley held his head high.

Sometimes, a person should maintain his pursuits. Sometimes, a person had to give them up.

Today, giving up his pursuits might mean he would never become a supreme expert. However, he would have his family and have his lifelong friends. This was enough to satisfy Linley. After all, it was hard to achieve perfection in everything!

The Chief Sovereign of Death stared at Linley, then said calmly, "You are willing to give it up, but...I'm not going to agree."

Linley, who had already prepared himself, was stunned.

"You feel that rewards and punishments cannot cancel each other out, but...as far as I'm concerned, they should. This is a rule which I have set. What you need to do is to obey my rules!" The Chief Sovereign of Death laughed coldly as she stared down towards Linley, as though she were looking at a maddened ant.

Bebe suddenly rose to his feet.

"Sovereign..."

Linley stretched his hand out to stop him while shouting mentally, "Bebe!" Bebe's face was purple. He turned to stare at Linley.

"The result of offending a Sovereign is to die for nothing. Understood?" Linley sent mentally.

Linley raised his head, looking at the Sovereign. He said, one word and sentence at a time, "Sovereign, really...is there really no hope at all?" When Linley thought of the grief his father had lived in for so many years, and how he had died without even successfully avenging Linley's mother...and how Boss Yale had collapsed to the point of begging for George to kill him...Linley felt heartsick when he thought of his father and friends.

"Boss." Bebe looked at Linley, sensing his grief.

"Sovereign!" Suddenly, the nearby Arthurs spoke out. "Sovereign, aren't the Planar Wars starting soon? Didn't you say that if a Commander is killed...why not just change that a bit?"

"Oh?"

The Chief Sovereign of Death actually let out a rare laugh. "Arthurs, you really are clever. I nearly forgot." And then, she turned to stare at Linley and Bebe. "Linley, I have wonderful news for you. You wish to save your father and friends, yes? There is hope. There is still a little bit of hope."

Linley and Bebe both immediately raised their heads to stare at the Chief Sovereign of Death up above.

"Hope?" Linley felt a blaze of eagerness in his heart.

The Chief Sovereign of Death said, "Seven Divine Planes, Four Higher Realms. Between them, there is an extremely rowdy event that will occur every trillion years. The Planar Wars."

Linley's heart trembled.

Planar Wars. He had heard of them long ago, but all he knew was that the battle between two planes was extremely fierce. A war which resulted in an extremely high number of experts falling.

"And now, the Divine Darkness Plane and the Divine Light Plane are currently undergoing a Planar Wars battle! The Divine Darkness Plane belongs to my Netherworld side! The Netherworld's Lords of Tartarus are qualified to participate. To encourage them, the rules of the Planar Wars state...that if they are able to kill ten enemy commanders, they would be able to make a request of a Sovereign of their side. You could ask the Sovereign to make a Sovereign artifact for you; attack, material defense, spiritual defense, you can choose for yourself what you want. The Sovereign will definitely accomplish it for you!"

"But of course, you can make an earlier request." The Chief Sovereign of Death said. "You can now go assist the Divine Darkness Plane's side. If you kill a commander, I will help you find one of your family or friends and allow them to regain their memories. If you kill two, I will help you save two. If you want to save many people, work hard to kill the enemy commanders."

Linley's eyes instantly lit up.

"Done." Linley hurriedly said.

"Don't be impatient. I forgot to warn you; in the Planar Wars, commander-level experts are all at the Lords of Tartarus level, which is what the Infernal Realm calls 'Purgatory Commanders'." The Chief Sovereign of Death said calmly. "The weakest amongst them should be comparable to you, while the strongest...are Highgod Paragons."

Linley's facial expression instantly froze.

They were all Purgatory Commander level experts? Those who were commanders...were the likes of Reisgem, or the castle lord of Miluo Island, 'Mosi'. For Linley to kill experts like them?

"In the Planar Wars, 'commander' is a position of high rank. Naturally, they consist of the supreme experts of the various planes." The Chief Sovereign of Death said slowly. "If you wish to become a commander, the prerequisite is that you are a Lord of Tartarus, or a Lord Prefect of a prefecture. Only by doing so are you qualified to enter. You can imagine what level of strength is needed. If you go kill them, but end up meeting someone who is stronger...you'll be finished."

Linley felt as though a massive boulder was crushing down upon his chest, making it hard to breathe.

He wanted to go fight!

But...did he have the ability to? Those weren't mere Seven Star Fiends; they were Purgatory Commanders, Lords of Tartarus, the most supreme of experts, and they included amongst them invincible figures comparable to Beirut and Dunnington. To kill them?

The Chief Sovereign of Death stared down at Linley. "This is the 'hope' which I spoke of. Originally, killing an enemy commander came with a reward! But you can use it to instead save your loved ones. For each commander you kill, I will save one of your loved ones!"

Bebe stared angrily at the Sovereign.

This was too unfair! Killing a commander was a tremendous merit, but the Chief Sovereign of Death would only save a single person? However, if Linley wished to save his loved ones, this was the only path. There were no other options!

"If you are afraid, you can leave now." The Chief Sovereign of Death said calmly.

"I accept!" Linley raised his head, staring up at the Chief Sovereign of Death.

Even if he had to climb up a mountain of knives or descend into a sea of flames, Linley would make the attempt!

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 1, Desire

The Planar Wars. Just by listening to the Chief Sovereign of Death describe it, Linley knew how dangerous it had to be. However, Linley still chose to go! After all, aside from the Chief Sovereign of Death, the other Sovereigns wouldn't be able to help him!

"Whether or not you accept has nothing to do with me." The Chief Sovereign of Death stared down at Linley. "Everyone who represents the Netherworld who has accomplishments in the Planar Wars will be rewarded by me. No matter who! I'm just acting according to the rules, not just for your sake. I'm simply telling you about this."

Linley took a deep breath.

"Sovereign, what must I do in order to go participate in the Planar Wars?" Linley raised his head and asked.

The Chief Sovereign of Death said calmly, "The 'Purgatory' of the Infernal Realm or the 'Tartarus' of the Netherworld all have interspatial doors that lead directly to the Planar Battlefield. The Planar Battlefield is connected to all seven of the Divine Planes and all four of the Higher Realms. Hurry up and come up with a way of going to my Netherworld's Tartarus. By travelling through the interspatial gate, you'll arrive at the Planar Battlefield!"

Linley frowned.

Tartarus?

The book which Beirut had given him regarding the Netherworld hadn't mentioned a 'Tartarus' region. Actually, it was the same for the Infernal Realm's books; there had been no mention of a 'Purgatory'.

"Sovereign, might I ask where Tartarus..." Linley was about to speak out.

"Hmph." The Chief Sovereign of Death waved her hand.

Immediately, a very thin book covered in black light flew down, landing in front of Linley. The Chief Sovereign of Death stared down at Linley and said, "Since you have the courage to go to the Planar Battlefield, then I too am interested in seeing...if you, Linley, will survive to kill some commanders, or if you will be killed by other commanders who will then be rewarded for it!"

Linley wasn't angry at all. Accepting the book, he bowed slightly. "Thank you, Sovereign."

And then, Linley immediately began to flip through the book. The book was very thin, just ten pages long. Given Linley's memory, all he needed to do was sweep through it with a few glances. A few seconds later, the contents of these ten pages were imprinted deep within his mind.

"So this Tartarus is deep within the Nether Sea?" Linley couldn't help but raise his head to look towards the Chief Sovereign of Death.

It was too far away!

If he wished to go to Tartarus, he would first have to completely leave the Netherworld's continent and enter the Nether Sea, then venture deep into the Nether Sea before reaching Tartarus. If he rode on a metallic lifeform and hurried forward, he would probably need three centuries or so. This took up far too much time, and...even if he hurried there, the Planar Wars might have concluded already. He couldn't accept this.

"Sovereign, how long will the Planar Wars go on for?" Linley asked hurriedly.

The Chief Sovereign of Death said calmly, "Each Planar Wars goes on for a thousand years! This time, the battle between the Divine Light Realm and the Divine Darkness Realm has already gone on for nearly a hundred years. More than nine centuries remain. You have plenty of time to go!"

Plenty?

There was more than enough time to take part in the war, but Linley didn't wish to waste any time. The more time he wasted, the greater the danger his father and brothers were in of dying a final death. In addition, the more time he took, the more of the weaker commanders would die in the Planar Wars. By the time he arrived, most likely the surviving commanders would be the exceedingly powerful ones.

Such as Beirut...Dunnington...Reisgem...Mosi....

The images of these figures appeared in Linley's mind!

"Sovereign, then Bebe and I will head out immediately." Linley said, bowing.

Bebe had to swallow his discontent and bow before leaving as well.

"Go then." The Chief Sovereign of Death said calmly. "But I advise you that before heading to Tartarus, you should first become a Lord of Tartarus. That will also be very helpful to you in actually entering the Planar Wars. Arthurs, you lead the way for Linley. Send them out of the Abyssal Mountain!"

"Yes, Sovereign!" Arthurs bowed.

"First become a Lord of Tartarus, and then enter the Planar Wars?" Linley was rather puzzled.

But Linley didn't ask any more questions. Linley and Bebe looked meaningfully at Bailey in an expression of goodwill, and then strode out of the Sovereign's palace, following Arthurs and flying away.

"Mistress, that Linley seems to be quite confident. It seems he knows almost nothing about the Planar Wars." By now, the silver serpent Yennaway was all smiles, quite delighted. Yennaway knew a great deal regarding the savagery of the Planar Wars, and the struggles between the commanders. In addition, this was a war! Not a one-on-one duel!

Sometimes, multiple commanders of one side would join forces to attack another!

"Thank you, Sovereign." The silver serpent, Yennaway, laughed while bowing. She believed that the Sovereign had done this for the sake of letting Linley go and lose his life there as a way of helping Yennaway get revenge.

"Thank you, Sovereign." The colossal gold snake and his nine children all bowed in gratitude as well.

The Chief Sovereign of Death glanced calmly at them. "Enough. You can all leave now. Bailey!"

Bailey's eyes lit up, and he hurriedly walked forward to the center of the palace. The Chief Sovereign of Death finally was going to allow him to become an Emissary.

At the base of the Abyssal Mountain.

Linley and Bebe parted with Arthurs.

"Linley, before leaving, I must tell you something." Arthurs said solemnly. "Perhaps you aren't aware of this, but the Sovereigns all have an agreement. At most, they will give their Emissaries or their children a single Sovereign artifact! Regardless of which Sovereign's Emissary it is, they will at most receive a single Sovereign artifact."

"A single one?" Bebe frowned.

Linley was stunned. "Just one?"

But yes, that was indeed true!

For example, the Azure Dragon clan's Patriarch, Gislason, only had a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact. The Grand Elder, Gaia, only had that armor-type Sovereign artifact that merged with her scales. Given how much the Sovereign Azure Dragon cared about his children, why would he give them just a single one each? Linley finally began to understand.

"The Sovereigns don't wish for too great of an imbalance to appear amongst Highgods either." Arthurs explained. "If, hypothetically, a Highgod not only had an armor-type Sovereign artifact that merged into his body, but also a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact and an attack-type Sovereign artifact, then tell me...even if this sort of Highgod was weak in terms of understanding the Laws, wouldn't he be terrifying?"

Linley was stunned.

If one's material defense, soul defense, and attack power was all powered by Sovereign artifacts! This sort of person would indeed be monstrous.

"That'd...be invincible." Bebe muttered.

"Supreme experts who acquire one Sovereign artifact will naturally desire a second one! But Sovereigns can't just give them one. But if they want to kill an Emissary and seize the Sovereign artifact...even if you kill the Emissary and the Sovereign doesn't deign to lower himself to killing you in retaliation, the Sovereign will still take back his artifact!" Arthurs said.

"What? Take it back?" Bebe stared, wide-eyed.

Linley felt surprised as well.

Still, it made sense.

Each Sovereign artifact was the product of countless labors of a Sovereign, who then gave it to an Emissary. Not avenging the death of an Emissary was one thing, but how could they not take back their artifact?

"Thus, if you want to acquire a Sovereign artifact without being obstructed by a Sovereign, there's only one method; to participate in the Planar Wars, and to have accomplishments in battle! If you kill ten commanders, you'll be able to trade for a Sovereign artifact you want. If you kill twenty, you can trade for two!" Arthurs said.

"Arthurs, are you saying..." Linley frowned.

Arthurs said seriously, "The more powerful a person is, the more one seeks perfection! The Planar Wars only happen once every trillion years! Some supreme experts who, because of their prowess in battle, have obtained a second Sovereign artifact will then wish to acquire a third one. These experts are extremely powerful! Thus, you must be extremely careful. You cannot be the slightest bit incautious. There might even be Highgod Paragons amongst them! After all, although they have perfected their mastery of the Laws, they might not have a perfect set of Sovereign artifacts!"

Linley had a sour taste in his mouth.

This was completely understandable. If he were to have become a Highgod Paragon, he too would then desire to simultaneously wield three Sovereign artifacts! If he went to participate in the Planar Wars and encountered this sort of freakishly powerful individual, he wouldn't be able to fight back at all.

"These people are too greedy." Bebe felt frightened as well.

"It isn't greed, it is desire!" Arthurs laughed calmly. "Only by having a desire will one have the motivation to move towards that goal! For those who have reached the peak...which one of them didn't have a firm goal in mind? Which one of them didn't have a desire? Everyone who can roam about in the Planar Wars is a supreme expert, the true kings of battle! Although I am a Sovereign's Emissary, I haven't participated in the Planar Wars a single time. That place...is a slaughter field! The place where experts fall! But also the place where experts are born!"

Linley shook his head and laughed.

"Haha...Arthurs, thank you for telling me these things. I'm mentally prepared now." Linley laughed.

"Don't worry." Bebe said. "If someone wishes to kill my brother, we'll first have to see if he's qualified to do so! When my Boss and I simultaneously use our innate divine abilities...hmph!"

Arthurs glanced at Linley and Bebe.

"Just remember! It's not just the two of you who have innate divine abilities. In the vast, myriad planes, there are quite a few other unique divine beasts who also possess extremely terrifying divine abilities. The others who have reached the pinnacle without a divine ability also have their own powers to rely on." Arthurs chuckled. "Alright, I'll say no more. I wish the two of you good luck."

"Thank you."

Linley and Bebe immediately bade Arthurs farewell, then transformed into two rays of light, flying away into the distance.

From the Abyssal Mountain to Tartarus, the distance truly was too great. After flying for some time, Linley said apologetically, "Bebe, if we ride the metallic lifeform to Tartarus, we'll probably need two or three centuries. I don't have any time to waste, so...I've decided to fly forward at full speed on my own power. I'm going to have to ask you to fly with me."

"Haha, I love flying anyhow." Bebe understood what Linley was thinking.

It would be rather tiring and taxing on his spiritual energy to wholeheartedly fly forward at high speed, especially on such a long journey. Very few people would rely on their own bodies to fly. It was indeed much faster to fly on one's own, and one would travel far faster than a metallic lifeform, true, but it was too tiring. Still...what Linley needed right now was time. This was his only choice.

"Crackle..." Linley instantly Dragonformed.

And then, activating the Laws of the Wind, Linley flew towards the northern skies like an azure streak of light. If he were to fly at full speed, Linley would outstrip even Bebe, but Linley also used his divine wind power to help Bebe slightly.

"Boss, have you told this to my grandpa yet?" Bebe asked while flying.

"My divine fire clone has already gone to the Forest of Darkness to ask your grandpa. We will have some results soon. I don't know what your grandpa will say." Linley wasn't confident about this journey either. Fortunately, his divine fire clone remained in the Yulan continent, and so he could go ask Beirut about this.

Moments later...

"Your grandpa has a reply for us." Linley said.

"What did he say?" Bebe immediately asked. "He should allow us to participate in the Planar Wars, right? Actually, it doesn't matter even if he refuses. He isn't in the Netherworld."

"Your grandpa agreed." Linley chuckled. "Based on what your grandpa said...we need to be careful and not be greedy. He also said that you, Bebe, should go experience some real danger and so hopefully gain some insights. This would be of assistance to you in improving your understandings of the profound mysteries of the Laws." Linley still remembered the tone in which Beirut spoke.

According to what Beirut had said...

Men were supposed to adventure. If they were always hiding and afraid of danger, it would be very hard for them to be successful.

"Right. Grandpa has already done enough for me. It's time for me to work hard." Bebe pursed his lips.

An azure streak of light flashed through the skies of the Netherworld, travelling at such speed that no bandits who saw them would dare to stop them. Even if they were hotheaded, they still wouldn't dare to stop them, nor would they be able to catch them.

"Rumble..." A vast, endless sea of water was undulating slightly. Staring into this deep, fathomless sea was like staring at a titanic, man-eating beast.

This was the Nether Sea! The Nether Sea which was even greater than the Infernal Realm's 'Chaotic Sea'!

Suddenly...

A streak of azure light flashed past the skies above the sea, then in the blink of an eye disappeared from sight.

"Boss, we're almost at the Tartarus region." Bebe said.

"Based on the islands we saw earlier, we'll need just a bit more time before arriving at Tartarus." Linley couldn't help but feel much better as well. After having flown at full speed for more than thirty years, Linley's original body hadn't rested at all for those thirty years. Fortunately, he was able to withstand this sort of exhaustion.

And in the past thirty years, Linley's divine clones were all focused on training. However, in thirty short years, his power didn't improve that much.

Fortunately, the soul-protecting Sovereign artifact, which had the 'bandage' over the flaw be broken through by the colossal golden snake, had been re-repaired quite a bit, after thirty years of effort.

"Boss, look! An island!" Bebe called out jubilantly.

Linley looked over, and saw that extremely far in the distance, land could be seen. "We've finally reached Tartarus!"

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 2, Flamebone Mountain

Tartarus was divided up into a total of eighty one territories.

Although they were called territories, in actuality, they represented eighty one enormous islands. In the past, when the Overgod of Death had created the Netherworld, he had left behind this unusual region deep in the Nether Sea; Tartarus. These eighty one islands were all comparable in size and very close to each other. If one looked at a map of them, one would see that they were arranged into a round shape.

“Tartarus, the gathering place for the experts of the Netherworld!”
Linley stood there in midair, stared at the distant islands.

Tartarus was just like the Infernal Realm’s ‘Purgatory’; many experts who loved to do battle gathered there. They were arrogant and unyielding, and they loved to fight. After the passage of countless years, the eighty one territories of Tartarus had given birth to eighty one Lords! The Lords of Tartarus were thus supreme experts!

Upon becoming a Lord of Tartarus, one would then have to face the challenges of other experts. Upon being defeated, the new, stronger expert would take the position!

“Swoosh!”

An azure streak of light flashed past the skies, quickly descending on the nearest island. Although it was described as an ‘island’, that was just in comparison to the vast Netherworld continent. If the Yulan continent were to be compared to it, the entire Yulan continent would be but a speck! Every single one of these eighty one 'islands' had a circumference of millions of kilometers.

As soon as they landed, Linley and Bebe stared at their surroundings.

This was a desolate, dreary land with almost no people.

"After having flown for so long, I still have no idea which of the eighty one islands this island is!" Linley frowned slightly. The Nether Sea was too vast. Linley had relied on some unique waypoints to sketch out a rough journey. But the vastness of the Nether Sea meant that even the slightest deviation in direction would result in one ending up in a different island.

Their only choice was to first figure out which of the eighty one islands they were currently on.

That way, Linley would be able to be certain of the locations of the other islands and so go find that interspatial gate.

"Boss, that's simple. Find someone and ask. However, there really are so few people here, completely different from the Netherworld continent." Bebe said with a frown. Linley laughed, "Everyone who dares to come to Tartarus is an expert. Even if ten million or a hundred million people were present, given how large the island is, that still would be a small figure. I imagine everyone would be clustered towards the center. Oh, hey, someone's over there!"

Linley's eyes lit up.

From afar, a golden-haired male was flying forward at high speed.

"Let's go ask!" Linley and Bebe flashed forward like lightning, piercing through the skies in pursuit.

The golden-haired man turned back to look and was shocked. "What fast speed! Not easy to deal with!" Killings occurred in Tartarus at every moment. This golden-haired man didn't dare to flee, for fear of angering them. He came to a halt, waiting for Linley and Bebe to arrive and halt in front of him, then forced out a smile. "What do the two of you need?"

However, he looked with especial surprise towards Linley, who was currently in Dragonform.

"Don't worry." Bebe said soothingly. "We aren't here to cause you trouble, just to ask you a question. Which of the eighty one islands of Tartarus is this island?"

The golden-haired man let out an inwards sigh of relief, then replied, "This island is the Lotuscliff Island of Tartarus."

"Lotuscliff Island? It seems in our haste to get here, we did indeed go slightly off our mark. We were originally planning to head to Willowshu Island." A map of the eighty one islands of Tartarus appeared in Linley's mind, and he immediately knew where he was located, and where they should head next.

"Thank you." Linley said to the golden-haired man, then said, "Bebe, let's go."

Linley and Bebe, without resting, immediately flew into the air once more, flying directly eastwards at high speed.

"Whew." The golden-haired man, watching Linley and Bebe leave, finally let out a sigh of relief. The aura from the Dragonformed Linley was enough to cause him to be nervous.

The centermost island of Tartarus...Flamebone Island!

Flamebone Island's most famous location was 'Flamebone Mountain'. Flamebone Mountain didn't have any supreme experts living there, but it was the place which held the interspatial gate leading to the Planar Wars. Each time a Planar War was about to begin, large numbers of people would pass through from here to the Planar Battlefield.

Flamebone Island. The vast land of this island had a few occasional ancient stone buildings scattered throughout it.

"Second Brother, today, the bald man at the 'Bloodbath Arena' really was powerful. He has at least fused three profound mysteries in lightning." Two black-robed youths were flying in midair while chatting amongst themselves about what the battles they had just seen in the Bloodbath Arena.

"He was indeed fairly strong. He has already won sixty battles, including today's. I wonder if he'll be able to win a hundred." The other, slightly skinner black-robed said with a sigh.

“So what if he does win a hundred battles? Do you think he’ll have the courage to go challenge the Flamebone Lord?” The slightly fatter black-robed youth snickered. “The two of us have been here in the Flamebone region for a hundred million years, and have seen quite a few victors of a hundred battles, yes? But there have been only three who dared to challenge the Flamebone Lord, and on those three occasions, you saw the Flamebone Lord’s power as well. Those who challenged him definitely had the power of Seven Star Specters or even higher. They were far more powerful than that bald man, but...they all died within one exchange! They didn’t even have the chance to fight back.”

“However, no one will have the chance to challenge the Flamebone Lord for now, even if they want to. I hear the Flamebone Lord entered the Planar Battlefield.”

“Right, right. The Planar Battlefield! That’s a place where even Seven Star Specters will end up being slaughtered. However, if they manage to make it out alive with some accomplishments, then it’ll be incredible. I hear that one can acquire Sovereign’s Might, or at the higher levels, even a Sovereign artifact!” The two black-robed men chatted amongst each other, rather jealous.

The greater the danger, the greater the rewards.

However...

The vast majority of people would turn green with fear when discussing the Planar Battlefield and not dare to enter.

"Eh?" The black-robed brothers suddenly turned to stare into the distance.

Two blurs streaked across the sky in a flash, advancing forward at high speed. They were so fast that the two black-robed brothers immediately grew alert. They came to a halt, and saw that it was a youth dressed in a long, sky-blue robe and a youngster wearing a straw hat. The youth said with a smile, "Apologies. There's something I would like to ask. Do either of you know where Flamebone Mountain is?"

Linley knew that the Flamebone Island had a Flamebone Mountain, but had never been there before.

"Flamebone Mountain?"

The two black-robed brothers felt their hearts tremble, and they forced smiles onto their faces.

"Flamebone Mountain. Just head in that direction for a few hundred thousand kilometers, and you'll see an enormous mountain blazing with fire from afar. That is Flamebone Mountain." The slightly fatter black-robed youth said with a laugh.

"Thanks, you two."

Linley chuckled, and then he and Bebe immediately flew towards the direction the black-robed youth had pointed towards at high speed.

"Whew." The black-robed brothers glanced at each other, shock in their eyes.

“Heading to Flamebone Mountain at a time like this? It seems they are headed for the Planar Wars. However, it won’t be so easy for them to get in.” The slightly fatter black-robed youth’s eyes lit up. “Second Brother, tell me, which of those two is someone on the level of a Tartarus Lord?”

Linley and Bebe flew in the designated direction for a short while. They soon saw, in the distance, an enormous mountain which was covered by swirling, dim, dark red flames. This mountain was tens of thousands of meters tall. Although it wasn’t as tall as the Abyssal Mountain, it was quite high for an island.

“Flamebone Mountain!” Linley’s eyes narrowed.

“We’ve hurried all the way over here. At least we finally have reached Flamebone Mountain.” Bebe revealed a smile as well.

Linley immediately returned to human form. For now, there was no need for them to hurry. After staring at Flamebone Mountain for a short period of time, Linley and Bebe immediately flew straight to the base of the mountain! Flamebone Mountain was pitch-black, and there was no hint of any vegetation about it. It seemed as though it was completely made from black stones.

The surface of the mountain was covered with swirling, dark red flames.

These dark red flames had never been extinguished, despite the passage of countless years. Even at the base of the mountain, Linley could sense the strange, bizarre aura emanating from those dark red flames.

Linley raised his head, staring towards the tip of the Flamebone Mountain.

At the tip of this Flamebone Mountain, which was perpetually covered in flames, an extremely large black castle was constructed. This black castle was also surrounded by swirling, dark red flames.

"Swoosh!" "Swoosh!"

Linley and Bebe rose into the sky. Within a few moments, they arrived at the gates to the black castle. The castle was completely black, but the main gates were a dazzling bloody red color. Just looking at the door, Linley sensed a killing aura flooding towards him.

There were more than ten people standing at the entrance to the castle, all dressed in black armor.

"Newcomers, halt!" One of the guards barked.

"We are entering the Planar Battlefield." Linley said directly.

"Hurry up and get out of the way." Bebe barked coldly.

The ten-plus guards looked at each other, rather stunned. The look on the face of the first guard who had shouted immediately turned friendly. He immediately laughed, "So milords are entering the Planar Battlefield.

Might I ask which of you two lords is a Lord of Tartarus?"

"Lord of Tartarus?" Linley and Bebe were stunned.

Seeing the look on their faces, the guard frowned slightly, but he immediately said, "Then...of the two of you, milords, which is a Lord Prefect of the Netherworld?"

Linley and Bebe were both lost.

"Hey, we're going into the Planar Battlefield! Why mention the Tartarus Lords or the Lord Prefects of the Netherworld?" Bebe barked impatiently. "Hurry up and lead us to the interspatial gate and let us enter the Planar Battlefield. We're in a hurry and have no time to waste with you!"

The ten-plus guards, who had been all smiles earlier, suddenly had cold looks on their faces.

"F*ck off!" One of the guards barked coldly. "Don't cause trouble here! If you keep causing trouble, don't blame us for being merciless!"

Linley and Bebe, hearing this, were both stunned. Bebe couldn't help but grow enraged. "What did you say?! If you let us in immediately, I won't quibble about what you just said, but otherwise..."

"I told you to F*CK OFF!" The guard roared coldly. A long black spear suddenly appeared in his hands, and he casually pierced towards Bebe with it. The long black spear, when stabbing out, flew forward like a black dragon, causing ripples in space to appear. But Bebe just stretched out with his hand, easily clamping onto the tip of the spear.

The guard was stunned. Enraged, he wanted to pull free, but he wasn't able to.

The other guards were stunned as well.

"Bebe, don't get in over your head. They are the soldiers of a Sovereign, after all." Linley sent mentally.

Bebe stared angrily at this guard. "Speak! If it wasn't for the sake of the Sovereign, I would've killed you long ago. Speak! Why won't you let us in?"

The guard finally realized how powerful the person in front of him was. Although he was a Sovereign's soldier, if he really did end up infuriating this person and being killed by him, that would be a terrible death. He hurriedly said, "Milords, it isn't that we won't let you in, it is that you truly cannot enter! This is the rule which the Sovereigns set. There has always been this rule, over countless years."

"What rule?" Linley barked.

"To activate the interspatial gate and enter the Planar Battlefield, one person in the group must be a Lord of Tartarus or a Lord Prefect of the Netherworld; they are allowed to bring people in. But ordinary Highgods are not qualified to enter on their own." The guard hurriedly explained.

Linley frowned. He suddenly understood.

The highest ranked individuals in the Planar Wars were the 'commanders', figures on the Lord Prefect and Tartarus Lord levels. Only commanders were allowed to bring people in. Ordinary Highgods were not granted entry.

"No wonder the Sovereign said that you were to first become a Lord of Tartarus before entering." Bebe looked towards Linley.

Linley thought back to what the Chief Sovereign of Death had said to him as well.

"Are you saying that I must find a Lord of Tartarus to bring me in, and that's it?" Linley asked again.

"Right, right." The guard said hurriedly.

"Are there any other rules?" Linley asked.

The guard added, "The Planar Battlefield is occupied by two warring planes. There are only 'commanders' and ordinary soldiers. Thus, ordinary Highgods who entered are just soldiers who must obey the commands of the commanders. They aren't permitted to run about wildly in the Planar Battlefield! Milords, when you enter, you must obey as well. Only commanders are allowed to independently lead their forces to rove about and do battle within the Planar Battlefield as they chose."

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 3, Target

Linley now understood.

“No wonder the Sovereign advised me to first become a Lord of Tartarus before entering. If I entered with the status of a common soldier, I would have to follow orders. There’d be no way I would have the chance to go kill enemy commanders.” Linley understood that only by travelling on his own would he be able to quickly kill enemy commanders.

To be controlled by others...how could that be acceptable?

“Aside from these, are there any other rules?” Linley asked.

“None.” The guard said hurriedly. “The rules are very simple. Commanders are qualified to take others into the Planar Battlefield. In the Planar Battlefield, the various commanders are allowed to move about as they please, while the soldiers follow orders. That’s it! As for how many war merits need to be accumulated for how many rewards, it is written on the stone stele by the side of the interspatial gate!”

Linley nodded slightly.

Military merits and rewards, Linley didn’t care too much about for now. After all, he wasn’t even qualified to enter; it was too early to bother about the other things.

“Bebe, let’s go.” Linley sent mentally.

Linley and Bebe immediately flew away from this Flamebone Mountain. In midair, Bebe said frantically, "Boss, what should we do now? If we want to go in, we have to rely on either a Tartarus Lord or a Lord Prefect of the Netherworld. We only have these two options; either to find one of them to lead us in, or we ourselves become one of the two!"

"The first route is unacceptable." Linley shook his head. "First of all, in Tartarus, the Lords who are not already inside the Planar Battlefield are the ones who did not wish to go inside and risk their lives. Why would they lead us in? In addition, if we go in as ordinary soldiers, we have to follow orders. My goal in entering is to kill enemy commanders."

Bebe looked at Linley, then began to laugh. "Boss, are you saying...?"

"We have to come up with a way to become a Lord of Tartarus!" Linley said slowly.

"Haha, I approve." Bebe's eyes were shining, but then he frowned. "But it won't be that easy."

"No, it won't. There are no weaklings amongst the Lords of Tartarus." Linley also knew that every single one of the Tartarus Lords, when defeated, would be replaced by another expert. This process, over the course of countless years, had resulted in the eighty one Tartarus Lords being individuals of terrifyingly great power.

He himself knew Reisgem and Mosi, two Purgatory Commanders of the Infernal Realm. Beirut, in turn, was the Lord Prefect of Indigo Prefecture.

“There should still be strong members and weak members amongst the eighty one Tartarus Lords. The strong would be like Beirut and Dunnington, but even the weaker ones shouldn’t be weaker than me.” Linley said. “If I were to challenge an individual on the same level as your grandpa, Beirut, that would be throwing my life away!”

Bebe nodded as well. “If we find a weak one, we’ll still have a chance.”

“But who is strong and who is weak?” Linley frowned as he spoke. “The other tricky thing right now is that we don’t even know what the rules are for challenging the Tartarus Lords. Also, which Tartarus Lords are already in the Planar Battlefield, and which are still in Tartarus? I have to learn this as well.”

“Even if we have decided already to do battle, we still need to find a target first. Not a single one of the eighty one Tartarus Lords will be easy to deal with.” Linley didn’t know anything about these Lords of Tartarus.

Bebe had a sour look on his face as well.

He, too, had no idea, but he then said, “Boss, in the eighty one regions, there are cities in each region, right? There must be many people in the cities. It will be easy for us to investigate there.” Bebe said.

“That’s our only option.” Linley nodded.

In the central region of Flamebone Island, there was a city. Things clearly were much more lively within the city.

In a restaurant.

Linley and Bebe were seated facing each other. Linley glanced at his surroundings, discovering that just as expected, there were many Highgods present here in Flamebone City. But there were Gods and Demigods present as well! "It seems as though they are the children left behind by those Highgods of Tartarus." Linley guessed.

"The two of you, this is our restaurant's menu." A smiling God delivered the menu.

Linley looked at him while setting up his Godrealm. The look on the waiter's face changed, and he looked warily at Linley, who just laughed. "Don't worry. I just want to ask you a few things."

"Please speak." The waiter was still able to maintain his calm.

"Are there any rules in Tartarus to challenging the Lords of Tartarus?" Linley asked.

The waiter gave Linley a puzzled look, but then said, "That's easy. In the eighty one regions, every single regional capital will have a 'Bloodbath Arena'. As long as one consecutively wins a hundred battles within the Bloodbath Arena, then...the victor of the hundred battles will be qualified to issue the local Lord of Tartarus a challenge!"

"Oh?" Linley's eyes lit up.

"Isn't that the same as Miluo Island?" Bebe began to laugh as well.

Perhaps Miluo Island was copying the way things were done here in Tartarus.

"I wish to know if there are any peculiarities about the eighty one Tartarus Lords? Who is strong? Who is weak? And also, which of them are here in Tartarus, and which of them have gone to the Planar Battlefield?" Linley asked in succession.

The waiter said resignedly, "Milords, this...how should I know?"

Linley chuckled. Waiters generally knew a great deal of information. Linley thus asked again, "Then tell me, who does know? Who knows the most?"

The waiter said hurriedly, "In our city, there are intelligence reports regarding the various Tartarus Lords for sale."

"Intelligence reports for sale?" Linley's eyes lit up.

It made sense. Wherever there was a demand, there would be a market. Most likely, many people had the desire to challenge one of the eighty one Tartarus Lords. Naturally, many people would want to know some details regarding the eighty one Tartarus Lords.

"Where are they sold? Take me there, and I'll give you ten thousand inkstones." Linley said calmly. "Here are five thousand inkstones. Afterwards, I'll give you five thousand more." Linley immediately gave him the money.

Inkstones could also be used here within the Netherworld.

"Ten thousand inkstones?" The waiter's eyes instantly lit up. He wasn't worried that Linley would attack him within the city limits either. He immediately said, "Fine, but might I ask, when do you wish to go, milords? After eating, or...?"

"Right now."

Linley and Bebe both stood up.

"Alright. Please wait a moment. I'll go speak with the boss." The waiter was very friendly.

"Boss, it really was simple." Bebe laughed as he looked at Linley.

"In a place like this restaurant, where the dragons mingle with the fish, these waiters will hear many things and learn many things. It is convenient to ask them." Linley let out a sigh of relief in his heart as well. So this city actually had intelligence reports devoted to the eighty one Lords. This made things much simpler.

"Milords, follow me." After having taken their five thousand inkstones, this waiter became very friendly, immediately leading the way.

While walking on the streets, Bebe said, puzzled, "Could it be that the eighty one Lords of Tartarus are not opposed to this sort of intelligence report sales?"

"The Lords of Tartarus are experts who are far above us. What could they possibly fear?" The waiter said hurriedly. "They don't care about this at all. Actually, even in our city's official castle, there are also reports regarding the eighty one Lords of Tartarus for sale. However, the price is too high! You need a million netherstones for a copy. The place I am taking you two will be much cheaper; you only need ten thousand netherstones for a copy."

Linley laughed.

For this sort of intelligence report, once a single person bought a copy, that person could reproduce tens of millions of copies and sell them. This was a good line of work to get into.

"Most people don't know about these secretive places, but I've been in this business since I was a kid." The waiter said.

"Since you were a kid?" Bebe said in surprise.

The waiter nodded. "Tartarus has no transportation arrays. Virtually everyone who originally came to Tartarus was a Highgod. We Demigods and Gods were all born here in Tartarus. I am weak, and am only capable of surviving in the city. It's not bad. There aren't too many people in Tartarus, so the prices of the houses are quite low."

Linley laughed as well.

In the continents of the Netherworld and Infernal Realm, the prices of the city houses were extremely high. However, here in Tartarus, there were many remote areas which were completely unpopulated. Clearly, each island had a fairly low population, and so naturally, the housing prices were much better.

But although there weren't many people here, there were many experts.

"This fellow really is familiar with this city." Linley sighed to himself. The waiter led Linley and Bebe forward in a very practiced manner, passing through various small alleyways and remote paths in a constant advance. In but a few moments, they arrived in front of an ordinary little courtyard. "Here we are. Right here."

Linley glanced at the courtyard. He couldn't see anything special about it.

"Open the door!" The waiter immediately knocked on the door.

Soon, the courtyard door opened. A muscular, silver-haired man walked out, giving them a glance. After seeing the waiter, he laughed. "So it's you, kid. What is it? Did you help me bring a customer?"

"We need a set of reports regarding the eighty one Lords of Tartarus." Linley said.

"Please enter, you two." The silver-haired man said hurriedly.

The waiter immediately looked towards Linley and Bebe. Linley laughed, then very casually pulled out five pieces of azurite, handing them to the waiter. The waiter immediately accepted them. "Thank you, milords. I'll leave now."

"You just made quite a bit, kid." The silver-haired man chortled. "The two of you, please come in."

Linley and Bebe followed him into the courtyard. There were actually more than ten people seated there, three of whom were Highgods, the others all Gods or Demigods. One of them, a red-haired youth, rose to his feet, smiling as he came to welcome them. The silver-haired man said, "Second Bro, they want a copy of the intelligence reports on the eighty one Lords of Tartarus."

"Right." Linley nodded.

"Oh, do you want the concise version, the detailed version, or...the secret version?" The red-haired youth said.

Linley was startled.

The intelligence reports were divided into three levels?

"I imagine there must be a difference in price as well." Bebe laughed.

The red-haired youth nodded. "Naturally. The concise versions are ten thousand netherstones. The detailed versions are a hundred thousand netherstones. As for the one with all the secrets, that costs a million netherstones." The nearby silver-haired man said hurriedly, "But of course, you can also use inkstones to trade."

"Describe the differences." Linley said with curiosity.

"The ordinary version introduces the eighty one Tartarus Lords, what Laws they specialize in, and how many battles they have been in and won, as well as their living locations." The red-haired youth said.

"The detailed version has the Laws they specialize in, their ultimate techniques, and whether or not they have gone to the Planar Battlefield. It also has detailed descriptions of each and every public battle they have been in. Every single one of them!" The red-haired youth smiled.

Bebe's eyes lit up, and Linley laughed as well.

This was good!

It even had the ultimate techniques and Laws which the Lords specialized in, as well as descriptions of each battle. This was indeed excellent.

"And the secret one?" Linley said, curious.

"The secret one includes information on the family and friends of the eighty one Tartarus Lords, what they often do, what sort of temper they have, and whatnot. But of course...because this information is too closely held, I can't guarantee its accuracy. Aside from these written materials, many scryer recordings are also provided, all of them of the public battles of the eighty one Tartarus Lords!" The red-haired youth said.

Linley and Bebe glanced at each other.

Good heavens, this was too detailed.

Written information, paired with large amounts of scyer recordings. This would definitely allow for one to gain a clear understanding of those Tartarus Lords.

Bebe laughed, "Then we want the secret version."

The red-haired youth and the silver-haired man all began to laugh. "Excellent. We'll arrange for a copy to be brought over."

A million inkstones, to Linley, was nothing. And for this red-haired youth, these intelligence reports could be duplicated, and so their own costs were quite low as well. They, too, knew...that many experts would choose the secret level version. And, to experts, a million was nothing.

"Here they are!" The silver-haired man walked out of a room, carrying a large chest. Within the chest, there was a large amount of written material, as well as quite a few crystal balls.

"Excellent." Linley walked over, sweeping them with his gaze.

"Lotuscliff Region. The Lord here is 'Crimsonmight', and he lives within Lotuscliff Region's..." Seeing a line of words atop one of the written documents, Linley nodded slightly.

"Fine. Here are a million inkstones." Linley handed over a large piece of azurite.

"If the two of you need to know other information regarding the Tartarus region, just come find us. We give a 10% discount to repeat customers." The red-haired youth chortled.

Linley just laughed and, with a wave of his hand, drew the entire chest into his interspatial ring.

With such detailed information, he could now determine exactly who he should select!

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 4, Redcliff Lord

Flamebone Region. Within an upstairs, private room in a restaurant.

"Enough. Unless we call for you, no need to enter." Linley instructed.

"Yes, sir."

The waiter carried the platter out of the room, shutting the door on the way out.

"Boss, hurry up and bring out those documents and those scryer recordings." Bebe immediately urged. After acquiring the materials, Linley and Bebe had yet to carefully inspect them, as there had been no suitable place to read them. After all, they couldn't just start flipping through them on the streets, right? "Don't be impatient." Linley laughed. With a thought, he made the large chest materialize, and it hovered above the table.

Linley moved the three dishes and the wine on the table to one side, then placed the thick stack of materials onto the table.

"So many." Bebe stretched his hand out, grabbing the documents.

"Let's not waste time. Bebe, you and I will each take half. Let's all do a quick read-through of these documents and see which Tartarus Lord is suitable to be our target." Linley said. While speaking, Linley began to flip through a large pile of documents, first reviewing the ones related to the rules of challenging the Lords of Tartarus.

If he was going to challenge a Lord, it would be very important for him to know the rules.

While reading, Bebe suddenly looked towards Linley and asked, "Boss, should you go challenge, or should I?"

Linley lifted his head to look at Bebe, then laughed. "Bebe, not just anyone can go challenge a Lord of Tartarus. The prerequisite is that you have to be a victor of a hundred battles in the arena, winning ten consecutive battles each day for ten days. Bebe...do you think you will find it easy to win ten battles in a row?"

"Of course. With my innate divine ability, 'Godeater', I refuse to believe anyone will be a match for me." Bebe said confidently.

"What if you didn't have access to the innate divine ability?" Linley laughed while asking.

Bebe was speechless.

If he didn't have the innate divine ability 'Godeater', he, Bebe, simply had tough defense, but in terms of offense, the only thing he had to rely on was a godspark weapon. He would be able to use it to defeat ordinary Highgods, but not a single person who dared to participate in the Bloodbath Arena would be a weakling; weaklings would simply be going to their deaths. It would indeed be hard for Bebe to win.

"I...but I DO have my innate divine ability. Boss, your hypothetical is meaningless." Bebe argued.

Linley wiped the smile from his face, then said solemnly, "Bebe, if you want to rely on your innate divine ability to win a hundred battles in a row, then first of all, your soul is only able to use it twice in succession; for the remaining battles, you'd have to rely on using amethysts and Golden Soul-Pearls to replenish your spiritual energy. It will be very taxing. And secondly!"

Bebe raised an eyebrow.

Linley continued, "Secondly, we are going to go challenge a Lord of Tartarus. Thus, it's best if we don't reveal our trump cards right away. Bebe, think about it. When you are at the Bloodbath Arena, if you reveal your innate divine ability, then...the Lord of Tartarus would definitely learn of it as well. By then, he would definitely come up with a way to deal with your ability!"

"Deal with my ability?" Bebe was stunned. "What sort of method could he come up with?"

"Preemptively kill you." Linley said with a calm laugh.

"I'm not afraid." Bebe said.

"If he isn't confident in being able to kill you, perhaps that Lord of Tartarus would secretly leave the island, and then publicly say that he has gone out on an important matter. He would let you wait for a thousand years or ten thousand years. Are you able to wait that long?" Linley asked him. "My understanding is that challenges...can be deferred by up to ten thousand years." Linley just saw this in the rules.

Bebe was speechless.

Indeed, issuing a challenge to a Lord of Tartarus wasn't something which could be carried out immediately.

If the Lord of Tartarus wasn't even in the Netherworld, even if you challenged him...you'd have to wait for him to return and receive word of the challenge before you could fight.

"Bebe, we can't waste any time!" Linley said solemnly.

"Oh." Bebe said helplessly.

If Bebe were to fight, what Linley feared was...the Lord of Tartarus, upon seeing Bebe use his innate divine ability, 'Godeater', would be so terrified that he wouldn't even dare to fight, and would secretly slip away. This was actually quite normal. If a person knew that he had no chance of winning but still went to fight, that would be tantamount to suicide.

But just admitting defeat was very humiliating.

Thus, quite a few Lords of Tartarus would choose...to secretly slip away and delay by ten thousand years.

If he didn't accept the challenge within ten thousand years, then the position of Tartarus Lord would immediately be transferred to the challenger.

This was a method by which the challenger would receive the position of Tartarus Lord, and the former incumbent would also be able to save a bit of face. Logically speaking, this was a win-win proposal, but to Linley, it was not, because he had to seize every minute of time so that he could enter the Planar Wars. The Planar Wars, however, only had eight hundred years remaining. He wasn't able to wait that long!

"Right." Bebe nodded slightly.

"Bebe, when I attack, I am capable of completely hiding my power. For example, if I don't Dragonform and don't use my innate divine ability! But of course, I still have to show one thing off slightly; my Blackstone Space! But I'll weaken even the gravitational power of my Blackstone Space. It will be more than enough against those Five Star Fiends, Six Star Fiends, and Seven Star Fiends." Linley said with a calm laugh.

He would lower the power of the Blackstone Space to the level at which it was at when he was just a God.

Linley's full-force Blackstone Space was something which ordinary Seven Star Fiends might just barely be able to resist, even if they went all out, resulting in them being slaughtered at will.

If he only exerted a tenth of the power of the Blackstone Space, that was already enough as far as Linley was concerned.

"Just by showing a bit of my power, I'll be strong enough to win a hundred consecutive battles. I trust the Lord of Tartarus wouldn't be afraid to fight me just because I revealed a little bit of power. By then, when the time comes, I'll use all my strength. Bebe, what you need to do is carefully look through the materials and see who amongst them has a supreme technique that is perfectly countered by me." Linley said.

Bebe laughed and said, "Heh heh, Boss, you want to win in a back-handed way, eh? Fine, I'll take a look and see whose strengths are countered by you."

Linley began to carefully flip through the materials as well.

In total, there were eighty one Tartarus Lords, and of course, they couldn't all be perfect, invincible experts with no weaknesses. Perhaps some of them would just so happen to be countered by Linley's strengths.

"So powerful." While flipping through the materials, Linley couldn't help but suck in a cold breath. "The Lotuscliff Lord, the lord of the first island I arrived at, has actually not been challenged in countless years for his position. His supreme technique creates a translucent flame which kills anyone it touches, without exception?" Linley felt his heart turn cold as he read through the materials.

Each of the experts who dared to challenge a Tartarus Lord possessed confidence as well as their own supreme techniques.

But without exception, each of them touched by that translucent flame was killed.

“Boss, this Flamebone Lord is so powerful. In the past hundred million years, three people came to challenge him, all of whom were killed in a single blow.” Bebe called out in surprise as well.

“Bebe, these people have held their positions unshakably firm for countless years, and the challengers were all easily killed. For now, let’s put these especially strong Tartarus Lords off to one side.” Linley said immediately. Linley didn’t have confidence in being able to defeat those Tartarus Lords who had never had their positions threatened and who had never been forced to reveal too much of their power.

While reading through the many documents, Linley felt his blood beginning to stir.

So many experts. One challenge after another, one death after another. However, the Netherworld had countless experts in pursuit of perfect. In their hearts, becoming a Lord Prefect or a Tartarus Lord was their dream. For the sake of their dreams, they wouldn’t be afraid to sacrifice their lives.

Occasionally, some would succeed and become a new Lord of Tartarus!

“So indeed, amongst the Lords of Tartarus, there are a few who are monstrously powerful, but some who aren’t too terrifying.” Linley, when reading through the materials introducing some of the other Lords of Tartarus, felt slightly more relaxed. The eighty one Tartarus Lords did indeed have invincible figures akin to Beirut or Dunnington.

No one dared to challenge these people!

"Hm, this one isn't bad." Linley's eyes lit up as he carefully read through some more documents. "Oh, an expert in the Laws of Water. Extremely strong spiritual defense. When he uses his divine power, his material defense can also reach a virtually undefeatable level. And his material attacks are extremely powerful as well!" Linley carefully read through this person's description, and he began to feel a bit of confidence in his heart.

He was choosing an opponent!

Linley completely ignored the Tartarus Lords who were legendary for their soul attacks. Linley had some degree of confidence in his ability to deal with material attacks, and in addition, this Lord of Tartarus he had taken an interest in had developed a monstrously powerful defense through using 'divine power' in forming a constant, unbreakable layer of armor.

"If I were to use my innate divine ability, 'Dragon Roar', to change his flow of time...with time changed, the defense he controls with his divine power will definitely no longer be perfect, especially given that I'll also be using powerful gravitational powers on him through my Blackstone Space." Linley couldn't help but begin to laugh, and he hurriedly began to review the documents regarding other details of this individual.

But then, his face froze, because he saw a line of words on the second page.

"What? He went to the Planar Battlefield?"

"Next one." Linley had no choice but to do this.

There was nothing he could do...

The eighty one Tartarus Lords were almost all proficient in soul attacks. Even if they weren't proficient, their soul defenses were generally quite strong. Linley's soul defense was actually quite strong as well. Given his spiritual energy was at the Highgod level, that he had fused three profound mysteries, and that he had that innate azure glow surrounding his soul as well as the damaged soul-protecting Sovereign artifact, he was already beyond the level of most Seven Star Fiends.

But his opponents were the Lords of Tartarus, after all. Truly supreme experts.

"Boss, I have one here." Bebe suddenly called out.

Linley raised his head and looked over. "Where is he? Not in the Planar Battlefield, I hope."

"Nope. The intelligence report says that he is still within his realm." Bebe said hurriedly.

"Tell me about him." Linley's eyes lit up.

"He's the same as you, Boss. An expert of Earth." Bebe laughed.

"Oh?" Linley's eyes lit up. Linley actually preferred to deal with earth-type experts, because he had thoroughly analyzed the Laws of the Earth, and so it would be easier for him to deal with it.

Bebe continued, "This person's soul defense is extremely strong. The recorded battles state that he didn't seem to be impacted at all by any soul attacks. His soul defense is absolutely monstrous! But he isn't specialized in soul attacks, nor has anyone ever seen him use any powerful soul attacks. The intelligence report hypothesizes that he probably has a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact."

Linley nodded slightly.

Although the 'Throbbing Pulse of the World' was related to the soul, the Laws of the Earth still weren't that strong in soul-related matters.

It was the Edicts of Life, the Edicts of Death, the Edicts of Fate, and the Elemental Laws of Fire which were strongest in the soul.

"His strength is material attacks. He is able to easily break apart Highgod artifacts with one blow! His fists and his warblade are exceedingly, terrifyingly powerful. Also...he specializes in speed. He is monstrously fast! On quite a few occasions, those who challenged him were sent smashing backwards by his fist before even touching him. They admitted defeat." Bebe explained.

Linley began to laugh.

Speed? Material attacks?

No matter how fast a person was, within Linley's full-force Blackstone Space, how fast could he be?

Material attacks?

In Dragonform, when using the godspark weapon Mirage in executing the 'Firmament Splitter', Linley wagered that the power of his sword blows shouldn't be much weaker.

"And I also have my innate divine ability, 'Dragon Roar'." Linley laughed.

"Boss, I've gone through this entire pile of documents. I feel that this particular Lord of Tartarus just so happens to be countered by your strengths. You should have a better than 80% chance of victory. Only, I'm not sure...if this Lord of Tartarus was hiding anything in reserve." Bebe said resignedly.

Hiding something in reserve?

Someone who trained in the Laws of the Earth, even one who understood spiritual attacks well, wouldn't possibly be as powerful in that aspect as someone who trained in the Edicts of Death or Laws of Fire. After all, much of the Edicts of Death pertained to the soul, and the Edicts of Fate were almost completely linked to the soul.

"Anybody is capable of holding something in reserve. However, since he is of the Laws of the Earth, I have some confidence in dealing with him."

"Let me look." Linley immediately received the materials, taking it over from Bebe.

He began to carefully review these materials. While reviewing the battles undergone by this Tartarus Lord, Linley began to feel more confident. The specialty of this Lord of Tartarus was his 'speed' and his material attacks. The two synergized well, making him almost invincible. Unfortunately...he just so happened to be countered by Linley.

Perhaps this Lord of Tartarus would be able to easily defeat supreme experts who specialized in soul attacks, but upon encountering Linley...

"Redcliff Region, eh?"

Linley nodded slightly. "Him it is!"

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 5, Sudden Emergence

Linley and Bebe walked forward, shoulder to shoulder. Linley had a rare hint of a smile on his face. There, in the restaurant within Flamebone City, Linley and Bebe decided that their target would be the Redcliff Lord, and also carefully reviewed the detailed reports regarding this Redcliff Lord, and also viewed his scryer recordings.

Seeing the scryer recordings, Linley sighed in amazement...

The speed of this Redcliff Lord was indeed monstrous. Linley had never seen anyone as fast as this individual. However, Linley was still completely confident. Those who specialized in speed, upon encountering the Blackstone Space...even if they were originally as fast as a hare, they would become as slow as a tortoise!

"Battles are forbidden within the cities. Only in the Bloodbath Arenas are battles permitted." Linley and Bebe quickly arrived outside the Bloodbath Arena.

The Bloodbath Arena, in size and scope, was comparable to the arenas which Linley had originally encountered at Miluo Island. However, this Bloodbath Arena was round; even standing outside of it, Linley could sense powerful energy ripples emanating from within this Bloodbath Arena.

"Whaaaaaaaaaaaaa!" A wave of excited roars rang out.

"It's quite lively here." Linley laughed. "Bebe, let us go take a look."

"Right." Bebe's eyes were shining. "I can sense the atmosphere from all the way out here. It's even livelier than Miluo Island's arena."

Similarly, to view the battles in the arena, one had to pay a fee, but the cost was lower than Miluo Island's. Each person only needed to pay ten netherstones. Linley and Bebe paid the fee, then followed the corridor and quickly arrived within the Bloodbath Arena. But just as they drew near, they felt a surge of heated calls ring out.

"Hm, there should be nearly a million people here." Linley stared at the viewing platforms.

The viewing platforms were occupied by a large number of spectators. Because the platforms took up a very large amount of space, from Linley's current position, what he saw was a tight cluster of people, like countless ants. There was an extremely high number of people here. The viewers included muscular men, callous and skinny youths, as well as some ancient-looking old people, along with icy ladies or energetic lasses.

They were either calling out in excitement or just watching calmly and appraisingly.

There were humans, as well as quite a few other races with strange appearances. There were three-eyed figures, four-eared individuals, six-armed people...etcetera.

"It really is lively! The battles in the Bloodbath Arena should be the most exciting things in the entire Tartarus." Linley understood that virtually everyone who came to Tartarus loved to do battle and wanted to pursue perfection. In addition, the Bloodbath Arena just so happened to be a necessary route for challenging a Tartarus Lord.

This caused the Bloodbath Arena to have a very special status within Tartarus and thus have many spectators.

Only now did Linley look towards the center of the Bloodbath Arena.

Two figures were battle in the air above the Bloodbath Arena. A streak of red flame slashed through the air as a blurry saber flashed through the skies, slamming against the body of the black-robed man in front. The black-robed man was knocked backwards by the blade chop. Blood splattered everywhere, and then his head exploded into tiny fragments.

The black-robed man landed heavily on the ground, not moving at all.

"Dead." Linley frowned.

"Raaaaaaawr!" The red-haired figure landed on the ground, revealing his form. This was a youth with a head of unbound black hair. His fists waved in the air as he howled excitedly, then shouted with confidence, "Next, next!"

The entire Bloodbath Arena was filled with joyful calls as well, although there were also many spectators who howled, "Kill him, friend! Go kill him!" Linley, watching this, smirked slightly. The atmosphere in this Bloodbath Arena really was explosive. And indeed...the Bloodbath Arena was perhaps one of the few entertainment areas in the entire Tartarus region."

"That person's power isn't bad."

Bebe turned to glance at Linley. Laughing, he said, "Boss, you preparing to make him your first?"

"Bebe, wait here. I'll go register." Linley rose.

"Right." Bebe nodded repeatedly. He was completely confident in Linley.

"Oh?" The two spectators seated next to Linley and Bebe, hearing these words, turned to stare at Linley in surprise. Clearly, they knew that Linley was going to fight in the Bloodbath Arena.

"Hey, you are bold." Immediately, a nearby woman with black hair and red eyes stared at Linley, her eyes flashing. "Fight a few extra battles. I, your Big Sis, will support you!" Linley glanced at the surrounding figures, and instantly, quite a few people began to call out towards Linley, most of them supporting and encouraging him.

Just because Linley had chosen to sit around them, they all supported Linley.

But of course...

In the end, what mattered in the Bloodbath Arena was how strong a person was.

Registering for the Bloodbath Arena was free, but the manager still looked at Linley in surprise. "Mr. Ley, what did you say? Ten battles in a row?"

"Right." Linley nodded with a smile.

"You can't do this in a rush. You can't just arrange for ten battles in a row. After you win one battle, you can choose whether or not to continue with the next." The manager said. This was a rule as well. If the challenger died during the first challenge, how could the other nine challenges be carried out?

Linley glanced at the manager. "Then just watch and wait."

However...quite a few people would go participate in the arena.

Linley had to wait for his turn. By the time Linley's turn came, seven or eight more battles had already occurred. That red-haired youth had left long ago. He had already won ten consecutive battles. As he walked out from the corridor, he even swept Linley's group with an arrogant look.

Linley just laughed calmly.

Suddenly...

An ocean of jubilant roars swept out from within the Bloodbath Arena, while a thunderous voice echoed out: "Our expert, 'Wood' [Wu'te], has already won three battles in a row. Now, please allow the challenger, 'Ley', to step forward!"

Linley's eyes lit up.

'Ley' was the name he had used to register himself.

"Mr. Ley, faster." The managerial staff hurriedly called towards Linley, who just laughed. With a flicker, he appeared within the challenger's corridor, passing through and arriving at the Bloodbath Arena, still reeking of fresh blood.

The many people in the spectator platforms at the Bloodbath Arena all called out in celebration. They saw a person dressed in a long, sky-blue robe, who looked like an ordinary neighborhood youth, emerge from the tunnel and arrive at the Bloodbath Arena. He slowly rose into the air, and his opponent...was a man with two scarlet eyes, dressed in a black uniform and wielding a long whip. They stared at each other.

The entire Bloodbath Arena was filled with an explosive atmosphere.

But Linley maintained his calm, as though he didn't feel anything at all.

"Boss, kill that kid!" Suddenly, a clear sound rang out, echoing throughout the entire Bloodbath Arena.

Linley couldn't help but grin as he turned to look. It was Bebe.

Just as Linley turned his head, a hint of disdain flashed through the crimson eyes of the black-robed man. "He dares to be distracted during a life-and-death battle!" At the same time, he moved. "Swish!" He arced out through the skies like a ray of black light, instantly appearing in front of Linley. Linley had yet to react, and the black-robed man attacked without showing any mercy...

A ray of dark light sprang out from the black-robed man.

"Rumble..."

Suddenly, an earthen yellow light instantly sprang out. "Ah!" The black-robed man, caught off-guard, uncontrollably descended. "BANG!" He slammed hard into the Bloodbath Arena, sending shattered rocks flying everywhere.

"Swoosh!" Linley descended lightning-fast.

The black-robed man, trapped within the Blackstone Space, wasn't even able to stand stably. Linley kicked out at his chest, sending him flying into the air. "I admit defeat!" His voice rang out, echoing throughout the entire Bloodbath Arena. Only now did the black-robed man stare towards Linley in amazement. Having felt the Blackstone Space, he was terrified.

"I am almost at the Six Star Fiend level of power, but I'm not even able to control my speed." The black-robed man was nervous. "So this fellow wasn't being overconfident; he was prepared early on...that kick of his, if it was aimed at my head, I'm afraid I'd be dead already! This person is too strong, too strong!"

But he had no idea...

Linley had only exerted a tenth of the power of the Blackstone Space. If he had used it full force, even Seven Star Fiends wouldn't be able to take it, much less him, a kid who wasn't even at the Six Star Fiend level yet.

"Thank you." The black-robed man bowed gratefully, then immediately chose to depart through the tunnel.

Linley continued to hover there in the air above the Bloodbath Arena. He had no grudge for that person. As Linley saw it, for him to be here in the Bloodbath Arena...was already a case of him bullying his lesser. If he were to kill them, that would be going too far. Fighting to kill...should be done against those who were at roughly the same level of strength, as there would be no way to hold back."

"Ley!"

"Ley!"

Immediately, the entire viewing platform exploded with cheers, especially those Demigods and Gods who had grown up in Tartarus. Their cheers were the loudest. For Linley to be able to so easily trample that opponent...his power was easy to behold.

"Out expert, Ley, said earlier that he wants to fight ten in a row. I didn't believe it at first, but from the looks of it...he really is going to fight ten in a row. The next battle begins. Reed [Lei'te], step forward!" That ringing voice once more echoed throughout the entire Bloodbath Arena.

Upon hearing that Linley wished to fight ten battles in a row, the spectators who had managed to maintain their calm and silence also called out in excitement now.

Only this sort of expert would cause people to be truly excited.

The second battle!

One exchange. The Blackstone Space was spread out, and Linley kicked the person down, embedding him into the Bloodbath Arena's ground. Linley won!

The third battle! Still just one exchange. Linley won!

The fourth battle...

The Blackstone Space, even at 10% power, was still very powerful. And these challengers weren't even at the Seven Star Fiend level. All of them were easily defeated by Linley.

"Bang!"

The adamantine heavy sword struck heavily against a silver-haired man's chest. Instantly, with a 'boom' sound, cracks in space appeared and the silver-haired man was knocked backwards, a large hole in his chest. In midair, before he even landed, he hurriedly called out, "I admit defeat!"

The difference between them was too great!

"You aren't bad."

Linley laughed calmly, looking at him. "You forced me to use my sword."

Linley had decided long ago that in the Bloodbath Arena, even if he had to use a weapon, he would just use his adamantine heavy sword or Bloodviolet. As for his godspark weapon, 'Mirage', that would only be used against the Lord of Tartarus.

"A victor of ten battles!!!" The officiator for the Bloodbath Arena called out in a high, clear voice. "Ley said he would fight ten in a row, and he has indeed won ten! Ley's power is indeed very great. As I see it, perhaps he will win a hundred battles!" It was much harder to win a hundred battles in a row. After all, many experts normally couldn't even be bothered to fight.

Only after meeting other experts would they fight.

Quite a few people throughout the massive viewing platforms howled jubilantly and excitedly.

"Ley!"

"Ley!"

Their jubilant cries rose up and crashed down like waves, but Linley just chuckled.

"Tomorrow, we continue." Linley said calmly to himself, then turned and left through the challenger's tunnel.

The Bloodbath Arena was a place which the experts of the Redcliff Region paid very close attention to. Within the Redcliff Region, generally speaking, it was rare for even a single expert to win a hundred battles despite the passage of many years. This was because, each time, after a challenger won a few dozen battles in a row, some true experts would feel their hands get itchy and they would come to participate in the battles. These experts wouldn't just come singly; often, they would come out in succession, causing the end result to be that very few would win a hundred successive battles.

As time moved on...

The name 'Ley' began to be known to quite a few truly powerful experts of the Redcliff Region.

One day after yet another day of consecutive victories.

On the fifth day, he still won ten victories.

On the sixth day, he still won ten victories!

Linley's successes clearly didn't require too much effort. This caused quite a few people to understand that 'Ley' definitely had to have more power than just this! Thus, the past few days, a very large number of people came to watch at the Bloodbath Arena. Many of them had come to watch Linley! Many of them waited eagerly...hoping that Linley would be able to continue and cause some truly powerful experts to come and battle him.

And finally...an expert whom Linley would take seriously appeared.

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 6, Unstoppable

Redcliff Region. The Lord's estate.

Currently, the Redcliff Lord was reclining on his chair, his eyes shut.

The Redcliff Lord was only 1.7 meters tall, and in the Netherworld, he would indeed be considered a very small fellow. He looked very thin, and he was currently dressed in a sleeveless shirt, revealing his wiry arms. Although the shirt was over his body, it wasn't able to cover up the heroic, mighty aura that emanated from him.

This was the Redcliff Lord, one of the eighty one Lords of Tartarus.

"Your Lordship." A black-robed, silver-haired youth walked to his side and bowed.

"Mm?" The Redcliff Lord opened his eyes. His pupils were vertical, and they were violet! They gave off a disturbing feeling.

"Your Lordship, an expert has appeared within the Bloodbath Arena of our Redcliff region." The black-robed, silver-haired youth said respectfully. "This person is called 'Ley', and he has already won sixty battles. From his performance in these sixty battles, I expect that this person already has the power of a Seven Star Specter. He specializes in the Laws of the Earth. Your Lordship, will you go watch him battle?"

"Laws of the Earth?" The Redcliff Lord raised a black eyebrow, but then with a calm laugh shut his eyes again. "Since he is an expert in the Laws of the Earth, there's no need for me to go in person. You, Ganmoly [Gan'mo'lei], can go handle this matter. At the same time, record it all down with scryer recordings. If anything appears that causes you to feel surprised, bring it for me to watch."

"Yes, your Lordship." Ganmoly bowed.

Ganmoly knew very well that although the Redcliff Lord had yet to reach the stage of being a Paragon in the Laws of the Earth, the Redcliff Lord already knew all the various types of attacks of the Laws of the Earth.

However, what the Redcliff Lord didn't realize was...

Linley's 'Blackstone Space' had already exceeded the bounds of the profound mysteries. This was the innate divine ability of Reisgem, and Linley had to rely on the 'black stone' in order to use it.

The seventh day Linley was at the Bloodbath Arena.

On this day, the Bloodbath Arena had an unusually high number of people watching. It had been a long time since someone in the Redcliff Region had consecutively defeated so many people. Many people wanted to watch...and see how far this man named 'Ley' would be able to go, and if he really had the power of a Seven Star Specter or not.

"This battle is over now. Haha, everyone has been waiting for a long time, I'm sure. Next will be our victor of sixty consecutive battles; 'Ley'!" The voice echoed brightly.

Suddenly...

The entire watching platform began to ring out with jubilant cries. The previous battles were fairly low level, and some people were too bored to watch. But upon hearing that 'Ley' was about to appear, all of their eyes lit up and they called out nonstop. And at this time, in an unremarkable corner of the watching platform, a black-robed, silver-haired youth and a middle-aged black-haired man were sitting, shoulder to shoulder.

"Ganmoly." The middle-aged black-haired man laughed calmly. "Are you here at the orders of his Lordship?"

"I'm just watching." Ganmoly laughed. "This person trains in the Laws of the Earth. He's not yet shown himself to be worth his Lordship's attention. Right, Sheppard [Xi'ao'bo'er'de], are you interested in this Ley?"

"I just came today to watch. However, my old friend, 'Pam' [Bo'mu] has already gone to register. If he is able to defeat Pam, then I will go test to see how strong this kid is!" The black-haired Sheppard said with a calm laugh. Ganmoly, hearing this, said with gleaming eyes, "Pam is going to participate?"

As the two chatted...

"Bang!" The adamantine heavy sword slammed into the opponent, sending the person flying back.

"I admit defeat!" The man called out hurriedly.

Linley retracted his sword, still standing there in midair. He shook his head mentally. "I have to win a hundred battles to challenge a Lord of Tartarus. This does indeed waste a good bit of time." Linley had already undergone seventy one battles, but he had yet to feel even a hint of danger. The strongest of these opponents were at most at the Six Star Fiend level.

When Linley was a God, he was already capable of killing ordinary Seven Star Fiends.

Now that he was a Highgod, he already had the power of an ordinary Asura. Against these people, of course he found it very easy.

"Everyone! Let me announce some news that will shock and please all of you! Ley's next opponent is a former victor of a hundred battles here at the Redcliff Region; our very own Mr. Pam!" Excited cheers swept the entire Bloodbath Arena, but then, the entire arena went silent.

Even the chatting Ganmoly and Sheppard turned to look.

"Pam is entering the field of battle." The black-haired Sheppard began to laugh.

The momentarily quiet Bloodbath Arena suddenly once more turned raucous. The cheers rang out unabated, and many of the viewers bellowed, "Ley, defeat that Pam!!!"

"PAM!!!"

"LEY!!!"

The entire Bloodbath Arena was at a boiling point of activity. Even many formerly calm individuals were now shouting to the point of hoarseness, each screaming their support for one of the two. Clearly, the shouts for 'Ley', who had recently won everyone's admiration, were somewhat louder. But Pam was also a former victor of a hundred battles.

A battle against two experts?

Who would win?

Such a large battle...the level of activity in the Bloodbath Arena reached a fevered level.

"Oh, a former victor of a hundred battles?" Linley raised an eyebrow, turning to look. At this moment, Bebe's voice rang out in Linley's mind as well. "Boss, this is a former victor of a hundred battles. Don't be reckless. If you were to lose...then it's my turn. I'll go challenge the Tartarus Lord."

Linley, hearing this, couldn't help but laugh.

"Swoosh!" A gray blur suddenly shot out from the tunnel, then hung there in midair. Linley looked carefully...

This Pam was dressed in a long green robe. He had a pair of downwards drooping white eyebrows. Although his hair and eyebrows were white, his face was like that of a youth's. Pam had a perpetual smile on his face, and he was currently staring at Linley with narrowed eyes. "Ley? It's so hard to find a good opponent, here at the Redcliff Region. Don't disappoint me."

Linley laughed calmly.

"Make your move." Linley said.

"Oh, quite arrogant, eh?" Pam laughed calmly. He suddenly swept out with his hand, and a green light sprang up.

Linley and Pam's battle caused quite a few people on the watching platform to focus their attention. Even Bebe stared fixedly at the arena. Only Sheppard and Ganmoly continued to chat silently through divine sense while watching as the great battle was about to begin.

"Ganmoly, who do you say will be the victor?" Sheppard sent mentally.

"It should be Ley." Ganmoly sent back. "This Ley...I have the feeling that his power is at least on your level. As for Pam, although he has reached the Seven Star Specter level, he is just barely at that level. Although both his physical attacks and his spiritual attacks can be considered strong, they aren't monstrously strong. However, he trains in the Laws of Water. It won't be easy to defeat him. Pam should be able to hold on for a period of time."

"I was thinking the same."

Sheppard laughed as well. "Originally, when I beat Pam, I had to spend quite a bit of effort. An expert who trains in the Laws of Water is very hard to deal with."

But as the two were discussing this matter, their facial expressions suddenly froze.

The entire Bloodbath Arena had turned silent. And then, an explosion of raucous noise. Many people began to chat amongst themselves, and the entire Bloodbath Arena turned cacophonous. Nobody could understand what they had just seen. It wasn't just them who didn't understand it...

Even Ganmoly and Sheppard didn't understand it.

"How could that have happened?" Ganmoly said in disbelief.

"Pam...did he lose on purpose?" Sheppard didn't understand either.

Just now, what happened during the battle was this. First, Linley had used his Blackstone Space to entrap his opponent. Pam was indeed strong; he was able to force himself to stay up and not crash downwards. But his speed was now incomparable to Linley's. Linley, relying on superior speed and Bloodviolet, began to attack.

But clearly, Pam's defense was extremely strong. Without being able to Dragonform, he was unable to breach Pam's defense with his attacks.

Linley's Dragonform was one of his trump cards. Linley wasn't willing to use his Dragonform, and so he used his 'Spiritual Chaos' instead. After reaching the Highgod level, Linley's Spiritual Chaos technique, once used, would cause even the likes of Pam, a Seven Star Fiend level expert, to have his soul enter a bewildered state.

In that brief instant, Linley used a single blow of the sword to sever Pam's head.

Pam's head flew upwards into the air, hurriedly reconnecting with the body.

"Thank you!" Pam said gratefully. If Linley had struck his head instead of his neck, Pam would have died.

He didn't lose unfairly. The Spiritual Chaos of the Blackstone Field was the supreme technique of Purgatory Commander Reisgem. It was natural for him to lose to this technique.

In the viewing platform.

"Whooosh!" Sheppard suddenly stood up, but one of his clones sat down. He stared at the distant Linley, standing there in the air above the Bloodbath Arena. "Ganmoly, I'll go test him." He left behind his divine spark, as he was worried that Linley might use a killing technique. Although prior to this, Linley had shown mercy, that didn't mean he would always show mercy.

"Be careful!" Ganmoly said hurriedly.

"Don't worry. It won't be so simple for him to beat me." Sheppard said, and he walked forward.

In the Bloodbath Arena, many people began to call out in joy.

Many of them were now treating Linley as a model for themselves! A target for them to surpass!

"Everyone, today, Ley has already consecutively won nine times in a row, and one of his opponents was Pam! However, even Pam lost to Ley. And now, the tenth challenger for today is standing right beside me. To be honest, I am already excited over the battle that is about to begin. The person by my side, is an expert even more powerful than Pam! Everyone, can you guess who he is?"

Immediately, everyone in the Bloodbath Arena turned to look, and many of them began to call out excitedly.

It was already very rare for them be able to watch a single battle between Seven Star Specter level experts. But today, there would be a second? It seemed as though this one would be even more powerful!

"He...is Sheppard!" The host's voice rang out.

In the air above the Bloodbath Arena.

Linley still stood there calmly in midair, looking at the many spectators and how they were excitedly shouting. Linley was rather curious. "Sheppard? How powerful could he be?" Linley looked towards the entry passage, and saw a black-haired, middle-aged man drift over. As soon as he flew into the Bloodbath Arena, he looked towards Linley.

"I didn't expect that you were capable of soul attacks, and such unusual ones at that." The black-haired, middle-aged man said. Just now, outside the challenger's tunnel, he had already met Pam and chatted with him. However, Pam only thought that Linley had used some sort of strange soul attack to cause him to enter a dazed state.

Linley smiled slightly. "Enough chitchat. Let's fight."

Sheppard frowned.

"Hmph." Angered, he narrowed his eyes slightly.

"Swish!" "Swish!"

Two rays of black light suddenly shot out from Sheppard's eyes, striking directly towards Linley. Linley couldn't help but retreat, flying at high speed. "What an unusual spiritual attack." The speed of the spiritual attack was too fast. Linley wasn't even able to dodge before the two black rays of light entered his body.

"Crackle..." Linley's spiritual energy struck out like the Voidwave Sword, blocking in the area of the flaw.

As for the black light, the majority of it exhausted itself against the soul-protecting Sovereign artifact, while the remaining bit of power wasn't able to threaten Linley at all.

The Blackstone Space and the Spiritual Chaos almost instantly encompassed the enemy.

Sheppard's spiritual prowess wasn't particularly impressive. He, too, fell into a dazed state, and just stood there, letting Linley slice off his head with one blow.

"You lose!" Linley said calmly.

The entire Bloodbath Arena once more fell silent.

"What happened?" Ganmoly asked repeatedly.

"What a powerful soul attack." Sheppard shook his head. "I was instantly bewildered as well and defeated."

"Soul attack?" Ganmoly felt relaxed now. "This Ley is indeed strong, but if he encounters his Lordship, he will definitely lose."

His Lordship, the Redcliff Lord, feared no spiritual attacks. Actually, this was one of the reasons why Linley displayed his 'Spiritual Chaos' attack. When seeing Linley use this technique...the Redcliff Lord wouldn't feel the slightest bit of fear towards Linley.

After the two major battles of the seventh day, no one further was able to hold Linley back from winning. Linley consecutively passed through the eighth, ninth, and tenth days. A complete success! He became the only victor of a hundred battles which the Redcliff Region had seen in recent years.

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 7, A Blaze

Above the Bloodbath Arena.

Many people were chatting amongst themselves, and the topic was virtually all related to Linley, currently standing above the Bloodbath Arena. Because just now, Linley had successfully gained his hundredth victory. But his success caused them to all understand...that most likely in the future, it would be hard for them to see Linley fight again.

"Hey, just now, you were shouting so excitedly, 'Boss', 'Boss'. Do you know Lord Ley?" A silver-haired young lady glanced sideways at Bebe.

"Of course I know him. He's my Boss." Bebe rubbed his nose and said confidently.

"Yeah, sure. And he's my elder brother." The silver-haired woman snorted, and then continued to look at Linley with a rather worshipful gaze. The silver-haired woman grew up in Tartarus and was affected by the local environment. The admiration the people here felt towards experts was even stronger than in the other parts of the Netherworld.

"She doesn't believe me." Bebe was speechless in the face of the silver-haired woman's disbelief.

Right at this moment...

A deep voice echoed in the Bloodbath Arena. "Everyone!" The voice continued to ring out as the person's figure flew to the air above the Bloodbath Arena, standing next to Linley. This person was dressed in a long golden robe, and had a head full of long, dazzling gold hair. He was laughing while saying clearly, "Today, yet another victor of a hundred battles has emerged from our Bloodbath Arena. He is...Ley!"

Linley smiled and made a nodding gesture towards the golden-haired man.

Linley was waiting to be given his proof of having won a hundred battles...the 'Bloodbath Emblem'. With the Bloodbath Emblem, he would truly have the qualifications to go challenge a Lord of Tartarus.

"Everyone, quiet!" The golden-haired man said in a clear voice.

Instantly, the spectators of the Bloodbath Arena all halted their conversations and looked over.

"Right now, I will give this medal of honor, the 'Bloodbath Emblem', to our victor of a hundred battles, Ley!" As he spoke, the gold-haired man withdrew a six-pointed star-shaped red emblem and, with a smile, gave it to Linley. "Ley, from today onwards, your name and your victories will be displayed within our Bloodbath Arena."

Linley laughed and accepted it.

"So this is it?" Linley lowered his head to give it a glance. The reason he had fought these hundred battles was for the sake of becoming qualified to challenge a Lord of Tartarus.

"But of course, this Bloodbath Medallion also represents that you now are qualified to go challenge our mighty Lord of the Redcliff Region!" The golden-haired man said with a loud, clearly laugh. "Mr. Ley, I ask you this. Are you going to go challenge our Lord of Redcliff Region?" These words caused the entire Bloodbath Arena to once more turn rowdy."

"Challenge his Lordship!"

"Challenge him!"

"Ley, challenge his Lordship!"

Many of the spectators in the Bloodbath Arena began to cry out. However, everyone understood that this was a question that would be asked each time the Bloodbath Medallion was handed out. As for the spectators, they were just shouting to be rowdy. Everyone hoped to see a battle over the position of Lord of Tartarus. But they all understood...

This was just a formality.

It was extremely rare for someone to actually challenge a Lord of Tartarus. Generally speaking, it would happen only a few times every hundred million years. Each time someone dared to challenge a Lord of Tartarus, that person generally had a certain degree of confidence as well as some special skills to rely on. Although Linley seemed quite good, as the spectators saw it, he was still quite a ways off from the level of a Lord of Tartarus.

After all, whether it was Pam or Sheppard, compared to a Lord of Tartarus, they were like infants compared to an adult.

"You said Ley is your Boss. Then tell me, will Ley challenge the Tartarus Lord?" The silver-haired lady laughed while looking at Bebe, and Bebe nodded with absolute certainty. "Without question, my Boss will definitely challenge the Tartarus Lord!"

"Haha..." The silver-haired lady immediately began to laugh softly. "You don't even know how to lie properly."

"If you don't believe it, just watch." Bebe said.

"To tell the truth, the reason I have come to the Bloodbath Arena to fight...!" Linley's voice suddenly rang out.

The conversations around the Bloodbath Arena suddenly lowered in volume.

Linley had a smile on his face. "...was precisely for the sake of becoming qualified to challenge the Redcliff Lord!"

Instantly, everyone fell silent.

Everyone looked towards Linley. The golden-haired man by Linley's side looked at him in disbelief. "No way. This Mr. Ley...can it be that today, he really is going to challenge the Redcliff Lord? Too crazy, too crazy!" Although victors of a hundred battles were powerful, there would be one every so often.

But someone who would challenge a Lord of Tartarus? This was something which would happen a few times every hundred million years.

"No way." The silver-haired lady grew nervous. She couldn't help but glance sideways at Bebe, who just laughed confidently towards her.

Everyone listened carefully and eagerly.

"Now, I have finally acquired the necessary qualifications." Linley stared at them. "Today, in front of everyone, I publicly proclaim! That I...am formally issuing the Redcliff Lord...a challenge!"

"CHALLENGE!!!"

His voice echoed throughout the Bloodbath Arena. Everyone was silent for a long time.

This was the first time in the past ten million years that someone within the Redcliff Region had issued a challenge to the mighty Redcliff Lord!

The Redcliff Lord was exalted and powerful!

Everyone who challenged him had perished.

But the many experts amongst the spectators wouldn't give up. For the sake of their dreams, their goals! Even if they had to die, they would constantly challenge themselves, constantly clash...there would eventually come the day when they would defeat the Redcliff Lord and become the next Redcliff Lord. However, on this road...many, many would die!

More than a million spectators were present, and they were staring at Linley, in the center.

In their eyes, Linley was a fearless warrior, a new challenger for the position of Lord of Tartarus!

"Ley!" The silver-haired elder was the first to call out solemnly.

"Ley!" Immediately, a large number of people in the surrounding area called out as well.

"LEY!" The entire Bloodbath Arena reverberated with this unified chorus.

It was like a thunderclap splitting the world. These people used whatever methods were available to them to express encouragement to Linley! In their eyes, everyone who dared to challenge a Lord of Tartarus was a hero! A fearless hero!

Everyone in the Redcliff Region wished to challenge a Lord of Tartarus and become the next one, but they all knew that their own level of strength was insufficient, and so they didn't have the courage to do so. But deep in their hearts...they still had this desire. For Linley to now go make the challenge...this group of people very naturally came to feel that Linley was their representative.

They hoped to see Linley win!

Even though deep in their hearts, they believed that Linley would die, just like the previous challengers to the Redcliff Lord.

Within the Bloodbath Arena, in front of more than a million people, the winner of a hundred consecutive battles, 'Ley', thus publicly issued his challenge to the Redcliff Lord! This news quickly swept through the entire Redcliff Region, like a blazing wildfire burning through a desolate, dry prairie. The hundred million people populating the Redcliff Region all were discussing this.

They were all eager to watch it!

Eager for Linley to duel the Redcliff Lord!

Redcliff City. Within a hotel's courtyard.

Linley and Bebe were casually sipping wine.

"Bebe, tell me, the Redcliff Lord should have heard of my public challenge by now, right? There's no need for me to go in person to his door to challenge him again." Linley said with a hint of uncertainty.

"Enough, Boss. Just wait." Bebe said casually. "The Lords of Tartarus... what sort of status do they have? They are like the Lord Prefects or Purgatory Commanders of the Infernal Realm. They are exalted figures. In terms of status alone, they are beneath only the Sovereigns themselves. How could someone with that sort of status possibly ignore your open provocations?"

Linley laughed as he looked at Bebe. "The way you put it is really..."

Linley suddenly turned, looking towards the courtyard door. Bebe looked as well.

"Knock!" "Knock!" The sound of the door being knocked.

"I imagine his Lordship's men have arrived." Bebe hurriedly ran over and opened the door. A black-robed, silver-haired youth was standing outside, looking towards the courtyard. When his gaze fell upon Linley, he revealed a smile on his face. "Mr. Ley, I am Ganmoly, the steward for the Redcliff Lord."

"Please come in." Linley said with a calm laugh.

Bebe laughed while winking towards Linley and sending mentally, "Boss, I was right, eh? His people have come."

Ganmoly laughed while walking in, then said, "Mr. Ley, I have come to represent the Redcliff Lord in issuing you an invitation to make a trip to the his estate and discuss your challenge to him."

"Discuss?" Linley raised an eyebrow. "Discuss the time and place?"

"That's part of it." Ganmoly laughed.

"No need to discuss it. You can just proclaim a time and a place. That will suffice." Linley said with a calm smile.

"Mr. Ley, there are other matters as well. It's best to make a trip." Ganmoly said.

Linley and Bebe exchanged glances, and then Linley rose to his feet, smiling. "Since Steward Ganmoly and the Tartarus Lord invite us, then we two brothers will follow you, Steward Ganmoly, to make this trip." Bebe revealed a smile on his face as well while sending to Linley, "Boss, the Redcliff Lord isn't going to try and assassinate us secretly, is he?"

"He shouldn't. If he wants to kill us, it is better to kill us publicly. To secretly assassinate us would not be keeping with his stature." Linley sent back.

"Right." Bebe sent in reply. "Boss, your words make sense. Forget it. If he does try anything funny, I'll immediately use my 'Godeater' against him."

Under Ganmoly's guidance, Linley and Bebe quickly arrived at the residence of the Redcliff Lord. The Redcliff Lord's estate was surrounded by a large number of Highgod patrols. Linley swept them with his gaze. "Quite a few people. The outer perimeter has nearly ten thousand people, all Highgods!"

The population of Tartarus wasn't very high.

The vast majority of the people here, however, were Highgods. The patrolling warriors at the Redcliff Lord's estate naturally were all Highgods as well.

The Redcliff Lord's estate was extremely large. Linley and Bebe followed for quite some time before they arrived at an empty martial training field. Here, a muscular youth dressed in a short-sleeved shirt and long trousers was standing, ramrod straight. Although he was a 'youth' whose height and body shape seemed similar to Bebe's...

However...

This person seemed to emanate a vigorous, mighty aura.

"Your Lordship, they have come." Ganmoly said respectfully.

Linley couldn't help but narrow his eyes as he looked carefully at this short-sleeved, muscular youth. "So he really does look just like he did in the scryer recordings."

"Whoosh." The Redcliff Lord turned to look at them. His two vertically oriented, violet pupils caused Linley and Bebe to feel startled. Although they had seen scryer recordings, there was a limit to the clarity of the recordings. Linley was only able to see two figures fight, and wasn't able to see the pupils clearly.

"Your Lordship." Linley said.

The Redcliff Lord, just by looking at Linley and Bebe, had the feeling that these two shouldn't be weak. He said calmly, "Today, I have invited the two of you over because I can't be bothered to go enter some battle for them to watch. At the same time, I have no interest in killing you, 'Ley'. Thus, it's best for you to openly proclaim that you are giving up your challenge. Go back and keep training."

Linley and Bebe were stunned.

"Hey...why are you saying this?" Bebe couldn't help but speak out.

"Redcliff Lord, no need to say anything further. I am eager for the chance to battle you." Linley said.

The Redcliff Lord frowned as he looked at Linley.

"Hmph." The Redcliff Lord thrust his hand out.

"WHAP!" It seemed as though a whip had viciously lashed the air, striking space itself. This simple swipe of the hand, where the fist just punched into empty space...

"BOOM!" "BOOM!" "BOOM!" "BOOM!"

One hole in space after another exploded forth, repeatedly giving birth to more, like a series of rings, one ring after another. Dozens of holes exploded forth into space, creating a giant tear in space which was more than ten meters long. Only after some time did they fade away.

“What a terrifying punch.” Linley’s pupils suddenly contracted.

“Throbbing Pulse of the World. Essence of the Earth. Profound Mysteries of Strength. Vitality...from this simple punch alone, I can sense at least four types of profound mysteries. I can’t be certain whether there weren’t actually five profound mysteries. Too powerful. No wonder he was able to easily shatter Highgod artifacts with a simple punch.” Linley had to admit, the level of understanding the Redcliff Lord had with regards to the Laws exceeded Linley’s.

“If you are confident in being able to withstand this punch of mine, then choose to continue challenging me.” The Redcliff Lord said calmly.

The nearby Ganmoly was chortling while watching this. He believed that Linley would definitely give up.

“Then Redcliff Lord, please tell me the time and the place for our battle.” Linley gave his response.

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 8, The Storm Gathers

“Oh?” The Redcliff Lord suddenly turned, his sharp gaze shooting towards Linley.

“He...” Steward Ganmoly stared in surprise at Linley as well. Just now, the Redcliff Lord had revealed his extraordinary power. But this mysterious ‘Ley’ actually still had the courage to challenge him. Was this stupidity, or was this courage? Ganmoly took another, closer look at Linley.

“But of course, I can give up my challenge as well.” Linley suddenly changed the direction of the conversation.

“Oh?” The Redcliff Lord looked at Linley.

“Boss...” Bebe said, rather frantic.

Linley said calmly, “Redcliff Lord, the reasons I am challenging you are twofold. First of all, I wish to reach the peak of perfection in training, and becoming a Lord of Tartarus can be considered a way of verifying my current abilities. The second reason, however, is so that I will be qualified to enter the Planar Battlefield! If you, Redcliff Lord, are willing to allow us two brothers to enter the Planar Battlefield, while at the same time follow us two in accordance with our wishes in roaming about the battlefield, then I can choose to forgo my challenge.”

Linley’s original desire was to enter the Planar Battlefield.

If this Redcliff Lord was willing to bring himself and Bebe within and also obey his orders, wouldn't that be much less troublesome?

"Planar Battlefield?" The Redcliff Lord swept the two of them with his cold gaze. "The two of you would dare go to the Planar Battlefield, for the sake of the Sovereign's Might? This courage alone makes you worthy of my admiration." Linley, hearing this, understood that the treasures one could acquire in exchange for accumulating military merits weren't just limited to Sovereign artifacts. Sovereign's Might was also possible.

"They are looking for death." The nearby Ganmoly said in a low voice.

"Whether we are or aren't, isn't something for you to worry about." Bebe snorted.

"There is no way I can agree to your request." The Redcliff Lord said calmly.

"Then I will continue my challenge." Linley said very straightforwardly.

The Redcliff Lord's violet pupils were locked onto Linley. In a low voice, he said, "Punk, you are looking for death!"

"Hey, you haven't even fought yet. Nothing is certain." Bebe raised his head proudly as he spoke, and Linley laughed calmly as well. "Redcliff Lord, you have the honored status of a Lord of Tartarus. I have trained for many years, and in my dreams, I too desire to one day become one of the Lords of Tartarus. I trust, your Lordship, you won't be afraid of my challenge."

"Boss, as I see it, he is afraid." Bebe immediately said.

The Redcliff Lord glanced at Bebe, but wasn't angered in the slightest. He instructed calmly, "Ganmoly, send them away."

"Yes, Lord." Ganmoly bowed, and then said to Linley and Bebe, "The two of you, please follow me."

Linley and Bebe were both stunned, while at the same time, Linley noticed that the Redcliff Lord had actually turned and left. Linley immediately felt frantic. "What does this Redcliff Lord intend to do? Is he trying to avoid doing battle?" Today, when the Redcliff Lord had invited Linley over, Linley had a strange feeling about it.

"Your Lordship, you can't possibly be afraid, can you?!" Linley's voice rang out, but the Redcliff Lord's figure had already disappeared from Linley's field of vision.

Just as Linley and Bebe were feeling puzzled and somewhat frantic, a cold, calm voice rang out. "One month from now, in the desolate wilderness east of the city. Since you seek death, I will give you what you desire."

Hearing this voice, smiles immediately appeared on Linley and Bebe's faces.

"Mr. Ley, you really...ugh." Steward Ganmoly shook his head and sighed. "I admire your spirit and energy, but you have no hope in challenging his Lordship. Although your Gravitational Space is impressive, his Lordship is extremely skilled in the Laws of the Earth. You won't be able to affect him. As I see it, he completely counters your strengths."

Linley, hearing this, just laughed calmly.

Generally speaking, when two experts who trained in the same Laws fought, generally speaking, the person with a higher level of understanding would be able to counter the weaker one. However, there was one exception; if one side had an innate divine ability.

Linley's 'Blackstone Space' was, in reality, the innate divine ability of Reisgem. The Redcliff Lord didn't understand it at all.

"Let's go, the two of you."

Ganmoly led the way while continuing to speak. "It was so rare for his Lordship to be in such a good mood as he was in today. He saw that you were talented. The reason he summoned you today, in truth, was that he wanted to accept you as his subordinate! When the time came, you would become the left and right arms of the Redcliff Lord. In the Redcliff Region, you would be subordinate to only the Redcliff Lord himself. But you...alas, why must you do this!"

Linley and Bebe exchanged glances. They couldn't help but laugh.

"Boss, his Lordship wanted to recruit you as a subordinate." Bebe laughed.

Linley now began to understand the purpose behind the invitation. But clearly, his reaction had caused the Redcliff Lord to be extremely angry. He hadn't even said anything about inviting Linley to be his subordinate; he just immediately left.

"I truly am sorry for having disappointed his Lordship." Linley said, his lips pursed in a smirk.

Ganmoly, seeing Linley's reaction, just shook his head.

As he saw it, Linley was the type of warrior that loved to do battle and pursued perfection. Ever since Linley stated that he wanted to enter the Planar Battlefield, Ganmoly had taken him to be that sort of madman. Without enough courage, without enough of a spirit for adventure, no one would dare enter the Planar Battlefield.

On the way back, Linley and Bebe chatted casually on the streets. Having recently become famous within the Redcliff Region, Linley noticed that as soon as he appeared, many people would stare at him. Linley had to change his appearance and also make his robe an earthen yellow one, allowing him to be relatively unmolested.

"Fortunately, we got things done rather quickly this time." Linley laughed.

"Right. Based on what our intelligence reports said, generally speaking, a challenge might be extended for a few years, or even a few centuries or longer." Bebe nodded as he spoke. This was just a month; it wasn't that long.

But suddenly...

"Everyone!" A voice suddenly rang out from behind. "Wonderful news, excellent news!!! Just now, word came from his Lordship's estate. His Lordship and Lord Ley will, one month from now, engage in a formal duel in the eastern wilderness. This is the first time his Lordship has publicly battled in ten million years!"

Linley and Bebe both looked over.

In the center of the street, there was a golden-robed man speaking loudly. Instantly, virtually everyone flooded forth, surrounding him.

"What? In just one month? The eastern wilderness outside the city? Are you sure?"

"In one month, his Lordship will battle Lord Ley?"

Countless voices rang out.

In Tartarus, every single Lord of Tartarus was a supreme figure. Every single public challenge between a Lord of Tartarus and a challenger would attract a frenzied crowd to gather, and virtually 90% of the entire population in a particular region would hurry over to watch the battle.

"Hey, if you don't believe it, you can go to his Lordship's estate. This news is carved onto a stone tablet placed outside, next to the estate." The golden-robed man said hurriedly.

"It's true! I saw it as well."

"Let's all go to his Lordship's residence to look."

The vast majority of the people who had been strolling on the streets now surged towards the Redcliff Lord's estate. As Deities who had virtually unlimited lifespans, the emergence of a victor of a hundred battles was already enough to excite them, but ten million years might pass without a single challenger to a Tartarus Lord's position.

This was a major event for the entire region!

Within the restaurant.

The disguised Linley and Bebe were seated in a corner, drinking wine.

"Mad. They've all gone mad." Bebe muttered.

Linley glanced sideways at the other people in the restaurant. The other people in the restaurant were, without exception, discussing the upcoming battle between Linley and the Redcliff Lord. Quite a few were so excited that their faces were red, and others were discussing the previous accomplishments in battle of the Redcliff Lord.

"Boss, this speaks to your charisma and magnetism." Bebe snickered.

"They care about this battle, not because of me, but because of the Redcliff Lord.” Linley laughed. The two chatted in their corner with their Godrealms set up to block out the sound.

“The Redcliff Lord has a high, exalted status. His open, public battles naturally will arouse everyone’s excitement. For example, back in the Yulan continent, the battles between Saints would cause the ordinary people to become frenzied.” Linley said with a calm laugh while continuing to listen to these Deities discuss the upcoming battle with the Redcliff Lord.

He couldn’t think back to that year when he dueled Olivier or Haydson. That, too, had attracted the attention of countless experts.

“Right. If Grandpa was to publicly announce a duel with someone, I would excitedly go watch as well.” Bebe chortled.

“There aren’t many who would dare challenge Beirut.” Linley said with a sigh.

If he himself could have Beirut’s level of power, he wouldn’t have needed to spend so much time to painstakingly select an opponent who he just happened to counter perfectly. For someone like Beirut...he could just casually choose any opponent and then easily achieve victory.

Time flowed on like water, passing by quickly.

In the blink of an eye, a month passed. The streets and restaurants of the entire Redcliff City were almost completely empty. Unless they had something extremely important to attend to today, virtually every denizen of the Redcliff Region hastened to the eastern wilderness outside the city, awaiting the earth-shaking battle that was about to occur.

The eastern wilderness.

This area lived up to its name; it was completely barren and desolate. There wasn't even any grass. There was nothing on the ground aside from earth and stones. Normally, very few people would come here. Today, however, an ocean of people was present.

"Look. That's the challenger, Lord Ley."

"Forget about the Redcliff Lord for now; if one day, I was as powerful as Lord Ley, I would die a happy man." A man and a woman chatted with each other, and a the youth dressed in a blue robe said, his eyes flashing with desire, "I, too, wish to one day be watched by countless Deities and duel one of the Lords of Tartarus! If I can achieve that, even if I die, I would have no regrets."

"Stop dreaming." The woman next to him said dismissively.

There was an ocean of people present in the eastern wilderness, standing on the ground. In midair, there was only one person; Linley! None of these spectating Deities had flown into the air. They all watched from below on the ground, as a way of showing respect to Linley and the Redcliff Lord.

"There are quite a few people here." Linley swept the ground below with his gaze. "There are people in an area with a circumference of nearly a hundred kilometers! There has to be at least a hundred million people present, or perhaps even more."

"Boss." Bebe's voice suddenly rang out in Linley's mind. "Today, those who have come to watch are not just the people of the Redcliff Region. Even the people of the surrounding regions who were able to make it in time have come. Boss...with so many people watching, you have to win beautifully."

Linley couldn't help but laugh.

Suddenly, Linley's gaze swept to the east.

A blurred yellow shadow flew over at high speed, so fast that even Linley couldn't help but feel his heart clench.

"So fast! This flying speed is at least several times greater than mine... and this isn't his absolute limit."

The previously chattering spectators seemed to, in harmony, lower their voices. In just three seconds, the hundred-million plus Deities in the desolate wilderness turned completely silent. The only sound that could be heard was the constant howling of the wind. Everyone raised their heads to look towards the only two people in midair...

Linley and the Redcliff Lord!

"Swoosh!" The blurred yellow form suddenly came to a halt, revealing the Redcliff Lord's body.

His figure was physically small, but inspired dread in all who beheld him. He stood there in midair, dressed in a form-fitting short-sleeved shirt and long trousers. His strange violet pupils stared coldly at Linley. With a snicker, he said, "You came quite early. Even if you want to die, you don't need to be in such a rush."

"It's too early to say who will be the one to die." Linley said with a calm laugh.

Just like that, with a hundred million Deities watching them, Linley and the Redcliff Lord casually chatted with each other.

"Hmph."

The Redcliff Lord snorted coldly, his voice suddenly turning fierce and ringing out, "No need to waste any time. The battle starts now. I'll give you one chance. Make your move!" The Redcliff Lord clearly intentionally spoke these words very loudly. His voice travelled to a distance of many kilometers, and all of the Deities below within the area heard his words very clearly, especially given how acute their hearing was.

"The battle is beginning!"

All of the Deities instantly held their breaths, staring at these two figures. Everyone was wondering...

Would this earth-shaking battle be like the other ones, with the challenger dying and the Redcliff Lord winning? Or...would a new Redcliff

Lord appear!

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 9, A Battle Between Supreme Experts of the Earth

“As you wish, then.” Linley’s body suddenly emanated an earthen yellow aura, which instantly spread out to form a spherical space that was a thousand meters long, immediately enveloping the Redcliff Lord within. This time, Linley still didn’t use his Blackstone Space at full force; he only increased the Blackstone Space to half power!

But although it was only half power, it was still enough to startle the Redcliff Lord.

The Redcliff Lord’s body sunk downwards slightly, but then he maintained his position in midair. He gave Linley a surprised glance. “Gravitational Space. What a strange Gravitational Space!” But the Redcliff Lord still stood there in midair, not moving. He said calmly, “Your Gravitational Space is excellent. Whatever techniques you have available, show them all off! If you wait for me to attack, you won’t have the chance to.”

Confidence!

The Redcliff Lord was qualified to be arrogant. He didn’t fear soul attacks at all, and as for material attacks? As an expert of the Laws of the Earth, the Redcliff Lord was most confident in material attacks. His soul and material defenses were both powerful. This was the reason why the Redcliff Lord was qualified to be confident.

Linley smirked, saying to himself, “Just keep being smug. In a bit, you will be dead before you even have the chance to feel regret.”

"Rumble..."

The 'black stone' within Linley's sea of consciousness instantly spread outwards, quickly surrounding the Redcliff Ruler.

Spiritual Chaos!

"Hrm?" A hint of a smile appeared at the corners of the lips of the Redcliff Lord. He mused to himself, "So indeed, just as Ganmoly discovered, this powerful Gravitational Space is paired with a spiritual attack. It is indeed rather formidable. But against me..." Linley had first used his Gravitational Space and then his spiritual attack, which had indeed caused the Redcliff Lord to feel slightly numbed.

But right at this moment...

"Die." A killing intent surged from Linley's mind, and he immediately moved.

"BOOM!"

It was as though space had exploded. Linley's entire body shot towards the Redcliff Lord as fast as a bolt of lightning, and while shooting towards the Redcliff Lord's, the robes covering Linley's body exploded apart as azure-golden draconic scales instantly covered his entire body. Those savage spikes and that whip-like draconic tail all sprouted out as well.

Instant Dragonform!

"What!" The Redcliff Lord was still in a state of shock, and his body suddenly sank downwards.

Blackstone Space – Supergravity!

The power of the gravitational pull of the Blackstone Space increased from half power to full power. This sudden increase in power did indeed throw the Redcliff Lord off-balance, especially combined with Linley's Dragonform, which astonished him as well. No matter how foolish he might be, he now understood...that this Mr. 'Ley' in front of him had been hiding his true power this entire time! How laughable it was that he had wanted to recruit 'Ley' as a subordinate!

"He's looking for death." The Redcliff Lord howled angrily in his heart.

The Redcliff Lord's entire body flickered. Like a crab, his shoulders suddenly expanded outwards, and the strange thing was, the space around him, with a 'boom', began to tremble as well. The gravitational power generated by Linley's Blackstone Space, in the area next to the Redcliff Lord, actually began to distort and weaken. The Redcliff Lord stared at Linley with a cold face. Seeing Linley charge towards him, he just swung out with right fist, whip-fast...

The counteracting of the gravitational pull to the counter-attack happened instantaneously. The Redcliff Lord's reaction time was extremely fast!

"Crackle!"

"Eh?" Right after the Redcliff Lord swung out with his fist, his face suddenly changed.

"Swish!" A giant tear in space suddenly appeared, as though space itself was only made of power. An invisible, shadowless sword instantly arrived at the Redcliff Lord's forehead, between his eyebrows. The Redcliff Lord, frantic, opened his mouth and let out a furious howl as though he were a trapped beast. A clear earthen yellow aura spat out from his mouth, striking directly against the invisible sword.

"Eh?" Linley was stunned. "This Redcliff Lord is indeed even more powerful than I was aware of."

Linley had suddenly Dragonformed, suddenly increased his Blackstone Space to full power, and then in the final moment, suddenly revealed and attacked with his godspark sword, 'Mirage'. Especially given that Mirage left behind no traces and was completely invisible...this sort of sudden, powerful attack would be undiscoverable unless someone was paying very close attention. But clearly, the Redcliff Lord was simply too strong.

Only when Mirage drew close to the Redcliff Lord did Linley realize that a strange, unique 'Gravitational Space' had formed around the Redcliff Lord's body.

"This Gravitational Space is actually centered around his forehead." Linley was completely unable to understand this technique. The vibrations which rippled out from the Redcliff Lord formed into a unique Gravitational Space that was like two loops of power with different strengths. This caused Linley's sword to be affected.

Despite that, however...

Linley had hidden his power too deeply; the explosive triple combination of his Dragonform, the Blackstone Space, and Mirage caused the Redcliff Lord to not have enough time to fully react.

"Slash!"

When Mirage was struck, it changed directions slightly. Suddenly, the Redcliff Lord's right arm slashed over, seeming to attract Linley's sword towards it like a magnet. Linley just laughed coldly while exploding forth with his full power, and with a 'slash' sound, Mirage instantly pierced through the Redcliff Lord's right side of the chest, penetrating straight through to the Redcliff Lord's lungs.

"BANG!"

The Redcliff Lord's furious punched landed towards Linley.

"Rumble..." Space instantly exploded forth and blasted towards Linley.

"Swoosh!" In Dragonform, Linley moved as fast as lightning, instantly scurrying into the distance. As for the Redcliff Lord, his eyes seemed to spit violet fire as he stared angrily at Linley. When he breathed, he was forced to cough, as his lungs had been slashed through. But of course... he quickly recovered.

"You...hid your powers very deeply!" The Redcliff Lord stared at Linley.

"I'm just average. I trust, your Lordship, that you too have a supreme attack that you've hidden away." Linley said calmly.

"Tell me your true name! Which Elder of the Azure Dragon clan are you? I've never heard of the Azure Dragon clan having an expert named 'Ley'." The Redcliff Lord said coldly. By now, after having seen Linley's Dragonformed appearance, it would be strange indeed if he wasn't be able to guess that Linley was a member of the Azure Dragon clan.

Linley's dark golden eyes stared into the Redcliff Lord's violet ones.

"Let me re-introduce myself. I, an Elder of the Azure Dragon clan...am Linley!!!" Linley said in a cold voice.

Utter silence!

The hundred million Highgods watching this in the eastern wilderness were all stunned. Although in their heart, they knew that this sort of duel could result in the birth of a new Lord of Tartarus, they also knew that the possibility was very small. Almost everyone here believed...that this battle was just a performance for the Redcliff Lord!

Perhaps this Mr. Ley's performance might bring some unexpected surprises for everyone, but virtually all the spectators had come for the sake of watching the Redcliff Lord. But as soon as the battle had begun, they had become stupefied.

In midair, there was a man whose entire body was covered in draconic scales, with his knees, elbows, and spine all covered with sharp, savage spikes, and with a draconic tail waving behind him. The former 'Mr. Ley' now looked completely different, and their Redcliff Lord, after the first clash in the battle, now had a huge hole in his chest as well as blood flowing out.

In the very first exchange...

The Redcliff Lord had been injured!

"Lin...Linley?" Everyone stared, wide-eyed.

"Linley, Elder of the Four Divine Beasts clan! I've heard of him. He once killed five Seven Star Fiends by himself."

"It's him. I saw his scryer recording before."

Instantly, the entire eastern wilderness exploded with noise. Everyone became excited and agitated. They had all believed that this one be a one-sided show, but now, it seemed...this person was an amazing figure of legend, Elder Linley of the Azure Dragon clan of the Four Divine Beasts clan, and he was the one who would be engaging in this thrilling duel with their Redcliff Lord!

The cacophony suddenly faded away, as everyone once more focused their attention on the scene in midair.

Because...the Redcliff Lord had already revealed his weapon.

A completely pitch-black knife. The Redcliff Lord hefted the knife, staring coldly at Linley. "So it is Linley! I was wondering how such an expert would suddenly emerge in our Redcliff region. I must admit that based on our exchange just now, you are qualified to be my opponent. To show respect to you, I will attack with all my might."

Linley just watched all of this coldly.

"It seems as though beating this Redcliff Lord won't be so easy." Linley's thoughts spun through his mind. He had a tremendous advantage earlier; he had suddenly revealed his Dragonform, his true Blackstone Space, and Mirage; only then had he been able to wound his opponent. From this, one could tell how powerful this enemy was.

"What a bizarre Gravitational Space."

The Redcliff Lord shook himself, as though seeming rather uncomfortable and needing to get accustomed to this Gravitational Space. But that simple movement suddenly...

"Hrm?" Linley was startled.

He could clearly sense how the strange Gravitational Space emanating from the Redcliff Lord's forehead transformed as well. Although in terms of power, it was vastly inferior to Linley's Blackstone Space, it was still able to ablate the influence of the Blackstone Space. It was as though the Redcliff Lord had been trapped in quicksand, but a protective layer of energy had suddenly surrounded him, allowing his movements to quicken.

“Swoosh!” The Redcliff Lord suddenly flashed forward in an arc, pouncing towards Linley.

This strange arcing movement lanced at an incredibly high speed.

“He is indeed fast, but not as fast as me!” Linley’s speed reached a limit as well. Clearly, Linley was almost twice as fast as the Redcliff Lord. The Blackstone Space was the supreme technique of Reisgem, after all. Linley had spent five hundred years entrapped before gaining insight into it, and after having acquired the Black Stone, the power of his technique was already comparable to Reisgem’s.

Although the Redcliff Lord adapted much more quickly than others to it, his speed was still dramatically lessened.

“Swish!”

It moved as fast as a bolt of lightning. A tear in space suddenly appeared as the completely invisible ‘Mirage’ pierced directly towards the Redcliff Lord. The only thing the Redcliff Lord was able to sense was a terrifying power oncoming, a power that could easily rip apart the spatial walls of the Netherworld. Faced with this attack, the Redcliff Lord’s body suddenly paused.

“WHAP!”

He threw out his arm, and his fist suddenly shot forward like a rock from a catapult. That faint, earthen yellow light was emanating from his fist, while also flowing with a black light.

"BANG!"

The fist collided directly against the tip of the godspark sword, Mirage.

And just as the fist shot out, the Redcliff Lord actually borrowed the powerful surge of force, swiveling slightly as he stabbed with the black knife in his left hand towards Linley's head. "Swish!" Where the black knife passed, space itself blew apart. This attack was so terrifying as to make a person's face change color from fear.

But Linley seemed to instinctively strike back with his own left fist!

The clenched draconic claws pressed down like an entire mountain, as the terrifying divine earth power completely exploded forth – Firmament Splitter!

"BANG!"

The black dagger and the fist collided, and space instantly blew apart.

"Swoosh!" "Swoosh!"

Linley and his opponent were both knocked backwards.

“What a powerful fist.” Linley stared coldly at his opponent. The Redcliff Lord had actually dared to use his fist to fight against Linley’s godspark weapon.

“What a sharp sword.” The Redcliff Lord glanced at his right fist. The sword had pierced through the bones of his right fist. His fist was comparable to a Highgod artifact, but it had actually been wounded. Actually, he couldn’t be blamed; it was a godspark weapon which he faced, after all. The Redcliff Lord then glanced at Linley’s fist. “Your fist is pretty tough as well.”

Some of the draconic scales covering Linley’s fist had been shattered as well.

That short exchange of blows had caused both Linley and the Redcliff Lord to understand something; they couldn’t let the enemy hit them in their vital points. Linley had to rely on his fist executing an attack with his understanding of the Profound Mysteries in order to block that dagger. If the enemy managed to strike him in the head, the draconic scales would definitely not be able to block them.

And the opposite was true as well.

If Linley’s sword was to stab into the enemy’s forehead, he would definitely pierce through and kill the enemy.

The countless people watching this duel in the eastern wilderness were completely breathless. Above them, two supreme experts were battling, and they were absolutely too powerful.

"That Elder Linley has an invisible weapon. His Lordship is incredibly powerful; he dared to use his fist to accept that blow."

"Lord Linley is powerful as well. He too dared to use his fist to block his Lordship's knife."

The hundred million spectators were completely cowed by the might and strength of these two experts. All of them watched unblinkingly, wanting to see what would happen.

"Ahhhh, look, what's going on?"

"What's going on? How is that possible?"

Many people's faces suddenly changed dramatically. "His Lordship, his Lordship can transform as well?"

Linley's face changed dramatically as well. He had never watched the Redcliff Lord transform in any of the sryer recordings he had seen.

"In the past, when I challenged the previous Redcliff Lord, he wasn't able to force me to transform. Congratulations...you are the very first person I have encountered since becoming the Redcliff Lord capable of making me use my full power." The Redcliff Lord's violet eyes stared at Linley. His entire body was undergoing a sudden change. His shoulders began to bulge, and his entire body began to emanate a black light..."

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 10, The Final, Supreme Technique!

“Crackle...”

A black aura surrounded and swirled around the body of the Redcliff Lord. His shoulders began to bulge more and more extravagantly, until with a ‘crunch’ sound, two black, knife-like shoulder blades spread out like a pair of black wings that folded against each other. It was like a black cape was hanging from the Redcliff Lord’s back.

From the forehead of the Redcliff Lord emerged a pair of sharp black horns as well.

The Redcliff Lord’s entire body was now pitch black, and he stared at Linley with those violet pupils.

“Those vertical violet pupils looked different from an ordinary person’s. I should’ve guessed long ago.” Linley, seeing the Redcliff Lord before him, mused to himself. This Redcliff Lord was actually able to transform. Naturally, his power had increased as well. Linley felt some pressure now as well. Would he be able to win this battle?

Linley wasn’t completely certain.

All he could do was to sigh to himself that not a single person capable of becoming a Lord of Tartarus could be underestimated.

“Linley!” The Redcliff Lord stared at Linley with his violet eyes, smirking.

"No matter what the results are, I will forever remember you!" As soon as the words fell, the Redcliff Lord's knife-like blade wings suddenly trembled, and the surrounding area was instantly formed into a bizarre, double-ringed gravitational field.

"Swoosh!"

Moving like a flying bird, the Redcliff Lord gracefully glided at high speed forward.

"His speed did indeed increase slightly. However, it's far from being enough." Linley didn't back down in the slightest. He, too, transformed into an arcing blur, his translucent Mirage sword mercilessly piercing towards the Redcliff Lord's skull. This stab caused a hole to be torn through space.

The Redcliff Lord thrust out his arm.

"Clang!"

That black knife, flowing with an earthen yellow knife, collided with Linley's 'Mirage'.

"BOOM!"

The two were both knocked backwards by the collision once again but then the two instantly charged towards each other at high speed yet again. In terms of speed, Linley clearly held the advantage. The Redcliff Lord wouldn't possibly be able to dodge every time. However, the strange gravitational field surrounding the Redcliff Lord caused it so that each time Linley's sword drew near, it would be affected just slightly.

But that slight affect was enough to change the outcome.

"Swish!" An incredibly fast sword blow.

The Redcliff Lord was, after all, slightly slower. However, once the Mirage fell into the strange dual looped gravitational field, it couldn't help but change direction slightly. The Redcliff Lord's wings once more trembled, as though he was going to block once again.

"Hmph!" Linley instantly caused the divine power within Mirage to explode forth.

"Boom!"

Mirage stabbed directly into the Redcliff Lord's left shoulder, sending fresh blood flying everywhere. After having landed this blow, Linley didn't hesitate; he immediately retreated. And as he did, Linley once more relied on his speed to launch an attack. Although...in terms of material attacks, it could be said that by relying on his godspark weapon, Linley was able to fight to a standstill, Linley wasn't able to take the counter-blows head on.

He had to rely on Mirage and his speed to repeatedly leave wounds behind on his enemy's body.

As for the Redcliff Lord, even though he had transformed, he was still much slower. He could just barely protect his vitals and ensure that his head wasn't struck, but he was unable to protect the other places on his body.

There, in midair, within an enormous gravitational sphere formed of earthen yellow light, their two figures clashed repeatedly, as fast as lightning. Linley's invisible Mirage sword occasionally left behind wounds on the Redcliff Lord's body. The Redcliff Lord appeared to be in rather bad shape, but he didn't look the slightest bit discouraged, continuing to go all out against Linley.

As soon as Linley backed off, he might immediately receive a strong counterattack.

"This looks troublesome. It seems victory and defeat won't be determined within in a short time frame." Bebe said with a frown.

"It is a bit troublesome. Although the Redcliff Lord's speed increased after transforming, Elder Linley clearly doesn't dare to fight against him head on, and so not a single one of his attacks has landed on Elder Linley. But Elder Linley is able to wound him. Elder Linley clearly has the advantage." A burly, green-robed man by Bebe's said spoke out. The entire eastern wilderness held more than a hundred million people. Because the battle above was simply too absorbing, discussions once more rang out from below. Linley currently had the slight advantage, as the Redcliff Lord's body continued to shed blood every so often.

However, small wounds like these didn't impact his strength much.

Who would win, and who would lose?

For now, it was hard to say.

"If things continue like this, how long will it take?" Quite a few people were puzzled.

What these spectators like to see were those true, all out, frontal assaults. Those sorts of battles might only last an instant, but generally speaking, life and death would be determined within a few blows. Those battles would cause the spectators to feel nervous and to feel their blood pumping.

But now...

Linley and the Redcliff Lord clearly weren't fighting in such a way.

"Hey, that's weird. It seems as though the Redcliff Lord is getting a bit faster." Someone suddenly said.

"Right. He did speed up. It seems as though it no longer is so easy for Elder Linley to wound the Redcliff Lord." Quite a few spectators slowly discovered this.

Bebe noticed this as well. He instantly grew nervous.

The spectators below were leisurely watching Linley and the Redcliff Lord battle, but they themselves didn't dare to slacken off in the slightest. If they did, they might end up being killed in that instant.

"That sword is too bizarre." The Redcliff Lord's mind was constantly in a state of tension. The godspark sword, 'Mirage', would constantly stab towards him. If it wasn't for the fact that he could rely on using gravity to change its direction and block it, Mirage would've pierced through his head long ago. All he could do was hold on..."

"Keep waiting, just keep waiting...in a bit, it'll be time for you to be in trouble." The Redcliff Lord mused to himself.

Linley had a bad feeling as well.

"His speed is continuously rising. Or, to be precise...the gravitational field around his body is transforming." Linley discovered that the Redcliff Lord's wings were filled with divine power, and were trembling at high speed, creating two surges of unique vibrations. These two unique vibrational surges were influencing each other.

This was causing the gravitational field to transform as well.

As time went on, the constant transformations caused by the two vibrations caused the ability of the gravitational field to resist Linley's 'Blackstone Space' more and more effectively.

A Gravitational Space was actually created by relying on divine power transformed into gravitational power. If an opponent was also skilled in it, the opponent would be able to ablate its effects. Although the Redcliff Lord didn't understand this 'Blackstone Space', while within it, he could sense and slowly adjust his own gravitational field, continuously perfecting it in its ability to deal with Linley's Blackstone Space.

This made it so that as time went on, his speed became faster and faster!

“Linley, time for you to have a taste of what it feels like to be trampled!” The Redcliff Lord let out a furious howl. He transformed into a ray of black light, shooting towards Linley at high speed. Although his speed was currently still slower than Linley’s, the gap was low enough now that he could rely on his attack techniques to make up for it. The difference wasn’t as great as it had been previously.

Linley let out a calm laugh. “It is indeed time for things to come to an end.”

Linley charged forward to welcome him.

“Whooooosh.” The black knife struck directly at Linley’s head. Linley didn’t hesitate at all; Mirage pierced forward at high speed as well.

“Clang!”

In the instant when the black knife and Mirage clashed.

“Swoosh!” The Redcliff Lord’s wings trembled, and he suddenly increased in speed, and his right fist swung out towards Linley in a straight line. However, at the same instant of his attack, there was a bizarre, unique ripple.

'Rumble'...

A spatial whirlpool suddenly seemed to form, with that fist being at the center of the whirlpool.

In an instant...

The space around the fist seemed to have been trapped and activated, and even the direction of gravity was twisted. Linley felt his own body be impacted as well.

"Eh? This punch!" Linley's face changed dramatically.

The effect of this punch made Linley think of the 'Abyssal Inn'. There, he had seen the Sovereign of Death use the Laws of Water to attack and achieve this effect. At that time, the Sovereign of Death had used a fishing line to distort space, capturing and binding that Seven Star Fiend level expert. And now, this punch of the Redcliff Lord had the same effect.

Linley wasn't able to dodge in time at all!

"Whoosh!" Linley gritted his teeth, then swept out with his left arm, his draconic claw filling with divine earth power and smashing down like a mountain. Firmament Splitter!

"BANG!"

Linley just felt a bone-piercing pain in his left hand before he was knocked flying backwards.

"What a powerful punch." Linley lowered his head to look at his fist. The draconic scales atop his fist were almost completely shattered. Fresh blood was leaking out, and the bones of his hand were faintly visible. Even when using 'Firmament Splitter', he had still fallen into such a state.

"I can't use my fist to take his head on." Linley immediately came to this conclusion. "I have to use my godspark weapon against his fist."

"Haha..."

Wild laughter rang out. The Redcliff Lord stared at Linley with his violet eyes. His wings suddenly trembled, and he once more swooped forward. Linley's 'Mirage' struck out as well, so fast as to cause even the Redcliff Lord's laughter to come to a sudden halt. He immediately wanted to use his black knife to block it.

But Linley suddenly withdrew his sword.

"Rumble..."

The Redcliff Lord laughed coldly. The black fist covered by that flowing earthen yellow light once more struck out, causing that spatial whirlpool to form once more, distorting the nearby space and gravity. Linley could sense the power of that fist.

"Swish!"

Mirage came stabbing straight out.

"Hmph." The Redcliff Lord was very confident. He didn't dodge at all, allowing his right fist to smash straight against Mirage. But as Mirage drew close to the fist, it actually became uncontrollably affected by the spatial whirlpool and was attracted to it. The Redcliff Lord's fist struck right against the flat of Mirage.

And then, it glided forwards, straight towards Linley's head.

"BANG!"

Suddenly...

The downwards gravitational direction of the Blackstone Space changed into...a repulsive force!

The originally downwards gravitational pull suddenly disappeared, causing the Redcliff Lord to uncontrollably surge upwards. Right at this moment, the repulsive force swept outwards, causing the Redcliff Lord's body to uncontrollably be pushed backwards.

"Swoosh!" Linley seized the opportunity to charge forward, sending Mirage out in a straight stab.

The sudden change of the gravitational direction caused the 'upwards' gravitational field the Redcliff Lord had previously created to be ineffective, and his speed once more slowed greatly. This, followed by the sudden attack by Linley's sword...by the time the Redcliff Lord reacted, the sword had already appeared in front of his eyes.

"Not good!" The Redcliff Lord's face changed dramatically, and he hurriedly retreated.

When impacted by the repulsive force, his retreating speed was still very fast.

Linley smirked. "GET OVER HERE!"

The gravitational pull once more changed! The repulsive force transformed into an attractive force, centered towards Linley!

The Redcliff Lord's body couldn't help but sway.

"Slash!" As he frantically dodged, Linley's sword only managed to pierce through the Redcliff Lord's chest.

"Impossible, impossible!!!" The Redcliff Lord frantically tried to resist the gravitational pull. He hurriedly retreated, staring towards Linley in disbelief. "Your Gravitational Space....how can it casually change directions? How can it...can it be?!" The Redcliff Lord suddenly thought of a person.

"Reisgem!" The Redcliff Lord stared at Linley in disbelief.

This sort of Gravitational Space which allowed for casual control of the direction of the gravity was the supreme technique of Reisgem. Even a supreme expert like the Redcliff Lord, when faced with this sort of constantly changing directional pull, would find it hard to control his movements perfectly.

Given this sort of situation, all he could do was struggle to preserve his own life.

"Swoosh!" Linley once more shot forward at high speed.

The Redcliff Lord immediately flew backwards, but the gravitational pull acting on his body once more changed directions, into an 'upwards' gravitational pull. Caught off-guard, the Redcliff Lord's body couldn't help but sway upwards. "Bastard, bastard...this is the innate supreme technique of Reisgem. How could someone else learn it? How?!" The Redcliff Lord still couldn't believe it.

"Rumble..."

A strange, powerful ripple suddenly spread out.

"What?" The Redcliff Lord's face suddenly changed.

Linley was currently staring at him, while an enormous Azure Dragon Phantom that was ten thousand meters long lay coiled behind Linley. The Azure Dragon Phantom was hovering behind Linley, staring emotionlessly at the Redcliff Lord. Suddenly, a unique sound began to echo in the Redcliff Lord's mind...

Innate divine ability – Dragon Roar!

Linley's final, supreme technique had finally been unleashed!

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 11, Victory and Defeat

The Dragon Roar contained a spiritual attack component, but it wasn't able to affect the Redcliff Lord at all.

However...

The most monstrous property of the innate divine ability, 'Dragon Roar', was the impact it had on time. There was no type of Law or Edict that was able to change the rate of time. Only this sort of unearthly innate divine ability was capable of it. Innate divine abilities were things which surpassed the limits of the Laws! As for the Azure Dragon clan, their innate divine ability was able to change the speed of time. In the region where the Redcliff Lord's soul was located, the speed of time began to change!

"Swish!"

Linley, while executing his innate divine ability, 'Dragon Roar', also shot forward like a blur of light, the godspark sword Mirage mercilessly piercing straight towards the forehead of the Redcliff Lord. His most powerful blow...

Firmament Splitter!

"BANG!" A hole appeared in the Redcliff Lord's forehead, and Mirage passed straight through it, piercing against his soul!

Silence! Utter stillness!

The enormous Azure Dragon Phantom in the sky had yet to vanish. The hundred million-plus spectators on the ground, upon seeing the enormous Azure Dragon Phantom appear, felt shock and awe in their hearts. But when Linley's 'Mirage' sword pierced straight through the Redcliff Lord's forehead, everyone below was truly stunned.

"The Redcliff Lord...died?"

Although they couldn't see Mirage, even the weakest of the spectators below was at the Demigod level. After having watched for so long, they were able to guess that Linley was wielding an invisible sword in his hand. Judging from Linley's posture, they were able to guess that the invisible sword had stabbed into the Redcliff Lord's forehead.

Caught in a patch of slow time, the Redcliff Lord only felt that before he even had a chance to react, Linley's 'Mirage' had come stabbing straight into his forehead. The Redcliff Lord felt as though Linley's attack speed had suddenly increased tenfold, perhaps even twentyfold. This sort of speed was something he couldn't react to at all.

Mirage pierced into his sea of consciousness.

An invisible black barrier was currently protecting the Redcliff Lord's soul. This was the soul-protecting Sovereign artifact which the Redcliff Lord possessed. By relying on this soul-protecting Sovereign artifact, the Redcliff Lord was able to stably sit on his throne as a Lord of Tartarus.

However, a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact only protected against soul attacks.

It was much like how...

A soul attack could ignore the body and ignore all physical barriers, passing through to attack the soul, or be blocked by a soul-protecting artifact.

It was the same principle.

Material attacks would ignore soul-protecting artifacts. If someone used a soul attack to try and block a material attack, that would be an utter joke.

A soul-protecting Sovereign artifact was, by its very nature, formed to be used against soul attacks. Against an incoming material attack, it might as well not be there. Mirage pierced directly through the soul-protecting Sovereign artifact's protection, and the artifact itself wasn't damaged in the slightest.

They didn't even touch.

Although time had slowed, the Redcliff Lord still knew, at the moment that Linley's sword came stabbing in, that the moment of his death had come. But his thinking speed was simply too slow; there was no way he could react in time. The only thing he could do was...

"Bang!"

Deep within his sea of consciousness, within the hands of a divine clone...a drop of Death-type Sovereign's Might exploded forth! A terrifying surge of Sovereign power spread out, according to the Laws of the Earth, forming into countless blades and swarming towards Linley's 'Mirage', smashing against it! By now, the Redcliff Lord had almost gone insane.

All he knew was...

He had to block it!

Thus, he now used his most powerful attack while relying on Sovereign's Might to block Mirage.

"BOOOOM!"

As he stabbed down, Linley sensed a terrifyingly powerful force surge out from the Redcliff Lord's sea of consciousness, and then surges of power slam against Mirage. In addition, the power of every single surge was tremendous. Linley couldn't help but be shaken, and he flew backwards while staring at the Redcliff Lord in surprise.

"What's going on?" Linley didn't understand.

"Rumble..." Powerful Death-type light emanated from the Redcliff Lord, and the wounds on his body quickly repaired.

The Redcliff Lord's eyes suddenly lit up as he stared angrily at Linley. "Linley!" With the might of Sovereign power filling his body, if he were to attack using the profound mysteries, he would clearly now be much stronger. The impact of Linley's 'Blackstone Space' would be greatly lessened as well. "Bastard." After having nearly been killed, the enraged Redcliff Lord prepared to charge forward.

"Do we have to continue?"

Linley's voice rang out.

"Eh?" The Redcliff Lord's body trembled, and he came to a halt.

Although his body was brimming with black light, and although his power had indeed risen tremendously after using that Sovereign's Might, to a level that was indeed enough to kill the current Linley....he wouldn't be able to kill what Linley was about to become. Because currently, in Linley's hand, there was floating a drop of earthen yellow liquid...earth-type Sovereign's Might!

"Do we have to continue?" Linley's voice still echoed in the air.

The Redcliff Lord stared at the drop of Sovereign's Might hovering in Linley's palm, his heart filled with resentment.

But if this continued, the result was obvious!

When an expert of the Laws of the Earth used a drop of earth-type Sovereign's Might, the power unleashed would be at a peak.

Without using his Sovereign's Might, Linley, by relying on his Blackstone Space and his innate divine ability, these two supreme techniques, was already at a slight advantage.

If he were to use his Sovereign's Might, even though the Redcliff Lord had used a drop of Death-type Sovereign's Might, against Linley's earth-type Sovereign's Might, the result was obviously...that Linley's advantage would rise dramatically. By then...the Redcliff Lord would definitely perish!

"AAAAAARGH!" The Redcliff Lord suddenly bellowed, face towards the skies.

A wild blast of Death-type Sovereign's Might blasted out in every direction, and the surges of wild, powerful might caused multiple tears in space to appear around him. The aura was so powerful as to cause the countless spectators below to feel shocked. None of them knew what the results of the battle were yet.

"I admit defeat!" A hoarse, growling voice rang out.

Linley laughed.

This was all as he had expected. If they were to continue to fight, Linley was completely certain that by relying on his earth-type Sovereign's Might, he would be able to win and kill this opponent. But if he did that...although his opponent would be dead, he would have used up his only drop of earth-type Sovereign's Might. It absolutely wasn't worth it. And, perhaps the enemy might have a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact, true, but even if he acquired it, in the future, it's Sovereign would come reclaim it.

Thus, Linley didn't wish to continue this battle. He chose to preserve his one and only drop of Sovereign's Might.

This drop of earth-type Sovereign's Might had been awarded to him after he had used up the previous drop in order to save Elder Garvey during the final battle between the Four Divine Beasts clan and the eight great clans. The clan had naturally replenished Linley with another drop, if for no other reason than to show gratitude for Beirut having helped the Four Divine Beasts clan.

"Linley." The Redcliff Lord stared at Linley. "To be honest, I'm very reluctant to admit defeat in this battle! In terms of profound mysteries, you are far inferior to me. As I see it, you have at most fused three or four different profound mysteries." The Redcliff Lord, based on his astuteness, naturally was able to tell that how many profound mysteries each of Linley's attacks held.

"I admit this." Linley nodded.

"However, you have Reisgem's innate divine ability, as well as your Azure Dragon clan's innate divine ability. With those two matched up with your decent understanding of the Laws..." The Redcliff Lord let out a self-mocking chuckle.

Linley was a single individual, but he actually possessed two powerful, supreme innate abilities.

“Reisgem’s supreme innate ability. In all the countless planes, he’s the only person I know capable of this.” The Redcliff Lord sighed. “This sort of supreme innate ability that allows him to constantly change the direction of a gravitational pull does indeed make others feel envious. This alone makes it so that virtually no one can surpass him in close-quarters combat.”

Linley nodded slightly.

“I lost. Having lost to two such supreme innate abilities, I have nothing to say.” The Redcliff Lord sighed.

Linley laughed calmly.

He could tell how reluctant to admit it the Redcliff Lord was. But so what if he was reluctant? Innate divine abilities were a part of a person’s power. For example, Bebe...he had fused no profound mysteries at all, but once he unleashed his innate divine ability, ‘Godeater’, how many could resist him?

There was nothing for it. This was an innate ability!

As for Linley, he had two powerful innate abilities. Because he had fused a low amount of profound mysteries, this made it so that...Linley’s potential was tremendous! But as for the Redcliff Lord, he had already tapped out all his potential.

“Redcliff Lord, let’s publicly announce the results.” Linley laughed calmly.

Just now, the conversation between the two of them after the battle came to an end had intentionally been separated from the spectators through Godrealm, so that no one below could hear them.

"Fine." The Redcliff Lord nodded.

The Redcliff Lord looked down at the countless spectators, then said in an emotionless voice, "This duel is concluded. From today onwards, Linley is the next Lord of this region." After speaking...he transformed into a black blur, streaking towards the west. Clearly, he was going to leave the Redcliff region.

Silence!

The countless spectators below instantly fell silent...and then erupted into a cacophony of cheers and chatter. Actually, when they saw Linley's sword stab through the Redcliff Lord's forehead, they had already expected this. Now that the Redcliff Lord had openly announced it, the results became confirmed.

"Linley!" Someone cheered jubilantly.

"LINLEY!" The cheer seemed to be infectious, and the countless people below all began to cheer in celebration. They all knew...

Yet another miracle had occurred!

Having defeated the previous Redcliff Lord, a new Redcliff Lord, Linley, was born!

"Swoosh!" Bebe flew into the skies.

He flew to Linley's side, excitedly looking at Linley. "Boss, you succeeded! Haha! A Lord of Tartarus. That's someone on the same level as a Purgatory Commander or a Lord Prefect of the Infernal Realm." Linley stared down at the scene of the countless thronging, celebrating masses. He couldn't help but have a feeling as though he was apart from the rest of the world.

He still remembered how...

When he just entered the Infernal Realm, he had hidden within the Black Dragon tribe.

How nerve-wracking the Fiend trials had been.

It seemed as though, in the blink of an eye, he had somehow become a Lord of Tartarus!

"Bebe, we are finally qualified to enter the Planar Battlefield." Linley laughed.

"Right." Bebe laughed happily as well.

Linley and Bebe, these two brothers, were currently high in midair chatting. They didn't notice whatsoever that an old, familiar face was currently amongst the countless thronging masses below them.

A man dressed in a white robe, with long, unbound black hair, and a pair of scarlet eyebrows!

He was smiling as he looked at Linley and Bebe in the air. This person, amazingly, was the supreme expert who had provided guidance to Linley when Linley was young...Bluefire!

"It seems Beirut was worried over nothing. Linley's power is even greater than I had imagined. There's no need for me to remain here...oh, and the Planar Wars are currently proceeding. I need to come up with a way to enter the Planar Battlefield and watch." Bluefire immediately turned and left.

His body was very real, but when he walked away, it seemed to become like a mirage.

In the blink of an eye, he easily traversed the massive, dense crowd of a hundred million Deities. When exited the crowd, his body seemed to transform into a blurry, fiery illusion. Transforming into red flash of light later, he disappeared into the horizon.

In terms of speed alone...

He was, amazingly enough, even faster than the former 'Redcliff Lord', who had shocked Linley with his speed.

From today onwards, the estate of the Redcliff Lord was now Linley's estate.

"Your Lordship." Ganmoly said respectfully. Ganmoly now had the feeling as though there truly was no such thing as permanence in this world; not long ago, he was leading Linley to pay his respects to the former Redcliff Lord, but in the blink of an eye...Linley had become the current Redcliff Lord. But of course, he knew...that Linley was actually an Elder of the Azure Dragon clan.

Linley glanced at Ganmoly, then said, "Ganmoly, I wish to ask you something. If I wish to enter the Planar Battlefield, do I need to bring any proof of my status?"

"No need." Ganmoly laughed immediately. "Your Lordship, don't worry. Once a person defeats the previous Lord and replaces him, the news will, within a single day, become known throughout the various estates of the Lords of Tartarus. At the same time, information regarding you will also spread to Flamebone Mountain."

Linley nodded slightly.

"All you need to go is head over there, your Lordship. They will naturally recognize you, your Lordship. At most...your Lordship, you might just simply reveal that legendary sword of yours, which can become invisible." Ganmoly laughed.

"A single day?" Linley nodded slightly.

"Bebe." Linley turned to look.

"Eh?" Bebe was currently seated on a distant chair, chomping on some of the fruit that was local to the Netherworld. "What is it, Boss?"

"In a day, Flamebone Mountain will have my information. Tell me, when should we head out?" Linley laughed.

"A day?" Bebe immediately leapt to his feet. "Damn, flying over to Flamebone Mountain a long period of time as well. Boss, let's hurry up and head out right away!"

"Right away?" Linley was stunned, but then he laughed.

Ganmoly was rather surprised as well.

"Right." Bebe suddenly turned to stare at Ganmoly, then instructed, "Ganmoly, these fruits aren't bad. Prepare some extras and bring them over. I plan to eat them on the way."

"Uh....yes!" Ganmoly acknowledged.

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 12, Four Badge Colors

Flamebone Mountain. The entire mountain swirled with flame.

Two blurs streaked through the horizon, pausing in the air above Flamebone Mountain. It was Linley and Bebe.

“Crunch!” Bebe viciously bit into a fruit, lowering his head to stare down at the mountain peak below. “Boss, last time we came to this place, we were blocked by those guards. It was because we weren’t Lord Prefects or Lords of Tartarus. It’s only been two or three months, right? Boss, you are a Tartarus Lord now. I wonder what sort of looks those guards will have on their faces.”

As he spoke, he casually tossed the core of the already-eaten fruit off to one side.

“Let’s go.” Laughing calmly, Linley flew into the skies, with Bebe following behind.

Atop the mountain peak, there was a completely pitch-black, ancient-looking castle. It, too, was wreathed in flames. There were still many guards patrolling outside, and at the front gate, there were more than ten people, divided into two lines, standing there. Upon seeing Linley and Bebe, one of the black-armored guards stepped forward slightly. “Eh? Them again?”

This black-armored guard, amazingly, was the guard who had received Linley last time.

It had only been a few months, after all. The guards here were very rarely changed.

"Hey, why did you two run over here again?" The black-armored guard couldn't help but frown as he spoke. "Last time, I told you two already. We can only open the interspatial gate to Lords of Tartarus or Lord Prefects."

Linley and Bebe landed.

"Boss, these guards don't to know your status." Bebe said, puzzled. "Didn't that guy say that in one day, your information would spread to Flamebone Mountain? Why don't these guards know? We spent quite a few days flying from Flamebone Mountain to this place. Boss, your information should have arrived here long ago."

Linley glanced at the guards, then laughed calmly. "Information regarding me should have made its way to the high level members of Flamebone Mountain, but these ordinary soldiers haven't gotten the word yet." Linley didn't want to waste words with these ordinary guards, and so he immediately strode forward. His sudden movement forward naturally caused these guards to all feel surprised.

"Halt!" More than ten guards stared at Linley.

"The two of you, this is no ordinary place. You can't just barge in. We aren't able to stop you, but you don't dare offend the Sovereign either, right?" The leader of the black-armored guards stared at Linley and Bebe with his blue eyes. Last time, they already learned of Linley and Bebe's power, and so they didn't dare to act too wildly.

"I am the Redcliff Lord." Linley said calmly.

"Eh?"

The ten-plus black-armored guards were instantly stupefied.

"You must be joking." The black-armored guard couldn't believe it. Laughing, he looked at Linley. "It's only been a few months."

First, a hundred victories in the arena. Then, the challenge to a Lord of Tartarus...resulting in victory! All in just a few months? This sort of speed was far too fast. The black-armored guards didn't dare to believe it.

"Stop wasting words." Bebe shouted impatiently. "If my Boss tells you that he is, then he is! Hurry up and find your leader. He will definitely know the news regarding the new Redcliff Lord, Linley."

"Eh?"

The black-armored guards looked at each other, then studied the looks on Linley and Bebe's faces carefully.

"Captain, they seem to be telling the truth." The black-armored guards whispered to each other secretly through divine sense.

"But it's only been a few months. This is too wild."

Although the black-armored guards all felt it was crazy, the leading black-armored guard still said, "Fine, I'll go make the inquiries. Please wait here, the two of you." After speaking, the black-armored guard immediately flew into the depths of the castle, while Linley and Bebe waited patiently outside.

The remaining black-armored guards continued to stare at Linley and Bebe in surprise.

These black-armored guards clearly didn't dare believe it.

Quite a while later...

"Redcliff Lord, Redcliff Lord!" A deep voice rang out. Linley and Bebe turned to look, only to see a muscular, blue-armored man who was slightly taller than even Linley stride out with big steps. The black-armored guard behind him stared at Linley in amazement. The blue-armored man's gaze fell directly upon Linley, and his eyes immediately lit up.

"Redcliff Lord, we just received word not long ago, and we weren't in a hurry to pass it down. Who would have imagined that you would come here so quickly, Redcliff Lord?" The blue-armored man chortled as he spoke. "Oh, let me introduce myself. I am Dilas [Ji'la'si]!"

"Linley." Linley laughed in acknowledgment.

Hearing Linley report his name, the muscular, blue-armored man noded and laughed, "Given that we received information regarding you already, we are certain of your status, especially upon seeing this youth by your side. However, your Lordship, please still provide some small bit of proof for us. You can either Dragonform or show off that invisible, godly sword you possess."

Linley just stretched out his right hand.

Azure-golden scales instantly covered his hand.

"That's more than enough." The muscular, blue-armored man laughed. "Please pardon us. We do indeed need to be cautious. Let me lead the way, your Lordship. Please follow me."

Linley and Bebe followed this muscular, blue-armored man inwards.

Bebe turned his head to glance sideways at the black-armored guards, intentionally letting out a sniff.

"He really is a Lord of Tartarus!" The leader of the black-armored guards rubbed his nose, sighing in disbelief. "How long has it been? Last time, we waved them off, but in the blink of an eye, he's a Lord of Tartarus."

"This Lord Linley is fairly good-tempered. If it was the likes of the Flamebone Lord, Captain, and you dared to be so disrespectful, you most likely would have been killed in a fit of anger." The nearby black-armored guards smirked and laughed. Although...this castle belonged to the Sovereign, the normal affairs of the castle were carried out by a Sovereign's Emissary.

The Sovereign's Emissary was the one who arranged for these guards to be present. If a Lord of Tartarus killed a petty guard, would the Sovereign's Emissary get into a dispute with a Lord of Tartarus, for the sake of the petty guard?

"When I think about it, it is rather frightening. Still, I continue to feel as though I'm in a dream." The black-armored guard couldn't help but look towards the direction in which Linley and Bebe had just walked, shaking his head and sighing.

Linley and Bebe, under the guidance of the blue-armored Dilas, continued to advance down a wide corridor. This wide corridor actually slowly went deeper into the ground. Although it went downwards, it was still wide enough for more than ten people to traverse simultaneously, and was at least ten meters high.

Only, given that they were underground, it was rather dark.

"The interspatial gate was built in the heart of the Flamebone Mountain." The muscular 'Dilas' walked while laughing and explaining. "The Planar Battlefield is connected to the Seven Divine Planes and the Four Higher Realms. In total, there are eleven interspatial gates. According to legend...this great work was completed by the four Overgods working in unison."

"In unison?" Linley said, amazed.

Indeed, only the likes of an Overgod could construct interspatial gates of this level. However, Linley hadn't imagined that the four Overgods actually joined forces for it.

"Hehe, your Lordship, that's just what I've heard." Dilas chortled.

"Overgods...Overgods...they are so powerful, but I've never seen one." Bebe muttered.

Dilas just said with a laugh, "Never seen one? The Overgods are always around you."

"Oh?" Bebe stared.

"We are always surrounded by and live within the Laws and the Edicts. The four Overgods are the embodiment of the four great Edicts. Naturally, they are always by your side." Dilas said with a smile, and then he glanced towards the front. "Oh, we're almost there! The interspatial gate is just up ahead. His Lordship is there awaiting you two."

Linley looked forward. He could faintly sense a unique aura from up ahead.

At the end of the corridor was an extremely wide, heavily guarded chamber. In the center of the chamber, there was a black pool that was around ten meters in diameter. In the center of the pool, there was a 'gate' that was five meters long, ten meters high. This gate stood there in the center of the pool, emanating a black light. Linley could sense that the unique aura was coming from within it.

"Lord Linley." A voice rang out.

Linley turned and saw that in the left side of the hall, there was a silver-haired elder as well as a group of blue-armored guards.

The silver-haired elder smiled as he walked over. "We just saw the news regarding you not long ago, Lord Linley. So you are a member of the Azure Dragon clan. I am old friends with Patriarch Gislason of your Azure Dragon clan. Oh, I forgot to introduce myself. I am Gallen [Gao'lun]!"

"Mr. Gallen." Linley smiled. "I wish to enter the Planar Battlefield. I'm not sure what I need to do?"

"This is simple." The silver-haired elder made a pair of palm-sized badges appear in his hand. These two badges emanated a black aura, but although both were covered with black light, they were made from different materials. One was made from a completely blood-red material, while the other was made from a completely black material. "Of the two badges, the blood-red one represents a 'commander', while this black one represents an ordinary soldier! At the same time...it also represents that you two belong to the side of 'Darkness' in this battle."

As he spoke, he delivered the two badges, which flew to Linley and Bebe.

Linley accepted the blood-red badge, while Bebe accepted the black one.

"Please bind them and take them into your body." The silver-haired elder laughed calmly as he spoke. "After you enter the Planar Battlefield, if you encounter someone on the same side, once you draw near, you'll be able to sense each other's badge's aura."

Linley laughed. This was the same concept as the badges of the Four Divine Beasts clan.

Linley and Bebe immediately bound the badges by blood and took them into their bodies.

"The two of you, the stone tablet over here has some information regarding military merits carved into it. Please take a look." The silver-haired elder pointed to a nearby stone tablet that was erect against the wall, roughly one meter wide and three meters tall.

"Military merits?"

Linley and Bebe's eyes lit up. This time, Linley had come especially for the sake of accumulating military merits. He immediately walked to the stone tablet, looking through it carefully.

The information on the stone tablet was quite simple, but upon seeing it, Linley took a deep breath.

"How brutal." Linley said to himself.

The rules of the Planar Wars...

Each war was divided into two sides. One side's commanders would have red badges, with the soldiers having black badges. The other side's commanders would have gold badges, with the soldiers having white badges. To become a commander, one had to be a Tartarus Lord, a Lord Prefect, an Asura, or someone on the same level. As for soldiers...they had to be Highgods.

For example, Linley and Bebe.

If they killed someone on their own side, they wouldn't have rendered any military merits.

Only by killing enemies and acquiring a hundred white badges would they acquire a single drop of Sovereign's Might. Upon acquiring ten thousand white badges, they would be able to acquire a Sovereign artifact. But of course, if they gained ten gold badges, they could also trade for a Sovereign artifact.

However, there was one thing...gold badges couldn't be traded for Sovereign's Might! To trade for Sovereign's Might, one had to acquire white badges.

This destroyed any chance of one being able to acquire a large amount of Sovereign's Might.

In addition, if one managed to kill five enemy commanders during the Planar Wars, after the battle concluded, the military merits could be recorded. Once the next Planar Wars began, if one killed five more commanders, the total military merits rendered would be ten, and by then, one could still trade for a Sovereign artifact.

"So it is cumulative?" Linley sighed. "And one has to kill ordinary soldiers? Isn't that...just butchery?"

"Although it seems simple, the ordinary soldiers are all gathered in one place. To kill a hundred of them? You'd most likely suffer the attacks of ten thousand soldiers. Most Six Star Fiends and Seven Star Fiends possess spiritual attacks that are a tenth the power of a Lord Prefect's. But an attack from ten thousand...even a Lord of Tartarus would have to flee, and would be killed if he didn't flee fast enough." The silver-haired elder, Gallen, said with a calm laugh.

Linley couldn't help but nod.

If a commander encountered ten or perhaps a few dozen soldiers, it wouldn't be too hard to massacre them.

But if the commander encountered a thousand or more than ten thousand soldiers...attacking would be suicide.

"Every single commander is hard to kill. Everyone who dares to enter has their own ways of preserving their lives. Thus, that's why military merits can be accumulated over time!" The silver-haired elder, Gallen, said with a calm laugh. "If you take part in several Planar Wars, you'll be able to accumulate enough military merits. But of course, you also might lose your life in the Planar Wars, resulting in all your efforts being for naught."

Linley nodded slightly.

"Mr. Gallen, we'll head in, then." Linley immediately said.

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 13, Dangerous

“Then let me wish you, Mr. Linley, a successful venture and return for the two of you.” The silver-haired elder, Gellen, laughed calmly. Suddenly, he thought of something and said hurriedly, “Right, Lord Linley, I don’t know if you know or not, but once you participate in the Planar War, you will only be permitted to depart once this Planar War concludes.”

“Eh?” Linley turned to look at him.

“Lord Linley, so you really didn’t know.” The silver-haired elder, Gellen, laughed. “This is a rule. You can choose to enter at any time, but everyone who enters...must wait for the war to conclude before leaving. You are not permitted to leave in the middle, nor is it possible for you to leave in the middle.”

“I have to wait eight centuries?” Linley frowned.

His original plan had been for him and Bebe to seize every available moment to complete their mission early on, then hurry back.

“I’m thinking too highly of myself. How could commanders be easily killed? Eight hundred years...I’ll have to just fight for eight hundred years within then.” Linley now understood why so many Lord Prefects, Tartarus Lords, and others weren’t willing to enter the Planar Wars.

Even if you rendered military merits, you would have to wait until everything concluded, and even if you didn’t attack others, others might attack you.

"Boss, let's go on in." Bebe was completely fearless.

Linley nodded, then flew with Bebe towards the interspatial gate.

Five meters wide, ten meters tall, and emanating with that black aura. Linley and Bebe flew through the interspatial gate, and as they did, it was like entering a pool of water. The two disappeared from the wide hall.

"I wonder if they'll return alive." Gellen shook his head slightly.

When Linley had been in the Yulan continent, he had passed through an interspatial gate to arrive at the Necropolis of the Gods plane.

But this time, the passage through the interspatial gate was a completely different experience.

"This interspatial door is actually an extremely long corridor." Linley was rather surprised, while Bebe also stared at their surroundings in surprise.

The five meter wide, ten meter high corridor had walls which were covered with flowing streaks of light. Everything seemed so beautiful and dazzling. Linley and Bebe followed the direction of the interspatial corridor, flying towards the front. Linley was stunned. "This corridor seems to distort space itself."

While flying, Linley had the sense of space being distorted.

"Boss, tell me, if I were to attack this corridor, would it collapse?" Bebe said.

Linley couldn't help but feel his heart clench, and he gave Bebe a glare. "Bebe, don't cause trouble. If this interspatial corridor really collapses, you and I will be trapped within a region of chaotic space. That would be disastrous." Linley knew very well that even the most powerful of Highgods, upon entering a region of chaotic space, might be finished.

"I'm just saying." Bebe mumbled.

Suddenly...

Linley noticed that there was a faint glow coming from the front of the tunnel. "Eh? We made it?"

Linley and Bebe immediately exited the tunnel.

"Welcome, milords." A voice that was neither humble nor loud rang out. Linley and Bebe turned to look towards the voice before even having a chance to inspect the battlefield. The ground in front of them was dark and gloomy, and standing atop the ground was a large group of people. Linley swept them with his gaze. "Hundreds!"

Only, Linley also noticed the aura from their badges as well now.

They were on his side!

Only now did Linley let out a sigh of relief. The person who had just spoken was a red-haired, grim-looking woman. She continued, "Milords, is this your first time in the Planar Battlefield, or have you had previous experiences?"

Linley couldn't help but frown.

"Milord, please don't be upset." The red-haired, grim-looking woman hurriedly smiled. "We are under orders to guard the interspatial gate that leads to the Planar Battlefield from the Netherworld. Our Lord has instructed us that if there is anyone who is new to the Planar Battlefield and isn't familiar with it, that his Lordship can receive you and also provide you with some information, milords."

Linley and Bebe exchanged glances.

"Boss, let's go. What's there to fear?" Bebe sent mentally.

Linley, too, felt that given how they were completely unfamiliar with this Planar Battlefield, it was best to get a better understanding of it.

"Fine, then. You lead the way." Linley said.

"Please follow me." The red-haired woman said, then immediately led Linley outwards.

Linley and Bebe, when advancing, carefully applied his senses to his surroundings. When he did, he sighed in astonishment. "The gravity in this battlefield is actually even greater than that of the Netherworld and the Infernal Realm! This is the plane with the greatest gravity I have ever seen. In addition, divine sense is restricted to an incredibly extent as well.

Linley realized that his divine sense was now constrained to a range of just a hundred meters or so.

“My two Lords, according to the legends, this battlefield was created jointly by the four Overgods.” The red-haired woman laughed as she spoke. “Even the Higher Realms, such as the Netherworld or the Celestial Realm, were created by the four Overgods separately. This battlefield, in terms of stability, is far more stable than even the Higher Realms. In this place, it is hard for even commanders to be able to tear open space.”

Linley couldn't help but feel secretly surprised.

The more stable a plane was, the more powerful gravity generally was in it, as well as the restrictive, binding force.

Linley glanced at the air.

In the air above this plane, there were no stars. Extremely high in the sky, there were some wild, chaotic, multi-colored regions of chaotic space. The entire plane was covered in darkness, and only those multi-colored patches of chaotic space were able to provide some illumination. This caused the battlefield to always seem dark and gloomy.

“Hey, what's going on up there?” Bebe spoke out.

The red-haired woman laughed. “The space above the Planar

Battlefield is very dangerous. As you fly upwards, once you reach a certain height, you will occasionally encounter spatial tears. If you go up even farther, the spatial tears will become more dense...until you enter the region of chaotic space. Thus, when battling, be careful not to let yourself fall into the chaotic space.

Linley and Bebe glanced at each other.

It seemed as though the environment in this damnable place was quite vile as well.

"The battles of the Planar Wars have one proscription; one cannot fly too high, or too deep into the ground! The red-haired woman said with a calm laugh. "If you dig deep into the ground, if you go a bit too deep, you will very possibly encounter more spatial tears. The deeper you go, the more numerous the spatial tears will be."

Linley nodded slightly.

"How troublesome." Bebe mumbled.

While chatting, Linley noticed that the surrounding soldiers were growing more and more numerous. Clearly, they had arrived at a headquarters. The red-haired woman, in a very familiar manner, led Linley to an ordinary tent, then instructed Linley and Bebe, "My two Lords, please wait here for now."

Linley and Bebe were rather puzzled. They couldn't even go close to the tent? But they didn't ask.

The red-haired woman said respectfully towards the tent, "Your Lordship, just now, two Lords have arrived from the Netherworld. I brought them over."

"Oh?" A figure strode over from within the tent.

This was a muscular bald youth, dressed in a thick black robe. His forehead had a red spot on it. He gave Linley and Bebe a glance, then said, rather puzzled, "I don't seem to have met you two before."

"My Boss is the new Redcliff Lord." Bebe said directly.

"Oh." The black-robed, bald youth glanced sideways at Linley, not fully convinced. He said calmly, "Since you have come over, it would appear that this is your first time. I have a map of this Planar Battlefield here, with descriptions of various areas. You can take a look." As he spoke, he waved his hand, tossing a very thin piece of parchment with black seals atop it.

Linley laughed calmly while accepting it. "Thank you!"

"Boss, this baldy seems to be on guard against us." Bebe said. "In fact, he even maintains some distance from us and doesn't invite us in. We just arrived from the Netherworld and are on his side. Why is he so guarded against us? I don't get it".

"He is indeed guarded, but let's not worry about that. We'll leave soon."

Linley, as well, had noticed that this black-robed, bald youth was wary of the two of them. Although he didn't understand why, he still said, "The two of us have some other matters to take care of. We won't tarry here. We're leaving now."

"Then be careful on your journey." Only now did the black-robed, bald youth reveal a hint of a smile on his face. "Neana [Ne'an'na], you represent me in escorting these two away."

"Yes, your Lordship." The red-haired woman bowed.

And then, under her guidance, Linley and Bebe left the headquarters. At the borders of the headquarters, the red-haired woman bade farewell to Linley and Bebe. She watched as the two left. "How strange. His Lordship should have invited them over for the purpose of allying with them! But...his Lordship actually didn't recognize them. What a pity, what a pity!"

For them to enter the Netherworld on their own meant that one of the two definitely had to be someone on the Tartarus Lord or Lord Prefect level.

The black-robed bald youth had wanted to show them some hospitality, but unfortunately, he didn't know Linley at all, nor did he offer to work together.

Atop the vast earth, Linley and Bebe were currently seated shoulder-to-shoulder, in the valley of a mountain, flipping through some information which gave a basic introduction to the Planar Battlefield.

"This Planar Battlefield really is small, with a circumference of just a million kilometers. However...it is separated by the 'Stellar River' and divided into two parts. Our Divine Darkness Plane is on this side of the Stellar River, while the Divine Light Plane's armies are on the other side." Linley, after reading, learned many things.

Bebe sighed in amazement, "Boss, so the most dangerous places aren't the skies; the most dangerous places are deep underground. And the Stellar River!"

"Right." Linley nodded as well.

In midair, one could still fly to a certain height. Only after flying even higher than that safe height would one occasionally begin to encounter some spatial tears, with the higher regions growing increasingly dangerous. Because there was an orderly increase in the danger, everyone was prepared, and they would be careful not to exceed the safe height.

But the Stellar River was different.

There were very few 'safe zones' in the Stellar River. The vast majority of it was extremely dangerous.

"This Planar Battlefield seems like two smaller planes that were joined together. This Stellar River is the line at which the juncture was made. Some 'juncture points' are safe, but the areas around most juncture points are wild, chaotic space." Linley shook his head. The description given by this book seemed to be rather frightening. But Linley and Bebe had never before seen the place, and so weren't able to tell for now how dangerous the Stellar River really was.

"We're going to go kill commanders. It seems we have to go past the Stellar River." Bebe murmured.

"No." Linley shook his head. "Just like us, there must be many commanders who have come to help out. Perhaps there are many who are moving independently as well. They want to kill our people, and so they too will cross the Stellar Side and arrive here on our side. There's no need for us to go there for now. We'll run into them here."

Bebe, hearing this, couldn't help but nod.

"Boss, these Planar Wars have been going on for a hundred years now." Bebe suddenly said.

"Right, thus, the enemy leaders have sent probably quite a few who have come to this place." Linley looked around himself vigilantly. "Now that we are in an unfamiliar place, we need to constantly be on guard. This is a battlefield, after all, not an arena for challenges. They won't necessary act openly and honestly."

"What is there to fear? I want to run into them." Bebe was completely confident.

"Then let's head out for now."

Linley and Bebe immediately stood up. There were no stars in this Planar Battlefield. If one wanted to differentiate between the directions, the only way was to use some tall mountains and rivers as landmarks.

"Then let's head that way." Linley saw a squad mountain in the distance, and immediately spoke out.

Linley and Bebe both carefully made their way through the Planar Battlefield. Aside from some army camps which seemed quite active, the other places were all extremely quiet. What they didn't know...was if that behind the quiet silence, there was a hidden expert commander or not. Or perhaps an expert on the level of Beirut.

"Eh?" Bebe suddenly turned his head and looked towards the distance. "Boss, there's someone there!"

Linley stooped down, carefully relying on the grass to block his presence as he stared from afar. Roughly a thousand meters away, a blurred, black-light suddenly appeared and was advancing straight for them.

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 14, Ambushed

They had only been flying in the Planar Battlefield for less than half a day, but ended up actually encountering a lone traveler. Linley knew that ordinary soldiers couldn't possibly be travelling alone.

"Move closer!"

Linley said mentally. What Linley now had to do was...discover if this was someone on their side, or an enemy. Linley and Bebe quietly advanced through the grass, drawing closer, not daring to release even the slightest hint of energy, for fear of enemy discovery. Moments later, the distance between the two was reduced to two hundred meters.

"Eh? I can't sense the badge aura from him." Bebe sent.

Linley couldn't help but feel excited. "An enemy!"

People on the same side would be able to sense their allies' badges. Being unable to sense the badge...meant it was an enemy!

"Haha, I didn't expect that as soon as we arrived in the Planar Battlefield, we'd encounter an enemy. It is probably a commander." Bebe's eyes lit up. "Boss, hand this one to me. I'll get rid of him."

"Right." Linley suppressed his excitement.

"Swoosh!" Bebe suddenly flew into the air.

A blurry, enormous illusion of a Godeater Rat suddenly appeared behind Bebe. At this moment, Bebe, not hesitating at all, used his supreme technique – his innate divine ability, 'Godeater'! But the strange thing was that the figure didn't collapse; it turned to look towards Bebe.

"Boss, I can't sense his divine spark or his soul!" Bebe said frantically. "Right, there's another person nearby. I can sense the aura from his badge. He's not too far from us. He belongs to our side."

Right at this moment, someone suddenly appeared in the distance. This person knew that he had been discovered.

"The two of you!" The gray-robed figure said clearly. "Stop attacking that black-robed figure. That's my Deathgod Golem."

"Golem?"

Bebe and Linley were stunned.

"So it was a golem. No wonder I couldn't sense its aura. No wonder, when Bebe used his innate divine ability, he failed." Linley didn't know whether to laugh or to cry. The gray-robed man turned and was about to leave, but Bebe called out, "Hey, don't leave in such a hurry!" As he spoke, he flew over.

"Swoosh!" The Deathgod Golem immediately flew over, wanting to block Bebe while speaking in the human language, "What are you intending to do?"

"We are on the same side. Can't I ask a few questions?" Bebe stared at the Deathgod Golem.

The gray-robed figure himself was already far away. The Deathgod Golem he left behind naturally wasn't something he was worried for; even if he lost it, that just meant he had one less golem.

"The two of you..." The Deathgod Golem said calmly. "How do I know if you are on my side? Perhaps the two of you killed some ordinary soldiers of my side, and then bound the badges with blood and used them to disguise yourselves. Who can be certain as to whether or not you two are fakes?"

Linley and Bebe were stunned.

It was possible to be imposters?

But when he thought about it carefully, it made sense. All they had to do was come up with a way to kill an ordinary soldier, then remove their own badge before binding an enemy badge. Thusly done, they would have a disguise. Once the Planar War ended, they could simply put their own badges back on. Linley and Bebe hadn't thought of this yet.

"Even if you aren't imposters, people on the same side can still kill each other!" The Deathgod Golem said, then left.

Linley and Bebe didn't try to stop the Deathgod Golem.

"Boss, I'm starting to understand why that allied camp commander was so wary of us." Bebe said. "He was just like that previous person; afraid we would act against him." Bebe also understand that it wasn't that they were afraid of the two of them; rather, they couldn't be bothered to kill people on the same side.

This was because even in success, there would be no military merits gained.

But in failure, one's life would be lost. Naturally, the gray-robed man had chosen to leave.

"He was afraid we'd kill him?" Linley said helplessly. "But I won't gain any military merits for killing him. Oh, wait!" Linley had a sudden thought, and he finally understood why it was possible for people on the same side to want to fight each other.

"Eh?" Bebe looked at Linley, puzzled.

"People on the same side...might kill each other as well." Linley sighed emotionally.

"How can that be?" Bebe didn't understand.

"It's simple. Two people who are close friends. One enters the side of the Divine Darkness Plane, the other enters the side of the Divine Light Plane. For example, Bebe, you and I might be located in opposing camps. I'll kill people on my side and obtain red badges, which are useless to me, but I can give them to you! And when you kill someone on your side and acquire a golden badge, you can give it to me to use." Linley smiled bitterly.

Bebe now understood as well.

The Lord Prefects, Tartarus Lords, and others who were supreme amongst Highgods had many friends at the same level. For example, Beirut; he might even have friends of the same level in the Celestial Realm. They absolutely could join different camps and use this strategy.

"Thus, we can't trust people on our side, unless we know them well." Linley said with resignation.

No wonder the black-robed, bald youth, upon realizing that he didn't recognize Linley, immediately had Linley leave.

"It seems we need to be careful as well." Bebe pursed his lips. "Even if we encounter allies, we can't be too careless."

"Right." Linley, too, began to feel how dangerous these Planar Wars were.

Aside from true friends, outsiders were not to be trusted. And the status imparted by a badge might not be true!

"Just now, that fellow was quite clever to use a Deathgod Golem as bait." Bebe said with a chortle. "Boss, we can do this also. Nobody, regardless of the side, will be able to sense the aura of a badge on a Deathgod Golem. They'll take the golem to be an enemy and ambush it!

We'll hide nearby and counter-ambush them instead."

Linley couldn't help but laugh.

This was indeed a good method.

The Planar Battlefield was a million kilometers in diameter. If one flew at high speed, it wasn't a very long distance, but in this sort of place, where attacks and battles occurred in secret...in such a large area, the few dozen or a few hundred commanders would be like drops of water in the sea. If they were hidden somewhere, it would be very hard to find them.

Within a mountain cavern. Linley and Bebe were within the cavern, while each of them also controlled a Deathgod Golem, flying not too far away from them.

"We encountered a person when we first entered the Planar Battlefield, but now it's been another month, and we haven't encountered anyone." Bebe mumbled. "Based on what you said, Boss, we have to be careful even when just travelling around. This sort of slow, plodding pace...how long is it going to take for us to reach the Stellar River?"

"Don't be impatient."

Linley laughed as he spoke. He was very patient. "It is possible for battles to occur between commanders in any location here in the Planar Battlefield. We don't need to run around wildly. Doing so would be very dangerous, and the chances of encountering someone isn't that high either. If we occasionally set up an ambush, our chances might be higher.

"But if everyone is waiting in ambush, then nobody will encounter anybody." Bebe rebutted.

"That's why we'll advance a little bit every few months, changing every so often." Linley said calmly. "We have eight centuries! Plenty of time!"

What was most critical in a place like this Planar Battlefield was patience. Whoever became impatient and revealed their traces would most likely be observed by others, which would make things dangerous. Linley knew how much power he had...a commander specialized in soul attacks would make things tough for him. And....most commander-level experts were skilled in soul attacks!!!

"If you aren't able to keep waiting, you start training." Linley said with a laugh.

"Got it." Bebe pursed his lips.

Linley, too, had his true body in a state of maximum vigilance, while his divine clones were focused on training.

Who amongst the commanders weren't elites? In addition, quite a few of the commanders had been in the Planar Battlefield before. All of them had their own strategies.

Linley's cautious, guarded approach produced no results in the first three months. Although they did encounter one person, that person was on their side as well, and so Linley and Bebe didn't attack.

"Let's change places! Most likely, there are very few enemy commanders who will pass through this place."

"Boss, you should've made this decision long ago. As I see it, let's go to the other side of the Stellar River. I imagine that the enemy camp must have quite a few enemy commanders!"

After having waited for three months, in the end, Linley still decided to leave this mountain cave. That very day...Linley and Bebe slept away, advancing forward towards the Stellar Sea.

Within a squat but large mountain, there was actually a spacious room.

A violet-robed, black-haired man was currently seated in the meditative position, while three people were seated next to him. Suddenly, a figure emerged from the stairs below. Bowing, he said, "Milord, our people outside have discovered the forces of the Divine Plane of Darkness. One is a youth, while the other is a youngster! Master, these two people aren't in the documents you provided."

"Oh, strangers?" The violet-robed, black-haired man opened his eyes, a hint of violet light flashing through them.

"Yes, Master." The figure bowed.

"Very good. It's time to go hunting." The violet-robed, black-haired man's body swayed, then disappeared from the secret room.

In the Planar Battlefield, Linley wanted to ambush others, but others wanted to ambush Linley as well. It all came down to whose detection skills were better, whose stealth skills were better, whose strategies were better! This was Linley and Bebe's first time in the Planar Battlefield. They had too few experiences to rely upon, and so it really was quite hard for them to attempt to ambush others.

But now...

They had been locked onto by others!

"Boss, which place should we set up camp? How about let's head directly to the side of the Stellar Sea, right over there...hmpf, if someone comes over, we'll go fight them." Bebe sent mentally. He had no hesitation in his eyes; rather, he had a hint of excitement.

"If we just set up camp by the river, we'll be treated by others as a punching back."

Linley's forehead suddenly creased.

"What is it?" Bebe said, puzzled.

"Swoosh!"

Linley suddenly turned his head, only to see a blurry, translucent white arrow instantly arrive in front of him. Linley's first reaction was...

"Rumble..." An earthen yellow light exploded forth from his body, instantly encapsulating a region of a thousand meters. This was Linley's supreme technique...Blackstone Space!

The direction of the gravity was towards Linley!

"Crunch!" The translucent white arrow entered his body.

The speed was too fast. Linley wasn't able to dodge at all.

"Bebe, kill that assailant!" Linley only had the chance to give this single shout through divine sense, then whole-heartedly focused on defending against the soul attack.

"BANG!"

The translucent arrow continued to inexorably strike towards Linley's soul, but when it smashed against the translucent scaled membrane, it instantly shattered, transforming into white specks of light. These specks of light instantly discovered that the defensive power at the damaged hole was weaker, and immediately attacked there.

"Crackle..." Linley's azure spiritual energy transformed into rays of invisible sword-ripples, repeatedly smashing against the white spots of light.

"Who is this? Reisgem? The appearance is completely off, but the gravity is so strong...fortunately, I started far away." The violet figure was originally within a few hundred meters of Linley when he launched his ambush. If he had been closer, Linley and Bebe would have discovered him.

Although Linley's Blackstone Space was set up to cover a large distance, the violet-robed figure was very fast. While resisting the power of the gravity, he managed to flee the Blackstone Space region. But as he fled from the region, Bebe reached a distance of just two or three hundred meters from him.

"SHKREEEEEEEEEE!"

The enraged Bebe once more used his innate divine ability.

"Eh?" The violet-robed man, who had continuously paid attention to the space behind him, was terrified upon seeing the enormous phantom of a Godeater Rat. "Just now, that was Reisgem's supreme technique, but this one is Beirut's!" The violet-robed man's body suddenly exploded with white light. It was Sovereign's Might!

His speed instantly increased to a new limit.

"Rumble!" The strange ripples of Bebe's innate divine ability flew towards him at high speed!

"Dammit, I let him get away!" Bebe said discontentedly.

His innate divine ability was executed through relying on his spiritual energy, and there was a process of waves, as well as a distance limit. Bebe had been two or three hundred meters away to begin with. Given that in this moment of crisis, the enemy had also used up a drop of Sovereign's Might to flee at full speed, the enemy had managed to put enough distance between them.

"What is going on? Those two young strangers...one actually had Reisgem's supreme technique, while the other had Beirut's supreme technique. What incredibly bad luck. Today, I, Oona [Wu'a'na], very nearly died in their hands. I didn't get anything, but ended up using a drop of Sovereign's Might. Jeeze!" The violet-robed man felt extremely discontent as well. "Not good...as my Sovereign's Might continues to leak outwards, it'll definitely attract the attention of other commanders.

Terrible, terrible!

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 15, A Choice

Bebe was still staring unhappily towards the direction in which the violet-robed man had ran. Unfortunately, the violet-robed man's speed was normally above his to begin with. After using Sovereign's Might, he vastly outstripped Bebe. Bebe could do nothing besides just watch as the man fled. If it hadn't been for the fact that he was slower, Bebe wouldn't have used his innate divine ability at the earlier distance of two or three hundred meters.

"Just consider yourself lucky!"

Bebe glanced warily at the surrounding area, then turned and shot back towards Linley like an arrow.

"Boss, are you alright?" Bebe asked, worried.

Linley opened his eyes and glanced at the surrounding area. "The battle just now might have drawn the attention of others. Bebe, let's move first and talk later!" Amongst the commanders of the Planar Battlefield, Linley could only be considered a low-level one, while Bebe at most would be a mid-level one. The two weren't yet powerful enough to be able to openly welcome challenges from others!

"Swoosh!" The two transformed into blurs, disappearing from the skies.

Moments after they left, a black-robed figure suddenly appeared in midair. It paused here for a moment, glanced around, and then left.

In the Planar Battlefield, only high-ranking commanders would dare to fly in the air, as they were confident in being able to fight any opponent. After all, it was easy for people on the ground to see those of them in midair. For example, Linley and Bebe only moved about on the ground.

After hiding in a deep cave, Linley and Bebe let out sighs of relief.

"Bebe, you weren't able to catch him?" Linley said with a laugh.

"Nope! That fellow was hidden really far away. Boss, when you spread out your Blackstone Space, he quickly escaped from it. I used my innate divine ability, but I wasn't able to reach him with it in time." Bebe said unhappily. "That fellow really is a bastard. He hid so far away when he attacked. He didn't even dare to draw too close!"

Linley shook his head. "This is the Planar Battlefield, not a dueling ground. Everyone's strategies are different! In addition, there are more experts here than just those of the Divine Darkness Plane and Divine Light Plane. Even supreme experts from other planes have decided to come in support of one side. Thus...the experts here are from throughout the Four Higher Realms and the Seven Divine Planes. This is a terrifying battleground. It makes sense for everyone to be so cautious!"

Bebe felt the pressure now, as well.

Aside from the Planar Battlefield, what other place could possibly attract these supreme experts to all gather in one place and think of ways to kill each other?

"I wonder how many commanders are here." Bebe mumbled.

"As I see it, the Divine Darkness Plane and Divine Light Plane each have at most twenty or thirty commanders. The other planes, all combined, should have more! If ten come from each Higher Realm and from each Divine Plane, more than a hundred would be present." Linley sighed. "In addition, that's a conservative estimate. Aside from commanders, there are some other experts who previously were Lord Prefects or regional lords who might have retired long ago, but who have only grown in power. They might come as well!"

Bebe nodded.

Indeed...those people came in as ordinary soldiers.

For example, Linley and Bebe. Bebe was here as an ordinary soldier, but in terms of power, was Bebe weak? It was the same principle. In the Planar Battlefield, there were perhaps only a hundred or so true 'commanders', but there were more who held commander-level power.

Over the course of countless years, quite a few supreme experts had given up their positions, possibly because they knew that they were weaker than their challengers. Some couldn't be bothered to fight over power, and so gave up their positions. As for others...well, it wasn't good to underestimate anyone.

"Only very few dare to act arrogantly in the Planar Wars." Linley shook his head and laughed. Those who were arrogant without sufficient strength died early on. The only people who dared to be arrogant now were the likes of Dunnington. "Thus, that person who attacked me can be considered to have used an excellent method. If the first blow was unsuccessful, immediately flee.”

“Too diabolical.” Bebe muttered.

“It is diabolical, but it is also safe.” Linley took a deep breath. “Bebe, as I see it, we should use his method in seeking out targets! We’ll launch sneak attacks...and if we fail, immediately leave without any hesitation.”

“Heh heh, it feels bad being ambushed by others, but pretty great ambushing them.” Bebe’s eyes lit up.

Linley laughed resignedly.

Who wanted to be ambushed? But there was nothing they could do. If they fought openly, they would die upon encountering more powerful experts.

“When ambushing, the two of us will work jointly.” Linley had been planning this on the way back. He immediately said, “When we find a target, Bebe, use your innate divine ability, ‘Godeater’. I’ll immediately execute a material attack! There are very few people capable of blocking my Mirage sword!”

Linley was very confident.

Bebe’s ‘Godeater’ ability acted on a person’s soul and divine spark, while Linley used material attacks.

"Bebe, against what sort of person would your 'Godeater' ability fail?" Linley asked.

He had to know the power of Bebe's 'Godeater' ability in order to plan things out.

"Oh. Grandpa mentioned a few things before. Those who are at the Paragon level should be able to resist my innate divine ability." Bebe said.

Linley nodded. "Anyone else?"

"Those who have soul-protecting Sovereign artifacts should be able to block as well." Bebe said, then began to laugh. "But don't worry. Very few people have Sovereign artifacts. Most likely only a portion of commanders have Sovereign artifacts, which are divided into three types. There are very few soul-protecting Sovereign artifacts, and also very few people in possession of them."

Linley wasn't too surprised by Bebe's response.

Soul-protecting Sovereign artifacts were made by Sovereigns to protect their own souls! It was natural that an artifact which a Sovereign used to protect his own soul would be effective against Bebe's technique.

"Bebe, if the enemy uses Sovereign's Might, would he be able to block it?" Linley asked. This was the real question which he cared about.

"Heh heh, someone who uses Sovereign's Might...won't be able to block me." Bebe said confidently. "My innate divine ability, 'Godeater', will go through any possible opening. Unless the soul protection is completely flawless, as soon as it encounters any opening, it will seep through, locking onto the soul and divine spark!"

Linley nodded slightly.

"It seems that it would be hard for me to block this technique as well." Linley laughed.

"Heh heh." Bebe nodded smugly. "Unless, Boss, you completely repair that soul-protecting Sovereign artifact!"

"Completely repairing it...how difficult a task it is!" Linley laughed in response.

During the course of this conversation, Linley had come to understand how terrifying Bebe's innate divine ability truly was. Any commander who was not a Paragon or who did not possess a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact, upon encountering this technique, would probably find it hard to escape! The only method was to do what that violet-robed man had done; immediately pull away.

Once one was attacked within the range of the technique, one would be finished.

"Amongst the commanders, only a portion of them possess Sovereign artifacts. Even fewer have soul-protecting Sovereign artifacts." Linley was filled with confidence. "Bebe, just by relying on this technique, should be able to deal with the vast majority of commanders. No wonder Beirut said that by relying on this technique, Bebe's attack power would be close to Beirut's own."

Linley was already filled with confidence regarding the Planar Battlefield.

After all...it wasn't just Bebe who had a supreme technique. Linley's 'Blackstone Space' and innate divine ability, 'Dragon Roar', when combined with his godly weapon 'Mirage'...this was also a very frightening triple threat.

In the blink of an eye, two months passed.

Within the cave.

"Boss, it's been two more months. We only found a single person, and it was someone on our side. This rate is really low." Bebe was rather impatient.

They wanted to hunt enemy commanders, but they hadn't even found any targets. They had power stored up but nowhere to spend it.

Linley nodded. "Bebe, there should be enemies on this side of the Stellar River as well. But although they have come over, all of them are extremely careful. Finding them is very hard. As I see it...let's go straight to their base!"

"Boss, are you saying...?" Bebe's eyes lit up.

"Pass through the Stellar River and go to the other side!"

The Planar Battlefield didn't have a sun, a moon, or stars. Upon raising one's head, all one would see was the multicolored patches of chaotic space high in the skies. Although it was beautiful, it was also very dangerous. The only reason the battlefield had any light at all and wasn't steeped in utter darkness was because of the chaotic space high up above.

The Stellar River!

It divided the battlefield into two sides, and was one of the danger zones of the Planar Battlefield.

"Boss, so this is the Stellar River? How can you call this a river?" Bebe and Linley were currently standing amidst the grass, staring towards the distant Stellar River.

The Stellar River was extremely long. According to the descriptions on the map, it divided the entire Planar Battlefield in two, and so naturally it was a million kilometers in length. There was no way one would be able to see to the end of it with the naked eye. And its width...

"It must be a thousand kilometers wide." Linley looked towards it.

The Stellar River was a thousand kilometers wide. At a glance...it seemed incomparably brilliant and beautiful. But upon taking a closer look, they discovered...that the brilliance wasn't generated from 'river water'. Rather, it was from countless spatial flows. The Stellar River was filled with countless spatial tears, which could be seen everywhere.

The spatial tears were so common that they formed into a thick, dense 'river', a river completely formed from chaotic spatial tears!

"How are we supposed to go past this damn place?" Bebe said with a frown.

Linley looked carefully as well. The number of spatial tears that appeared and disappeared here were innumerable. But of course, given that it was a thousand kilometers wide, there were some safe zones as well. There were some meteors, mountains, and hills that floated throughout the Stellar River. They just hovered there. Clearly, the regions in which they resided had no spatial tears.

However, they were in the center of this 'river'. Linley couldn't just teleport there.

"The Stellar River has two wide corridors!" Linley said. "Only, these two corridors both have army headquarters stationed at each end and are under guard. Our side isn't so bad; our people guard it and won't attack us. But if we pass through the wide corridor to reach the other end, we will suffer enemy attacks!"

The two sides of the Planar Battlefield were actually connected to each other solely through those two corridors.

"Boss, are we really going to...?" Bebe raised an eyebrow.

"Right! All we can do is find a safe corridor through the regions of chaotic space and spatial tears." Linley looked forward carefully as he spoke. "Bebe, some places have no spatial tears. Let's look carefully for them."

"No other choices." Bebe mumbled.

Linley and Bebe both focused their attention on the Stellar River.

Linley quickly discovered that within the Stellar River, there were some places with neither spatial tears nor chaotic space. By connecting these safe spaces...a sinuous pathway could be traversed. What Linley had to do was to find a small pathway that would allow him to reach the other side.

"Boss, look over there. It seems that place is passable." Bebe pointed and said. "However, I can only see to a distance of a few hundred kilometers. It gets blurry after that. The small spatial tears can't be seen clearly past that distance."

Linley gave it a look, then shook his head. "Doesn't work. The path that I found is the same; there's no way to be certain as to whether or not the latter half is passable. How about this, Bebe...let's head to those floating boulders in the center. Once we reach those spaces, we'll look for a path that reaches the opposite shores."

"Alright." Bebe had no options as well.

"Then let's follow that path. It just happens to lead to the millstone-like boulder over there in the center." Linley immediately decided.

Linley and Bebe, while paying attention to their surroundings, transformed into two rays of light, quickly advancing to the sides of the Stellar Sea. But upon reaching the sides of the Stellar Sea, Linley and Bebe felt pressure from what they were going to do. The 'river path' they had selected was filled with countless spatial tears above and below it, as well as regions of chaotic space.

"Let's go." Linley sent.

Linley and Bebe instantly passed through the Stellar River. The two agilely and nimbly threaded their way through, moving up, down, left, and right at high speed, avoiding one dangerous region after another.

At this moment, it was as though Linley and Bebe were dancing atop the blade of a knife. The situation was extremely dangerous.

But at their level, their self-control was at a very high level as well. They didn't make a single error in any of their movements. Sometimes, they all but pressed against those spatial tears as they moved past them, but they still managed to dodge one danger after another.

"Up ahead." Linley said, delighted.

Up ahead, there was an enormous floating boulder that was tens of meters wide. It hovered there, and despite having been there for so long, there were no cracks on it. Clearly, this region didn't have much danger.

"Swoosh!" "Swoosh!"

Linley and Bebe advanced, one up ahead, one behind. They landed on the surface of the millstone-like boulder.

"Whew." Only now did Linley let out a sigh of relief.

He looked at his surroundings. The surrounding area was filled with spatial tears and chaotic space. Linley couldn't help but say with a laugh, "Bebe, this...I feel as though we are back in the Yulan continent, in the secret room below Dragonblood Castle. However, that secret room had that membrane which blocked out the spatial tears and the chaotic space. Now, however, we don't have any protection."

"Boss..." Bebe suddenly said. "Do you think there might be commanders hidden within the central boulders of the Stellar Sea?"

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 16, Murderous Blows!

In the center of the Stellar River. Atop the giant, millstone-like floating boulder. Linley and Bebe were standing there.

"If we were to be surrounded and attacked, it would be dangerous." Bebe looked at their surroundings.

"Hiding around the central boulders of the Stellar River?" Linley couldn't help but look at the surrounding areas, then laughed. "Bebe, stop imagining things. I think no commander would be willing to battle within the center of the Stellar Sea. If you aren't careful, you'll immediately fall into the spatial tears or the chaotic space, and be finished."

"Oh. Makes sense." Bebe couldn't help but rub his nose and chortle.

"Enough. If we stay here in the center of the Stellar River, we'll easily be discovered. Let's hurry up and find a way out and arrive at the opposite side in a hurry." Linley said quickly.

"Right." Bebe also began to immediately inspect the surrounding spatial tears and chaotic space.

If someone from the other side was paying attention to the center of the Stellar River, Linley and Bebe would be easily discovered.

"No, this route doesn't work either." Linley shook his head, negating another pathway he had just discovered. Sometimes, a pathway seemed promising, but after a hundred meters, spatial tears and chaotic space completely blocked it off, providing no chances for advancing.

Linley and Bebe continued to search rapidly.

"Boss, I found a path." Bebe said in surprised delight.

"Oh? Which one?" Linley couldn't help but feel delighted.

"Right over here. Look, follow this line, then there...take a big turn. The route after that is fairly clear." Bebe said excitedly.

Linley's gaze quickly swept down and followed the route, all the way to the other end. He wanted to make sure this route was passable.

"Let's go." Linley immediately gave the order.

Tarrying too long in the center of the Stellar River would make it easy for those on the other side to find them. Generally speaking, the easiest time for others to discover and ambush you would be during the process of travelling from one shore to another.

"Whoosh!" "Whoosh!"

Two figures flashed through the Stellar Sea like bolts of lightning, occasionally curving and occasionally shooting forward, then curving again...in short, constantly dodging past one dangerous region after another.

"Captain, look, over there! Two people." On the other side of the shore, a group of soldiers had discovered Linley and Bebe, advancing at high speed.

"Just two of them?" The leader, a silver-haired, sharp-eared, callous looking youth looked over, then gave the instructions. "These two definitely are commanders, or perhaps just one of them is. Let's immediately move out, while at the same time...Second Bro, you go make the report to the Lord Commander. Should we let them go, or should we attack?"

"Understood."

A figure left, flying at high speed.

Linley and Bebe had no idea that there was a camp located right at the part of the shore they had selected as their destination. Unfortunately, the camp was blocked by a small hill, and so Linley and Bebe didn't discover it at all. Linley and Bebe's attention was completely focused on the dangerous path they were traversing, and didn't realize at all that people in the distance were staring at them.

"My brothers, all of you, step back. Don't fight head on. The few dozen of us present won't be able to stop them." The silver-haired, sharp-eared youth instructed. "When the main army arrives or the Lord Commander arrives, then we'll see." They were nothing more than a small patrol of the camp, and were more than ten kilometers away from the headquarters.

They were no fools. The few dozen of them, go fight head on against a commander-level expert? That would be suicide.

If there were hundreds or a thousand of them present, then they might be confident.

"They've almost arrived." The soldiers stared. They had retreated long ago, drawing close to the tall grass close to the hill next to the headquarters.

"The commander orders them to be killed!" The order from the commander came.

"Brothers, let's go!" The silver-haired, sharp-eared youth immediately shouted. It wasn't just them, now; a large number of people had arrived from the main camp as well.

"Rumble..."

The soldiers of the camp located in other areas had all come, and they too charged forward, attacking alongside the patrols. There were more than a thousand attacking soldiers.

"Swoosh!" "Swoosh!" Linley and Bebe landed on the shore, moving lightning-fast.

"Boss, there are people here! Many!" Bebe said, stunned. Linley now noticed as well that in the distant grassy area, a large number of figures had suddenly emerged and were moving towards them at high speed. At the same time, more than ten meters away, in the distance, there was a short tent, with other tents blocked by the hill. "Not good. This is an enemy camp. We need to hurry and leave."

Linley didn't dare to hesitate, immediately fleeing alongside Bebe.

"Attack!" The order came. There was nothing they could do; in terms of speed, these soldiers couldn't compete with Linley and Bebe. If this continued, the distance would only grow greater and greater. It was better to immediately attack. With that order, instantly...

"Rumble..."

"BOOM!"

All sorts of rays of light, translucent soul attacks, and other things shot forward at high speed, traversing the kilometers of distance and attacking Linley and Bebe.

But Linley and Bebe fled very quickly as well.

"Bang!" "Bang!"

The various attacks rained down, covering Linley and Bebe. Multiple attacks landed on Linley and Bebe's bodies.

Within the exploding sounds, Linley and Bebe continued to flee quickly, soon disappearing from the field of vision of the pursuing soldiers.

"Commander!" The thousand soldiers suddenly all turned and bowed towards a single person.

This person was a man with long golden hair as brilliant as the sun, a face that was as white and pure as a woman's, and who was dressed in a long golden robe. He casually glanced at them. "You let them escape?"

"We didn't catch up to them." The military officer who gave the order to attack said.

"If you didn't catch up to them, then forget it. We were already quite lucky to even encounter them, given the close distance to the Stellar Sea and how fast commanders move. If we were able to so easily kill one or two commanders, then my luck would have been too great. Enough, let's return!" The golden-haired commander laughed calmly as he gave his orders.

In a patch of grass, Linley and Bebe were hiding.

"What bad luck." Bebe twisted his lips. "Boss, you alright?"

"I'm fine. Just four material attacks landed on me, along with one soul attack. There wasn't much of an impact." Linley felt they were unlucky as well. The Stellar River was a million kilometers long. They had randomly chosen a place to come over, but who would have imagined that the opposite side would have a camp?

Linley then laughed. "Still, we at least made it safely to the enemy side."

"Right." Bebe's eyes lit up. "Boss, are we going to search for our target now?"

"Let's start to set up camp. I imagine on this side, things will be much better than at our side."

Linley and Bebe set up the same camping strategy they had on the other side. They dug a fairly shallow hole into the ground, then calmly began to train in the hole. At the same time, they each controlled a Deathgod Golem, which began to sneak around, with the goal of attracting nearby commanders.

A muscular man dressed in short sleeves and long trousers who was three meters tall was currently stealthily moving forward. He had a head of golden, lion-like hair, an upwards hooked nose, and a large mouth. His golden eyes paid constant attention to the surrounding areas, searching for a target.

"Oh?"

The golden-haired man's eyes lit up. He saw that in the distance, there was a figure that was stealthily advancing. He couldn't help but let a huge smile appear on his face. "I didn't expect I'd actually encounter one. Right. No badge aura. An enemy!" The golden-haired man immediately shot forward as though he were a bolt of lightning.

Right at this moment, that figure just so happened to turn, spying the golden-haired man charging at him.

"Swoosh!" Not hesitating at all, the figure immediately fled.

"Fleeing? But your speed is inferior to mine!" The golden-haired man's eyes lit up.

In the underground cave, Linley and Bebe were quietly seated in the meditative posture.

"Boss, we have a target. He's chasing after the Deathgod Golem I am controlling." Bebe suddenly opened his eyes.

Linley, excited, opened his eyes as well. "The encounter rate is much higher on the enemy side. This is only the seventh day, but we've found someone."

"Let's hurry up and move out."

Linley and Bebe didn't hesitate at all, immediately moving out from underground. If the enemy discovered the 'target' was just a Deathgod Golem, he would definitely know that it was just bait, making the chances of their ambush being successful much lower.

Linley and Bebe had been controlling the Deathgod Golems at a close distance. Because they were keeping them close, that made it easier to control them, and it was currently fleeing towards the two of them.

Within the grass.

Linley and Bebe laid there in wait, staring at the two distant, running figures. The Deathgod Golem was a Highgod artifact level Deathgod Golem, and it was still quite fast. However, normally speaking, a commander level expert should be far faster than this Deathgod Golem.

"This golden-haired fellow isn't that fast." Linley immediately came to this judgment.

"Boss, I don't sense any aura from his badge. He should be an enemy." Bebe said, delighted.

Linley's eyes lit up as well.

Good heavens! They had lain in wait for half a year on their own side without anything to show for it, but after having waited here for just seven days, they had encountered an enemy. The efficiency rate here really was much higher.

"Bebe, prepare to act." Linley sent mentally.

"Don't worry, Boss." Bebe grew excited as well.

Linley and Bebe just watched as the golden-haired man continued to chase after the Deathgod Golem. Finally...the golden-haired man caught up to it. The muscular man, his head wreathed in large amounts of golden hair, let out a large howl as he swept forward with his right palm. With that blow, space itself rippled as though spacetime was water.

"So powerful." The faces of Linley and Bebe changed. The stability of the Planar Battlefield was far greater than even the Higher Planes.

The Deathgod Golem struck back as well. Their fists met!

"BANG!"

The Deathgod Golem's right arm immediately transformed into shattered pieces, while the entire body then began to tremble before immediately collapsing.

This scene badly startled Linley and Bebe. To break through a Highgod artifact sword with a punch wasn't frightening; however, when this golden-haired man had broken the Deathgod Golem's arm, then somehow caused a powerful vibration that made the entire Deathgod Golem collapse. This sort of attack was simply too awe-inspiring.

"Eh?" The golden-haired man stared. There was no divine spark on the ground, nor any badge.

"Not good!" The golden-haired man suddenly raised his head.

HE saw that a hundred meters away, an enormous Godeater Rat phantom had suddenly appeared in midair. A youth was staring at him coldly. "Rumble..." A strange ripple instantly spread out. The golden-haired man wasn't able to dodge at all, and was immediately struck by it. A strange energy pressed down on his mind...

Innate divine ability – Godeater!

"Rumble..." An earthen yellow light instantly vibrated outwards, pressing down on the golden-haired man.

"Swish!" An azure-golden blur shot forward as well.

Based on Linley and Bebe's plans, regardless of whether or not Bebe's technique succeeded, Linley would still use his most powerful sword attack in that moment. Someone capable of blocking 'Godeater' wouldn't necessarily be able to block Linley's sword.

"Raaaaaaaaawr!" The golden-haired man let out an angry roar.

"He's actually still alive." Bebe couldn't help but curse to himself. The enemy was either a Highgod Paragon or possessed a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact. The enemy camp they had encountered when they had just arrived had been a thorny problem, and now here came another one. What horrible luck.

"Swish..."

The invisible godspark sword, Mirage, shot out...Firmament Splitter!

This most powerful technique was executed through the invisible 'Mirage' sword, and the sword pierced straight towards the man's forehead.

"Bastard!" The golden-haired man sensed the sharp aura and hurriedly moved his head aside to dodge.

"Slash!"

Mirage stabbed directly into the right side of the golden-haired man's face, but as it stabbed down, with a 'crackle' sound, Mirage just barely managed to cut through the golden-haired man's face, and it was unable to go any further.

"What sort of defense is this!" Linley was stupefied.

Aside from Bebe and Beirut, Linley had never before encountered such powerful, terrifying defense. Most likely, even Patriarch Gislason of the Azure Dragon clan was far inferior. His most powerful sword attack was aimed at the enemy's face, not the enemy's fist. He had only been able to cut slightly into the skin of the face. This was too ridiculous.

"Die!" The golden-haired man let out a bellow, smashing out at Linley with an angry fist.

Linley, terrified, retreated with explosive speed.

That attack just now had been launched from just half a meter away from Linley. However, just as Linley thought he had dodged it, a golden yellow light suddenly shot out from the golden-haired man's fist. As it shot out, it actually caused space itself to tremble.

There was no way to dodge!

"BOOM!"

The golden light struck Linley on his chest, and with a 'boom' sound, it shot straight through Linley's chest, creating a large, fist-sized hole within it.

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 17, Hemmers

“His material attack is actually this powerful!” Linley felt stunned in his heart. “Even the former Redcliff Lord’s material attack wasn’t as monstrous as this. An attack passing through empty space is actually able to penetrate my body.” Linley was very confident in the defense of his Dragonform, but today, this punch had stunned him!

That man’s eyes were filled with rage, and his messy golden hair began to tremble.

“You dare to injure me, Hemmers? Die!” A deep voice echoed in Linley’s mind, and the golden-haired man’s right leg lashed out...

That thick right leg was flowing with a golden yellow light. As it lashed out, it created ripples in space, as though it were moving through water. The power of this kick was so great that even before it reached Linley, Linley already had a bad feeling. “Given the power of that fist, which didn’t even directly hit me, just passed through the air...if I’m hit by this kick...”

Linley didn’t dare to hesitate.

“Blackstone Space – Repulsive Force!” Linley willed it, and a powerful repulsive force was applied to the terrifyingly powerful body of that ‘Hemmers’.

At the same time, with a ‘whap!’ sound, Linley’s whip-like draconic tail slapped the ground hard, borrowing the counterforce to retreat hurriedly!

"Bang!" This kick of Hemmers missed.

"BOOM!" Although it missed, a surge of golden ripples still shot out from his leg, shooting towards Linley. This material attack was simply too fast! It wasn't bound by the Blackstone Space, and its speed vastly outstripped Linley's fleeing speed. However, live and learn; after having suffered last time, Linley was prepared this time.

Linley's godspark sword, 'Mirage', unhurriedly swung out to meet it.

It seemed to move slowly but was actually fast. The flat of Mirage struck directly against the golden yellow ripple.

"BANG!" A powerful collision. Mirage was knocked backwards, slapping against Linley's body, while Linley's sword-wielding right arm actually had its draconic scales shatter and blood leak through.

"Swoosh!"

Linley once more borrowed the counterforce to retreat.

"What a monster!" Linley cursed in his heart. "The power of kick, when passing through a godspark weapon, is capable of shattering my draconic scales. So in the planes of the multiverse, there is someone besides Beirut who is so monstrous!" Previously, Linley had seen Beirut use his bare hands to stop a Sovereign artifact.

One could imagine how much strength that took. But it seemed as though this golden-haired man was about the same.

The distant Bebe's eyes instantly grew wide and round. Not hesitating at all, he transformed into a blur, shooting towards the golden-haired warrior while sending mentally in a frantic voice, "Boss, hurry and flee, I'll block him!"

"Bebe, don't waste time, let's hurry up and leave! You won't be able to block him." Linley hurriedly sent back.

At the same time, Linley increased his fleeing speed. Bebe had no choice but to follow Linley in fleeing.

"You want to escape?!"

The golden-haired man stared furiously at the two fleeing figures, then violently stomped forward. "BANG!" "BANG!" Every single step was like a meteor striking the ground, and the golden-haired man's speed thus reached his limit as he pursued and attacked towards the fleeing Linley and Bebe.

"Boss, that big fellow is in pursuit!" Bebe called out in alarm.

"He's actually this fast." Linley glanced backwards. Originally, when the golden-haired man had been in pursuit of the Deathgod Golem, he hadn't been this fast. Clearly...this person called 'Hemmers' was utterly enraged now.

"It's fine. Once he enters my Blackstone Space, he won't be able to catch up to us." Linley said with certainty.

Indeed!

As soon as the golden-haired man entered the 'Blackstone Space' region, he sensed a powerful repulsive force. Speed was never his forte to begin with, and although when going all out, he could compare to Linley and Bebe, as soon as he entered the Blackstone Space region, he became vastly inferior to Linley and Bebe.

Linley and Bebe were fleeing in front, hurriedly pulling away.

This caused the golden-haired man to once more escape the 'Blackstone Space', and as soon as he did, his speed increased again, allowing him to close in on them once more.

In short...the two sides maintained a distance of roughly five hundred meters.

"Boss, that big fellow keeps chasing us. What should we do?" Bebe said frantically. "Can it be that we will have to use Sovereign's Might?"

"Not for now."

Linley didn't want to waste a drop of Sovereign's Might. The situation wasn't critical yet.

“Bebe, within a few hundred meters, this Hemmers is able to clearly see us. How about this. We will immediately enter the ground and tunnel downwards. He won’t be able to see us, and will probably find it hard to find us.” Linley sent mentally. Unless the situation was life-threatening, Linley wouldn’t easily use up his Sovereign’s Might.

“Enter the ground? Fine.” Bebe agreed.

“The two of you, don’t even think of escaping!” The angry bellows continued to echo and shake the world.

“This big idiot. Isn’t he afraid of attracting attention, by bellowing like this?” Bebe couldn’t help but sent angrily.

“Bebe, I imagine this Hemmers really isn’t afraid of others coming. He didn’t even fear your ‘Godeater’ ability. He should have a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact. And look at his material defense! This is absolutely an opponent who has no weaknesses. His only weakness, actually, is that he has no long distance attacks and no soul attacks. Enough, let’s go underground!”

Linley and Bebe, in virtually the same instant, with a ‘swoosh’ dove underground.

“Hmph, fleeing underground?” The yellow-haired man let out a cold laugh.

And then...

The yellow-haired man lifted up his thick leg, viciously stamping on the ground. With a thunderous sound, the ground trembled and a ray of golden light rippled out from his leg and entered the ground, spreading outwards in every direction.

"Over there!" The burly golden-haired man's eyes lit up.

He moved towards the left in hot pursuit, then lifted his feet up once again and viciously stomped on the ground. That golden light once more entered the ground and rippled out.

Although by fleeing underground, one couldn't be seen, in terms of fleeing speed, the blocking dirt naturally made it slower than fleeing aboveground.

"What sort of weird technique is this?" Bebe could clearly sense how the golden energy ripples were like ripples of water, with each ripple landing on himself and Linley. However, the energy of these ripples didn't possess much power to harm.

"BANG!"

A violent tremor came from above.

"This fellow knows where we are." Linley said frantically. "There's no way to escape his pursuit from underground."

"Boss, what should we do?" Bebe said frantically.

"There's one final option! If this method doesn't work, then we'll just have to use up our Sovereign's Might."

Right at this moment, a powerful golden ripple shot downwards, charging straight through the obstructing dirt.

"Not good." Linley's face changed.

"BANG!" Bebe viciously threw a punch straight towards it.

"Bebe, are you alright?" Linley was rather nervous.

"I'm fine. This attack was pretty strong though; my fist feels numb. But I'm not injured." Bebe sent back. Linley, hearing this, let out a sigh of relief, and then a sigh of praise; Bebe's defense really was terrifying, comparable to or exceeding the hardness of a godspark weapon.

Bebe, upon reaching the Highgod level, had only been injured by the Abyssal Fruit Tree Sovereign. Others weren't even able to scratch Bebe's skin.

Unfortunately, Bebe's attack power was too weak, inferior to even Linley's. It was only because of his innate divine ability that he was able to threaten commander-level experts.

"Bebe...let's go aboveground together!" Linley said hurriedly.

That expert named Hemmers clearly had a method to determine where they were. If they were underground, they would be moving slowly and would be beaten around like punching bags. Linley and Bebe immediately transformed into rays of light, quickly emerging from underground.

"Haha, you finally came out."

Loud laughter rang out, and the golden-haired man drew closer.

"So close!" Upon leaving the ground, Linley and Bebe discovered that this golden haired man was less than a hundred meters away now. Linley was so startled, he immediately set up his Blackstone Space, once more repulsing the golden-haired man. By relying on his speed, he was once more able to pull away.

"Bastard! This damn thing again. Just like Reisgem...how damn annoying!" The golden-haired man howled furiously.

He was currently filled with rage.

In the Blackstone Space, he wasn't able to draw near Linley at all.

Right at this moment...

"Eh?" The golden-haired man stared.

Linley, while running at full speed, suddenly turned to stare at him. At the same time, an enormous, sinuous, coiled illusion of an Azure Dragon suddenly appeared behind Linley. The Azure Dragon Phantom's golden eyes were staring coldly at the muscular 'Hemmers', while at the same time, the sound of a dragon's roar began to ring out in Hemmers' mind.

Innate divine ability – Dragon Roar!

Time drastically slowed down in the region Hemmers' soul was in.

"Uh..." Hemmers was stunned. Within his field of vision, he watched as Linley and Bebe seemed to suddenly move tens of time faster, and with a 'swish' disappeared from his field of vision. But of course, it wasn't that Linley and Bebe actually moved faster; it was that Hemmers himself had slowed down by tens of times.

The effect of the Dragon Roar had finally brought an end to this pursuit.

"Dragon Roar? The Dragon Roar of the Azure Dragon clan? What terrible luck." Hemmers rubbed his big nose. "Still, I really am too slow. Given the repulsive force of the Gravitational Space of that kid of the Azure Dragon clan, even if I used Sovereign's Might, I would only be able to barely maintain parity with him while under the effects of that repulsive force."

Hemmers couldn't help but shake his head.

In pure fleeing speed, Linley and Hemmers were roughly the same, and when going all out, Hemmers actually held the advantage.

But by relying on the Blackstone Space, Linley made it so that even if Hemmers used Sovereign's Might, the two would still roughly be on par.

"Still, speed was never my forte. There's nothing I can do!" Hemmers shook his head. "The best thing for me to do is to beg a Sovereign to create a long-distance Sovereign weapon for me. For example, something like a javelin...and by then, given my attack power, who would be able to block it? This is my third time participating in the Planar Wars. Altogether, I'm still missing three commander badges...I have to work hard and see, after the conclusion of this Planar War, if I'll be able to come up with enough military merits."

Hemmers shook his head, leaving with large strides.

"HEY!" Hemmers shouted towards the distance while leaving. "You people, stop watching over there! If you have the ability to do so, come closer to me!"

"Hemmers, looks like you failed again, haha..."

A loud laugh rang out from afar, and then the laughter faded away.

"A group of cowards." Hemmers snorted, then left.

In the distance, three people were together. Two male youths, along with a violet-haired, violet-robed girl. The violet-robed girl laughed softly. "Hey, did the two of you see that? There was someone who was so foolish and hotheaded as to go offend that fellow Hemmers. Don't they know..."

that Hemmers is one of the top-ranked experts of the entire Divine Earth Plane?”

“Most likely, those two aren’t familiar with the various commanders yet.” One of the three, a black-horned, silver-haired youth, laughed calmly.

“But those two aren’t weak either; they were able to battle Hemmers without dying. Unfortunately, we came too late and weren’t able to find out where the two ran off to.” The other male youth of the three, a person with dazzling golden hair and strange silver-white eyes, said. “Let’s go. Let’s leave this place. If Hemmers makes trouble for us, that will be a pain in the neck.”

The three immediately slipped away.

Amidst the grass, Linley and Bebe were lying down and resting.

“Boss, where did that freak come from? Your full-force sword blow was only able to barely pierce his skin. And his punches! They went straight through your body.” Bebe sent mentally.

“And that’s because my body is very strong.” Linley said with a self-mocking laugh. “Bebe, you don’t know this, but when that punch pierced through my chest, a strange, rippling power seemed to shake my entire body. Fortunately...my Dragonformed body is far tougher than a Deathgod Golem. Otherwise, I would have ended up the same way, just like the Deathgod Golem; my entire body would have collapsed.”

When Linley had seen that, he had felt shocked.

“Alas. Boss, although there are quite a few commanders we can deal with here in the Planar Wars, there’s also a good number we can’t. We weren’t so bad off this time; this one was weak in speed. But if next time, we really slam into a metal wall, that would be terrible.” Bebe said with a frown.

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 18, List of Names

"If we really slam into a metal wall?" Linley was rather worried now as well.

Amongst commanders, there were indeed a number of figures who could be described as being 'invincible'. If they ran into such a figure, he and Bebe would be in true danger. This universe was capable of giving birth to a terrifying divine beast such as the Godeater Rat, as well as a divine beast capable of altering time such as the Azure Dragon. It could also give birth to other terrifying divine beasts. Beirut was only reputed to be the number one figure beneath the Bloodridge Sovereign. There were most likely some people who were comparable to him.

Linley didn't dare to underestimate any commander.

"Forget it. In the Planar Battlefield, for commanders to slaughter each other is what happens anyhow." Bebe mumbled. "It comes down to luck, I suppose."

"We are at a major disadvantage." Linley shook his head. "The commanders who have come to participate in the Planar Wars are all very familiar with the other commanders. We know too little...this will cause us to blindly attack enemies. For example, that Hemmers. If we knew who he was in advance, we could've just let him pass and not anger him."

Linley was resigned.

After all, he had just barely reached the 'Asura' level.

"We are indeed at a disadvantage. We know too few people." Bebe said helplessly.

Linley's eyes suddenly lit up.

Linley slapped himself on the head, hard, then laughed at himself. "Bebe, look at me. My mind's gone muddled. You and I don't know them, but can't we ask others?"

"Eh?" Bebe was startled.

"My divine fire clone is at the Yulan continent. I can go ask your Grandpa Beirut." Linley didn't know whether to laugh or to cry.

Bebe instantly began to laugh as well. "Right. Grandpa definitely knows a great deal. Why didn't I think of this?"

After having come to the Planar Wars, Linley and Bebe had completely focused on the dangerous, warlike environment. They had only been thinking of hunting and killing other commanders and so hadn't thought about other things.

"Bebe, let's not go out for now. First, let me get a clear picture of the various commanders of the other planes, and get a sense of who is hard to deal with, who is easy to deal with. Then we'll make our choices." Linley laughed. Bebe nodded as well. They did indeed have plenty of time, and weren't in a rush.

The Yulan Plane. The Forest of Darkness.

"Whoooosh." The world was bathed in white. Drifting plumes of snow fell down from the skies, while a fiery blur was currently passing through the air above the Forest of Darkness at high speed. At this moment, a fiery, red robed Linley with fiery red hair was flying at high speed towards Beirut's metallic castle. This metallic castle was very familiar with Linley, and didn't bar his way at all. As Linley landed, he directly entered into the metallic castle.

Within the front courtyard of the metallic castle.

A black-robed Beirut was standing there, holding a book and seated beneath a great tree formed from the metallic lifeform. The thick leaves completely blocked out the falling snow.

"Lord Beirut." Linley bowed respectfully.

Beirut turned and laughed calmly while giving him a glance. "Oh, Linley, is there something you need? Did you encounter some difficulties in the Planar Battlefield?" After speaking, Beirut once more lowered his head to flip through the book in his hands.

"Lord Beirut, Bebe and I are doing pretty poorly in the Planar Battlefield. We found a target, but who would have imagined...the target was so powerful that even Bebe and I combined weren't a match for him. Fortunately, speed was not one of his strengths, nor was he skilled at long distance attacks, so we managed to escape with our lives." Linley said ashamedly.

Beirut, surprised, closed his book.

"You and Bebe combined weren't a match for him?" Beirut asked. "The two of you against one person; one uses an innate divine ability against the soul and divine spark, while the other uses a material attack. You two complement each other very well...there aren't many commanders who can block that."

"His name is Hemmers." Linley reported the name.

"Him?"

Beirut couldn't help but start to laugh. "Haha...you two really are fearless. You even dare go irritate that big, boorish fellow! Others run as fast as they can when they see him. The material attack of 'Hemmers' can be ranked in the top ten of the entire multiverse. Even your Patriarch, Gislason, can't withstand a punch from Hemmers."

"I only learned that afterwards." Linley said, laughing bitterly.

"Lord Beirut, how can Hemmers' punches be so powerful?" Linley was completely confused. "I, too, train in the Laws of the Earth, and saw the attacks of the Redcliff Lord. But I don't understand why Hemmers' punches and kicks could be so..." Linley shook his head, indicating his confusion.

The previous Redcliff Lord was skilled in material attacks as well, and he had fused five profound mysteries. His power was extremely great. When Linley and him had exchanged punches, Linley had been slightly inferior.

"That's his innate gift!" Beirut began to chortle.

"Innate gift?" Linley was startled.

"Do you know how many profound mysteries he has fused?" Beirut laughed.

"No idea." Linley shook his head. "Is it high, or is it low?"

"He has fused four." Beirut laughed calmly. "This is something I heard from the Sovereign when I was by his side."

Linley was stunned. Fusing four profound mysteries put him at the Seven Star Fiend level, but the power which Hemmers had displayed was terrifyingly strong.

If one could be so breathtakingly strong after having fused just four profound mysteries, the strength of his innate gifts could be easily imagined!

"This Hemmers was born and blessed with incomparably great strength, and his defense is tremendous as well! According to legend... when the Divine Earth Plane was first created, a small golden mountain was formed. After countless years of nurturing, it eventually transformed into a living creature. Hemmers." Beirut laughed. "Do you know? As soon as he transformed upon reaching the Demigod level, he became a Sovereign's Emissary and was given a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact."

"Uh..." Linley was speechless.

A Sovereign's Emissary as a Demigod?

"His body is indestructible. Given that he also has a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact...to kill him is virtually impossible. Because his body was formed from that unique golden mountain that was formed alongside the plane itself, his power was extremely great from birth. Even without using any profound mysteries, a punch from him can shatter space. Now that he has fused four profound mysteries, there aren't many people who can take a punch from him." Beirut said in praise.

Linley couldn't help but feel speechless. Some innate divine abilities really were ridiculous.

"I, a Godeater Rat, refine divine sparks to strengthen my body. But Hemmers was born with such a powerful body." Beirut laughed calmly. "However, purely in terms of physical toughness, Hemmers is still slightly inferior to us Godeater Rats."

Linley understood this as well. The bodies of Godeater Rats were comparable to divine sparks, after all.

"Lord Beirut, we were at a huge disadvantage this time! Thus, I want to ask you, Lord Beirut, if you can give me some information regarding the Asura-level experts of the various major planes. Let me get an understanding of them. That way, we won't rashly compete against some truly supreme experts again." Linley said hurriedly.

Beirut nodded slightly.

"I guessed that you would come find me." Beirut waved his hand, and a bluish-copper colored chest suddenly appeared in front of him. "This chest has a great deal of information within it, as well as scryer recordings. Take a close look and get a good understanding of the various supreme experts of the various planes."

Linley couldn't help but look excitedly towards the bluish-copper chest.

With this thing, he would be prepared to deal with the enemies.

"Read it here. If there are any questions, you can ask me." Beirut laughed calmly.

"Thank you, Lord Beirut." Linley immediately went over and opened the chest.

Inside were a large number of scryer recordings, as well as thick realms of documents. Linley immediately moved the chest to one side and then began to read carefully, right there in the courtyard.

"Magnus [Ma'ge'nu'si], Celestial Realm. A supreme expert who ranks in the top five. Trains in the Edicts of Fate. Seems to be a Highgod Paragon..." Linley began to truly read in earnest. The information regarding one supreme expert after another entered Linley's mind, and Linley now truly began to understand...

So each of the eleven great planes had such a high number of experts hidden in reclusion.

It must be understood that the seven Laws and four Edicts alone had a total of seventy seven Sovereigns. How could the number of supreme Highgod experts be lacking?

In but a single day's time, Linley finished reading all of the materials and viewed all of the scryer recordings.

Linley now truly had the feeling...that there were so many experts in the universe!

"The eleven great planes...it seems as though there are less than thirty Highgod Paragons." Linley was secretly amazed. "In other words, each plane has, on average, just two or three Highgod Paragons. And these are only those who are suspected to be Paragons! As for the Sovereigns, the eleven planes each have seven Sovereigns." Linley finally realized how truly rare Highgod Paragons were!

As for commander-level experts? There were far more!

For example, in the Infernal Realm, there were 108 Lord Prefects and 108 Purgatory Commanders! The Infernal Realm alone held 216 commander-level experts, and that didn't include many retired experts or supreme experts who never formally held the title of Lord Prefect. It was truly hard to calculate how many had retired, in fact.

The Infernal Realm alone had hundreds, perhaps nearly a thousand experts who were at the commander-level of power.

And the other three Higher Realms and the other Seven Divine Planes?

"There really are so many!" Linley said to himself in amazement. "Only, the vast majority of them won't participate in the battles at all."

This was because the eleven great planes had existed for too long. When Linley had been with the Azure Dragon clan and encountered some of the Elders of the clan, he realized that these Elders had lived for unknowably long periods of time already. From this, one could imagine... how long the histories of the various planes were.

It made sense that after countless years, many experts had arisen.

"Thud." Linley shut the chest.

At this time, Beirut walked over from the courtyard. With a calm laugh, he said, "Oh, done reading?"

"Yes." Linley took a deep breath.

This list of names of powerful experts allowed Linley to truly understand the concept of 'a heaven beyond heaven'. Although he had just barely crossed the threshold of an 'Asura', there were many Asura-level experts, after all. The Infernal Realm alone had 216, not even counting the retired or hidden experts.

"After learning these things, don't be overconfident in the future." Beirut said with a calm laugh. "The Planar Battlefield is a place of life and death! Thus, commanders who aren't very confident generally won't show their real faces to people."

"Won't show their real faces?" Linley was stunned. "Then isn't it pointless for me to read these things?"

After having viewed the materials and scryer recordings, Linley learned what these people looked like and what their supreme techniques were. But if they changed their appearances, how would he tell them apart?

"Don't worry too much. It is only the weak who change their appearances. As for the experts who are truly, completely confident in themselves, they can't be bothered to change their appearances, because they fear no one." Beirut said.

Linley couldn't help but nod.

It was hard to judge superiority or inferiority amongst the truly high-level, supreme experts amongst the Asuras. For example, some Highgod Paragons could only be said to be in the top three or the top five of a particular plane; there was no way of saying if he was definitely the best. After all, after training to the very peak...even if there were slight differences in power, it would be hard for one of them to kill the other.

"Lord Beirut, in other words, as long as I encounter someone I don't recognize, I should attack." Linley laughed.

"Right." Beirut laughed as well.

"Actually, the Planar Wars are very pointless." Beirut suddenly shook his head. "It's simply a charnel house meant for reducing the number of supreme experts...but of course, it will also give birth to a few supreme experts."

"Eh?" Linley was startled.

Charnel house?

"Lord Beirut, what are you saying?" Linley couldn't help but speak out.

Beirut said with a calm laugh, "There are too many people and too many experts in the various planes! In addition, these planes have existed for countless years. Their long existences have resulted in countless experts! The Planar Wars are a tool meant to be used to reduce the number of experts. Every trillion years, every plane will undergo a Planar Wars, thus reducing the number of experts."

"A single Planar War will continue for a thousand years! In the course of those thousand years, it is virtually only the commanders who will fight against and slaughter each other, while those who don't wish to battle hide in their camps! At the very end of the Planar War, the armies of both sides will fight each other at the 'bridges' through the Stellar Sea and engage in a wild slaughter!" Beirut said with a chuckle. "To the vast majority of people, this is suicide. But to a few people, this is an excellent opportunity."

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 19, An Untended Willow Grows

Linley now understood!

When he originally entered the Planar Battlefield, Linley had discovered that many army camps were situated at each side of the Stellar River, and yet there were no signs of activity. Linley didn't understand why. Only now did he understand...that at the final part, the two armies would begin to kill each other.

"That's too vicious. It's tantamount to suicide." Linley couldn't help but say.

"Although it is vicious and cruel, it's also a good chance to earn military merits." Beirut said with a calm laugh. "In that sort of chaotic battle between two great armies, even commanders might die. And if one is lucky, one might be able to instantly acquire a large number of soldier badges and even commander badges! That is the time when the rewards are greatest, but yes, also when the danger is greatest."

In Linley's mind instantly floated an image of countless Highgods launching attacks against each other, with commanders amongst them.

Indeed, that was a terrifying scene.

"It'd be best for you to acquire enough commander badges prior to this event." Beirut laughed calmly.

Linley nodded. When the two armies battled chaotically, that was indeed a time of great reward, but also a time of tremendous danger.

"If, within a thousand years, I don't collect enough commander badges, then I'll have to go participate in the mass battle." Linley said to himself silently. For the sake of his family and friends, Linley wouldn't cower.

The Planar Battlefield, within a fairly black mountain. Linley and Bebe were together. This sort of lifeless black mountain could be seen everywhere throughout the Planar Battlefield.

"Crunch." Bebe was eating some fruit.

Linley, seated in the meditative posture, suddenly opened his eyes.

"Hey, Boss? Did you get the news from my grandfather?" Bebe's eyes immediately lit up. Linley smiled and nodded. "Right. I now have an understanding of most of the commander-level experts of the various planes. From today onwards...how about this. I'll control the Deathgod Golem by myself to draw in commanders."

They had enough time. Linley was in no rush.

"Right." Bebe chortled, then nodded. "Alright. I was wanting to take more naps anyhow. When you find a target, Boss, call me." Bebe, even in the Planar Battlefield, always was in the mood for napping."

"More than eight hundred, close to nine hundred, years are left before this Planar War concludes. We need to put this long period of time to good use. Perhaps during this period of time, I'll fuse my fourth profound mystery of the Laws of the Earth." Linley said with a sigh.

"Eh? Four? Right, Boss, didn't you already combine the Throbbing Pulse of the World, the Profound Mysteries of Strength, the Essence of the Earth, and Gravitational Space? Finishing the fusion should be fairly quick." Bebe mumbled.

"I've combined them, but what I now need to do is to separately fuse the Profound Mysteries of Strength with the Essence of the Earth and Gravitational Space as well. Only after I complete this will all four have been completely fused. Most likely, in another century or so, the separate fusions will be finished." Linley said with a calm laugh. Actually, Linley had already improved significantly in the past sixty or seventy years he had spent here in the Netherworld.

After all, once the fusion had started, fusing up to the bottleneck was just a matter of time.

"Hey, Boss, once you fuse four profound mysteries, your attack power will rise greatly once again." Bebe said excitedly.

"Actually, I already have a direction in my mind." Linley said with a calm laugh.

After having seen the attacks of the previous Redcliff Lord and of Hemmers, Linley had already gained some insights.

Bebe either napped or trained; in short, he was always just waiting.

Linley's divine clones focused on their training, while his original body controlled the Deathgod Golem outside. Time flowed on...and in the blink of an eye, two more months passed.

"It's only been one month, but I've lost a Deathgod Golem already." Linley shook his head helplessly as he spoke. "Half a year ago, when I saw that supreme expert of the Divine Light Realm, I wanted to control my Deathgod Golem to make it flee, but that person pursued and attacked, forcibly destroying my Deathgod Golem as well as the surrounding area. Fortunately, I hid deep enough...and his divine sense didn't extend all the way down to me."

Bebe opened his eyes and laughed, "It is just a Deathgod Golem. It is cheap. It's nothing."

"If I knew, I would've brought some more here with me." Linley said.

At this moment, Linley was controlling another Deathgod Golem, patrolling outside.

"In two months, we haven't seen a single suitable opponent." Bebe let out a sigh.

"Don't sigh. If we hadn't gone to your Grandpa Beirut and found out some information, most likely against that previous person, we would've gone to go fight against that supreme expert of Light. Fortunately, we avoided that disaster." Linley laughed. Just as Linley and Bebe were sighing, suddenly...

"BOOM!"

The entire mountain trembled violently, and quite a few rocks smashed down atop Linley and Bebe.

"What's going on? What's happening?" Bebe said with a frown.

"Wait a moment. The Deathgod Golem that I'm controlling is thousands of meters away...oh, the Deathgod Golem sees it. Two experts are battling!" Linley said, surprised.

Next to the mountain where Linley and Bebe were residing, there were two figures clashing. One was a violet blur, while the other was a white blur. One violet saber flash after another flew out of the body of the violet blur, with one of them landing viciously against the nearby small mountain.

"BANG!"

An explosive collision. The two were both knocked flying back by the collision. The violet blur was actually a green-eyed, violet-robed, vicious-looking youth, while the white blur was a handsome, silver-haired, blue-pupiled youth. The silver-haired youth's face was filled with rage.

"Lancelot [Lang'si'luo]! Don't go too far! You and I are on the same side. Why must you insist on killing me?" The silver-haired youth roared.

"Hmph, so what if we are on the same side? You should have been prepared for death the moment you entered the Planar Battlefield." The violet-robed youth let out a cold laugh. He said nothing else, immediately beginning to fill the surrounding area with violet bolts of electricity, and it seemed as though lightning bolts were beginning to fill the skies as well.

The silver-haired youth's face changed.

In terms of speed, he couldn't compete with the lightning-element Lancelot. He wouldn't be able to flee! Battle was the only option!

He knew that he was weaker, but all he could do was fight it head on. With a low growl, he said, "Lancelot, if you don't give me any chance, then I won't let you have an easy time of it either!" The silver-haired youth's body began to glow with a white aura, and then, with a cold shot, a white spear suddenly appeared next to him, along with a translucent spear.

The material attack and the spiritual attack converged into one!

"Swish!"

The two spears folded onto each other, and the illusory white spear shot straight towards the front.

"Die, then." The green-eyed, violet-robed youth said emotionlessly.

"Rumble..." The lightning bolts in the skies suddenly crashed down in the form of an enormous lightning serpent. At the same time, a green bolt of lightning emerged from the body of the violet-robed youth, also in the form of an enormous serpent. These two enormous lightning serpents attacked from opposite directions, encircling the silver-haired youth.

Right at this moment, the spear arrived before the violet-robed youth's body.

"Hmph!" The violet-robed youth let out a cold sneer.

He stretched out his right hand, and between his fingers formed a ball of violet light, which he smashed directly onto the illusory spear.

"BANG!"

That illusory white spear was a combination material attack and spiritual attack. And now, the illusory white spear completely shattered. The material attack...wasn't even able to damage the violet-robed youth's fingers. The spiritual attack was broken as well.

"Crackle..."

The violet and green electric serpents swirled around the silver-robed youth, whose face changed. The two different electric serpents actually created an unusual spatial electric field, causing the space itself to become electrified. That unusual electric field rippled throughout the silver-haired man's body.

"Ahhhhhhh!" The white-robed, silver-haired youth raised his head, roaring angrily.

A powerful aura swept out from his body, and the white glow strengthened.

"At a time like this, you want to fight by using up Sovereign's Might? You use yours, and I'll use mine. Isn't the result the same?" Lancelot laughed in his heart. His body also emanated forth a powerful aura, and the violet light began to fill his entire body as well.

As the two experts both began to use their Sovereign's Might, Linley and Bebe also quietly slipped out of the mountain, moving underground until they arrived at a place with a large amount of random vegetation. The two hid there, staring at the experts battling in the distance.

"They are both so strong." Bebe said in praise.

"The white-robed youth is a commander of the Divine Light Plane, Roland [You'lan'de]. That green-eyed, violet-robed youth is a commander of the Divine Lightning Plane, 'Lancelot'. According to the information provided by your Grandpa Beirut, this Lancelot is an extremely hard to deal with commander." Linley said mentally. "Roland is specialized in spiritual attacks, while Lancelot is skilled in both spiritual and material attacks, and he is also extremely fast. In addition, he's also fused a defensive Sovereign artifact into his body."

Bebe couldn't help but feel startled.

"Fused a defensive Sovereign artifact into his body? Isn't that the same as the Grand Elder?"

Linley nodded slightly, continuing to watch the two battle in the distance. "That Lancelot should be unbeatable in terms of material defense, due to possessing a defensive Sovereign artifact, and he is also extremely skilled in soul defense. Thus, to break through his soul defense is also very hard. This person...is a very powerful commander."

Lancelot was, indeed, virtually flawless.

He trained in the Laws of Lightning and was thus very fast. He was strong in every single aspect. Even amongst the many commanders of the multiverse, he was considered a high class one.

"However..." Linley laughed. "Bebe, you perfectly counter him."

To resist Bebe's innate divine ability, 'Godeater', one had to either be a Paragon or have a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact. This Lancelot had met his black star! Normally, Lancelot's soul defense should be considered incredibly powerful, but unfortunately...Bebe's innate divine ability wasn't something which a normal soul attack could compete with.

"Haha, Boss, leave'm to me." Bebe grew excited.

"The battle is about to end." Linley sent mentally.

Indeed, the white-robed youth, 'Roland', was in a completely inferior position. The violet-robed Lancelot launched a final material attack, causing Roland's entire body to blow apart.

"Haha..." Lancelot laughed as he walked over, snatching up a golden badge as well as an interspatial ring from the ground.

Right at this moment...

"Who!" Lancelot barked irritably while turning his head. He could already sense that there were movements nearby, but he didn't care too much. There were very few, even amongst the commanders, capable of killing him.

"Eh?" What Lancelot saw stunned him.

He saw a black blur flying towards him at high speed, while at the same time, in midair, the enormous illusion of a Godeater Rat appeared. The Godeater Rat illusion was staring coldly at him, and when Lancelot saw this, his face couldn't help but change. "Beirut?! Ah!!! NO!!!"

Lancelot had gone completely mad.

He had almost no weaknesses, but that was only against the vast majority of commanders. It didn't mean he was completely flawless. If he was completely perfect and flawless, why would he even need to come to the Planar Battlefield? Beirut's innate divine ability, 'Godeater', was extremely famous, and it perfectly countered people like Lancelot. Against this technique, all would perish, save those who had soul-protecting Sovereign artifacts and Paragons.

This was how dominating innate divine abilities were!

Lancelot didn't understand. The legendary Beirut had a body which was even tougher than divine sparks, could use his bare hands to clash against Sovereign weapons, and who had a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact. He was that sort of completely flawless supreme expert with no weaknesses. Someone like him...already stood at the very top of the universe.

Why did he have to come to the Planar Battlefield?

Lancelot didn't understand!

But...he wouldn't have a chance to understand in the future either!

A unique rippling power spread across his soul, and in the face of this attack, his soul defense wasn't able to do a single thing.

Lancelot stood there, stunned. That sinister look would never again flash past his green eyes. He seemed completely wooden...and then, with a 'bang' sound, he collapsed against the ground. A divine spark drifted out, along with a golden badge which emerged from his body, along with a dark golden armor.

"A gold badge and a defensive Sovereign artifact." Linley's eyes lit up.

Linley and Bebe transformed into two blurs, immediately collecting the golden badge, the defensive Sovereign artifact, and the interspatial rings.

"Let's hurry and leave. We can't tarry here."

Linley and Bebe didn't stay to do a thorough investigation, instead immediately leaving.

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 20, A Tranquil Heart

"Rustle..."

A cold wind howled, and the grass swayed, bending down in supplication.

Lancelot and Roland's corpses lay there on the ground, with no hint of life. Prior to this, they were both supreme experts of their respective planes, commander-level experts who imposed their will on their world! The reason they entered the Planar Battlefield was because they hoped to rise to yet another level; to accumulate enough military merits so as to trade for a Sovereign artifact, allowing them to become high-level experts even amongst commanders.

Unfortunately...

For some to succeed, others had to fail.

One commander's success represented the deaths of ten commanders, or a hundred thousand Highgod soldiers! This was the price of success! Unluckily, Lancelot and Roland had just become failures.

"Whooooosh!"

The wind arose, and then stopped!

Two figures appeared within the battlefield. These two were dressed in long green robes, and had long green hair. Even their faces and body shapes were similar. From the surface, the only difference between the two was that...one had golden eyebrows while the other had white eyebrows. Someone who didn't recognize them, upon seeing them, would take the two to be a single person's clones.

If Linley was here, he would recognize these two as being the legendary twin commanders of the Divine Wind Plane.

"Elder Brother, did you see that?" The man with the white eyebrows said solemnly.

The youth with the golden eyebrows took a look at the two corpses on the ground as well, nodding slightly. "I saw it. Although I've never personally seen the legendary innate divine ability of Beirut, based on the scryer recordings that I saw, I can affirm that just now, that illusion should've been one of a Godeater Rat!" Prior to this, when Bebe had used his innate divine ability, the illusion of a Godeater Rat had been a hundred meters tall, allowing others to see it from far away.

This was the reason why Linley and Bebe had immediately left.

The youth with the white eyebrows nodded. "Lancelot...even if we joined forces against him, it would be a hard fight. He was hard to deal with. Lancelot's soul defense was exceedingly strong, and to kill him, a Highgod Paragon would be needed. But of course, there is also Beirut, who possessed such a terrifying innate divine ability. Beirut's innate supreme technique ignores all ordinary soul defenses. The person who attacked just now...was most likely Beirut!"

Beirut had become famous just a bit more than ten thousand years ago!

As for Bebe, too few people knew of him. Bebe hadn't done anything particularly breathtaking yet after having become a Highgod. How could these experts of other planes know about him? Thus, they all believed that it had been Beirut who had attacked!

"Beirut...why has he come to the Planar Battlefield?" The youth with the white eyebrows said, frowning. "Given his power, he doesn't need to come to this place. His punches and kicks are already comparable to Sovereign weapons. The Planar Battlefield is already a chaotic enough place. With him joining the mix...this is absolutely unfair!"

"So what if it is unfair? Dare you go and have a grand battle against Beirut?" The youth with the golden eyebrows said with a laugh.

It was precisely because they had seen the illusion of a Godeater Rat that they had intentionally waited quite a while before returning. They were afraid they might run into Beirut.

"Enough, Second Brother. Let's go. Be careful. If we see that Beirut, let's make sure we stay far away from him." The youth with the golden eyebrows glanced at the two corpses on the ground, and then transformed into a blur and departed, with his younger brother following him. This empty area now only had those two lifeless corpses remaining.

Within that small black hill was an empty cave.

Linley and Bebe had emerged from underground and dug out this giant cave from within the hill.

"Haha, Boss, what great rewards, what great rewards!" Bebe excitedly called out, while tossing out one item after another; the violet armor, the interspatial rings, and everything else. Just as Bebe was about to excitedly say a few things, he suddenly froze.

"Boss!" Bebe looked at Linley, stunned.

Linley was currently staring at the golden badge in his hands. His eyes were filled with excitement, and even tears.

"Finally. I finally have a golden badge." Linley clenched his hand tightly around the golden badge, pressing it against his heart. In this moment, Linley felt as though this golden badge had transformed into his father, into George, into Yale. He couldn't help but think of those precious memories from back when he was a toddler or when he was a youth.

The golden badge, to Linley...did it represent a Sovereign artifact?

No!

This was something which would allow the father he had lost in his youth to return. To let his brothers who had died such unjust deaths to return.

"Father. Boss Yale. George." Linley shut his eyes and murmured. "I...can save at least one of you now! My father, my brothers...you have to wait for me. Wait for me to emerge from the Planar Wars. You've already endured for nearly two thousand years. Just endure a little longer!"

"Wait for me..."

Tears unconsciously began to seep out from the corners of his eyes.

Ever since he had entered the Netherworld, over the past few decades, Linley had been under great pressure. He felt as though a giant stone was constantly pressing against his heart! First, he had to go to the Abyssal Mountain to meet the Chief Sovereign of Death, from whom he just barely saw a glimmer of hope. He then went to Tartarus to challenge the Redcliff Lord, finally succeeding and becoming qualified to enter the Planar Battlefield.

But that had only been the beginning.

After entering the Planar Battlefield, Linley was under constant pressure, and he had a lost feeling in his heart. Deep in his heart, he even felt a hint of dread.

This seemingly peaceful Planar Battlefield had too many powerful experts hiding within it! Linley was afraid that he could encounter a truly supreme expert who would kill himself and Bebe. He wasn't afraid of dying himself, but if Bebe were to die, Linley would forever regret it. And...if that happened, he would never again be able to save his father and his brothers.

After having been in the Planar Battlefield for more than half a year, and after repeated failures, Linley had even begun to doubt himself.

Nervousness, restlessness! These emotions had constantly ensnared Linley!

Although on the surface, it appeared as though Linley had lain in wait calmly, in his heart, Linley was frantic. This was because he hadn't killed a single commander. He had begun to doubt if he would be able to acquire a single commander's badge. This was the sort of nervous restlessness in which Linley had been living. But now...just now, such a huge battle had suddenly erupted.

And it had brought such an unexpected delight.

"I finally succeeded. A gold badge." Linley said to himself. "Bebe and I, working together, will definitely succeed. It hasn't even been a year, but I've already acquired a gold badge. In addition, there are nearly nine centuries left to this Planar War. I will definitely acquire enough gold badges."

This success had allowed Linley's heart to calm down greatly!

No matter how vicious and dangerous the future days would be, Linley would confidently face them!

"Right. There's another gold badge." Linley suddenly turned to look towards Bebe, saying hurriedly, "Bebe, that interspatial ring. Hurry up and open it and take a look. When Roland was killed, that gold badge was placed into the interspatial ring." Linley was feeling rather excited.

Bebe had been paying attention to Linley's facial expressions this entire time, and he immediately laughed. "Alright, I'll open it up right away." Bebe understood that the tears Linley had just shed were tears of joy.

A single drop of blood flew out from Bebe's skin, landing atop the interspatial ring.

"Eh?" Bebe stared.

Linley couldn't help but frown.

The drop of blood actually splashed onto the interspatial ring, then rolled off and fell to the ground, striking it with a 'whap' sound.

"Damn! That Lancelot has a divine clone that is still alive!" Bebe said angrily.

"So it really was the case!" Linley had been mentally prepared for this all along.

Generally speaking, the vast majority of commanders who entered the Planar Battlefield would leave a divine clone outside. After all, the chance of death in the Planar Battlefield was simply too high. As for Lancelot... clearly, he had left a divine clone outside as well, causing Linley to be completely unable to open this interspatial ring.

"Aaaargh!" Bebe immediately called out furiously. "The defensive Sovereign artifact! The defensive Sovereign artifact is also useless!"

If even the interspatial ring couldn't be bound, then the same would naturally be true for the defensive Sovereign artifact.

Linley glanced at the dark golden armor, then laughed and said, "Bebe, don't worry about that. You should know...this defensive Sovereign artifact was given to Lancelot by a Sovereign. Even though we killed him, the Sovereign will still take back the Sovereign artifact. At most, we'd be able to use it temporarily for a time."

"I know this principle, but we should've at least been able to wear it for a time, right?" Bebe said helplessly.

"For a time? Who knows when the Sovereign would come and take back the Sovereign artifact." Linley said with a calm laugh.

Linley even suspected that Sovereigns were monitoring the Planar Wars at all times. The Sovereigns might immediately take back their artifact, or they might wait...wait for a bit of time to pass before taking it. But one thing was certain; a Sovereign artifact acquired through killing someone would definitely be taken away by the Sovereign in the end.

"To me, what I really feel is unfortunate is the loss of that badge." Linley shook his head and sighed.

"Right. We can't take the badge out either." Bebe said resignedly.

According to the rules of trading for military merits, once the Planar

War concluded and the combatants exited through the interspatial gate, they would immediately receive military merits based on the number of badges acquired. Even if Linley found Lancelot's clone in the future and forced him to withdraw the gold badge, it would be useless.

"So some badges actually end up going to waste like this." Linley said with a bitter laugh.

Perhaps an expert might kill seven or eight other commanders and acquire seven or eight badges. But if the expert was in turn killed, that person would only acquire a single badge. As for the seven or eight badges in the interspatial ring, there was no way to retrieve them. They had to go to waste.

"There must be many that go to waste. For example, during the final battle in the Stellar Sea corridors." Bebe said with a sigh. "That's a place where you gamble with your life. Perhaps you'll end up fighting all the way into the chaotic space regions of the Stellar Sea. Also, some badges will fall into the chaotic space regions or the spatial tears of the Stellar Sea." Bebe said.

Linley nodded slightly.

"It seems as though relying on taking advantage of the work of others isn't a simple thing. Unless the person has no divine clone outside, of course. But the number of people who would do that is too little." Linley said, shaking his head.

Acquiring enough military merits wasn't a simple task. It had to be done step by step.

"Boss, what should we do with the interspatial ring? Destroy it, or keep it?" Bebe said.

"Keeping it will only result in problems and no benefits. Destroy it." Linley said with a calm laugh.

"Whap!" Bebe exerted some force, completely crushing the interspatial ring in his fingers. The items within the interspatial ring all transformed into nothingness as well.

"This Sovereign artifact...leave it here for the Sovereign to collect." Linley said with a calm laugh.

"Haha, actually, even if we wanted to destroy it, we wouldn't be able to." Bebe said, then he gave the dark golden armor a few kicks. "Damn, it's pretty hard. Hmph...my body hasn't reached its limits yet. In the future, I definitely won't be weaker than any Sovereign artifact." Bebe harrumphed.

Although Bebe's defensive power was great, each time he devoured a divine spark, he continued to use the essence of the divine spark to strengthen his body.

It was a process that took some time. The amount of time Bebe had spent at the Highgod level was a million years less than what Beirut had spent. There was still a difference between the two of them.

Linley calmly trained there in the cave, while his original body continued to control his Deathgod Golem as bait.

The Planar Battlefield was the same as it previously had been. On the surface, it was calm, but in the shadows, battles and massacres occasionally erupted. Although the Planar Battlefield was very dangerous, Linley, having succeeded once, was now confident in himself. He had acquired a gold badge in less than a year. If he could acquire one every ten years, much less every year, he would easily accomplish his goal.

He calmly waited. Waited for a big fish to bite on his bait.

"With my heart at peace...my training has increased in speed as well." Linley laughed calmly, opening his eyes.

"Eh?" Bebe, as though sensing it, opened his eyes to look at Linley as well. "Boss, what is it?"

"Bebe, make your preparations. I've already discovered people nearby." A hint of light flashed through Linley's eyes.

"We have a target?" Bebe instantly grew excited, jumping to his feet. "Haha, it's been less than half a month, but we have a new target. It's time for me to show my skills off yet again. Haha!" Bebe was extremely energetic.

"Don't be impatient. Let's see if they are enemies first. Let's go!"

Linley and Bebe immediately, quietly slipped through the underground tunnels, leaving the mountain.

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 21, Flee on Sight

A short, black-robed figure flew out, moving like dark smoke through the cold, clammy underground earth of the Planar Battlefield.

"Eh?"

The figure suddenly came to a halt, staring stealthily into the distance. His eyes were as sharp as an eagle's, but the strange thing was that he was bald, but a layer of dark black light was atop his bald head, like a thin layer of black metal. This dark black scalp also had a round rune atop it.

"Someone is actually here?" The bald youth stared into the distance.
"An enemy!"

After ascertaining the enemy's status, the bald youth didn't hesitate at all. "Swoosh!" Very suddenly, the bald youth accelerated explosively, shooting out like a meteor towards the black-robed man.

The black-robed man suddenly turned his head, clearly seeing him. Not hesitating at all, the black-robed man immediately fled with a 'whoosh'.

"You won't be able to escape!" The bald youth's body flashed forward bizarrely.

The surrounding area saw the formation of a spherical, earthen yellow glow which completely 'surrounded' the black-robed man, who was trying to flee. Stuck within the earthen yellow light, the black-robed man's speed dropped dramatically. The bald youth seized the chance to immediately charge forwards, mercilessly striking out with his right hand.

The bald youth was wearing a black glove on his right hand.

His hand stretched out like the claws of a divine dragon, and as the space it passed through rippled and trembled. His claws instantly landed on the black-robed figure's shoulder. "F*ck off!" The black-robed man growled, and then he struck back with his right leg, kicking towards the youth.

"Crunch!" A very clear sound. The black-robed man's shoulder was completely ripped apart.

"How tough." The bald youth felt slightly startled, but he didn't show any mercy.

As the right hand claw smashed down against the shoulder, it also then struck directly towards the black-robed man's head. As the right claw struck out, it actually formed a bizarre, spherical ball of light, causing even the nearby space to be bound, making it impossible for the black-robed man's head to dodge to any great degree.

"Slash!" The five fingers of the bald youth's right hand pierced directly into the black-robed man's skull, and the man's head immediately exploded. The bald youth was very confident. "This kick of yours won't be able to land on me." As the bald youth saw it, once the black-robed man died, he naturally wouldn't be able to continue to attack.

"BANG!" The force of the black-robed man's right kick didn't lessen at all, crashing straight against the chest of the bald youth.

The bald youth was knocked backwards, and he landed on the ground.

"Wait. That's a Deathgod Golem!" The bald youth came to a shocked awareness. "This is a trap!"

"Bang!" The bald youth kicked off furiously from the ground, and as he did, that spherical glow emanated from his right foot, the foot which kicked downwards. Instantly, he rocketed away, moving at high speed. As he moved, he would occasionally kick off from the ground again, each time creating that spherical glow, causing his speed to rise to a terrifying level.

Moving as fast as lightning, in two or three leaps, he disappeared from the field of view.

"This fellow ran too fast!"

By the time Linley and Bebe emerged from the ground, all they could see was the departing back of the bald youth. Linley and Bebe had no choice but to vent their anger on a nearby boulder. "As soon as the Deathgod Golem discovered him, he almost instantly discovered that it was a Deathgod Golem and that it was a trap! After discovering it was a Deathgod Golem, he didn't even pause and instead immediately fled. Jeeze!" Linley couldn't help but shake his head.

"Nothing to show for it." Bebe pursed his lips and said, then turned to look at the distant, headless Deathgod Golem. "And we even lost a Deathgod Golem. Boss, who was that person?"

"Cloyd [Ke'luo'yi'de]! An extremely strong commander who belongs to the Divine Earth Plane. He likes to travel alone." Linley said with a laugh. Through the Deathgod Golem, Linley saw Cloyd's attack, and just by seeing Cloyd's attack, Linley became completely certain of who Cloyd was. "However, Cloyd doesn't have a single Sovereign artifact. We are completely capable of killing him."

Linley felt rather regretful.

It was an excellent opportunity. Unfortunately, Cloyd was too cautious. Upon discovering that it was a trap, he had immediately fled without hesitating at all.

"He doesn't have a single Sovereign artifact, and yet he's strong?" Bebe said with a frown.

"That's what the intelligence reports your Grandpa Beirut provided to me said. Cloyd simply doesn't wish to be restricted and so doesn't wish to become a Sovereign's Emissary, which is why he has no Sovereign artifacts. But despite that...killing him is extremely difficult." Linley let out a sigh. "An expert of the Laws of the Earth! He must have fused at least five of the profound mysteries."

The clawing blow he had delivered which had shattered the Deathgod Golem's shoulder contained five profound mysteries.

The Deathgod Golem was torn through like mud.

Just as Linley and Bebe were chatting mentally, from the corner of his eyes, Linley saw a distant figure suddenly appear. He immediately turned to look...only to see that roughly two or three hundred meters away, a black figure was lying in hiding, seeming to inspect the Deathgod Golem that was lying on the ground.

Linley suddenly grew excited. "Bebe, we have a target. Three hundred meters to our left."

"Target?" Bebe turned to look as well.

Just at this moment...

The distant black-robed figure, also vigilant, discovered that there were two figures not far away who were lying against the corner of a mountain boulder. Right at this moment...the gazes of Linley and the black-robed man met.

Linley was suddenly startled, and he immediately sent through divine sense to Bebe, "Bebe, this black-robed man...I can't sense the badge aura on him. He is an enemy. Let's attack!" The closer one was, the more easily one could sense the badge aura. Linley and the enemy were less than three hundred meters away.

Logically speaking, even if he didn't have a clear sense, he should still sense a bit of the badge's aura.

But if he didn't sense anything at all...

"Haha, one ran away, but another one was drawn close. Haha." Bebe was extremely excited.

This black-robed person was indeed drawn here by the earlier actions of the bald youth. He had snuck over and watched quietly to the side. But Linley and Bebe were in a fairly hidden location, from which they just so happened to be able to clearly see the black-robed figure.

"Hmph." The black-robed figure very calmly turned and fled.

"He's running?"

Linley's first reaction was to unleash his Blackstone Field. An enormous earthen yellow aura instantly sprang out, with Linley at the center, expanding to a radius of five hundred meters. This Blackstone Space spread out far faster than the black-robed man ran; as soon as the man moved, he fell within the Blackstone Space.

The gravity pulling was towards Linley!

"Gravitational Space? What a powerful gravity, and it is pulling to the rear!"

The black-robed man was now shocked. He couldn't help but turn to look, and the already Dragonformed Linley and Bebe had transformed into a pair of azure and black blurs, advancing towards him rapidly.

"Pursuing me?" The black-robed man didn't resist, instead choosing to flee.

But attempting to flee while completely pulling against the gravitational force...how fast could he move?

"You want to run?" Linley stared fixedly at the black-robed man, pursuing at high speed. In Linley's eyes, this black-robed man definitely had a gold badge. Every single gold badge represented that he would be able to save another one of his family or friends. While in hot pursuit, the distance between the two quickly shrank to less than a few dozen meters.

In the Blackstone Space, the black-robed man's speed was reduced by simply too much.

The black-robed man was angry now!

"I don't want to fight with you two. Let me leave." A divine sense rang out, echoing in Linley and Bebe's minds. "Otherwise, don't blame me for being discourteous!"

"You want to leave? And be discourteous?" Linley laughed.

"Bebe, you can act now. He won't be able to escape at this distance." Linley sent mentally.

"Don't worry, Boss." Bebe laughed delightedly.

Right at this moment...

"You are looking for death." The black-robed man, who had been suppressing his temper, suddenly stabbed backwards with a dagger.

"Swoosh!"

A black light suddenly shot out, shooting towards Linley, so fast...that Linley wasn't able to dodge at all.

"So fast!" Frantically, Linley stabbed out powerfully with the godspark sword, 'Mirage', which was in his hands.

"BANG!"

The tip of Mirage collided with the tip of the dagger.

Linley only felt a terrifying powerful force press towards him, going through Mirage and into his arms. "Crackle..." The draconic scales covering his right arm, which was gripping Mirage, instantly shattered. Blood began to flow out, and Linley was knocked backwards as well.

When Linley retreated, the Blackstone Field centered around him moved backwards as well, allowing the black-robed man to escape the perimeter of the Blackstone Field!

"A Sovereign artifact!" Linley was shocked.

The black-robed man had pulled away from Linley, but not with Bebe!

"Boss!" Bebe was instantly enraged.

Immediately, a colossal phantom of a Godeater Rat once more appeared behind Bebe. The black-robed man turned to look, and what he saw terrified him so greatly, his face changed. "How...how can this be?! Beirut's innate divine ability!!!" Beirut's technique was famous throughout the multiverse. Even many people who had never seen Beirut use this technique in person had seen scryer recordings of Beirut using his supreme attack.

"No....!" The black-robed man wanted to once more speak with his divine sense.

Unfortunately, the speed of an innate divine ability was comparable to the speed of using divine sense to communication.

As for Bebe, he used his innate divine ability first, and so the black-robed man didn't even have a chance to plead his case!

"Rumble..."

A strange ripple wrapped around the black-robed man's head, and immediately, a divine spark floated out from it. As for the black-robed man, he lifelessly slumped downwards, while the black dagger that had been flying back towards him fell to the ground as well. At the same time, a white badge fell out of his body.

"Whoosh!" "Whoosh!"

Linley and Bebe landed before his body.

Linley was stupefied. "What? A white badge?" Linley stared at the white badge, not daring to believe it.

Of the two sides in this battle, the Divine Light Plane had gold badges for commanders and white badges for soldiers.

"It's actually a soldier badge?" Linley couldn't believe it.

A person who had a Sovereign artifact...was a soldier?

"Boss, hurry up and leave. We can't stay here any longer." Bebe said hurriedly.

Only now did Linley come to his senses. Not hesitating any further, Linley and Bebe hurriedly collected the interspatial ring, Sovereign dagger, and white badge, then immediately flew away.

Within a cave that was inside a large mountain.

"All of these people have divine clones outside. Even though we killed them, we still aren't able to bind their interspatial rings or Sovereign artifacts with blood." Bebe said, angry and helpless. "The Sovereign artifact is one thing; the Sovereign will take it back eventually, after all.

But the interspatial ring definitely has quite a few things inside. What a pity, what a pity."

Linley just stared at the white badge. "He was actually a soldier!"

"It really is very odd. A soldier who had a Sovereign artifact?" Bebe muttered.

Linley suddenly had a thought, and many things instantly made sense. He couldn't help but shake his head resignedly and say, "Bebe, I understand now. We found the wrong target."

"What is it?" Bebe said, puzzled.

Linley sighed. "Bebe, didn't you notice? When the black-robed person discovered us, his first reaction was to flee. When we pursued him, his second reaction was to warn us that he didn't want to fight us, and that if we kept on bothering him, he would attack. Why didn't he want to fight? He had a Sovereign artifact, so why flee? I think...the reason was because he was on our side."

"On our side?" Bebe was stunned.

"Right." Linley said helplessly. "I think this person should be a commander on our side, but he removed his commander badge and instead bound with blood this enemy's soldier badge and became an enemy 'soldier'. He bound an enemy's soldier badge by blood. Once he gets close to an enemy commander, he would sense their aura, and so find them easily. In addition, he would be able to launch an ambush attack. Two birds with one stone! The only flaw, however, is that he will be attacked by the people on his own side!"

Disguising one's self as the enemy had benefits but also costs.

That poor, black-robed man. He fell to Linley and Bebe's deadly hands.

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 22, Sixty Years in the Planar Battlefield

“This fellow was pretending to be an enemy. I was happy for nothing.” Bebe waved his hand, withdrawing a red fruit which he viciously ‘crunched’ into with crisp chewing sounds. “Boss, all of these commanders are incredibly sly and careful. Finding a suitable target is tough. How infuriating.”

“If you feel irritated, calm down and train.” Linley just sat down into the meditative position, beginning to train silently.

This sort of life would last for another eight centuries. Linley hoped to make yet another major improvement within these eight hundred years.

Atop the vast, desolate earth, three figures of different heights were staring into the distance, looks of shock on their faces. Bebe’s usage of his innate divine ability had created an illusion that was over a hundred meters tall, and so these three saw it from hundreds of kilometers away. Although the three knew that someone was present a few hundred kilometers away, they didn’t dare go over.

“Hey, that Beirut really did come to the Planar Battlefield.” The shorter man raised an eyebrow, speaking with disbelief.

When Bebe had used his innate divine ability to kill Lancelot, other commanders had seen it, resulting in the rumor of Beirut having arrived in the Planar Battlefield. Although Bebe had also used his innate divine ability on the other side against a violet-robed figure and was seen doing so, that news had only circulated amongst the commanders on that side and hadn't made it to the enemy side.

"Judging from that illusion, it really was Beirut's innate divine ability. I thought that the rumor was fake, but it was real! Why has Beirut run over to the Planar Battlefield along with us? Does he want to fight over military merits with us? He has no need of it!" A white-haired, white-browed man with a single horn let out a sigh.

The third was a black-robed, black-haired woman.

"What are you afraid of? We won't go antagonize that Beirut. But...if we join forces, we don't need to be afraid of him either." The black-robed woman said in a gravelly voice.

"Anya [An'ya]! Don't be too self-confident. According to legend, Beirut is even harder to deal with than a Highgod Paragon." The white-haired, white-browed man said seriously. "He doesn't fear the attacks of Sovereign weapons at all, nor does he fear soul attacks...he is completely flawless. In addition, his material attacks and soul attacks are both incredibly powerful! If the three of us fought against him, he would defeat us one at a time."

The black-robed woman gave the white-browed man a glance.

"Don't doubt me." The white-browed man said solemnly.

Beirut had been famous for too short a period of time. Although he had become a Highgod long ago, Beirut had been able to endure being by himself and had remained in the Yulan continent. It was only ten thousand years ago that he had sprang to sudden prominence. Over the course of that rise to fame, he had become known as an invincible figure.

"He has no flaws, and is strong in every aspect." The shorter man said helplessly.

His innate divine ability, 'Godeater', could be described as the most powerful soul attack in existence.

Beirut's material attacks were executed through a Sovereign weapon. Even the Patriarchs of the eight great clans who had Sovereign artifacts of their own were heavily injured by a single blow of Beirut's staff. One could imagine how terrifying his material attacks were.

Who could possibly oppose someone like this?

"Let's go. The three of us need to be careful during this Planar War." The white-browed man said calmly. "If necessary, we can just acquire fewer military merits during this Planar War. We can participate in the next one! I imagine Beirut wouldn't be so bored as to participate in the next one as well. And the next Planar War will arrive shortly!"

"Right." The other two nodded in agreement as well.

The three immediately left.

Beirut. Highgod Paragons. They were at the very top of the world of Deities. Only Sovereigns were capable of easily dealing with them. The difference between them and normal Highgods was simply too vast.

In addition, the three-person squad of experts was in no hurry.

Because...

Although the Planar Wars were carried out only once every trillion years, there was more than one war in each session of the Planar Wars.

It must be understood that there are Seven Divine Planes and Four Higher Realms. The 'Life Realm' did not participate in this sort of war, and so the other ten engaged in battles against each other, over the course of five sessions of the Planar Wars. The Divine Darkness Plane against the Divine Light Plane was just one, and after it concluded, a short period of time later, other Divine Planes would battle against each other, and even the Higher Realms would participate.

There would be five consecutive sessions of Planar Wars.

Generally speaking, if they were carried out quickly, the entire thing would be concluded in ten thousand years. Even if they were carried slowly, the Planar Wars would still conclude within a million years. After the five battles concluded...they would restart after a trillion years passed!

A trillion years was a very long period of time. If an expert had latent potential, a trillion years was more than enough time for him to completely bring his latent potential to the surface.

If a person remained an ordinary Highgod after a trillion years, then even if you gave him ten times or a hundred times the amount of time, he still probably wouldn't increase in power any further. In addition, during each Planar Wars, a large number of Highgods and commanders would die. This mechanism ensured that the number of supreme experts in the various planes didn't rise to an excessively large figure.

But of course, it also made the strong even stronger!

Beirut had arrived at the Planar Battlefield!

This news quickly spread amongst the various commanders. The commanders all knew each other, and although many of them didn't quite believe it the first time they heard it, when Bebe had once again used his innate divine ability to kill that black-robed man, others had witnessed it in addition to those three.

This news was now completely verified!

This caused an earthquake in the entire battlefield!

Within a military camp.

A beardless, middle-aged man with silver hair and elegantly drooping eyebrows was seated facing a golden-haired youth. The two were drinking wine.

"Mr. Magnus, you don't believe me?" The golden-haired youth laughed.

"I believe you." The silver-haired, middle-aged man raised a long eyebrow, then shook his head uncomprehendingly. "However, Beirut is someone who can be said is at the peak of Deities. He should care more about his status. Even if he decided to take a stroll about the Planar Battlefield, he should remain within one of the military camps and smile while watching the other commanders kill each other. He shouldn't lower himself to go butcher those commanders."

"Mr. Magnus, that's just your own viewpoint." The golden-haired youth laughed.

Magnus was also someone who stood at the very peak of the world of Deities! Although he stationed himself at a military camp, this was simply out of boredom. It was a game to him.

There was still a gap between ordinary commanders and Highgod Paragons or the likes of Beirut. For Beirut or Magnus to go attack those ordinary commanders really was an act of butchery.

"No. Although I've never met this Beirut, I've heard some stories of him. He's the type of person who is extremely capable of enduring and hiding. He's definitely not the sort of person who would be bored and lower himself to slaughtering ordinary commanders." Magnus shook his head. "I suspect...that perhaps it isn't Beirut who used that technique."

"Not him?" The golden-haired youth was startled.

"Right. Perhaps in the multiverse, there is another person who also possesses Beirut's supreme technique as well." Magnus said meditatively.

Bebe had only become a Highgod two centuries ago.

The members of the Four Divine Beasts clan only knew that Bebe was Beirut's 'grandson'; they didn't know that Bebe was like Beirut, someone capable of the 'Godeater' innate divine ability...much like how the children and descendants of the Azure Dragon didn't all necessarily have the Azure Dragon's strength. They didn't think that Bebe had that sort of power.

Bebe's reputation had yet to spread.

The Planar Battlefield. At the top of a tall mountain peak.

A white-robed man with crimson eyebrows was currently leaning against the mountain. The wind rustled past his long black hair, but he simply leisurely held his cup of wine, lowering his head to take a sip. It was Bluefire, who had entered the Planar Battlefield not long ago.

In the Planar Battlefield, the various commanders all hid their tracks. Who dare to reveal himself, much less stand at the top of a mountain?

At the top of the mountain peak, staring down at the endless world, Bluefire laughed and shook his head. "Innate divine ability, 'Godeater'? Mm, it seems Bebe and Linley had arrived at this side of the Stellar Sea as well." Bluefire casually stood there at the top of the mountain, drinking his wine, but if someone were to stare at him from afar, they wouldn't see anyone there.

The strange thing was...

The space surrounding Bluefire was distorted.

"The Planar Wars...ten commanders must die for someone to have enough military merits for a Sovereign artifact. In addition, quite a few commanders who are killed had badges in their interspatial rings, which go to waste! For each Sovereign artifact to be acquired, far more than ten commanders will die." Bluefire let out a light sigh.

"Whoosh!"

Bluefire slid down the mountain, moving like a comet and quickly disappearing from that space.

Time flowed on, and in the blink of an eye, sixty years passed.

Inside a mountain cave within the Planar Battlefield.

"We lost yet another Deathgod Golem." Bebe mumbled.

Linley, who was training nearby, opened his eyes. "Nothing to show for it?"

"Nothing." Bebe said resignedly.

Controlling the Deathgod Golems was originally meant to be Linley's job, but Bebe was bored and so he would occasionally take over. Only, Linley hadn't imagined...that ever since he had acquired that gold badge and that white badge, he had not acquired a single extra badge despite the passage of sixty years. In addition, Linley discovered that the commanders he did in fact find were ones whom he couldn't take action against.

Because...

If they encountered solo experts, those experts were either too cautious or too strong.

The other possibility was a team of two or three experts, or sometimes even four. With them moving together, even if Linley and Bebe attacked and killed one of them, the others would make sure that Linley and Bebe wouldn't be able to flee.

"How did this Deathgod Golem end up being destroyed?" Linley laughed.

"Boss, this time, we actually encountered Hemmers." Bebe said helplessly. "How could we end up running into that big idiot again?"

Linley could only laugh bitterly.

"Be patient. The Planar Wars will go on for a thousand years. As it goes on, the survivors are increasingly those who have certain abilities to rely upon. It won't be so easy to find someone to kill. What I hope for is that in the next eight hundred years, I'll be able to fuse a fourth profound mystery. At that time, I won't have much to fear."

Linley knew very well that although he was fairly powerful, in reality, in terms of soul defense and soul attack power, he was inferior to other commanders. However, after he fused a fourth profound mystery, given his innate azure aura in his sea of consciousness, his soul defense would rise nearly tenfold, while his material attack would also increase nearly tenfold.

By then, aside from a few people like Beirut, others wouldn't be capable of making Linley feel afraid.

"I need more time!" Linley closed his eyes, his original body and his divine earth clone focused on training.

But after just three months...Linley broke through! But of course, the breakthrough wasn't in the Laws of the Earth; Linley was still a long ways off from finishing his fourth fusion. This breakthrough was...in his divine wind clone!"

"Eh?" Bebe suddenly glanced at Linley.

An enormous surge of the natural laws descended upon Linley, and a large amount of wind-type elemental essence began to swirl above him. From within Linley's body, yet another body flew out...one with long green hair and a green robe. His divine wind clone. Just then, Linley had finally, completely mastered a ninth profound mystery in the Laws of the Wind.

"Wow, Boss, you mastered the Laws of the Wind as well." Bebe began to laugh.

"Yes, I've finished them." Linley's original body flew to one side. His elemental affinity for earth and wind were both 'exceptional'; only, over the course of his training, he had favored earth more. Who would have imagined that of the four elements, wind would actually end up being his third slowest, behind both earth and water?

However, he had finally become a Highgod!

Now, only 'fire' was missing.

"Not good!" Linley's face suddenly changed.

"What is it, Boss?" Bebe was still feeling excited and happy at Linley's breakthrough.

"The descent of the natural laws. Such a major, noticeable event will definitely attract quite a few people." Linley said hurriedly. Linley was instantly frantic; other commanders might come over while his divine wind clone's divine spark was in the middle of the transformation process, which made him temporarily unable to move, albeit for just a short period of time...

But that short period of time was enough to allow other experts to come over.

"What is there to fear!" Bebe's eyes actually lit up. "If one comes, we'll kill one. If two come, we'll kill two. If we can't kill them...we'll flee!"

Linley couldn't help but feel helpless. Still, Linley immediately set up his

'Blackstone Space', which passed through the stones of the mountain, creating a hemisphere five hundred meters in size.

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 23, Three Person Squad

“Hopefully, no one will come. However, given how savage the commanders are to each other, I imagine they won’t give up a chance like this.” Linley said quietly in his heart, while at the same time, his body became covered by those azure-golden draconic scales. He immediately Dragonformed! Mirage appeared in his hands as well. As for Bebe, he was by Linley’s side. The two were prepared for a fight.

The sudden descent of the natural Laws was simply too obvious. Virtually everyone in the entire plane noticed it.

“A breakthrough? There’s actually a God or Demigod level clone in the Planar Battlefield?”

“How bizarre. Can it be that someone actually brought his Demigod or God clone into the Planar Battlefield? To bring a weak divine clone in instead of leaving it outside...this person is just throwing his life away.”

“The descent of the natural Laws means this person’s position is exposed. Nine out of ten, that person will die.”

The Planar Battlefield was filled with discussions regarding this. Everyone in the Planar Battlefield should be a Highgod. The descent of the natural Laws was a very bizarre occurrence here. However, because people were at varying distances from Linley, it was only the extremely close commanders who immediately flew at high speed towards the origin point of the descent of the Laws!

The cold, grim Planar Battlefield. A gray-robed figure was flying towards the mountain.

"This is a rare, superb opportunity. Perhaps I'll be able to acquire a badge." The gray figure flew at very high speed, but by the time he flew to the base of the mountain, he suddenly came to a halt. His form was revealed as that of a violet-eyed, gray-robed youth with long hair.

He was currently staring at a nearby white-clothed figure.

"Benfield [Ben'fei'er'de] of the Celestial Realm?" Terrified, the violet-eyed, gray-robed youth's face changed. "Benfield. That means his other two companions must be present as well. If they surround me, I'll definitely die. Since those two have come, that idiot in the mountain who actually brought a God-level divine clone into the Planar Battlefield definitely won't be able to survive!" Not hesitating at all, the violet-eyed, gray-robed youth immediately retreated at high speed.

He flew over, saw the white-robed figure, then immediately retreated.

This process happened in an instant.

"Eh?" The white-robed figure seemed to have felt something. He suddenly turned his head and saw the gray-robed figure disappear. The white-robed man let out a calm laugh. "He ran fairly fast." The white-robed figure had long, silver-white hair. His face was as beautiful as a woman's, and his eyes seemed to contain the stars within them as he stared upwards into the sky.

"Swoosh!"

The white-robed man flew into the sky, towards the midway point of the mountain.

"Boss, we are already halfway up the mountain, close to the point where the natural Law ripples descended." A deep voice echoed out in the white-robed man's mind.

"Elder Brother, I arrived as well." A clear voice rang out in his mind as well.

Right at this moment, suddenly...

The natural Law ripples suddenly weakened at a fast pace. The transformation upon breaking through was a fairly fast process. Clearly, Linley's divine wind clone's divine spark transformation had already concluded.

"We didn't make it in time for the best opportunity." The clear voice said discontentedly.

"Third Brother, let's do it." The white-robed man gave the order.

"Haha, watch me!" The white-robed man was less than a hundred meters away from a black-armored man, who was standing there in midair. This muscular, black-armored man was nearly three meters tall, and he had a pair of thick, curved horns on his forehead. His hammer-like fists were covered with a crimson pair of gloves.

The muscular man give a low growl, bending as he suddenly smashed downwards with his fists towards the mountain.

Soundlessly, the two giant crimson hammer-fists slammed against the mountain.

"Rumble..."

Space itself trembled, and instantly, at the location where the two fist blows landed, a deep round crevice that was a meter in diameter suddenly appeared. A large number of shattered stones fell out from this new 'cave', and the entire side of the mountain cracked as well, as one savage-looking crevice after another appeared.

The muscular man stared, then roared furiously, "Motherf*cker, break!!!"

This time, he swung down with open palms, like two giant fan-shaped objects, smashing down upon the cracked mountain. Instantly, the upper part of the mountain, with a 'boom', completely crumbled, and countless stones of various sizes fell down from high above.

The white-robed man, the black-armored man, and a red-robed, jade-haired woman stood there in midair.

Linley hadn't imagined that the enemy would be so powerful. Almost as soon as he had collected his divine wind clone back into his body, such a terrifyingly powerful tremor had gone through the mountain, which actually shattered. Although it didn't crumble, the insides of the mountain were already damaged.

The first blow had damaged the insides.

The second blow seemed to have the power to shatter the heavens and the earth, causing the entire upper half of the mountain to completely collapse.

"What a powerful material attack." Bebe couldn't help but sigh in astonishment. "I imagine this attacker has a Sovereign weapon." The mountains of the Planar Battlefield were exceedingly tough, on a higher level than even the mountains of the Netherworld and the Infernal Realm. To destroy half of a mountain was something which even most commanders would find difficult.

"However, they clearly are afraid to come in." Bebe snickered.

Linley and Bebe didn't care about the crumbling mountain per se.

"Not only are they strong, they are cautious as well. They will be hard to deal with." Linley held Mirage in his hand as he watched the surrounding boulders come cascading down. As the mountain crumbled, Linley was able to see the outside world, and indistinctly, he was able to make out the figure of a muscular man who had two horns on his forehead.

"Bebe, let's flee." Linley hurriedly shouted through divine sense.

"Right." Bebe didn't hesitate either.

Linley and Bebe flew directly towards the direction opposite from the muscular man, while at the same time Linley spread out his Blackstone Space. But just as they began to flee, Linley was shocked to find..."There are two people on this side!" Linley's Blackstone Space easily discovered...

That a white-robed man and a red-robed, jade-haired woman were standing on each side.

The white-robed man, the jade-haired woman, and the black-armored man were situated in a triangle.

No matter where Linley and Bebe fled, the three would still be able to attack in unison.

"The two of you, don't even think of running." The white-robed man swept them with a calm gaze. Although the Blackstone Space was applied to his body, the white-robed man just swayed slightly before counteracting the gravitational pull.

"Benfield!" Linley's face was exceedingly ugly to behold right now.

Linley never would have imagined that the person who had to stop them was actually the legendary 'Benfield'. He would rather encounter Hemmers than encounter this 'Benfield', because...Benfield was a supreme expert who was close to Beirut himself in power!

Beirut's book had one bit of advice for someone who encountered Benfield; flee! Think of nothing else, just flee!

"Bebe, quick, flee towards that red-robed woman. Hurry, flee!" Linley immediately made his decision.

They had to break out from the direction of the red-robed woman, then escape.

"Got it, Boss. I didn't expect it would be Benfield. What horrible luck!" Bebe recognized him as well. Over the past sixty years in the Planar Battlefield, Linley had already provided Bebe with all of the information regarding the supreme experts through their spiritual link.

"Swoosh!" "Swoosh!"

Linley and Bebe were like two bolts of lightning, shooting towards the jade-haired woman.

"Hmph, you want to flee?" The white-robed man and the black-armored man flew towards the red-robed woman at virtually the same instant. Clearly, they wanted to join forces with her and to stop Linley and Bebe.

Suddenly...

Linley and Bebe changed directions, fleeing towards the original direction.

The black-armored man, white-robed man, and red-robed woman reacted very quickly, hurriedly attacking towards and chasing after Linley and Bebe. Unfortunately, Linley had already spread out the 'Blackstone Space' around himself. Upon entering the Blackstone Space, Benfield and the other two weren't able to catch them at all.

"They actually aren't willing to give up." Bebe turned to give them a glance. He couldn't help but feel frantic.

"This looks bad." Linley had a hint of worry in his eyes.

This was because the white-robed man and the black-armored man had actually flown out of the Blackstone Space. They accelerated from the sides, seemingly planning to block Linley and Bebe from the front.

"Haha, Third Brother, Second Sister, watch how I'll block them." The white-robed man let out a loud laugh. His body moved as fast as lightning from the side, speeding past Linley and Bebe. And then, he suddenly charged into the Blackstone Space region, his body having transformed into white spots of light.

Spots of light?

No. It was multiple extremely thin white lines. Countless extremely thin white lines exploded forth from Benfield's body, appearing at first glance to be a dazzling radiance. Those countless thin white strands shot out from every direction, surrounding Linley and Bebe, giving them no way to flee.

Linley and Bebe's faces instantly changed.

"Bebe, careful. A soul attack." Linley hurriedly sent through divine sense.

"Bastard!" Bebe bellowed, and suddenly he flew out from the side.

Behind Bebe, an enormous illusion of a Godeater Rat appeared. Bebe's expression became cold and grim, and he stared unblinkingly at the black-armored warrior. At present, the black-armored warrior was less than two hundred meters away, and he was charging towards Linley and Bebe. He hadn't imagined that Bebe had a supreme technique such as this.

"No...!" The black-armored warrior was badly shocked.

He recognized this. This was Beirut's supreme technique!

"Not good! This is Beirut's innate divine technique!" Previously completely confident, Benfield's face changed, and he called out nervously, "Second Sister, protect Third Brother!" Bebe's innate divine ability was simply too fast, and he wasn't able to stop it. He knew...that right now, only his second sister was able to save his third brother.

Unfortunately, the red-robed woman was currently a bit too far away. They were unable to communicate by divine sense, only by voice, but how could a vocal shout make it in time? However, clearly the red-robed woman needed no warning. She too knew that her third brother had encountered a dangerous situation. Not hesitating at all, the red-robed woman's body suddenly transformed...

"Rumble..."

Suddenly, the red-robed woman's body disappeared, and instead, an enormous crimson serpent that was more than a thousand meters long appeared. When its coiled body appeared, it naturally was located in front of the black-armored warrior. Its enormous serpentine body easily protected the black-armored warrior's entire body.

"Rumble..."

Bebe's spiritual energy surged towards the enormous serpentine body, but it was unable to reach the black-armored man.

"Damn it, yet another one who has a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact." Bebe sent furiously through divine sense.

Linley, upon seeing this happen, had already guessed what the result would be. For the red-robed woman to dare act in such a way definitely meant that she was confident this would work against Bebe's technique. Otherwise, wouldn't it be as good as suicide?

"Bebe, quick, flee. Stop wasting time with them." Linley sent frantically through their mental link. Using his Blackstone Space at full force, Linley hurriedly fled.

Fighting against Benfield was a no-win proposition.

"Swoosh!" Bebe hurriedly followed Linley in fleeing at high speed.

Within the Blackstone Space, the three weren't able to catch up to Linley and Bebe.

"Damn it, I thought that it was only Benfield who would be formidable, but who would've imagined that the two he brought with him are so powerful as well? That horned fellow's material attacks are very powerful, while that red-robed woman actually has a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact." Bebe sent mentally to Linley, complaining. "These three together, with the powerful Benfield leading them...Boss, how are we supposed to fight against them?"

"Don't even think of fighting. Flee, and be thankful if we are able to." Linley said hurriedly.

The two fled at high speed.

However, Benfield didn't want to let the two of them off!

"You two!" The white-robed Benfield was now truly angry. He cared deeply about his little sister and little brother. "BANG!" Suddenly, a wild surge of energy blasted forth from his body, and an aura of light instantly appeared on his form. Benfield's speed suddenly increased dramatically!

"Whoosh!"

After charging into the Blackstone Space, although Benfield's speed dropped dramatically, he was actually still faster than Linley and Bebe.

Linley could clearly sense that this person was quickly catching up to them within the Blackstone Space; he was actually faster than them. Linley turned to look, and was badly startled. "Not good. This Benfield has gone crazy. For the sake of catching us, he's actually used up a drop of Fate-type Sovereign's Might!"

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 24, A Dead End? A New Beginning!

Benfield's speed was far faster than theirs to begin with!

Linley had the Blackstone Space, but Benfield had used Sovereign's Might. Now, his speed was still faster than Linley's! If they just let him chase like this, in just a few hundred meters, they would be caught!

"Hmph!" Linley willed...

...his Blackstone Space to suddenly change. The repulsive force transformed into an upwards gravity!

"Eh?" Benfield's body couldn't help but sway, and he actually shot upwards.

"My Blackstone Space isn't as simple as that." Linley thought to himself. At the same time, he began to frantically change the direction of the Blackstone Space's gravity, from up to down to repulsive. It must be understood that the power of this gravity was tremendous to begin with, and this sort of constant changing caused even Benfield to be affected tremendously.

Benfield couldn't help but feel furious.

"All of you, die!" Benfield's voice was icy.

"Whoosh..."

One translucent arrow after another shot out from Benfield's body, shooting directly towards Linley and Bebe. Ten translucent arrows sliced through the air towards Linley and Bebe. The speed of this soul attack was extremely fast. Linley and Bebe were only able to dodge very slightly, and four translucent arrows still shot into Linley's body.

As for Bebe, his body was struck by three arrows as well.

Shocked, Linley's face turned white. "Bebe, use Sovereign's Might!" Benfield's soul attack was described in the materials which Beirut had provided. It was extremely terrifying. Now that Benfield was using Fate-type Sovereign's Might to attack...one could imagine how mighty it was.

"Rumble..." An earthen-yellow aura instantly spread out from Linley's body.

Without hesitating at all, Linley used his earth-type Sovereign's Might!

Within Linley's mind.

"BANG!" "BANG!" "BANG!" "BANG!" Four translucent arrows struck viciously against the translucent membrane, but shattered like eggs striking against a rock. After shattering, however, they transformed into a large amount of translucent threads which spread out to surround the entire translucent membrane. And then, a large number of threads coiled about, attacking the flaw.

Countless invisible 'Voidwave Swords' shot out, clashing against the translucent threads.

"I have a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact and used earth-type Sovereign's Might, but the patch over the opening was still more than half-broken through." Linley was stunned.

Linley had rebuilt and repaired the patch over the flaw in his soul-protecting Sovereign Artifact after leaving the Abyssal Mountain. Including the sixty years they had spent in the Planar Battlefield, it had been nearly a century. A hundred years of work was half-wrecked in an instant, and that was after Linley had used earth-type Sovereign's Might. If he hadn't used earth-type Sovereign's Might, he wouldn't have been able to resist at all.

"How terrifying. Without this soul-protecting Sovereign artifact, even if I used Sovereign's Might, I probably wouldn't be able to endure." Linley's face suddenly changed. "Bebe!"

Bebe had been struck as well.

"Boss, I'm fine." Bebe's voice rang out in Linley's mind.

Linley discovered, to his amazement, that Bebe hadn't used his Sovereign's Might. However, somehow, Bebe had still been able to endure the blow despite not using Sovereign's Might. If he had only relied on a soul-protecting artifact, there was no way he should have been able to do this. "Can it be that what Bebe has isn't a soul-protecting artifact, but a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact? Or perhaps...Bebe's soul is very unusual and his soul defense is extremely powerful?"

This thought flashed through Linley's mind.

Right now, however, he couldn't ponder it in depth, because...things had gotten dangerous!

"Elder Brother!"

A deep voice rang out. The black-armored figure was currently standing atop the giant, coiling crimson snake, which was flying over at high speed. The giant crimson snake had already flown to the area in front of Linley and Bebe.

"Boss, the situation looks bad." Bebe said frantically.

"I know." Of course Linley knew the situation was bad.

The front was blocked by the giant crimson snake and the black-armored warrior, while Benfield was behind them. They could neither go forward nor go back!

"How is it that Benfield has two allies such as them? And they aren't even in the same alliance." Linley cursed angrily. In the course of his flight, Linley had discovered that Benfield and the other two weren't in the same alliance; Linley wasn't able to sense Benfield's badge's aura. Clearly, he was an enemy!

But Linley could clearly sense the auras of the 'red-robed woman' who had transformed into a giant crimson snake, along with the black-armored man. Clearly, they were on Linley's 'side'.

People on different sides who had joined into a single squad.

“Bebe, follow me to flee this way. Hurry!” Linley surrounded Bebe with his earth-type Sovereign power, flying at maximum speed. Linley and Bebe flew towards the side at high speed. By moving in this direction, Benfield wouldn’t be able to attack them easily.

The power of the Blackstone Space had increased nearly a hundredfold as well, and the terrifying gravitational power made it hard for Benfield to catch them.

“Swoosh!” Benfield flew out of the Blackstone Space. Within the Blackstone Space, he wasn’t able to catch up to Linley as well. “You two punks, listen up. Today, I, Benfield, will definitely kill you two. Definitely!” His furious voiced echoed in the air.

As for Benfield, he flew virtually parallel to Linley and Bebe.

The two were separated solely by the Blackstone Space.

The red-robed woman and the black-armored man were frantically trying to catch up as well.

“We can’t keep wasting time with this Benfield. Just now, he simultaneously attacked myself and Bebe, and I found it very hard to endure it. If he continues to entangle us and unleash powerful attacks, I won’t be able to hold.” Linley wasn’t worried about Bebe, because Bebe had been able to endure the attack without using Sovereign’s Might.

"Boss, we have to throw this guy off." Bebe sent mentally.

"I know." Linley suddenly turned to look at the nearby Benfield.

Behind him, an illusion of an enormous coiling Azure Dragon that was a thousand meters long suddenly appeared. The draconic head of the Azure Dragon hovered above Linley, staring at Benfield. In Linley's mind, his earth-type Sovereign power fused with his innate azure light, shooting directly towards the nearby Benfield...

Innate divine ability – Dragon Roar!

This innate divine ability, when used with earth-type Sovereign power, was extremely powerful!

"Eh?" Benfield couldn't help but feel his body slightly stiffen.

"Quick, flee!" Linley and Bebe hurriedly seized the opportunity to flee.

Benfield was a supreme expert who was particularly skilled in soul attacks, and he also had a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact and was protected by Sovereign's Might. He quickly managed to throw off the restrictive bindings.

"You want to escape?" Benfield saw Linley and Bebe's figures disappearing, and he hurriedly chased after them.

As Linley and Bebe flew away at high speed, Bebe cursed mentally, "Boss, that Benfield really is annoying. He has a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact and a defensive Sovereign artifact. There's no flaw to attack, and he's hard to kill, while his own soul attacks are so powerful. He really pisses me off!"

"I'm pissed too, but there's nothing we can do."

Linley had expected that that the breakthrough of his divine wind clone would arouse some interest, but he didn't imagine that it would attract the attention of someone as hard to deal with as Benfield. Benfield was definitely a perfect counter to Linley; he had two powerful Sovereign artifacts, giving Linley no way to fight back, and he was also skilled at soul attacks.

How could Linley deal with such a person?

Even by using his innate divine ability, 'Dragon Roar', the only thing Linley could do was buy himself a little time for fleeing!

"Damnit, Boss, he's chasing after us again!" Bebe said furiously.

Linley turned to look, and saw a blurry form fly over at high speed.

"This bastard really moves fast." Linley was extremely frantic right now, but since the two had both used Sovereign's Might, there was no way he would be able to outspeed this person. "It seems the only thing I can do is use my innate natural ability, 'Dragon Roar', to stop him yet again." Linley mused to himself, but right at this moment...

Linley suddenly discovered that two figures appeared in front of him. Only high class commanders would dare to hover in the air of the battlefield.

"This direction is closed off to you!" A calm voice rang out.

Linley and Bebe could sense the threat the person in front of them posed, and they came to a halt. Linley looked at the two of them and had the feeling...that these two were no less dangerous than Benfield.

The two were very odd. One was nearly four meters tall, his entire body a bronze color, exceedingly muscular and with a solemn, granite face. On the shoulder of this enormous, four-meter tall fellow, an adorable bald youth sat, chewing on some fruit. This youth was a size smaller than even Bebe.

But this youth...made Linley's heart tremble.

"The two of you, please help stop them. I, Benfield, will owe you two for it." Benfield said hurriedly.

Favors were hard to repay!

Benfield's words caused Linley and Bebe's hearts to sink.

"Swoosh!" Linley and Bebe fled towards another direction.

"Whoosh!" A figure suddenly appeared in front of Linley and Bebe. It was the adorable bald fellow who was eating the violet fruit.

"So fast." Linley felt shocked in his heart.

"Why are you in such a hurry to run?" The bald youth cracked his lips into a grin. 'Crunch' 'Crunch'. With two bites, he disposed of the fruit, then tossed the pit to one side.

"Elder Brother. The red-robed woman and black-armored man finally arrived as well."

"The two of you, don't even think of escaping." The red-robed woman stared angrily at Linley and Bebe. Linley and Bebe looked at each other, having a bad feeling in their heart. "Boss, three behind us, two ahead of us. If the five attack us together, there's no way we'll escape."

Linley and Bebe didn't dare to move for the moment.

Because...as soon as they moved, most likely the bald youth and the big fellow would attack.

"Thank you, you two." Benfield laughed.

Just now, the bald youth had blocked Linley and Bebe. Clearly, this made him feel as though he had been given face, but at the same time, Benfield also felt rather puzzled. "This youth and this big fellow...I've never seen them before. When did these two experts suddenly appear?" The movement speed the bald youth had displayed just now had caused Benfield to feel amazed.”

“Hey, Benfield, you got some problems with your brain.” The bald youth began to laugh.

Benfield’s face couldn’t help but change.

“Just because I stopped Linley didn’t mean that it was because I’m helping you.” The bald youth mocked.

“Linley?” Benfield and the other two looked towards Linley. Up till now, they hadn’t known who Linley was.

“You know me?” Linley stared in astonishment towards the bald youth.

The bald youth began to roar with laughter. “Alas, it’s only been a few years, but you no longer recognize me, your teacher.” The bald youth let out an emotional sigh.

“Teacher?” Linley and Bebe were both stunned.

Suddenly, a violet light sprang out from the bald youth’s body, instantly stretching to thousand meters, encompassing Linley and Benfield both. This powerful, yet familiar gravitational force caused a look of shock to appear on Linley’s face. “Can it be that you are...” In Linley’s mind, that adorable juvenile amethyst beast suddenly sprang to mind. That little juvenile beast who had called out in a high-pitched voice while pointing at and commanding countless amethyst beasts.

And Linley himself had, under the 'torment' of the juvenile amethyst beast, gained insight into the basics of the 'Blackstone Space'.

"You!"

Benfield frowned. "Reisgem!"

"Harhar...yes, it is me." The bald youth laughed loudly. "What, are none of you able to recognize me when I'm in human form? Oh, it makes sense...my control over my soul is too powerful. I can completely hide my soul's aura, and you aren't able to sense it at all. It is understandable that you don't recognize me. It is understandable."

The bald youth waved his hand. "Benfield, you turtle, hurry up and leave. Otherwise...I wouldn't mind playing a bit with you."

Benfield stared at Linley and Bebe, then clenched his teeth.

"Let's go." Benfield had no choice but to swallow his anger as he led his two companions to fly away.

Linley and Bebe both let out sighs of relief.

Reisgem rubbed his bald head, glancing sideways at Linley. Shaking his head, he said, "You are so useless! You learned my supreme technique, but were forced into such a sorry state. You really lost the face of myself, your teacher!"

"Teacher?" Linley didn't know whether to laugh or to cry.

"And you two really are stupid. If your power is weak, then in the Planar Battlefield, you need to join forces. Didn't you see how so many people are in groups of three or four?" Reisgem said casually. "Mm...how about this. The two of you, join my hunting squad. We'll join forces and roam about the Planar Battlefield. What do you say?"

"Join your squad?" Linley couldn't help but look towards Reisgem, as well as the big, towering fellow behind him.

"If you join us, in the future, we'll evenly divide the military merits we gain into fourths. We men should be straightforward and keep things simple!" Reisgem puffed his chest out as he spoke, as though he wanted to show what a man he was.

Linley couldn't help but laugh. Linley and Bebe exchanged glances, nodding slightly.

"We will join!" Linley said.

And so, Reisgem's hunting squad was expanded from two to four. Their strength had increased tremendously now!

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 25, Innate Divine Ability

Over the course of the past sixty one years in the Planar Battlefield, Linley had already gained a deep appreciation for the dangers it contained. If he wanted to simply rely on his own power to both acquire sufficient military merits as well as protect his life, it would be incredibly difficult! Now that Linley had joined Reisgem's hunting squad, Linley actually felt relieved.

"That's nice and straightforward! Let's go. We're preparing to find a place to rest, first." Reisgem said with a laugh.

As for that tower-like figure next to Reisgem, he didn't say a single word, just following behind.

"Reisgem became a Purgatory Commander long ago, and was able to frighten off Benfield!" Linley felt very certain of Reisgem's strength "In addition, according to the descriptions of Reisgem in Beirut's book, Reisgem is a supreme expert who ranks in the top five of Purgatory Commanders."

Reisgem's reputation was quite extravagant.

Not only was he himself powerful, his mother was the Redbud Sovereign!

"Boss, in the future, things will be much simpler for us. We'll probably be able to easily acquire military merits." Bebe began to laugh, and with a flip of his hand, he retrieved another red fruit, biting into it viciously.

The nearby Reisgem sniffed the air, then turned to look at Bebe and immediately laughed. "Bebe, right? This fruit seems pretty appetizing. Give me one?"

"Take it." Bebe, very magnanimously, pulled out another fruit and tossed it to Reisgem.

Reisgem's eyes lit up. Accepting it, he immediately began to eat, then nodded in praise. "Crispy and flavorful. Eating it is a pleasure. Thanks, bro." As he spoke, Reisgem stretched his hand out, and a violet fruit appeared. "This is something I like to eat. It only exists in the Life Realm. Have a taste."

Bebe and Reisgem, two people who both had childlike hearts, quickly began to grow close to each other.

Linley just smiled calmly while following them, as the tower-like big fellow just followed silently.

"Hey, Reisgem, I'm not just boasting. My innate divine ability, hmph, hmph." Bebe actually started to brag in front of Reisgem.

"Yours is pretty powerful, but mine isn't weak either." Reisgem said very confidently. "But Bebe, I have to warn you, no matter what, you can't use that innate divine ability of yours against me...I heard from my mother that the innate divine ability of you Godeater Rats is absolutely supernatural. Only someone with a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact or who is a Highgod Paragon can resist it; otherwise, there is no way."

"Don't worry." Bebe snickered. "We're on the same team."

Hearing this, Linley had a thought; it seemed as though Reisgem was rather afraid of Bebe's innate divine ability.

Reisgem took a bite of the fruit, then said helplessly, "I, Reisgem, am skilled in soul attacks! I don't even fear the soul attacks of Highgod Paragons, but that 'Godeater' ability of yours, Bebe...there's nothing I can do against it. That technique of yours is definitely the most powerful soul attack which a Highgod is capable of!"

Linley laughed as well. Reisgem's words were very reasonable.

Bebe's technique devoured the divine spark and destroyed the soul. It was indeed the most powerful of soul attacks.

"According to what my mother said, the innate divine abilities of divine beasts, in terms of fearsomeness...Bebe, you Godeater Rats are considered one of the top! As for the departed Azure Dragon, Vermillion Bird, and the rest of the Four Divine Beasts, their innate divine abilities were very terrifying as well! That Tree of Life from the Life Realm is also a monster...and the Abyssal Fruit Tree of the Netherworld, and...well, most of those extremely monstrous divine beasts all ended up becoming Sovereigns." Reisgem said with a praising sigh.

Divine beasts were divided into tiers of power as well.

Godeater Rats stood at the very peak of divine beasts, but so too did the Abyssal Fruit Tree. These divine beasts and their innate abilities were absolutely unnatural in their power.

"Hey, what is so powerful about those other divine beasts? Tell me about them." Bebe said excitedly.

Linley was intrigued as well.

Although they were walking on the surface of the battlefield, the four were very much at ease. Linley and the tower-like figure kept a constant watch on their surroundings, but clearly, there weren't many people who would be so ignorant as to try to attack their group of four.

"In terms of pure attack power, the 'White Tiger' of the Four Divine Beasts had an innate divine ability that was even more powerful than your 'Godeater' ability." Reisgem said with a sigh. "My mother said that when the Four Divine Beasts joined forces and combined their four innate divine abilities, it was utterly monstrous! They were an extremely powerful force amongst the Sovereigns, but unfortunately, they have now all fallen. What a pity."

Linley was stunned.

The innate divine ability of the 'White Tiger' of the Four Divine Beasts was even more powerful than the 'Godeater' ability? Unfortunately, he would never have the chance to see it. After all, not a single one of the successors to the Four Divine Beasts was an actual divine beast; they just carried the bloodlines of the divine beasts. Their innate divine abilities were only unleashed after undergoing Ancestral Baptisms, and despite that, were incomparable to those of their original ancestors.

"Even more powerful than we Godeater Rats?" Bebe muttered, clearly not willing to accept it.

Reisgem chortled. "There are 77 Sovereigns, and a number of them are divine beasts! In addition, these divine beasts are almost all unique ones. You'll never see them fight, but even if you do, there is no need for them to use their innate divine abilities. Of course you have no idea as to how terrifyingly powerful their innate divine abilities are. But of course...the combination of the four great innate divine abilities of the Four Divine Beasts is the most powerful divine ability of all. There is no question at all regarding this."

While chatting casually, they arrived at a squat dwarf mountain.

"Hey, Hom, make a cave for us." Reisgem said.

"Yes." The big fellow finally spoke.

Linley couldn't help but look over. He watched as the big, taciturn giant walked forward to the face of that small mountain, hundreds of meters high. The big fellow placed his giant, fan-sized hands atop the surface of the mountain, and instantly, the stone of the mountain seemed to turn to liquid, slowly flowing outwards.

In the blink of an eye...

A square cave had appeared, and the walls of the cave even had some patterned carvings.

"What sort of technique is this?" Linley and Bebe were stupefied.

"Don't be so shocked." Reisgem laughed delightedly, then strode inwards, with the big fellow following Reisgem into the cave.

"This big fellow is both mysterious and powerful." Linley sighed mentally in praise. In addition, Linley had never seen anything in Beirut's book regarding this big fellow.

"Whoosh!

Shortly after they entered the cave, a stone board actually slammed down at the entrance, completely sealing it off from the outside world.

The insides of the cave had actually been divided into several rooms, as well as a large living room.

"What do you think? Stunned by the technique of Hom, eh?" Reisgem laughed as he sat down on a stone bench within the living room. "Let me make the formal introductions. Hom's full name is Reihom Stonebreaker [Lei'hong]. He's my good friend, and a trusted Emissary of my mother. Don't be fooled by his silence; he's quite clear-minded about things."

A rare hint of a smile appeared on the face of the big, tower-like fellow.

Reihom Stonebreaker?

Linley glanced at him, then laughed and said, "Linley Baruch."

"Hello, Linley." Reihom's voice thundered out, seeming to thrum and reverberate in that giant chest.

"Haha, from today forward, the power of our hunting squad will have increased dramatically." Reisgem excitedly slapped the table. "Bebe, your innate divine ability, 'Godeater', is definitely the sharpest attack our squad possesses! Linley, how about your own innate divine ability? What percentage of the power of the Azure Dragon's original innate divine ability does it possess?"

Linley said with a calm laugh, "I can't give you percentages. All my innate divine ability can do is to make time move tens of times slower for the enemy."

"Good. Haha, wonderful!" Reisgem excitedly rose to his feet, his eyes glowing with violet light.

"Formidable." The big, towering fellow rumbled in praise as well.

"Linley, with this technique of yours, our hunting squad is going to be much more powerful." Reisgem was very excited.

Reisgem then grumbled unhappily, "This really pisses me off, actually. Over the years, Reihom and I encountered quite a few commanders, but they weren't able to beat us and so they immediately ran away. Even when I use my Amethyst Space, if they wholeheartedly focus on fleeing, I'm unable to stop them. But if, at the critical moment, you were to use your innate divine ability on them, and then Reihom attacks, then we'll definitely be able to kill the target."

Linley couldn't help but laugh.

He and Bebe both had extremely powerful innate divine abilities. Their only weakness was...their own, personal level of strength was rather lacking. Their attack power and defense power was insufficient. But after joining this squad, each made up for what the other lacked.

"Haha...with the two of you! Our hunting squad will be able to dominate this Planar Battlefield! If anyone dares gets close to us, into the range of that innate divine ability of yours, Linley, they will be finished." Reisgem was very happy. Actually, originally, he cared more about Bebe's innate divine ability; it was that, combined with the fact that he had a pre-existing relationship with Linley, that made him extend the invitation.

But now, he discovered that Linley's innate divine ability was definitely the most superlative of supreme support abilities here on the Planar Battlefield.

The Planar War would go on for nearly a thousand years. Linley's group was in no rush. They stayed in the cave for three days before heading out, and during these three days, Linley also learned from Reisgem a few things regarding the commanders of the Planar Battlefield.

"How many commanders would possibly dare to roam about the Planar Battlefield as they please? Only those with enough power would dare do a thing; otherwise, it would be lunacy."

"As for the weaker commanders, all of them are incredibly crafty. Many of them hide, not daring to reveal themselves, and rely on Deathgod Golems to scout. Upon encountering weak opponents, they'll fight; upon encountering strong ones, they won't come out."

"But of course, most form small squads of perhaps two, three, or even four or five. The most important thing in a squad is...mutual trust. Otherwise, if the squadmates begins to fight amongst themselves, that would be disastrous."

"Linley, Bebe, our target here in the Planar Battlefield is other squads! As for lone travelers? Heh heh. We won't be able to kill the powerful ones, while the weak ones will be hiding and not dare reveal themselves. It will be very hard to kill one of them. It is best we engage in group battles against other squads. That will be more exciting, and also make it easier for us to gain badges."

Reisgem and Linley discussed quite a few things, and Linley now understood that their earlier strategy of hiding and ambushing was a very low efficiency strategy. This was because virtually everyone who dared to travel about alone was exceedingly powerful. Fortunately, Bebe had been able to use his innate divine ability to kill Lancelot! Otherwise, Linley wouldn't have even a single badge.

Linley, Bebe, Reisgem, and the silent Reihom continued to move forward.

"Haha, there are very few people who know what the four of us look like. This will make it easier for us to catch some big fish." Reisgem chortled. "Linley, once the enemy reaches a certain distance from us, your sole mission...will be to use your innate divine ability and make it impossible for him to flee for a period of time. The killing part? Leave that to us."

"Understood." Linley let out a calm laugh.

Linley had to admit, his soul attack, amongst commander-level experts, could only be considered ordinary. When Linley was fighting alongside Bebe, they used a similar strategy.

"It's hard to find people though." Bebe stared at the surroundings and muttered.

The Planar Battlefield was always so dark and cold. Raising his head, Linley looked at the multicolored spatial tears in the sky. That cold, howling wind swept through the battlefield as the four of them stealthily advanced. They didn't hide, nor did they use Deathgod Golems; they just walked straight across.

Linley frowned.

"Reisgem, I think we'd best split up and maintain some distance from each other. Otherwise, if the four of us are always together, most likely the other commanders will not dare approach us and stay far away." Linley said.

"Split up? Then how would we coordinate?" Reisgem asked.

Linley laughed. "How about this. The two of us will divide into two squads. Bebe and I will separate, but the two of us have connected souls and will be able to sense each other's presences. Even if we can't see each other, we will still be able to find each other."

"Good idea." Reisgem nodded repeatedly.

"Then...right, Linley, you follow me. Reihom, you go with Bebe. Our two squads will maintain a distance of three kilometers. If battle begins, we'll be able to quickly cross this short distance." Reisgem made the arrangements, and Linley and Bebe had no objections. They immediately split up.

Linley and Bebe were able to sense each other's locations, and thus, they were both able to sense the direction the other was headed.

Less than half a day after they separated...

"Boss, we found a target." Bebe's surprised, delighted voice rang out in Linley's mind.

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 26, The First Battle

Linley's eyes instantly lit up.

"Reisgem, they found a target!" Linley sent through divine sense, while transforming into a blur that flew at high speed towards Bebe's location. "A target?" Reisgem was startled and delighted as well. His speed also increased, and he was actually a level faster than Linley. The distance of three kilometers was crossed in the twinkling of an eye.

But by the time Linley and Reisgem arrived, they discovered that Bebe and Reihom were just standing there.

"Bebe, what's going on? The target?" Linley had a guess as to what happened.

"That person was too crafty. As soon as I saw him, he immediately turned tail and fled instead of fighting back!" Bebe said helplessly, a bitter look on his face, while the nearby Reihom said in a deep voice, "The young master and I encountered this person not too long ago. As soon as this person saw me, he was so frightened he instantly fled."

"We encountered him before?" Reisgem shook his head. "Forget it. He can just consider himself lucky."

"As I see it, Reihom, you should slightly change your body. Your appearance is simply too easily distinguishable." Linley said with a laugh. The big fellow nodded slightly, then with a sound of acknowledgment, began to shrink from being a giant of four meters in height to an ordinary person two meters tall.

Reisgem winked and laughed, "Hey, Hom, in this shape, it's going to be quite hard to sit on your shoulders.

Linley immediately thought back to how, when he had first seen Reisgem, Reisgem had been sitting on the giant's shoulders.

"Reisgem, let's continue to head out." Linley said with a laugh.

"Right." Reisgem nodded, then gritted his teeth. "Hmph. Hom and I have been in the Planar Battlefield for many years now, but we only have a single gold badge. This time, we have to get some more." Reisgem and Reihom had both come from the Infernal Realm, and so belonged to the side of the Divine Darkness Plane.

They, too, had crossed the Stellar River and arrived on this side.

"You guys only have one as well?" Bebe couldn't help but laugh.

"Hmph, if I had your innate divine ability, I would've killed quite a few commanders already." Reisgem said with a sniff. "Enough, let's head out. Linley, the two of us will go this way!" Their forces separated once again. Because the geography of the Planar Battlefield was varied, with tall grass and hills everywhere, at a distance of three kilometers, it was generally not possible to see someone else.

"Whoooosh."

A cold wind howled drearily, and two figures advanced, one in front, one in the back. The leader was a white-robed man with long jade hair that drooped all the way to his waist. He had an astonishingly, breathtakingly beautiful face, and his skin was almost crystalline and translucent, as though he were a jade statue. In addition, in the center of his forehead, there was the seal of a crescent moon.

He quietly walked, casually glancing at his surroundings, as though this Planar Battlefield was his garden.

Behind him was a female warrior dressed in armor.

"Milord, should we be looking for a place to rest? All of those commanders have hidden themselves deeply. When they see you come, milord, all of them are so terrified they all scamper away." The brown-haired female warrior said with a laugh.

The jade-haired, white-robed handsome youth strolled forward and said, "Fine, then let's just look for a place up ahead to rest. Mm? It seems as though we don't need to be in a hurry to rest. We have some prey." The white-robed youth's lips crooked upwards, and the crescent moon in his forehead began to glow with green light.

Linley's group had been traveling for half a month now. Although they had encountered a few targets, when they took a close look, they found that the targets were just Deathgod Golems. They ran into five Deathgod Golems, but not a single person who had dared to reveal himself. But Linley's group wasn't discouraged at all.

After all, there were only so many commanders to begin with. Some were in the army camps, while others were in hiding. There weren't many who dared to roam around outside.

"Those supreme experts...all of them are indeed almost flawless." Linley chatted with Reisgem quite often over the course of their journey.

Only now did Linley realize...that Reisgem actually only had a single Sovereign artifact; a Sovereign weapon! Only, Reisgem naturally possessed an extremely powerful body and powerful soul. Although his body was inferior to Bebe's, his soul was far, far more powerful!

Reisgem's true body had 108 spikes atop it, and the Amethyst Mountains, which contained vast quantities of amethysts, also had 108 caves.

Linley's guess was..."The Redbud Sovereign and the Amethyst Mountains definitely have a unique connection to each other. Reisgem is pretty much the same! I can understand why his soul is so powerful. After all, the Amethyst Mountains are a place where countless amethysts are generated." The Amethyst Mountains also had a large number of amethyst beasts, whose bodies were exceedingly tough. Naturally, Reisgem's body was also tough.

On the whole, Reisgem was very balanced!

Even if he didn't have a Sovereign artifact, he would still be very powerful. Combined with a Sovereign artifact, he was able to dominate the Planar Battlefield.

“Those Sovereign’s Emissaries who acquire Sovereign artifacts use them to cover up their flaws.” Linley understood this principle.

While Linley and Reisgem made their way through the Planar Battlefield, staring at their surroundings and looking for a target, Linley suddenly stared towards the front...up ahead, two figures had appeared, one in front, the other behind. The two had discovered Linley and Reisgem as well, and they simply stood there fearlessly, staring at them.

“Oh, them?” Reisgem laughed.

“Occluar [Ao’ke’lu’wei’er] of the Life Realm?” Linley was startled.

Occluar was the genius of the ‘Divine Moon Elves’, and one of the highly ranked supreme experts of the Life Realm. He trained in the Edicts of Life, and was skilled in soul attacks. He could be considered a perfect counter for Linley!

“Bebe, we have our target. Hurry over.” Linley hurriedly sent through the soul bond.

Linley and Bebe were able to communicate at a very great distance.

Even here in the Planar Battlefield, where divine sense would only stretch for a hundred meters, he was still able to easily chat with Bebe at a distance of many kilometers. It must be understood that when Linley was not even a Saint yet and was trapped within the Radiant Temple of the Radiant Church, he was still able to communicate spiritually with Bebe. At that time, Linley wasn’t even capable of making his spiritual sense leave his body. This was one of the benefits of a spirit bond.

The Planar Battlefield. Atop the desolate earth.

Linley and Reisgem on one side, Occluar and his companion on the other. The two stared at each other. They paused slightly, but in the next instant, the two sides attacked without hesitation!

"Linley, use your innate divine ability against that woman!" Reisgem sent out excitedly, while at the same time, without hesitating at all, Reisgem transformed into a streak of violet light, shooting towards the front.

"Understood."

Linley hurried forward as well, flying towards the enemies at top speed.

"Hmph. They are looking for death." Occluar, seeing the two charge towards him, couldn't help but let out a cold laugh. He just stood there, waiting for them to come. He had planned to attack them, only because he was afraid they would flee. But seeing Linley and Reisgem attack, he naturally was more than happy to just wait. Wouldn't it be excellent to just sit here and wait for them to come and be killed instead?

Reisgem was in front, Linley was behind.

When Linley was at a distance of 150 meters from the enemies, Linley's eyes suddenly flashed with azure-golden light, while at the same time, an enormous coiling Azure Dragon Phantom that was a thousand meters long appeared behind Linley. That Azure Dragon head hovered above Linley, staring at its target...

The brown-haired woman!

"Eh?" The white-robed elfin youth, Occluar, was startled. "Azure Dragon clan?" He now realized that Linley was using this technique against his servant.

However, he still disdainfully stood there. "The innate divine ability of the Azure Dragon clan can at most impact the passage of time. I simply need to make it so that they won't be able to draw close for a short period of time. They can forget about harming my subordinates." The white-robed elfin man's body blurred, and he came attacking towards Reisgem!

Reisgem cracked his lips into a grin.

"Down!"

"BANG!" A violet light exploded forth from Reisgem, creating an enormous sphere of hundreds of meters across. A terrifyingly powerful gravity instantly took effect on the body of the elfin man, Occluar. Occluar suddenly felt as though his body had become countless times heavier, and he couldn't help but sink downwards.

As for Reisgem, he waved his hand out...

"Swish!"

A blurry light shot out, striking towards the brown-haired female warrior. The brown-haired female warrior seemed to have just recovered from the field of slow time. Faced with this attack, he wasn't able to resist at all, and the blurry light shot directly into her body. The brown-haired female warrior's body trembled slightly, and then collapsed to the ground.

"Whap!" A white badge floated out from her body.

"So she was this weak." Reisgem shook his head disdainfully.

"Reisgem!" The elfin man, Occluar, stood there staring coldly at Reisgem, his eyes seemingly filled with rage. "You killed my servant... what, do you think you are able to overcome me?"

"No, no, I don't think I can."

Reisgem chortled and just stood there, facing the elfin man. Reisgem knew how strong Occluar was. If Linley and Bebe weren't with him, there was no way he would be able to kill Occluar. At their respective levels... they wouldn't be able to really do anything to each other.

Occluar was only certain of who Reisgem was after Reisgem spread out his Amethyst Space.

Otherwise, if he had known in advance, Occluar would've retreated long ago.

"Although I don't think I can beat you, today, I really want that gold badge of yours, so...sorry." Reisgem chortled.

Occluar's face sank, but then he snickered as well. "Oh, so you want to kill me and get my gold badge? By relying on who? That Azure Dragon punk behind you?" Occluar didn't care at all about the death of his servant; after all, he had only brought the servant to the Planar Battlefield to attend to him. For battle, he himself was sufficient.

Occluar looked carefully at Linley, as though wanting to tell how strong Linley was. After all, it seemed as though no one within the Azure Dragon clan had ever been able to threaten his life.

"No, I don't have that power." Linley said with a calm laugh.

Linley knew as well that this Occluar was far more powerful than that elfin Elder of the eight great clans who had nearly killed Delia when he had sent her into that coma. In addition, Occluar had a defensive Sovereign artifact.

"Boss, we're here." Bebe sent mentally.

"Wait for your chance, then make your move." Linley sent.

"Reisgem, I don't have the time to waste with you. I'm leaving now." Occluar let out a cold snort, then turned to leave.

"Swoosh!" "Swoosh!"

Two figures landed on the path behind him, one tall figure and one short figure. It was Reihom and Bebe.

Occluar's eyes narrowed. As he saw it, there were far too few people capable of killing him. He didn't believe the four of them were capable of it. He couldn't help but grow rather angry as he let out a low snort. "Reisgem, there's no point in us battling. Your behavior, however, makes me very angry. Today, let's have a little fight. Let's see if your soul attack is stronger, or if mine is."

Linley's face changed.

He was able to see quite clearly how suddenly, two translucent wings suddenly appeared from Occluar's back, while at the same time, a dazzling green light shot out from the center of his forehead, instantly transforming into sixteen green crescent moons. In a place as dark as this Planar Battlefield, the light of these green crescent moons was quite dazzling to behold.

The sixteen green crescent moons shot out in a devilishly arcing line, striking towards Reisgem. Clearly, Occluar only considered Reisgem to be a threat, and didn't care about the other three at all. This wasn't his fault; he didn't fear any material attacks, and as for soul attacks...

That was his specialty. What was there to fear? Over the course of countless years, he had never suffered in a competition in the soul.

"Hey, elf punk, are you looking down at me?"

Occluar didn't even look at Bebe, but suddenly, from the corner of his eyes, he saw an enormous illusion appear. He couldn't help but turn to look, and as he did, the formerly completely confident Occluar had his face instantly turn white and his eyes become full of terror. "How...how can this be? That's..."

The enormous illusion of a Godeater Rat had appeared behind Bebe.

Innate divine ability – Godeater!

"Heh heh, even I can't block it. You? Block it? Go die." Reisgem, seeing this, laughed. He felt all the more certain that having Linley and Bebe join forces with him was an extremely wise decision."

With the Godeater technique having emerged, Occluar instantly slumped to the ground.

"Clink!" A gold badge fell out of his body, and a beautiful set of green armor also emerged, falling out of Occluar.

The first battle of their hunting squad...was a complete success!

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 27, A Change

Occluar's corpse just lay there on the desolate earth.

"He died!" Linley sighed in his heart. "Occluar was an expert on the level of Reisgem. Even Highgod Paragons would find it hard to kill him. Aside from a Sovereign acting against him, generally speaking, it would take a group of experts to kill an expert like him. But Bebe's innate divine ability, 'Godeater'..." Linley couldn't help but look towards Bebe.

At this moment, Bebe was by the side of the corpse of the elfin Occluar. He let out a snort. "You actually ignored me!"

"Haha, Bebe, you really are the perfect counter to soul specialists who aren't at the Paragon level yet!" Reisgem laughed while walking over, slapping his arm around Bebe's shoulders. "It seems we are a perfect match! Your soul attacks are number one, and while my material attacks aren't number one, they are still at the very top. With us joining forces, who can stop us?"

Reisgem glanced sideways at the corpse on the ground, then snickered. "Hey, experts, experts...this is what happens. Now that his most powerful body is dead, even if he has divine clones remaining, how much value could they possibly hold?"

Right at this moment...

"Hmph!" A cold snort rang out. Reisgem suddenly moved, transforming into a violet blur which streaked across the skies.

"What's going on?" Linley hurriedly turned to look as well, only to see Reisgem chasing towards a certain direction, with a black blur fleeing from him. Linley couldn't help but feel shocked. "There was someone else nearby? It seems just now, I was so focused on Occluar that I didn't even notice that someone was snooping nearby."

Linley carefully watched Reisgem pursue and attack the fleeing person.

Mid-pursuit, Reisgem suddenly emanated a violet light from his body, which formed into his Amethyst Space. The fleeing black figure immediately began to move much slower, after having been caught by it.

"Swish!"

A violet light shot out from Reisgem's hand, shooting forward like a meteor, so fast that the black blur wasn't able to dodge at all. "Crackle..." The violet light instantly traversed the less than hundred meters of distance that separated Reisgem and the black blur. The nearby space began to ripple like water, and some faint spatial cracks could be seen as well. With a 'bang' sound, the violet light drove into the black blur's body, and it immediately exploded, sending fragments shooting out in every direction, while that violet light finally solidified.

This was a fairly short, 1.5 meter long cavalry lance that was completely covered with a dark violet color.

But of course, it could also be used as a javelin, or for close quarters combat.

"A Sovereign weapon!" Linley understand that this was Reisgem's one and only Sovereign weapon. "When Reisgem throws this as a javelin, the power is as terrifying as this! It created spatial fractures!"

Linley clearly remembered how very minute fractures in space had appeared upon the lance being thrown.

This was the first time Linley had ever seen someone capable of causing spatial cracks appear, here in the Planar Battlefield! "This Reisgem trains in the Edicts of Destruction, and his understanding in its profound mysteries is formidable to begin with. He is also very strong as well. Matching that with a Sovereign weapon...it truly is as he said; his material attacks, amongst commanders, might not be the best, but it is at the very top."

Linley now completely understood how powerful Reisgem was.

Soul attacks and material attacks; he approached perfection in both. If one had to point out a weakness...most likely, it was that he was a bit afraid of Bebe. Bebe's 'Godeater' technique was the perfect counter to him, unless Reisgem went and acquired a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact. Unfortunately, although his mother was a Sovereign, she couldn't just give him another one; he needed to acquire more military merits.

"Motherf*cking...it's a Deathgod Golem!" Reisgem burst into a torrent of curses as he walked over.

"It is indeed a Deathgod Golem. No point in being angry." Linley said. "Who knows where the person behind it is hiding. After realizing how powerful you are, he probably fled long ago.”

“Each time I see a ‘target’, kill it, and find out afterwards that it was a Deathgod Golem, I feel pissed.”

Reisgem pointed towards the gold badge on the ground with one finger. “There’s only a single gold badge, while there are four of us. How should we divide it, everyone?”

Linley and Bebe couldn’t help but look at each other.

A commander badge!

To Linley, every single commander badge represented that he would be able to save another one of his family or friends! Linley deeply desired to acquire this commander badge, but Linley also understood that since the four of them had set up this four person hunting squad, they had to abide by the rules of it. He couldn’t demand that others give up their spoils of war to him as well.

“Linley, what do you two think?” Reisgem looked over.

As Reisgem saw it, there was no need for him to divide between himself and Reihom, as the two were very close to each other. Although Bebe and Linley had just joined the hunting squad, although they were acquaintances, they actually didn’t have a very deep relationship yet, and so he couldn’t just make a casual decision.

“Let’s do as we said originally.” Linley said with a laugh. “The four of us will divide any rewards equally. However, clearly, we only have a single gold badge here right now. How about this? Reisgem, you and Reihom will each have one share, while Bebe and I will have one share. I imagine you two won't have any objections to this, right?"

"Of course not." Reisgem laughed as well.

Reisgem and Reihom wouldn't quibble over military merits, much like how Linley and Bebe wouldn't either.

"As for this commander badge, either of our two sides can take it. If you take it this time, then we'll take the next one. If we take it this time, then next time, you'll take it." Linley said with a calm laugh.

"Fine then." Reisgem very straightforwardly reached out with his arm, snatched up the commander badge, then tossed it to Linley. "You two just joined our squad, so we'll let you take the first one. The next commander badge we get is ours though."

Linley accepted it, not standing on ceremony, and laughed while nodding. "Fine. Next one is yours."

Linley clenched the gold badge. He couldn't help but feel excited in his heart. "Yet another one!" Linley wanted to rescue his father, Yale, George, and Dixie, who had also died an unjust death. Dixie was Delia's one and only elder brother, after all. As for those who had died normal deaths, who had died deaths with no regrets, Linley didn't see the need to make them regain their memories.

After all, the likes of Uncle Hillman had lived for centuries, with a full house of children and grandchildren. They had lived carefree lives, then died of old age.

Since they had died with no regrets, why disturb them in their rest?

But as for Yale, George, and his own father 'Hogg', they had all died miserable, unjust deaths.

"Linley, it's just a commander badge. Is it really worth you having such a look on your face?" The nearby Reisgem couldn't help but smirk while speaking.

"Uh." Linley awoke from his trance. He immediately laughed, then collected the gold badge. "I was just thinking about a few things."

The nearby Bebe sighed emotionally as well, "Reisgem, you've come here to get enough badges so as to trade for a Sovereign artifact, but although the Boss and I also have come to acquire enough badges, our purpose is different. You don't understand how important these badges are to my Boss."

"Oh?" Reisgem immediately grew surprised. "What's so important?"

Bebe immediately began to chat in secret with Reisgem, while Linley just shook his head and laughed.

"Reisgem, what should we do with this Sovereign artifact?" Linley said.

"What should we do? Just toss it there." Reisgem said.

Linley and Bebe were both stunned.

"Toss it?" Bebe said, startled.

Reisgem gave it a casual kick, then snorted. "Of course. What, do you think we should take it with us? The Sovereign will come to reclaim it eventually, anyways. There's no point to taking it with us. In addition, Occluar clearly had other divine clones outside, so there's no way for us to use the Sovereign artifact either. There's no point to bringing it."

Linley and Bebe, upon hearing this, couldn't help but trade glances. Still, they had to admit that Reisgem's words were reasonable.

"Let's go. Keep moving." Reisgem said with a laugh. "Given the power of our hunting squad, haha...what have we to fear, here in the Planar Battlefield? Haha."

Linley couldn't help but to laugh as well. Their four man hunting squad once more headed out, dividing once again into two squads, traveling at a distance of three kilometers or so.

Next to a short hill within the Planar Battlefield.

A golden-haired, black-robed man had a look of astonishment on his face. "Who would have imagined that the news which has been circulating amongst the commanders about Beirut having come is false! The person who used that innate divine ability isn't Beirut; it is someone else. Aside from Beirut, there's actually someone else capable of that technique! This is terrible. And, by the look of it, that youngster with the straw hat is completely unrestrained and has no taboos, unlike Beirut who cares greatly about his status."

The person who had used the Deathgod Golem and had seen Bebe kill Occluar was this man.

"I have to tell my friends about this news!"

The golden-haired man gritted his teeth, immediately fleeing.

Most of the commanders in the Planar Battlefield, especially those who were within the same alliance, had some degree of pre-existing relationships with each other. They would all share some important news with each other. For example, when Bebe and Linley had arrived in the Planar Battlefield, that commander in the headquarters had planned to join forces with Linley and Bebe, and also provide them with some news. Only, because he didn't recognize the two of them, he didn't do it.

The news that the person who used the innate divine ability 'Godeater' was a youngster who wore a straw hat rather than Beirut quickly spread through the commanders at an astonishing speed.

At the sides of the Stellar Sea, within an alliance base. Within an estate formed from elemental essence, a man dressed in sky blue robes was walking forward with large strides towards the gates.

"Milord."

The guards at the gates immediately opened it. They all knew...that this person was a commander-level expert and a good friend of their own lord.

"Bray [Bu'lei], why did you return?" A red-robed woman within the courtyard was drinking some wine. She smiled as she glanced at the blue-robed man who had walked in. "Didn't you go out to kill a few commanders, so as to acquire a few extra badges?"

"Not anymore. I didn't expect that yet another variable came into play." The blue-robed man let out a snort, then sat down. Grabbing a bottle of wine, he raised his head and chugged it down.

"Variable?" The red-robed woman was puzzled.

The blue-robed man grumbled unhappily, "Wasn't there a rumor prior to this that Beirut had come? If it really was Beirut who had come, I wouldn't be afraid; Beirut and I have met before, and we can be considered to have something of a relationship. If I encounter him, he wouldn't act against me. In addition, someone as proud and arrogant as Beirut generally wouldn't lower himself to kill ordinary commanders, so long as they didn't offend him.

"It's precisely because I was under this impression that I went roaming about the Planar Battlefield! But who would have imagined that just now, a good friend of mine sent me the news that the person who used the 'Godeater' innate divine ability wasn't Beirut. It was a youngster wearing a straw hat!" The blue-robed man shook his head. "Forget it. I don't have a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact. It's best if I don't run around outside wildly. If I encounter that youngster, I'll die a damnably unfair death!"

Hearing this, the red-robed woman understood.

"There's a second divine beast, 'Godeater Rat'?" The red-robed woman also understood how grave this news was.

Amongst Highgods, there were many people who understood how important it was to gain a high degree of insight into the soul, and there were many who were extremely skilled in soul attacks and defenses. Additionally, even amongst Sovereign artifacts, soul-protecting Sovereign artifacts were the hardest to forge. Generally speaking, even if a Sovereign was to give an Emissary an artifact, it would only very rarely be a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact.

Thus, soul-protecting Sovereign artifacts were exceedingly rare.

Additionally, many commanders were extremely confident in their soul defense abilities. For example, the likes of Reisgem and Occluar would still be able to hold on, if just barely, against the soul attack of even a Highgod Paragon. As they saw it, there was no point to acquiring a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact. It was thus better to acquire a different type of Sovereign artifact.

But after Beirut suddenly rose to prominence, many people learned... that the most terrifying soul attack amongst Highgods wasn't that of a Highgod Paragon; rather, it was Beirut's innate divine ability.

But given the status which Beirut possessed, he would rarely lower himself to go massacre ordinary commanders.

Thus, no one was worried about him.

But now, yet another person had emerged who was capable of the 'Godeater' ability, a person no one knew. Those experts who were neither Highgod Paragons nor had soul-protecting Sovereign artifacts...they now began to worry.

They no longer dared to confidently wander outside as they previously had. Those who did go outside hid, using Deathgod Golems to scout for them.

"Haha...the appearance of this youngster.." The red-robed woman began to laugh. "There weren't many commanders who dared to freely wander the Planar Battlefield to begin with. Now, with people like you bowing out as well...most likely, the only people wandering the Planar Battlefield will either belong to extremely powerful squads or be truly invincible, unbeatable figures."

"Forget it. Wait for the final battle. I'll acquire the military merits during the final battle. If push comes to shove, I can even wait for the next Planar War to finish acquiring enough military merits. Where on earth did this youngster come from? After leaving the Planar Battlefield, I'll need to make some investigations." The blue-robed man said with a sigh.

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 28, Five Hundred Years

In the desolate wilderness, Linley and Reisgem, one tall, the other short, were advancing side by side.

“What’s going on? There’s almost no one around.” Reisgem couldn’t help but grumble and curse, his eyes filled with anger as he looked around. “It’s one thing for those weaker commanders to be hiding, but those fairly powerful ones...when Reihom and I were together, we ran into quite a few of them. But now, all of them are missing.”

The nearby Linley was silent.

Linley was beginning to feel frantic as well. He couldn’t help but look about at the battlefield, but there was nothing to see, not a single person. “The Planar Battlefield seems to have suddenly grown much more barren. There’s not many people visible now. When Bebe and I used Deathgod Golems to lure people in, we still discovered a few people.” Linley couldn’t understand either what was going on either. It had been three years since they had killed that elven male, ‘Occluar’.

It had been three full years, but Linley’s group hadn’t acquired another gold badge!

It wasn’t that Linley’s group had grown soft-hearted; they didn’t find any targets they could attack at all!

During these three years, Linley’s had encountered quite a few ‘people’, but all of them were either Deathgod Golems or truly supreme experts whom the four wouldn't be able to handle at all. But of course, there was also one time when they ran into another squad. That time, Linley's group had prepared to attack, because there were only two of them.

But just as they were about to attack and to call Bebe to come over, they discovered...that three more helpers rushed over to join the enemy squad.

This squad was actually a five person squad! And, in terms of power, two were on the same level as Reisgem. Once the battle began, perhaps they might be able to kill one or two of them, but their own side would also lose one or two people. It wasn't worth it.

"Linley." Reisgem suddenly said amusedly. "Hypothetically, if we were to be unable to acquire any commander badges during the remainder of the duration of this Planar War, then Reihom and I really would have suffered a loss! After all, we gave you the first commander badge."

Linley was stunned. All he could do was let out an awkward laugh.

"I'm kidding." Reisgem pulled out a violet fruit, then began to eat it. "How could we not acquire any more commander badges? Hmph...if push comes to shove, we can wait for the final battle of the Planar War. The four of us will join forces to kill a few more enemy commanders. Given our power, it won't be too hard if we join forces during the chaos of that battle and take advantage of some people." Reisgem was clearly quite confident.

Linley nodded slightly as well.

Although he now had two commander badges, he was still some ways off from his target.

"Boss, we have a target!" Bebe's voice suddenly echoed in Linley's mind. Linley's eyes lit up, and he grew excited.

"Reisgem, we have a target." Linley immediately flew towards Bebe's direction.

"Oh!" Reisgem hurriedly flew after him as well.

But by the time Linley and Reisgem got there, they discovered that Bebe and Reihom were standing in front of a black-robed figure, whose arms were already torn off, revealing a metallic color beneath his shattered shoulder blades. Bebe, seeing Linley and Reisgem arrive, turned and said resignedly, "Boss, it is a Deathgod Golem."

Linley and Reisgem were rather disappointed, but they had already been prepared for this.

After all, the number of times this had occurred over the past three years was far too many.

"This Deathgod Golem actually isn't fleeing." Linley began to laugh.

"Why flee? It won't be able to escape anyhow. It's just a Deathgod Golem, after all. I have plenty of these toys. In addition, I'm quite curious about the second Godeater Rat to appear in the countless planes of the multiverse." The metallic golem spoke out, and then looked towards Bebe with curiosity. "Might I ask, what is your relationship with Beirut?"

Linley was startled.

How did others know that Bebe was a Godeater Rat?

"How did you know?" Bebe said, surprised.

The Deathgod Golem said, "Of course I know. You used your innate divine ability several times, causing that Godeater Rat illusion to appear. Quite a few people have seen it already. At first, everyone thought it was Beirut, but afterwards, they learned that it was a youngster who wore a straw hat. When I saw you wearing a straw hat, I naturally recognized you."

"Ah." Bebe was rather stupefied. So it was his straw hat which had betrayed him.

"Now I get it! No wonder they all went into hiding and didn't dare to show themselves." Reisgem said angrily.

"Of course nobody dares to show themselves. Everyone knows what Beirut's temperament is like; even if he came in, we wouldn't be too worried. But this youngster who no one knows is also capable of that technique...nobody wants to treat their own life and future like a joke." The Deathgod Golem said casually.

Once one was hit by that technique, one would be finished. Even if they had divine clones in the outside world, they would still topple down from their honored position at the peak of the world of Deities.

"Hurry up and f*ck off. I won't wreck your Deathgod Golem." Reisgem said irritably. "This really pisses me off. It's hard for me to locate these people, but I didn't expect all of them would hide away. They really are cowards!"

It wasn't cowardice, though; it was caution.

The various commanders had all expended countless amounts of effort to reach their current levels of power. Even if they didn't acquire any military merits in this Planar War, they could still go participate in the next one. After all, it occurred every trillion years, with five battles each time. To them, military merits were secondary concerns; their lives were the most important!

Once their most powerful clones died, they would be finished.

"What should we do now?" The normally taciturn Reihom knew that the situation looked bad as well.

"What can we do?" Reisgem chewed on his lips. "It was such a rare stroke of fortune for me to get Bebe's assistance. I really wanted to dominate those people, but all of them went into hiding. Hmph...fine, then. Let's all find a place to rest as well. After we are finished resting, when the final battle occurs, we'll all emerge and slaughter them viciously! We'll acquire more military merits then."

"That's all we can do." Bebe said resignedly.

Linley frowned slightly. Although other commanders might not care too much about how many military merits they acquired, as they could acquire more in the next Planar War, Linley had no time to waste. Linley had to acquire sufficient military merits during this Planar War.

But, with so many people in hiding, what could he do?

"As I see it, let's go find a place to rest while at the same time, use our Deathgod Golems to lure people close. If we can lure in one or two commanders, that'd be good." Linley said.

"Right, makes sense. There are another eight centuries from now till the end of this Planar War. It really is possible for us to attract some people over the next eight centuries." Reisgem nodded in approval.

"Alright, enough thinking about it then. Let's go find a place to rest." Bebe was the first to move forward.

Linley's group casually selected a tall mountain. By relying on Reihom's supreme technique, they set up a cave estate. Linley's group of four thus began to live here peacefully. As for controlling the Deathgod Golem to attract people, this mission was handed over to Bebe and Reihom, while Reisgem completely focused on training.

As for Linley, naturally, he was more than happy to seize the opportunity to train hard.

The Planar Battlefield fell into a period of strange tranquility. Aside from a few rare squads of extremely powerful experts, virtually all of the other solitary commanders went into hiding. Most were waiting for the final battle! Some were waiting to leave after the final battle, while others were waiting to participate. Although the final battle would be dangerous, if the commanders were cautious, they would have a survival rate much higher than that of ordinary soldiers.

Five hundred years silently slipped away peacefully!

The tall, desolate mountain. Within the quiet cave estate.

Reisgem, Bebe, and Reihom were seated next to each other, drinking wine, eating fruit, and chatting casually.

"Linley really is too hard-working in his training." Reisgem couldn't help but glance outside towards a distant courtyard, where Linley was currently seated in the meditative position. "It's good to be hard working, but you have to take a rest." As Reisgem spoke, he took a huge bite of the fruit.

"My Boss? Of course he is hard-working when training. Naturally, his training speed will be fast as well." Bebe said smugly.

The habitually taciturn Reihom gave a rare nod and said, "This Linley's training speed really is astonishing."

"It really is. Nearly four centuries ago, when Linley woke up, he said that he had already begun to completely fuse four profound mysteries of the Laws of the Earth. And how many years has this kid been training for?"

Just two thousand years. How many years have I been training for? I've only fused five profound mysteries, myself." Reisgem said with a smirk.

Bebe just rubbed his nose, not saying a single thing.

In their four-person hunting squad, he was the only one who had no right to say a single thing when the topic of conversation was fusing profound mysteries.

Reisgem and Reihom had both fused five profound mysteries; naturally, though, this was related to the fact that they had been training for far too long a period of time. Linley had trained for just two thousand years, but had nearly fused four profound mysteries as well.

But him?

He hadn't fused a single thing!

"Hmph. Hmph. My innate divine ability is powerful though." This was how Bebe mentally consoled himself.

Right at this moment...

A terrifyingly powerful divine sense swept past their cave estate. Reisgem, Reihom and Bebe's faces changed. Even the training Linley opened his eyes, staring towards the outside in amazement.

"Whoosh!" Reisgem and the other two immediately flew to the outside courtyard.

"Someone was able to use his divine sense to investigate inside. How terrifying." Reisgem said in a low voice.

"It is either a Soul Mutate expert or a Highgod Paragon." Reihom said.

Linley was stunned as well. It must be understood that this cave estate was in the heart of this tall mountain. Even the corridor which led from the cave to the outside was a hundred meters long. For someone to sweep the cave estate with divine sense meant that the divine sense stretched to hundreds of meters. Linley had refined countless amethysts, but his divine sense only stretched to a hundred meters.

At such a great distance...

There were only two possibilities. A Soul Mutate or a Highgod Paragon. Of course, a Sovereign could also use his own sense, but Linley's group wouldn't be able to sense it at all if that had happened.

"Right!" Linley's group of four emerged from the estate and looked towards the corridor that led to the outside world.

In the vast, empty corridor, there was a single figure who was walking in towards them. This person was dressed in a long white robe, had white hair, and white brows. His white brows were nearly vertical, and his eyes were extremely long and slanted, and seemed to shoot out a freezing light. Just by walking forward, this white-robed, white-browed man made others feel an unconscious veneration towards him.

"Him!" Linley's face turned ugly.

This person had once roamed the Infernal Realm, and had been known as the 'Bloodwind' Fiend. The meaning of this nickname was that when the wind arose, blood would fly into the air, and people would die.

"Bayer [Bei'e]! What are you doing here?" Reisgem frowned, and a violet light emerged from his body.

"Oh, Reisgem." The white-robed, white-browed man let out a calm chuckle.

Although Bayer had adventured through the Infernal Realm in the past, the many experts of the multiverse all believed that Bayer had come from the Divine Plane of Wind, and that he was one of the supreme, king-like figures of that plane. Because...this person had already reached the 'Paragon' level!

"What has a Highgod Paragon come for?" Linley felt rather nervous.

Highgod Paragons were truly frightening.

"I didn't expect you'd come to the Planar Battlefield as well, Bayer." Reisgem said with a calm laugh.

"Originally, I had no plans to come here. The Planar Wars hold no meaning for me. However...I owed Occluar a favor." This Bayer said calmly.

"Occluar's most powerful Life-type divine clone was killed by you, so he asked me to help him get revenge!"

Bayer said calmly, "I don't like owing favors! And so...I came to the Planar Battlefield!"

The faces of Linley and the other three changed greatly.

So Bayer had actually come at the request of Occluar!

"You actually owed him a favor?" Reisgem frowned. Highgod Paragons had already reached the peak of the multiverse. It was very rare for them to owe someone a favor, but once they did, they would definitely repay it.

"The three of you don't matter. I only need to kill one person." Bayer calmly stretched out his right hand, his crystalline finger pointing towards Bebe. "Him! He was the one who killed Occluar. I will only kill him."

Linley instantly grew frantic.

Reisgem just laughed calmly. "Bayer, do you know what sort of relationship he has to Beirut?"

"Beirut?" Bayer said calmly. "Although he is hard to deal with...even if I do kill his grandson, what will he, Beirut, be able to do to me?"

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 29, Four Against One

In terms of fame, Bayer's fame had shaken the various realms countless years before Beirut had appeared. As a Highgod Paragon, he was someone whom even the Sovereigns would fight over to make an Emissary. After having been at the very peak of power for so many years, how could he possibly fear Beirut?

More importantly, deep in his heart...Bayer actually somewhat looked down upon Beirut.

Beirut hadn't reached the Highgod Paragon level, but because his body was simply too powerful and his innate divine ability was too monstrous, even if he encountered Paragons such as Bayer, Beirut wouldn't be any weaker. Many commanders, in fact, feared Beirut even more than Bayer.

"He just relies on his innate divine ability." That's what Bayer believed.

Within the mountain cave estate.

Bayer was there by himself, against Reisgem, Linley, and the other two. The atmosphere, however, clearly seemed to indicate that Bayer held the advantage.

"This is trouble." Linley was extremely panicked.

"Boss, if we can't beat him, then run! Perhaps we'll be able to throw him off." Bebe sent mentally. "But Boss, this Paragon is very terrifying. Don't try to hold on if you can't; what matters is preserving your own life."

Linley gave Bebe a glance. When Linley had been eight years old, Bebe had begun to follow him. Even if he had to die, Linley wouldn't abandon Bebe.

"Bayer!"

Linley stared at Bayer, feeling resentment in his heart. If he had the power that Beirut had, then today, he wouldn't be so helpless.

"What the hell is Occluar doing? He was killed in the Planar Battlefield, and then asked someone to get revenge for him? He really motherf*cking...!" Reisgem cursed, his violet pupils still staring fixedly at Bayer. He called out in a shrill voice, "Bayer, listen up. The person you want to kill belongs to my squad. It was my squad which worked together to kill Occluar. If you want to kill, then you'll have to kill all four of us!"

Bayer's forehead creased slightly. Those two forceful white brows seemed as sharp as knives, and a baleful aura began to gather between them.

"Reisgem, don't get involved!" Bayer said coldly.

To kill an entire squad? Kill all four of them?

No matter what, Bayer wouldn't have the courage to kill Reisgem. That was the only child of the Redbud Sovereign. If the enraged Redbud Sovereign truly wished to kill him, although he, Bayer, as a Highgod Paragon, had the ability to stay alive and flee, his only option would be to flee into a material plane. He didn't want to have to forever hide within a material plane.

"Occluar was killed by this Godeater Rat. Today, I am only killing him as well. The three of you, off to one side." Bayer's voice was fierce, and his narrow eyes seemed like the savage, sinister eyes of a lone wolf.

"Crackle..." Linley's body suddenly became covered with azure-golden draconic scales, while at the same time, his body moved slightly to stand in front of Bebe. Linley just stood there, staring at Bayer fixedly.

"Boss!" Bebe actually laughed.

He wanted to make Linley leave, but Linley's reaction was exactly what Bebe had thought it would be; over the course of countless years, during each life-and-death crisis, neither the two brothers had ever fled and left the other behind.

Reisgem and Reihom moved slightly as well to block in front of Bebe.

"Thank you." Bebe laughed.

"For what? We're bros. You and me, together, form a powerful team. We can't possibly do without you." Reisgem chortled. Bayer couldn't help but frown. The three in front of him had clearly already made their decisions. They clearly weren't willing to just think of their own good!

"I always hear people talk about how incredible Paragons are, but I've never given one a try." Reisgem snickered.

The other three were prepared to fight at any moment as well.

"Very well!" Bayer said calmly. His lips were very thin, making him look very mean and sinister.

Linley was staring at Bayer the entire time, but suddenly, Linley felt his vision grow blurry. The white-robed man that had been tens of meters away suddenly turned into a blur. Linley, Reisgem, and Reihom weren't able to react before the white-robed man's figure charged into their midst.

His speed was incredible! He was definitely the most terrifyingly fast person Linley had ever seen!

The wind element specialized in speed to begin with. One could only imagine how fast a Paragon of Wind was!

"Too fast. I couldn't see his body clearly at all." Linley's face changed. He couldn't even see the enemy movements; how, then, was he supposed to fight back or to block?

"Blackstone Space!" Linley had no other choice. The only thing he could do was to execute his Blackstone Space, and a blurry earthen yellow light instantly filled the courtyard. Not just him; actually, Reisgem was also badly startled by Bayer's speed, and had also hurriedly set up an Amethyst Space.

The two spaces intersected, but the gravitational power didn't multiply; rather, the stronger Amethyst Space held sway.

"Hrm!"

Bayer's terrifying speed suddenly slowed down.

However...

Currently, Bayer had already reached Bebe's side. Because of the Amethyst Space and Blackstone Space, Bebe was now able to clearly see that Bayer had already reached him. Bayer himself couldn't help but frown slightly as his speed slowed drastically, but he still struck out with the edge of his right palm like a blade, casually chopping down towards Bebe!

"Bebe!" Linley, Reisgem, and Reihom weren't able to rescue him at all at this moment!

It seemed like a very ordinary palm blow. That crystalline, almost jadelike palm landed towards Bebe, but the strange thing was, space didn't even ripple. It seemed as though the air itself had calmed down. Bebe was so terrified, his face changed dramatically. "Boss, I can't move! What a powerful restrictive force!" Bebe's body was unable to make any large movements; he was just barely able to raise that godspark dagger, but the powerful restrictive force made it so that he wouldn't be able to block with it, even though it was in his hand.

Bebe's voice rang out in Linley's mind. "What? Can't move?" Linley wasn't able to react in time.

Watching the palm blow descend, Bebe only had one option; using his supreme technique, his innate divine technique. An enormous illusion of a Godeater Rat appeared behind Bebe, and the effects of his innate divine ability, 'Godeater', immediately took effect on Bayer. "Even though I won't be able to kill you with it, at least I'll make you suffer a bit." This was what Bebe thought.

At the same instant he used his technique, Bayer's palm blow landed as well!

"CHOP!"

That jadelike palm chopped down at the center of Bebe's chest. With a tremendous 'BANG!' sound, a very low sound rumbled. Like a bubble being popped, when the palm blow descended, the formerly stilled space suddenly tore apart, and right in front of the palm, a terrifying spatial rip that was multiple meters long suddenly appeared!

This was the Planar Battlefield!

And yet, such an enormous spatial tear had been created!

"BANG!" Without being able to resist at all, Bebe was knocked flying backwards, smashing into the rocky mountainside. With a 'boom' sound, the rocky mountain terrace suddenly had a meter-wide crevice appear, and the entire side of the mountain cracked as large amounts of rubble flew out.

As for Bebe, the force of this palm blow had knocked him completely out of the hundred-plus meters thick mountain.

"Hurry up, let's go!" Reisgem hurriedly sent mentally.

"Swoosh!" "Swoosh!" "Swoosh!" Linley, Reihom, and Reisgem flew out through the 'tunnel' at almost the same instant towards the outside.

Bayer didn't stop them. He just laughed calmly, and then his body swayed before he too disappeared from the courtyard.

As Linley's group of three flew out, then saw the distant Bebe. The clothes Bebe wore, formed out of energy to begin with, had all blown apart, and a terrifying, clearly visible white scar was on Bebe's chest. Linley, seeing the situation, couldn't help but feel relieved. "Bebe's material defense truly is formidable. Bayer, although powerful, isn't as powerful as the Sovereign had been."

A casual blow from one of the branches of the Abyssal Fruit Tree had caused Bebe's skin to split and his flesh to tear.

Clearly, Bayer was a bit weaker.

However, that palm blow of his had actually caused Bebe to be bound and unable to move, and had even created such an enormous rift in space. One could imagine how terrifying the attack power had been. Fortunately, the recipient of that palm-edge blow was Bebe; if it had been someone else, that person probably wouldn't have been able to take a single blow.

"That freak. We aren't able to hold him off. Let's hurry and flee." Reisgem hurriedly sent through divine sense.

In the past, they had heard talk of how formidable Highgod Paragons were, but hadn't personally seen one in action. That simple blow, however, had caused Reisgem to no longer have any confidence to fight. His material defense wasn't as monstrous as Bebe's.

"The material defense of Godeater Rats really lives up to its name." A calm voice rang out.

Linley and the other three were stunned. They realized that Bayer's white-robed figure had appeared in midair. Linley's heart sank. "It makes sense. Given the power which Bayer displayed, even if we use Sovereign's Might, we would at most be able to fight on par with him. There's no way we would be able to escape his attacks."

Bayer's speed was a source of tremendous pressure for the others.

"My material attacks in the wind-style and the Destruction-style can both be considered to be at the pinnacle." Bayer calmly swept the four with his gaze. "I didn't expect that blow of mine wouldn't be able to break through the defense of a Godeater Rat. Very well, then...Godeater Rat kid, I rarely use my Sovereign weapon. Today, I will use my Sovereign weapon to send you on your way. I refuse to believe that your defense will be able to withstand my most powerful sword attack!"

Linley, Bebe, Reishom, and Reisgem were all stunned.

Bayer waved his hand, and within it, a longsword that was as thin as the wings of a cicada appeared, glowing with green light.

Linley's heart clenched. Bayer wasn't a divine beast; his body was ordinary. But by relying on his understanding of the profound mysteries as a Paragon, Bayer's casual palm blows had already reached such a terrifying level. If he then used a Sovereign artifact to use his most powerful attack...would Bebe's defense still be able to withstand it? Linley didn't have any confidence in that at all!

"Sovereign weapon?"

Reisgem's eyes instantly turned as round as the moon, and then he shouted explosively through divine sense, "Flee, quick, flee!!!" Reisgem's body once more emanated his Amethyst Space, covering Linley, Bebe, and Reihom. Immediately, their four-person squad, ignoring all else, frantically fled towards the Stellar River.

"Fleeing?"

Bayer let out a disdainful laugh. Flee by relying on speed? That was impossible.

"Whoosh!" Bayer's body flickered, and he immediately moved to pursue.

A dazzling Amethyst Space spread out. Linley, Reisgem, and the other two were at the center of the Amethyst Space and continue to flee into the distance. Reisgem also helped Bebe increase his speed.

"Reisgem, we are just going to flee, like this?" Linley sent frantically through divine sense.

"The only method now is to flee to the Stellar River. And then, we'll find a safe path through the Stellar River to the center, then hide in one of the giant floating boulders. At that time, when Bayer comes over, we'll knock him directly into one of the spatial tears. We won't be able to kill him, but we'll be able to make him disappear forever within the spatial tear." Reisgem sent mentally. "However...I don't know if we'll make it to the Stellar River."

Linley had no other ideas either. Reisgem's method was indeed their only option.

"Haha...Reisgem, using your Gravitational Space against me is useless." Wild, confident laughter rang out in Linley's mind.

Right at this moment...

Linley and the other three, who were keeping a close watch on Bayer at all times, realized that he had flown in front of him. A wild burst of energy blasted forth from Bayer, instantly causing an area within a thousand meters to instantly begin to spatially distort as the wild energy waves lashed about.

Linley's group of four could feel the effects of this technique as space itself seemed to constrict them.

“How is this possible!” Linley also trained in the Laws of the Wind, and knew that of the nine great profound mysteries, there were the Profound Mysteries of Spatial Wind, but that sort of restrictive power was negligible for Highgods. But who would have imagined...that when a Highgod Paragon used this technique, even Reisgem would be affected.

Their speed slowed dramatically!

“Swoosh!” Bayer flew directly into the Amethyst Space. Although his speed dropped, he was still much faster than Linley’s group of four now was while under the spatial binding.

Bayer flew at high speed towards Bebe, but he lowered his head to look down at the Sovereign artifact in his hand, as though it was a dear lover of his. Bayer very casually swung out with his Sovereign weapon, and instantly, the already distorted space tore apart like a piece of rotten cloth!

A terrifying spatial tear that was a hundred meters long suddenly appeared. This hundred meter long spatial tear was a rip in space that was a finger thick. Following the movements of the Sovereign weapon, it landed directly on the body of Bebe, who had been unable to dodge. At the same time, the Sovereign weapon shot out in every direction with arrow-like rays of energy, each of which caused minute spatial fractures.

“Slash!” A thin fracture slashed past Linley, who wasn’t able to dodge.

It very easily tore through Linley's draconic scaled defense. A large chunk of flesh and bone was directly torn from Linley's arm.

But Linley's attention was completely focused on Bebe. His face changed dramatically. "Bebe!" Linley was only hit by the side effects of the attack, but Bebe was hit by the Sovereign weapon head on!

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 30, Canteen?

“What a terrifying fellow!”

Bebe was utterly frightened as well. That palm-edge blow from earlier had already made him feel great danger. Bebe himself knew that this full-force sword blow from a Sovereign weapon was something which Beirut might be able to deal with bare-handed, were he here, due to his insights into the profound mysteries. But Bebe was no Beirut! He definitely wouldn't be able to take it head on so easily.

“My insights into the Laws are far too inferior to Grandpa's! I'd best not try to push it.” Bebe didn't hesitate at all. As that sword chopped down, within his sea of consciousness, an adorable little Godeater Rat instantly activated a drop of Destruction-type Sovereign's Might. Bebe had two bodies as well...

One was his divine darkness clone, while the other was his Saint-level original body. Only, the Saint-level original body remained in the shape of a Godeater Rat; it was much like how Beirut's three sons all had original bodies that were in the form of rats. Normally, the original bodies were merged into the divine clones. Bebe understood that if his divine darkness clone died, his original body would unquestionably die as well.

“BOOM!”

A black light emerged, covering Bebe's entire body as he was once more knocked away at high speed, smashing viciously into the ground. With a “BANG” sound, a deep crevice appeared in the earth. But his body wasn't damaged at all.

"Thank goodness." Linley let out a sigh of relief.

Reisgem, Reihom, and Linley all flew towards Bebe at high speed.

"Bebe." Linley hurriedly helped Bebe up.

"Heh heh, Boss, I'm fine. He wasn't even able to scratch me." Bebe chortled. However, Linley, Reisgem, and Reihom didn't relax their vigilance; Bebe had used up a drop of Sovereign's Might in order to escape the earlier tribulation. Linley couldn't help but to look back towards Bayer, who stood there not moving.

Bayer was looking at Bebe with curiosity.

"Sovereign's Might?" Bayer wasn't angry at all. "Godeater Rats really are an incredible type of divine beasts. One worthy of me using a drop of Sovereign's Might as well!"

"BANG!"

A faint green light suddenly erupted forth like flames from Bayer's body, but then retracted back into it. Not a single hint of it was dissipating! Clearly, as a Highgod Paragon, he could perfectly control Sovereign's Might. This scene caused Linley and the other three to feel terror in their hearts.

"He is using Sovereign's Might as well!" Linley called out mentally in alarm.

“Not just a Sovereign weapon, but also using Sovereign’s Might!” Reisgem was so angry, he wanted to curse. For Bayer to do this was absolutely too abusive!

Bayer actually had a hint of a smile on his lips. He looked at Bebe. “To let me use both a Sovereign weapon and Sovereign’s Might...even in death, you should feel proud.” After speaking, his body once more flickered forward. Although Reisgem’s Amethyst Space was always active, Bayer’s speed was still so fast...that Linley and the other two weren’t able to block at all.

Although no aura of Sovereign power emanated from Bayer’s body, he clearly had already used it.

“He used Sovereign’s Might. Bebe won’t be able to hold on.” Linley worried mentally.

Immediately, an enormous coiling Azure Dragon Phantom appeared in the air behind Linley. At this critical moment, not hesitating at all, Linley used his own innate divine ability...Dragon Roar!

Bayer’s soul heard the roar of the dragon as well.

Unconsciously, Bayer’s body paused for a moment, but afterwards, Bayer’s speed returned to normal. That bit of influence was negligible for him. Linley felt sourness as well. “Bebe’s innate divine ability isn’t capable of doing anything to a Highgod Paragon, and it seems this technique of mine is also negligible for him.”

Linley had a certain feeling...

That when he used this technique against Bayer, it was like he was an ant trying to shake a tree. Perhaps this was a very special ant, but the only result was that the leaves of the tree trembled slightly.

“BEBE!!!!” Linley felt agonized at his helplessness, and his soul howled in misery.

“SHKREEEEEEEE!” An exceedingly ear-piercing howl rang out, carrying a certain wild savagery.

“BANG!”

Space twisted and coiled about, and then multiple spatial tears appeared. Bebe was once again knocked backwards, blood flying everywhere. Seeing the brilliant blood, Linley’s face instantly turned white. Before this, he had still held some hope...but Linley didn’t actually despair yet either.

Because he could still feel Bebe’s existence!

“Haha, you want to kill me!? Grandpa’s words really were correct! We Godeater Rats have the number one defensive strength in all the planes of the multiverse! If I don’t use Sovereign’s Might, my body is like a divine spark. After using Sovereign’s Might...there is no Highgod capable of killing me!” Bebe called out, seeming to be rather crazed.

Linley discovered, to his astonishment, that although Bebe's chest did indeed have a wound carved into it, with fresh blood flowing...the wound wasn't too deep.

"How can that be?" Bayer stared at Bebe in astonishment.

His full strength sword blow still wasn't able to kill him?

"Hmph. My muscles and my skin are equally tough, but the hardest part of my body is my bones! The bones throughout my body are infused with a large amount of divine spark essence! Haha...just now, I was afraid, because in the past, when that Sovereign badly injured me with one blow, my bones were broken. I thought that after using Sovereign's Might and with a Sovereign weapon, your attack would be comparable to that Sovereign's attack." Bebe boasted.

Although Beirut had previously told Bebe how terrifyingly great the defensive power of a Godeater Rat was, and although Bebe had always been very self-confident...

At the Abyssal Mountain, his defenses were easily shattered by the Abyssal Fruit Tree, and even his bones had been broken. This caused Bebe to begin to doubt himself.

As he saw it...

A Highgod Paragon, using a Sovereign weapon with Sovereign's Might, should be comparable to a casual blow from a Sovereign. But now, it seemed, that although the attack power of a Highgod Paragon was indeed terrifying, compared to a Sovereign, he was still vastly inferior.

“Haha...formidable, formidable!” Reisgem began to laugh delightedly as well. “Bebe, you thought just because he used Sovereign’s Might and a Sovereign weapon that he would be comparable to a Sovereign? Then you are ridiculously mistaken. Highgods, compared to Sovereigns, are far, far too weak. Bebe, what makes Sovereigns so powerful isn’t their Sovereign artifacts or their Sovereign power; rather, it is their Will! An attack that contains a Sovereign’s Will is a truly terrifying attack.”

Linley and Bebe were both stunned. A Sovereign’s Will?

Will was something that was incorporeal; how could it be powerful?

“Aside from Highgod Paragons, if a Sovereign wishes to kill a Highgod, there’s no need to even lift a finger. The Sovereign only needs to wish it. That’s what a Sovereign’s Will is!” Reisgem laughed loudly. “A Highgod that uses Sovereign’s Might and a Sovereign using Sovereign’s Might... the difference in power is more ten thousand times, because of the Will of the Sovereign!”

Linley now understood.

He had heard long ago that a Sovereign could kill a Highgod with but a thought, and that only Highgod Paragons could slightly resist. At that time, Linley hadn’t understood...how could a Highgod be killed by a mere thought? Why?

So it seemed...that there was something known as the 'Sovereign's Will' which existed.

"The Will of a Sovereign is this powerful?" Linley didn't understand why.

But Linley didn't have time to ask Reisgem.

Because at this moment, Bayer's face finally grew solemn. He stared coldly at Bebe. "Godeater Rats refine divine spark essences to strengthen their own body. As far as material defenses go, amongst all the varied divine beasts, you Godeater Rats truly can be ranked number one. I admit that I won't be able to injure you with material attacks. Then...listen to a song of mine!"

As soon as his words fell...

Linley, Reisgem, Bebe, and Reihom began to hear a certain melody in their minds. That song constantly echoed throughout their mind, carrying with it a strange, magical power. When he first heard it, Linley was able to resist for a second or two, but after that, he became entranced by the music and entered a dazed state.

And...as soon as he heard that song...

Linley's divine clone had immediately, unstintingly, used up a drop of water-type Sovereign's Might! Linley's earth-type Sovereign's Might had been used up long ago, and he only had two drops of water-type Sovereign's Might. By using up a drop now, he would only have one more remaining.

Of the group of four, only a single person immediately regained his faculties after being momentarily dazed.

That was Reisgem!

His accomplishments in the soul were exceedingly great. Linley, Reihom, and Bebe had all entered a dazed state, but fortunately enough for Linley and Reihom, Bayer didn't want to kill them, just make them dazed. As for Bebe...just as his soul entered a dazed state, he also began to suffer a strange soul attack.

Logically speaking...

In a dazed state, one wouldn't know to use Sovereign's Might to resist. Generally speaking, when faced with the soul attack of a Highgod Paragon, the result would be death.

However...

"Bayer, enough." Reisgem growled, launching a soul attack towards Bayer as well.

"How can this be!" Bayer paused his attack as well.

Linley, Bebe, and Reihom regained their mental clarity, and Linley felt cold sweat drip down his back. "Even after using Sovereign's Might, I wasn't able to resist. However, I didn't die. It seems he didn't attack."

Linley understood that without him actively controlling his damaged soul-protecting Sovereign artifact, it definitely wouldn't be hard for this person to kill him.

But he hadn't died. Clearly, Bayer didn't want to kill him.

"How can this be? You...you have a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact?!" Bayer looked at Bebe.

"Uhh..." Bebe shook his head. "I just have a soul-protecting artifact."

"Impossible! A soul-protecting artifact capable of blocking my 'Soul Nirvana' melody? You...you definitely have a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact!" Bayer wasn't willing to believe it. Bayer now had finally lost his earlier confidence. He stared at Bebe. "How can you have a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact? You are a Sovereign's Emissary?"

Bebe shook his head.

"Soul-protecting Sovereign artifact? Grandpa told me that it was a soul-protecting artifact." Bebe didn't understand it.

Linley finally relaxed. Whether it was a soul-protecting artifact or a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact...clearly, Bayer wasn't able to do anything to Bebe. Although Bayer was terrifying, and most likely would be able to easily kill Linley, Reisgem, or Reihom...

He wasn't able to kill Bebe!

Bebe's material defense and soul defense had both reached monstrous levels.

"According to legends, the Bloodridge Sovereign bestowed a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact to Beirut. I didn't expect that he would actually transfer it to you." Bayer laughed coldly. Everyone knew that Beirut had a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact, but Bayer now believed that Beirut had actually transferred the soul-protecting Sovereign artifact to Bebe.

"Hey, what else are you going to die? You aren't able to kill Bebe. Aren't you going to leave?" Reisgem snorted.

Bayer took a deep breath, regaining his calm.

"If I'm not able to kill him, then I...will push him into a region of chaotic space!" Bayer said coldly, while stretching out his hands. He was standing in midair, and suddenly, with him at the center, multiple strands of faint green energy ribbons sprang out from his hands. Those hundred-plus hundred-meter energy ribbons all coiled towards Bebe.

"Push him into chaotic space?" Linley was stunned as well.

"ROAAAAAAAAAAR!"

Reisgem suddenly let out an absolutely enraged growl, and behind Reisgem, the illusion of an enormous monster that was over a hundred meters tall suddenly appeared. This monster had 108 spikes on its back, and was a monster that Linley was very familiar with; it looked just like the 'juvenile amethyst beast' Linley had previously seen.

Instantly, 108 rays of violet light exploded forth from Reisgem's body, each filled with black-colored Sovereign power.

With Reisgem at the center, those rays of violet light completely covered and surrounded Linley, Bebe, and Reihom, actually forming a black, spherical cocoon which was covered with violet light.

"Amethyst Rampart!" Bayer frowned.

The Amethyst Space was actually just an innate supreme technique of Reisgem's; in truth, it couldn't be considered a 'divine ability'. Divine abilities consumed a tremendous amount of spiritual energy! This 'Amethyst Rampart' was Reisgem's true, innate divine ability! Once this technique appeared, there was no way for Bayer to break through the Amethyst Rampart for now as well.

Moments later...

The Amethyst Rampart disappeared. The Amethyst Rampart couldn't actually be sustained for very long.

"Reisgem, it seems you insist on protecting this Godeater Rat." Bayer said coldly. "Fine, then. I admit that with this Godeater Rat having used Sovereign's Might, I'm unable to kill him. However...once his Sovereign's Might dissipates, I refuse to believe that he'll be able to escape my sword again. Given the speed of my sword, I trust that you won't be able to block at all.”

Linley frowned.

Bayer’s words were reasonable. Although Bebe had used a drop of Sovereign’s Might, it was constantly dissipating. Soon, it would be completely gone.

Bebe’s material defense was indeed strong, but when he used Sovereign’s Might, his defense was still breached. He had to rely on his bones to take the blow head on.

But if Bebe didn’t have any Sovereign’s Might left, while Bayer was still able to perfectly control his own Sovereign’s Might without wasting it... given that Bayer would be able to use it for a very long time, when Bebe’s ran out, would Bebe be able to block?

“Boss! I’ve been eating divine sparks for many years, but the number that I’ve eaten isn’t enough yet. My bones aren’t as tough as Grandpa’s yet. If I don’t use Sovereign’s Might, while that Bayer uses both a Sovereign weapon and Sovereign power, my skull probably wouldn’t be able to resist that sword of his.” Bebe sent frantically.

Linley began to feel nervous as well.

Bebe’s Sovereign power was constantly dissipating. But Bayer? Not a hint of it was leaking out. How were they supposed to compete against him?

"Eh?"

Reisgem stared. "What...you want to compete with ME in seeing who has more Sovereign's Might?"

Bayer was startled.

Reisgem turned towards Linley and Bebe and laughed, "Linley, Bebe, I forgot to tell you something after you two joined my hunting squad. Since you two are members of my squad now, I, as the captain, should treat you without holding anything back." As he spoke, Reisgem made a tossing motion, and two rays of violet light flew towards Linley and Bebe.

Linley and Bebe immediately stretched their hands out to receive it.

Linley lowered his head to look at it. It was a 'canteen' that was completely made out of carved amethysts. This sort of canteen, although quite intricately designed, was familiar to Linley. When he had been in the Yulan continent, ordinary soldiers would always carry these types of canteens with them.

"Is this a water canteen?" Linley was puzzled.

Linley reached out with his divine sense, passing through the obstruction of the amethysts, to inspect the insides of the canteen. And when he did...he was badly shocked.

"Gaaah! Destruction-type Sovereign's Might?! This...an entire canteen?!" Bebe called out in shock as well.

Linley was similarly stunned.

He, too, realized that this canteen was actually filled with liquefied Sovereign's Might. An entire canteen full of it!

"Take it. The young master gave me a canteen as well." Reihom said.

Linley and Bebe stared towards Reisgem, stunned.

Reisgem snickered, then waved his hand. "Just take it. It's just Destruction-type Sovereign's Might. My mother has plenty of it. She has an entire lake filled with it, so I filled a few canteens with it. I have plenty. You keep it. Those Redbud Army soldiers have a salary. You guys are my squadmates, and this can be considered your salary." To Reisgem, the only son of a Sovereign, of course this was something that didn't matter much.

Sovereigns agreed amongst themselves to only give a single Sovereign artifact to Deities, but there was no limit to the amount of Sovereign's Might they could bestow.

"A...canteen?" Linley felt his head grow dizzy.

Sovereign's Might was normally measured out by the 'drop'.

"A canteen of Sovereign's Might? How many drops is that?" Linley couldn't even imagine it.

Bayer felt a headache as well. Good heavens. He was a Highgod Paragon, true, but although a Sovereign might give him some Sovereign's Might, the Sovereign naturally wouldn't treat him as she might treat their her own son, filling an entire lake with Sovereign's Might and letting her son take as much of it as he wanted. "Compete with the son of a Sovereign in Sovereign's Might?" Bayer felt resigned.

Reisgem rubbed his nose. "Bayer, my divine clone had already informed my mother of what is going on here. Although my mother won't be able to make it here immediately, she can arrange for some people to come. I imagine that as time goes on, my mother will personally come to the Planar Battlefield."

Sovereigns generally wouldn't interfere in the matters of Highgods.

But it was only natural for a Sovereign to interfere when her own son was in danger.

And not all Sovereigns were the same; generally speaking, if an ordinary person became a Sovereign, that person might have countless children and so wouldn't care too much about them. But the Redbud Sovereign was like a divine beast, an exceedingly rare, unique individual. She had only a single son.

"Whew." Bayer shook his head and laughed bitterly.

"This Godeater Rat's defense is indeed powerful. Although I'm not able to kill him, I don't consider it as being a loss of face. At least I tried. There's nothing Occluar will be able to say to me." Bayer gave Reisgem's group a final glance, and then his body flickered and disappeared as he left.

Linley and Bebe each held a canteen, staring as Bayer departed.

"Ah, he finally left." Reisgem let out a long breath. "A Highgod Paragon. I was afraid that this fellow would go crazy. Fortunately, I managed to scare him off." Reisgem was frightened as well. If Bayer really did go crazy and decide to kill them all, Reisgem wouldn't even have time to cry. At worst, Bayer would just have to hide in a material plane and to never go to the Divine Planes or the Higher Realms again."

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 31, The Number One Clan

After Bayer left, Linley let out a sigh of relief as well.

“Compared to a Highgod Paragon, I most likely would only be able to preserve my life if I had a defensive Sovereign artifact and a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact.” Linley had been rendered speechless by Bayer’s attack power, and the constrictive power of it had been able to cause space itself to twist and distort. The disruptive power exceeded even Reisgem’s ‘Amethyst Space’.

Upon encountering a Paragon, only someone like Bebe whose material defense and soul defense were both at the very peak would be capable of staying alive.

“Wait. Even if my defenses are powerful, Bayer would probably still be able to throw me into a field of spatial chaos.” When Linley thought of this, he felt all the more terrified by the might of a Paragon. Previously, Linley had seen quite a few experts who had fused five profound mysteries. Linley had thought a Paragon would be powerful, but not ridiculously so.

But upon encountering one, Linley realized...

Paragons, just by waving their hands, could easily cause space to twist and distort, and tear the world apart. Between fusing five profound mysteries and becoming a Paragon, there was a massive, qualitative rise in power.

"Bayer won't come again, will he?" A low voice rang out.

Linley turned his head to look. The speaker was the big fellow, 'Reihom'. Bebe, some dirt and dust on his face, said quickly, "Of course not! He is a Paragon, after all; since he left, how could he come back? Even if he came back, I'm not afraid of him." Bebe's words caused Linley, Reisgem, and Reihom to all look at him.

"You aren't afraid?" Reisgem had a rather disbelieving tone to his voice.

Actually, Reisgem himself was afraid. If Bayer truly went insane, he could kill Reisgem, Reihom, and Linley, then drag Bebe into a region of chaotic space. The price would just be that he would face the pursuit and attack of the Redbud Sovereign, and would have to forever hide within a material plane.

Reisgem was afraid, and Linley and Reihom felt the same way. In front of Bayer, they weren't able to resist at all.

Bebe...unafraid?

Stared at by the other three, Bebe let out an awkward laugh. "Fine, to be honest, of course I'm a bit scared. In front of that Bayer, I feel as though all I can do is stand there and be beaten. I'm not able to resist at all. That strange song of his made me lose consciousness. Enough, he's left, so this is at an end. I hope in the future, I won't run into that Bayer again. Unless I'm at Grandpa's level of power..."

Linley, hearing this, couldn't help but laugh. He then looked towards Reisgem. This time, they truly had to thank Reisgem.

"Fortunately, Reisgem, you used the Sovereign to threaten him." Linley laughed with a sigh.

"Hmph. That was all talk. By the time my mother actually made it here, Bayer would've fled long ago." Reisgem pursed his lips. "Fortunately, Bayer wasn't willing to go all out for the sake of Occluar."

Linley nodded slightly as well.

If Occluar and Bayer had a relationship that was as close as Linley and Bebe's, most likely, Bayer really would've ignored all else to kill them. Fortunately, the two didn't have a relationship at that level yet.

"Reisgem, this Sovereign's Might..." Linley only now thought of the canteen of Sovereign's Might in his hand.

Good heavens...a full canteen! What a terrifying fortune this was!

"Reisgem, just now, you just wanted to shock Bayer and let him know that there was no way he would be able to kill Bebe, which is why you brought out this canteen of Sovereign's Might. Now that this is at an end, you can take it back." Linley immediately handed the amethyst canteen back to Reisgem.

It wasn't that Linley didn't want the Sovereign's Might. If it had only been one or two drops, Linley would've accepted it.

But this was an entire canteen...

This was too precious, something Linley felt was too hot to hold. While working together with Reisgem, Linley hadn't made any great contributions, so how could he receive a canteen of Sovereign's Might? As the saying goes, if no merits were rendered, none should be recorded. To receive a treasure without having accomplished anything? Linley felt uneasy.

"Eh?" Bebe was startled.

"Here you go." Bebe did the same thing.

"HEY!" Reisgem stared at Linley and Bebe, then said angrily, "Linley, Bebe, what are you two doing? Hmph, if you are going to be so insincere, we might as well just split up the squad. You go your way, and Reihom and I will go ours. You two don't treat me as bros anyhow. As for the canteen of Sovereign's Might? I, Reisgem, have never taken back something I gifted out. If you don't want it, then toss it!"

Linley felt speechless and resigned.

"Haha, Boss, Reisgem isn't the stingy sort." Bebe snickered, slapping his arm around Reisgem's shoulders. "Just take it." Bebe was rather unwilling to part with it to begin with; only, having seen Linley give it up, he had to do the same.

"Hear that?" Reisgem delightedly raised an eyebrow. "Why don't you just toss this Sovereign's Might and go your own way, while the three of us go ours. Or...just keep it."

Linley wasn't the overly polite sort to begin with; only, this canteen of Sovereign's Might was simply too valuable, and so he wasn't able to accept it right away, which is why he had acted in such a manner. But now that Reisgem had responded in such a way, what else could Linley do? All he could do was, with a flip of his hand, store the canteen of Sovereign's Might into his interspatial ring.

"That's more like it." Reisgem chortled merrily. "To be honest, earlier on, when I just reached the Highgod level and hadn't fused that many of the profound mysteries, I probably wouldn't have been willing to be generous, even if you asked me to."

"Eh? What's that about?" Bebe said.

Linley just laughed while listening. With Bebe and Reisgem standing together, it was like a pair of youths. Their eyes were both so lively and agile; they looked like two siblings.

The four of them chatted while walking forward.

"What my mother said is that I needed to be tempered!" Reisgem laughed. "Without me having reached a certain level of power, if she were to give me a large amount of Sovereign's Might, I would never feel as though I were in any danger, which would make it harder for me to make any breakthroughs. Thus, only after I fused five profound mysteries did my mother stop restricting me in terms of how much Sovereign's Might I could have."

Linley nodded slightly.

Without a sense of danger, it would be fairly hard to rise in power. Linley could completely understand the actions of the Redbud Sovereign.

“Oh...you have so much Sovereign’s Might. Boss’s Four Divine Beasts clan rarely hands out even a single drop of Sovereign’s Might.” Bebe said with a sigh.

Reisgem laughed loudly. “The Four Divine Beasts clan? How can they compare to me? An enormous clan like that has millions of people, scattered throughout the four great planes. The four great Sovereigns did indeed bestow a huge amount of Sovereign’s Might to them! But did the people of the Four Divine Beasts clan learn to treasure it? They did not! Those four clan leaders probably never imagined that their four Sovereigns would perish. When the four Sovereigns died...the time came that they no longer had access to unlimited amounts of Sovereign’s Might! They were completely dumbfounded.”

“Once the four Sovereigns died, they no longer had a source for Sovereign’s Might. It would be hard for them to acquire any more. Of course they would hand it out sparingly, one drop at a time.”

Linley, hearing this, nodded to himself.

The deaths of the four ancestors did indeed strike a heavy blow against the clan.

"An enormous clan like that, whose fame shook the various planes, fell just like that." Linley let out a sigh. Originally, when Linley had entered the Azure Dragon clan, Linley had sighed at how much Sovereign's Might the clan had. But now, he understood that giving each Elder a single drop was a way of being thrifty in using it.

When the four Sovereigns were still alive, most likely the manner in which the Azure Dragon clan divided up Sovereign's Might was completely different.

"The Four Divine Beasts clan originally was very strong. However, in the countless planes of the multiverse, they still cannot be considered the number one clan." Reisgem said.

"Eh? There was a clan even more powerful than the Four Divine Beasts clan?" Linley was rather surprised.

"The number one clan is the Augusta [Ao'gu'si'ta] clan of the Divine Light Plane." Reisgem said with a calm laugh.

Linley knew a few things about the Infernal Realm and the Netherworld, but very little about the other planes.

"The Augusta clan?" Three names drifted into Linley's mind. These three names came from Beirut's intelligence reports on commanders. All three were commanders, and the three of them...all shared the surname 'Augusta'. Clearly, they were of the Augusta clan.

Back then, Linley hadn't paid much attention. After all, there were quite a few siblings who were commanders. For three to share one surname wasn't too surprising.

"The first generation member of the Augusta clan is the Chief Sovereign of Light." Reisgem said, pursing his lips.

Linley now understood. "No wonder the clan is so powerful. They are the descendants of the Chief Sovereign of Light." As a Chief Sovereign, one could imagine how exalted a status and how great the power the Chief Sovereign of Light possessed.

"The Chief Sovereign of Light has many descendants. The second generation of the clan has 182 members." Reisgem said with a sigh.

Linley and Bebe were both stupefied.

"Reisgem, are the second generation members all the sons and daughters of the Chief Sovereign of Light?" Linley didn't dare believe it. In the Four Divine Beasts clan, the Azure Dragon only had a son and a daughter, while the Vermilion Bird had only a single child. The White Tiger had one child, while the Black Tortoise had two.

But this Augusta clan's second generation had 182 members?

"Right." Reisgem nodded. "The Chief Sovereign of Light was originally a member of an ordinary race before he became a Chief Sovereign. Thus, unlike the divine beasts who have few children, he had 182. However, these 182 children are not all on the same level. Still, because the population of the Augusta clan expanded very rapidly, and because they had sufficient resources, they naturally produced quite a few experts. However, the Augusta clan has only expanded in the Divine Light Plane. They aren't like your Four Divine Beasts clan, which scattered throughout the planes."

"The Augusta clansmen are very arrogant." The always taciturn Reihom suddenly spoke out.

"Eh?" Linley looked towards Reihom. He could feel the anger within Reihom's words.

Reisgem sighed and said, "One of my mother's Emissary's, Reihom's good friend 'Bosley' [Bu'si'li], was killed by the forces of the Augusta clan. Bosley now only has a weak clone remaining. I imagine this time, the Augusta clan's people came to the Planar Battlefield as well. If we encounter two of them, we have to kill some of them to vent our anger. Hmph. Forget it. Enough about that clan of bastards. They ruin the mood."

As Linley's group of four left the battlefield, they didn't run, just casually walked forward. In the Planar Battlefield, aside from Paragons like Bayer, their hunting squad feared no one.

But that battle had, indeed, attracted quite a few people.

On the desolate earth, five figures emerged. The leader was a youth who was dressed in a beautiful silver robe, and who had long, dazzling hair.

"Oh, the Amethyst Rampart. Hey, that's Bayer!" The golden-haired youth's eyes lit up. He saw, in the distance, Bayer standing in the sky like a celestial divinity. With Bayer present, the five hadn't dared to go near. But after watching from far away for a time, they saw that Bayer actually left.

"Young master Montelo [Meng'te'lo], this is a good opportunity." Next to him was a callous, short silver-haired man who was dressed in a golden robe.

The golden-haired youth's eyes lit up.

Right at this moment, the golden-haired youth suddenly turned his head to look nearby. There were actually two people, a man and a woman, walking over. "Montelo, long time no see." The leader, a black-haired, silver-robed woman said with a light smile.

"Ranessa [La'na'sha]!" Montelo laughed as well.

"You saw that battle just now, right? Bayer went to act against Reisgem's group. I wonder what the results of that battle were." The silver-robed woman, Ranessa, said with a laugh. "But I'm certain that Reisgem remains alive."

"I'm certain about this as well." Montelo said with a calm laugh, and then his eyes lit up. "Ranessa, how about we join forces and go teach that Reisgem a lesson?"

"Teach him a lesson?" Ranessa frowned slightly. "I know that a grudge exists between your clan and Reisgem, but..." Ranessa also knew Montelo's status. Montelo was a third generation member of the Augusta clan. The second generation had 182 members, and the third generation had more than a thousand."

Montelo relied on his innate talent and his ability to have a fairly high status within his clan. But compared to Reisgem, his status was far inferior. After all, the Chief Sovereign of Light had too many children. Montelo was just a grandchild, while the Redbud Sovereign only had a single son.

There weren't many who would dare to kill Reisgem.

"Don't worry, we won't kill Reisgem." Montelo said with a light laugh. "I'll be responsible for entangling Reisgem, while the other three of you, along with my other four, seven in total, will act against Reisgem's comrades. If you can kill one, do so. It's best if you kill them all! Hmph, if we can't kill Reisgem, we can still kill his comrades." Montelo's eyes flashed with cold light.

Ranessa turned to discuss this with the two youths by her side, then laughed.

The Sovereigns were lofty individuals. As long as one didn't commit any forbidden acts, there wouldn't be any problems. Even if they badly injured Reisgem, there wouldn't be a problem. The Sovereigns actually hoped that their children would suffer setbacks while growing up. As long as they didn't kill Reisgem, it was fine. As for Reisgem's comrades and their lives, the Sovereign didn't have the time to bother with them, nor would the Sovereign lower her status to bother with them.

The world of Deities had its own rules. Sovereigns generally wouldn't casually interfere.

"Fine. However, the badges we get from killing them are mine." Ranessa said.

"Fine." Montello immediately agreed.

"Let's go, then. Reisgem and the others have most likely gone far away by now." Ranessa said.

Immediately, the two forces merged and the eight of them stealthily slipped forward at high speed.

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 32, What's This?

The Planar Battlefield was as quiet and icy as ever.

The wind blew and sand flew everywhere.

Linley, Bebe, Reisgem, and Reishom walked forward casually, preparing to find a good place to rest.

"Eh?" Reisgem suddenly turned his head to look behind.

"What is it?" Bebe said, puzzled. Linley, seeing the situation, turned his head to look behind them as well, but behind them, the scene was still one of desolate, wild grass. There wasn't a single person present.

But Reisgem furrowed his brows. "It seems someone is present."

As soon as Reisgem spoke, Linley sensed how from behind, the aura of two badges from their alliance could be sensed. Those two auras were flying forward towards them at high speed. Linley gave a suspicious look, and amidst the wild grassy growth, eight figures suddenly appeared, flying straight for Linley's group.

Two belonged to the Divine Darkness Plane's side, while six belonged to the Divine Light Plane's side.

However, for the purposes of this battle, they were on the same side.

"Montelo!" Reihom's voice boomed out.

"Montelo!" Reisgem's face changed. "BANG!" A wild surge of black energy emerged from his body. He had immediately used his Sovereign's Might, while at the same time, that long spear appeared in his hands. Not hesitating in the slightest, Reisgem bent back, like a powerful longbow that was being pulled, and then threw out the Sovereign long spear in his hands forward.

Crackle...

Filled with Sovereign power, the weapon blasted forth explosively. That amethyst long spear flowed with black light. Moving at high speed, it transformed into a black blur, creating cracks in space as it flew forward.

The Sovereign long spear was aimed at a solitary, arrogant-looking middle-aged man by Montelo's side.

"Hmph!" By the arrogant fellow's side, a petite little green-haired lady suddenly exploded with white light. She moved like a gust of wind to receive the blow in front of the arrogant fellow. Her right fist, covered by a black glove, actually came smashing against the Sovereign spear's tip.

"BANG!"

The fist and the speartip collided.

"Rumble..." That petite green-haired lady was knocked back explosively by the collision, and several cracks in space appeared as well. As for the amethyst Sovereign longspear, it flew back towards Reisgem at high speed.

"Reisgem, you killed the members of my Augusta clan. Today, we'll punish you a bit for it." Montelo laughed loudly, while at the same time, his body began to blaze with white light as he flew towards Reisgem like a giant bird. While flying through the air, his entire body actually began to shoot out with strands of white 'silk', which wound their way towards Reisgem.

Reisgem was furious as well, and he called out through divine sense, "Go all out and kill them! Use your Sovereign's Might, kill!"

"BANG!" Reihom suddenly stomped on the ground viciously.

"Rumble..." The earth beneath the feet of the enemies suddenly rose upwards as the land instantly rose up, then pressed down towards the seven, blocking their line of vision as well.

"Kill." Reihom's eyes were filled with a murderous intent as well, and he too charged forward.

Right at this moment, seven enemy figures were shooting towards them as well. "What terrible luck. One is the Augusta clan, while the other is Reisgem. They immediately used Sovereign's Might as soon as the battle started. They have no idea of what the concept of being 'thrifty' is." The silver-robed woman, Ranessa, muttered in her heart. Still, her body glowed with a blue light as well.

The battle had instantly exploded!

Linley instantly Dragonformed as well, and Mirage appeared in his hands. He immediately activated a drop of Destruction-type Sovereign's Might! Linley sighed mentally with praise, "Having an entire canteen of Sovereign's Might really does change things!" If he only had two or three drops, how could he use it so wantonly as he just did, at the very start of battle?

Linley now understood why the Four Divine Beasts clan could be spread throughout so many planes but still be so powerful. Most likely, the Four Divine Beasts clan of then was much like he was now; they had no reservations about using Sovereign's Might.

"Oman [Wu'man], you go deal with that Azure Dragon clan fellow! You just so happen to counter the Azure Dragon clan." Montelo gave the order while shooting forward towards Reisgem.

Actually, there was no need to give the order. Because Reisgem's side only had four people in total, and because Montelo was dealing with Reisgem, the other seven were more than enough to deal with Linley and the other two.

"Don't worry!"

That arrogant-looking silver-haired, gold-robed man launched himself off from the ground, instantly arriving by Linley's side.

Actually, it wasn't just Oman who attacked Linley. As the saying goes, there were many monks, but only so many alms to go around! Before Oman arrived, a whip wielding youth who belonged to Ranessa's side attacked Linley. When that long whip struck out, it actually transformed and elongated, coiling towards Linley like a giant serpent slashing out with its tail.

Linley's form retreated at high speed.

"BANG!"

Mirage blocked the whip. Linley's body instantly radiated a black aura, forming an enormous 'Blackstone Space'. Although the power of this technique when fueled by Destruction-type Sovereign's power wasn't as great as when it was fueled by earth-type Sovereign's power, the strength of the gravitational power still vastly exceeded that of Highgod power.

Right after Linley blocked the whip, the golden-robed man descended from the heavens.

"Eh?" Linley saw, to his astonishment, that a three-meter long mace suddenly appeared within the golden-robed man's hands. The golden-robed man smashed directly towards Linley with the mace.

"Crackle..."

As the spikes of the mace tore through the air, it actually caused spatial fractures to appear.

“Not good.” Linley hurriedly controlled the direction of his gravity. Previously, it was downwards, which made this golden-robed man move even faster. “Repulsive force!”

However, although he was slowed by the gravity, it was too late, because the golden-robed man had already arrived!

That spiked mace was already in front of him. Linley could even sense a powerful gravitational field. “This golden-robed man trains in the Laws of the Earth.” Linley felt a powerful threat from him, and Mirage flipped outwards, filled with Destruction-type Sovereign power, exploding forth.

The tip of Mirage was smashed head-on by the spiked mace.

“Clang!”

Linley only felt a terrifying force surge from Mirage to the center of his palm. “Rumble...” That terrifying force caused the draconic scales in the center of Linley’s palm to shatter, and blood oozed out. Mirage was smashed towards Linley’s shoulders, while the spiked mace continued to descend.

Pressing down with Mirage, it smashed heavily against Linley’s shoulder.

And this was after Linley had frantically used Mirage to block; otherwise, the mace would have smashed into his head.

“A Sovereign weapon!” Linley was completely certain that the spiked mace was a Sovereign weapon!

"BANG!"

Draconic scales shattered, bones splintered, and blood flew in the air. Linley's left arm was broken off, while Linley himself smashed towards the ground like a meteor at high speed. With a 'swoosh' sound, he entered the ground, leaving behind just a large tunnel. As for the golden-robed man with the spiked mace, he didn't hesitate at all, immediately following into the tunnel.

"BOSS!" Bebe, seeing this, stared with a changed look on his face.

Linley's power had reached the commander level, but he was considered one of the weakest commanders. Against a powerful commander who had a Sovereign weapon and who was extremely strong in the Laws of the Earth, Linley was going to be trampled to death.

"Bang!" Bebe was knocked flying as well.

But Bebe was completely injured, and he couldn't be bothered to use his innate divine ability to take revenge on his attacker. Bebe's first reaction was to dive into the tunnel which Linley was smashed through. "Boss, no matter what, you can't die!" Bebe hurriedly flew underground.

Actually, from the start of the battle till now, Montelo's side had no idea that Bebe was the Godeater Rat! After all, during that moment of crisis when Bebe used his innate divine ability earlier, he had been within the mountain. No one outside could see it. In addition, Bebe's 'signature', his straw hat, had been destroyed during the battle with Bayer.

Although Bebe could use divine energy to form another one, Bebe had just finished a life-and-death battle and wasn't in the mood to make another one yet.

Without having a straw hat, Montelo and the others weren't able to recognize him.

If they knew that Bebe was a Godeater Rat, perhaps Montelo would have changed the plan. After all, they had people with soul-protecting Sovereign artifacts. But unfortunately, they didn't know who Bebe was.

"BOOM!" That enormous spiked mace came smashing down once more.

Linley's Mirage sword once more blocked.

"BANG!" Linley was once more smashed downwards, but fortunately, during the past five centuries of training, Linley had made some improvements with regards to the Laws of the Earth. He had reached a bottleneck in fusing the four profound mysteries, and although he had yet to make a breakthrough, his power had already increased significantly. Thus, faced with the attack of such a powerful expert, he didn't immediately die.

Instead, he was able to just barely rely on Mirage to preserve his own life.

Unfortunately...

In terms of weapons, his was slightly inferior.

Both he and the enemy used Sovereign's Might.

As for the Laws, clearly the enemy surpassed him! Although within the Blackstone Space, the enemy was simply too close. Linley was continuously descending, while the enemy continuously smashed downwards with his spiked mace from above.

"BANG!"

Yet another smash.

Linley just barely blocked, but he was once more smashed downwards, his body blasting through the earth and the rocks, continuing to go deeper.

"I can't go any deeper! If I go any deeper, I'll encounter spatial tears." Linley knew very well that the underground of the Planar Battlefield was very dangerous. Once one reached a certain depth, one would encounter spatial tears. The deeper one went, the more spatial tears there would be, until one finally fell into chaotic space.

"Haha, your ability to resist isn't bad! If I can't kill you, then I'll send you into chaotic space." A savage voice rang out in Linley's mind.

"BANG!"

Yet another mace blow smashed downwards!

Linley was barely able to block, but his palm was already covered with blood, and his body was covered by it as well. Although this was slow to describe, in truth, from the moment Linley's began fell into the ground until now, only a moment had passed. After all, the golden-haired man was constantly smashing down with his mace, giving Linley no chance to rest at all. At this dangerous moment...

Around Linley's body suddenly appeared an enormous Azure Dragon Phantom. The golden eyes of the Azure Dragon stared towards this golden-robed man, Oman.

Innate divine ability – Dragon Roar.

But just as he used his innate divine ability, that Oman launched yet another vicious mace blow downwards. "BANG!" Linley's body once more sank downwards. Given Linley's current level of power, all he could do was ensure that he wouldn't be smashed to death. There was no way he could prevent himself from being knocked downwards.

"Crackle..."

A long spatial tear that was tens of meters long and half a meter wide slashed past Linley's body. Quite a bit of earth disappeared before the tear vanished.

Linley couldn't help but feel cold.

"Not good. I'm almost at the limit." Linley instantly understood that if he went down any further, the spatial tears would become even more common. In addition, with each vicious downwards blow of the spiked mace, Linley would be smashed at least a few dozen meters or even a hundred meters. He was already at the limits; if he sank another few dozen meters or a hundred meters, he probably would have truly been pushed into chaotic space.

"You really are able to resist. But...down you go."

The golden-robed man, who had already escaped the temporal impact, once more sank downwards, the spiked mace in his hand once more mercilessly smashing down towards Linley.

"Rumble..." A strange energy instantly surrounded the golden-robed man.

Innate divine ability – Godeater!

"Motherf*cker, die!" An enraged bellow rang out. Bebe, at this critical moment, had finally arrived. At the same time, he gave a vicious kick towards the golden-robed man, who launched a backhand blow. With a 'bang' sound, Bebe was smashed through the nearby earth.

"Bebe." Linley hurriedly flew towards Bebe.

"What sort of attack was that?" The golden-robed man was disdainful.

"How come I didn't feel a thing?" The golden-robed man had been staring at the below Linley when Bebe had used his innate divine ability. He didn't see the illusion of a Godeater Rat, so he naturally didn't know how powerful this attack was.

As for the 'Godeater', in the face of the soul-protecting Sovereign artifact of the golden-robed man, it was like an egg smashing into a rock. It was useless.

The golden-robed man didn't understand how powerful that attack had been. He thought it was an ordinary strike.

"Swoosh." Linley already arrived by Bebe's side.

"Boss, this person isn't affected by my innate divine ability." Bebe sent mentally.

"Haha, the two of you, die together." That sound rang out in Linley and Bebe's mind, while his figure arrived in front of them.

Suddenly...

"Rumble!" Out of nowhere, a ten meter long, one meter wide, terrifying spatial fracture appeared between Linley, Bebe, and the golden-robed man. Terrified, the golden-robed man didn't dare to draw any closer. If he were to charge into the spatial fracture, then he really would enter chaotic space.

But the strange thing was...

A tiny black shadow actually flew out from the spatial fracture, moving as fast as lightning. This black shadow flew out of the spatial fracture towards the direction of Linley and Bebe.

Linley's first reaction was to stretch his hand out and grab it.

"Eh?"

After grasping this black blur, Linley felt a surge of unusual energy enter his body. As for the nearby Bebe, he clearly saw what this black blur was; this was a seemingly ordinary, but very beautiful crown. Only, the crown had lost its luster long ago, and the sunken cavities for the jewel settings of the crown were all empty. Clearly, the jewels were long gone, and the crown had lost its beauty.

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 33, A Battle

If this tattered crown had been lying on the ground, Linley wouldn't even have given it a glance.

It was incredibly tattered, and the gemstone settings of the crown were all empty. It had no particular aura either. At first glance, it looked like nothing more than an ordinary crown made in a material plane. Deity artifacts or Sovereign artifacts...all artifacts that had been nurtured by power would generally have some unique auras.

Even cheap items such as inkstones and netherstones had unique auras.

But this crown was as ordinary as a material item.

But when Linley took the crown into his hands, a unique energy was transmitted into Linley's body. This energy was very unusual; it was like spring rain falling over Linley's wounds. Instantly, Linley's shattered arm as well as many of his upper body wounds began to heal and close at an astonishing rate.

In an instant!

Aside from a small wound which remained on his chest, the other parts of Linley's body, including his shattered arm, were all completely healed.

"How can that be?" Bebe was shocked as well. He too felt that this was inconceivable.

The stronger a body was, the harder it was to repair it. Linley's Dragonformed body, although inferior to Bebe's, far surpassed the power of most Highgod artifacts. How could it be so easily healed?

"Boss, what's going on? How did your wounds suddenly heal so quickly? Also, that small wound on your chest, why didn't it heal?" Bebe hurriedly sent through divine sense. "Is it connected to that weird, tattered crown?"

Linley was feeling stunned as well.

"Bebe, I'm not sure either. Within this tattered crown, there was a strange energy which entered my body. Indeed, in an instant, it healed my wounds. But it seemed as though there was only a little bit of energy; it was all used up before fully repairing the damage done to my chest." Linley sent back through divine sense.

After having finished transmitting energy, the tattered crown no longer had any more energy remaining.

Resting in Linley's hand, this tattered crown once more appeared completely unremarkable. But Linley still clearly remembered that feeling when the tattered crown had transferred energy to him. "This tattered crown flew out from that spatial tear. Clearly, it flew out from chaotic space. For something to be able to remain within chaotic space without shattering...this tattered crown should be made from a material that is stronger than Highgod artifacts."

Linley knew how dangerous chaotic space was. Spatial tears abounded, and that sort of tearing power would destroy Highgod artifacts, transforming them into dust.

But the tattered crown hadn't been destroyed.

This alone was proof that it was unusual.

"What's that?" The golden-robed Oman stared at the crown in Linley's hand, then let out a loud, cold laugh. "Haha...your luck isn't bad. This crown actually passed through a spatial tear and arrived here. It should be a Sovereign artifact. I imagine that in the past, when commanders battled here, a commander died in a spatial rift and the Sovereign artifact was lost within. But from the looks of it...this Sovereign artifact is damaged."

With a flip of his hand, Linley stored the tattered crown into his interspatial ring.

This wasn't the time to analyze the tattered crown.

"Bebe, seize the opportunity. Let's hurry up and flee. Don't waste time with this fellow." Linley once more controlled his Blackstone Space, filling it with Destruction-type Sovereign power and generating a powerful repulsive force that was applied to the body of that golden-robed Oman. "This big, golden-robed fellow isn't even phased by my innate divine ability. He really is hard to deal with."

Bebe didn't want to tussle with this big fellow either.

Linley and Bebe hurriedly flew into the air, while at the same time changing the direction towards which they were flying.

The repulsive force changed to be an upwards force!

Oman couldn't help but moved, although he quickly became accustomed to this gravity.

"You want to escape?" Oman stared at the enormous spatial rift in front of him. He first flew upwards, wanting to fly up and over the spatial rift. In the Planar Battlefield, especially at such a depth, even an expert such as Oman had to be careful. Otherwise, if he slipped and fell into a spatial rift, that would be terrifying.

But just as he flew up towards the space above the spatial rift...

The upwards gravitational force suddenly transformed into a downwards force!

"Die!" Linley, who had been preparing for this the entire time, howled furiously in his mind.

One can imagine how powerful the gravity of this Blackstone Space that was formed from Sovereign power was. Although Oman was one of the powerful Emissaries of the Chief Sovereign of Light, he had originally been resisting the upwards gravitational pull; naturally, the energy in his body was pointed downwards, so as to cancel out that force.

But the gravity suddenly changed from upwards to downwards! Instantly, his own internal downwards energy joined forces with the downwards gravity!

Oman had held the upper hand this entire time. Although he was careful, this sort of sudden, contrasting change caused Oman's body to suddenly sink as well!

What was below him? An enormous spatial rift!

"Uh!" The golden-robed Oman was caught off guard. His face couldn't help but change. He, too, could sense the astonishing attractive power of that spatial rift. Instantly, a white light exploded forth from his body. "BANG!" The spiked mace trembled violently, causing the nearby space to distort.

By relying on the counterforce, Oman was able to escape the spatial rift.

"Those two bastards." Although Oman had escaped in a short period of time, Linley and Bebe had already fled more than two or three hundred meters away.

"I swear I'll kill you two." Oman bellowed furiously, then chased in pursuit.

Linley and Bebe had, for now, escaped one tribulation, but on the earth above them, Reisgem and Reihom were in absolutely dire straits.

"Haha..."

Montelo's loud laughter echoed in the air, while at the same time, thousands of tough strands of silk snaked outwards from him, entangling Reisgem. The greatest problem wasn't just that these strands were tough; they were fast! Every single strand was as fast as a ray of light when it shot out.

They constantly entangled towards Reisgem.

"Montelo, if you have any ability, fight me head on. All you can do is rely on this sort of detestable technique. How can that be considered proof of ability?" Reisgem's longspear also danced about in a blur, constantly shattered and breaking many of the strands.

Unfortunately, although he might destroy a thousand strands, ten thousand more would emerge from Montelo's body.

As long as Montelo's Sovereign power wasn't used up, he was in no danger of running out of strands. Although Montelo didn't have as much Sovereign's Might as Reisgem did, an inexhaustible supply, he was still a member of the Augusta clan, and as a talented expert of the clan, he naturally was treated very well and had quite a bit of Sovereign's Might.

"I don't have the ability to kill you." Montelo hovered there in midair, smirking as he sent mentally. "On my side, in one-on-one combat, only Oman poses a major threat to you. But we aren't prepared to kill you. Our mission is to kill your three comrades. Haha...I imagine that those two comrades of yours who went underground are already dead."

Reisgem's face turned rather white.

He understood how powerful these experts of the Augusta clan were. The Augusta clan's experts were divided into the actual members of the Augusta clan, as well as the Emissaries of the Chief Sovereign of Light. These Emissaries would assist the Augusta clan as well. As for Oman, he was himself an Emissary of the Chief Sovereign of Light, and an exceedingly strong one at that.

"GRAAAAAAAWR!"

A furious bellow rang out.

"BOOM!" Suddenly, the entire earth trembled and rose upwards, as large amounts of boulders emerged from the ground, shooting everywhere.

"Reihom." Reisgem's face changed.

Oman went to pursue Linley and Bebe, while Montelo was tying up Reisgem. Then...there were six people against Reihom! Although the six were not commanders, they clearly had the power of commanders. Even Reisgem would find it hard to endure the combined assault of those six.

"Hey, that fellow of yours is quite powerful." Montelo smirked.

"It won't be so easy for you to kill Reihom." Although Reisgem was worried, he still held hope in his heart, because Reihom was the most powerful Emissary in service to his mother. Although Reihom was always quite taciturn, his strength...was extraordinarily frightening.

And right now, Reihom had entered a berserk state!

"GRAAAAAWR!" Yet another growl, and Reihom's body suddenly expanded dramatically.

Standing on the ground, Reihom had actually transformed into a tower-like brute that was ten meters tall. His fists were like two meteors, wildly smashing in every direction. Every single fist carried exceedingly terrifying power, and even the six attacking him didn't dare to casually block those fists.

Space twisted as every single punch caused explosive tears in space to appear.

The power was so great as to make one's face change.

Reihom's entire body was glowing with a bizarre, golden yellow tattooed glow. Someone close to Reihom would realize that these golden tattoos actually formed into a strange shape that looked like a fist. Upon seeing this, the six attackers couldn't help but frown, and their hearts sank as well.

The countless planes had given birth to some truly strange lifeforms.

For example, metallic lifeforms or plant lifeforms. In turn, Volcano Titans and World Titans were exceedingly rare; they were all extremely strong races. As for Reihom, he was one of the extremely rare 'kings' of the World

Titan race. Generally speaking, the creatures known as 'World Tyrants' were born with the ability to control the earth and to control stones, and were able to absorb all sorts of mineral essences to strengthen their body.

"So there was an expert like him present!" The six only now grew cautious.

Reihom was a person who never revealed himself. Ever since his friend, 'Bosley', had been killed, he had begun to accompany Reisgem in the Planar Battlefield. Neither Linley nor anyone else knew much about this Reihom.

"All of you, die."

Reihom's eyes glowed with yellow light, and his enormous fists smashed heavily towards his foes, each fist containing the power to tear space apart and cause it to shatter. He had been born with limitless brute strength, and he had fused five of the profound mysteries of the Laws of the Earth. He also had a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact; he truly was very powerful.

"Haha, everyone, let's see who is the first to kill him." That silver-robed woman, 'Ranessa', laughed loudly.

Although Reihom was mighty, the six enemies weren't weak either. And, there were six of them! All supreme experts.

"Hmph!" A green-haired maiden suddenly moved at exceedingly fast speed, dodging the heavy blows of the 'titanic' Reihom, but just after she dodged Reihom's fist, Reihom's right arm suddenly twisted, and his elbow smashed heavily towards the green-haired woman. This attack was so fast that the green-haired maiden only had enough time to use her own fist to block.

Her dainty little fist, covered with a black glove, collided with the hammer-like elbow!

"BANG!" The green-haired maiden's body was smashed underground, creating a deep hole.

As for Reihom, a large tear suddenly appeared in his elbow as well. It looked terrifying, but it didn't shed a drop of blood, and in the blink of an eye, it was repaired.

"Swoosh." The green-haired woman flew out from underground.

"This fellow's body is too tough. My Sovereign weapon is only able to wound him. Everyone, be careful." The green-haired maiden sent mentally. Instantly, the other five began to launch attacks wildly. Although multiple wounds and holes began to appear on Reihom's body, Reihom instantly healed them all.

It wasn't just material attacks; the six launched soul attacks as well!

"It's useless. This big fellow probably has a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact." A white-robed man sent mentally.

For the moment, no one knew what to do.

"Everyone, I'll tie up this big fellow momentarily. I'll leave the part of killing him up to you five." Ranessa sent mentally, a hint of a cold smile on her face. Ranessa's formerly beautiful maiden's figure suddenly became surrounded by the blurry illusion of an enormous octopus.

Suddenly, her innate divine ability descended.

"Ah...." Reihom felt as though his entire body was suddenly constricted by an incomparably sturdy rope. Space twisted and distorted, pressing down upon him. Reihom howled angrily, and his steel-like muscles bulged violently, seeking to break free from his restraints.

"Swish!" "Swish!"

Two figures struck virtually simultaneously towards Reihom's head; these two were the green-haired maiden and a cyan-robed youth. The green-haired maiden used her fists, while the cyan-robed youth used a broad warblade.

The green-haired maiden's fist struck out with full power...

"Crackle..." The broad warblade glowed with water-type Sovereign power, easily tearing through space and chopping towards Reihom's head.

"GRAAAAAAWR!" Reihom roared furiously.

"BOOM!"

The fist and the warblade landed on Reihom's head. With a 'boom' sound, Reihom's head was struck head on by two mighty Sovereign artifacts, and it finally blew apart, sending shattered fragments everywhere. But strangely enough, no divine spark fell out.

"Careful!" A panicked cry rang out in the minds of the two.

Reihom's two terrifying fists were already swinging at them!

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 34, A Battle of Attrition?

The green-haired maiden and the cyan-robed youth weren't able to dodge in time. Their first reaction was to use their Sovereign artifacts to block. The two massive fists slammed over, pressing down like two small mountains.

"BOOM!" "BOOM!"

Two weighty smacking sounds. The green-haired maiden and the cyan-robed youth were both smashed underground, but immediately afterwards, the two flew out from underground, hovering in midair close to their four companions.

"We were wrong." Ranessa somberly sent mentally to the other five. "This big fellow is a World Tyrant, not a human! If he was in human form, then his head would indeed be his weak point, where his soul would be. But he is currently in World Tyrant form, and his weak point is his 'core'! The soul is within his core, and his divine spark is within it as well!"

It was just like the Flame Tyrant which Linley had originally encountered in the Necropolis of the Gods in the past. Even though the Flame Tyrant's entire body had been shattered, he still didn't die. The Flame Tyrant's weak spot was that translucent stone; that was the core!

This sort of metal or rock-based lifeform all had an important 'core' component.

The soul was contained within it, and after becoming a Deity, their divine spark would be added to it as well! As long as the core was destroyed, they could be killed!

"Haha, so that's the case." The cyan-robed youth began to laugh loudly. "Since we know where his weakness is, killing him will be easy now."

"I'll use my innate divine ability one more time. The rest will be up to you." Ranessa sent mentally to the other five. Actually, even if Ranessa didn't use her innate divine ability, the six would still be able to kill Reihom; after all, Reihom only had two fists, and wouldn't be able to block six people at once. Those six were entirely capable of smashing a giant hole into his chest, then charging in and destroying the core!

However, using the innate divine ability to bind Reihom, then kill him would be much easier.

"That comrade of yours is quite powerful. A World Tyrant. For this sort of monstrous lifeform to reach such a level in profound mysteries is quite rare." Montelo clearly was quite amused. He was completely confident that his side would be able to easily kill Reihom; they just miscalculated earlier, that was all.

"Not good!" Reisgem felt that the situation was bad as well.

Last time, they had smashed apart Reihom's head; the next time, the six would definitely attack Reihom's core.

"GRAAAAAAAWR!" Reisgem couldn't help but release an enraged roar, and behind him, the illusion of an enormous amethyst beast suddenly appeared behind him.

Innate divine ability – Amethyst Rampart!

Rays of amethyst light filed with black Sovereign power spread out, forming a black cocoon. However, this giant black cocoon wrapped itself around Montelo. Actually, the shape of the Amethyst Rampart, as well as the target it wrapped around, was completely up to Reisgem. Just like that, for a moment, Montelo became trapped within the Amethyst Rampart and unable to break out.

Reisgem regained his freedom!

“Reihom, quick, flee!” Reisgem sent through divine sense.

At the same time, Reisgem shot out like an arrow, and as he did so, that amethyst longsword once again appeared in his hands. His right arm swung out in an arc, throwing the longsword forward. The amethyst light flashed forward at an astonishing, terrifying speed, striking towards that silver-robed woman, ‘Ranessa’.

Ranessa had no choice but to swing back with her two arms.

“Clang!” The violet light smashed against Ranessa’s arms, and Ranessa was knocked flying into the air.

Ranessa dared to block like this, because she had something to rely on; she had a single Sovereign artifact, a defensive Sovereign artifact.

Although Ranessa wasn't killed, since she was knocked aside, her innate divine ability was disrupted midway through.

"Reihom, quick, let's go!" Reisgem said frantically.

"Out of the way!" A keening howl. The green-robed maiden's body flashed forward, and she appeared before Reisgem. She seized the opportunity to attack Reisgem, while Reisgem's Sovereign weapon was still flying back towards him. He could only let out a low growl as he stretched his hand out, viciously smashing forward...

Reisgem's crystalline palm was covered with black light. It looked like a casual blow, but it swept forward towards that tender little fist like a tornado.

"BANG!" A low, echoing sound. Reisgem was knocked backwards, while at the same time, with a 'crunch' sound, bones snapping could be heard.

"Crackle..." Reihom's body quickly shrank.

A blurry black light shot out from Reisgem's body, forming an Amethyst Space that was a thousand meters across, and a powerful gravitational force was generated, causing the seven enemies to unconsciously tremble.

"Don't let him escape. Kill him!" Ranessa shouted mentally.

"Let's hurry and leave." Reisgem couldn't be bothered with anything else, immediately fleeing with Reihom frantically.

"WHAP!" A long whip snaked out, striking onto Reihom's body; the others were already in pursuit.

"Don't even think of escaping!" By now, Montelo had broken out of the Amethyst Rampart, and countless white strands of light once more shot towards Reisgem.

"Grrr...."

Reisgem turned his head and let out a furious roar. Instantly, a large amount of Destruction-type Sovereign power spread out, forming an enormous web. This was, once again, his innate divine ability, 'Amethyst Rampart'. This enormous Amethyst Rampart spread out towards the seven pursuers, but unfortunately, the seven maintained some distance from each other, and so it couldn't completely envelop them. It only surrounded four of them, while three fled, one of whom was Montelo.

"Swoosh!" "Swoosh!"

Reisgem and Reihom fled at high speed.

"Chase!" Montelo shouted.

Reisgem knew that the situation was bad, but he knew..."Linley and Bebe are underground and are being attacked by Oman. Although Oman is very powerful, Bebe's defense is strong as well. He definitely won't die."

As Reisgem fled, he also raised his head and howled loudly, "Linley! The two of you, hurry and flee for your lives! If we have the chance, we'll meet again!"

That furious roar shook the heavens!

Underground, Linley and Bebe were fleeing in sorry shape as well. Oman clearly was an expert who trained in the Laws of the Earth, and his underground senses were quite accurate. Although by relying on the Blackstone Space, Linley and Bebe were able to maintain a distance of a few hundred meters, Oman was still able to easily locate where the two of them were.

Oman was fixed on Linley and Bebe, unwilling to let them go.

"Linley! The two of you, hurry and flee for your lives! If we have the chance, we'll meet again!" This thunderous roar echoed even underground, and both Linley and Bebe heard it.

"Boss, it seems like Reisgem isn't doing that well either." Bebe sent mentally.

"There's only a single person chasing after us. There are seven others after them! Perhaps the seven don't dare kill Reisgem, but they'll dare to kill Reihom. Let's go. Let's not just stay in this region." Although Linley was currently fleeing, he was consistently running around in circles. He had been hoping to be able to escape alongside Reisgem and Reihom.

But now, it seemed, the situation was already terrible and that there was no choice but to have everyone split up.

Whoosh...

Linley and Bebe didn't care which direction they had to flee towards; they selected one and accelerated, flying outwards in a straight line.

"Swoosh!" "Swoosh!" The two suddenly emerged from the ground.

"The two of you, don't even think of escaping." Oman surged out from underground at almost the same instance.

Linley and Bebe turned to look. Oman was actually following from just a few hundred meters behind. That distance could be traversed by commanders, given their speed, in just the blink of an eye. Linley and Bebe were unable to escape Oman's field of vision; now that they were aboveground, Oman could track them with his eyes.

Underground, Oman was able to rely on his senses and attunement to the earth to locate where Linley and Bebe were.

Bebe bellowed, "Hey, Oman, aren't you tired, chasing us like this?"

"I'm bored to death here in the Planar Battlefield anyhow. I'm in no rush. Even if I have to chase for two more days, I'll catch up to you two." Oman seemed to be quite relaxed, and snickered, "In terms of speed, you two are much slower than me! If it weren't for the fact that you are able to rely on something similar to Reisgem's Amethyst Space, how would you be able to shake me off?" As he spoke, Oman drew parallel to Linley and Bebe; only, the two maintained a distance of a few hundred meters.

Oman's natural speed was indeed faster than Linley and Bebe's.

But in the Blackstone Space, there was no way Oman was able to draw close to Linley.

"If you just chase like this, you'll never be able to catch us." Bebe said loudly.

"Once you run out of Sovereign power, even if you have this gravitational space, it won't be able to stop me." Oman snickered.

Indeed. Without Sovereign power behind it, the power of the Blackstone Space would drop dramatically. Oman, by relying on his own Sovereign power, was completely capable of resisting the Blackstone Space to draw closer to Linley and Bebe.

"Haha...you want to use up our Sovereign power?" Linley couldn't help but laugh loudly. "Mr. Oman, just keep chasing."

Linley was in no rush either. He continued to flee in a straight line, moving farther and farther away from the original site.

Moments later...

Linley's Sovereign power finally was used up, and the black aura emanating from Linley's body vanished.

"Haha!" Oman laughed loudly, moving lightning-fast into the Blackstone Space's zone. Indeed, the power of the gravity of the Blackstone Space was now much weaker, and although Oman was slowed down, he was still a good deal faster than Linley and Bebe. "Prepare to die." Oman was currently in an excellent mood. He was finally going to kill these two hard-to-deal-with punks.

But right then...

"BANG!" Linley's body once more radiated a black glow, and instantly, the power of the Blackstone Space increased yet again. Linley and Bebe both increased in speed as well.

"More Sovereign's Might." Oman was stunned, and his speed lessened.

"Oman, you want to compete with us in Sovereign power attrition?" Bebe snickered. "Go for it. We're happy to oblige."

At the same time, the scope of the Blackstone Space shrank, down from five hundred meters to one hundred meters. This scope was enough to guarantee their safety; although the size was less, the rate at which it used up Sovereign power was slower as well.

"It seems you have quite a bit of Sovereign's Might." Oman was rather hesitant now.

"Of course. My bro Reisgem is the son of the Redbud Sovereign." Bebe snickered. "Come, I want to see how much Sovereign's Might the Chief Sovereign of Light gave you.”

Oman was stunned.

He knew how much Sovereign’s Might Reisgem possessed. As Sovereigns saw it, if an Emissary died, they could find another one; they didn’t care at all, unless it was someone who was a Paragon or at Beirut’s level. Thus, they couldn’t possibly give their Emissary’s that much Sovereign’s Might. To give a few dozen drops at once was a sign of great favor already.

But for the Sovereign’s children?

Oman knew that the second and third generation members of the Augusta clan each had large amounts of Sovereign’s Might, and that was despite the fact that there were more than a thousand members in the second and third generation. As for Reisgem, there was just him; how much Sovereign’s Might did he have, then? As many commanders saw it, Reisgem was an absolute tycoon. They envied him! But Reisgem was no fool; aside from his friends and brothers, he would never hand out Sovereign’s Might to others.

“Can it be that Reisgem gave a large amount of his Sovereign’s Might to these two?” Oman wondered.

Prior to this, he hadn’t considered this possibility, because in his heart, he always viewed Sovereign’s Might as being precious. He had considered things from his own viewpoint; he wouldn’t be willing to give it to his friends. He had forgotten, however...that from Reisgem’s viewpoint, the situation was different.

"Continuing after these two is nothing more than a waste of Sovereign's Might." Oman frowned. "I'm not going to compete with them!" Oman didn't say a single word; he very straightforwardly turned and left. In virtually the blink of an eye, he disappeared into the horizons of the battlefield.

Only now did Linley and Bebe come to a halt.

"He left?" Bebe began to laugh.

"He wasn't willing to use up his Sovereign's Might." Linley sighed. It really was different, having so much Sovereign's Might. In the past, he was extremely careful in how he used it; unless it was a life-or-death situation, he wouldn't use it.

"We've used two or three drops, but the canteen is virtually unchanged." Linley sighed to himself.

Two or three drops, to a canteen, was like a single hair on the skin of an ox.

"Boss, we've split up with Reisgem and Reihom." Bebe said with a frown.

Linley stared at his surroundings; it was silent and desolate.

"It's up to luck. We'll see if we encounter them again." Linley said with a frown. "Right now, we need to find a place to rest. I haven't had a chance to carefully inspect that crown yet. Let's go!"

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 35, A Rock

Two black blurs were moving forward at high speed, while right behind them were seven other blurs, chasing and attacking. Only, the seven behind the two were some distance apart from each other.

“This Reisgem’s speed is too fast. Only you, young master, are just barely able to keep up. The others aren’t able to keep up. What should we do?” A silver-haired elder followed Montelo while sending frantically. The two of them both trained in the Laws of Light, and were specialized in speed. As for the others, they trained in water and Fate, and they weren’t skilled in speed.

“Chase!”

Montelo stared fixedly at the two forms up ahead.

“Rumble...” Suddenly, the earth rose up, and a large number of boulders shot up out of the ground. Every single boulder flowed with black light; clearly, every single boulder contained Destruction-type Sovereign power.

Montelo and his people didn’t care about the boulders, but they didn’t dare to underestimate the power of Destruction-type Sovereign power.

“Bang!” “Bang!”

Montelo and the rest of the seven either dodged aside or smashed the boulders apart. These weren’t too much of a threat to them, but it did slow them down.

"They pulled away yet again!" Montelo narrowed his eyes, anger roiling within his chest. "This Reisgem actually has a helper like him, and is willing to use up a large amount of Sovereign power to use these techniques..." Suddenly, Montelo noticed that the Sovereign power in his body had already slowly dried up. He couldn't help but sigh to himself. "Forget it. It is enough that we were able to put Reisgem in such a bad situation, this time."

"Halt!" Montelo barked.

After he halted, the other six halted as well.

Although Montelo had used up a drop of Sovereign's Might, the other six hadn't used it all up yet. After all, Montelo had immediately used those countless white strands to entangle Reisgem from the very beginning, and had been constantly using up his Sovereign power. Previously, he had used up too much, and so it was only natural that he was the first to exhaust it.

"Stop chasing. This is just a waste of Sovereign's Might. I don't have enough Sovereign's Might to just throw it away on Reisgem." Montelo snickered. "Reisgem, that punk. He's always so arrogant, but this time, we made him flee in such a sorry shape. That's enough."

The silver-robed Ranessa snorted. "It's enough for you, but we three don't even have a single badge to show for it."

Montelo glanced at Ranessa, then chortled, "Ranessa, there will be more chances in the future. Right, in a bit, Oman will return. He definitely must have killed those two people. If he acquired any badges, we'll give them to you. What say you?"

"I'll take you at your word." Ranessa finally revealed a hint of a smile.

Right at this moment...

"Montelo, I, Reisgem, will remember this!" Reisgem's bellowing voice could be heard from far away.

Hearing the resentment and anger in that bellow, Montelo wasn't frightened at all; instead, he began to laugh loudly. He said to the other six, "Haha, everyone, hear that? Reisgem is utterly furious! Last time, we killed that Bosley, but he wasn't able to do anything to us either. This time, we gave him yet another lesson. Even if I stood right in front of him, he wouldn't be able to do anything to me."

"Young master, you have a defensive Sovereign artifact. At most, Reisgem will be able to just rant. What can he actually do? Can it be that the Sovereign will interfere for a minor matter like this?" The green-haired maiden laughed.

Montelo and Reisgem weren't able to do anything to each other.

However, Montelo clearly had more assistants than Reisgem did. Thus, it was normal for Reisgem to suffer more losses.

"Mm, Oman's returning." Montelo suddenly turned to look.

Montelo's side currently had six people emanating the aura of Sovereign's Might. Six auras of Sovereign's Might was as brilliant a beacon as the sun, here in the Planar Battlefield. Who wouldn't be able to sense it? Oman was easily able to follow the aura to arrive at high speed to this place.

"Montelo, remember your promise." Ranessa laughed lightly.

"Of course." Montelo nodded very confidently.

"Oman." Montelo smiled as he welcomed him. Although Oman followed him, he was the Sovereign's Emissary, a wielder of two Sovereign artifacts. He was exceedingly powerful.

Oman landed. "Young master."

"Right. Earlier, Ms. Ranessa and I agreed that after killing Reisgem's people, the badges we acquired would go to Ms. Ranessa. Hand over those two badges to me." Montelo said with a laugh.

Oman shook his head. "I didn't acquire the badges."

Hearing these words, Montelo's face went blank, while the face of the nearby Ranessa turned cold. With a snicker, she said, "Oh. We all know very well how powerful Mr. Oman is; can it be that you weren't able to kill those two kids? I imagine you killed them and took their badges, but aren't willing to hand them over."

Two commander badges were indeed items of great preciousness.

"Hm?" Oman let out a cold snort, turning his head to stare hard at Ranessa. "What did you say? Did you call me, Oman, a liar?"

Ranessa raised an eyebrow, then chuckled, "What, Mr. Oman, are you trying to use your power to suppress us?"

"If I say I didn't acquire them, then I didn't acquire them! Don't go too far!" Oman snorted coldly. There was no way he could prove something like this.

But clearly, as far as Ranessa was concerned, Oman was an extremely formidable commander, while Linley and Bebe were people who Ranessa had never seen before; they shouldn't be too powerful. Thus, she was certain that Oman must have killed them.

"Haha..." Ranessa let out a calm laugh. "Since that's what you say, Mr. Oman, then of course I will believe your words. Let's leave!"

Ranessa clearly knew that there was nothing here for her; how could she be willing to stay?

The other two youths immediately flew away with Ranessa as well.

"They left." Montelo turned to look at Oman, then laughed, "Oman, now you can tell me; did you kill those two or not?" Montelo believed that Oman had lied earlier as well.

"I really did not." Oman shook his head. "Those two weren't weak either. That Azure Dragon clan youth was able to take several of my blows head on without dying. As for that other youngster, his body took a blow head on with my Sovereign weapon, but he didn't die either. Afterwards, I chased them, but the youth of the Azure Dragon clan had a Gravitational Space ability that was similar to Reisgem's; I wasn't able to catch them, so I had to give up.

Montelo frowned.

"That youngster took a blow head on with his body? It seems he must have a defensive Sovereign artifact. That youth of the Azure Dragon clan is also capable of the Amethyst Space technique? His relationship with Reisgem must be quite deep. Forget it. Let's find a place to rest, first." Montelo immediately led his group of five in departing from this place.

In the desolate wilderness, Linley and Bebe were stealthily advancing. Currently, their Sovereign power was already depleted. Earlier, when Linley was radiating Sovereign power, others would easily find them, and so Linley naturally had flown forward quickly. Now that the Sovereign power was exhausted, Linley chose to carefully advance.

"Boss, what should we do in the future?" Bebe sent.

"There are two or three more centuries before the final battle of this Planar War. I hope that before that, I'll make a breakthrough and fuse a fourth profound mystery." Linley knew that every single person who dared to roam across the Planar Battlefield was a top-tier commander. "After I fuse my fourth profound mystery, I'll go out roaming again. By then, I'll be strong enough to do so."

A person's power was dependent on their base strength, their profound mysteries, and their weapons.

For example, Hemmers, whose original form was that of a golden mountain which had been nurtured for countless years by the Divine Earth Plane itself, then birthed. His body's strength was enormously great, and even without fusing any profound mysteries, he surpassed most Seven Star Fiends and was close to the power of an Asura. This was a reason why he was made a Sovereign's Emissary immediately upon being born.

After having fused four mysteries, Linley didn't dare to block his fists at all.

Even an empty-air punch was capable of penetrating Linley's chest. The terrifying power of his strikes were already comparable to Highgod Paragons. His base level of strength was simply too great.

Linley's own base power naturally couldn't compare to Hemmers. Still, he was still vastly superior to ordinary Highgods.

"Once I increase in strength tenfold, I won't fear those people any longer."

Linley and Bebe were looking for a place to rest. They didn't pay attention to or notice that a piece of rubble that was less than a hundred meters away in the desolate wilderness. The ground had too many of these pieces of stone; who would pay attention to one in particular?

"Someone is finally coming this way. From the looks of it, the youth is the leader. I'll first ambush and kill him, the strong one, then dispose of the weak one."

Very suddenly...

"Swoosh!" The rock shot towards Linley at high speed.

Linley, while walking forward, found to his amazement that a rock had suddenly shot towards him. "Someone's here!" Linley immediately grew cautious. He instantly Dragonformed, while at the same time spread out his Blackstone Space, spreading it to a distance of five hundred meters. Instantly, the rock that had entered the Blackstone Space sank down, but it was already very close to Linley.

"Bang!"

The rock suddenly disappeared, transforming into a person.

"Another expert of the Laws of the Earth." Linley was startled as well.

Originally, Linley had thought that someone had shot the rock out towards him...but the rock was actually a transformed expert of the Laws of the Earth. Linley had to sigh in praise at the ability of his ambusher in concealing his aura; it was already on nearly the same level as Reisgem.

A ray of blinding saber-light slashed out, traversing the distance of less than ten meters. In an instant, Linley's field of vision became filled with nothing but that dazzling saber light.

When that saber chopped out, space itself twisted!

"Clang!"

This dominating, unstoppable blade suddenly emitted a bizarre clanging sound, and its strength weakened as well.

"Eh?" The assassin was stunned. "An invisible sword?" Prior to this, he hadn't noticed it, but now, with his divine sense spread out, he realized that Linley was holding a sword in his hand, a sword that couldn't be seen with the naked eye!

"Swoosh!" That assassin, having failed with his first saber-chop, immediately turned to flee.

"Lupe [Luo'pu], you are going to flee after failing on the first attack?" Linley's loud, clear laughter rang out. "Better for you to stay here!" After having seen that saber attack, Linley, who had gone through Beirut's documents, already knew who it was. This was an expert of the Laws of the Earth, Lupe. At the same time, Linley felt a surge of fear; if it hadn't been for the fact that his Blackstone Space had caused Lupe to reveal his true form a bit earlier and slowed him down, that earlier attack most likely would have put Linley in grave danger.

As soon as Linley's words came out, the Blackstone Space changed the direction of gravity!

The downwards gravity transformed to pull towards Linley!

"Eh?" The figure's speed immediately lessened greatly.

Linley knew what this Lupe's abilities were; Lupe specialized in subterfuge and stealth! He was also extremely fast! However, now that he was trapped within Linley's 'Blackstone Space', Lupe had met his perfect counter; his speed and his stealth abilities could no longer save him.

"Eh?" Feeling the changing direction of the gravitational pull, Lupe was instantly shocked.

"Not good!" Lupe had already begun to feel regret after seeing Linley's transformation; he was certain that as a member of the Azure Dragon clan, Linley was definitely capable of the clan's innate divine ability. "I wouldn't necessarily be able to defeat this expert of the Azure Dragon clan, and he has a subordinate with him. If we really start to fight...not good!"

He didn't hesitate any further at all.

"Bang!" Gritting his teeth, Lupe used up his precious, sole drop of Sovereign's Might. Instantly, a strong earthen yellow glow emerged from his body.

Seeing the situation, Linley didn't hesitate at all; his body, as well, exploded forth with a black aura. Lupe, amongst commanders, was considered below average in strength; only, he was fairly famous for his stealth abilities, and also extremely fast.

“What? He is using up Sovereign’s Might as well? This Azure Dragon clan punk is really willing...” Lupe, seeing the situation, felt his heart shake.

“This sort of opponent is perfect for practicing against!” Linley sent to Bebe. “Bebe, don’t interfere. This Lupe’s attack power is comparable to mine, but he’s fused more profound mysteries of the Laws of the Earth than I have! He’s perfect for training against. I might even gain an insight.”

Bebe snickered back, “Fine, Boss. I’ll just watch.” Bebe intentionally retreated to a distance of a hundred meters, giving Linley and Lupe more than enough space to fight.

Knowing that it was Lupe, Bebe was no longer worried.

“Hmph.” Lupe, seeing the situation, felt rage in his heart. He could tell that the opponents didn’t feel him as being worthy of concern. “If it wasn’t for this Gravitational Space, you wouldn’t even be able to touch me.” Lupe felt the power of the Gravitational Space increase greatly as well; he wouldn’t be able to escape. Since he wouldn’t be able to escape, his only option was to fight!

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 36, Blood Binding, Crown

Lupe trained in the Laws of the Earth, and had fused five of them.

Of the six profound mysteries of the Laws of the Earth, the only one he had not been able to fuse with the others was 'Gravitational Space'. He had completely fused the other five. After having fused 'Vitality', 'Worldwalking', 'Throbbing Pulse of the World', 'Strength', and 'Essence of the Earth', he created an extremely powerful Worldwalking technique, while devising a way so that his spiritual energy would form a continuous loop within his mind, not letting a single hint of his aura leak out.

He had reached an exceedingly high level in stealth and fleeing.

However, whenever there is a gain, there is a loss; his saber attacks contained only four fused profound mysteries. As for 'Worldwalking', there was no way for him to fuse that into his saber.

"Whoosh!" Lupe moved through the 'Blackstone Space' like a slippery fish, constantly moving about at high speed.

But Linley easily moved to follow him, always blocking in front of him.

"It's uncertain who will be the one to die." Lupe growled mentally, and the warblade in his hand silently sliced through the air, chopping towards Linley's skull. In the instant that Linley's 'Mirage' godspark sword collided with the warblade, with a 'bang!', the saber's energy exploded outwards.

“Bang!”

One saber, one sword!

Linley’s body trembled slightly as he retreated. “Haha, excellent!” Linley laughed loudly, then charged forward again, but unfortunately for Lupe, his weapon was slightly inferior to Linley’s godspark sword.

“He’s relying on his weapon.” Lupe also realized that Linley’s weapon was extraordinary. Feeling resentment, Lupe’s eyes turned cold, and suddenly, his index finger and middle finger of his left hand suddenly struck out, and a translucent sword-finger ray shot towards Linley, at a speed so fast that it directly entered Linley’s mind.

This was a soul attack!

“Haha...Lupe, it’s best if you don’t show off that bit of soul attack prowess you have.” Linley didn’t even care about it. Experts of the Laws of the Earth were never skilled in soul attacks to begin with, and Lupe himself didn’t specialize in soul attacks either. How powerful could his attacks be? Linley, just by relying on his spiritual energy alone, was able to defeat the attack.

Lupe had only attacked in such a way due to having no other options.

“Is that so?” Lupe laughed coldly, his attacks becoming all the wilder. Linley was more than happy to accompany him in the fight.

“Clang!”

Linley and Lupe's forms constantly exchanged blows, but clearly, the two were on par. As Linley saw it, Lupe's power amongst commanders really was towards the lower end as well. "He doesn't even have a single Sovereign artifact; indeed, his only option is to rely on ambushes. However, it is worth my time to learn his sort of stealth techniques."

Linley could guess that Lupe had definitely fused 'Worldwalking' amongst his profound mysteries.

In addition, that saber blow which held the power in abeyance, then made it all explode forth at once.

"This saber blow can be said to have mastered and executed the Profound Mysteries of Strength to a perfect level." Linley continued to exchange blows with Lupe, with the intentions of training his swordplay. As for Lupe, his goal was to seize any opportunity to kill Linley and thus get a chance of escaping this battle.

"Slash!"

Linley's sword shot out.

Lupe actually delivered a backhanded blow with his saber, sliding his saber against the flat of Linley's sword and pressing down with a blow towards Linley's body.

"Oh? He's really going all out." At this critical moment, only a 'swish' was heard and an azure-golden blur seen as Linley's draconic tail, carrying a terrifying surge of force, smashed viciously against the warblade. In terms of toughness, Linley's draconic tail wasn't weaker than Highgod artifacts at all.

The warblade was knocked off-balance. "Slash!" It originally would have struck Linley on his head, but now, it slashed Linley on the chest. After having been struck by the draconic tail, the blow of this saber was now weaker; it just barely broke through the scales, drawing forth a hint of blood.

"Slash!"

Linley's Mirage sliced through Lupe's head, severing it from his body.

Once one's head was separated from one's body, that was virtually a guarantee of death! After all, even though the spirit might be present, the body could no longer be controlled to fight back; it was as good as defeat.

"You were pretty vicious, but the end result was your death." Linley looked at the flying head.

"If I had a Sovereign artifact, the result would definitely be different." Lupe's head bellowed. He knew that he had to die.

"Swish!" Linley's Mirage flashed with light, and Lupe's voice came to a halt, and a thin red line appeared through his head.

At this moment, Lupe's Highgod artifacts, interspatial ring, and a gold badge all fell out.

"If you had a Sovereign artifact, the results would be different?" Bebe flew over, chuckling. "Everyone can say that. If my Boss had a Sovereign-level soul protecting artifact, defensive artifact, and weapon, aside from Paragons, who would he fear?"

Linley shook his head and sighed to himself.

This world was a world where the strong devoured the weak. Strength was exalted. People had to rely on their own abilities to acquire Sovereign weapons as well!

Only the strong would be valued and be made Emissaries, and be bestowed a Sovereign artifact. Only the strong would acquire sufficient military merits and be able to trade for a Sovereign artifact. Everything depended on individual effort. As for the children of Sovereigns, they did indeed have a great advantage, but sometimes luck, too, was part of one's power.

"This Lupe's ambushing abilities weren't bad. Unfortunately, once the battle really begins, he's definitely one of the weakest commanders. It makes sense that a Sovereign wouldn't select him as an Emissary." Linley shook his head and sighed. "Thus, as far as the profound mysteries go, even amongst those who have fused five profound mysteries, there are still differences in power."

There were six profound mysteries of the Laws of the Earth. Upon fusing five of them, there were six possible fusion results, with the different fusions resulting in different specialty areas.

"This commander badge was fairly easy to acquire." Linley collected the gold badge, feeling joy in his heart. "I now have three badges. I'm only lacking for one more."

"Bebe, let's go."

Linley and Bebe moved at high speed, leaving the scene of the battle.

A place like the Planar Battlefield was a place where the experts who entered had to be mentally prepared for death. Some experts had to die in order for others to live.

Deep within the heart of an ordinary, large mountain in the Planar Battlefield. Linley and Bebe had carved out a cave for them to temporarily live in. This cave was separated from the outside world by hundreds of meters of mountain rocks; generally speaking, commanders wouldn't be able to use their divine sense to scan inside here.

But of course, there were three exceptions.

One was if they used Sovereign power to do the scanning.

The second was a Highgod Paragon. They had very large scanning ranges as well.

As for the third, that was Highgod Soul Mutates. Soul Mutates had very special souls, and their souls were generally far stronger than the souls of ordinary Highgods. But of course, there were differences amongst Soul Mutates as well. The chances of a successful soul mutation with two different types of divine power was decent; the vast majority of soul mutates were in possession of two types of divine power, with Olivier being on this level as well. But virtually all individuals who had three types of divine power and yet underwent a soul mutation would die. In the entire Infernal Realm, there was only a single person who successfully underwent and survived a soul mutation with three types of divine power. And as for the soul power of three-power Soul Mutates, it was extraordinarily great!

As for those who underwent a soul mutation while having access to four types of divine power, in the countless planes of the multiverse, over the countless years, there had never been a single successful case. No one had any idea what the result would be, if a person with four types of divine power underwent a soul mutation.

Within the cave.

Linley was hefting that tattered crown, staring carefully at it and inspecting it. The crown didn't have a hint of luster to it; if he tossed it into a rubbish pile, even if a Deity noticed it, they wouldn't pay it any attention.

The nearby Bebe stared at it as well. After a long time, he mumbled, "Boss, is there something special about this tattered crown? Why can't I see anything special about it? It makes me feel as though it is just an ordinary item."

"It isn't."

Linley shook his head. "Still, I can't see anything special about it either."

When Linley had received that surge of unusual energy from the crown, it had healed his wounds. In addition, this thing had flown out from chaotic space; Linley naturally was certain that it was extraordinary.

"I know it's not ordinary; anything that can survive in and fly out of chaotic space is either a godspark weapon or a Sovereign artifact." Bebe stared carefully at the crown. "But for it to be in the shape of a crown...as I see it, it should be a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact." This was Bebe's judgment.

"If it really is a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact, given how tattered it is, it should be a damaged Sovereign artifact." Linley laughed.

If the master of a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact was still alive, there was no way that the Sovereign artifact could be damaged! A damaged soul-protecting Sovereign artifact meant that the defenses of the artifact had been breached, and the master had died!

"There's only one option right now." Linley nodded slightly as he spoke.

"Boss, quick, give it a try." Bebe urged.

The only option was...to bind it with blood!

Linley stretched out his index finger. With but a thought, a drop of fresh blood oozed out of his skin, then dripped down onto the crown.

"Eh?" Bebe stared.

"Eh?" Linley frowned.

The drop of blood hit the crown...and it then it splattered and rolled down onto the ground.

"It wasn't absorbed?" Linley was puzzled.

"What's going on? This thing has an owner?" Bebe frowned.

Linley pondered for a moment, then nodded. "There's one possibility. The owner of the crown might have been fighting in the Planar Battlefield, and then died, with the Sovereign artifact falling into chaotic space. However, the owner of the crown still has a divine clone outside, and so there is no way to bind it with blood."

"Makes sense! Ah, wait! Boss." Bebe suddenly said. "This crown is damaged, but there is no way for chaotic space to damage a Sovereign artifact, right? There is no way for Highgods to damage Sovereign artifacts either."

Linley was stunned. He couldn't help but nod slightly.

When Highgods did battle, generally speaking, after one died, the Sovereign artifact would be completely undamaged. There was no way for the power of a Highgod to damage a Sovereign artifact.

"Can it be that the owner of this crown was a Sovereign?" This was Linley's guess. "This crown was then damaged in a battle between Sovereigns, just like my Coiling Dragon ring?"

"If it was a Sovereign, then, the Sovereign definitely must have fallen." Bebe said. "If the Sovereign fell, the other Sovereign who killed him definitely wouldn't have spared his clones; he definitely would have pulled up the grass by the roots. This crown should then be an ownerless item. It should be bindable by blood."

Linley didn't understand either.

He was able to bind the Coiling Dragon ring with blood, but not this crown.

Still, for now, this was all speculation.

"Forget it." Linley shook his head. "Bebe, if we can't figure it out, let's not worry about it. Long story short, there's no way to bind it with blood. Perhaps...this crown isn't a Sovereign artifact at all."

"What else, besides a Sovereign artifact, can survive in chaotic space?" Bebe mumbled.

Linley and Bebe couldn't understand it. Based on the knowledge available to them, the only thing that could survive in chaotic space, aside from Sovereign artifacts and godspark weapons, was perhaps divine sparks! As for ordinary materials made of ores or metals, there was no way they would be able to survive in chaotic space.

Unable to get a clear understanding of the crown, Linley had to give up for now. He stored it back into his interspatial ring, and then, based on his earlier line of thoughts, began to train. Only three hundred years remained from now until the final battle of the Planar War. Linley wanted to make a breakthrough in advance.

"That blade blow of Lupe's..."

Completely storing up all the power, and then letting it all explode forth with amazing force.

"The fists of Hemmers..."

That utterly unblockable punch...it continued to swirl about Linley's consciousness.

"That spiked mace of the golden-robed man..."

Linley carefully pondered the attacks of that spiked mace as well.

Over the past few years, he had encountered many experts of the Laws of the Earth, such as the Redcliff Lord or Bailey...

Every single one of those experts of the Laws of the Earth had analyzed and developed a supreme technique that belonged to them. But those were their techniques, not his! Still, Linley wanted to discover some of the secrets behind those supreme techniques, hoping to find something which would help him suddenly break through the bottleneck he was face. And just like that, Linley began to tirelessly analyze them.

Bebe, utterly bored, just rested there within the cave, his eyes half-lidded as he occasionally munched on fruit. He was currently controlling a Deathgod Golem outside. "It has been three years, but we only encountered a single person. And that person wasn't someone that was easy to deal with. The weaker people have all hidden away, as cowardly as rats. Uh...wait. I'm a rat as well."

Bebe suddenly turned to look at Linley.

"Huh?" Bebe's eyebrows rose slightly.

A large amount of earth elemental essence suddenly appeared around Linley's body. Slowly, with Linley at the center, it formed into an earthen yellow sphere.

"What's going on with the Boss?" Bebe didn't understand.

"Whoosh!"

Very strangely, the earthen yellow aura suddenly contracted, from a size of three meters to just a tiny dot. This sort of high-speed contraction actually caused a spatial tremor, and the ripples from this tremor caused the stones nearby which were within the cave to instantly transform into dust. The entire cave had just transformed into a giant sphere.

At this moment, Linley opened his eyes, a hint of a smile on his face.

"Boss? You...broke through?" Bebe guessed.

Linley looked at Bebe. He nodded slightly.

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 37, Supreme Technique

Bebe was stunned...and then, he was wildly overjoyed. He tossed the half-eaten fruit in his hands to one side. "Haha, Boss, I knew you would definitely make a breakthrough within three centuries. I was right, wasn't I? It's only been three years, but you broke through the bottleneck!" In fusing profound mysteries, the farther one went along, the harder it was.

Once one broke through, it represented that one's power would rise exponentially!

"I did indeed break through. I broke through before the final battle." Linley felt very excited, from the bottom of his heart. The rise in difficulty from fusing three types of profound mysteries to four types was simply too hard. Now, in the Planar Battlefield, he finally was no longer a bottom-level commander. If he encountered some formidable commanders, he'd be able to give them a fight.

A commander who truly feared no challengers had to be completely flawless. In the past, Linley's soul defense was weak, but now, in terms of soul defense, he was no longer a weakling, having fused four profound mysteries and also having the support of his innate azure soul glow, as well as that damaged soul-protecting Sovereign artifact. In fact, Linley no longer even feared the soul attacks of experts on the level of Reisgem and Montelo.

But of course...if he ran into any Highgod Paragons, Linley would still have to run. Not just Linley; even if Reisgem encountered a Highgod Paragon, he wouldn't be able to fight back.

"I wanted to go out and have a wild battle long ago. Now that you made a breakthrough, Boss, let's head out." Bebe was absolutely delighted. "We've been in this damn place for nearly six centuries. It's time for we two bros to show our might." Bebe was utterly brimming with confidence.

Linley just laughed, then shook his head. "Don't be impatient."

"How can I not be impatient? I'm impatient!" Bebe pursed his lips intentionally. "You've increased your power. Do we still have to hide here?"

"No. Although I've successfully fused four profound mysteries, I haven't developed an attack which suits me yet." Linley laughed.

Fusing different types of profound mysteries would result in different types of powerful attacks.

Some were skilled in support techniques, while others were skilled in soul attacks or material attacks or stealth and subterfuge...in short, after fusing profound mysteries, they would develop techniques suited to them.

In the past, Linley's primary skills were the 'Blackstone Space' and the 'Firmament Splitter'.

However, Linley had risen in power. His supreme techniques would naturally have to change as well.

“Oh, develop a supreme technique?” Bebe chortled, then sat down by the side of the cave. “Boss, develop as much as you want. I’ll just watch here without saying a thing! Right...it won’t take you too long to develop a technique, will it?”

“I already have some ideas. It should be fairly fast.” Linley said with a laugh.

And then, Linley began to develop his supreme technique. Days passed in constant testing. Linley, for fear of damaging the cave, created a miniature Blackstone Prison, constantly testing within it. Even if energy leaked out from him, it would be kept within the Blackstone Prison.

Utter darkness. Not a hint of light could be seen from the Blackstone Jail.

Linley stood there, his mind flickering through one image after another.

“This material defense should begin with my former ‘Pulseguard Armor’, then modify it...” Linley, in the past, didn’t care too much about material defense, because his Dragonformed body was already powerful enough. However, now that he had fused four profound mysteries, once he used that and Sovereign’s Might to reinforce his supreme defensive technique, the defensive power would be comparable to his Dragonformed body. Naturally, Linley wouldn’t mind adding an extra layer of defense.

Within the dark, lightless Blackstone Prison, Linley continuously analyzed.

"Crackle..."

Divine earth power continued to flow out from Linley's body. In Linley's mind, one mechanism after another for using power sprang to mind, and the divine earth power surrounding his body continued to change methods nonstop.

His original body and his divine earth clone joined together in training. After spending eleven days, Linley finally developed a supreme defensive technique that he was satisfied with.

"This armor, if formed from divine earth power, is inferior in strength to my Dragonform. However, when relying on Sovereign power, the power exceeds that of Dragonform. Right. This armor formed from divine earth power...I'll just call it my 'earth armor'." Linley couldn't be bothered to think too much about it, so he casually picked a name, then continued to analyze his soul defense techniques.

Linley cared deeply about his soul defense.

After all, a person's soul was his foundation. In Linley's sea of consciousness, a large amount of spiritual power roiled about, and one sort of technique for using energy after another was being tested by him.

The Laws of the Earth were extremely deep and profound. They were divided into six profound mysteries, and mastering each of them individually was nothing more than gaining a basic understanding of the Laws of the Earth. Only by fusing them...could one truly gain a deeper understanding of the Laws.

For example, the 'Throbbing Pulse of the World' started with increasing to a total of 256 layers, and then was constantly fused and simplified down into a single wave. It was the same principle...the more one fused the mysteries of the Laws of the Earth, the more thoroughly one understood them. Linley had fused four of them, and this resulted in a major increase in power for him, in both soul defense and material defense.

"A constant, unbroken cycle, advancing on one side, continuing on the other...this sort of soul defense is enough."

After spending nine days, Linley's soul defense reached a limit as well. Unless Linley was able to gain an even greater understanding of the profound mysteries, his methods for using the Laws had reached a limit.

"In twenty days, I've mastered a way for soul defense and for material defense. Now...I need to focus on the most important of all. A material attack."

Linley knew very well that as the mysteries he had fused were the 'Throbbing Pulse of the World', 'Essence of the Earth', 'Strength', and 'Gravitational Space (Geomagnetism)', the fusion of these were suited most for material attacks. In addition, in Dragonform, his body was incredibly strong; to not use it for material attacks was a huge waste.

Linley immediately began to focus on developing a supreme attacking technique.

Analyzing supreme techniques was quite complicated.

For example, soul defense; it had nothing to do with any part of the 'Essence of the Earth'. As for material defense, it had nothing to do with 'Gravitational Space'. Thus, it was much easier to develop techniques.

But supreme attack techniques were different. This would involve all four mysteries.

Time flowed on like water, moving past silently. In the blink of an eye, Linley had spent two full months working in the Blackstone Prison.

Within the cave.

"Hmph!" Bebe wrinkled his nose, glancing sideways at the still-present Blackstone Prison. "The Boss said it would be 'very fast', but it's been sixty three days, and he's still not done."

Suddenly...

Silently, noiselessly, the Blackstone Prison dissipated, the energy returning to the world and leaving behind a Linley who was dressed in a blue robe and whose eyes were closed. He stood there, still holding Mirage in his hand. Clearly, Linley hadn't filled it with his divine power, as one could still clearly see Mirage in his hand.

"Haha!" Bebe immediately hopped over.

Linley opened his eyes and glanced over, his face filled with smiles.

"Boss, you succeeded?" Bebe chortled.

"Right. I succeeded." Linley laughed and nodded.

"How strong is it?" Bebe said with anticipation.

"Much stronger than before, of course." Linley said with a calm laugh. "That 'Firmament Splitter' of mine only fused two profound mysteries; the 'Throbbing Pulse of the World' and 'Strength'. This was because there was no way for me to add the 'Essence of the Earth' into it. But...now that I fused 'Gravitational Space', I am able to add the 'Essence of the Earth' into my attack as well. It now has four types of profound mysteries. The power of this sword is tens of times more powerful than in the past!"

Linley was extremely confident. In the past, his sword had relied primarily on the strength of his Dragonform, which was why he was able to threaten other commanders.

But now, just by relying on his mastery of the profound mysteries, Linley was able to be on roughly the same level as other commanders. With the added strength of his Dragonform as well as Mirage, Linley was now qualified to be confident.

"Hoho, Boss, give it a try, give it a try." Bebe called out excitedly, staring at Linley.

Linley smiled and nodded.

"When battling, I will first set up my Blackstone Space, then use this sword blow." Linley laughed as he spread out his Blackstone Space and a powerful gravitational. Just as Linley was about to execute his sword blow, upon seeing the earthen yellow aura that was glowing due to his 'Blackstone Space', Linley suddenly came to a halt, standing there stupidly.

Bebe was startled, immediately asking, "Hey, Boss, what are you doing?"

But Linley seemed to not have heard him.

"What's the Boss doing? Didn't he say he was going to show it off for me?" Bebe didn't understand.

"Haha..."

Linley suddenly began to laugh loudly.

"Boss, what is it, what is it?" Bebe said frantically.

"So I can do it as well. So I can do it as well! I'm too foolish, too foolish!" Linley's face was filled with wild joy.

"Boss?" Bebe hurriedly called.

Only now did Linley think of Bebe. Turning his head, he laughed. "Bebe, just now, I suddenly thought of something, which is why I was rather excited."

"Thought of something?" Bebe frowned.

"Right!" Linley nodded and laughed. "Do you remember how, when we encountered that Highgod Paragon, 'Bayer', his attack against you locked your movements, right?"

"Right." Bebe thought back to that scene and felt helpless once more. "That attack of his...when it came, I felt as though space itself was squeezing me. My speed dropped dramatically. Actually, I was able to move; only, my speed dropped so much, tens of times slower than normal. At such a slow speed, in a real fight, it meant I would be slaughtered."

Linley chortled. "Just now, when I saw my 'Blackstone Space', I suddenly thought that person, I too can make the enemy feel as though space is compressing him, and make him feel like a fish who was trapped in mud, his speed lowered greatly."

"Eh?" Bebe didn't understand. "Boss, your Blackstone Space; the gravity of it faces one direction. How can you compress someone?"

Indeed; the power of the Blackstone Space's gravity would be upwards, downwards, repulsive, or attractive towards Linley.

There was only a single possible direction!

For example, a downwards gravity that trapped the enemy would result in an enemy who, when facing Linley's sword, would find it hard to fly upwards but easily be able to dive underground. Even if he was unable to go underground, his movements forward, backwards, and sideways wouldn't be impeded much.

But the spatial compression was different.

It made one feel as though one was being compressed from all directions. No matter how you moved, the restrictive power was still astonishingly great, just like being caught in a net.

"Haha..." Linley suddenly started to laugh. "Bebe, I had a taste of that restrictive power back in the Amethyst Mountains."

Linley still clearly remembered how, when he had used Worldwalking in the Amethyst Mountains, he had encountered Reisgem inside the mountain. Afterwards, Reisgem trapped Linley within the Amethyst Space, causing powerful gravity to press down upon and squeeze Linley. Even his bones began to uniformly splinter, and blood flowed outwards. This was a pressure that came from all directions!

"My current sword blow is just like those of other experts of the Laws of the Earth, containing some basic gravitational pull to it. What I need to do is to make it so that the Blackstone Space no longer treats me as its core, and for it to merge into the sword itself." Linley knew that this would be very hard.

If Linley didn't understand the principles of 'Amethyst Space', and was only able to operate on the basis of his 'black stone' in executing the 'Blackstone Space', there was no way at all that he would be able to infuse this ability of the Amethyst Space into it.

After all, the 'black stone' was within Linley's body, which guaranteed that if Linley relied on the black stone, the Gravitational Space would only be centered around Linley.

But Linley had a degree of understanding regarding the Blackstone Space.

When he had spent five centuries in the Amethyst Mountain, Linley had already gained some degree of understanding regarding how to use the 108 rays of divine power. Although the power of him using those rays of power wasn't as powerful as the 'black stone' itself, the difference wasn't too extravagant.

"Bebe, keep waiting. Wait for me to come up with my next technique! When battle starts, once my sword gets close to someone, it will cause that person to feel as though they are being pressed down upon from all sides! Even if I'm still inferior to Bayer, I wouldn't be that far off." Linley was eagerly anticipating his new technique.

Linley immediately once more created his 'Blackstone Space', then entered it and resumed his studies.

This technique....would trap any enemies in a certain way and compress them.

Once Linley once again used up the Blackstone Prison to analyze this technique, he immediately began to inspect it closely.

This was because his technique used the enemy as the target for compression; thus, there was no way he could rely on the 'black stone' to execute this technique. He had to rely on himself!

In addition...

This technique was a perfect match for Linley's swordcraft.

This developmental cycle was very long. Bebe heard the walls within the 'Blackstone Prison' constantly tremble, but fortunately, Linley had blocked off all sound.

Within the Blackstone Prison.

Linley, absorbed in his training, had lost all sense of time.

"Slash!"

Linley stabbed out with a simple sword thrust, but Mirage emanated an earthen yellow glow. Immediately, at the location the sword was pointing towards, a three-meter long earthen yellow sphere formed. As Mirage stabbed out, the earthen yellow globe began to, amazingly enough, shrink at high speed.

"BANG!"

An explosion of destruction!

“This space which compresses the enemy can change to be greater or smaller as needed. I finally mastered this technique.” Linley felt a surge of wild joy in his heart.

The piercing power of this sword was comparable to his original one, but the difference was a sort of binding, restrictive power! This would bind the movements of the enemy, and possibly make it so that they weren't able to block Linley's sword at all.

The Blackstone Prison vanished. Bebe immediately turned and ran over with surprised delight. “Boss, you spent nearly half a year coming up with this technique. Give it a try and see how powerful it is?”

“Fine. Let's give it a test, then.” Linley was rather eager as well.

“Don't hold back. My defense doesn't even fear Highgod Paragons. Hit me hard.” Bebe raised his head and puffed out his chest as he stood there, even giving Linley a wink.

Linley knew how astonishing Bebe's defense was. Nodding, he said, “Fine. However, there's no need for me to Dragonform for now. Give it a try and see if you can use your weapon to block this sword of mine.” As Linley spoke, Mirage appeared within his hands, while that dagger appeared within Bebe's.

“Come.” Bebe's eyes were gleaming, and he focused his attention on Linley's Mirage, staring at it.

"Swish!"

Mirage suddenly became translucent and leisurely stabbed outwards. Bebe raised an eyebrow. He could clearly see 108 rays of earthen yellow divine power emerge from Linley's godspark sword, Mirage. It was like 108 howling dragons that were engulfing him; before he even had a chance to react, the elemental energy of the world began to coalesce at high speed. 108 rays of divine power instantly merged into the surrounding earth elemental essence, forming a sphere that was five meters in diameter that had him trapped within.

"The constrictive power is quite great." Bebe felt the tremendous pressure as well.

This was a gravitational force that most Seven Star Fiends would find hard to endure; it pressed down from all sides. Even Bebe felt uncomfortable.

Mirage was formless and invisible.

But the spatial ripples that it created impacted Bebe.

"Eh?" Bebe could clearly sense that Mirage was striking towards him. He immediately wanted to move his arm to use his dagger to block it. "This restrictive power really is troublesome." Bebe felt as though he had a rope tied around his arm, making his speed much slower."

"Slash!"

A sword blow landed straight across Bebe's chest, and Bebe's body trembled violently.

"How is it, Bebe?" Linley laughed, then retracted his sword.

"The restrictive power really is pretty large." Bebe nodded and sighed in praise. "Although it isn't as terrifying as Bayer's, it's far more powerful than a single-direction gravitational force."

Linley discovered as well that Bebe actually hadn't been able to use his godspark dagger to block his own blow.

When experts exchanged blows, they generally used a weapon to strike against or block the other weapon. To use one's own body to take the blow? Aside from a minority of people, most commanders weren't capable of it.

"But the power isn't strong enough. It just makes me itchy." Bebe snickered. Linley didn't know whether to laugh or to cry. "Bebe, I'm not in Dragonform! After I Dragonform, my power increases dramatically, and the power of this attack will increase dramatically as well! But of course... despite that, I still won't be able to injure you." Linley knew his own limits.

Bebe chortled. "I'm kiddin', Boss. What's the name of this technique of yours?"

"To compress the person within a small world, like an inch of land and a foot of sky...making him unable to dodge and thus be forced to receive my blow...right. Let's call it 'Microcosm'." Linley selected a name for his most powerful sword blow.

Microcosm!

Linley believed that in Dragonform, the power of this sword blow of his should be considered above average amongst commanders. Combined with the 'restrictive' force, this technique should be considered a high-class technique amongst commanders. Perhaps in raw attack pure, it couldn't compare to the Sovereign weapons of others, but this technique of Linley's...made it hard for the enemy to block.

For example, Oman. When he smashed down with his spiked mace, the power was great, true! But by relying on his godspark weapon, Linley was still able to block and just barely hang on. If Oman was capable of Linley's technique, and to create a powerful restrictive force to make it impossible for Linley to block, he probably would have killed Linley with a single blow.

"Bebe, it's time for us to go out and take a look." Linley said with a calm laugh.

The Planar Battlefield was as calm and quiet as ever.

This was a place where there was never any sunlight. No warmth. There was only the endless, cold howling wind. Linley and Bebe quietly moved about the Planar Battlefield. However, after advancing for seven full days, they didn't see a single figure. Clearly, the number of people roaming the Planar Battlefield had grown less and less.

"Boss, look. There seems to be someone up ahead." Bebe suddenly said.

Linley carefully looked forward. That figure was still a few kilometers away from them, and the luxurious wild grass between them that was being blown about by the wind made it hard for Linley to see that person.

Moments later...

"Him!" Linley didn't know whether to laugh or to cry.

"It's actually Hemmers." Bebe stared as well. They both clearly remembered that freak who had such terrifying defense and attack power, as well as a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact. Hemmers...he was someone who had become a Sovereign's Emissary as a Demigod!

"Haha, you two. Don't run." Loud laughter rang out.

Linley and Bebe just stood there, not moving at all.

"Bebe, later, just stay over there. Let me spar a bit with this big fellow." Linley's gaze was heated, and his battle-hungry blood began to boil. "Although this Hemmers is powerful, his speed is average, and he doesn't know any distance attacks. He's perfect for a spar and for me to test out my own might."

"Fine." Bebe chortled. "Boss, don't lose face by fleeing after being unable to take more than a few blows."

Linley and Bebe had both sparred with Hemmers before. If they wanted to flee, they would be able to.

Three meters tall. A body like that of a tower of steel. Wild gold hair. A towering nose. A tiger-like mouth! A pair of golden eyes which stared at Linley and Bebe. This was Hemmers. Hemmers frowned and snorted, "The two of you are quite bold. Last time, I let you two run off. This time, you actually dare to stay here upon seeing me?"

"Hemmers, I've made some slight improvements this time, and want to ask you to provide me with a few pointers." Linley said with a smile.

"Provide you with a few pointers?" Hemmers rubbed his towering nose, grinning and revealing a mouth filled with golden teeth. "Letting me give you two a few pointers will cost you your lives."

"Not us two. Just me." Linley said with a calm laugh. "Hemmers, if you truly do want my life, then come at me."

Hemmers furrowed his forehead, musing to himself, "Can it be that this kid wants to die? Screw it. If he wants to die, it isn't my fault." Hemmers didn't waste any more words. He violently stomped the ground with his right leg, causing it to tremble. A golden glow sprang out from Hemmers' entire body, and like a towering golden god of war, he charged towards Linley.

With a 'bang!', Linley instantly Dragonformed. He, too, kicked off powerfully from the ground, dodging at high speed.

"He's increased in speed?" Hemmers instantly noticed Linley's transformation. His increased insights into the profound mysteries had caused his speed to naturally increase as well.

"Still, he hasn't increased enough!" Hemmers let out a growl, his legs suddenly flashing with an eye-piercing golden glow.

"Bang!" "Bang!" Hemmers stomped viciously against the ground, which cracked from his stomps. But because the terrifying power of this stomp resulted in a powerful counterforce, Hemmers increased in speed once more...but welcoming him was an earthen yellow aura that spread outwards. Blackstone Space!

Hemmers' speed lessened dramatically.

Linley knew quite well that he wouldn't be able to kill Hemmers; this battle between them was only meant for him to familiarize himself with his new supreme technique.

"Hemmers, taste this sword blow of mine." Linley's voice echoed out in Hemmers' mind, and Mirage pierced out...

Hemmers turned to look. He saw 108 rays of earthen yellow light suddenly appear out of nowhere, surging towards him simultaneously. Hemmers just snickered. "Your sword is pretty special. It can actually go invisible." Hemmers, through his divine sense, was clearly able to sense that Mirage was stabbing towards him at high speed.

But as Hemmers wanted to use his fist to smash it, he suddenly felt a powerful, uniform restrictive force. A semi-transparent earthen yellow sphere that was five meters long had suddenly enveloped him.

"What a powerful restrictive force." Hemmers furrowed his brows.

Hemmers still swung his fist, slamming it towards Mirage. It had to be said that Hemmers' innate gifts were inordinately powerful. His strength was truly endless. Even under such incredible pressure, his fists didn't slow down too much. In the last instant, his fist, covered with golden light, smashed against Linley's 'Mirage'.

"BANG!" The full power of Linley's blow finally exploded forth from the sword.

Linley's most powerful sword attack...Microcosm!

"BANG!" A tear in space appeared.

Linley was knocked backwards, while Hemmers' body trembled as well. And then, he lowered his head to look at his fist in astonishment. The metal-like skin atop his fist had already split apart, and a hint of blood was leaking out. However, it immediately healed.

Linley stood not too far away, his heart filled with joy.

Last time, when that golden light had shot out from Hemmers' fist and struck against Mirage, Linley's hand had been shaken so badly that his draconic scales had split open, while Mirage had been knocked back to chop against Linley's own body.

"That time, it was just a golden ball of light. This time, it was with his actual fist! My power increased dramatically, but I only feel as though my hand is going numb. If I were to encounter that Oman again, I wouldn't be in such a sorry state when I block his spiked mace." Linley's confidence surged.

"In addition, my full-force sword attacks are capable of causing the spatial walls of the Planar Battlefield to tear open now." Linley rejoiced.

Hemmers raised his head to look at Linley solemnly. "You have indeed risen dramatically in power. You are capable of injuring me." Hemmers knew very well that his fists had been utilizing the profound mysteries, and how much power they held. If even the skin on his fists had been broken open...if Linley's sword had hit another part of his body, he would indeed have been injured."

"But you aren't truly wounded, right?" Linley's eyes lit up. "Just now, you were actually able to block my sword. Again!"

Linley's body suddenly disappeared, and a blur charged towards Hemmers.

"Bang!" "Bang!"

The two clashed repeatedly, and each time they exchanged blows, Linley's blur-like form continuously moved to retreat, then advance! As for Hemmers, he just stood there; whenever Linley attacked, he used his fists and his two legs to block. Each time they exchanged blows, Linley was knocked flying backwards.

Neither Linley nor Hemmers used Sovereign's Might.

"Boss, keep it up!" Bebe called loudly from the side.

But as for Linley, he became all the more aware of how terrifying Hemmers was. "Hemmers is absolutely too strong. It's fair to describe him as possessing endless, inexhaustible might! Even with my restrictive force pressing down on him, he's actually still able to just barely block my sword." And in a situation like this, with each blow, the counterforce caused Linley's hand to go numb.

The strength in those fists were indeed frightening.

"It's not very likely that I'll be able to kill this Azure Dragon clan kid." Hemmers pondered to himself. "I don't have a Sovereign weapon! Else, I would've disposed of him long ago."

"Hey!"

Hemmers suddenly shouted angrily, "Kid, if you are so tough, then use that sword of yours to take one of my punches head on! Stop using that restrictive power to affect me." Hemmers felt very uncomfortable; while constantly under that powerful pressure, there was no way he was capable of fully releasing his power in his punches. If he were to release a punch under optimal conditions...

How could Linley be able to block so easily?

"I'm not that stupid." Linley said with a loud laugh.

"As I see it, you two should just come to a halt!" A clear voice rang out, while at the same time, a fierce, powerful ripple shot towards them at high speed, striking simultaneously against Hemmers' fist and Linley's Mirage. This powerful force knocked both Linley and Hemmers back by a few dozen meters.

Linley and Hemmers both turned to look.

They saw that, not too far away, a white-robed man was currently strolling over. His crimson eyebrows drooped downwards, and his gaze was fathomlessly deep. He currently gave Linley and Hemmers each a glance.

"Where did someone so powerful suddenly come from? There's nobody who is like him amongst the various supreme experts of the planes of the multiverse!" Hemmers' face changed dramatically. He was very confident in his own power, but just now, he had actually been knocked backwards by the collision force.

"Mr. Leylin!" Linley couldn't help but call out in delight.

"Bluefire?!" Bebe stared in disbelief, his eyebrows jumping upwards.

This person was indeed, Leylin 'Bluefire'.

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 39, Bluefire

“Mr. Leylin?” Although surprised and delighted, Linley was puzzled as well. Although in the past, Bluefire had given him some guidance, and he had viewed Bluefire as being very powerful, that was because when Linley was young, he had been too weak. “I’m above average even amongst commanders now! Ordinary commanders aren’t able to do anything to me. But that attack from Mr. Leylin just now...? What level of power has he reached, exactly?”

Linley didn’t know if that attack was a casual attack, or a full-power attack from Bluefire!

“Linley. Bebe. Long time no see.” Bluefire smiled as he strolled over.

“Haha.” The nearby Hemmers suddenly let out a loud, carefree laugh. His laughter echoed like thunder, and he stared at Bluefire with those golden eyes and a scorching gaze. Two rays of golden light that could be seen by the naked eye shot out from Hemmers’ gaze. “What an expert! Here in the Planar Battlefield, when everyone sees me, Hemmers, they all slink away and hide in the distance. It is so rare for me to meet an expert like you. Fighting with this Azure Dragon clan kid is no fun; I feel like my arms and legs are tied. It’s not pleasurable! Your power seems to be decent. Come, let’s have a contest!”

Linley and Bebe were both stunned.

“Is Hemmers crazy?” Linley blinked twice.

What he didn't know was that Hemmers was the sort of person with a straightforward disposition who loved battle.

As soon as Hemmers finished speaking, he made his move! His steel-hard leg, flashing with golden light, slammed hard against the ground. "BANG!" The ground instantly split apart, with hundreds of cracks appearing. Hemmers transformed into a golden flash of lightning, charging straight towards Bluefire!

"What a boorish man." Bluefire raised a crimson eyebrow, saying with a soft laugh.

His robes were as white as snow. Bluefire just stood there, not dodging at all.

"BANG!" Hemmers' right leg, flashing with golden light, struck out towards Bluefire like a meteor. This kick caused the world to tremble, space to distort, and dozens of twisted spatial cracks to appear.

"What a terrifying kick." Linley's face changed.

"Boss, just now, when he fought you, he wasn't this powerful." Bebe said.

Linley knew this all too well. He had relied on his gravitational compression to make it so that Hemmers was unable to bring his full force to bear. Otherwise, given how monstrous Hemmers' innate strength was, how could Linley have exchanged so many blows? "Bebe, carefully watch and see how Mr. Leylin receives the attack." Linley stared at the battle, not daring to be distracted at all.

Bebe stared as well.

"Not bad." Bluefire just stood there, but very strangely, that golden leg-blur actually moved through Bluefire's body.

Bluefire's body vanished, reappearing three meters away.

"Teleportation?" Linley's face changed. "No...speed! Astonishing speed, speed comparable to Bayer's! For him to dare to dodge only at the last moment against Hemmers' kick, his speed is absolutely..." This was the second time Linley had seen such terrifying speed.

Hemmers had missed with his kick, but he let out an explosive shout. "Good!" At the same time, Hemmers suddenly twisted his thick torso!

He spun about like a tornado, and his golden leg instantly began to spin about as well. With almost no pause, he continuously kicked out towards Bluefire, who still had that calm smile on his face with not a hint of fear or concern.

"Swoosh!" "Swoosh!"

In Linley, Bebe, and Hemmers' eyes, Bluefire's body seemed to teleport about, consecutively creating multiple after-images, then appearing a hundred meters away, standing there calmly.

"Boss, this Bluefire...what sort of speed is this? What profound mysteries is he using?" Bebe didn't understand.

Linley trained in the Elemental Laws of Fire, so he had some ideas. "Fire is different from wind. Bayer's body became agile and illusory; although his speed was very fast, he was also as formless and invisible as the wind. Mr. Leylin is different though; watch, he's just like the fire. Flames erupt violently and with energy! There's nothing illusory about Mr. Bluefire's speed; he explodes with it! His speed instantly explodes forth to a limit, making it so that even you and I feel as though he is teleporting."

Linley couldn't stop sighing in amazement.

For a person to reach such a level in speed...this alone would make Bluefire a high class commander.

"What's going on with you?" Hemmers bellowed angrily. "You keep dodging! This is no fun at all. I, Hemmers, had a favorable impression of you, which is why I wanted to fight you. If you have any ability, fight against me, Hemmers, head on!" Hemmers howled unhappily to one side, clearly knowing that his speed was far inferior to this person.

Actually, Hemmers was very angry. His attacks were very powerful, and his defenses were also very powerful. Unfortunately, he was too slow and he wasn't skilled in distance attacks.

Thus, when many experts encountered Hemmers, they would immediately flee. This was same for the first two people he had encountered; it was also the same for the next few hundred he had encountered. This, Hemmers absolutely detested people who relied on speed to dodge.”

“You are an amusing fellow.” Bluefire still had a smile on his face.

“Amusing my ass!” Hemmers raised his head and shouted. “Shorty, if you have any skill, come fight me, Hemmers, head on!” As he spoke, Hemmers viciously smashed his two sandbag-sized fists against each other. With a ‘BANG’ sound, it was as though a mountain had just collapsed. The terrifying collision caused spatial cracks to appear even between his fists.

“Shorty, do you dare?” Hemmers raised his head proudly.

Bluefire’s height was quite normal, but given that Hemmers was three meters tall, it wasn’t unfair for him to describe Bluefire as being ‘short’.

“Haha...”

Bluefire couldn’t help but start to laugh. “I’ve been in the Planar Battlefield for so long, but I haven’t actually fought a single time. Fine, then. Today, I’ll exercise a bit...come!” After Bluefire finished speaking, with a ‘bang!’ sound, Bluefire’s entire body began to swirl with flame. Those eyes beneath his crimson eyebrows began to burst forth with fiery light.

He was like a fiery divinity of war!

“Good!” Hemmers laughed loudly, and after speaking, he charged towards Bluefire, the earth trembling with each step he took.

Linley and Bebe continued to watch, focusing their attention on this scene. "Boss, who will win? I mean, if they fight head on, who will win?" Bebe asked mentally, while Linley shook his head. "I'm not too sure. According to your grandfather's intelligence reports, Hemmers has an innate, massive strength, and his attack power is comparable to that of Highgod Paragons! If Mr. Leylin chooses to fight with him head on...hard to say."

Bluefire, his entire body swathed in flames, watched calmly as Hemmers charged over.

"HAAARGH!"

His face savage, Hemmers gave a low growl, and his right fist, carrying an inexhaustible, massive force and flowing with the profound mysteries of the Laws of the Earth, smashed directly towards Bluefire. With a 'rumble' sound, spatial began to tremble everywhere the fist went past.

In an instant, the fist arrived before Bluefire.

"Good!" An explosive shout.

Bluefire, who had been calm this entire time, lifted his eyebrows. His right hand, formerly hanging down by his side, suddenly shot out lightning-fast. Linley and Bebe only sensed an eye-piercingly brilliant, fiery red light shoot out. This ray of fiery light slammed directly against Hemmers' fist, a head on collision...fist against fist!

There was no trick to it at all; it was a complete, head-on collision!

"CRACK!" When their fists intersected, space shattered apart like glass, as dozens of spatial rips appeared!

Hemmers and Bluefire both trembled slightly. Hemmers took three steps back, while Bluefire took one step back as well.

"Uh?" Linley and Bebe, stunned, stared with completely round eyes.

"How terrifying. Bluefire didn't use a Sovereign artifact or Deity artifact at all." Linley had been focused on Bluefire's fist; that was a fist that was as white and pristine as white jade. "Hemmers was birthed from the Divine Earth Plane itself; he was a golden mountain who, after countless years of being nurtured by the plane, gained sentience, which is why his body has such incredible strength. But Bluefire..."

Linley was stunned.

"Superb! Hemmers, you really live up to your reputation!" Bluefire laughed calmly, letting out a praising sigh.

Hemmers stared at Bluefire, stunned, then at his own fist. He didn't dare believe it. "How is that possible? How is that possible? He fought with me head on, but he actually had a slight advantage?" Hemmers knew very well that just now, in that instant when his fist collided with the fist of the man before him, a sharp, boring force had surged towards him.

That sharp, boring force was like the explosion of a volcano; it had charged forward fiercely!

In the face of that explosive power, Hemmers felt his undefeatable fist... tremble.

"Who are you?" Hemmers said in a low voice.

"Me? You can address me as...Bluefire!" Bluefire said with a calm laugh.

Hemmers narrowed his ox-like eyes, then nodded slightly and said in sonorously, "Fine, Bluefire. I'll remember you! Even in the past, when I encountered that Highgod Paragon of water, Borhaus [Bo'er'hao'si], when we exchanged punches against each other, I still wasn't at a disadvantage. You...are very powerful!" After speaking, Hemmers turned and immediately walked away.

Bluefire laughed softly as he watched Hemmers leave. He couldn't help but let out a sigh of praise. "He really lives up to the reputation of being an expert who was chosen to be a Sovereign's Emissary, even as a Demigod."

"Mr. Leylin." Only now did Linley walk over.

"Leylin, you are so powerful!" Bebe's eyes were shining, and he hurriedly ran over. "How did you become so powerful? How is it that Odin, one of the other five Kings of the Gebados Planar Prison, was so much weaker than you? Right...is your increase in strength related to your entry into the Necropolis of the Gods?"

Bluefire's true name, after all, was 'Zacharias Leylin.' Bluefire was just a moniker. It was enough for outsiders to know his nickname, but of course people he knew would address him by his name.

"Necropolis of the Gods?" Bluefire let out a chuckle. "It had a bit to do with it, but it wasn't all because of that place."

And then, Bluefire turned to look towards Linley, laughing. "Linley, long time no see. I didn't imagine that you would have already fused four profound mysteries of the Laws of the Earth. When I first met you, I had the impression that your comprehension ability was excellent...but I didn't expect that in just two thousand years, you would have reached such a level, and be standing at the peak amongst Highgods."

Of course commanders would all be considered as being peak Highgods.

But of course, only figures at the level of Highgod Paragons could truly be considered the 'peak'.

"If it hadn't been for your guidance in the past, Mr. Leylin, I probably wouldn't have been so fast in my training." Linley said modestly.

"Alright, it's been so long since we've met. Let's sit down and drink some wine and have a good chat." Leylin said with a soft laugh.

Of course Linley wouldn't refuse. It would be another three centuries before this Planar War would conclude. He had more than enough time, and he was happy to accompany Bluefire. At the same time, Linley was rather stunned by Bluefire's power, as well as puzzled. "He was able to fight Hemmers head on with his bare hands, and have a slight advantage? Can it be...that Bluefire has become a Paragon?"

Linley knew exactly how rare Paragons were!

There were many material planes, but over the course of countless years, the number of Highgod Paragons, or to be precise, the number of people suspected of being Highgod Paragons, was less than thirty. "Can it be that my Yulan Plane has produced one as well?" Linley felt quite eager.

Bluefire used a punch to create a cave, and then withdrew from his interspatial ring a table, wine, and food. The wine and food had all been kept chilled, but of course, Bluefire quickly defrosted them. Linley, Bebe, and Bluefire all sat down, eating and drinking and chatting casually.

"I didn't expect you to come as well, Mr. Leylin." Bebe grabbed a haunch of Demon Dragon meat and began to chew on it. "I imagine you must have killed quite a few commanders over the past few years in the Planar Battlefield, Mr. Leylin. How many?"

Bluefire held a cup of wine. He took a sip, then laughed and shook his head. "Not a single one."

"What? Not even one?" Bebe stared. "Mr. Leylin, everything else aside, the speed you showed off as well as that terrifying attack strength of yours, comparable to Hemmers...these two things alone make it so that you can kill many commanders! When those commanders encounter you, they won't even be able to run!"

Given how fast Bluefire was, how would anyone be able to escape him?

"Do I have to kill people just because I came to the Planar Battlefield?" Bluefire shook his head and laughed. "I came here for two reasons. First, I've never taken part in a Planar War, and wanted to come in for a look. As for the second...you don't need to ask."

Bebe, knowing that Bluefire didn't wish to discuss it, asked no more.

Linley, unable to repress his curiosity, asked, "Mr. Bluefire, just now, that speed of yours...as far as I can tell, only that Highgod Paragon, 'Bayer', is comparable to you. And your attack power is comparable to Hemmers'. I want to ask you, Mr. Leylin...have you reached the Paragon level in fusing the profound mysteries?"

Bluefire was startled.

"If you can't tell me, then don't." Linley said hurriedly. Linley, too, knew that many Highgod Paragons hid their power and didn't publicize it. This was why many people were only 'suspected of being Highgod Paragons'.

"There's no need for me to keep any secrets from you." Bluefire nodded slightly. "Indeed. A thousand years ago, I reached the level of Paragon."

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 40, Will

“You really are a Paragon!” Linley, despite being mentally prepared, couldn’t help but suck in a breath.

What did it mean for someone to be a Paragon? It meant that one had completely, thoroughly mastered one of the Laws. The number of people who were able to become Paragons was even fewer than the number who were able to become Sovereigns. From this, one could tell that without exception, every single person who reached this level was a glorious figure who possessed astonishing innate abilities, comprehension, luck, and who was hard-working!

One couldn’t be lacking in any of these aspects. Only in perfect could a Paragon be born.

Bebe’s eyes turned round. He stared at Bluefire for a long time, unable to say anything.

“What’s with those looks on your faces? There’s no need to be like this.” Bluefire said with a laugh.

“What do you mean, no need to be like this? Paragon!!!” Bebe called out in shock. “Mr. Leylin, including you, the planes of the multiverse only have, all combined, less than thirty Paragons! The material planes are numerous beyond count, but in the course of countless years, how many Paragons have been birthed from them? Most likely, our Yulan Plane only has you!”

Bluefire began to laugh. Although his heart was as calm as water, when he thought of these things, he couldn't help but feel slightly proud as well.

Upon reaching the level of Paragon, it was true that a person could be proud for the rest of his life.

"Mr. Leylin, admirable, truly, admirable." Linley felt a surge of heat in his heart as well. How long would it be before he would reach the same level?

Bluefire couldn't help but laugh, while Bebe suddenly said, "Boss, didn't Grandpa say that once you reach Mr. Leylin's level, you can go to the Necropolis of the Gods? Uh...he's a Paragon, Boss. When will you become a Paragon? Doesn't that mean that entering the Necropolis of the Gods is something for the distant future?"

"That's what Beirut said?" Bluefire was startled.

"Right. He did say that." Linley said, resigned.

Previously, Linley still had some hope, but now that he knew Bluefire was a Paragon..."Can it be that I am going to have to reach the Paragon level before entering the Necropolis of the Gods? How long will that take?" Linley knew his own limits. The further along one went in fusion, the more time it took. Linley even suspected that even if he spent countless years, he still might not be able to become a Paragon.

After all, there were many people who initially trained very quickly, but upon reaching a certain level, could no longer rise. They had reached their limit.

"Haha..." Bluefire shook his head and laughed. "When I entered the Necropolis of the Gods, I had only fused five profound mysteries. I imagine what Beirut meant was that when you, Linley, are at the level I was back then, with five mysteries fused, you'll be allowed to enter! There's no way he is requiring that you be a Paragon. That's too stringent."

Linley, hearing this, couldn't help but nod. Right. When Bluefire had entered, he hadn't become a Paragon yet.

Bebe mumbled, "Even fusing five profound mysteries will take very, very long. The farther along one goes, the harder it is."

"What's the rush?" Linley said with a calm laugh. "Bebe, given my current power, I already am able to stay alive against other commanders. Once this Planar War concludes, we will return to the Infernal Realm! When we no longer have any important business to attend to, we can slowly spend a few billion years in training."

Bluefire smiled and said approvingly, "Not bad. You aren't arrogant and you aren't impetuous. Only then can you allow things to reach their natural conclusion. The more impatient you are, the harder success will be."

"There's no need to over-think matters regarding the Necropolis of the Gods." Linley said with a laugh.

Right now, Linley didn't really have any burdens; after having spent all these years in the Planar Battlefield, he had acquired three badges, and lacked only one more. Given that his power had increased greatly, Linley was confident that if he and Bebe joined forces, it wouldn't be hard for them to acquire one more. After accomplishing this matter, he would truly be relieved, and would be able to calmly continue his pursuit of perfection.

"Mr. Leylin." Linley looked at Bluefire and said solemnly, "I have a question in my heart."

"Speak." Bluefire sipped some wine and said with a calm laugh.

"I am very confused regarding Highgod Paragons." Linley said with a frown. "There are quite a few commanders who are exceptionally, innately talented, such as Reisgem or Reihom. They were born with tremendous power. In addition, they have fused five of the profound mysteries of their Laws! Logically speaking, given how powerful their bodies are and the fact that they have fused five profound mysteries, I feel that they should be on par with Highgod Paragons. But previously, when they fought Bayer, I discovered...the difference was tremendous. They were toyed with."

"Right. That Bayer was too powerful. He was easily able to compress space. That restrictive power was too terrifying." Bebe said hurriedly.

"In addition, soul attacks. Wind is suited for material attacks, and not for soul attacks. Although it has 'Music' and 'Sound Waves', the power isn't extraordinary. But why is it that when Bayer executed a soul attack, I fell into a dazed state without being able to resist at all?" Linley didn't understand at all.

Even Paragons had differences amongst themselves.

Wind-element Paragons were extremely strong in material attacks. Water-element Paragons had exceptional material defenses. Previously, Hemmers said that a water-element Highgod Paragon was slightly weaker than him in a frontal clash.

But Bayer was a Highgod Paragon of wind. Why was it that his soul attack was so terrifying?

Linley truly didn't understand!

"Haha..." Bluefire began to laugh.

"What's so funny?" Bebe muttered. "Paragons truly are monstrously powerful. It seems as though they are mighty in every aspect." Different Highgod Paragons of different elements would have different specialties, but although they might be weaker in one aspect, they still far surpassed commanders in might.

For example, although that Highgod Paragon of water was weaker in material attacks, he was still close to being on par with Hemmers.

"Highgod Paragons have no weaknesses." Bluefire said with a calm laugh.

Linley and Bebe immediately perked up and began to listen carefully.

Naturally, when a Highgod Paragon spoke on this subject, they spoke with authority.

"Highgod Paragons are extremely powerful in every aspect! Different Laws and Edicts only result in Paragons being stronger in certain aspects; for example, I am strongest in soul attacks! Actually, Highgod Paragons are powerful in all aspects...because of a certain secret." Bluefire said.

"Secret?" Linley and Bebe were stunned.

"Right." Bluefire sighed in praise. "Linley, I can tell you two this, but...the secret about me being a Paragon, as well as this secret? You can't tell anyone else."

"Of course." Linley and Bebe both nodded.

Bluefire nodded slightly, then said, "That year, when I was fusing the six profound mysteries of the Laws of Fire, I reached a bottleneck! I was only one step away from becoming a Paragon. I was already extremely powerful by that point in time. However, once I took that final step and became a Paragon, do you know...how great the difference in power was?"

Linley shook his head. "I'm not sure. However, breaking through bottlenecks, generally speaking, wouldn't result in too ridiculous an increase in power."

"When I took that final step, I felt myself transformed!" Bluefire sighed. "A qualitative transformation. The difference between heaven and earth!"

"Heaven and earth?" Linley and Bebe were startled.

"I trust you know that generally speaking, any Highgod, even a very powerful one, who hasn't reach the Paragon level, upon annoying a Sovereign, can be destroyed by the Sovereign with a thought. There is one type of Highgod which is an exception; Paragons! A Sovereign's Will cannot kill a Highgod Paragon!" Bluefire laughed.

Linley nodded slightly. He knew this.

"Why?" Bluefire said with a laugh. "This has to do with the secret of Paragons! Upon becoming a Paragon, in an instant, one is transformed."

Linley and Bebe listened carefully.

"In that instant of transformation upon becoming a Paragon!" Bluefire seemed to be reminiscing about that feeling he had. "A very unique sort of natural Law surrounded my soul! My soul underwent a sort of qualitative transformation. After the transformation completed, I understood how powerful Paragons were." Bluefire began to laugh.

A qualitative transformation of the soul? Linley was stunned.

From Demigod to God to Highgod, the soul rose in power each time. But he hadn't imagined that upon reaching the Paragon level, the soul would rise again.

“This sort of soul transformation caused the natural Laws to bestow upon me a sort of authority which Paragons have!” Bluefire smiled. “An authority which included the Will of the natural Laws of the world! A Paragon’s Will!”

Linley was stunned.

Everyone had a will, but the will of ordinary Highgods was an insubstantial thing, containing no attack power. “The Will of a Paragon... contains the Laws of the world?” Linley couldn’t refrain from asking.

“Right!” Bluefire laughed. “Actually, the increase in power from fusing the profound mysteries, in and of itself, is limited. But even an ordinary attack from us, upon being infused with our Will, will cause the power to rise to a terrifying level! This is a sort of authority! An authority bestowed by the universe itself! And this is what we rely upon to resist the Will of a Sovereign!”

Linley and Bebe began to understand.

They, too, had heard that a Sovereign’s Will was inviolable. Sovereign power wasn’t that special; however, Sovereign power infused with a Sovereign’s Will was terrifyingly, ridiculously powerful. The most terrifying thing about a Sovereign was their Will.

“It is like an Emperor! He doesn’t have to act himself; an order from him can cause countless people to lose their heads. To an ordinary person, an Emperor’s will is inviolable!” Bluefire laughed calmly. “This is a sort of power. The force of his will! The will of ordinary Highgods cannot be used to attack, but for Highgod Paragons, they have this sort of authority, bestowed upon them by the universe itself!"

Linley and Bebe now understood.

Good heavens!

So this was the situation. Will? Amongst the countless Highgods, Highgod Paragons were like 'Emperors' who were far above the others. The Will of Highgod Paragons contained the natural Laws, and so even an ordinary attack by a Highgod Paragon contained terrifyingly powerful force!

"No wonder! A casual movement by Bayer caused the four of us to feel such tremendous restrictions." Bebe sighed in praise. "An empty-handed attack was comparable to a Sovereign weapon attack."

"What about the Will of a Sovereign?" Bebe said hurriedly. "How much stronger is it than a Paragon's Will?"

"Much stronger!" Bluefire laughed. "It is the same principle! Sovereigns have a Sovereign spark, and they too have been bestowed by the natural laws of the universe with tremendous authority! This causes their Will to possess even greater power. Sovereigns, from trillions of kilometers away, can use their Will alone to control their Sovereign power to attack us. We Highgod Paragons can just barely hold them off and preserve our lives. However, if a Sovereign was to come in person to attack us, there's no way we would be able to resist."

Linley and Bebe now completely understood.

The Will of a Sovereign was bestowed by the natural Laws of the universe with far more authority than the Will of Highgod Paragons.

If they were trillions of kilometers away, a Sovereign wouldn't be able to kill a Paragon. But if they were close by, the Paragon would still die. But of course...amongst Highgods, Paragons were already invincible figures.

"A Will which possesses tangible power and might." Linley sighed.

Bluefire stayed with Linley and Bebe for three days. During these three days, the three of them chatted and drank. Linley told him some of the stories about the attacks they had suffered here on the Planar Battlefield, and Bluefire had sighed when listening. Still, after three days, Bluefire still parted from Linley.

After all, Bluefire had come to the Planar Battlefield for a purpose that was different from Linley's; Bluefire disdained from killing people.

Currently, they were outside the cave. Standing on the desolate earth, Bluefire was bidding Linley and Bebe farewell.

"Haha, Linley, let me wish you luck in acquiring your fourth commander badge, then." Bluefire said with a calm laugh. "Right. Tell me. Before this, you stayed with Reisgem for a time. Half a month before I met you, I discovered Reisgem and that Reihom you described in a cave.

"Oh?" Linley and Bebe were instantly overjoyed.

"Where are they?" Linley immediately asked. Linley still felt very grateful towards Reisgem.

Bluefire looked around, then pointed towards a direction. "Go straight in that direction. Roughly a hundred and ten thousand kilometers away, you'll discover a mountain with two peaks, like a ram's horn. The two of them are staying there at the base of the mountain, in a cave. But of course...I can't be sure if they are still there."

"Thank you, Mr. Leylin." Linley was overjoyed.

Generally speaking, they would stay in one place for many years. As Bluefire had seen them there recently, Reisgem should still be there.

"It seems as though you want to reunite with them as well. Then we'll each part ways now." Bluefire laughed.

Linley and Bebe immediately bade Bluefire farewell, then, without returning to their cave, flew towards the direction Bluefire had pointed towards at high speed. Actually, upon hearing the description of a ram's horn shaped mountain, Linley already had an idea. He had a map of the Planar Battlefield. Naturally he knew where the mountain was located.

Bluefire watched as the two disappeared into the desolate wilderness, then couldn't help but laugh. He then sighed, "Beirut really spared no expense and no effort! However, now that Linley has fused four profound mysteries, it can be said that Beirut has accomplished his goal. As for the fusion of the fifth profound mystery, that's quite far off. It seems, for now, there's nothing more for me to do here! Mm, I've never seen a Planar War. I can't miss the final battle that will happen in three hundred years."

Bluefire gracefully departed.

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 41, High Spirits

The cold wind howled, stabbing like knives as it swept across the vast, desolate earth. Sand and pebbles flew about wildly, and two blurry forms continued to advance.

Not too far away from them, up ahead, there was a large, twin-peaked mountain. The mountain was thousands of meters high, and the peak of the mountain was split, all the way from the top to the halfway point. From a distance, it looked just like the horns of a ram. In the maps of the Planar Battlefield, this mountain, the 'Ramhorn Mountain', was something of a landmark.

"Here we are!" Linley, dressed in a deep green robe, glanced about, his eyes flashing like lightning as he stared at every 'suspicious' looking part of Ramhorn Mountain.

"It seems there's no cave here." Bebe mumbled.

"Even if Reisgem is here, how could he allow others to tell just by looking? Let's do a good investigation of the entire Ramhorn Mountain." After speaking, Linley and Bebe transformed into two blurs, flying at high speed towards Ramhorn Mountain.

With Reihom present, even the most desolate of mountains could be transformed into a luxurious cave estate.

Within that estate inside Ramhorn Mountain, there was a large estate hall that seemed to have been formed by nature. Reihom, that big fellow, was currently seated in the meditative position in the corner of the hall, quietly training. The slow passage of time, to these supreme experts, was generally spent in training. As for Reisgem, he was seated on a chair, his legs resting atop a table which was covered with all sorts of fruits and foods.

“Montelo, that bastard.” Reisgem grabbed a haunch of leg meat from an unknown beast, giving it a savage bite. “He’s so cocky. All he has is strength in numbers.”

Reisgem, when thinking back to what happened three years ago, still was quite angry and discontent.

Reisgem turned to look at the meditating Reihom. He couldn’t help but call out, “Hey, Reihom, stop training like an idiot. There’s no need to train so frantically. It’s not so easy to reach the level of Paragon. Come over here and drink and chat with me.”

The towering, wargod-like Reihom opened his eyes, and it was as though corporeal light emanated forth.

“Yes.” Reihom rose to his feet, then moved to sit down across from Reisgem.

“I asked you to chat with me, so why aren’t you saying anything?” Reisgem couldn’t help but feel resigned. Seeing how Reihom was acting, though, all he could say was, “Alright. Ugh. If I’d known it’d be like this, I would’ve brought a few more people as well. Even if they aren’t able to help out in a fight, they’d help me relieve my boredom. Speaking of fighting...if I become a Paragon, I will definitely make it so that that Montelo would suffer so much that he would beg for dear."

"He...needs killing." Reihom growled as well.

Reisgem immediately laughed. "Right. Needs killing!"

"Reisgem!" A clear voice rang out from the corridor up ahead. "Hey, Reisgem, we're here!" A joyful sound echoed forth from the cave tunnel-corridor. And then, with a 'bang' sound, clearly the mountainous slab of rock that covered the tunnel was broken through.

Reisgem and Reihom reacted by instinct. "Swoosh!" "Swoosh!" They hurriedly rose to their feet and glanced at each other, their eyes filled with surprise, delight, and laughter.

"Linley and Bebe came." Reihom said.

"Haha...let's go welcome them, quick." Reisgem was the first to fly out, with Reihom close behind. Once the two arrived at their front courtyard, they saw that the gates to the courtyard had already been broken through. Linley, dressed in a deep green robe, and a black-robed Bebe were smiling, walking over shoulder-to-shoulder.

"Reisgem." Bebe called out jubilantly.

"Ohoh, Bebe!" Reisgem excitedly charged over, grabbing Bebe into a bearhug. "We're finally reunited again."

"Linley." Reihom revealed a hint of a smile towards Linley as well, and Linley laughed and nodded.

Reihom was currently transformed into a size of just two meters in height, comparable to Linley. As for Bebe and Reisgem, their heights were similar as well...the four members of this hunting squad, standing together, made for quite an interesting scene.

"His mommy!" Reisgem turned his head to look at Linley, then punched Linley on the chest and snorted, "Linley, kid, you worried me to death! When you were being attacked and chased by Oman, I wasn't worried about Bebe; I was only worried about you! Oman wouldn't be able to do anything to Bebe, but you were a different story. You are my one and only disciple, y'know? If you die, I'll be very sad."

Linley let out an awkward laugh.

Disciple?

"Hey, Reisgem, we're bros!" Bebe slapped his arm around Reisgem's shoulders and cocked his head. "We're on the same level, so how can you consider yourself my Boss' 'master'?"

"Uh..." Reisgem was startled.

"Fine then." Reisgem gave Linley a sideways look. "It was you who comprehended the profound secrets of my Amethyst Space on your own, and it was my mother who asked me to do what I did! You can be considered my mother's disciple, then, which means you and I are on the same level as well." As Reisgem spoke, he began to snicker. Hearing this, Linley couldn't help but have a thought. "Hm? So Reisgem did what he did, teaching me while claiming to 'punish' me, was at the behest of the Sovereign. But why did the Sovereign make that decision? I've never before met the Redbud Sovereign."

Bebe said, puzzled, "Hey, Reisgem, that was all arranged by your mother, the Sovereign?"

"Right. My mother even gave an important Soulstone to Linley." Reisgem mumbled. "I really didn't want to part with it."

"Soulstone? You mean the black stone?" Linley hurriedly asked.

"Right." Reisgem nodded very confidently. "I feel sick at heart just talking about it. That Soulstone...my mother has never given it to any outsider before. You were the first! Do you know? Even Sovereigns have asked for a Soulstone from my mother, but my mother wasn't willing to give it to them."

"Sovereigns wanted it?" Linley said, puzzled. "This is useful for Sovereigns?"

"It isn't very useful for a Sovereign." Reisgem shook his head. "But if it was given to a Highgod, it would be very useful!"

Bebe said in surprise, "Reisgem, if we compare this 'Soulstone' to the 'Abyssal Fruit' of the Netherworld, which one is better?"

"Abyssal Fruit?" Reisgem chortled. "The Abyssal Fruit truly is a treasure as well, but even ten Abyssal Fruits aren't as valuable as a single Soulstone. Perhaps it has limited impact on Sovereigns, but...for Highgods, a Soulstone is a true treasure. Linley, don't look at me that way. In the future, you'll know how valuable that Soulstone is! Although in the countless planes of the multiverse, there are only two Amethyst Godbeasts, myself and my mother, my mother is the only person capable of giving someone a Soulstone."

Linley and Bebe looked at each other.

From the sounds of it, this 'Soulstone' really was quite remarkable. Indeed, in battle, it was remarkably useful, but Linley didn't yet see how it could be as amazing as Reisgem was claiming it to be.

"My mother probably gave one to you out of guilt. Otherwise, how could she possibly give it to you?" Reisgem said with a sigh.

"Guilt?" Linley asked hurriedly.

"Uh..." Reisgem covered his mouth, looked around, then hurriedly shook his head and said, "Don't ask, just pretend I didn't say anything. Don't ask!"

Linley and Bebe were both rather astonished, but then Reisgem hurriedly changed the topic. He started to laugh. "Haha, Linley, Bebe, now that you are back, our chance for revenge has come! In the past three years, I've always wanted to find Montelo and gain revenge, but myself and Reihom, without anyone else, are far from being enough. If we went, we'd just be taken advantage of by them. But now that you are here, things are different."

"What do you mean?" Bebe raised an eyebrow. "We're going to find Montelo and get revenge?"

"Of course!" Reisgem said, rather angrily. "I've been thinking about revenge every moment of the past three years. Now that my chance has come, how can we not go?"

"Right. Let's go kill Montelo and the others." Reihom's gaze was cold, containing powerful hatred.

Linley frowned, worried about one thing. "Reisgem, last time, we exchanged blows with them. There were eight of them and only four of us. In addition, that Oman who fought with me was particularly strong. Even Bebe, using his innate divine ability, wasn't able to do anything to him. We're going to get revenge?"

"Right. Oman is really hard to deal with." Bebe said.

"Haha..." Reisgem began to laugh smugly. "If there are eight, there are eight. What's to fear? Only two of the eight have soul-protecting Sovereign artifacts. One is Oman, while the other is Chauswey [Xia'si'wei]. Although five of the other six have Sovereign artifacts, they don't have soul-protecting Sovereign artifacts! Last time, we were attacked and caught off guard. This time, as long as we prepare, Bebe, you use your innate divine ability and deal with two of them from the start! Once your innate divine ability recovers, we'll continue to exterminate them...hmph, it won't be hard for us to deal with eight of them!"

"It's a bit tough to deal with eight people." Linley said with a frown.

"Unfortunately, I can't use my innate divine ability nonstop." Bebe said resignedly.

Linley nodded slightly. The same was true for him. Using an innate divine ability and a soul attack were different concepts!

Soul attacks only took up spiritual energy; even if you used it all up, you could use Golden Soul-Pearls to quickly replenish it. Or, by relying on Sovereign power, one could use the attack repeatedly without worrying that one's own spiritual energy would be used up.

But innate divine abilities, aside from using up spiritual energy, also used up their innate energy.

For example, Linley's usage of 'Dragon Roar' used up that 'azure light' which was his innate energy. Although the innate azure light replenished very quickly, it still needed time! Bebe was able to execute two 'Godeater' innate divine ability attacks in succession, but for the third time, he had to wait for a while. Only after his innate energy replenished to a certain degree was he able to use it again.

"Eight people. We have to dispose of two of them at the very start." Reisgem immediately began to plan it out. "Bebe, once we encounter them, first deal with that silver-robed woman, Ranessa! Afterwards, then deal with Montelo! Once we deal with those two supreme experts, there are only two people capable of threatening us."

Although the enemy side had eight experts, they only had four truly supreme experts, with the other four being slightly weaker, below-average commanders.

"Linley, Bebe, are the two of you tired? Should we rest for a bit, or head out right away?" Reisgem asked.

"Let's head out now." Linley said with a laugh. He and Bebe had parted from Bluefire not too long ago, and they had been resting previously as well. They weren't the slightest bit tired; on the contrary, they looked forward to this battle. "If this battle goes as smoothly as predicted, I'll have enough commander badges by the end."

According to Linley's calculations, only one was needed.

"Fine, then. Let's head out." Reisgem's eyes were shining, and he snorted. "That Montelo. I'll teach him to be so smug. And so cocky! Hmph, he has no idea that we have a trump card like Bebe."

Montelo, as far as the soul went, was on the same level as Reisgem. Even Highgod Paragons would have to work hard to kill them through the soul. But...upon encountering Bebe's innate divine ability, he would definitely die.

"Let's go." Reihom, who whole-heartedly wanted to avenge his brother, and Linley, who wanted to acquire enough commander badges, as well as Bebe and Reisgem directly left the cave.

Upon leaving the cave, they were in extraordinarily high spirits. But three days later, Reisgem became rather depressed and resigned.

The desolate wilderness. A wild wind howled drearily.

Four figures were striding side by side. Reisgem said helplessly, "I thought that the Planar Battlefield wasn't that large, but now, it seems, it's huge. Finding Montelo within it is too hard." The Planar Battlefield had a circumference of a million kilometers, and the restrictive power of it was a level higher than the Infernal Realm and Netherworld's.

Even for Linley, to travel a million kilometers would take a day or two, and that was if they were walking in a straight line. They weren't doing that; they were searching one place after another for Montelo.

"Even if we used Sovereign's Might to search, it would take a few dozen years or even upwards of a hundred years to find Montelo." Linley shook his head and sighed.

To find someone in the Planar Battlefield, one would have to rely on Sovereign's Might and use it in the form of divine sense. By doing so, the range would be much greater.

"Right. There's one other way." Bebe mumbled.

"What way?" Reisgem said, startled. "What's another way for us to find Montelo?"

"Actually, we don't have to find them. They can find us; that's fine as well." Bebe said with a snicker. "We want to take revenge on Montelo, but he wants to make trouble for you as well. Reisgem, all you need to do is start a battle which causes a bit of a ruckus, and even use that innate divine ability of yours! Make it so that people ten thousand kilometers away will know that the person causing this ruckus was you, Reisgem! As long as Montelo isn't too far away, he'll soon hurry here to deal with you.

Reisgem's eyes immediately lit up.

"That's so simple! Why didn't I think of it?!" Reisgem immediately began to laugh. "This time, I'm going to make it so that Montelo throws himself into my net!

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 42, A Nightmare Descends

“What we need to consider is where we should fight, so as to draw them here.” Bebe said with a frown. “After all, the Planar Battlefield is too large. Even on just this side of the Planar Battlefield, the region has a circumference of a million kilometers. If we don’t pick the right place and are too far away from Montelo, wouldn’t that make it hard for them to find us?”

Reisgem nodded slightly. “So where exactly is Montelo?”

If they knew the answer to that, there would be no need for all these complicated maneuvers.

“I think,” Linley said reflectively, “That after Montelo’s group of eight failed to kill us, they probably found a place to rest as well. And the place they chose to rest shouldn’t be too far away from the scene of the last battle.”

“I’ve already searched the area within a circumference of ten thousand kilometers around that place.” Reisgem shook his head.

Before this, they had spent three times and completely searched the area within ten thousand kilometers, and had even used Sovereign’s Might. One could imagine how hard it was to find them.

“I expect that their resting place is within a hundred thousand kilometers of the previous battle.” Linley guessed. “How about this. Let’s make this place right here the scene of the battle. It is within hundred thousand kilometers of the last battle scene. Let's make some noise! If we use Sovereign's Might, they might just find us."

Reisgem hesitated momentarily, then nodded slightly. "Fine. That's what we'll do, then! If we don't succeed, we can try two or three more places that are a few tens of thousands of kilometers away."

"Given Montelo's temperament, once he discovers us, he'll definitely come." Reisgem revealed a smile on his face.

"Reihom, you'll put on the play with us." Reisgem laughed while looking at Reihom.

Roughly twenty thousand kilometers away from this location, within the base of a squad mountain that was less than a thousand meters high, a cavern had been dug. Montelo's group of five was there.

Within the cave.

The muscular golden-robed man, Oman, was seated silently in the meditative stance to one side of the cave, his eyes closed. That arrogant-looking middle-aged man was nearby quietly training as well. As for Montelo and the green-haired maiden, they were seated facing each other, chatting and laughing. "Young master, last time, we gained quite a bit. If we can be this lucky during the final battle, young master, you might end up having enough military merits."

Montelo laughed softly. "How about....Lowe [Lu'yi], you give me your military merits. That way, I won't have to worry about coming up with enough.”

“How can we do that?” The green-haired maiden’s laughter was as clear as a bell. “Young master, if you give me some of your military merits, I might be able to come up with enough as well.”

“Jeeze.” Montelo shook his head and laughed.

Montelo knew very well that although everyone addressed him as ‘young master’, in reality, in this group of five, only the silver-haired elder who stood by his side was his old servant. This silver-haired elder was the weakest of the five, without any Sovereign artifacts. He came to attend to Montelo’s needs.

As for the other three, each of them, be it Oman, Chauswey, or Lowe, although they gave him face by addressing him as young master, the military merits they gained were divided in accordance with their earlier agreement.

“Rumble...” An extremely weak ripple of energy made it towards them.

Montelo, Lowe, and the silver-haired Elderwey immediately turned to look towards the tunnel. Even the meditating Oman and Chauswey opened their eyes to look outwards.

The Planar Battlefield wasn’t that large to begin with. Given that battles were normally rare, the occasional major battle attracted quite a bit of attention.

"Energy ripples! It is Sovereign power." Montelo was the first to fly out.

"Perhaps we'll acquire some more commander badges." The green-haired maiden laughed enchantingly as she flew out as well, immediately followed by the silver-haired elder, the golden-robed 'Oman', and the arrogant middle-aged 'Chauswey'. The three transformed into three blurs and flew outwards.

Upon flying out from the tunnel, Montelo and the other four immediately flew at high speed towards the origin of the energy ripples.

Because the Planar Battlefield was flat, as long as there were no mountains blocking one's line of vision, commander-level experts would be able to see things from ten thousand kilometers away, despite the distance. But of course...the larger something was, the more clearly it would be visible.

"Whoooosh." The wind howled drearily as the five of them flew at high speed.

Moments later, Montelo's group of five clearly saw a black, heaven-encompassing web-like rampart hanging high in the skies. The black rampart was hundreds of meters in size, and covered with a layer of flowing violet light. A black rampart that was hundreds of meters in size... for commanders, it would be bizarre if they weren't able to locate it.

The silver-haired elder said in surprise, "Amethyst Rampart? Reisgem's Amethyst Rampart?"

A look of surprise and delight appeared on Montelo's face. He couldn't help but begin to laugh loudly. "It really is Reisgem's innate divine ability. Last time, he fled. I didn't expect that I'd encounter him yet again. Everyone, hurry up to the location of the fight. Don't miss this wonderful opportunity."

"The distance is too great!" Oman said, stone-faced. "Given the great distance, by the time we fly over, the battle might have concluded and Reisgem might have left."

Montelo understood this as well. A distance of twenty thousand kilometers...if they flew over at maximum speed, it would still take some time.

"We can't let this opportunity to go waste! Everyone, use your Sovereign's Might!" Montelo immediately sent mentally. "A drop of Sovereign's Might is enough for us to make it in time. In addition, if we are lucky, perhaps we'll be able to kill Reisgem's comrades. I wonder if Reisgem has one person with him or is in a group of three."

Montelo turned to look at Oman. "Oman, last time, you didn't kill those two. This time, don't miss again."

"Don't worry." Oman said confidently.

"Let's go!"

Montelo, with a 'bang', set his Sovereign's Might ablaze. Immediately, the other four also set their own Sovereign's Might ablaze. An ordinary commander might cherish their Sovereign's Might more, but Montelo came from the 'Augusta' clan, and was one of the clan's strongest experts. Although the amount of Sovereign's Might he was allotted wasn't as ridiculous as the amount Reisgem had access to, it was still quite a bit.

Montelo was still capable of wasting a few drops liberally as needed.

After having used their Sovereign's Might, the five figures instantly rose in speed by an extravagant amount.

They were like five blurs, instantly piercing through the skies and moving towards the location of Reisgem's battle.

Reisgem and Reihom were currently battling nonstop. Thunderous booms could be heard unceasingly, and the earth had shattered. Wild bursts of Sovereign power constantly emanated forth.

"Five surges of Sovereign power are headed towards us at high speed." Linley noticed.

"Light-type Sovereign power." Bebe said.

Linley revealed a hint of a smile on his face. "Not eight. Five. Still, for them to be coming so arrogantly and brazenly...it should be Montelo's group." Linley knew very well that ordinary commanders who were going to attack someone would never cause such a huge stir. Only Montelo, who knew exactly how strong Reisgem's team was, would dare to hurry over in such a manner at high speed.

"I didn't think that just after battling for a short while, they would arrive." Reisgem and Reihom stopped fighting.

"They are probably afraid that you will stop fighting and they won't be able to make it." Linley said with a laugh.

And just like that, Linley, Reihom, Bebe, and Reisgem just stood there, shoulder-to-shoulder, looking towards the direction of Montelo's group of five, quietly awaiting their arrival.

"Rumble..." With Sovereign power blazing forth from them, their high speed movements did indeed cause quite a commotion.

With Montelo at the lead, the group of five, covered in foamy white light, appeared within the dark environment of the Planar Battlefield like stars flashing across the sky. The five quickly arrived at the scene of the earlier 'battle'. The five of them looked forward, only to see the already-prepared Linley and his group.

"Montelo, it really is you." Reisgem snickered. "There's only five!" Linley felt relaxed as well. He had thought there would be eight of them, which would be rather pressuring, but now that there were only five, they were completely confident in their chances."

"Heeeey." Montelo, seeing the situation, felt puzzled. "The four of them aren't fleeing?"

Last time, during their fight, Montelo came to believe that this four-person's squad was only so-so. The five of them were completely capable of overcoming these four. However, Montelo didn't know...that he had miscalculated Bebe's strength. Bebe only had one powerful technique; his innate divine ability. Although Bebe's technique couldn't do anything to Oman, it could easily deal with the others.

However...

Montelo didn't know. Oman didn't know either! When Bebe had attacked him from behind, Oman, in possession of a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact, thought that it had only been an ordinary soul attack.

"Oman, last time, you didn't kill those two. This time, let's see how you do." Montelo said with a soft laugh.

"Don't worry." Oman swept Linley and Bebe with a cold gaze.

Linley looked straight at Oman as well. Suddenly, he began to laugh loudly. "Oman, last time, I didn't enjoy the fight. This time, let's have a good tussle."

Oman, to this, just responded with a snicker.

"You asked for this." Montelo was absolutely delighted. Only by knowing one's friends and enemies would one be guaranteed of victory. Montelo felt that he clearly knew what his enemies were like.

"Haha, let's fight!" Reisgem just laughed loudly.

"Attack." Montelo barked as well.

Montelo gave the order, and instantly, those five blurs shot forward, with the nimblest being the green-haired maiden with the Sovereign glove.

But when Reisgem gave the order, the four of them didn't move. Suddenly, behind Bebe appeared the enormous illusion of a Godeater Rat. The black Godeater Rat hovered there in midair, and instantly, the five figures charging towards them were so terrified that their faces changed.

"Beirut?" Oman said, shocked. "That's not right!"

"Godeater Rat? Impossible!" Montelo, who had given the order, said, his face instantly turning ashen. Since he had given the order, he naturally was in the rear, and now he was the first to flee. "Everyone, flee!" He hurriedly sent frantically.

If they didn't flee now, when?

Faced with the supreme technique of the Godeater Rat, anyone who wasn't a Paragon or had a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact would definitely die.

"Reisgem asked me to kill that woman, 'Ranessa', and Montelo. Montelo is a bit farther away though. I'll kill this green-haired maiden, then." Bebe, wanting to be certain of his kill, made his target the green-haired maiden. She had charged to the very front, and was at the rear of the pack while fleeing.

"No..." The green-haired maiden's eyes no longer held any luster or slyness, only terror.

However, it was too late!

The unique energy ripples of the innate divine ability instantly swept through her, locking onto the green-haired maiden's soul and divine spark!

Innate divine ability – Godeater!

Immediately, a divine spark flew out from within her body, and the eyes of the green-haired maiden instantly became lifeless. She collapsed from the skies, and her glove and a gold badge fell out onto the ground.

A commander-level expert had just died in an instant!

The supreme technique of Godeater Rats...the nightmare of many commanders!

"Flee, flee!" Montelo was completely scared stupid by now. He only knew that he had to run. He knew very well that if today, he moved one step too slow, he would be finished! Although he was confident in his soul's prowess, upon encountering the innate divine ability, 'Godeater', he would still be finished.

"That youth...how can he be a Godeater Rat. How?!" Montelo didn't dare believe it.

"How did it end up being like this?" Oman was completely mystified. He wasn't afraid of this technique, but he also knew..."The other three of our five-person squad, in the face of that Godeater Rat, will definitely perish. Chauswey and I, against them four, will only barely be able to flee and stay alive." Oman understood that Reisgem was more than strong enough to tie him down.

As for Reihom, Linley, and Bebe, it would be easy for them to kill Chauswey. After killing Chauswey, Linley and the other two could join forces with Reisgem to kill Oman, which would also be simple.

In the same instant that Montelo's group of four began to flee...

"Boom!" "Boom!" "Boom!" "Boom!"

Destruction-type Sovereign power began to blaze forth from the bodies of Linley and the rest of the four. At the same time, a blurry black light instantly spread out, surrounding and enclosing the four who wanted to flee. Montelo's group's speed drastically lowered, and Montelo himself was so terrified that his face turned white. "Amethyst Space!"

Black light had completely surrounded Linley's group of four, and white light surrounded Montelo's group of four.

Four pursued four!

"Flee separately!" Montelo shouted mentally.

"Haha..." Reisgem's wild laughter rang out, and at the same time, behind him, an enormous illusion of an Amethyst Godbeast that had 108 spikes on its back appeared. At the same time, 108 rays of violet light, carrying Destruction-type Sovereign power, shot out, instantly sweeping towards the four fleeing figures.

Innate divine ability – Amethyst Rampart!

With the descent of the Amethyst Rampart, the escape paths for Montelo's group of four was blocked.

"Bebe." Reisgem sent smugly.

"Got it. Just watch me!" Bebe, seeing the opportunity, once more executed his innate divine ability!

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 43, Attacked and Killed

“Flee, flee!” Montelo had no intentions of trying to fight back. After realizing that Bebe was a Godeater Rat, he only knew one thing: He had to flee! “Flee separately. Make them pursue us separately, and we might have a chance.” Just as Montelo felt as though he had a hint of hope, the Amethyst Rampart suddenly descended from the heavens!

It was like an enormous, sky-covering net that swept towards them!

“No...” Montelo’s face instantly turned ashen.

The Amethyst Rampart swept towards them, hundreds of meters long, enveloping Montelo, Oman, and the other four within it, and also wanting to seal them within a closed cocoon.

“Break, break!” Oman frantically brandished his spiked mace, viciously smashing against the Amethyst Rampart. Unfortunately, the Amethyst Rampart just rippled a few times like water, completely undamaged. This was the innate divine ability of the Amethyst Godbeasts; how could it be so easily broken? Oman and Chauswey still had at least a bit of confidence; they weren’t afraid of the ‘Godeater’ ability.

But as for Montelo and the silver-haired elder, they were afraid. They didn’t dare to waste a single moment.

“The road ahead is blocked. All we can do is turn and charge backwards. Perhaps we’ll still have a chance!” Montelo and the silver-haired elder turned their heads to discover that the Amethyst Rampart had already 'closed', forming into a sealed 'cocoon'.

There was nowhere to run!

"Haha..." Reisgem was utterly delighted as he stared at Montelo.

As for Bebe, the divine beast's illusion had already taken form behind him. An enormous phantom of a Godeater Rat was right behind Bebe, staring at Montelo with a pair of cold eyes. Bebe cracked his lips open in a grin, chortling as that unique energy ripple surged forth.

Innate divine ability – Godeater!

"We're finished." Montelo and the silver-haired elder felt utterly powerless.

"No!" Montelo suddenly growled, and then from his body, thousands of strands of white silk appeared, shooting out like spiderwebs towards the nearby silver-haired elder, instantly wrapping him up and giving him a strong pull! It pulled the nearby silver-haired elder to Montelo's side, just as the energy of the 'Godeater' arrived!

The silver-haired elder, unable to react in time, was struck head on.

The thousands of white strands of silk disintegrated, while the silver-haired elder dropped down from the skies. From his body, out rolled a white badge as well as a Highgod artifact, an interspatial ring, and a divine spark which flew out of his head towards Bebe.

"This..." Bebe was stunned.

The nearby Linley, Reisgem and Reihom had been certain that Montelo was going to die, but the scene just now had caused them to be stunned. "He used his own ally as a shield?" Linley was rather puzzled as to whether or not that silver-haired elder had surviving clones in the outside world, and if he would feel hatred for Montelo because of this and go make trouble for him.

What Linley didn't know was...

The silver-haired elder's status amongst the five was the lowest; he was an old servant of Montelo's. The silver-haired elder might feel resentment in his heart for Montelo's actions, but he wouldn't dare take revenge.

"Boss, I can only use my innate divine ability twice in a row. We have to wait for a good while before I can use it again." Bebe sent helplessly to Linley.

"Montelo really is lucky." Linley couldn't help but laugh bitterly.

Reisgem, knowing that Bebe wouldn't be able to use his innate divine ability for now, just began to laugh loudly as he pointed towards Montelo. "Haha, Montelo, you really are decisive, ruthless, and vicious. You sacrificed your own partner. I really admire you. But unfortunately, today, you will still die."

Oman and Chauswey couldn't help but give Montelo a sidelong glance as well.

Using one of them as a shield. This sort of action did indeed make others feel repulsed and angered. However, as the silver-haired elder was Montelo's old servant, Oman and Chauswey couldn't really say anything.

"Haha, an innate divine ability can only be used twice in a row." Montelo began to laugh loudly. "It seems you won't be able to kill me."

As soon as Montelo's words finished, the 'Amethyst Rampart' suddenly dissipated, its energy returning to the universe. The innate divine ability was only able to persist for a limited time.

"Haha...Oman, let's go." Montelo sent.

"You want to run?" Reisgem said with a snicker. "We'll chase!"

He had spread out his Amethyst Space to a circumference of nearly a thousand kilometers long ago, and a powerful gravitational force caused Montelo, Oman, and Chauswey to move much slower. Reisgem, Linley, Bebe, and Reihom transformed into four black blurs, chasing after them at high speed. And of course, they also scooped up the white badge of that silver-haired elder.

"In this battle, we only acquired a single gold badge. Last time, Reisgem gave us the gold badge, so this time, we'll definitely have to give the badge to Reisgem." Linley understood that if they only gained a single gold badge this time, it would go to Reisgem, and his goal would not be accomplished.

"I have to kill one!"

Linley stared fixedly at Montelo. "Given Montelo's status, he has to be a commander."

"Of the three of them, Oman is the hardest to deal with. Let me handle Oman!" Reisgem sent mentally towards the other three. "Reihom...you go deal with that Chauswey. Given your strength, you should be completely certain of success. As for Montelo, Linley, you said your power increased greatly. You should be able to tie him down. If you can kill Montelo, kill him; if you can't, tie him down. We just need to wait a while, and Bebe will be able to use his innate divine ability a third time, and we'll kill Montelo!"

"Don't worry. Leave Montelo to me." Linley sent mentally.

Having made a breakthrough not too long ago, Linley felt extremely confident.

At this moment in time, the three enemies up ahead who were trapped and slowed down within the Amethyst Space were feeling uneasy as well. "Oman, Chauswey, we definitely won't be able to escape like this. The three of us need to flee in three directions. They don't have three Amethyst Spaces!"

"Fine!"

"Fine!"

Oman and Chauswey both acknowledged, and each of the three began to fly in a different direction at high speed; one continued to flight straight forward, while the other two began to fly to the left and to the right, respectively.

“Attack them separately!” Reisgem gave the order.

Linley’s group of four, long prepared, didn’t hesitate at all. Linley and Bebe charged straight towards Montelo, while Reisgem chased after Oman and Reihom chased after Chauswey.

“I hope that Godeater Rat won’t chase after me.” Montelo felt hope in his heart. He fled at high speed, and soon escaped the Amethyst Space. “I finally flew out of the Amethyst Space. Now, it’s time for me to flee.” Just as he was rejoicing, however, a white light suddenly descended once more from the heavens.

A powerful gravitational force instantly wrapped around him, the power of it comparable to that of the Amethyst Space.

Blackstone Space!

“What’s going on?” Montelo turned, only to see the Dragonformed Linley and Bebe in pursuit. “How could I have forgotten about them? That brat of the Azure Dragon clan is also skilled in the Amethyst Space.” He had heard Oman mention this before. “And that’s the Godeater Rat. Terrible!”

Montelo feared the Godeater Rat the most! At his level, it would be very hard to kill him, but unfortunately, the innate divine ability of Godeater Rats was simply too terrifying. If it failed, that was one thing, but if it succeeded, the opponent would definitely die.

"Whoooosh." Space itself seemed to emit a keening screech.

Linley and Bebe continued to draw closer and closer to Montelo.

"This kid is going to die, no questions." Linley was completely confident.

"Boss, don't worry. Once my innate divine ability's energy replenishes to a certain degree, I'll be able to kill him with ease." Bebe sent with a chortle.

Still flying up ahead, Montelo felt panic in his heart. "If this continues, I'll only be getting closer and closer to them. I definitely won't be able to escape! Even if I'm able to delay for a time, once the Godeater Rat recovers, he'll still be able to easily annihilate me." Montelo understood that there was no way for him to run.

"Swoosh!"

Montelo suddenly halted.

Linley and Bebe halted as well, and Linley looked with amusement at Montelo. Laughing softly, he said, "Oh, no longer running?"

Montelo cursed mentally, "Within the Amethyst Space, how can I flee? The more time I spend, the slimmer my chances for survival." Linley and Bebe weren't in any hurry to attack; they were happy to drag this out. Once Bebe recovered, he would easily defeat Montelo.

"The two of you....why must you kill me?" Montelo said hurriedly. "As long as you two don't kill me, I will be willing to satisfy any requirements that you two desire."

"No need." Linley snickered.

"I have Sovereign's Might. A large amount of Sovereign's Might." Montelo said hurriedly.

Bebe said mockingly, "We don't lack for Sovereign's Might."

"Oh, right. My commander badge. I will give you my commander badge." Montelo said hurriedly.

"According to the rules of the Planar Battlefield, when leaving the Planar Battlefield, one must be holding a commander badge. Someone who is still alive who doesn't have a commander badge will have violated the laws of the Planar Battlefield, and will be executed by the Sovereigns." Linley snickered.

This rule of the Planar Battlefield was made to ensure that people wouldn't just swap badges with others.

For example, if two commanders entered two separate camps, and then just handed their badges to each other as military merits! This was a sort of cheating. Thus, upon the conclusion of the Planar War, if someone alive didn't have their commander badge, they would be executed. Executed by a Sovereign!

After all, that was the time for military merits to be rewarded, or for military merits to be exchanged for a Sovereign artifact. The Sovereigns would create energy-clones.

Those who violated the rules would die.

"I'm willing to do this. Don't worry. As long as you spare me." Montelo said frantically. "I will immediately give it to you. As for the commander badge, in the future, I'll kill someone of my own alliance."

"Boss, just wait a bit. My innate divine ability's energy is almost replenished. I just need a little more time." Bebe sent.

"Sparing you...isn't necessarily out of the question." Linley suddenly changed his tone.

But Montelo said frantically, "If you agree, then agree. If you refuse, then refuse. The two of you, hurry up." He too knew very well that Bebe's innate divine ability energy was replenishing.

"About that...!" Bebe drawled.

"Die, then!" Montelo suddenly exploded forth, and the white energy aura around Montelo instantly bounded towards Bebe like lightning.

"These two are clearly just wasting time. I have only one option right now! That's to kill this Godeater Rat. If I kill him, I still have a chance to live!"

Montelo knew what the situation was; if they wanted to let him leave, why would they hesitate? Hesitation was to waste time; wasting time was to kill him!

"His reaction is quite quick." Linley hurriedly went forward to welcome him.

"Swoosh!" A white, semi-translucent arrow shot out from Montelo's body, shooting towards Bebe.

The speed was so quick that Bebe wasn't able to dodge at all. It directly entered his body.

"The material defense of Godeater Rats is too strong. I'll have to try soul attacks." Montelo knew this point very well, but before he even had a chance to see whether or not Bebe had died, Linley's attack arrived.

"Crackle..."

Montelo only saw 108 rays of black shadows surge towards him like dragons. Montelo's divine sense instantly noticed one thing. "A divine sword? An invisible, divine sword?" While still in a state of amazement, those 108 black blurs solidified into a hole, forming into a sphere that completely enveloped him, and a powerful compressive force instantly affected his entire body.

Pressure, compression!

"Slash!"

As fast as lightning, as a ray of light, a sword split through the heavens, piercing towards Montelo's head.

However, above Montelo's head, a strange protective layer appeared. With a 'clang!' sound, the attack had to withdraw without any results.

"Defensive Sovereign artifacts truly are incredible." Linley sighed in mental praise. Linley knew that it would be hard for him to kill this person, but he was still able to tie him down for a time. "However, the power of 'Microcosm' when using Sovereign's Might is truly tremendous. Even Montelo isn't able to react to my sword."

Linley retreated at high speed.

"He isn't dead?" Montelo turned to look at Bebe, then immediately turned to flee.

"Haha, don't be in such a rush."

Linley's body once more swept forward, and the invisible 'Mirage' once more struck out. That blurry black sphere once more surrounded Montelo, and the enraged Montelo's body once more exploded forth with large amounts of white silk.

"Crackle..."

When the sword struck out, the nearer white strands of silk were all shattered.

"Boss, I'm ready." Bebe sent mentally.

Linley's sky-shattering sword thrust landed on Montelo's body, knocking him backwards slightly. At this moment, Montelo noticed that behind Bebe had appeared the enormous illusion of a Godeater Rat.

"NO!!!" Montelo stared, wide-eyed.

"This time, there's no one present to be your shield." Linley watched this scene.

The innate divine ability's unique energy swept outwards towards Montelo. Montelo wasn't able to resist at all. He collapsed to the ground, dead!

"Clink!" A gold badge fell out from his body.

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 44, Results

Montelo's corpse lay there on the ground. This area was utterly silent and still, with only the constant howling of the cold wind.

Linley collected the gold badge, a smile on his face. "This is the second gold badge we acquired in this battle!" In this moment, the only thing Linley could see was this gold badge. As for Montelo's defensive Sovereign artifact, Linley's glance swept directly past it. This defensive Sovereign artifact would be reclaimed by the Sovereign later.

Bebe ran over, saying excitedly, "Boss, the second one! Earlier, when that green-haired woman died, the badge was Reisgem's. This one is ours. Now, we have a total of four commander badges!"

"Right, four! My father, Boss Yale, George, and Delia's older brother. We have enough already!" Linley let out a long sigh of relief.

Bebe grinned as well.

"Boss, do you think Grandpa Doehring can be brought back to life?" Bebe suddenly said.

Linley was stunned.

"Grandpa Doehring?" Within Linley's mind, the events from two thousand years ago suddenly reappeared. At that time, he was just an ordinary child, a youth whom Grandpa Doehring gave guidance to, helping him to steadily grow.

In Linley's life, Grandpa Doebling and Bebe held extremely important places. Whether thousands of years, ten thousand years, or even more time passed, Linley would never forget Grandpa Doebling. The death of Grandpa Doebling was a scar embedded deep within Linley's heart, an eternal regret.

"Grandpa Doebling's soul dissipated." Linley said with a sigh.

"If a person's soul dissipates, does that mean they can't come back to life again?" Bebe was rather unwilling to accept this.

"Only when the soul remains alive can one reform into an undead." Linley shook his head. "Bebe, enough of this. Let's go find Reihom and Reisgem."

Grandpa Doebling's death...each time this scab was picked at, Linley felt agonized and miserable.

"Alright." Bebe stopped discussing this, immediately following Linley towards the direction of a powerful surge of Sovereign power.

Next to a desolate mountain, Reihom and Chausway were undergoing a major battle.

Reihom had already transformed into a ten meter tall giant, his entire body like steel. A king amongst the race of World Titans!

Reihom's fierce, sharp gaze stared towards the little fellow before him. His two arms were like meteors, crashing down again and again. Or he stomped down, or kicked, or stepped...simple motions, but each one caused space to tremble and fracture. The earth itself was constantly rising up and sinking down, obeying Reihom's wishes.

"Whooosh." Chauswey continuously dodged, flashing about.

"This big fellow's attacks are too strong, in particular after he transformed. My speed is inferior to his." Chauswey was extremely panicked, and the white light around his body continuously flowed out, like strands of silk, protecting him perfectly. "I'll only have one chance. I have to succeed."

Suddenly...

Six white ribbons of light shot straight towards Reihom's chest. Reihom's giant hand suddenly slapped over in a dance, and of the six ribbons of white light, five of them coiled around Reihom's right elbow, while the one remaining white ribbon transformed from being as soft as lace to as sharp as the tip of a sword. It shot towards Reihom's chest!

"RAAAAAAAAAAAWR!"

The enormous Reihom suddenly let out an enraged bellow, his howl causing space itself to visibly ripple. The 'fist' on his body suddenly became filled with all sorts of golden magical runes which suddenly lit up. A brilliant golden light spread out from every single magical rune, and Reihom suddenly swung his fist over, smashing through this white ribbons.

Chauswey's face instantly changed. "How is that possible?"

"Clang!" The white ribbon piercing towards Reihom's chest only went in slightly, but at a certain depth, it was unable to penetrate any further.

"RAAAAWR!" The furiously roaring Reihom slammed both his arms together in a pincer strike against Chauswey.

Still stunned, Chauswey retreated frantically. Just as he was about to escape Reihom's attack range, suddenly, Reihom's two giant palms suddenly shot out with pillars of white light. These two pillars of white light had flecks of golden light on their surfaces, and shot at high speed towards the distant, retreating Chauswey.

"No!" Chauswey instantly generated a large number of white ribbons from his body, forming into layers of protection.

"BANG!"

The two pillars of gold-flecked white light struck directly onto Chauswey's body. The many layers of protective ribbons surrounding Chauswey's body were shattered inch by inch, then the two pillars of light flashed forward as Chauswey watched in terror, entering his body. With a terrifying, thunderous sound, Chauswey was transformed into dust.

Reihom's body shrank.

"Whew. Whew!" Reihom's chest heaved like a bellow, letting out a few heavy pants, his face ashen. The supreme technique he had used just now was something that he wouldn't use save at a critical moment. Once he used it, for a short period of time, his power would drop dramatically, and it would be quite some time before he recovered.

"I didn't expect that this Chauswey would be so hard to deal with." Reihom had to rest for quite a while before he recovered. "Fortunately, we got another commander badge."

Reihom, from the corner of his eyes, saw a commander badge lying on the ground. As for the two rings, Reihom didn't even look at them. He knew that one was an interspatial ring, while the other was a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact.

"Swoosh!" "Swoosh!"

Two auras were moving close rapidly.

"Eh?" Reihom turned his head to look, then let out a sigh of relief. The newcomers were Linley and Bebe.

"Reihom, you killed Chauswey?" Linley, seeing the rubble on the ground, couldn't help but laugh.

"I had to spend quite a bit of effort to kill him." Reihom had a rare smile on his face. "That Chauswey trained in the Laws of Water and was skilled in defense. Despite my attack power, I nonetheless actually had to use a forbidden technique to kill him. Right, did you kill Montelo?" Reihom had a hint of anticipation in his eyes. Originally, it was his dear friend who had been killed by Montelo.

"Killed'm." Linley flipped his hand over. "This is his commander badge."

"Good!"

Reihom couldn't help but feel wildly overjoyed.

Right at this moment, another aura drew close at high speed. Linley's group of three turned to look. The newcomer was Reisgem. Reisgem glanced at the commander badge in Linley's hands, and he couldn't help but start to laugh. "Haha, Montelo, that bastard. He finally died! That fellow has pissed me off for the last time. I want to see how he'll continue to be so boastful in the future. Reihom, you killed Chauswey?"

"Yes." Reihom took out a commander badge as well.

"Hey, Reisgem, what about you?" Bebe chortled, and Linley also laughed as he looked towards Reisgem. Everyone was in a very good mood.

"Me?" Reisgem couldn't help but let out an awkward laugh. "Well, uh... this is a bit embarrassing. Although I was able to surpass him in speed, Oman really is hard to deal with. He was able to block my attacks, and then the two of us went underground into a major battle. That fellow actually ran deep into the underground region, to the place where spatial rifts randomly appear...that place is too dangerous. In the end, I had to give up.”

Battling deep underground was indeed very dangerous.

“For Oman to have been forced by you to do that is already pretty catastrophic for him.” Linley understood that unless he had no other options, Oman wouldn’t have made that choice.

Although Oman’s strength was excellent, when trapped in the Amethyst Field, he was indeed at a disadvantage. Given Reisgem’s Sovereign weapon, Oman would be able to block, but as time went on, if he slipped a single time, it would be the end. For him to dive deep underground meant that Oman was desperately trying to find a hope of life in a sea of death.

“Haha, most importantly of all, we killed Montelo. No matter what, we’ve had a major victory.” Reisgem began to laugh. “This time, we got a total of three commander badges. Linley, last time, we gave you a badge. This time, of the three badges, two should be mine and one yours. No objections, right?”

“No objections.” Linley said with a laugh.

One badge was enough.

“But next time, if there are any more commander badges, they’ll be ours.” Bebe chortled.

“Of course.” Reisgem raised his eyebrows and laughed. “Our four-person squad is all but invincible. Uh, but of course, we'd best not encounter any more Highgod Paragons." Linley's group felt nervous when they thought of Bayer. Highgod Paragons really were overly powerful.

The Divine Light Plane. Deep within the Godsgaol Sea, within the Aumight Island.

Aumight Island was the headquarters of the number one clan of the multiverse, the Augusta clan. The Augusta clan was extremely large, because the Chief Sovereign of Light was himself just of an ordinary race. Naturally, his reproductive abilities were great, and his progeny were numerous. This caused the Augusta clan to vastly outstrip the Four Divine Beasts clan in number.

Aumight Island had nearly a million people. And this was just the place where the elites of the Augusta clan lived!

The Augusta clan's true population was spread out throughout the eighty one islands nearby Aumight Island. They numbered in the hundreds of millions. Although numerous, many were only of ordinary talent...but of course, with such a large base, a few geniuses would occasionally appear.

Many of the members of the Augusta clan desired to join Aumight Island.

"Rustle..." The waters of the sea slapped against the shores of Aumight Island.

Atop Aumight Island, the elites of the clan were separated from each other. Most of them were rather solitary and arrogant. As the elites of the number one clan of the multiverse, they naturally had much to be proud about. However, once they looked towards the center of Aumight Island, to that towering white temple completely made out of marble which was more than ten thousand meters tall, they had envy in their eyes.

Within the Temple of Augusta.

A figure strode forward through a corridor, which had paintings hanging on each sides of it. The guards standing at the sides of the corridor all immediately bowed.

"Your Highness!" "Your Highness!"

The figure just strode forward past them.

"What's wrong with his Highness? Why does he have such an ugly look on his face?" Two Emissaries discussed softly amongst themselves.

Before a ten-meter tall, unadorned violet gate. The figure came to a halt here and said in a low voice, "Send the message that I wish to see the Patriarch."

"Yes, your Highness. Your Highness, please wait a moment." The two violet-robed guards said, and one of them bowed, then retreated into the corridor.

"How did this happen! Reisgem...and that Azure Dragon clan punk. And that Godeater Rat!" This 'Highness' was Montelo. However, now that Montelo had lost his most powerful clone, he was no longer one of the most powerful, towering figures of the Augusta clan. But of course, the people in the clan didn't know it yet.

Moments later, the violet-robed guard came out.

"Your Highness, please enter. The Patriarch is within, waiting for you." The violet-robed guard said respectfully.

Montelo directly entered.

This was the residence of the Patriarch. It had a dining hall, a meeting hall, beautifully adorned rooms, and more. Montelo saw the figure standing atop a balcony, and upon seeing it, even someone as arrogant as Montelo had to lower his head. "Patriarch, my most powerful divine clone died!"

"Hm?" The white-robed figure couldn't help but turn. He had a pair of sharp, sword-shaped eyebrows, and a fiery red dot in his forehead.

This person was the Patriarch of the Augusta clan, and the most successful of the 182 children of the Chief Sovereign of Light. He was the strongest of them all. Although the Chief Sovereign of Light couldn't give him too many Sovereign artifacts, by making his other Emissaries work together, he was able to ensure that the Patriarch acquired sufficient Sovereign artifacts.

The Augusta Patriarch had three Sovereign artifacts! Given that he was extremely powerful to begin with, even a Highgod Paragon would at most be able to push him into chaotic space.

But even if he was pushed into chaotic space, the Chief Sovereign of Light would probably be able to save him.

"What happened?" The Augusta Patriarch said in a low voice, and the fiery red spot in his forehead expanded slightly.

Montelo lowered his head, his words filled with resentment. "Patriarch, it was Reisgem! I wasn't afraid of him, but who would have imagined that he brought a youth. That youth was actually a Godeater Rat!"

"Godeater Rat?" The Augusta Patriarch instantly understood.

It was very hard to kill this nephew of his. But a Godeater Rat could indeed accomplish it.

"Patriarch, the ones who killed me were a youth of the Azure Dragon clan and that Godeater Rat. They are currently with Reisgem?" Montelo said with pain.

"Reisgem?" The Augusta Patriarch shook his head. "That's the only child of the Redbud Sovereign. I definitely will not agree to Reisgem being killed." The Augusta Patriarch was quite decisive about this. He knew that even his father, the Chief Sovereign of Light, wouldn't easily fight with the Redbud Sovereign.

Yes, the Chief Sovereign of Light was strong enough to deal with the Redbud Sovereign. Unfortunately, the Redbud Sovereign belonged to the seven great Sovereigns of Destruction. Their leader, the 'Chief Sovereign of Destruction', surpassed the Chief Sovereign of Light.

More importantly, the Chief Sovereign of Light couldn't possibly go deal with another Sovereign for the sake of a grandchild.

"Patriarch, it will most likely be very hard for me to regain my former power. I know this puts you in a difficult position, but I hope you will consider the contributions I have rendered to the clan over all these years and get revenge for me." Montelo's face was filled with indignation, and he said in a low voice, "I didn't plan to kill Reisgem. I only hope, Patriarch, that we can kill that Azure Dragon clan's brat, and that Godeater Rat!"

Montelo deeply hated Linley and Bebe. If it hadn't been for Linley entangling him, he would have fled long ago. After all, Bebe didn't have the ability to stop him.

The Augusta Patriarch was silent.

Montelo said hurriedly, "Patriarch, our clan has suffered major losses this time. Lowe and Chauswey both died. Actually, my personal grudge is a small matter, but we lost four experts. Can it be that the Augusta clan isn't going to respond at all? What about our clan's face? If our clan doesn't respond, others will secretly laugh at us."

"Hm?" The Augusta Patriarch lifted an eyebrow. Clearly, he was moved by these words.

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 45, Arrangements

The Augusta Patriarch was frowning. He stood there on the balcony, actually turning to stare into the distant Godsgaol Sea. He was silent.

“Patriarch.” Montelo said hurriedly. But the Augusta Patriarch didn’t agree. Montelo knew...that the Patriarch would definitely consider things carefully, and so he no longer rushed him. In his heart though, he felt frantic. “Given the Patriarch’s temper, it’s quite possible that the Patriarch won’t get involved in this matter. If that’s the case, who can I ask to kill the Godeater Rat and the other one?”

“No. I have to kill those two.” Montelo continuously pondered what he should do.

Although Montelo was an important member of the Augusta clan, he didn’t have any important relationships with Highgod Paragons.

It was very difficult to gain revenge after being killed in the Planar Battlefield. After all, commanders capable of killing other commanders in the Planar Battlefield were all powerful. Only Paragons would be completely certain of success in killing them.

There were only a few Highgod Paragons, and they were scattered across the planes. Some Highgod Paragons lay hidden within material planes, while others lived in seclusion in other places. To invite a Paragon was a very difficult task.

Not everyone was like the elven expert, ‘Occluar’, who had a Paragon in his debt.

Forget about Montelo; even the Augusta Patriarch, the Patriarch of the number one clan, was not completely certain he would be able to invite a Paragon.

"Describe the power of Reisgem's squad in detail." The Augusta Patriarch continued to stare towards the Godsgaol Sea as he spoke calmly.

"Yes."

Montelo was overjoyed. He hurriedly said, "Their squad has four people. Reisgem, an expert close to Reihom in power, a youth of the Azure Dragon clan, and that Godeater Rat! Of the four of them, Reisgem is the strongest. But of course, the Godeater Rat is terrifying as well. That innate divine ability is too formidable."

"Oh..." The Augusta Patriarch suddenly turned, staring at him with awl-like eyes. "That expert close to Oman in power; there's nothing special about him?"

"Oman is enough to deal with him." Montelo said with certainty.

If Oman were to fight Reihom, indeed, as Oman had a Sovereign weapon, he was a counter to Reihom...although the fight would be a tough one, Oman would still be able to kill Reihom.

"To kill that Azure Dragon youth and that Godeater Rat will not be easy."

The Augusta Patriarch shook his head slightly. Actually, he was rather hesitant on whether or not to send out any forces. In truth, Lowe and Chauswey didn't belong to the Augusta clan. Although they died, the clan's power hadn't been impacted much.

If a Sovereign's Emissary was lost, the Sovereign could accept another one.

Montelo was frantic. He hurriedly said, "If they just killed me, that's one thing. But this time, they killed four of our people. And, Patriarch, you know what Reisgem is like. He's the sort that loves to cause trouble. He's had problems with our clan for a long time now. Now that he's gained a victory, he'll definitely go bragging to everyone about it. If our clan doesn't react at all, then..."

The Augusta Patriarch frowned, that fiery dot in his forehead seeming to emit a flaming light.

The Augusta Patriarch immediately gave the order. "Montelo, go ask Oman to come. At the same time, please ask someone to invite Chegwin [Qie'ge'wen] as well."

Although Oman's most powerful divine clone was in the Planar Battlefield, he still had a clone that remained within the clan. As for 'Chegwin', he also lived in the Godsgaol Sea. He was also an Emissary of the Chief Sovereign of Light, and was fairly close to the Augusta clan.

"Yes." Montelo couldn't help but feel overjoyed.

"It seems there is hope." Montelo was incomparably excited. Although he didn't know what arrangements the Patriarch would make, since he already had inquired about Reisgem's squad's strength, Montelo believed that the Patriarch would send out a squad that would definitely be successful.

Not attacking was one thing, but if they were to attack, they must be successful.

The Planar Battlefield was as desolate as ever.

"Whoooosh." The wind howled, and sand flew everywhere. The cold wind blew, and two figures were walking shoulder-to-shoulder within it. At a closer distance, it could be seen that one was a short silver-haired, golden robed, hard-faced man. This was the single survivor of the earlier battle, Oman.

Next to Oman was a tall, skinny man in a green robe. There was a closed third eye in his forehead. This person was Chegwin.

"The Patriarch really dotes on Montelo. He actually intends to get revenge for this matter." Oman snickered. "And he even invited the two of us to work together."

Chegwin let out a calm laugh which seemed quite eerie. "Oman, the Patriarch is the most beloved son of the Chief Sovereign. The Patriarch personally asked me to come; how could I not give him face? But Oman... for Reisgem's group of four to slaughter you to such a degree means they definitely are quite strong."

"I told you, the only one hard to deal with is that Godeater Rat." Oman said self-deprecatingly.

If the results of that battle were to be spread out, it would affect Oman's reputation as well.

"But this time, we are completely certain of victory." Oman smiled.

"Not necessarily, unless that person agrees." Chegwin shook his head.
"He won't necessarily agree."

"If he doesn't agree, then just the two of us alone will find it rather hard." Oman looked towards the front.

While chatting, the two of them had already arrived at a military camp. The guards of the camp immediately stared at them vigilantly. Generally speaking, only supreme experts would dare to roam the Planar Battlefield like this. Oman immediately said, "Go report to your commander. Say that I, Oman, have come to pay my respects to him."

"Milords, please wait a moment." One of the soldiers bowed slightly, then retreated inside to report.

Moments later...

"The two of you, the Lord Commander has invited you in." The soldier returned.

Oman and Chegwin smiled as they walked in, shoulder-to-shoulder. They quickly arrived at an ancient, unadorned courtyard. Currently, at the gates of the courtyard, there was a handsome, golden-haired youth. The golden-haired youth looked at Oman and Chegwin, then immediately began to laugh. "Oman, ah, I didn't expect that Mr. Chegwin would come as well. It's quite rare for the two of you to come visit me. Please, come in, come in!"

Oman stepped forward, saying in a soft voice, "Ramson [La'mu'seng], is Mr. Magnus here?"

"Him." The golden-haired youth was stunned. "You came to see him?"

"Right." Oman nodded slightly.

Right at this moment, a calm voice rang out from within. "Oman, Chegwin, since the two of you have come to see me, just come in. It's been quite some time since I've seen you two as well."

Oman and Chegwin didn't hesitate any further, immediately following the golden-haired youth inside.

Within the courtyard, there was a stone table and a pitch-black chair, atop which was a man who was casually flipping through a finger-thick book. This man had silver-colored, straight, flowing hair that fell to his waist. It was hanging loose, seeming quite relaxed. The man's skin was crystalline, and his face was completely clean, without any stubble.

The only facial hair was two silver eyebrows which drooped downwards to his ears.

"Mr. Magnus." Oman and Chegwin bowed slightly.

Magnus placed the book on the table, then laughed calmly as he gave them a sidelong glance. "Sit."

Oman and Chegwin both sat down. They unconsciously glanced at each other, both feeling a hint of pressure. This 'Magnus' who was in front of them was a true ultimate expert of the Celestial Realm. The outside world was rife with rumors that Magnus was supposedly a Highgod Paragon, but Oman and Chegwin actually knew for certain...

That Magnus was indeed a Paragon.

As a Highgod Paragon who trained in the Edicts of Fate, it could be said that Magnus' expertise in the soul could be described as the highest amongst Highgods.

"It seems as though the two of you have something you want to discuss, but find hard to." Magnus laughed calmly.

Chegwin took a deep breath. "Mr. Magnus, let me first describe this matter for you. Not long ago, Reisgem led a small squad, which in the Planar Battlefield exterminated the squad Montelo was leading. Four members died, leaving only Oman as the sole survivor."

"That formidable?" Magnus was rather surprised. He couldn't help but look at Oman.

Oman said, awkwardly, "Their squad has a Godeater Rat."

Magnus now understood, and the nearby golden-haired youth laughed. "I heard of this Godeater Rat long ago. So he belongs to Reisgem's squad. Montelo's squad lost four people; only Oman escaped? So Montelo himself died as well?"

"Right." Oman nodded.

"It was Patriarch Goldman who invited you to come, yes?" Magnus laughed calmly.

Oman laughed helplessly, "Mr. Magnus, you've guessed everything. We'll be straightforward. Indeed, the Patriarch asked us to invite you to assist us. After all...there aren't many people in the Planar Battlefield who would listen to the Augusta clan, and even fewer who can deal with Reisgem."

"Does Goldman have mental issues? He wants to act against Reisgem?" Magnus couldn't help but frown.

There weren't many who would dare say that Goldman had mental issues. Magnus was one of them. In addition, Magnus and Goldman had a rather deep relationship between the two of them; in the past, when the two of them were weak, they had roamed the Divine Light Plane together. To invite a Paragon to help, relying on the backing of a Sovereign was useless. The only thing you could rely on was friendship and debts.

"No, no." Oman chortled. "Don't worry about that. The Patriarch doesn't intend to act against Reisgem. The Patriarch wants to deal with the other three."

"I can't kill the Godeater Rat." Magnus shook his head.

"Right. Mr. Magnus, you are worried about Beirut?" Oman said.

The nearby golden-haired youth, 'Ramson', laughed. "Mr. Magnus doesn't worry about that, of course. Only, can it be that you don't know that some time ago, Mr. Bayer personally went to go kill that Godeater Rat? He wasn't able to. Mr. Bayer even stayed here for a few months to discuss this."

"Bayer?" Oman and Chegwin looked at each other.

"The Godeater Rat's defense is incredibly strong, and he has a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact. The only method is to push him into a spatial rift; otherwise, there is no way to kill him." Magnus shook his head. "Even in chaotic space, given his material defense, he will probably be able to survive. At most, he'll be lost. If Beirut asks for his Sovereign to help find him in chaotic space, it's very possible the Sovereign will."

Oman and Chegwin only now understood how hard Godeater Rats were to deal with.

"If you want to attack, you can only kill the youth of the Azure Dragon clan and that other person." Magnus said with a calm laugh.

"Mr. Magnus, if you personally get involved, there definitely won't be any problems." Oman said hurriedly. Chegwin looked expectantly towards Magnus as well.

Magnus let out a chuckled. "What did that kid Goldman say to you?" Magnus looked at Oman.

"He said that if you help him out this time, Mr. Magnus, he will give you, sir, a mutated cloudstone." Oman said rather uncomprehendingly. He didn't have any idea what the Patriarch's words meant; although mutated cloudstones were fairly rare in the Divine Light Plane, they weren't that valuable either, less than a Highgod artifact.

Was a mutated cloudstone enough to ask Magnus to intervene? How could that be made to happen so cheaply?

"That kid, Goldman....he's always so sly." Magnus laughed and rose to his feet. "Then I'll accompany you on this trip."

Oman and Chegwin couldn't help but feel surprised. They hadn't expected that this offer would successfully result in Magnus helping out.

"However, I'll only be responsible for holding off Reisgem. You can kill the other two. As for the Godeater Rat...you can just ignore him." Magnus laughed calmly. This 'Chegwin' who the Augusta Patriarch had asked to come was also a supreme expert who didn't fear the 'Godeater' ability.

The three of them, together, would be able to easily deal with Reisgem's group. In truth, Magnus by himself was more than enough.

"Ramson, I'll make a trip for now." Magnus said with a laugh.

"I'll wait for your victorious return, sir." The golden-haired youth laughed.

Magnus immediately led Oman and Chegwin to leave the military camp. Watching the three depart, the golden-haired youth let out a sigh. "I hadn't imagined that the Augusta Patriarch would actually be able to invite Mr. Magnus. It seems as though there are no doubts at all about how this battle will end up."

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 46, The Unfinished Battle

The desolate landscape. Three figures were striding across it, shoulder-to-shoulder.

"Mr. Magnus, right here." Oman said.

Magnus looked about, then nodded slightly. "When Reisgem's group of four chased after you three, they separated and attacked separately. Then with this place at the center, let's start searching out in a circular area." Magnus believed that Reisgem's group shouldn't have gone too far; they should have found a nearby place to rest.

"Sorry to trouble you, Mr. Magnus." Chegwin laughed.

"I'll just consider it as going out for a walk." Magnus said with a calm laugh. "But if we are going to do this, you'll have to make your preparations. It might take a very, very long time."

If things were fast, it might just take a day or two, but if Reisgem was resting more than a few hundred thousand kilometers away, they'd probably have to spend more than a century.

"Mr. Magnus, if you have the patience to wait, how can the two of us be impatient when accompanying you?" Chegwin and Oman immediately followed Magnus, carefully inspecting their surroundings. Generally speaking, the radius of a commander's divine sense was fairly small, but for the likes of Soul Mutates and Paragons or those who used Sovereign's Might, the radius would be much larger.

After all, Highgod Paragons had evolved souls as well.

The three began from this point and spread out in an ever-increasing circle. This was really quite boring, but Magnus wasn't impatient in the slightest, leisurely carrying out his stated plans, as though he was on a walking tour of the Planar Battlefield.

Time moved on silently, and in the blink of an eye, three months passed.

During their journey, each time Magnus encountered a mountain or a hill, he would go deep in for a search. Today, they arrived at Ramhorn Mountain!

"Ramhorn Mountain is fairly large. I'll need to spend a bit of time to do a detailed inspection." Magnus instructed them, and then he flew closer to Ramhorn Mountain. He first stood at the base of Ramhorn Mountain, giving it a careful inspection, but moments later, his voice entered Oman and Chegwin's minds. "Haha, the two of you, come over. I found them."

After having searched for three months, even Magnus felt happy at having found the target.

"Found them?"

Oman and Chegwin revealed looks of delight and laughter on their faces as they immediately flew over.

"The two of you, don't make any moves." Magnus instructed mentally.

As a Highgod Paragon, his soul had evolved once more. Unless a Highgod Paragon intentionally wanted to reveal his soul aura, as long as he was careful, commanders wouldn't be able to sense him at all. Originally, when Bayer had located Linley and them, he had used the same method.

Only after Bayer had voluntarily revealed his aura did Linley and the others realize he was present. By then, Bayer had already entered the corridor.

"The four of them are gathered together in one place and chatting. Reisgem and the other four really know how to enjoy themselves. They actually built a quite impressive estate for themselves inside." Magnus laughed mentally towards them. Moments later, Magnus said in an understanding tone, "Oh, so the Godeater Rat is 'Bebe'. The two others are called Linley and Reihom."

Clearly, he had learned their names from their conversation.

"Linley, Bebe, Reihom?" Chegwin and Oman memorized the names. Prior to this, they didn't know the names of the enemies.

"Prepare to act." Magnus said with a calm laugh. "Do as I instruct..." Magnus gave missions to Oman and Chegwin for them to carry out.

In the estate within Ramhorn Mountain.

After the complete victory they had won, Linley's group had once more returned to the cave estate within Ramhorn Mountain. Linley's group of four was extremely happy here. Linley's other divine clones were focused on training, while his main body accompanied Bebe and Reisgem in idle chatter.

"Come, cheers." Reisgem chortled as he raised a cup.

Linley, Bebe, and Reihom all laughed and raised their cups as well, downing it together.

"Bebe, as your elder bro, I don't want to put you down." Reisgem slapped Bebe on the shoulders, then laughed, "But look at me. Over the past three months, I've still spent most of my time training, while occasionally having some fun with everyone. But you? As soon as you train for a day or two, you lose the patience to train any further. How long will it take for you to make a breakthrough in fusing like this?"

"Fusing?" Bebe rubbed his nose, then chortled, "Forget it. I had better just eat more divine sparks and strengthen my body to the limit first. Based on what Grandpa said, I'm still quite far off from the limit. It's still hard for me to even start to forge godspark weapons." As he spoke, Bebe grabbed a Highgod spark, then tossed it into his mouth.

Bebe had acquired many Highgod sparks from Beirut. Highgod sparks, to Beirut, were nothing at all. After all, normally speaking, divine sparks were indestructible. Aside from Godeater Rats, who were able to destroy them, others weren't able to do it at all. Thus, the number of divine sparks in the Netherworld, Infernal Realm, and other places was constantly growing.

But of course, Sovereigns collected divine sparks as well, so as to reduce the number of divine sparks in the various places. Otherwise, if there were too many divine sparks, they would become worthless. What the Sovereigns did was to collect large amounts of divine sparks, and at a certain number, the Overgods would come collect them.

If Beirut wanted divine sparks, he naturally was able to easily acquire a large number of divine sparks from the Sovereign for Bebe to eat.

"Eating divine sparks. How badass is that." Reisgem sighed in praise. "I want to do it as well, but I can't."

Bebe was startled, then lowered his head to look at the divine spark he was holding. He immediately began to laugh. "Reisgem, I didn't notice it before you said anything, but now that you say it, I really do feel...as though eating divine sparks is a unique trait that no one else but me possesses. Uh, and my grandfather as well." As he spoke, Bebe intentionally tossed a divine spark into the air, and as it descended, it just so happened to fall into his mouth.

After eating, Bebe smugly raised an eyebrow towards Linley and Reisgem.

Linley, seeing this, couldn't help but laugh.

Prior to this, Linley had always carried many great burdens, but now, Linley's life was quite simple. After all, he had already acquired four commander badges. "Now, what we need to do is to slowly wait, until the conclusion of the final battle." Linley wasn't preparing to participate in the final battle at all.

Having already acquired enough commander badges, Linley would at most watch the final battle to its conclusion. Linley didn't believe that he would be able to acquire ten more commander badges and trade for a Sovereign artifact.

Right at this moment...

"Eh? Divine sense?" Linley's group of four rose to their feet, stunned. They sensed a powerful divine sense sweep towards them. What Linley's group had no idea was that...this was the divine sense which Magnus had only intentionally revealed after watching for a long period of time and after having finished his combat preparations.

"Either a Paragon or a Soul Mutate Highgod." Linley instantly came to this conclusion.

"BANG!" An explosive sound blasted forth.

"Reisgem!" A gentle voice rang out. Linley's group of four looked through the courtyard gate. They were able to clearly see three figures flying in, instantly arriving within the front courtyard. Linley's group looked closely at the group. The leader was a pale-faced, beardless man with drooping silver eyebrows. Upon seeing this person, Linley's group of four was terrified.

"We meet again." Oman laughed coldly.

"It's actually the three of them." Linley knew something about the supreme experts. "The leader is Magnus, a suspected Highgod Paragon. Judging from the divine sense he sent out just now, he probably really is a Paragon. Next to him is Oman and Chegwin. Chegwin's true body is that of a divine beast, the 'Suanni Lion'. Terrible!"

Chegwin was even harder to deal with than Oman! As for Magnus, he was undefeatable.

The arrival of these three figures utterly terrified Linley's group of four.

"Hey, what are you doing?!" Reisgem strode forward and shouted loudly, while hurriedly sending via divine sense to Linley and the others, "The situation is bad. That Magnus is a Highgod Paragon. Chegwin has a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact, and Bebe won't be of any use. If we fight against them, we have no chance at all. The only method is to flee! Immediately, we'll scatter in all directions. The more of us who escape, the better."

"What are we doing?" Magnus let out a calm laugh.

"BANG!" The flat gray marble floor of the courtyard suddenly rippled like in a tempest, sweeping towards Magnus and the other two, blocking their vision.

"Flee!" Reisgem called out frantically.

Linley, Bebe, and Reihom didn't even think of fighting; not hesitating at all, they turned and fled, boring through the nearby stone walls.

“Boss, quick, flee. Right now, you and Reihom are in great danger.” Bebe sent frantically. Bebe also understood...that of the four, he had the most monstrous defensive and others wouldn't be able to kill him. As for Reisgem, others wouldn't dare to kill him. Thus, Linley and Reihom were in the worst situation.”

Linley's body merged directly into the stone wall, and then passed through it at high speed, fleeing.

Worldwalking!

“None of you will escape!” A calm voice barked out. At the same time, in a circumference of hundreds of meters, the mountain stones began to rumble, then collapse into dust. Very bizarrely, a part of the entire Ramhorn Mountain disappeared, and quite a few stones fell into the opening. The fleeing figures of Linley and the others were revealed.

“What power is this?” Linley was stunned.

This was a sort of restrictive power, a power that made it hard for others to resist. Linley's face changed. “The Edicts of Fate!” Linley knew that amongst the four Edicts, the Edicts of Fate were the strangest, most terrifying of Edicts. The Edicts of Fate were also exceedingly hard to train in. ‘Oracular Magic’ was nothing more than a simplified version of employing the Edicts of Fate; it couldn't even be considered a basic form of it.

A Highgod Paragon that trained in the Edicts of Fate was even harder to deal with than other Highgod Paragons.

Two figures flew over at high speed. "Swoosh!" "Swoosh!" These two charged to the edges, staring coldly at Linley and the others.

"You won't be able to escape. I told you already." Magnus said calmly.

"Magnus, what are you going to do." Reisgem said angrily. Someone who trained in the Edicts of Fate was very hard to deal with. Magnus was far harder to deal with than Bayer!

"Don't worry. I've only come to deal with these two..." Magnus pointed with a calm laugh towards Linley and Reihom. "Linley and Reihom. Once we kill those two, this matter will be over. Reisgem, you other two can continue to remain here in the Planar Battlefield."

"In your dreams!" Bebe stood next to Linley and howled angrily.

Linley stared cautiously at Oman, then at the nearby Magnus. Linley also knew that this time, things were truly grim! Magnus was a Highgod Paragon, while Oman and Chegwin were also very powerful. To leave alive...would be too hard.

"If Mr. Leylin was here, there would still be hope. But even if Mr. Leylin knew that I was in danger, he wouldn't be able to cross that great distance and arrive in time." Linley knew very well that even Sovereigns were incapable of teleportation, much less Paragons.

This time, it was very dangerous.

"Magnus, you..." Reisgem was just about to speak.

Magnus just barked, "Reisgem, you'd best not interfere. Give my accomplishments in the soul, it wouldn't be too hard to kill you. Just stand and watch."

Reisgem's response to Magnus was a flashing violet spear that flew towards him.

"How boring." Magnus waved his hand, and a long silver whip appeared. The long whip coiled through the air, wrapping around the spear, and then it coiled further down the spear towards Reisgem, so fast that just as Reisgem was about to use his innate divine ability, he was bound by the long silver whip.

Instantly, Reisgem was tightly bound by the long silver whip.

"You are no match for me." Magnus said calmly.

"Do it." Magnus said to Oman and Chegwin.

Linley and Reihom didn't flee, because they knew...that in front of Magnus, they wouldn't be able to escape. In terms of both techniques and speed, they were vastly outstripped. When they fled from Bayer's attack, they were able to do so only because Bayer's sole target was Bebe; he didn't want to kill the others.

But this time, it was the opposite; Magnus didn't want to kill Bebe or Reisgem, just Linley and Reihom.

Linley and Oman stared at each other.

"He wants to kill me. Even if I die, I'll take this Oman down with me." The Dragonformed Linley, with a 'bang', caused black Destruction-type Sovereign's Might to suddenly blaze about him.

Oman's body also blazed with light-type Sovereign's Might. Oman laughed coldly at Linley. "So you are Linley. Last time, I let you escape. This time, you won't be able to."

"Our last battle wasn't finished. This time, let's continue." Linley stared coldly at Oman. Prior to this, Linley was far from being Oman's match, but now that Linley had fused four profound mysteries, what would the results to this battle be?

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 47, Suicidal?

Within the ruins of the cave, Reisgem's side was clearly at a disadvantage.

"Bastard, bastard!!!" Reisgem bellowed, struggling wildly, but that long silver whip was coiled tightly around him like a python. Reisgem even wanted to transform his body into energy to escape, but the divine power of the long silver whip completely sealed the area around Reisgem. Even if Reisgem transformed into energy, he wouldn't be able to escape.

"Magnus, I will make you regret this!" Reisgem howled.

Magnus glanced sideways at Reisgem, then laughed calmly. "Reisgem, save your strength." After speaking, he glanced sideways towards Linley and Oman. The two appeared to be about to start fighting.

That thick spiked mace, flashing with cold light, appeared in Oman's hands. He grinned savagely. "Linley, I will use this to smash your head in and make your soul dissipate. You should feel proud to die by my hands, and by my Sovereign weapon."

"Bebe." Linley growled.

"Boss." Bebe hurriedly moved to Linley's side.

"What, you want to ask a helper?" Oman laughed. Oman knew exactly how strong Bebe was. Although his innate divine ability was indeed frightening, aside from it, Bebe's attack power truly wasn't capable of threatening him. "The two of you can join forces. I don't mind at all."

In actual combat, he could completely ignore Bebe.

Linley stretched his hand out, handing the four commander badges to Bebe, then sent mentally, "Bebe, remember, even if I die, you need to go find the Chief Sovereign of Death."

"Boss." Bebe looked worriedly towards Linley, while at the same time he stored the commander badges into his interspatial ring.

After completing this action, Linley let out a sigh of relief. If his death resulted in even these four badges being lost, that would be horrible.

"Boss, don't do anything stupid. Don't fight with this Oman to the death." Bebe sent, trying to persuade him. "In a bit, try and come up with a way to flee. I'll go tie down that Magnus! That Magnus won't be able to kill me, at most push me into chaotic space. Others might die in it, but my body is comparable to a defensive Sovereign artifact, and I won't die in chaotic space. Boss, our souls are connected. So long as you survive, afterwards, you can find Grandpa Beirut and, through our soul link, you'll bring me out one day."

Right at this moment, explosive sounds could be heard from nearby.

Reihom had already begun to fight against Chegwin.

"Linley, you really are long-winded." Oman let out a low snort, then came charging over like a mountain.

"Whoosh..." That spiked mace smashed through the air, slamming down towards Linley's head. Suddenly, a hundred meter diameter sphere of black light appeared, and a powerful gravity was applied to Oman's body.

Blackstone Space!

"Hmph." Linley's dark golden eyes stared at his opponent, and his draconic scale covered legs launched off the ground, shooting him upwards.

Mirage easily slashed a long tear through space. This sword contained Linley's most powerful attack, but for now, he didn't use the spatial compression part of it. Seeing this, the nervous Bebe couldn't help but frown. "Boss isn't using Microcosm; he's giving up the spatial compression part of the attack. The enemy is completely capable of blocking this attack."

This attack, aside from lacking the spatial compression aspect, was as powerful as the normal 'Microcosm' attack.

"Clang!"

Mirage struck head on against the spiked mace, and Linley couldn't help but move backwards.

"Eh?" Oman looked in astonishment at this. In the past, when Linley had exchanged blows with him, he was able to injure Linley with each smashing blow, to the point of knocking Mirage back onto Linley's body. The advantage was quite obvious. But now, his attack was only able to hold a slight advantage.

Linley grinned coldly. "You're just so-so, it seems."

"It's too early to start talking!" Oman's body moved, transforming into an illusory blur as he charged once more towards Linley.

Reisgem was bound, and he worriedly watched the two sides battle. Linley against Oman wasn't so bad; by relying on his 'Blackstone Space', he was able to just barely hold on. But as for Chegwin against Reihom, the situation was much more dangerous. Reihom had already transformed into a ten meter giant.

"Rumble..." The mountains trembled and the earth shattered.

Linley and Oman's battle was fierce and vicious, but the amount of ruckus caused wasn't that great. As for Chegwin and Reihom, those two were like a pair of bizarre beasts, one huge, one small. The two only used material attacks against each other. Each of Reihom's punches and kicks carried mountain-splitting force, but Chegwin was even more terrifying; each punch and each kick was as sharp as a knife, leaving deep wounds on Reihom's body.

"BANG!" Reihom's giant body was smashed backwards, hard, flying like a meteor. The side of the mountain shattered and stones were sent flying everywhere.

Reihom's chest was caved in.

"The situation looks bad." Reisgem said frantically. "Reihom specializes in material attacks, but this Chegwin is infamously hard to deal with. He has a defensive Sovereign artifact as well as a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact. Others aren't able to injure him at all! Reihom is being treated by him as a punching bag. If this continues..."

Reihom had indeed becoming a punching bag.

Reihom himself had already sensed this. He wanted to move closer to Linley, hoping to enter the range of the Blackstone Space. "If I'm in the Amethyst Space, I'll have a major speed advantage." But the pace of the battle was being controlled by Chegwin, and Chegwin had already beaten him out of the cave to the outside wilderness, where the duel continued.

"Reihom is going to die if this continues!" Reisgem stared fixedly at Magnus, his eyes red. He said savagely, "Magnus, you bastard! Let me tell you, if a single one of my friends die, I swear to you, I will never forgive you, never!!! Make Chegwin stop right now, RIGHT NOW!!!"

Magnus just laughed calmly.

"Reisgem, just rest for a while." Magnus didn't pay any attention to Reisgem's threats at all.

Sovereigns and Deities were on completely different levels.

Unless a Sovereign had a truly necessary reason, there was no way a Sovereign would lower himself or herself to act against a Deity. This was a custom formed over countless years.

“Linley, hurry up and flee. Think of a way to escape!” Reisgem was frantic, and he sent mentally, “Bebe and I are fine. You need to hurry and run!”

But Linley didn’t respond. His battle against Oman only became even more fierce, and explosive sounds continued nonstop. The stones at the base of Ramhorn Mountain were all blasted into smithereens. Linley clearly was at a disadvantage, as his body was already covered with many wounds. Over the course of their battle, they had left the cave as well.

“What is the Boss thinking? Why hasn’t he used his supreme technique?” Bebe didn’t understand. He hurriedly flew out as well.

“Let’s go out to take a look.” Magnus also lifted up his long whip and carried Reisgem towards the outside.

In the wilderness, a few thousand meters apart, two savage battles were underway.

Unless the difference in power was too great, to kill an enemy would be quite hard.

For example, Paragons generally weren’t able to kill each other. For Reihom and Chegwin, Reihom’s transformation was simply too powerful, and although Chegwin was at an advantage and was able to kill him, it wasn't something he could accomplish right away.

"This Linley's fairly strong. He won't be able to hold on for too long." Magnus laughed while giving his evaluation. "That Reihom will most likely die before Linley does."

"Hmph." Bebe gave a sideways glance at Magnus. In his heart, he still felt some hope for Linley. "The Boss will definitely have a way. Up till now, the Boss still has not used his supreme technique. At a critical moment, I'll definitely have to help the Boss." Bebe made his preparations to assist in blocking Magnus.

In the desolate wilderness.

A white-robed, black-haired, crimson-eyebrowed figure. It was Bluefire. Bluefire was currently moving at high speed, so fast it was as though he was teleporting. With each movement, he crossed multiple kilometers. In the blink of an eye, he disappeared from one's field of vision.

"Magnus! Linley, you have to hold on."

Bluefire's movements were at an extremely high speed as he hastened towards Linley. Given Bluefire's strength, he was able to perfectly control Sovereign power. Originally, Bluefire would often use his Sovereign power to investigate Linley's situation, but after Linley made his breakthrough, he relaxed slightly.

He would just do an occasional investigation.

Just now, he saw that Linley was in grave danger, and he immediately hurried over. But...a battle between commanders was simply too fast. Would Bluefire make it in time?

Linley and Oman. One was completely wreathed in an aura of black light, while the other was covered with a blazing white aura. They wildly battled each other. Oman, exploding forth with full power, was clearly holding an advantage over Linley. "Haha, Linley, your power did indeed rise slightly. But compared to me, you are still quite a bit inferior!"

"Bang!"

The spiked mace clashed once more with Linley's 'Mirage'.

"Swish!" "Swish!" The dozens of spikes on the mace suddenly shot outwards. Linley strove to dodge, as well as using his left arm and draconic tail to bat aside some of the spikes, preventing them from stabbing into his head. The power of these spikes wasn't too great, but with so many spikes shooting over, Linley's body was still riddled in bloody holes.

Linley's entire body was covered in blood. Faced with this attack, each time Linley was struck by some.

Wounds were slowly accumulating. Linley's body was covered with holes, and blood poured out nonstop.

Although his body was powerful, its repair speed was slow. Given that new injuries were constantly being inflicted, Linley wasn't able to heal in time.

"A Sovereign was actually willing to forge a Sovereign weapon like this." Linley cursed mentally. When they had first started fighting and when Oman had discovered that Linley had grown strong, he had begun to use this technique. However, the shooting of the spikes relied on brute Sovereign power as well as the fact that the spikes were part of a Sovereign weapon; they contained no profound mysteries.

Attacks that didn't contain any profound mysteries, compared to each smash of the mace, were very weak. But although they were very weak, they were still enough to cause Linley's body to be riddled with bloody holes.

"We're at a sufficient distance now." Linley glanced out of the corner of his eyes at Magnus.

"Linley, your body's defensive power is really quite strong. For most commanders, their bodies aren't able to take my spikes when they shoot out, and they'll die. However, with so many wounds on your body, even each block of yours is increasingly weaker. You won't be able to hold." Oman sent with a snicker.

A battle needed to be carried out by the body.

It would be a strange thing if a person's body wasn't weaker with hundreds of holes on it.

"Rumble..." Oman smashed down violently.

This strike with the spiked mace was seemingly quite powerful, and as it danced out, it caused multiple cracks in space to appear.

"This is the moment!" Linley once more struck out with his sword.

Oman's face changed. He clearly saw 108 rays of black Destruction-type Sovereign power sweep towards him, instantly enveloping him. A powerful gravitational surge suddenly pressed down from all directions upon his body, and the powerful, compressive power caused him to feel quite miserable.

And right at this critical moment, Linley's sword arrived!

"Ah!" Terror flashed through Oman's eyes. "No..." Under such heavy compression, his spiked mace wasn't able to block in time. "Swish!" "Swish!" "Swish!"

A large quantity of spikes suddenly shot out from the mace. At the critical instant, they struck Mirage and caused it to move slightly off-center, slicing straight towards Oman's ear.

"Clang!" And that momentary off-balance strike allowed the spiked mace to clash against Mirage.

"This is the moment!"

Linley's gaze was sharp, and he retracted his sword as his body instantly went into the earth.

"I was nearly finished. This Linley actually held such a technique in reserve." Oman was so terrified, cold sweat matted his back. The sword had slashed past his ear, and he clearly felt it as it did so. But he quickly then recovered. "Linley...he fled?"

"Fled?"

Magnus had been watching the battle. The look on his face changed, and he paid Reisgem no more attention. Retracting his long silver whip, his body transformed into a ray of azure smoke as he instantly swept forward into the distance. Just as Reisgem realized what had happened, Magnus had already flown into the distance, but Bebe was now barring his path.

"Don't even think of catching my Boss." Bebe howled angrily in his heart as he threw himself towards Magnus. He had been waiting for Magnus in Linley's direction all this time.

"F*ck off!"

Magnus didn't even dodge, knocking Bebe flying with a single whip lash.

"Eh?" Magnus, who wanted to pursue at high speed, discovered that Bebe actually seized the long whip, clutching it tightly. Bebe was like a madman, staring at Magnus.

"Do you want to die?" Magnus' face turned cold.

The whip trembled violently. No matter how tightly Bebe clutched it, he was still knocked flying. Still, Bebe had managed to buy Linley some time.

"He fled from my pursuit? He actually escaped the range of my divine sense." Magnus said with a calm laugh. "It seems I'll have to use Sovereign power."

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 48, The Death of Linley

Magnus was a Highgod Paragon. The range of his divine sense was quite wide, far surpassing that of ordinary commanders. But in terms of distance, it was still incomparable to that of a person using Sovereign's Might! In particular, when a Highgod Paragon used Sovereign's Might, the reach was astonishingly great.

"So there he is!" Magnus revealed a hint of a smile on his face.

"Swoosh!" Magnus drilled into the ground.

Bebe, who saw this from far away, clenched his fists tightly, his eyes red. He knelt on the desolate ground, powerless, as he said in a low voice, "Boss, Boss! You have to live! You swore that you would reach the pinnacle of training. Don't die just like this!"

Reisgem, freed from his bonds, discovered that Reihom was already near the brink of death. "Reihom!" With a furious howl, Reisgem's body completely arched backwards, and then he shot the violet spear in his hands forward with full power.

"Swish!" Space tore apart as the violet blur, covered with black light, shot towards Chegwin.

"Eh?" Chegwin had to relinquish giving Reihom a final deathblow and instead hurriedly block the spear.

"Clang!"

Chegwin's body was knocked backwards, but he was completely uninjured.

"Don't even think of killing Reihom." Reisgem hurried over, staring furiously at Chegwin. Chegwin just leisurely smirked at Reisgem.

"Reisgem, you want to protect this Reihom? Yes, if you protect him, I really am not able to kill him. However, it's pointless. You aren't able to protect someone whom Mr. Magnus plans to kill."

Reisgem knew this all too well; once Magnus returned, Reihom would be finished.

"Reihom, hurry and run." Reisgem sent mentally. "The farther, the better. It'd be best if you fled across the river, to the other side of the Planar Battlefield."

"Alright." Reihom didn't mince words. His body immediately shrank, and he flew at high speed towards the Stellar River.

"Hm?" Chegwin wanted to block him, but Reisgem stood in front of him.

"Hmph." He won't be able to escape." Chegwin laughed calmly. Oman was by Chegwin's side as well. Oman and Chegwin, together, feared neither Reisgem nor Bebe.

The Planar Battlefield. Deep underground.

Linley was burrowing underground at high speed.

"I ran so far. He shouldn't be able to catch me. However, using Sovereign power to sense is quite troublesome." Linley said to himself. "Still...why are there two people using Sovereign power to track me?" Linley didn't understand. Given that he himself was using Sovereign power, Linley naturally could easily detect that others were using Sovereign power to search for him.

"Linley, you won't be able to escape." A voice rang out in Linley's mind.

Linley's face changed. "Magnus!"

Linley, who had used Sovereign's Might, could sense Magnus searching for him.

"One of the auras of Sovereign power belongs to Magnus. Then the other one?" Linley murmured to himself.

But at this moment, another voice echoed in Linley's mind. "Hurry up and turn left. Move in a straight line towards the left." Linley was startled. This voice was actually Bluefire's! Clearly, Bluefire had also used Sovereign power to send him a message through divine sense. Hearing Bluefire's voice, the hope in Linley's heart swelled.

"Don't drop your guard. That Highgod Paragon is fairly close to you. I'm quite a distance away. Hurry and turn left!" Bluefire sent frantically.

Linley didn't hesitate any further, immediately moving at high speed to the left.

As for Bluefire and Magnus, the two both began to chat through divine sense fueled by Sovereign power.

"Halt, Magnus. Why don't you release Linley." Bluefire said.

"Impossible!" Magnus didn't hesitate at all, continuing to pursue after Linley at high speed. His speed was far faster than Linley's. Bluefire could clearly sense that Magnus was constantly drawing closer to Linley, making Bluefire even more frantic. He worried that he wasn't going to make it in time.

"If I want to kill someone, no one can stop me." Magnus didn't give Bluefire any face at all.

Highgod Paragons didn't fear other Highgod Paragons. Although they were all powerful, they also weren't able to do anything to each other. As for Sovereign's...unless it was absolutely necessary, they wouldn't get involved in the affairs of Highgods.

With but a thought, Linley made his Sovereign power become translucent, drifting outwards like spiritual energy. The scope of this spiritual energy was very great, and it easily detected the location of Magnus. "Not good. He's actually just three kilometers away from me. Bluefire?" He expanded the scope to fifty kilometers, but still didn't discover Bluefire.

Linley was frantic.

Although Linley was prepared to die, he wouldn't so easily die.

"Two kilometers." Linley could clearly sense how the other was continuously drawing closer at astonishing speed. "One kilometer!"

Five hundred meters. Given Magnus' speed, even if he was trapped within the Blackstone Space, he would still be able to catch up to Linley. Linley gritted his teeth. "No other options. This is my only option!" Bluefire was clearly too far away and was still on the way. Linley could only grit his teeth and suddenly dive downwards.

"Oh, suicidal, aren't we?" Magnus laughed calmly, his speed not slowing at all.

The deeper one went into the underground of the Planar Battlefield, the more dangerous it was. At a certain depth, spatial rifts would appear. These places were places which even Highgod Paragons were rather leery of. Once one broke through into a spatial rift which transported you into 'chaotic' space, one would be lost within. That was a terrifying thing indeed.

Linley making this arrangement was akin to diving into death in search of life!

"Three hundred meters, two hundred meters, one hundred meters..." Linley could clearly sense how Magnus was still drawing closer to him, even within the Blackstone Space.

"Whoosh!" Linley's body continued to dive underground.

"Whoosh!" Suddenly, a spatial tear that was multiple meters long appeared, slicing past his body, causing a patch of earth and rock to disappearing.

"Here we are." Linley understood that he was already at the borders, while at the same time, Linley also discovered through his divine sense that a hundred meters below, there were many spatial rifts.

"If you are able to do so, keep going down." A disdainful sound rang out.

Linley used his divine sense to scan. He clearly sensed that Magnus was just twenty meters above him. But suddenly, Linley became overjoyed. "Bluefire!" Bluefire was less than ten kilometers away. Earlier, when Linley fled and Magnus pursued, they were moving in the same direction. Magnus naturally had to waste quite a bit of time while chasing him.

But as for Linley and Bluefire, they were moving in opposite directions towards each other.

"He's quite fast." Magnus noticed Bluefire's astonishing speed as well. "He seems to be a level faster than me." Magnus instantly understood that the newcomer possessed a terrifying level of power.

"Still, he won't make it in time."

Magnus gave the below Linley a cold look.

"Linley, there's actually someone who appears to be a Paragon who has come to save you. However, he won't make it. To show my respect for him, I will let you die under my most powerful attack." Magnus' voice rang out, while at the same time, a translucent globe of light appeared in his hand. This fist-sized globe of light actually had a lotus petal hovering within it.

Linley didn't dare go down any further. He just frantically flew forward, wanting to pull away from Magnus.

"Stay your hand!" Bluefire thundered.

"Hmph." Magnus just let out a cold sneer.

"Swish!"

The translucent globe of light shot out like lightning, tens of times faster than even Magnus himself. Linley was only able to move half a meter before that translucent globe of light entered Linley's body, at a speed which made Linley completely unable to dodge. The translucent globe of light directly entered Linley's mind.

"Break!" Linley, through his Sovereign power, wildly attacked that translucent globe of light.

This translucent globe of light violently expanded, encompassing the entirety of Linley's damaged soul-protecting Sovereign artifact. And then, like pushing through rotting garbage, it broke through the bandage, and the lotus petal charged directly into Linley's sea of consciousness.

It was like a meteor smashing into water.

Linley's spiritual energy was completely unable to block it.

This translucent lotus petal slowly swiveled, emitting blinding light, like a small sun illuminating Linley's sea of consciousness. It rapidly shot towards Linley's soul, as well as the souls of Linley's three divine clones! Linley frantically used his Sovereign power to clash against it, but it was like an egg smashing into a stone; he wasn't able to do anything to it at all.

The swiveling translucent lotus petal emanated thousands of rays of light, which stretched out to the four souls in Linley's body!

"Father. Boss Yale. Second Bro George...and Delia, your elder brother. They will all return. I didn't disappoint you!" This was Linley's final thought, and at this moment, the corner of Linley's lips curved upwards slightly, revealing a hint of a smile. And then, his consciousness was completely exterminated.

Highgod Paragons...even a Highgod Paragon of wind like Bayer who used a soul attack was able to make Linley dazed and unable to respond. When a Highgod Paragon of Fate like Magnus made his move using Sovereign power to execute his supreme attack?

If Linley was able to resist an attack such as this, then Highgod Paragons really wouldn't live to their reputations.

"You thought you'd go deep underground and find life from death?" Magnus glanced into the distance, where Linley's body lay there in the earth, with no hint of life at all as Sovereign power leaked from him. "This sort of method is effective against experts who specialize in material attacks, but useless against experts who specialize in soul attacks."

Soul attacks could be executed at long range.

Deep in the Planar Battlefield, there would be no place to run!

"Eh?" Magnus suddenly turned to stare in the distance.

"Crackle..." The surrounding earth was instantly burned into nothingness, and Linley's body lifted into the air. A white-robed figure descended from the skies. Upon arriving by Linley's body, he stretched his hand out, gently resting it on Linley.

"Eh?" Bluefire's forehead creased slightly.

"Yet another Paragon has appeared in the universe?" Magnus lifted an eyebrow, looking towards Bluefire.

Bluefire just let out a cold snort. His body rose upwards, and the earth that blocked him all transformed into nothingness. "Interesting." Magnus rose into the skies as well.

Reisgem and Bebe both cared about Linley; they, too, hurried towards this direction. Oman and Chegwin also hurried over. The four of them all used Sovereign power; naturally, they discovered Bluefire's presence.

"Bluefire, Bluefire." Bebe held a hint of hope in his heart.

But moments later, when Linley suffered the soul attack, Bebe clearly sensed that Linley's soul began to weaken at an astonishing speed. The souls of Highgods were very powerful. Bebe could sense it like a sun. But now, Linley's soul aura was growing weaker and weaker, until finally...

It could no longer be sensed!

Bebe's tears silently began to drip down.

His Boss...had died?

Died?

"Aaaaaaaaah!" Bebe howled in utter misery, but just as he started howling, the sound cut off.

The nearby Reisgem, seeing this, knew that the situation was bad. In addition, he too reached out with his Sovereign power divine sense, only to find that there was no hint of life within Linley at all.

"Dead?" Reisgem was stunned. "Im...impossible!"

Soon, Reisgem and Bebe saw in the distance a white-robed figure. As for Linley, his body lay there on the ground, without any hint of life. His Sovereign power had completely dissipated as well. As for Magnus, he stood there calmly.

"Magnus!" Bebe's eyes were crimson, and his tears streaked downwards. He bellowed, "Remember me, I will definitely kill you, definitely!!!"

"I'll wait for you." Magnus gave a calm laugh.

Kill a Paragon? If a Paragon wanted to flee, even a Sovereign wouldn't dare say claim complete confidence in being able to kill the Paragon.

"Let's go." Magnus said calmly.

Oman and Chegwin nodded slightly. Magnus immediately led Oman and Chegwin to leave. Suddenly, Magnus turned to look towards Bluefire. "What's your name?"

"You aren't worthy of learning it." Bluefire said calmly.

Magnus raised an eyebrow, gave a cold snort, then turned and led Oman and Chegwin away.

On the desolate ground, Linley just lay there, not a hint of life coming from his body. Bluefire stood to one side, while Reisgem and Bebe flew over. Reisgem said in disbelief, "Impossible. He couldn't have died, just like that. He has the Soulstone my mother gave him. How could he have died, just like that?"

Bebe, who was moving towards Linley, suddenly sensed something. "Eh? The Boss' soul?"

At a closer distance to Linley, Bebe could faintly detect the existence of Linley's soul. Only, Linley's aura was so weak as to be at the absolute lowest limit. Even Bebe, whose soul was linked to his, had to draw near in order to just barely detect it.

"The Boss is alive!" Bebe called out in delight.

"I already scanned him." Bluefire shook his head and sighed. "Linley is indeed not yet dead, but, his soul is like a tiny flame flickering in the cold wind, about to go out at any point. And that's only because he has this 'Soulstone' which is constantly providing him with energy, giving him a chance at life. Otherwise, he would have died long ago."

“The Soulstone is providing a hint of life?” Bebe hurriedly asked.

Bluefire nodded slightly. “This isn’t a big secret. According to legend, the Redbud Sovereign was born from the Amethyst Mountains themselves.” As he spoke, Bluefire looked towards Reisgem.

Reisgem didn’t mind either. He nodded. “Right. This is the truth. The amethysts of the Amethyst Mountains all contain spiritual energy. The Amethyst Godbeasts which are born from the Amethyst Mountains naturally contain powerful souls. And Amethyst Godbeasts are able to give birth to a purified form of energy...Soulstones! The process of producing a Soulstone is a very arduous one, and so it is an important treasure of us Amethyst Godbeasts. For example, although I myself have produced a Soulstone, I use it to protect my life; of course I’m not willing to give it to others.”

“My mother is a Sovereign. With Sovereign power surrounding her and with the passage of countless years, she’s able to hand out one or two Soulstones.” Reisgem sighed. “This Soulstone is an absolute treasure for protecting the soul. Perhaps it isn’t able to help in protecting against the attack of a Sovereign, but...with a Soulstone, there shouldn’t be any reason to fear the soul attacks of Highgods.”

Reisgem looked towards Linley as he spoke.

Bebe understood as well.

Amethyst Godbeasts were born from the essence of the Amethyst Mountains themselves. As for the Soulstone, it was the energy essence of the Amethyst Mountains. A single Soulstone was trillions of times more valuable than an amethyst. One could imagine how powerful it was.

"But my Boss...?" Bebe said frantically.

"Linley, he..." Reisgem said helplessly. "Alas, that Magnus is a Paragon of Fate, and his soul is very powerful. He also used Fate-type Sovereign power to execute that attack. The strength of that attack has already exceeded that of ordinary Deities! Even the Soulstone..." Reisgem was rather uncertain as well.

He had bragged so much about how powerful the Soulstone was, but the enemy was too powerful this time.

"This time, Linley's situation is dire." Bluefire said solemnly. "Magnus' soul attack has already penetrated into all four souls of Linley's body. The energy of the Soulstone is constantly reinforcing Linley, making it so that his souls aren't completely destroyed. This situation is too dangerous, too dangerous."

Unconscious and fainted.

Bebe had memories of both Delia and Olivier experiencing this.

"Delia and Olivier encountered this in the past as well. They both came back to life." Bebe said hurriedly. "And Olivier, when he fainted, his soul mutated."

Bluefire sighed and shook his head. "I know about Delia. That expert was just an expert of Fate who wasn't even at the commander level. But the one who attacked Linley was Magnus! I can put it to you like this... amongst Highgods, there is not a single person who is superior to Magnus. At best, they are on par with him."

"As the saying goes, hurting is easy, healing is hard. There is no one who can save someone who Magnus attacked." Bluefire shook his head.

"Sovereigns?" Bebe said hurriedly.

"Useless." Reisgem shook his head. "Actually, Sovereigns are more powerful than Highgods, primarily because their Will is formidable, which makes them powerful and undefeatable. But in terms of profound mysteries, they aren't necessarily comparable to Paragons."

Reisgem's mother was a Sovereign, so Reisgem knew this very well.

The Sovereigns also trained in the profound mysteries of the Laws.

The process of becoming a Sovereign had very little to do with the profound mysteries. Of the 77 Sovereigns, only a very small number of them had been able to become Paragons! However, the power of Sovereigns still vastly outstripped that of Highgod Paragons. The reason was that one was a 'Sovereign' while the other was a 'Highgod'.

They were simply on different levels.

The power of a Sovereign was simply too great. This was an authority which the universe bestowed upon them that couldn't be bridged.

"In addition, Magnus is a Paragon; his attacks are also infused with his own special 'power', the power of a Paragon's Will. Although it isn't as powerful as that of a Sovereign, when it comes to healing, it's not a matter of a power competition." Reisgem said helplessly. "To save a soul is a very meticulous task. In addition, Magnus himself is a Paragon...there's no one who can save Linley."

Bebe was completely frantic.

"Indeed, we cannot save him."

Bluefire shook his head. "Unless an Overgod intervenes. But Overgods are the personifications of the Edicts. How could they intervene to save someone? That's completely impossible."

Bebe was rather helpless.

"But that Olivier, he was fainted for so long. He still came back to life." Bebe said hurriedly. "And his soul mutated."

"Indeed, when one is in this sort of unconscious state, it's more common for soul mutations to occur." Bluefire couldn't help but laugh bitterly. "But Bebe, do you know...that the chances of dying in the unconscious state is even higher!"

Bebe was terrified.

"Then why will some people have their souls mutated when they are unconscious?" Bebe asked hurriedly.

"Even I don't understand the true reason." Bluefire shook his head. "However, there is one thing. If that Olivier had only trained in darkness and light when he fainted, once he fainted...when he successfully underwent his soul mutation, he ended up fusing these two types of energy. But if his soul mutation failed, he would have died."

"Very few people can become Soul Mutates." Bluefire sighed. "People who have two divine clones use two types of divine power, and can become Soul Mutates. There are some who survive, but the chances of surviving are still terrifyingly low! Only a single person in the endless history of the entire Infernal Realm has survived a soul mutation with three divine clones."

Bluefire looked at Bebe. "Think about it. How many people does the Infernal Realm have? And how long has it existed for? Over the course of the countless ages, the Infernal Realm has only produced a single person who succeeded in a soul mutation with three clones. How high are the chances of death?"

Bebe's body was shaking.

"Then what about four divine clones?" Bebe was now truly frightened, because Linley had four divine clones. Linley was able to use four types of divine energy.

"Throughout the countless years of the universe, throughout the countless planes, there hasn't been a single person who held four divine clones who successfully underwent a soul mutation." Bluefire's expression was solemn. "The chance of success...is zero!"

Bebe's face instantly turned completely white.

"But just because a person is unconscious doesn't mean they will undergo a soul mutation." Reisgem hurriedly consoled him. "Like you said, that Delia fainted as well, but came back to life without undergoing a soul mutation, right?"

"That's because Delia only has a single divine clone." Bluefire said somberly. "But of course, it's also possible that someone with divine clones who faints won't necessarily undergo a soul mutation. Only a very small number do."

Reisgem wasn't able to say anything else. All he could do was laugh bitterly.

Linley's original body had suffered the attack, along with his three major divine clones. Of the four divine clones, the only lucky 'survivor' was the divine fire clone back in the Yulan Plane. If the original body and the three clones were all finished...Bebe understood that it would be virtually impossible for Linley to once more reach the pinnacle of power. Bebe understood very well that in the bottom of Linley's heart, he still desired to reach the pinnacle.

This was Linley's most primal desire.

Actually, it was also the desire of Doehring Cowart.

When Doehring Cowart had provided Linley with guidance, he had also entrusted his own hopes and desire to Linley. He hoped that Linley would one day reach the pinnacle of power. What Doehring Cowart had hoped, back then, was that one day, Linley would reach the same level as the War God and as the High Priest. But now, Linley had vastly surpassed them.

Still, the desire to pursue perfection had been engraved into Linley's bones.

"Then...then what should we do?" Bebe was panicked.

"There's nothing we can do." Bluefire shook his head. "The supreme technique of a Paragon. No one can save someone hit by it. We'll just have to wait and see what Linley can do. If Linley's soul doesn't undergo a soul mutation, there's still a chance of survival. But...as soon as Linley's soul begins to change, then...it can be said that he is dead for sure."

Bluefire sighed.

For someone who had four divine clones to undergo a soul mutation... the chances of success were zero!

"Others might not succeed, but that isn't necessarily true for my Boss." Bebe said hurriedly.

Bluefire shook his head slightly. "Let's find a place to rest. As to whether or not Linley's soul will mutate successfully or fail, that's up to fate."

The Yulan Plane.

Dragonblood Castle.

"Linley, what is it?" Delia looked at a red-robed Linley.

The fire Linley had a terrible look on his face. Shaking his head, he said, "My original body and my three major divine clones have already lost their consciousness." His soul was divided into five parts, each of which could sense the other. But right now, his divine fire clone could no longer sense the consciousness of his original body and his other divine clones. The situation was very dire.

"What!" Delia's face changed.

"Just now, even I thought that my original body and three divine clones had died, but the strange thing was, after suffering that attack from Magnus, they didn't die. The situation is still terrible, though. Those four souls are very weak; they could be extinguished at any moment." The fire 'Linley' had a solemn look on his face. His original body and his three major divine clones had lost consciousness. Linley naturally didn't know that this was because the Soulstone was providing him with a hint of life.

Delia's face was ashen. She was extremely worried.

"Linley, you and your three divine clones won't die, right?" Delia knew very well that if that happened, that represented that Linley's future was destroyed. The surviving divine fire clone was just a weakling. Delia understood...that Linley had a heart which wanted to pursue personal strength. He wouldn't be willing to be a weakling."

"I don't know."

The fire Linley closed his eyes and said, "Whether it is life, or death..."

The Planar Battlefield was as silent as ever, with the occasional sounds of battle peppering it.

Within a desolate mountain.

Reihom had been contacted by Reisgem through Sovereign power long ago and had returned. Bluefire, Bebe, Reihom, and Reisgem were all together in the living room, while Linley was in a nearby room, lying on a bed quietly, not a hint of life in his body.

"It has been seven full days. Linley hasn't moved at all." Reisgem said, frowning.

"Mr. Leylin, take another look." Bebe said hurriedly.

Of the four, only Bluefire dared to go investigate Linley's soul; after all, Linley's soul was currently extremely weak, weaker than even an ordinary person's soul, so weak that if someone was not careful, it was possible that Linley's soul would be completely erased.

"I'll take a look."

Bluefire stepped into the room.

"I hope the Boss can improve. I hope the Boss can improve." Bebe said repeatedly.

Moments later, Bluefire stepped out, his forehead furrowed.

"What is it?" Bebe hurriedly asked.

Bluefire shook his head slightly. "The Fate-type Sovereign power which has flooded Linley's soul has weakened greatly already. But similarly, that Soulstone has shrunk dramatically as well." The Soulstone was formed from the distilled spiritual essence of the Redbud Sovereign. The more of its energy was used up, the smaller it would naturally become.

Once its energy was used up, the Soulstone would vanish.

"The Soulstone has shrunk dramatically?" Bebe lowered his head, chewing on his lips, not knowing what to think.

The Fate-type Sovereign power which permeated Linley's soul was disappearing, but the Soulstone was shrinking as well.

The fifteenth day of Linley's coma.

Within the cave.

"The Fate-type Sovereign power is almost gone." Bluefire had a rare hint of a smile on his face. "But there's still a bit of the Soulstone left. It will definitely be able to persevere to the very end. I expect that the Sovereign power of Magnus' soul attack will dissipate today."

Bebe's face had a rare, surprised smile on it.

"However, even after the Fate-type Sovereign power dissipates, it is hard to say if Linley will wake up or not. With the soul having lost consciousness, it is hard to say how long this sort of situation will last." Bluefire shook his head.

Bebe nodded slightly.

"Everyone, let's be happy. At least there's hope for Linley to wake up." Reisgem laughed merrily.

"Right. There's a hint of hope." Bebe nodded heavily.

Just as Reisgem and Bebe were waiting expectantly, suddenly, everyone sensed a hint of a ripple from Linley's room. "Can it be that the Boss is waking up?" Bebe was delighted.

"What's going on?" Bluefire was the first to charge into the room.

Bebe, Reisgem, and Reihom followed him in. Within the room, Linley himself was lying there calmly, not a hint of life coming from his body.

But his body was now covered with all sorts of elemental essences. Earthen yellow earth essences, blazing red fire essences, faint green wind essences, azure-green water essences...a large amount of elemental essences of these four types were being attracted by Linley's body, and they swirled around him.

Although Bebe didn't know whether or not Olivier's body had attracted large amounts of two types of elemental essences when he was unconscious, Bebe knew one thing...Linley was most likely undergoing a soul mutation.

"A soul mutation?" Bluefire had never seen a soul mutation either, but seeing this, he had a guess.

Bebe stared at the unconscious Linley, tears welling in his eyes.

Undergoing a soul mutation with four divine clones? To date, not a single person had ever succeeded.

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 50, A Terrifying Tenacity

Within the quiet stone room, Linley lay there silently, four types of elemental essences lovingly swirling around his body. In the quiet stone room, aside from Linley, only Bebe was present. As for Bluefire, Reisgem, and Reihom, they didn't disturb Bebe. They knew very well how deep Linley and Bebe's affections for each other were.

Bebe quietly stood by Linley's side, his little face covered in tearstains.

"Boss." Bebe forced out a smile. "Two thousand years. In my heart, the person I've always admired the most was you. Honest! When we were young, I always slept or fooled around, but, you, Boss, always worked hard to train, never relaxing at all. I know that part of this had to do with your father, and also with Grandpa Doehring, but you never gave up, right?"

"In addition, on our journey together, we've met with many seemingly intractable problems. That King of Fenlai was powerful, right? You were just a youth, but you ended up killing that King, right?"

"Even the then-seemingly all-powerful Radiant Church was destroyed by you. You pulled it out by the root and destroyed it, right?"

"In the Necropolis of the Gods, when we encountered so many difficulties, and even seemingly fatal dangers, we made it all the way through, right?"

"We adventured together through the Infernal Realm, and we never fell down. We even fought our way through the Planar Battlefield, this most terrifyingly dangerous of places! And haven't we acquired four commander badges?"

Bebe gnawed his lips, staring at the 'slumbering' Linley. "Boss, you won't fall down now! It's just a soul mutation, right? After overcoming so many challenges, you aren't going to fall down on me now, right? I trust, Boss, that you will definitely succeed, because...you are my Boss. The Boss that I trust and admire the most."

As Bebe spoke, his tears began to well up in his eyes once more. He forced himself to not let them fall.

The more confident his words were, the more panicked he felt.

In truth, Bebe had no confidence whatsoever! This was because Linley had four major divine clones. His soul mutation would thus be impacted by four types of elemental essences. This sort of situation was very terrifying. If he was to succeed...Linley would be, in the course of countless years and countless planes, the one and only person to have undergone a soul mutation with four clones.

But would he be able to endure?

Not a single person had done so in all of history!

"Boss, you'll definitely succeed. Definitely." Bebe murmured in his heart.

Everyone who knew Linley's situation had no confidence in Linley being able to succeed. They didn't even see Linley as having a 10% chance. Even Reisgem, Bluefire, and the others, upon learning that Linley was undergoing a soul mutation, felt their hearts sank. All they could do was to pray to the heavens and hope that Linley would struggle through.

The Yulan Plane. The Forest of Darkness. The metallic castle.

Two people were seated opposite from each other, one dressed in a long black robe, the other in a long white robe. One had drooping whiskers and small eyes; Beirut. The other had crimson eyebrows; Bluefire! The looks on the faces of both Beirut and Bluefire weren't too pleased right now.

"What is the situation? Is there a chance of improvement?" Beirut said, frowning.

"The situation is very dire." Bluefire let out a long sigh. "I really don't have much faith in a soul mutation. If Linley is able to succeed, then it will be an unexpected surprise. But if he fails...Linley will never be able to reach the peak again."

Beirut shook his head and sighed. "I was too impatient to reach my goals."

"It has nothing to do with you." Bluefire shook his head. "After my original body entered the Planar Battlefield, I originally stayed quite close to Linley, but after Linley made his breakthrough, I relaxed. Who would have imagined that Magnus would suddenly appear. Alas. It was my mistake. I didn't get there in time to save him."

A hint of a bitter smile was on Beirut's face. "It was so hard to encounter an appropriate person. If Bebe were to learn the truth, he would probably hate me!"

"This isn't your fault either. Who would have known this would be the case?" Bluefire shook his head.

"If my plans succeeded, Linley and Bebe would have been grateful to me. But given the current situation..." Beirut shook his head. "Once Linley's original body and his three clones perish, then he will have lost his future potential. My plans would have completely failed as well. I will have no options but to find another suitable candidate."

Bluefire sat there, a hint of unwillingness in his eyes.

"Beirut, don't be in a rush to render your verdict." Bluefire frowned. "The results aren't out yet. Linley might be able to survive this."

"If he really does survive it and successfully completes his soul mutation, then this will be a major cause for celebration." Beirut lifted an eyebrow. "But if Linley truly becomes a Soul Mutate, then I'll have to change my plans."

"Are you saying...?" Bluefire was startled.

Beirut nodded slightly. "Right!"

"This...is this doable?" Bluefire was stunned. "It seems as though in the countless years of the existence of the multiverse, no one has ever succeeded."

"Why isn't it doable!" Beirut's eyes flashed with a crafty light. "To be honest, if Linley were to succeed in his soul mutation, then my plans will have a high chance for success. And once we succeed...I feel excited just thinking about it. If the experiment is a failure, it won't impact Linley much, nor will it impact me much, but if it is successful..."

Bluefire's eyes revealed an eager light as well.

"But of course, we're just talking right now. We're just daydreaming." Beirut laughed bitterly. "It's still far too early. It'll be good if Linley even manages to survive this current situation."

"Right. Let's see if he can survive this!" Bluefire nodded as well. "Success means Linley's future prospects are limitless! Failure...you and I will have no choice but to ensure that Linley's future life will be a peaceful one. He'll never be able to rise to the top again, at the level of being able to cause tempests and waves in the world."

"Nobody can help him now." Beirut nodded slightly. "He will have to rely on himself!"

"It's too late for regrets. We have to face reality!" Beirut's gaze was hard and calm. "If he succeeds, his potential will be limitless. If he fails...that will not be our fault."

Time flowed on. The Planar Battlefield was very quiet, with a few rare major battles. Almost everyone was awaiting the final battle's arrival.

The thirty third day of Linley's coma Reisgem and the others were gathered within the cave.

Bluefire walked out from Linley's stone room. Reisgem, Reihom, and Bebe hurriedly went to welcome him. "What is it, Mr. Bluefire?" Bebe was the first to ask. Bluefire glanced at them, then shook his head and said, "Although the Fate-type Sovereign power of Magnus' attack is gone, it used up a large amount of the energy of the Soulstone. Today, the Soulstone's energy was completely used up!"

"Are you saying...?" Bebe was shocked.

"From today onwards, no outside force can help Linley." Bluefire sighed. "In the past, with the assistance of the Soulstone, he was able to hold on. But now that the Soulstone is unable to help him...he will have no one but himself to rely on against the soul mutation."

"But the Boss' soul is so weak. Will he be able to hold?" Bebe was so worried, he was about to cry.

Bluefire, Reisgem, and Reihom were all silent.

Not long ago, when Bluefire had investigated Linley's soul, he discovered that during the soul mutation, Linley's soul was like a tiny flame that encountered a mighty wind time and time again. Fortunately, the black stone's energy constantly replenished him, restoring energy to Linley's soul, allowing him time and time again to hold fast against the clashing powers of the soul mutation process.

"Who knows?" Bluefire shook his head.

The atmosphere within the cave seemed so cold, so gloomy...

The thirty fifth day of Linley's coma.

Bluefire emerged from the stone room. He shook his head somewhat disbelievingly. "I didn't dare believe it. Linley's soul, even without the assistance of the Soulstone, has been able to endure for three full days... but it seems as though the process is still quite early. Who knows how long the soul mutation process will take!"

Bebe, however, knew.

Originally, when Olivier had undergone the soul mutation process, he had been unconscious for multiple months. And Olivier had only two types of energy; there was no way his soul mutation could be compared to Linley's. A soul mutation involving three types of divine clones was far more complicated than Olivier's. As for a soul mutation involving four divine clones...

It probably wouldn't end in just a matter of a few short months.

Bluefire and Bebe, along with Beirut, Delia, and the others in the Yulan continent, had been prepared all along, but the amount of time Linley spent in this coma surpassed their expectations.

Olivier had succeeded within a few months, but Linley would probably need several years.

Several years?

Linley remained in this coma...and quite quickly, more than ten years passed.

The eighteenth year of Linley's coma.

Within the cave in the Planar Battlefield. Bluefire inspected Linley once every seven days now. Linley's long coma had caused Reisgem and Reihom to no longer be as constantly worried about Linley as they had been; they were able to calm their minds and train and rest. As for Bebe, he paid attention to Linley's situation every day..

"The situation is not good. Over the past eighteen years, Linley's soul has been weakening slightly this entire time. Although he's been able to resist this entire time, the weakening process has never slowed." Bluefire said with a frown. "Although Linley's soul is incredibly tenacious, and has never given up and has continued to endure...his soul is now too weak. I have the feeling that if this continues, he won't be able to last for more than three more days."

Bebe's face instantly turned ashen.

"Three days. Just three days. Either the situation will improve, or he will die if it does not. Let's see how things are these next three days." Bluefire said, shaking his head.

Bluefire had the feeling that eighteen years ago, if Linley's weak soul could be described as an 'tiny flame', then now, it was barely an ember.

"He definitely will be fine. Definitely." Bebe said repeatedly.

These three days were quite hard for Bebe to endure. Originally, Bluefire thought that Linley would only be able to resist for three more days, but who would have imagined...that despite his soul having been weakened exceedingly, he was able to hold for eighteen days. Bluefire, too, felt that this was inconceivable.

On the eighteenth day.

"Bebe, come quickly, quickly." Bluefire called out.

Bebe, Reisgem, and Reihom immediately entered Linley's stone room. Bebe, terrified and nervous, looked at Bluefire. "What is it? What's going on with my Boss?"

Bluefire turned his head, staring at Bebe and Reisgem in disbelief. "Inconceivable. Inconceivable! Linley's soul is now beginning to strengthen. To strengthen! It is like an infant which is growing up. It is strengthening at a speed that I can palpably sense! It is growing!"

Bebe, Reisgem, and Reihom had looks of amazement in their eyes.

"Ahhhhhhh!!!" Bebe jumped up violently, so high that his head smashed into the stone roof, so hard that several rocks were knocked loose. Bebe hurriedly stretched his hand out, moving it in a blur and preventing the stones from falling.

"Wonderful, wonderful!" Bebe was utterly overjoyed.

The Yulan continent. Dragonblood Castle.

Delia and Sasha were together.

"Mother, is Father alright?" Sasha said, rather worried. "It is quite rare for Father to go into solitary meditation. Why is it that this time after he went into solitary meditation, he didn't come out?"

"He's fine." Delia forced out a smile.

Linley's situation was something he and Delia had not told their children. They didn't want their children to worry.

"Huh?" Delia suddenly saw a figure emerge from the courtyard gate and walk towards them. It was the fire-type 'Linley'.

"Father." Sasha said hurriedly.

The fire 'Linley' smiled and nodded, and Delia looked expectantly towards Linley. "Are you done?" The nearby Sasha, hearing this, was puzzled and confused.

"I can sense...that things are improving." The fire 'Linley' had a rare smile on his face. Divine clones could sense each other's souls. Although the other four souls had lost consciousness, Linley was still able to sense that they still existed. Over the past eighteen years, they had constantly weakened, weakened to the point where even the fire-type soul was almost unable to sense them. But today, however, the four souls were growing stronger.

Linley's souls had been weakening for eighteen years, and were extremely fragile. Now that they began to strengthen, however, the strengthening speed was far greater than the previous weakening speed. They rapidly gained in strength.

The Planar Battlefield. The cave estate. Linley's thirty fourth year in a coma.

"Mr. Leylin, why hasn't my Boss woken up yet?" Bebe was rather impatient now. Bebe was now no longer too worried, because he could clearly sense how powerful Linley's soul had become. It was far greater than Linley's soul had been prior to his injury. If Linley's soul, prior to his injury, could be described as a lake of water, his soul now was a fathomlessly deep ocean.

His soul was so powerful, but Linley still didn't wake up.

"Don't be impatient!" Bluefire laughed. "He will definitely wake up." Actually, Bluefire had a hint of worry in his heart as well. Linley's soul was already so terrifyingly great; would it actually suddenly collapse at a critical moment? No one knew what a soul mutation with four divine clones would be like.

That same point in time, within the stone room.

Outside the room, Bluefire and the others were chatting. Within the stone room, Linley lay there quietly by himself. He had already quietly lain there for thirty four years, and his body no longer had elemental essences surrounding it.

Suddenly...

Linley's closed eyes...

Opened!

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 51, Metamorphosis – Breaking Through the Cocoon, Becoming a Butterfly!

At this moment, Linley's original body and his three divine clones all regained their consciousness. Linley's first thought was: "What happened? I'm not dead?" He had no awareness of what had happened in the past thirty four long years. Actually, to Linley's original body and three divine clones, it was as though just a second or two passed."

But in the next instant, when Linley communicated with his divine fire clone, he understood that he had already been in a coma for thirty four years.

"Where am I?" Linley looked at his surroundings, then sat up.

When he sat up, Linley sensed that he had changed.

"Huh? What's going on?" Linley could clearly sense the spatial ripples around him, and he could clearly visualize Bluefire, Reihom, Reisgem, and Bebe, who were seated in the nearby room. This was a sort of feeling of control, a feeling that made Linley feel as though he had control over his own destiny.

He felt like an emperor. It was a feeling of absolute control.

"Linley!"

"Boss!"

A series of overjoyed cries rang out. The movement Linley made when he sat up caused the four people outside to notice him as well. These four simultaneously entered the stone room. Linley looked at the four in front of him. Reisgem, Reihom, and Bluefire were all overjoyed, while Bebe was so excited that tears were gathering in his eyes.

"Boss." Bebe threw himself right into Linley's arms.

"Haha, Bebe, stop crying. You are like a kid." Linley rose to his feet, leaving the stone bed and standing up. He chuckled.

Bebe laughed through his tears, then wiped his nose and snorted. "Boss, it's all your fault. You've been in a coma for thirty four years. You tell me, isn't that terrifying?"

"How did I end up in a coma for thirty four years?" Linley didn't understand.

The nearby Bluefire laughed, "Linley, thirty four years ago, you were struck by a full force attack from Magnus, but luckily, the Soulstone helped you stay alive. But who would have imagined that during the coma period, your soul began to mutate. The energy of the Soulstone was quickly used up. We were all worried that you wouldn't be able to hold on, but you managed to survive."

"A Soul Mutate?!" Linley was badly startled. "Me?!"

"Right. You. Why don't you give it a test and see what you can find?"

Bluefire laughed while urging him. "Some changes can't be seen from the surface. Only you yourself can sense them."

"Right, Boss. Give it a try. Let's see how your soul has become." Bebe said, excited. "You are the very first person with four divine clones who underwent a soul mutation."

"What is it like, for someone with four divine clones to become a Soul Mutate?" Reisgem's eyes were burning with curiosity as he looked at Linley.

"I have four divine clones, but was able to undergo a soul mutation?"

Linley himself could barely believe it, but he still shut his eyes, beginning a careful investigation of his current soul!

Within his sea of consciousness.

Above the enormous sea of consciousness floated an illusory, rainbow-like light. His spiritual energy was like an ocean of water, with waves of it rolling about. This spiritual energy seemed translucent and dreamlike, almost like glass. The most unique thing was that sword-shaped soul!

The sword-shaped soul hovered above the sea of consciousness.

But the current sword-shaped soul had become translucent. Only, a layer of gray energy covered that sword-shaped soul. It looked rather ordinary, and not as eye-catching as the original, rainbow-colored sword-shaped soul.

"What a powerful, unique sensation." Linley murmured silently to himself.

Others, even Bluefire, who ventured into Linley's soul, wouldn't discover anything unique about Linley's current soul. Only Linley himself could sense it.

"The feeling of control. It is quite unique." Linley said to himself.

And then, Linley stopped thinking about it as he began to inspect other things carefully.

"Ah, my soul-protecting Sovereign artifact!" Linley found, to his astonishment, that the hole in the soul-protecting Sovereign artifact was currently being repaired at an astonishing speed, thousands of times faster than in the past when he first became a Highgod. And this repairing process was a true 'repair' of the Sovereign artifact!

In the past, what he was doing was essentially putting a bandage over it, not truly repairing it.

But now, the hole of the soul-protecting Sovereign artifact was slowly shrinking.

When the day came for the hole to vanish, the soul-protecting Sovereign artifact would be completely restored.

"How...how can this be?" Linley didn't dare believe it.

The speed at which a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact could be repaired was correlated to the strength of one's soul and one's spiritual energy. Linley could sense how powerful his soul had become, but for it to be able to repair the soul-protecting Sovereign artifact at such an astonishing rate? He still felt this was inconceivable. "Given this speed, most likely in just a few years, it will be completely repaired."

Linley discovered that the other souls of his other three clones had also transformed.

"Unfortunately, my divine fire clone wasn't here to transform as well. Still, the results will be the same; in the future, when the divine fire clone merges with my main body and joins with the other four souls, they will exchange energy with each other and it will slowly transform as well." Linley understood that it was like his original body's soul; actually, his original body's soul was just the soul of a Saint.

But it was with together his other souls. His main soul and the souls of the other divine clones were a part of a whole, and over a long period of time, the various souls replenished each other, causing his original body's soul to naturally grow powerful as well. After all, they were all one to begin with.

"A Soul Mutate? Doesn't that mean that I can fuse four types of divine power?" Linley couldn't help but begin to test it. He first used three types of Highgod power; earth, wind, and water.

Within Linley's body, three surges of divine power began to swirl around like watery dragons. Once they touched each other, it was as though they were one family; there wasn't a hint of repulsion at all. The three surges of Highgod power, under Linley's control, merged into a fused whole, and then as they did, the color changed as well.

Formerly, they were earthen yellow, light green, and azure-green; now fused together, they were an inky jade color, so dark as to be nearly black.

This inky jade divine power roiled about within Linley's body.

"So powerful." Linley grew excited.

At the same time, Linley also used a hint of God-level fire-type divine power to fuse with it. Once the fire divine power touched that powerful surge of inky jade divine power, it too fused with it!

"Eh? The power actually grew weaker?" Linley could sense that after the inky jade divine power fused with the divine fire power, it seemed to have become internally impacted, with the power weakening slightly. "Can it be because I have yet to reach the Highgod level in fire?" This was Linley's guess.

It wasn't just random, as though fusing more would be better.

It was like an army; if an elite corps had some weaker soldiers added to it, it would actually lower their combat effectiveness.

"Right. When Olivier reached the God level, he said that when both of his divine clones reached the God level, only then did his power increase greatly." Linley now completely understood.

In fusion, a balance was necessary.

Earth, wind, water; these three sources of divine power were at the Highgod level. As for fire, it was only at the God level, rather weak.

"Linley, Linley!" Reisgem's voice rang out, interrupting Linley's line of thought.

Within the stone room, the other four were staring at Linley. Reisgem urged, "Hey, Linley, what's going on? Stop just standing there like a fool; tell us what happened."

"Let's talk in the main hall." Linley laughed as he spoke.

Linley's group of five entered the main hall, surrounding the long table and sitting down.

"Linley, you successfully mutated your soul?" Bluefire said with a calm laugh.

"Right." Linley nodded.

Bluefire's eyes lit up, and he sighed in praise. "According to legend, if two types of divine power fuse, the power would increase tenfold. If three types fuse, the power will increase a hundredfold! If four types of divine power fuse...no one knows for sure, but it probably will strengthen a thousandfold. Even using Sovereign's Might only allows a person to be a few hundred times stronger than when using Highgod power."

"Linley how about you? You fused four types of divine power. How is your strength? Is it even stronger than when you use Sovereign power?" Reisgem asked expectantly.

Sovereign power was strong, but there was a limit to it. It made someone a few hundred times stronger than when they used Highgod power.

"I feel..." Linley said with a laugh. "That after fusing three types of divine power, my strength is indeed a hundred times greater. I sense...that it is comparable to when I use Destruction-type Sovereign's Might!" Linley was skilled in the Laws of the Earth, and so when he used Destruction-type Sovereign's Might, it naturally wasn't completely effective, only increasing his power a hundredfold or so. It was comparable to a triple fusion of divine power.

Bluefire nodded slightly. It was all as Bluefire had expected.

"Then four kinds?" Reisgem said hurriedly.

"I'm not sure either." Linley laughed.

"How can you not be sure?" Reisgem stared, and the nearby Bebe began to laugh. "Reisgem, my Boss' divine fire clone is only at the God level. If God-level divine power fuses with Highgod divine power, I imagine the strength wouldn't increase that much."

Reisgem was startled, then gave a few embarrassed chuckles. "I forgot. Linley, you've only been training for two thousand years."

It was true. For someone who had been training for just two thousand years to possess three divine clones was already very terrifying. But of course, the Infernal Realm had many geniuses, some of whom trained even faster than Linley, but...one thing was for certain. There was definitely not a single person in the multiverse who was able to undergo a soul mutation successfully with four divine clones.

At least for now, Linley was absolutely one of a kind.

"Formidable, formidable." Bluefire sighed in praise. "Soul Mutates are indeed terrifying. Once your divine fire clone reaches the Highgod level as well, and you fuse four types of divine power, your strength will far surpass that of someone using Sovereign's Might! But the rewards you reaped were commensurate to the danger you faced; this time, you just barely survived."

"It really was a close call." Bebe nodded as well.

"Mr. Leylin." Linley suddenly frowned.

"What is it?" Bluefire asked, puzzled.

Linley shook his head. "I have a feeling right now. A unique feeling! A feeling of control! A feeling of control of material things, and even of the surrounding space." As Linley spoke, he lifted his fist. "I have a strange sense, as though I could punch a hold in space with a full-strength blow.” As Linley spoke, he smashed out with a full-strength punch.

Linley wasn’t in Dragonform, nor did he use Sovereign’s Might. As far as Laws went, he was far weaker than Paragons.

“RIIP!”

As his punch smashed outwards, space seemed to explode forth like a massive explosion on the surface of a lake, and a meter-long, giant spatial rift appeared.

“This...”

Bebe was stupefied, and Reisgem and Reihom were speechless as well. Bluefire’s eyes lit up.

Prior to this, Linley had to be in Dragonform, use Sovereign’s Might, and use his godspark weapon to tear open a spatial rift. But by comparison... the power wasn’t as great as this fist.

“Boss, you, your fist...it’s almost on par with the palm blows of that Highgod Paragon, Bayer.”

Bayer had used a simple palm chop to tear a giant spatial rift open.

“I...I’m not sure.” Linley was rather stupefied. “I just have this feeling of control, as though I can easily split space apart. But I didn’t expect I could actually do it.”

“Linley!” A voice rang out.

Linley turned to look. The speaker was Bluefire. Currently, Bluefire’s face was covered in laughter. “Haha...Linley, that’s your Will, infused with the natural Laws! Since your Will encompasses the natural Laws, naturally you are able to control the world. This is a special power you now possess! The power that only Paragons and Sovereigns possess! Any attack, once infused with your will, will rise to a ludicrous level.”

“Will...power?” Linley was stunned.

“The power which only Paragons and Sovereigns possess?” Bebe and Reisgem were stunned as well.

Linley tested out this feeling of control and indeed, he felt as though he had power over the surrounding spatial ripples and movements.

This was something he never had before!

In the Planar Battlefield, Linley had previously only sensed danger. But now, he had the feeling that he was in control of his own destiny. The feeling of standing above all other lifeforms and looking down upon them!”

“I didn’t expect this. I truly didn’t expect this.” Bluefire could hardly believe it. “The previous Soul Mutates had more powerful souls, but even those extremely rare triple-power Soul Mutates who are scattered throughout the multiverse did not develop this power! Who would have imagined...that a Soul Mutate with four divine clones would actually gain this sort of power!"

"It makes sense. A Soul Mutate with four divine clones has a soul which is far more powerful than a Soul Mutate with three divine clones! For a person's soul to reach such a height in power...it only makes sense for the natural world to bestow this power upon that person." Bluefire was very excited.

And then, he turned his scorching hot gaze towards Linley. "Linley, come, come, attack me, try and attack me. Let me have a test and see how great your power is! Let's see if you, a till now 'impossible' four-way Soul Mutate, is more powerful, or if a Paragon is more powerful!"

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 52, The Path to the Peak

Linley, in his heart, also wanted to get a clear understanding of his current strength. A Highgod Paragon like Bluefire was an incredibly rare 'whetstone' for testing himself. How would anyone else dare to exchange blows with the current Linley?

"Fine, then." Linley laughed and nodded.

The nearby Reisgem and Bebe were very excited. Reisgem was the sort who loved to spread chaos. "Haha, a Paragon on one side, and a never-before-seen quad-power Soul Mutate on the other. Don't hold back, you two, have a huge battle. Even if you destroy this cave, that's fine."

Linley just laughed. "No need. This battle is just for testing my strength. Mr. Leylin, for this battle, let's only use our physical strength as well as the power of our Will. Let's not use divine power or Sovereign power."

"That's a good idea." Bluefire agreed with Linley's suggestion. If Linley was too powerful or if Bluefire was too powerful and something occurred that was out of their expectations, that wouldn't be good.

Outside the mountain, on the desolate landscape.

Linley and Bluefire were a hundred meters away from each other, while Reisgem, Bebe, and Reihom were gathered to one side, filled with eagerness. Bebe's eyes were shining. "Reisgem, I'm willing to bet that my Boss isn't weaker than Bluefire at all. He might even be stronger."

“Who wants to bet with you?” Reisgem let out a snort. “Look, they are starting.”

Linley was dressed in a sky-blue robe, while Bluefire was dressed in a long white robe. The two beamed at each other, then began to attack!

Linley glided forth as agilely as the wind, almost dream-like, as multiple blurs emerged from him. As for Bluefire, he moved about so fast it seemed he was teleporting. As the two began to move, the three onlookers were badly startled. “Bebe, they are only using physical strength? Linley’s speed has reached such a ridiculous level.”

At this moment, Linley and Bluefire were moving at speeds slower than when Bluefire rushed over to save Linley, when he had hastened and even used Sovereign’s Might. Back then, with each movement, Bluefire had traversed multiple kilometers.

The current Linley was not relying on Sovereign power or divine power, just on his physical strength and the power of his Will.

“What a wonderful feeling.” Linley felt joy in his heart. “Just by relying on my physical strength and Will, my speed is so much faster than it was before. If I were to use divine power, most likely I wouldn’t be much weaker than Bluefire.” Linley’s control over the surrounding world made movement through it incomparably simple.

His speed was shocking. As the two moved, they began to exchange blows. The two simultaneously struck out with their fists...

“Rumble...” Linley’s fist shot out like a thunderbolt, slashing through the skies, resulting in that rumbling sound. Space was thrown into chaos, and one twisted spatial rift after another appeared.

“Smash!” Like a detonation, Bluefire struck out with his fist, and the power of it instantly exploded forth. The speed of his fist was much faster than even Linley’s punch, and a blurry flash of red light could be seen.

Two seemingly ordinary punches. Neither dodged at all; they clashed head on.

“Bang!” A deep yet soft sound.

“Rumble...” At the point of the clash, space itself was completely unable to further endure such terrifying power, and seven or eight spatial rifts instantly appeared.

Linley and Bluefire both couldn’t help but take a step back.

They were evenly matched!

“Haha, wonderful, wonderful. Linley, there’s no need for us to hide our divine power. Let’s have one wonderful, all-out battle.” Bluefire, who had always been so graceful and poised, for once was feeling excited. His eyes were shining.

“Then be careful.” Linley said with a bit of a smirk. “My fused divine power isn’t much weaker than Sovereign power.”

"I'm not necessarily the one who needs to be careful." Bluefire said with a laugh. "You have fused divine power, but I will directly use Sovereign power."

From their earlier exchange of blows, Linley understood that there wasn't a huge difference between them; since that was the case, there was no need for them to not even use divine power. Without using divine power, this battle wouldn't be fun enough.

The cold wind of the Planar Battlefield howled past, rustling Linley's clothes. Linley's gaze, however, was completely focused on Bluefire in front of him. "It has been so many years. Grandpa Doehring, I've finally reached the true peak of Deities. The true peak. The person in front of me is a Highgod Paragon." His desire to battle increased to the limit, and Linley felt an irrepressible excitement.

"Rumble..." The inky jade divine power in Linley's body began to roil about like dragons swimming in the sea.

Linley's gaze suddenly became fierce.

"Swoosh!" In midair, a series of blurred figures appeared, while Linley himself had already begun exchanging blows with Bluefire.

The space of the Planar Battlefield began to tremble, as one terrifying spatial rift after another was torn open. Previously, when Linley and Bluefire had only used their physical strength and Will to fight, the spatial tears were small ones. But now, every single spatial rift was like an enormous gouge. Two virtually invisible blurs were constantly interacting, and around them, spatial rifts occasionally opened and occasionally closed.

Reisgem, Reihom, and Bebe watched numbly.

Two Paragons fighting full force against each other with no reservations? This was quite rare.

"This...this..." Bebe, stunned, didn't know what to say.

The space in front of them seemed to be quaking, constantly tearing apart and healing, due to the battle between Linley and Bluefire, these two supreme experts. It seemed as though in this area of battle, space itself was about to collapse. Reisgem and the other two now realized the huge distance between them!

Linley and Bluefire were titans. They were just infants.

"So powerful." Reisgem cleared his throat, his eyes round.

"The power of Paragons!" Reihom held his breath as well, his gaze locked on that region. "And Linley. He isn't weaker than Mr. Leylin at all."

"No wonder Paragons treat fighting with me as a game." Reisgem let out a soft sigh. Previously, when the four of them met Bayer, Bayer completely toyed with them; he wasn't able to fight back at all. Fortunately, Bebe's defense was simply too monstrous, which was why they were lucky enough to survive. But if Reisgem hadn't insisted on protecting Bebe, Bayer would have driven Bebe into a spatial rift.

Irritate a Paragon?

Even if you had three Sovereign artifacts and were seemingly invincible, a Paragon could still drive you into a spatial rift. Unless a Sovereign were to intervene, you would be done for, and even if a Sovereign did want to intervene, it would be no simple task.

"A battle between Paragon-level experts. Only against each other can they completely unleash their power." Bebe sighed in amazement. "Boss, you are too strong."

"And this is quite bizarre." Bebe suddenly frowned. "That region of space is fractured so badly, but it can still instantly repair instead of completely collapsing. How bizarre. The weird thing is...the Boss and Bluefire are actually not affected by the gravitational pull of those enormous spatial tears near them at all. They didn't go into chaotic space."

Reisgem and Reihom nodded slightly.

Normally, when experts battled, the spatial rifts wouldn't be too ridiculous; if spatial rifts did appear, experts would avoid them slightly.

But Linley and Bluefire completely ignored the spatial rifts, and even battled at the very borders of them.

"That must be what their Will permits." Reisgem said in a low voice. "When one's Will is as strong as a Sovereign's, even chaotic space poses no threats; they can roam it as they please." After being trapped in chaotic space, only someone on the level of a Sovereign could save you. Paragons weren't at that level yet. This was the Will of a Sovereign.

Their guesses were correct.

Linley could clearly sense that the control he had over the universe made it so that the devouring power of the spatial rifts were completely unable to affect him.

"Rumble..." He punched out, and 108 inky jade 'dragons' of power emerged from Linley's fist, instantly covering Bluefire. A powerful gravitational force pressed down from all directions on Bluefire. This gravitational compression also contained the power of Linley's Will, and was exceedingly strong.

For the pre-metamorphosis Linley, this technique was effective against ordinary commanders but was child's play for a Paragon. But now...this technique was very dangerous against even Paragons.

"Swish!" Like a bolt of lightning, a red light flashed.

Bluefire's fist was always astonishingly fast.

"Bang!"

Their fists collided. Linley felt as though a volcano had exploded forth, as an irrepressible explosive power passed towards him. As for Bluefire, he felt as though the layers of strikes were like mountains hammering down towards him.

The two were knocked backwards and retreated.

"The battle should end here." Bluefire sent mentally.

Linley laughed, then nodded.

This battle had attracted the attention of some nearby commanders, but when they saw what was going on here, and saw from afar how these apocalyptic spatial rifts that were over a hundred meters long were appearing, they were so terrified that none of them dared draw near. This battle was simply too terrifying.

They were also puzzled.

Which two Paragons would be so bored, or have such irreconcilable differences, as to battle like this?

Within the cave. The five sat down to celebrate.

"Boss, haha, I am so happy." Bebe smugly laughed loudly. "From today onwards, damn, who will dare to make trouble for us? They should be grateful if we don't make trouble for them. I've had to swallow too much crap here in the Planar Battlefield. Now, at least, we're about to turn the tables." It seemed as though Bebe wanted to give vent to an entire belly full of anger.

"Haha, drink." Linley was extremely happy as well.

The breakthrough he had made today made it so that he would no longer have to look up to others.

What did it mean, to be on the Paragon level? It meant...that amongst 'Deities', there was no one capable of threatening him. As for Sovereigns? Unless absolutely necessary, Sovereigns wouldn't interfere in the battles of Deities. What's more...it wouldn't be that simple for even Sovereigns to kill Paragons.

If something went wrong, Paragons could immediately flee to a material plane.

In addition, Sovereigns would generally try to pull Paragons to their side. The Sovereigns all wanted to have a Paragon become their Emissary, but the Paragons themselves were naturally quite choosy. They would only pick someone they liked, or someone who was extremely strong as their Sovereign backer. For ordinary commanders, it was the opposite; the Sovereigns would pick them.

As for Paragons, they picked their Sovereign.

Or, for some of the more arrogant ones, they wouldn't become Emissaries at all. They didn't want to listen to the orders of others. That was fine. Paragons were qualified to act like this!

"Linley." Reisgem began to chortle. "Have you ever considered becoming a Sovereign's Emissary?"

Linley was startled.

The nearby Reihom nodded in approval. "Right. Linley, your strength has reached such a high level. Very few people know this, but once your strength becomes publicly known, you will definitely attract the interest of some Sovereigns. They will definitely work to try and make an expert like you become their Emissary."

"A Sovereign's Emissary?" Linley was rather hesitant.

Bebe nodded repeatedly. "Right. Grandpa said it as well. There are very, very few Paragons, and most of them are quite arrogant. They don't wish to become an Emissary. Paragons who become Emissaries of a Sovereign are rare; there's only so many to begin with, while there are 77 Sovereigns. Boss, I imagine people will be fighting over you."

Reisgem hurriedly said enticingly, "Linley, actually, my mother is a very powerful Sovereign, and she's treated you quite well. She gave you that Soulstone. How about, you come be my mother's Emissary?"

Linley was rather hesitant.

"Mr. Leylin?" Linley looked towards Bluefire, awaiting Bluefire's advice. After all, Bluefire was himself a Paragon.

"Why be an Emissary?" Bluefire laughed calmly. "If you refuse to be an Emissary, the Sovereigns can't possibly act against you for such a reason. After all, after your power is put on display, quite a few Sovereigns will come invite you. You can't possibly accept them all. More importantly... after becoming a Paragon, what's the point of becoming an Emissary?"

"We train to pursue the peak of perfection. Although by becoming an Emissary, our Sovereign will also respect us and won't order us around or force us to kneel to them, I still feel as though being free is better." Bluefire said calmly.

In his heart, Linley agreed with Bluefire's way of thinking.

"A Sovereign's Emissary isn't necessarily a servant." Reisgem stared at Bluefire, hurriedly rebutting him. "Of course Sovereigns won't care about ordinary Emissaries, but Paragons...they are people who possess a Will. Sovereigns will respect them and treat them as friends, rather than servants."

Bluefire couldn't help but laugh. "Reisgem, let's talk about others. This is Linley's decision to make."

"Linley, what do you think?" Reisgem turned to look at Linley.

Linley smiled. "No rush. For now, I have no intentions of becoming a Sovereign's Emissary. More importantly...Paragons have already reached the peak of fusing profound mysteries, with no further possible areas of improvement. Perhaps they might become a Sovereign's Emissary out of boredom. But as for me, I have many things to do. After all, as far as the Laws go, I haven't reached my limit. I am just imagining, after countless years, becoming a Paragon of a Law as well. What would that be like? I am quite eager to find out."

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 53, Spiritual Power!

Hearing Linley say this, Reisgem could only rub his nose, not saying another word.

“Linley.” Reisgem suddenly began to laugh loudly. “If you don’t want to be an Emissary, then don’t. But Linley...if I, Reisgem, ran into any problems that I needed your help with, you have to help out. Just like how when we ran into that Montelo fellow. When I ask you to help out, you can’t put on airs of being a haughty expert.”

After having seen Linley and Bluefire battle, Reisgem had already come to view Linley as a ‘Paragon’ level expert.

“Reisgem, if there’s anything pressing, you can just send a message and I will definitely hurry over.” Linley said decisively.

Although Reisgem liked to joke about and was as arrogant as Bebe, he also treated friends sincerely and was a decent fellow. He had helped Linley before as well.

“That’s all I need to hear.” Reisgem instantly began to grin. “I can’t be bothered to care about whether or not you want to be a Sovereign’s Emissary. All that matters is that in the future, if we run into those bastards, I’ll finally have a method for dealing with them. Hmph. Sovereigns won’t lower themselves to intervene, but Linley, although you are powerful, you are still just a Deity. It won’t be too inappropriate for you to deal with them.”

Although Reisgem had the backing of the Redbud Sovereign, the Redbud Sovereign allowed Reisgem to suffer his own setbacks without intervening. Reisgem felt quite stifled by this, but today, he, Reisgem, finally had a Paragon to call friend.

"Hmph. Hmph!" When Reisgem thought about how, in the future, he would have Linley's assistance, and how he would have such a powerful backer, he couldn't help but laugh delightedly.

"Reisgem, if you encounter any enemies, don't always be in a hurry to have my Boss intervene. It's enough for me to intervene against ordinary figures." Bebe said, and then tossed a divine spark into his mouth.

"We're bros. No need to stand on courtesy." Reisgem slapped his arm around Bebe and laughed loudly.

Bluefire smiled as he watched this, but he suddenly thought of something. He said seriously, "Everyone, no matter what, don't reveal the fact that Linley is a Soul Mutate! A four-power Soul Mutate has never before existed. For now, it's best to keep this a secret." Hearing this, Linley nodded in approval as well.

"We know to keep this a secret. Don't worry." Reisgem nodded and said, "As for Reihom, don't worry about him. He barely talks anyways."

The nearby Reihom revealed a rare hint of a smile.

"Yo, Boss." Bebe frowned. "But in the future, if you fight others and reveal your power..."

“Then we’ll just publicly say...that Linley has become a Paragon as well.” Bluefire laughed. “Although the reputation of Paragons is formidable, there’s still a number of Paragons in the countless planes of the multiverse. Linley adding to their number won’t cause too tremendous a tumult in the world.”

Linley nodded. “Then I will listen to your advice, Mr. Leylin. Actually, as I see it, there’s no need to explain. If others see me reveal my power, they will only describe me as a ‘suspected Paragon’. As long as we don’t mention the fact that my soul mutated, and as long as I don’t use fused divine power, it won’t be revealed.”

Bluefire laughed as he looked at Linley. “Linley, normally, it is enough for you to use standard Highgod power. In a critical moment, you can use a drop of Sovereign’s Might. Your soul is so powerful that you can completely control Sovereign’s Might without wasting it at all. You can use just a portion of a single drop of Sovereign’s Might in a battle, and then, in the next battle a few centuries later, use the rest.”

This was the benefit to Paragons using Sovereign’s Might.

Normal commanders, when using Sovereign’s Might, would constantly emanate Sovereign power and constantly waste it. But Paragons didn’t waste any. If they didn’t want to use it, they would store the Sovereign’s Might back into their body, to be used during the next great battle.

“That’s for the best.” Linley was moved.

Instantly, a drop of Destruction-type Sovereign’s Might swelled within Linley's body. However, the constrictive power of Linley's will was now too great, and the Destruction-type Sovereign power coalesced within Linley's soul quite obediently.

"In the past, when I used Sovereign power, I felt as though I was carrying a mountain, unable to wield it as I pleased. But now, it feels so light and easily lifted." Linley remembered how Beirut had been able to perfectly control Sovereign power to rescue Delia that year.

"Linley, it seems as though your Will is even stronger than that of a Paragon's." Bluefire suddenly said.

"Eh?" Linley was stunned.

"Even more powerful?" The nearby Reisgem, Bebe, and Reihom all looked towards Bluefire. Bebe said, "Mr. Leylin, when my Boss fought against you, you were evenly matched."

"Actually, I was at a disadvantage." Linley said with a laugh. "Mr. Leylin's attacks are very powerful. Fortunately, that technique of mine contains a spatial compression aspect. After infusing it with my Will, the power of that compression is far greater than that of ordinary spatial compression. Mr. Leylin was affected by that compression, which is why we were on par. In addition, Mr. Leylin didn't use fire-type Sovereign power, but Destruction-type Sovereign power, and so his full power wasn't unleashed."

Reisgem, Bebe, and Reihom were rather surprised.

However, during the battle, Bluefire's power was either contained within his body or focused on his fist, without any of it leaking out. From the outside, no one could tell what sort of Sovereign power he was using. But Linley was fighting against him; naturally, he knew.

Bluefire laughed. "You didn't use the earth-type Sovereign power you specialize in either. How could I take advantage of you like that?"

The conditions were similar; the two were both using types of Sovereign power they weren't proficient in.

"Given this sort of situation, you were still able to fight with me to a standstill. I was very surprised. Because...I have already fused six types of profound mysteries. You have only fused four." Bluefire said. "Thus, I believe that your Will should be even stronger than the Will of a Paragon."

A deeper level of understanding into the profound mysteries could raise one's power.

But Linley and Bluefire fought to a standstill. Although this had to do with the spatial compression, in the end, one had fused four while the other had fused six. The difference was very great.

"How can you tell if one's Will is weak or strong?" Linley said.

"Simple." Bluefire laughed. "Linley, control your Sovereign power and transform it into divine sense. See how far it extends to."

The limits to which one could use Sovereign power to investigate was a test of the strength of one's soul. In addition, once it was infused with one's Will, the scope would increase greatly!

"Ordinary Paragons, when emanating Sovereign power on the Planar Battlefield, can reach to a distance of eight thousand kilometers." Bluefire continued, "Linley, don't use your spiritual energy; just rely on Sovereign power to form a divine sense. See how far you can stretch."

Eight thousand kilometers! This number caused Reisgem and the others to be frightened.

Ordinary commanders, who didn't use Sovereign power and just their own divine sense, were only able to reach to a hundred meters in the Planar Battlefield. If they used Sovereign power, they would be able to reach perhaps a hundred kilometers. But Paragons were able to reach out to eight thousand kilometers. It was nearly a hundredfold difference!

"I will give it a try." Linley, with a thought, caused the formless, colorless Sovereign power to spread out as divine sense.

Moments later, he reached his limit, unable to extend any further.

"Thirty six thousand kilometers!" Linley felt stunned. "My Will is actually far greater than that of a Paragon." No wonder earlier, he was able to fight Bluefire to a standstill. His Will far surpassed that of his opponent. Given that he also had the spatial compression to help out, he was able to make up for the difference in profound mysteries.

With a thought, Linley retracted his Sovereign power, and then Linley released his own spiritual energy! Linley had the feeling that after his soul mutation, his soul had become very powerful. Just by looking at the speed at which it repaired his soul-protecting Sovereign artifact, one could understand how great it was. How far could he stretch, just by relying on his own spiritual energy?

It stretched outwards...

A thousand kilometers. Ten thousand kilometers. Thirty thousand kilometers. Sixty thousand kilometers. A hundred thousand kilometers.

Linley himself was shocked. After his soul mutation, he had yet to truly experience the true power of his spiritual energy, used at full strength.

"Magnus. Hemmers. Oman..." Linley clearly discovered every single familiar figure, but these people didn't notice Linley's investigations at all. In the end, Linley's spiritual energy finally reached a limit.

"512,000 kilometers!" Linley was terrified by this astronomical figure.

"My spiritual energy is even more powerful by itself than when using Sovereign power? That much more powerful?" Linley was stunned, but then he understood.

His divine power, with three types fused, was already close to that of Sovereign power. Once his divine fire power reached the Highgod level, he would fuse four types of divine power, and his divine power strength would vastly surpass that of him using Sovereign's Might!

But in terms of the soul, the metamorphosis was already complete. There was nothing to 'fuse'.

A Soul Mutate with four clones. This made it so that Linley's own spiritual energy was more than ten times stronger than using Sovereign power.

"I imagine that a person with three clones who underwent a soul mutation would have spiritual energy and Will comparable to that of using Sovereign power!" This was Linley's guess. He himself had four clones and underwent a soul mutation, making his spiritual energy even more terrifying.

"By the looks of it, my supreme technique should no longer be a material attack; it should be a spiritual attack." Linley now understood that given his terrifyingly strong spiritual energy, even if his understanding as far as the profound mysteries went was lacking, when infused with his Will, the power would still be astonishing. "No...my, my innate divine ability!"

Linley suddenly thought of his innate divine ability. His innate divine ability was connected to his spiritual energy and that innate azure light.

"When my innate divine ability is infused with my spiritual energy and my Will, how strong will it be?" Linley was rather eager.

At the door to the cave estate.

"Linley, no need to send me off." Bluefire said with a calm laugh.

Linley and the other four could only watch as Bluefire walked away leisurely. Given Linley's current level, Bluefire didn't feel any more pressure at all. If Linley was to meet with a problem he couldn't resolve, Bluefire wouldn't be able to assist either.

"Let's go back in." Linley said, then returned with Bebe into the cavern estate.

When Bluefire had inquired as to the strength of Linley's Will, Linley admitted that his Will was indeed somewhat stronger than that of a Paragon's. However, as no one asked him how strong his spiritual energy was, Linley didn't discuss it.

Within the stone room. Linley was seated meditatively atop a stone bed.

"My Will, compared to a Sovereign's, is still far weaker." Linley sighed to himself. The Will of a Sovereign was very terrifying. It could effortlessly stretch across the entire Planar Battlefield. In fact, if a Sovereign truly desired to do so, a Sovereign could stretch his will across the entirety of the Infernal Realm or Netherworld, much less a Planar Battlefield.

One could imagine how great this Will was.

Once a Sovereign came face-to-face with a Paragon, the Paragon wouldn't be able to resist at all.

"The will of a Sovereign is too terrifying." Linley let out a sigh. "They far surpass Paragons. Although at a distance, they might not be able to kill a Paragon with a thought, in close quarters, Paragons aren't able to fight back at all. My spiritual energy might be a bit stronger, but my Will is far from being a match for a Sovereign's. They are able to spread it across the entirety of the Netherworld or Infernal Realm. What sort of Will is this?"

Linley felt terrified just thinking about it.

"No wonder. Sovereigns and Deities are on completely different levels. This is a qualitative difference." Linley sighed to himself.

One was like heaven while the other was like earth. Paragons or Soul Mutates; they were all 'Deities'. Deities weren't able to overcome Sovereigns. This was the 'gulf' between these two levels.

"Forget about the Sovereigns. As long as I don't kill a Sovereign's son, I'm fine. Even if I beat a Sovereign's son or daughter senseless, the Sovereign won't intervene." Linley no longer thought about it.

The Yulan Plane. The Forest of Darkness. The metallic castle.

"Haha..." Beirut began to laugh loudly. "He actually succeeded? Utterly unimaginable. Four divine clones, and yet he successfully mutated his soul. I didn't even dare imagine it. But he succeeded!"

By his side, Bluefire replied with a laugh. "Right. He succeeded."

"Originally, when I talked about changing our plans, I was just speaking casually. I didn't dare truly imagine it, because it wasn't too realistic. But who would have imagined...now, it seems, a miracle is very likely about to be born from our hands!" The formerly ever-somber Beirut was now so excited that his eyes were shining.

"As I see it, let's not be in a rush to tell Linley just yet." Bluefire advised. "Right now, Linley needs to focus on fusing the different profound mysteries of different Laws."

Fusing mysteries from the same Law would result in an increase in power, but it generally wouldn't be too extravagant, just a tenfold increase or so.

But the fusing of profound mysteries of different Laws would result in an increase in power that was ridiculous; at least a hundredfold! For example, that 'Learmonth' which Linley encountered so many years ago had only fused two types of profound mysteries from different Laws, but was able to kill the master of Phusro, that 'Elquin'.

Given that Linley trained in four types of Laws, if he was able to fuse one profound mystery in each of the four Laws into a whole, then the effect would vastly surpass an ordinary six-way fusion!

"His power...the stronger he grows, the better." Beirut's smile was utterly incandescent.

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 54, Disappearing In a Blink of an Eye

The Planar Battlefield. Within a stone room in the cave estate. Linley was seated quietly in the meditative position.

Linley was indeed focusing on his training, desiring to fuse the mysteries of four Laws. His original body and his three major clones were all focused on this; as for his divine fire clone, it remained focused on the Laws of Fire.

Suddenly, Linley opened his eyes.

"How peculiar." Linley had a hint of a smile on his face, but he didn't understand. "The souls of my original body and three divine clones have all undergone a soul mutation, so why is it that the souls of my clones aren't as strong as that of my original body? In addition, as far as the power of my Will goes, the Will of the original body is still the strongest."

The stronger one's soul was, the faster one gained insights and trained as well.

After undergoing a soul mutation, one could sense all four elements, and so Linley had his original body and his three divine clone souls focus on all four elements, but clearly, his original body's speed far surpassed that of the other three clones.

"They underwent the same soul mutation, so why is there a difference?" Linley thought about it but didn't understand. Shaking his head, he shut his eyes, once more focusing on his training.

What Linley didn't know was that the reason a soul mutation occurred was that after one suffered a major wound and was sent into a coma, during that period of unconsciousness, the weak soul would rely on absorbing all sorts of nearby elemental essences. When Linley's original body and three divine clones were in the coma, the three comas were only able to sense the nearby elemental essences of their respective elements, while the original body was simultaneously absorbing all four types of elemental essences.

Thus, the soul of the original body was the first to begin to mutate.

Because the original body's soul began to mutate, and because it was linked to the other souls of the four divine clones, the original body's soul caused the other three souls to slowly mutate as well. But the original body was still the primary mover; naturally, it was the strongest after the mutation! The other three souls of the other divine clones were a bit weaker.

It was all one principle.

For example, Sovereigns. The Will of a Sovereign is exceedingly powerful, but Sovereigns generally had divine clones as well. The divine clones of Sovereigns, thanks to the original body, also contained Will, but the Will of the divine clones of Sovereigns was far, far weaker than the Will of the original body of the Sovereign. This was a primary-secondary issue.

The primary body for a Sovereign was their clone which became a Sovereign, with the other ones being secondary.

As for Linley, his original body was the primary body, while the other ones were secondary.

There were nearly three hundred years left before the final battle. Linley's group of four lived a leisurely life, either training or congregating and chatting.

A century was spent in this leisurely training.

Linley and the others were seated together. Reisgem asked eagerly, "Linley, judging from that happy smile on your face, you must have made some breakthroughs in fusing different Laws, right?"

"I'm a long ways off." Linley laughed calmly.

"Linley is very modest." A low sound rumbled out. The speaker was the nearby Reihom.

"He's begun to learn to hide his strength. Only someone who is too powerful will choose to hide his strength. Hmph. For weaker people like us, we'd prefer to frighten others. A four-clone Soul Mutate. Whew, whew. I am aware that the fusing of different Laws will result in a huge increase in power. Fusing two profound mysteries from two different Laws is comparable to fusing three profound mysteries of the same Law. Fusing three profound mysteries from three different laws is comparable to fusing five profound mysteries of the same Law. Fusing four profound mysteries from four different Laws....is equivalent to fusing seven profound mysteries of the same Law. This is a level more powerful than even Paragons!" Reisgem said with a sigh.

The potential of a four-clone Soul Mutate truly was much higher than even that of Paragons.

"If my Boss isn't formidable, who is?" Bebe said smugly. He had no idea what 'humility' meant.

"The power of fused Laws is great, but so too is the difficulty." Linley shook his head and laughed. "I know a person. I met him when I was adventuring in the Redbud Continent; Learmonth. He was the one who killed Phusro's master, 'Elquin'. Despite Learmonth's talents, he was only able to make his breakthrough at a dangerous point in the battle against Elquin. He was a Soul Mutate who only had two types of divine clones! It was so hard for him to fuse even just two different types of Laws."

Bebe just chortled. "Boss, don't be modest. You were even able to successfully undergo a four-way soul mutation. If you could do that, what can't you do?"

Linley chuckled, then drank a cup of wine.

"But Boss, your soul is now mutated. Your training speed should increase greatly as well. Are you confident in being able to help your divine fire clone to train faster and more quickly reach the Highgod level?" Bebe asked. "By then, with four types of divine power fused together, your strength will surpass that of when you use Sovereign's Might."

Linley's original body's soul was now thousands of times more powerful than before his mutation.

The rate at which he comprehended and visualized had also become much faster. If his original body's soul also focused on analyzing the Laws of Fire, the rate at which his divine fire clone would increase in power would rise dramatically. When the Planar Battlefield concluded, he would reach the level of Highgod.

"No rush." Linley shook his head and laughed. "For now, I don't wish to reveal that I am a Soul Mutate, and so I'm not in a hurry to make my divine fire clone reach the Highgod level. Right now, what I need to do is fuse the different Laws; that matters more. My energy is all focused in this direction." Linley knew very well.

His divine fire clone trained very slowly, true!

But he had spent nearly seven hundred years in the Planar Battlefield. Over these seven centuries, his divine fire clone had nearly mastered a fifth profound mystery. Although it was fairly slow compared to his other divine clones, Linley was in no hurry.

However, Reisgem's guess was a correct one; in the century after Linley's soul mutation, Linley had connected the 'Throbbing Pulse of the World' of the Laws of the Earth with the profound 'Circular Softness' mysteries of the Laws of Water. But of course, this was just a connection.

As time flowed on, the final battle drew closer and closer.

Within the stone room.

Linley was quietly seated in the meditative position, his four souls simultaneously visualizing and comprehending.

Within his mind, there was an illusory image of the vast, boundless earth. The throbbing pulse of this land was continuously emanating forth, but one line of energy tangled through and wrapped around it, much like the lines of energy the Chief Sovereign of Death had used at the Abyssal Inn. The lines wove throughout the ripples of the Throbbing Pulse of the World, influencing the pulse.

Slowly, the Throbbing Pulse of the World began to mutually influence and be influenced by this endless, circular soft stream of energy. The two connected with each other...

"Boss, Boss!" Suddenly, a voice rang out.

Within the stone room, Linley opened his eyes and saw Bebe. "What is it, Bebe?" Linley laughed.

"Boss, have you been training so much that you've gone dumb? Have you forgotten what time it is? This year is the 1000th and final year of the Planar War. I heard from Reisgem that most likely, in a month or two, the last battle will begin. Aren't we even going to go watch the final battle?" Bebe asked.

"The final battle?"

Linley immediately rose to his feet and laughed. "Of course we are going to go watch! I've been training for so long. It is time for a break."

The 'Throbbing Pulse of the World' and 'Circular Softness' profound mysteries...Linley's four souls had been training on for three centuries after his soul mutation, but he wasn't able to completely fuse them. He was still trapped in a bottleneck. No wonder the power of fused Laws was so great; the difficulty was incredibly high as well.

He exited the stone room and arrived in the main hall.

Reisgem and Reihom were already standing there in the main hall. Reisgem laughed cheerily, "Linley, I was worried that you wouldn't go. I know that you have enough commander badges, but I don't have enough yet."

"We're a squad. If you're going, how can I not go?" Linley said with a laugh.

"Then let's go. Head out!" Reisgem and Bebe were in front, while Linley and Reihom followed from behind. The four of them exited this cave estate.

Although three hundred years had gone by, the Planar Battlefield was as cold and desolate as ever. When striding forth from the cave tunnels, that knife-like, icy wind scraped against their faces. It only caused Linley's vigor to stir, however, as he stared at the desolate wilderness. "This trip to the Planar Battlefield is almost over! The final battle...the last 'banquet' to this event!"

This trip to the Planar Battlefield, to Linley, was indeed a truly life-changing journey.

Linley's group of four headed straight for the Stellar River.

The desolate wilderness. Wild grass grew everywhere.

There was a person lying on the ground. At first glance, one might take him for a corpse left behind by a battle. This person had wild, grass-like hair, and a pair of hungry, man-eating golden eyes. It was Hemmers!

"I only need one commander badge! It's been two centuries, and I haven't run into a single person." Hemmers lay there on the ground, grumbling to himself. "All of them rely on their speed; if they can't beat me, they flee. Hmph. That Azure Dragon clan punk in particular. I ran into him twice, but he relied on his Gravitational Space."

Hemmers had a belly full of fire, but no place to vent it.

"The final battle is about to arrive." Hemmers muttered.

"It seems I'll have to take part in the final battle in order to acquire a commander badge. After acquiring a final commander badge, I will definitely ask the Sovereign to make me a spear! I can throw it and use it for long range combat, or for close combat. Hmph, given my material attack power, I'll be able to throw it a great distance. By then, I want to see if those bastards will have any chance of fleeing again!"

Indeed, a material attack strength comparable to Highgod Paragons, when combined with a ranged Sovereign weapon, would make it so that Hemmers would be a threat comparable to Paragons.

"Hmph. Hmph. I hope that Azure Dragon clan kid will participate in the next Planar War. By then, I'll have a ranged Sovereign weapon. I'll definitely teach him a lesson." Hemmers never forgot about that person who had escaped from him twice.

Suddenly...

"Huh?" Lying on the ground, Hemmers raised an eyebrow. "Someone is coming. Roughly ten thousand meters away!"

Hemmers himself was formed from part of the Divine Earth Plane. He was its first golden mountain, which the plane nurtured over countless years. He was born with an innate, supernatural connection to the earth and the ground. When lying there on the ground, he could clearly sense the ground within a certain area, and if there was anyone stepping on the ground.

"Haha." Hemmers sat up, staring into that direction, his golden eyes gleaming. "Perhaps this will be the last military merit. I won't have to participate in the final battle after all."

And then, Hemmers immediately merged into the earth itself.
Worldwalking!

On the desolate ground, Linley and the other three were walking shoulder-to-shoulder, chatting and laughing casually. Given the power of this group of four, there was no one they feared here in the Planar Battlefield. Anyone who made trouble for them was courting death.

Linley's gaze suddenly sharpened, and he laughed calmly. "Someone is coming over. Be careful, everyone."

"Someone is coming?"

Reisgem, Bebe, and Reihom were startled. They didn't sense anything. But Linley, after his soul mutation, had an extremely strong control over the universe; as soon as anyone drew near, Linley would easily notice them.

"An expert of the earth, using Worldwalking." Linley said, spreading out his divine sense.

"Oh, him?" Linley had a hint of laughter on his face.

Hemmers thought that he was being stealthy; generally speaking, a person using Worldwalking would only be detected upon reaching a distance of a hundred meters or so. This was common knowledge, but for Paragons and people like Linley, this wasn't true. Hemmers' usage of Worldwalking was detected by Linley from far away.

"Rumble..." Suddenly, a hundred meters away, an enormous figure erupted forth from the earth, bounding forward like lightning towards Linley.

"It is you, you Azure Dragon clan brat!" Hemmers realized who Linley was now. "This Azure Dragon clan brat is able to transform, and also use Gravitational Space. Killing him is rather hard!"

He charged towards them, bounding forward like lightning.

“Eh, he didn’t transform or use his Gravitational Space?” Hemmers was amazed. Having fought several times with Linley, he knew how strong Linley was; why was it that when he charged in front of them, Linley didn’t react at all?

Hemmers, who had been preparing to attack ‘Reihom’, chose to attack Linley instead!

“You yourself are courting death. Don’t blame me.” Hemmers smashed out with his fist, causing a deep, thundering sound as cracks in space appeared.

Reisgem, Bebe, and Reihom just watched and laughed. Linley very casually swept out with a punch, and instantly, 108 rays of earthen yellow light swept out, instantly forming a Gravitational Space that trapped and compressed Hemmers within it. Linley swept out with his space-shattering punch...

Microcosm!

“This...what’s going on?” Hemmers felt as though the surrounding space was compressing powerfully around him, slowing him down significantly and making him feel miserable. He had tasted this technique of Linley’s before, but the power was far, far greater than it was last time!

His fist was extremely slow, completely unable to block Linley’s punch.

“Bang!” The fist rose upwards in an uppercut, connecting with Hemmers’ lower jaw and sending Hemmers flying into the air.

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 55, The Experts By the Banks of the Stellar River

A bone-shattering sound rang out, and Hemmers was knocked flying backwards.

“This...what is this?” Hemmers was completely stunned. “The Azure Dragon clan brat, what’s going on with him? The first time I met him, he wasn’t able to fight back at all. He had to rely on Sovereign power, his Gravitational Space, and his innate divine ability in order to escape. The second time I encountered him, the brat was able to fight me head on. This third time...I’m completely unable to fight back?”

Stupefied!

Completely stupefied!

“No matter how much of a genius a person is, this is ridiculous.” Hemmers landed on the ground, staring at the distant Linley, his mind a mess.

Blood dribbled down his face. Hemmers shook his head, then muttered to himself, “Impossible. Something must be wrong.” Hemmers still hadn’t reacted, but he hurriedly began to cure his wounds. “This Azure Dragon clan punk’s fist actually broke my lower jaw and shattered my teeth.”

Hemmers possessed terrifyingly strong material defense. When Linley had first met him, a full-force sword blow was only able to barely scratch his skin.

Hemmers' skin possessed weak defense. His muscles were strong and bones were stronger!

Linley's casual punch was able to shatter his jaw?

"Hey, Hemmers, why are you just standing there like an idiot? Didn't you want to kill us to get our commander badges?" Bebe smugly began to laugh loudly towards him.

"Impossible. Something must be wrong!!!" Hemmers howled furiously.

"BOOM!" Hemmers' entire body suddenly began to glow with an earthen yellow light, and a brilliant golden light flooded through him as well, making his fists and legs especially bright. Hemmers was like a crazed bear, transforming into a ray of lightning as he charged once more towards Linley.

Hemmers clearly had gone mad.

"He really is a big dumb idiot." Linley said with a calm laugh.

Hemmers was howling furiously. His full-strength punch smashed through the skies, and he moved like a dragon as he attacked Linley. "Rumble..." Where his fist passed, the space of the Planar Battlefield was constantly torn asunder like fragile glass. Multiple spatial tears that were tens of meters long were created.

“Although he’s a bit stupid, he really is quite strong.” Linley still smiled.

The same response!

A fist struck out, and over a hundred black dragons of energy swept towards Hemmers. This time, Linley actually used Destruction-type Sovereign power. “This Hemmers used Sovereign power; to subdue him, I really will have to use Sovereign power.” Although he was able to easily defeat Hemmers, Linley had to acknowledge his opponent’s strength.

“Crackle...” The hundred-plus dragons formed into a cage, binding Hemmers within...Microcosm!

That compressive power that was far greater than before once more formed, making Hemmers feel very uncomfortable throughout his entire body. In this situation, his speed slowed drastically, and he could only watch as Linley’s fist smashed against his body.

“BANG!”

A fist landed on Hemmers’ chest, and a bone-splitting sound rang out yet again as Hemmers was knocked flying backwards, his legs being driven deeply into the ground.

“What is going on?!” Hemmers stared at his chest, where a large, bloody hole had appeared, with blood leaking out. This injury was even more severe than the previous one; his ribs were completely shattered. Fortunately, Hemmers’ body was tough enough that the punch didn’t go straight through his chest.

But a blow of such power...if it landed against his head, he definitely would have died!

Hemmers was shocked to his senses!

"Hemmers, do you want to come again?" Linley chortled.

"Hey, Hemmers, aren't you really tough? What, are you stupefied now?" Reisgem laughed teasingly, and as he spoke, Reisgem voluntarily released his aura.

"You are...Reisgem?" Only now did Hemmers recognize him.

"My aura-hiding abilities are too great. Unless I wish it, someone like you, Hemmers, would never be able to recognize me." Reisgem said smugly. His aura-suppressing abilities really were formidable, but against the likes of Linley or Magnus, he would still easily be detected.

Hemmers looked carefully at Linley.

"You...in the past, were you intentionally toying with me?" Hemmers said in a low voice.

"No." Linley laughed and shook his head.

Hemmers stared at Linley. He couldn't help but grow a bit angry. "Azure Dragon clan brat, your strength is so great; why did you toy with me like that? Although I, Hemmers, am a bit slow to react, I'm not so stupid to the point where I'll believe that a brat who wasn't able to fight back a few centuries ago could, a few centuries later, easily trample me!"

Hemmers didn't flee, because he knew...

Given his pitiful speed, there was no way he could flee.

"Why would I deceive you?" Linley laughed calmly. "You can leave now. I don't want to kill you."

"Not kill me?" Hemmers was stunned.

In the Planar Battlefield, if you couldn't beat someone, you would generally be killed. But today...

"Fine. I believe you when you say you weren't previously toying with me." Hemmers gave Linley a long look. "Can you tell me, how long have you been training for?"

"Less than three thousand years." Linley didn't hide anything.

Hemmers was stunned, and he blinked twice. "Less than three, three, three...thousand years?" Hemmers stared at Linley in disbelief. "I really want to ask you something. Are you toying with me, or did I hear incorrectly? Or perhaps you meant less than three thousand millennia."

Hemmers was able to believe three million or thirty million years, but three thousand? This was a bit too frightening.

"You didn't mishear." Linley laughed while shaking his head. "Bebe, let's go."

Linley, Reisgem, Reihom, and Bebe chortled as they walked away. Bebe turned and look at Hemmers. "Haha, big idiot, don't just stand there like a fool. Even if you stand there for three millennia, you still aren't comparable to my Boss."

"Less than three thousand years? The Planar War has only been going on for a few centuries, and he's fought with me three times. But each time..."

Hemmers, previously stupefied, was finally starting to come to his senses. He stared with a bit of trepidation as Linley left. "What a truly terrifying person. In less than three thousand years, he's constantly advanced. He's also a member of the Azure Dragon clan. For his material attack to be this strong...he should be a Paragon."

"Three thousand years. Paragon?"

Hemmers suddenly sat down on the ground, then lay down casually, his head still woozy.

"Ah." Hemmers suddenly slapped himself against the head. "Forgot to ask'm. What's his name! Forget it, I'll just refer to him him as that 'Azure Dragon clan brat.'" Hemmers, in his mind, had firmly memorized this Azure Dragon clan brat, who apparently had the terrifying power of a Paragon.

"It seems this final battle will be very exciting." Hemmers mumbled. "So many experts. Mm. I have to go watch." Hemmers rose to his feet as he spoke, also moving towards the Stellar River.

Only, he was still rather leery of Linley. Thus, the route Hemmers took was slightly different from Linley's.

The Stellar River was a thousand kilometers wide, and more than a million kilometers long. The entire Planar Battlefield was divided into two.

The wide Stellar River was extremely brilliant, and the rainbow-colored regions of spatial chaos flowed about, but the experts of the Planar Battlefield all understood that although the chaotic space was beautiful, they contained terrifying levels of energy. If one became trapped within, they would quickly be lost. Even Paragons didn't dare enter spatial rifts.

One could imagine how terrifying they were.

At present, Linley's group of four was standing by the banks of the Stellar River.

"So many years have passed. I've always been on this side of the Stellar River. Our military headquarters is located on the opposite side." Reisgem said with a laugh. "Let's go...it's time to visit our main camp. On this side, there is no way we will be able to participate in the final battle. I want to acquire a few extra commander badges."

As he spoke, Reisgem was the first to enter the Stellar River.

It was much like when Linley had first come; they had to fly through crooked little paths of safety!

Reihom, Bebe, and Linley all immediately followed.

Originally, when they passed the Stellar River on the way to other side, Linley and Bebe were both rather nervous, afraid that they might accidentally slip into a spatial rift. This time returning, however, Linley himself felt quite relaxed.

“The Stellar River is indeed beautiful.” Linley could even leisurely enjoy watching the surrounding spatial rifts, as well as the giant boulders and small mountains that hovered in the middle of the Stellar River.

As they passed through the river, given Linley’s control over space, he was able to clearly sense which places were safe and which parts were dangerous. Even if he touched a spatial rift, given Linley’s current power, there was no way he would be sucked within.

Linley’s group of four quickly passed this distance of a thousand kilometers.

Every single Planar War would last a thousand years. For the vast majority of this period of time, ordinary soldiers had no assignments; they could safely stay in their side’s headquarters. But when a thousand years passed, the soldiers began to grow busy. At this moment, in the Planar Battlefield, in each side's headquarters, everyone began to move towards the banks of the Stellar River.

They gathered around at each side of the two corridors of the Stellar River. The two sides arrayed themselves by the banks.

The camps stationed alongside the Stellar River were fairly long. At the same time, there were quite a few patrolling soldiers who moved about nearby. Their current mission was...receive commander-level experts!

After all, during the final battle, some scattered commanders would also regroup with them. The armies would naturally welcome the commanders to join them; after all, the strength of a commander was far greater than an ordinary soldier, and they would be of great use during the final battle.

A hundred or so soldiers were casually seated in the meditative position next to an earthen hill. Others were resting lazily against the hill, or standing and watching their surroundings. This was one of the patrol squads for one of the military camps of the Divine Darkness Plane's side.

"Captain, someone just came to our side of the Stellar River. There are four in total." A silver-haired, violet-eyed soldier called out hurriedly.

"Oh? Probably a commander. Let's get a closer look." This captain of his hundred-man squad was a bald, hook-nosed man. He immediately led his squad to move closer. They weren't too worried, because not too far behind them was their military camp. In addition, they didn't go too close to the four.

When they reached a distance of two or three hundred meters.

"They belong to our side!" The captain let out a sigh of relief. They could sense the badges of the four.

Immediately, the hundred-man squad drew closer.

"Hey, who are you?" A youth wearing a straw hat called out.

The bald, hook-nosed captain immediately bowed respectfully. "Milords, we are here at the orders of the commanders to receive you."

"Let's go, Linley." Reisgem laughed. "It was like this in the past as well. Towards the end, the military camps would all invite us to join them, whether to watch or to actually participate. Within the military camps... there are groups of commanders who are familiar with each other. It also makes coordinating easier."

Linley nodded. "Then let's go."

"Please follow me, milords." The captain said humbly.

Linley's group of four, following the captain, moved forward, with the hundred soldiers following. They arrived at the nearby military camp. This military camp had many stone houses built, and soldiers could be seen everywhere.

"This is our headquarters, and these are the houses that were made just for commanders. Commanders can select any vacant house.” The captain pointed to the front. “There are twenty houses, three of which are occupied and seventeen of which are empty. Just by looking at the courtyard gate, you’ll know if there is anyone present. Vacant houses have locked gates.”

One plain, unadorned stone manor after another had been built in the empty space up ahead. There were twenty of them.

“Someone else came?” Two figures emerged from one of the courtyards, one a youth who was as skinny as a bamboo rod with strange, sinister, cold eyes. By his side was a white-haired, white-bearded elder whose face was wreathed in smiles.

“Oh, Reisgem.” The skinny youth said with a light laugh.

“Woodridge [Wu’tē’li’qi], didn’t know you came as well.” Reisgem snickered, then said to Linley, “Linley, don’t pay this fellow any mind. Let’s go in.” Reisgem seemed to be very disdainful towards this skinny youth.

“Right.” Linley couldn’t be bothered to pay attention to this person either.

“Linley? I heard that a Linley emerged within the Four Divine Beasts clan in the Infernal Realm. So that’s him?” Woodridge looked towards Linley and chuckled. “I looked at that scryer recording. Your strength is quite average. It’s one thing for you to kill a few ordinary Seven Star Fiends, but coming to the Planar Battlefield is just suicide.”

Linley turned to give him a sideways glance. Woodridge was startled, but then Linley immediately followed Reisgem into the courtyard.

“Woodridge, the genius expert of the Goldeye Bats? What’s that look on your face?” Bebe glanced at him, giving him a disdainful smirk, then followed Linley into the courtyard.

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 56, Bebe's Request

If Woodridge was unhappy with the way Linley looked at him, he was absolutely livid with the disdainful look Bebe had given him and the way Bebe had spoken to him.

"That straw hat wearing brat!" Woodbridge's face sank, and he was about to bark back at him.

"Woodridge, don't be impulsive." The nearby white-haired elder sent mentally.

"What is it?" Woodridge turned to look at the white-haired elder. "It's one thing for Reisgem to be so arrogant in front of me, but that brat with the straw hat, who the hell does he think he is? I've never even heard of him." For someone to survive in the Planar Battlefield until now was proof of one's strength. Woodridge wouldn't so easily allow others to insult him.

If he heard a single displeasing word, he would want to kill the speaker!

"You didn't go to the other side of the river, so you have no idea who that youngster with the straw hat is." The white-haired elder said solemnly. "The reputation of that youngster with the straw hat is known throughout the headquarters of the Divine Light Plane!"

"Oh?" Woodridge's pupils contracted. "Who is he?"

"The second Godeater Rat, aside from Beirut!" The white-haired elder said solemnly.

Woodridge's face changed. "What? Godeater Rat?! How can that be? Isn't Beirut the one and only Godeater Rat? Where did another one come from?"

"I was adventuring on the other side of the river. Of course I know this news. You can ask anyone; any of the commanders who went adventuring on the other side of the river will definitely have heard of this Godeater Rat, a youngster who wore a straw hat. You had best be careful." The white-haired elder gave him a sideways glance. "If something goes wrong, don't say no one warned you!"

After speaking, the white-haired elder returned to his own residence.

"Godeater Rat?" Woodridge watched Linley's group enter their courtyard, and then, with a low snort, departed.

The manors which the military camp arranged for each commander were all very large, with many rooms.

"Not bad, not bad!" Reisgem stepped into the main hall, glancing around before sighing with satisfaction. "It as though the members of this military camp bought quite a few decorative items before entering." The main hall had a number of decorative items; even the tables and chairs were made of wood. At a single glance, one could tell that they weren't made from the materials of the Planar Battlefield.

"Linley, we no longer need to do anything. Just rest. Later, I imagine the commander of this military camp will come pay us a visit. The commanders living nearby will probably come visit as well. All we have to do is accompany them! As for the final battle, there's more than a month left before it arrives." Reisgem immediately headed to a nearby room. "During this period of time, I'll live here."

Linley and the others all selected their own residences.

Indeed, as Reisgem predicted, soon after they moved in, the commander of this military camp came to pay them a visit. Afterwards, Linley's group received visits from the nearby commanders as well. But of course, Reisgem and the others didn't openly publicize Linley's strength.

In the blink of an eye, half a month passed.

Within the courtyard. Linley and Bebe were seated, facing each other.

"Bebe, why the frown? If there's something you want to say, why hold back? Just say it." Linley could immediately tell that Bebe had something on his mind.

Bebe took a deep breath.

"Boss, actually, I feel quite conflicted." Bebe looked at Linley.

"Eh? About what?" Linley asked.

Bebe lowered his head, resting it against the table, staring at it. In a soft voice, he said, "Boss, actually, there was another reason why I wanted you to come participate in the Planar War. In my heart, I've been hesitating... about whether or not to let my mother and father come back to life as well."

Linley was stunned. How could he have forgotten?

The ever-carefree appearance Bebe had put on over all these years had caused Linley to not think about certain things...but Bebe's thoughts weren't necessarily the same as Linley's.

"I've never met my parents. I don't know what they are like. My mind is very chaotic right now. I have no clear image of them in my mind. I don't really think about them that much. I became accustomed long ago to not having parents, but...I still feel regret over it."

Bebe mumbled softly to himself, "I didn't think too much about it, but Boss, for the sake of saving your family and friends, you came to the Planar Battlefield. That moved me. Should I find my parents as well? But I know that it's really hard for you to collect commander badges, Boss. I don't want to add to your burden. And so, I've been hesitating about whether or not I should search for my parents, which is why I didn't plan on saying anything."

"But, Boss, now you are so powerful. It shouldn't be too hard for you to collect two more commander badges. That's why I am starting to think about this again."

Bebe lifted his head up to look towards Linley.

"Bebe. I'm sorry." Linley said apologetically.

He truly felt ashamed. He and Bebe were lifelong brothers, and Bebe had risked his life to battle with him here in the Planar Battlefield. But he himself had actually forgotten Bebe's parents!

"Boss, don't say that." Bebe shook his head. "Actually, I'm still a bit hesitant over whether or not I should look for my parents. After all, I've never met them...and I have no idea if the undead my parents were transformed into are dead or alive. If I were to be able to meet my parents, what should I say to them? They probably wouldn't even recognize me if they saw me!"

Bebe's mother didn't get to see Bebe grow up and transform into human form. Even if she regained her memories, she wouldn't recognize Bebe on sight.

"To meet again without recognizing each other.." Bebe had very complicated, mixed emotions in his heart.

Bebe had planned on just saying 'forget it'; his parents had their own fate, and there was no point trying to force things. And, originally, it was indeed hard for Linley to collect enough commander badges. But now, things were different.

"Don't worry about it. Let me handle this. I'll get two more commander badges!" Linley promised.

"Right." Bebe nodded.

"Whew!" Bebe sat up straight, letting out a breath. "Damn, forget it! They are my parents. I'll meet them! Heh heh, I imagine that if they knew that they had a Godeater Rat for a son, they would be very proud." Bebe seemed to have shrugged off his annoyances, becoming carefree once more.

Linley chuckled. In his heart, he had already made up his mind that during the final battle, he would acquire two more commander badges.

Linley and Bebe had travelled together their entire lives. Bebe was willing to sacrifice his life for Linley, and the opposite was true as well. In addition, given Linley's current level, it would actually be quite hard to make him die.

"Knock!" "Knock!" Suddenly, a knocking sound.

Linley waved his hand, and a surge of divine power swept forward, pushing the courtyard door open. In walked a person, a black-haired youth with black-colored, gold-edged robes. "Linley. Bebe. Are Reisgem and Reihom here?" This was the commander of this military camp, 'Walnut' [Wo'nuo'te]. The commanders who came to the Planar Battlefield included both solitary commanders as well as commanders responsible for military camps.

"Hey, what is it?" A voice rang out from the main hall, then Reisgem flew out.

Linley and Bebe looked towards Walnut as well.

"Here's the situation. Before the final battle begins, the commanders of the military camps and the roving commanders will all gather together once to discuss our strategy for the final battle. At the same time, everyone can get familiar with each other." Walnut said with a laugh.

"When is it?" Reisgem asked.

Linley knew about this as well. A meeting before the final battle was a custom.

"Today!" Walnut nodded and laughed. "There are already commanders waiting outside. Reisgem, the four of you can go out as well. I'll go inform each of the other commanders, and then we'll head out together."

"Fine." Reisgem nodded, and Linley and the others all walked outside as well.

There were indeed three people outside already. When the three saw Linley's group of four, then laughed and greeted him. "Reisgem, Bebe, Reihom, Linley!" They all walked over. Linley's group of four welcomed them. As others saw it, Linley's four-man squad should have been formed around Reisgem and Bebe as the core.

As for Reihom and Linley, they were somewhat ignored. After all, Reisgem's reputation and Bebe's reputation as a 'Godeater Rat' were simply too great.

Soon, the commanders of this military camp had all gathered here.

Including Walnut, there were a total of ten commanders.

"Alright, everyone, let's head out." Walnut said with a laugh.

"There are dozens of military camps. Each camp actually has ten or so commanders. Then the dozens of military camps combined...how many commanders is that!" Bebe said with a sigh.

"Not that many." Walnut said with a calm laugh. "That's because most of the military camps are centered around the ends of the two corridors connecting each side of the Stellar River. Thus...it's always the outermost military camps which welcome commanders back! The military camps located deeper inside don't receive any commanders."

Bebe now understood.

"Thus, our Divine Darkness Plane's side has a total of at most fifty or so surviving commander-level experts, all combined." Walnut gave an estimated figure.

Over a thousand years, quite a few commanders had died.

The surviving commanders weren't that numerous, but of course, amongst those who went roving about, the survivors weren't necessarily all commanders; just commander-level experts. For example, although Bebe and Reihom were very powerful, they entered with the status of ordinary soldiers, and followed by the side of Linley and Reisgem, which is why they were allowed to rove about.

The military camp was divided into two wings, and Linley's group was currently moving alongside the banks of the Stellar River, towards the direction of the Stellar River's 'port'.

The gathering place for this meeting was close to one of the corridors.

This was an estate that was slightly larger than the one in which Linley's group was living in. The courtyard had multiple chairs and tables situated within it, and there were around twenty or thirty people located within the courtyard.

"Walnut, you came!" As Walnut's group moved forward, quite a few people immediately noticed them.

"Haha, Ouville [Wu'wei'er], aren't you the lucky one. Still alive, eh?"

"Barnsley [Ba'en'si'li], you came to the Planar Battlefield this time? Haha..."

"Reisgem!"

Immediately, the group of commander-level experts began to call each other's names out, chatting and laughing with each other. These supreme experts of their respective planes were fairly familiar with each other, and many were even friends.

Linley, Bebe, and Reihom knew very few people. And so, they moved to a corner of the courtyard, found three seats, and sat down. Taking out some cups and some wine, they began to drink.

A while later, after Reisgem was done socializing with some old friends, he returned as well.

"How festive." Bebe said with a laugh.

Reisgem said with a smirk, "Festive? Some are happy, others are mocking. Those who are friends with you hope you will live; those who don't like you hope you will die. You know very few people. In a bit, I imagine some people will come chat with you, and you'll quickly become familiar with them."

Linley smiled calmly, lifting his cup and taking a light sip.

"Woodbridge, you came with them as well. Who are the three next to Reisgem?" Commander-level experts also needed to know information about each other; the more details they knew about other commanders, the better.

Before Woodbridge had a chance to speak, a big bald fellow nearby said in a whisper, "I don't know the other two, but that one wearing the straw hat...his name is widespread on the other side of the river, in the camps of the Divine Light Plane's side. That's the second Godeater Rat, aside from Beirut!"

"Godeater Rat?" Quite a few people were stunned.

Too few of them had soul-protecting Sovereign artifacts. Without one, anyone who met Bebe would die. After all, Paragons were extremely, extremely rare.

These people looked towards Reisgem and Bebe in surprise. "And which two incredible figures are currently seated next to Reisgem and the Godeater Rat?"

Woodbridge laughed. "Those two are quite ordinary. That icy-looking fellow is Reihom, an Emissary of the Redbud Sovereign. The brown-haired kid next to him is fairly famous in the Azure Dragon clan; his name is Linley!"

"Linley?" Indeed, there were some, especially in the Infernal Realm, who had heard of Linley. However, in the eyes of these commanders, Linley's performance in the scryer recordings showed that he was only a powerful Seven Star Fiend, not yet at the level of commanders. They didn't care about him.

As time flowed onwards, more and more commander-level experts entered, quite a few of whom knew the others present and began to chat with them. Very few people, however, came to chat with Linley; after all, Linley's status as a 'Lord of Tartarus' was only gained after the Planar War had already begun. Linley himself couldn't be bothered to chat up these people; he actually preferred the peace and quiet.

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 57, The Final Battle

Within the courtyard, fifty-plus commander-level experts were gathered together. Linley's group of four was seated in the corner, while servants walked about, carrying platters and delivering wine, food, and fruit.

"This gathering is completely boring!" Bebe went 'crunch' 'crunch' as he chomped through a round, slick, violet-skinned fruit. The juice dribbled down. "What's the point of having us come? This gathering is centered around those commanders with military camps discussing their strategies for the final battle. The rest of us are just sitting around and watching like idiots."

Linley laughed, then glanced at the commanders located closer to them within the courtyard.

This group of commanders was consisted of commanders who managed military camps. Clearly, they were discussing some of the details of the final battle. As for Linley and the other solitary commanders, they didn't participate in the discussions.

"We didn't bring any soldiers. What is there to discuss?" Reisgem glanced at the commanders, then at the other commanders who, like them, were bored and chatting in the corners of the room. "The others are like us. They are just sitting there, bored, right? The purpose of us coming is to familiarize ourselves with the other commanders. This is just a gathering. Nothing else."

Clearly, the discussion regarding the details of the final battle was a fairly simple one, as a short time later, that group of commanders finished their conversations.

“Everyone.” One of the commanders, a man with three eyes, stood up and looked at them. Smiling, he said, “There isn’t much time left between now and the final battle! Everyone, whether you choose to participate or to spectate is up to you! If you plan to participate, it will be the same as it always has been; you’ll be mixed in with the soldiers! I trust there’s nothing more that I need to say!”

The Planar Wars had been carried out many, many times now. Many things had become customs already.

When intermixed in with ordinary soldiers, it would be hard to tell commanders apart from ordinary soldiers. That helped guarantee that the enemies wouldn’t focus their fire on one commander in particular. It would increase the odds of survival, but of course, if someone’s performance was too impressive, it would still be dangerous.

“The side of the Divine Light Plane, do they have any particularly powerful experts? If they do, please let us know, so that we will be prepared.” The three-eyed commander said.

“I know that the Divine Light Plane has Magnus in their camp!” A commander-level expert said loudly.

“Magnus. We do indeed have to be careful.” The three-eyed commander nodded solemnly.

Reisgem, seated in the corner, laughed loudly. "I know of another person, the Paragon of Wind, 'Bayer'. He is here as well. In addition, he is on the side of the Divine Light Plane."

"Bayer?" This name attracted everyone's attention.

Although though quite a few more names were listed, clearly, what everyone was truly concerned about was the presence of 'Magnus' and 'Bayer'. After all, Paragons already stood at the very tip of power. If Paragons wished to kill ordinary commanders, it would be a slaughter. In addition, if one tried to use group attacks, given how astonishingly fast Paragons were, using such a tactic would just be laughable.

"Bluefire, why hasn't Bluefire revealed himself?" Reisgem secretly chatted with Linley. "He belongs to our side. He should show himself."

Linley shook his head, puzzled. "I'm not sure either. He prefers to travel alone, I suppose."

This gathering was a chance for the various commander-level experts to meet each other; after all, outside of the Planar Battlefield, it wasn't too practical to arrange a meeting of so many commanders. This sort of gathering was also a community; a community of the highest level Deities.

Although Linley didn't want to chat much with these people, there were still many who came and said a few words to him. They were all acquainted now, and at least these people all knew who Linley was.

"I've already arranged residences for everyone." The three-eyed commander then laughed. "Everyone, you can choose any of the residences nearby. This place is fairly close to the banks of the Stellar River. Once the final battle begins, all of you commanders will be able to easily enter the battle."

No one stood on ceremony; they each selected a residence and moved in, quietly awaiting the final battle.

This was the situation on the side of the Divine Darkness Plane, and the side of the Divine Light Plane had its own gathering as well. However, of the Paragons belonging to the Divine Light Plane, only Magnus appeared; as for Bayer, he didn't participate in the gathering.

"Mr. Magnus." All of the commanders, over the course of this gathering, greeted Magnus in a very warm, friendly manner, unconsciously acting in a meek, humble manner.

Although they were commanders and very arrogant, in the face of a Paragon...it was very natural for them to act like this. They felt like commoners meeting an emperor. Although the commoner might be arrogant, they would naturally grow modest in this situation. And this sort of modesty...didn't make them feel ashamed, because it was only appropriate.

For example, if one knelt upon seeing a Sovereign; this was something which their subconscious told them was only proper.

The reception Magnus received in his camp was completely opposite from the one Linley received in his.

But Magnus couldn't care less about these people; he too went into a corner, and by his side was Oman, Chegwin, and Ramson.

"Everyone, are there any formidable experts on the side of the Divine Darkness Plane whom we need to be aware of? If you know of any, speak up and let us mentally prepare for them." A white-browed, white-haired youth spoke out.

Immediately, all of the commanders began to list out some names, with the likes of Reisgem and Bebe being discussed.

"We encountered an expert who should be a Paragon." Oman said. "He is a Paragon of Fire! He belongs to the enemy camp, but his name...we aren't sure. All we know is that he has crimson eyebrows!"

The commanders immediately all fell silent. Compared to a Paragon, neither Reisgem nor Bebe were even as remotely as threatening.

"I have a name!" Hemmers said loudly. "I suspect he, too, is a Paragon!"

These words caused everyone to look towards Hemmers. Everyone knew who Hemmers was; given Hemmers' strength, his words should be true.

"This person is a member of the Azure Dragon clan, of the Four Divine Beasts clan. His power is very bizarre; at first, he was very weak, but afterwards, he grew to be even stronger than me. He's made vast improvements over just a few centuries, and he said that he has trained for less than three thousand years. I don't dare believe it, but one thing is certain; his power is greater than mine!" Hemmers said unhappily. "I suspect that he has already reached the level of Paragon!"

Instantly, a unison of laughter.

Everyone knew that Hemmers was a thick-headed fellow who wasn't very clever. Hearing Hemmers' words, however, they all laughed hard.

"Hemmers, less than three thousand years, and a Paragon, you say? If he became a Paragon in less than three thousand years, then the rest of us no longer have any face to stay here. Haha." Clearly, not a single member of these experts believed him.

"Hemmers, don't believe this person's lies." The commanders didn't believe it at all.

"That expert of the Azure Dragon clan, 'Gislason'? He's only on par with us; how could they have a Paragon? If they did, they wouldn't have been abused to such an extent by the eight great clans."

The discussion made it clear that no one believed Hemmers.

"Impossible!"

Magnus, seated in the corner of the room, said slowly, "Become a Paragon in less than three thousand years? Absolutely impossible! Forget about three thousand years; even thirty thousand years or three hundred thousand years is far too short for someone to reach the Paragon level! To reach the level of Paragon in under a million years is something which isn't possible."

Magnus, as a Paragon himself, was an authoritative source.

"Can it be that I, Hemmers, would lie to you!" Hemmers was furious. Steam came from his nostrils, and his eyes turned absolutely round, like a pair of copper gongs as he stared at the others. These commanders unconsciously began to lower the volume of their laughter. They still truly did not wish to irritate this fellow, Hemmers."

"If you don't want to listen, then don't. When you die, don't blame me." Hemmers snorted, then sat down, grabbing a roasted leg of meat on the table and chewing it with large bites.

The Divine Light Plane's camp and the Divine Darkness Plane's camp were both waiting quietly at each end of the stellar River. They were awaiting the arrival of the final battle. Compared to the commanders, though, it was actually the soldiers who were the most eager!

The mortality rates amongst soldiers in the Planar Battlefield was simply too high.

These soldiers all wanted to earn military merits and perhaps trade for Sovereign's Might. And many of these soldiers...had lived for far too long. They wanted to experience the legendary, truly terrifying...Planar War! Thus, they allowed their divine clones to come up. They were willing to sacrifice a divine clone, so as to experience the legendary Planar Wars for themselves.

Was this foolishness or insanity?

Hard to say. But after a Deity had been alive for countless years and no longer had any emotional attachments, they were capable of doing anything.

The Planar Wars were savage, crazed battles to begin with!

The Divine Darkness Plane's camp, where the commanders lived. Linley's group was living within their courtyard.

Reisgem and Bebe were seated across from each other, chatting casually.

Suddenly...

"Rumble..." A terrifyingly powerful rumble filled the skies. It was as though an energy ripple capable of causing the heavens to collapse and the earth to shatter was wildly spreading in every direction.

"Whooooooooosh."

The buildings on each side of the Stellar River, when encountering this energy ripple, were instantly converted into dust, revealing the soldiers and commanders within. In almost the same instant, the countless soldiers and many commanders on each side of the Stellar River turned to look towards the 'Stellar Corridors'.

This vast sea of people all stared towards the Stellar Corridors.

Linley stared into the distance, only to see the two corridors of the Stellar Sea emit a rainbow aura. This aura rose to the skies, causing the space above to tremble. In this instant, the two corridors of the Stellar River were more eye-catching than they ever had been.

“The final battle is finally about to begin!” Linley, seeing this, couldn’t help but murmur to himself.

According to the rules of the Planar Wars, after a thousand years passed, the Stellar Corridors would explode forth with a rainbow aura that would cause the world to tremble. This was the sign that the final battle was to commence! According to some legends, this was designed by Sovereigns, but according to other legends, it was designed by the Overgods. But one thing was for certain...

The final battle was beginning!

There was no unified deployment, nor was there any hesitation.

“Kill!” A cacophony of bellows shook the heavens.

The soldiers who had been waiting this entire time on each side of the Stellar Corridors immediately flooded into the corridors, charging towards the opposite side. As for the soldiers of Divine Light Plane’s camp, they didn’t hesitate either, also flooding into the Stellar Corridors and attacking their foes.

"Haha...the battle has begun!" Reisgem laughed loudly. "Let's head out!"

"Move out!" Bebe called in jubilation as well.

Linley's group of four moved lightning-fast towards the Stellar Corridor's opposite side.

The various commanders didn't need to be organized into squads; they all moved as they pleased. As for the soldiers of the military camps, they immediately formed into squads and then, like a long, sinuous dragon, had begun to wind their way through and flood through the corridors. The mission for each camp was arranged during the previous gathering.

The slaughtering instantly began!

The dreamy Stellar River's two Stellar Corridors were now both emanating a rainbow glow, making it appear even more illusory and dreamlike. But the two sides on the Light camp and the Darkness camp were beginning to slaughter and butcher each other in the two corridors.

Linley, Bebe, Reisgem, and Reihom stood at the sides of the Stellar Corridor.

"It really is madness." Linley was watching.

The air above the Stellar River was filled from top to bottom with countless soldiers, with each unit numbering in the thousands. They collectively launched material attacks or soul attacks against each other, unleashing their most powerful attacks towards the enemies in front of them. These long-distance attacks went on for only a few instants, and then, the two massive armies, like a pair of behemoths, clashed into each other. The chaotic battle had begun!

Blood flew everywhere, divine sparks rolled out, and badges descended.

A battle that was utterly crazed!

“According to the rules of the Planar Wars, if one side wins the battle within both corridors, that is considered a victory. If they only win in one corridor, it is considered a draw.” Reisgem’s eyes were shining. “Haha, Linley, let’s not hesitate. The other commanders have already charged out!”

Linley personally witnessed one white badge and black badge fall after another. Some soldiers, with a single swipe, were able to acquire ten or twenty soldier badges. In this sort of wild slaughter, accumulating military rewards really was quite quick. But it was also dangerous and crazed.

“Let’s go!”

Linley’s group of four charged into the Stellar Corridor as well, merging into the crazed flood. Behind them was an endless stream of soldiers, as well as the various commanders who had charged in as well.

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 58, Linley's Power

The two corridors of the Stellar River. Rainbow light surged forth from them, filling the skies.

The soldiers belonging to the camp of the Divine Darkness Plane and the camp of the Divine Light Plane were now battling each other in savage earnest. If one stared into the skies, one would see how, at the two sides of the Stellar Corridors, one squad after another was flooding like dragons into the Stellar Corridors. The Stellar Corridor was a meat grinder. A meat grinder for Highgods!

In this wild battle, there was no way for a thousand men or more to move in unison. The only option was to use divine sense to organize, and make squads of a hundred soldiers act together.

Currently, Linley's group of four was there as well.

In the sea of tens of thousands of figures, Linley's group of four was very unremarkable, but some enemies still noticed them.

"Soul attacks! The target, those eleven who are thirty meters ahead of us!" The captain of this squad of a hundred soldiers gave the order through divine sense, and instantly, the eighty two remaining survivors of the squad collectively launched soul attacks. Those translucent soul attacks flew out like dozens of white knives towards the eleven people in Linley's area.

Reisgem just chuckled.

"They are looking for death!" Reisgem's forehead suddenly emanated a violet light.

The violet light suddenly rippled out, striking towards that hundred-man squad. However, there were simply too many people packed in too densely nearby, and so Reisgem's attack even affected two soldiers on their own side, as well as fifty three enemy soldiers. That was just half of an enemy squad; it was that hundred man squad.

From this, one could tell how tightly clustered the combatants were.

This single attack struck fifty five people, fifty three of whom immediately died and only two of whom survived.

Fifty three badges immediately fell.

"Badges!" Immediately, quite a few of the nearby soldiers began to fight over them, and in the blink of an eye, all of them were taken. Everywhere throughout the battlefield, badges were constantly falling, with the fall of each badge signifying a person's death.

"Not good. Quick, let's go." The captain was so frightened, his face changed, and he hurriedly led his squad to flee in another direction.

"Pretty powerful." Bebe laughed.

"Most of those weren't even at the Seven Star Fiend level. Of course killing them is utterly simplicity. The power of that attack of mine wasn't that great; it was just meant for a group assault." Reisgem said disdainfully. "Everyone, watch carefully. See who are the commanders! We can't just stand here. We will draw attention to us. Just now, that was a single hundred-man squad. After we attract attention, most likely it will be a group of hundred-man squads who will join forces against us."

Reisgem was very experienced. He knew that they couldn't stay in one place for long.

"Follow me." Linley said.

When Linley spoke, Reisgem, Bebe, and Reihom didn't argue at all, immediately following by Linley's side as they advanced.

Although the Stellar Corridor was filled with blood and savagery, Linley seemed to be strolling through a garden as he walked through it. Any squads that charged towards him suffered a powerful repulsive force that would push them aside.

"Reisgem, your Amethyst Space is really quite powerful." A nearby laugh rang out.

Linley's group turned to look. The speaker was Woodridge, who today was dressed in a long, dark golden robe. Woodridge clearly moved through the chaotic battle with ease. He glanced sideways at Linley. "Reisgem. Take care of your friends. This place is quite dangerous! A Seven Star Fiend will die, just like that."

After speaking, Woodridge turned into a blur and disappeared into the distance.

Woodridge moved through the chaotic battle like an agile fish in water.

"This Woodridge...what sort of vision does he have? He didn't even notice that it was you, Boss, who set up the Gravitational Space." Bebe snorted.

"Don't mind him." Linley stared to the front. "Up ahead is the center of the Stellar Corridor. This is the place where the battle is the most savage. I've found quite a few enemy commanders up ahead already. Let's go." Linley was as calm as ever. One's mental fortitude was linked to one's strength.

The weak would be nervous and edgy, advancing carefully. For example, those ordinary soldiers; they could die at any moment.

But for the strong, such as Woodbridge, they felt relaxed and at ease. As long as they were careful not to draw too much attention and wary of enemy commanders, and as long as they weren't attacked by massive groups, they would be fine.

And, for someone on Linley's level, it was as though he was going out for a walk.

"Linley, look up ahead!" Reisgem suddenly called out in surprise.

Linley turned his gaze over. Several kilometers away, he saw a blackrobed man actually attract a joint attack from more than a thousand soldiers from the Divine Light Realm's camp. The combined soul attack thundered down, and there were some who used their innate divine abilities as well. The combined attack of over a thousand figures rained down, and although the black-robed figure dodged quickly, he was still hit by over a hundred attacks.

The impact on him wasn't that great...but right afterwards, the thousand-plus soldiers launched a wave of material attacks.

"Rumble..." This group attack from more than a thousand Six Star Fiend level experts, along with some Seven Star Fiends, was like a tempest of annihilation as it swept towards the black-robed man. The black-robed man immediately transformed into dust, and some of the 'innocent' surrounding bystanders were reduced to ash as well.

A divine spark, a black necklace, an interspatial ring, and a blood-red badge fell down.

Linley, watching this from afar, secretly shook his head.

"This fellow Naboth [Na'bo'te] truly is unlucky." Reisgem snickered mentally towards Linley and the other two. "He definitely must have drawn the attention of the enemies, but Naboth himself didn't realize it. Given how many people are on the side of the Divine Light Plane, it was easy to muster ten squads of a hundred men to launch a joint attack against him. In just two strikes, one spiritual, the other material, he was annihilated! Although he had a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact, it was of no use."

Soul attacks and material attacks were all extremely fast.

Generally speaking, no matter how fast most commanders were, they were far from being as fast as a soul attack or a material attack. They would only be able to dodge one or two meters. Only Highgod Paragons, who were able to dodge several dozen meters in a single movement, and even cause space to twist and distort, were unafraid of group attacks.

"It's quite dangerous for commanders in the battle as well." Bebe said with a sigh.

Whether in the Netherworld or in the Infernal Realm, it was quite hard for a thousand Six Star Fiends to be summoned to one event and launch an attack. But here, in this battle, everyone was a Highgod, and so it was quite easy to link up a thousand soldiers to launch a joint attack. Thus... one couldn't be too impressive. If you attracted attention, you had to immediately flee!

"Forget about others." Linley's gaze was locked on someone in the distance. "I found an excellent target!"

"Oh?" Reisgem, Bebe, and Reihom looked over as well.

"Them!" Reisgem's eyes lit up, and a savage look flashed through them. "This time, we can't let them escape!"

"Kill them all!" Bebe stared furiously at them as well.

Roughly three kilometers away from them, three figures were chasing at high speed after a gray-robed figure. Two of them were familiar figures; one was a golden-robed 'Oman', while the other was a violet-robed 'Chegwin'. The person by their side was Ramson, who had joined with them.

Although Ramson was a commander who controlled a military camp, when the savage battle began, the hundred-man squads would move by themselves. There wasn't much point for their commander to stay with them. He had one of his subordinates take charge of the squads, while he himself went with his two friends to go hunt and kill enemy commanders. Oman's three-person team was very confident in their power.

"Haha, you want to run?" Ramsom flew over at high speed.

"Swish!" A golden light shot out from Ramson's finger, and space instantly tore apart as the light shot towards the fleeing gray-robed figure. "BANG!" The gray-robed figure's body instantly erupted with a black light, and he launched a vicious return punch against that golden light before continuing to flee.

But in the instant he had paused to strike back, Oman and Chegwin had surrounded him.

"You won't be able to escape!" Oman laughed loudly, his body blazing with a white aura as his spiked mace smashed down towards the gray-robed man.

"Clang!" The gray-robed man raised his arms together, smashing head on with his two arms against the spiked mace.

But immediately afterwards, the spikes atop the mace shot out towards the gray-robed man's skull. With a metallic clanging sound, they drove into the gray-robed man's face, but didn't strike a lethal blow.

"Bang!" A golden light then pierced through the gray-robed man's head.

Ramson stretched his hand out, and the golden light flew back to his hand. This was an ancient, unadorned spear which was covered with strange magical runes.

"Haha, getting badges here is too fast. This is the third." Ramson stretched his hand out and snatched the blood-red badge, while the nearby Oman said very confidently, "Ramson, who can stop the three of us united?"

"Oman, our old friend is coming." Chegwin sent mentally with a soft laugh.

Oman and Ramson instantly followed Chegwin's gaze, only to see four figures fly over, with Linley at the lead.

"That Linley didn't die?" Oman was shocked.

"Haha..." Oman's gaze turned savage. "It's good that he didn't die! The last two times, we weren't able to kill him. This time, I'll dispose of him!"

"Hand that Reihom fellow to me. Last time, I didn't kill him. This time, we should end it." Chegwin stared at the distant Reihom while sending mentally, "Ramson, you hurry up and leave. Go find Mr. Magnus. If you encounter Bebe, you will die. Of the four, Reisgem is the hardest to deal with. Ask Mr. Magnus to come; only he can deal with Reisgem."

"Alright." Ramson knew that Bebe was a Godeater Rat, and didn't try to push it.

But just as Ramson turned to leave!

"There is no need to run!" A cold voice instantly echoed in their minds.

Ramson, Oman, and Chegwin stared in astonishment up in front. Linley, who had been flying alongside Reisgem, Reihom, and Bebe, suddenly sped up dramatically. "Whoosh!" Like a gust of wind, he moved through the densely clustered groups of people in the Stellar Corridor like a blur. Linley had arrived before the three of them!

"This..." Oman and the other two were stunned.

Reisgem and the other two were still far away, but Linley had already arrived. Linley's speed was so terrifying...it was far beyond what they could endure.

Oman and the other two instantly thought back to what Hemmers had told them at the meeting. Hemmers was clearly referring to this expert of the Azure Dragon clan.

"Could it be him?" Oman's group of three didn't dare believe it, but at the same time, the three of them frantically used their supreme techniques!

"Rumble..."

Linley's fist swept out, and it was as though the universe was pressing down upon them. 108 rays of black light swept out and surrounded them, sucking them in as a terrifyingly strong compressive force instantly reduced the speed of these commanders a thousandfold. They could only watch as Linley's fist swept towards them, unable to block at all.

"BANG!" The fist smashed into Oman's head.

Oman's body trembled slightly. From the surface, it seemed as though he wasn't injured at all, but...the insides of his head had already been shaken into pulp. A gold badge fell out from his body, while at the same time, his soul-protecting Sovereign artifact fell out as well.

"Linley, stay your hand." A rebuking bark rang out in Linley's mind.

"Magnus?" Linley's lips curved upwards.

"Halt!" Magnus was frantic.

"Rumble..." Linley's fist ground down inexorably. In the instant after he killed Oman, he also swept his arm towards the nearby Chegwin and Ramson. These two, also bound by that terrifying compressive force, weren't able to resist at all.

Ramson's body immediately collapsed lifelessly, and a gold badge fell out from his body.

As for Chegwin, his body suddenly trembled and he retreated explosively, staring at Linley in amazement. "He...how can he be so strong?!" Just now, when he had suffered that compressive power, he had the feeling that he couldn't even resist. This caused Chegwin to feel tremendous terror.

"You live up to being someone reputed to have two protective Sovereign artifacts. Killing you really is tough." Linley glanced at the retreating Chegwin, then collected the two gold badges.

"Boss!" Only now did Bebe, Reisgem, and Reihom arrive.

"We have two badges." Linley turned and smiled towards Bebe.

"Boss, careful." Bebe suddenly warned mentally.

Linley turned, only to see a bewildering blur advance at high speed, so fast that it was on par with Linley's earlier movements. It was the infuriated Magnus! Magnus landed next to Ramson's body, cradling it in his arms, so furious that the muscles on his face were twitching.

Magnus didn't care that Oman had died.

But Ramson, that was his good friend! A true friend!

Magnus raised his head, staring coldly at Linley. In a low voice, he said, "Just now...I told you to stay your hand!"

Linley stared calmly back at Magnus. In a gentle voice, he responded, "If I want to kill someone...you are unable to stop me!"

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 59, The Duel Above the Stellar River

Those who became Paragons were all incomparable geniuses filled with tremendous willpower. They, who stood at the top, were accustomed to the respect and reverence of others. Even when they met a Sovereign, they didn't have to kneel; they only had to bow slightly. One could imagine how much lofty arrogance filled their hearts.

"If I want to kill someone...you are unable to stop me!"

Linley's calm words and the look in his eyes when he spoke caused Magnus, already infuriated by the death of his friend, to grow so angry that his eyes turned crimson.

Magnus released Ramson's corpse, slowly standing up and staring coldly at Linley.

Linley didn't fear him at all, looking back calmly at Magnus.

"Rumble..." Thunder began to echo unceasingly around them. The battle was continuing to progress, and the soldiers of the Divine Darkness Plane and Divine Light Plane were butchering each other in methodical fashion. Blood splattered everywhere, and Highgod sparks rained everywhere as one badge after another was seized by survivors. This was how wild and savage the Stellar Corridor was.

But amidst this savagery, Linley and Magnus stood there, staring at each other, not moving at all.

It seemed as though the battles of thousands of soldiers around them, to them, was nothing more than the air.

"The target is that unmoving, white-robed figure. Soul attack!" A hundred-man squad clearly noticed Magnus, and as the captain gave the order through divine sense, instantly, the seventy five survivors of the squad instantly emitted all sorts of translucent attacks, instantly shooting them towards Magnus!

Magnus, who had been staring angrily at Linley, couldn't help but turn to look back.

"Hmph!" Magnus let out a low snort, his gaze turning cold.

Magnus' cold gaze swept out like a blurry sword light, creating more than a hundred white 'arrows' which shot out. "Swoosh!" "Swoosh!" They instantly crossed the skies, striking against those soul attacks. While destroying the soul attacks, the translucent arrows didn't slow down at all as they dove into the bodies of the members of that hundred-man squad, whose eyes became filled with terror.

And then, silence.

Seventy five corpses fell from the skies, their divine sparks and badges falling as well.

A single glance had killed seventy five Highgods!

"How is that possible?" Some soldiers noticed this, and they were so terrified their faces changed. But...the battle at the Stellar Corridor was simply too chaotic. Only a few dozen people noticed Magnus display his might, with the rest not noticing at all. After all, people were dying constantly throughout the corridor. No one would notice if seventy five people suddenly died at once.

"Boss." Bebe and the others were rather worried as well.

"Don't worry. You all step back for now." Linley sent mentally. "Against Magnus, although I'm not completely certain of victory, I definitely won't lose!"

"Linley, this Magnus is a Paragon, after all. Don't be careless. In addition, he, too, has Sovereign artifacts." Reisgem sent mentally. As he spoke, he, Bebe, and Reihom all retreated, because they also knew...that once Linley and Magnus began to fight, the scene would be completely different from the one where Linley and Bluefire sparred.

When two Paragon experts battled each other, the slightest backlash from their attacks could threaten the lives of ordinary commanders.

At present, Linley and Magnus paid no attention to any others. It was as though this entire world only contained the two of them!

Magnus stared at Linley. In a low voice, he said, "You actually didn't die!"

"What, do you regret it?" Linley smiled calmly, a hint of mockery in his smile.

"I don't regret it." Magnus had already regained his clarity of mind. "Because I know that although you didn't die last time, this time, you will."

"You are quite confident." Linley looked at Magnus, speaking as he would to an equal. "But last time, you were also quite confident that after I suffered your most powerful attack, I would definitely die. But the real result? Last time, I destroyed your confidence. This time...I'll break it again!"

Magnus' face grew sinister.

"Haha..." Magnus suddenly began to laugh coldly. "Anyone can engage in braggadocio! Today, I will let you know the difference between you and a Paragon." Magnus didn't actually believe that Linley had become a Paragon, because last time, when he had sparred with Linley, he could tell...that Linley was still quite far off from the Paragon level.

Ordinary commanders, in front of a Paragon, would definitely perish.

"Bang!" While laughing, Magnus began to move. His speed instantly rose to the limit, and he moved like a dreamlike blur, throwing himself towards Linley. At the same time, Magnus' right hand, covered by a black glove, transformed into a claw, and he clawed at Linley's head. "Hiss... crackle..." Multiple holes in space constantly exploded forth.

When the claw struck out, it was as though space had become very weak.

"You think too highly of yourself!" An explosive roar echoed forth in the Stellar Corridor.

"BANG!"

A black sword light flashed out, piercing directly into Magnus' palm. The universe seemed to tremble, while Magnus himself was unable to prevent himself from being knocked backwards. In the space where the exchange of blows had taken place, multiple black, gaping spatial chasms had appeared, and the terrifying spatial chasms were like monsters, devouring dozens of nearby soldiers before vanishing.

"A spatial rift? How could a spatial rift be so large?" The formerly savage soldiers, especially the ones around Linley and Magnus, finally understood that two supreme experts were present.

But that was of no use to them. After all, the soldiers behind them on both the sides of the Divine Darkness Plane and the Divine Light plane continued to push forward, throwing themselves against their enemies in battle!

"You...you..." Magnus stared in amazement at Linley. "You became a Paragon?"

"You truly think too highly of yourself!" Linley couldn't help but chuckle.

Given Linley's control over the world, he could clearly sense that Magnus, just now, hadn't used Sovereign power when attacking! A Paragon, even one who didn't use Sovereign power, was generally able to easily slaughter a commander. But...to act in such a way against Linley was indeed a bit too arrogant.

"You truly have become a Paragon?" Magnus didn't dare believe it...but the power which Linley had just displayed was real.

"I need to thank you for that full-force attack you launched back then." Linley let out a soft laugh. "If you hadn't wanted to kill me, causing me to fall into a life-and-death situation, I probably wouldn't have made such a large advance." Linley didn't admit that he had become a Paragon, but upon hearing Linley's words, Magnus took it for admission.

"No wonder you are so arrogant. So you have become a Paragon." Magnus' face sank. "But Linley, even though you are a Paragon, I, Magnus, will teach you today...that you aren't qualified to kill my friends!"

When his words were spoken, Magnus moved once more.

"Rumble..."

In the blink of an eye, Linley saw a black fist cover his entire field of vision, and a powerful blast of Fate-type Sovereign power. It seemed as though the entire surrounding space was compressing him, and this punch seemed to contain enough power to destroy the world. It was unstoppable!

"Not using soul attacks, but a material attack?" Linley didn't hesitate at all, immediately launching a backhanded sword stab with full strength.

“Raaaaaaaargh...” 108 rays of black light shot out like dragons from Mirage, swallowing Magnus within them. In that instant, Magnus felt as though he heard the roar of a dragon, and then felt a powerful, oppressive compression. This compressive force caused even his attacks to be affected.

The sword of Linley. The fist of Magnus!

They collided!

“Thud...” It was a deep sound, like a drum being struck.

Space instantly shattered. Hundreds of spatial rifts appeared, and that Sovereign power, infused with the power of Will, washed out in every direction. This burst of energy was infused with the power of Will, and like sharp arrows, it instantly pierced through the bodies of each of the surrounding soldiers.

A hundred soldiers who were fairly close to Linley and Magnus were doomed. Their bodies instantly transformed into dust! As for some of the soldiers behind them, they were either pierced through the chest or the legs. Some unlucky ones were pierced through the head. Unfortunately, the energy rays were simply too vicious and too dense.

In the blink of an eye, within a circumference of a hundred meters, hundreds of corpses fell from the skies.

“What...what is this?” The formerly savagely battling soldiers here were completely stunned. They couldn't help but lower their weapons, turning to stare and see what exactly had caused so many people to die simultaneously. There were no living people in the area where Linley and Magnus were battling.

In the Stellar Corridor, this was a rare, empty area. This caused the soldiers to instantly notice the two people battling energetically within.

"Bang!" "Bang!"

Two exceedingly, unspeakably fast blurs collided time and time again, and space repeatedly shattered as spatial tears were created. The backlash from the Sovereign power they used caused quite a few soldiers to die in succession.

"Retreat, quick, retreat!" The terrified soldiers couldn't help but all retreat frantically, pulling far away from Linley and Magnus.

"What terrifying speed!" The soldiers felt their hearts tremble. "Can it be that they are..."

These soldiers could be considered experts in the Infernal Realm or the Netherworld, and they were all highly experienced. But the incredible effects generated by Linley and Magnus' blows still caused them to feel terrified. Even the remnant energy could effortlessly kill Six Star Fiends and Seven Star Fiends? What sort of power was this?

The space of the Planar Battlefield...actually had more than a hundred giant spatial rifts torn open? What level of attacks were being used?

Stupefied. Scared silly!

There were two corridors in the Stellar River, and the two corridors engaged in battle simultaneously. The goal was to defeat the opponents and to reach the opposite shore; that was a sign of victory. If victory was gained in both corridors, one side of the Planar War would be considered victorious. If victory was gained in one corridor but lost in the other, it was a draw.

But right now, battle between Linley and Magnus caused simply too much chaos.

They occasionally rose into the skies, and then they would descend, moving at frightful speeds.

Nobody dared to go within a thousand meters of them!

And so, at the center of one of the two Stellar Corridors, an empty field naturally was formed. This forced a halt to the battle on this Stellar Corridor, as quite a few soldiers and commanders focused on the duel of peak experts here.

"Them? Magnus...and that friend of Reisgem's?" The three-eyed commander's face changed.

Quite a few commanders had noticed the distant disturbance.

"How is that possible? It's that person called Linley?" Woodridge also stared, stunned, at the terrifying scene of the distant battle between Linley and Magnus. "Magnus and Linley, they are fighting to a standstill?" Watching the world-shattering battle going on in the distance, Woodridge didn't dare believe that the Linley whom he had looked down upon was actually able to fight a Paragon to a standstill. Shaking his head vigorously, Woodridge still didn't dare believe what he was seeing.

"Linley?"

Although those people on the side of the Divine Darkness Plane had never paid Linley any attention, most of them knew Linley's name. Now that they saw that it was Linley who was causing this huge disturbance, they couldn't help but feel shocked.

"This Linley is too terrifying."

Chegwinn, the only one who had survived in his squad which fought for the Divine Light Plane, still felt terror in his heart.

"Who is this?" Quite a few commanders on the side of the Divine Light Plane didn't recognize Linley.

"Haha...I told you all long ago that he is very powerful, possibly a Paragon." Hemmers stared at the distant battle. He couldn't help but start to laugh loudly. "None of you believed me! Haha...do you see it? Do you see it?!"

Of the two Stellar Corridors, the battle on one of them had been forced to grind to a halt.

“Quick, hurry up and change directions. Move to support the other corridor! Seize the opportunity to first achieve victory in the other corridor!” Some commanders reacted more quickly; knowing that the battle at this corridor was halted, they immediately arranged for their forces to go assist the other corridor instead. They’d first gain victory in that corridor, then talk.

Linley and Magnus continued to battle in the center of the Stellar River. As they continued, the nearby soldiers of both sides who had disposed of their opponents all temporarily paused their battling.

No one dared to approach Linley or Magnus.

Sovereign power infused with the power of Will...when it washed out, even commanders wouldn’t dare to easily approach it. Who, then, would?

For a time, countless soldiers and many commanders watched this terrifying battle in amazement. For many of them, only today did they understand how terrifying Paragons were!

“WHAP!”

The commanders and soldiers only saw blurred figures move. One of the two rose into the heavens, while the other stood there on the ground; the two split apart. Magnus hovered there, high up in the air, a hint of blood at the corner of his lips. Almost immediately, however, he recovered.

And on the ground stood an expert whose entire body was covered with azure-golden scales, and who had spikes emerging from his back – Linley! Linley's dark golden eyes stared upwards. "Magnus...you, a Paragon of Fate, want to compete against me in material attacks? You aren't quite up to it!"

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 60, The Most Powerful Technique!

The countless soldiers on the Stellar Corridor, along with some of the commanders, were stunned as they watched this battle.

Human wave attacks might be useful against ordinary commanders, but against Paragons...it was useless. The Paragons battled there, in the center of the corridor, and the surrounding soldiers had no choice but to stop fighting and not even dare draw within a thousand meters.

“The Sovereign power doesn’t match up.” Linley shook his head. Just now, although they had only battled briefly, Linley hadn’t Dragonformed at the beginning. But the non-transformed Linley was actually at a disadvantage when fighting Magnus! Magnus used Fate-type Sovereign’s Might which was very effective, while Linley was only able to use Destruction-type Sovereign’s Might.

He was weaker in this aspect, and so even though he used his supreme technique of spatial binding, he was still at a disadvantage.

Linley was forced to Dragonform!

Upon Dragonforming, Linley’s attack power instantly jumped, allowing him to actually press down against his foe using material attacks.

“Last time, when I sparred with Leylin, I didn’t Dragonform. After Dragonforming, things are exactly as I thought they would be.”

The power of Will was very special.

As long as Linley applied his Will, his power would increase dramatically. The defensiveness of his draconic scales and his attacks all increased; the power of his Will had the power to transform something rotting into something magical. Paragons didn't need Sovereign artifacts to easily defeat commanders who had Sovereign artifacts.

"To kill a Paragon truly is hard." Linley raised his head, looking up at Magnus.

Magnus didn't have a defensive Sovereign artifact, but the protective barrier formed from pure Sovereign power, when infused with his Paragon's Will, made it so that Linley's draconic tail, fists, and legs were unable to injure him heavily.

Paragons had no weaknesses. This wasn't just talk!

Defenses and attacks; they were exceedingly strong in all aspects, even without Sovereign artifacts!

"Swoosh!" Linley's body moved like a blur, rising to the skies until he stood level with Magnus. The two stared at each other.

The two mighty experts hovered there in the air.

"Members of the Azure Dragon clan, after Dragonforming, truly do increase in power greatly!" Magnus laughed clearly. "However, don't be smug. That was just the beginning!" After speaking, Magnus seemed to transformed into the sun, emitting blurry rays of light in every direction as a powerful aura began to spread out.

As for the midair Linley, his draconic tail swayed behind him slightly as he stared at his opponent, not nervous at all.

Magnus stretched his hands out, and instantly, around him appeared a man-sized globe of light. This enormous globe of light contained within it a brilliant, crystalline lotus flower. Above the lotus flower, there even seemed to be some mist swirling. The Stellar Corridor glowed with rainbow light which shot upwards, making it seem all the more beautiful.

"You really are going all out!" Linley let out a chuckle.

Last time, Magnus had used this same attack and had nearly killed Linley, but Linley had not only escaped from death, he had also transformed. Still, that time, the light globe was only fist-sized, while this time, it was man-sized! Actually, it was the exact same technique as last time; only, there was a huge difference in how much spiritual energy was being used up!

Actually...this man-sized light globe could be treated as hundreds of the fist-sized light globes!

"Hmph!"

Magnus' gaze grew cold, and the enormous light globe hovering in front of his chest suddenly shot towards Linley.

"Haha..." Linley just laughed loudly. His body seemed to transform into a human-shaped porcupine, as from within shot out a translucent sword ripple. Instantly, countless sword ripples shot out which simultaneously struck against that two-meter tall globe of light.

One advanced, the other marched forward. The countless sword ripples charged against the light globe.

"Bang!" The surface of the light globe cracked, revealing that blooming, translucent lotus flower. For a moment, the lotus flower seemed to be a sculpture of ice.

The countless translucent sword ripples shot towards the translucent lotus flower!

"Swish!" The enormous lotus flower continued to shoot towards Linley while constantly swiveling, using up one sword ripple after another, but at the same time...the lotus flower was being used up, and it was physically shrinking.

"Hrm?" Magnus' face changed. "What a powerful soul attack!"

Linley's Voidwave Sword ripples caused Magnus to be astonished.

In a short period of time, the lotus flower actually shrank dramatically.

Actually, it wasn't strange. Even after having fused four types of profound mysteries of the Laws of the Earth, Linley's understanding regarding profound mysteries which impacted soul attacks was still much weaker than this attack of Magnus'. Only, Linley's spiritual energy was ten times greater than even when he used Sovereign power, and the power of his Will was also nearly ten times greater than Paragons. These two aspects made it so that Linley's soul attack wasn't much weaker than Magnus'.

"Hmph." Magnus willed it, and instantly, the dramatically shrinking lotus flower began to swivel. One flower petal after another separated, transforming into more than ten lines that shot towards Linley. Linley's Voidwave Sword ripples were only able to block part of them; the rest of the lotus petals still shot into Linley's body.

"Magnus, this supreme attack of yours is only as strong as this?" Linley looked at Magnus.

"How can it be like this?" Magnus was secretly shocked. "Even if Linley was able to endure it, it shouldn't be as though nothing had happened to him."

Indeed, Linley didn't care at all, because his soul-protecting Sovereign artifact, the 'Coiling Dragon ring', had more than two hundred years ago been completely repaired! Ever since his soul mutation, Linley had been using spiritual energy to repair it at an astonishing rate, and less than ten years after his soul mutation, the Coiling Dragon ring had been completely repaired.

With a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact, would he fear a small attack like this?

"Haha, Magnus, so that's all you are capable of." Linley laughed clearly, and his laughter echoed in the air above the Stellar River. "Then it is my turn!"

As the sound echoed in the air, Linley himself wielded Mirage as he charged towards Magnus. In addition, a large number of Voidwave Swords shot out from Linley's body, shooting towards Magnus.

"Don't boast. What can you do to me?" Magnus didn't want to appear weak, and so his laughter echoed forth as well.

It must be understood that there were simply too many spectators to this battle. They were commanders and soldiers who came from each of the Divine Planes and Higher Realms. If he lost, then this news would quickly spread across all of the multiverse. If he appeared weak now, where would he, Magnus, be able to hide his face?

"Whoosh!" Linley's draconic tail unpredictably lashed out.

"Can't let him draw close!" Magnus retreated explosively.

As soon as Linley drew near, he would be able to attack from all angles. Even the spikes on his elbows, his draconic tail, and other parts were capable of threatening Magnus.

Although this was slow to describe, in reality, it happened as fast as a spark erupting from a flint. The two supreme experts amongst Deities exchanged multiple blows against each other, clashing multiple times, and each time causing the heavens to shatter and split apart. Even their soul attacks...caused the surrounding soldiers and commanders to be vigilant. Perhaps a single Voidwave Sword ripple of Linley's might hit them, or a single petal of Magnus' lotus flowers; they were more than enough to kill them.

Battle was completely halted here in this Stellar Corridor, but the battle on the other side had reached a crescendo in savagery.

"Enemies straight ahead. Launch a joint material attack!"

One hundred-man squad after another launched one joint attack after another. Countless soldiers fell and perished, as though a new epoch had crushed down upon them. Many commander badges fell. Clearly, the Divine Darkness Plane's side's forces held the advantage in numbers, and were currently pressing forth to victory.

Ten hundred-man squads launched a material attack!

And then, they retreated, with ten more hundred-man squads moving forward, launching a blast of soul attacks!

The soldiers of the Divine Light Plane had been charging forward, but this sequence of arrayed attacks from the forces of Darkness had completely suppressed their spirits.

Once a complete advantage was established, a very simple battle would result.

From the initial stalemate, to a retreat, to total collapse...

Faced with this massive advance and the repeated joint attacks, the forces of the Light alliance were finally, completely dispersed. Although some of them were courageous, it wasn't worth it for them to throw away their lives for nothing.

"Haha, we won!" The commanders of the military camps, watching this, laughed loudly.

"This time, our Darkness alliance had a slight advantage in numbers to begin with. In addition, on the other side, those two battling Paragons caused the battle to come to a halt, so I immediately arranged for those soldiers to move here. When they all charged together, given our absolute advantage in numbers, we were able to crush them in one blow. Once the enemies were broken apart, even if some more support came, it was too late.

Soon, the soldiers of the Darkness alliance in this corridor reached the other side, while the survivors of the Light alliance completely retreated.

"Rumble..." The rainbow aura emanating from this Stellar Corridor which rose to the heavens suddenly retracted, then vanished.

The Darkness alliance had won a victory.

"Haha...victory! Victory!" Cries of jubilation. The many soldiers of the Darkness alliance cried out in joy.

"We won!" These military commanders in charge of the battle were also rather excited.

"Let's go. Let's hurry to the other corridor and keep battling. Perhaps we might make it in time to watch the two Paragons fighting." The commanders immediately ordered their forces to quickly flood towards the other corridor.

Countless soldiers were watching the battle going on at Linley's corridor.

"By the looks of it, they are at a standstill. Paragon against Paragon; it's hard for one to win and the other to lose." The watchers couldn't help but have this feeling.

Suddenly...

"Bang!" A powerful explosion ripped out between the two combatants, who quickly separated.

Magnus stood there on the ground, staring at the distant Linley. He said in a clear voice, "Linley, if the two of us keep fighting, we will just be wasting time! Pardon me for not accompanying you in continuing this!" Magnus let out a cold snort, then turned and flew away. Although Magnus had a belly full of anger, he clearly wasn't able to kill Linley. He also believed that Linley wouldn't be able to kill him!

Although he was angry and filled with hatred, Magnus had to admit that Linley was already an expert on his level.

“Wasting time? I don’t feel that way!” Linley’s voice rang out. “Or, are you afraid?”

“Mm?” Magnus, embarrassed and angered, turned his head to stare furiously at Linley.

He was angry at Linley for not understanding the rules; since there could be no result to this battle, they should’ve ended it. But Linley actually used words to keep him here. If he were to leave today, it would mean that he was afraid!

Cold wind blew through the Planar Battlefield. Linley stood there, ramrod straight, his draconic tail swaying.

“You know that I am of the Azure Dragon clan! Then prepare to receive... the innate divine ability of my Azure Dragon clan!” Linley said in a bold, clear voice. As soon as his words fell, behind Linley’s body appeared an enormous, coiling Azure Dragon Phantom which was more than ten thousand meters long. The Azure Dragon’s golden eyes stared at Magnus.

Innate divine ability – Dragon Roar!

“Rumble...” A unique energy ripple instantly spread out!

The power of the innate divine ability was linked to spiritual energy as well as the innate azure glow. Now that Linley’s spiritual energy was more than ten times as powerful as when he used Sovereign power, and when combined with a Will that was even mightier than that of a Paragon’s...

the power of this innate divine ability of Linley's could most likely only be surpassed by his ancestor, the Azure Dragon himself!

"Swoosh!" Linley's speed reached an extreme level as he charged towards Magnus.

"Eh?" Magnus' face changed. He felt as though the flow of time around him had already changed!

He was powerful, but Linley, who used this technique, had a level of spiritual energy and Will that was stronger than him. The effect of his 'Dragon Roar' was now on display!

The flow of time changed, but that didn't mean he was no longer capable of thought.

Magnus still knew that he had to defend himself. He knew that he wouldn't be able to block in time, so all he could do was...work hard to control his Sovereign power to form a powerful defense!

"Bang!" Linley's 'Mirage' stabbed against Magnus' head at full force.

"Crackle..." Linley felt a terrifyingly strong blocking force. Although Mirage was just able to break through the skin, it remained impacted by that powerful blocking force. Paragons, even without Sovereign artifacts...still had no flaws. This was not just an empty boast! Magnus, however, was knocked flying backwards by the blow.

"If I can't kill you, then I will drive you into chaotic space!"

Linley's gaze turned cold.

"Bang!" Linley's right leg slashed through the skies, landing on Magnus' stomach.

He was moving as fast as lightning, and his kick sent Magnus flying upwards like a meteor towards the boundary between the Stellar Corridor and chaotic space. "No!" Magnus finally recovered from the temporal displacement, but it was too late. He only had enough time for a final, furious howl before he was completely enveloped by rainbow colored chaotic space.

It was as though he had been swallowed by the 'water'. Magnus thusly disappeared within chaotic space!

Silence!

Stillness!

The spectators watching this were all stunned. A Paragon...had been driven away like that?

Linley glanced at the multicolored chaotic space, then turned and walked towards Bebe, returning to human form. Bebe stared at Linley, stunned as well. Linley smiled. "Bebe, let's go."

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 61, Gathering Point

The rainbow light above the Stellar River glowed as beautifully as ever, but everyone was silent. They were speechless. As for Linley, he simply walked calmly towards the Darkness alliance's side, under the gaze of countless experts.

A Paragon...had just been driven into chaotic space!

"He drove a Paragon into chaotic space. He's of the Azure Dragon clan. His name is Linley!" The surrounding soldiers and commanders all firmly memorized this scene. The words Linley had exchanged with Magnus had resulted in Linley's name being revealed. Naturally, these surrounding people all knew it now.

Suddenly...

"Quick, material attacks!" One of the captains belonging to the Darkness alliance suddenly came to his senses, and he hurriedly spoke through divine sense to his allies.

"Crackle..." Nearly a hundred rays of brilliant light shot forth from the side of the Darkness alliance, thundering towards the enemy.

"Material attacks, forward!" At almost the same instant, the soldiers on both sides came to their senses. Only now did the soldiers of the Darkness alliance and the Light alliance awaken from the stupor having watched the astonishing battle between two Paragons, and they immediately began to battle again! The countless soldiers of the two sides flooded forward and clashed against each other.

Linley, Bebe, and the other two just stood there amidst the human flood.

There was no longer anyone foolish enough to launch attacks against Linley.

"Boss!" Bebe looked at Linley, incomparably excited. "That was Magnus! Boss, just now, the person you drove into chaotic space was MAGNUS. Someone on the same level as Bayer! Too powerful, haha, too powerful!" Bebe delightedly beamed, his smile so large that his eyes became half-lidded.

Reisgem and Reihom's faces were covered in smiles as well.

"Reisgem, you should be lacking some military merits, right? Do you need me to help you?" Linley turned his head, looking at Reisgem.

"No need." Reisgem intentionally let out a snort. "Linley, although I'm a bit weaker compared to you, acquiring enough military merits isn't too difficult for me. I already acquired a certain number during the previous Planar Wars, and this time, I only need a few more. Reihom, let's go." Reisgem and Reihom flew out into the flood of people as well.

People were everywhere, filling the corridor as they constantly slaughtered each other.

Linley and Bebe were amongst them, but they just watched the distant

Reisgem and Reihom. Linley nodded slightly. "Bebe, let's go. Given Reihom and Reisgem's strength, unless they encounter a Paragon or an assault by multiple commanders, they won't be in any danger. Let's go to the shores of the Stellar River to watch."

"Alright. Let's go to the shore." Bebe chortled and nodded.

Everyone was charging towards the enemy shores...but Linley and Bebe actually turned.

"Linley!"

The commanders of the Darkness plane stared at Linley from afar, sighing mentally. They regretted not having made good use of the earlier gathering to chat with Linley. There were very few opportunities to establish a relationship with a Paragon, and it was very hard to do so.

"Prior to this, Mr. Linley was hiding his status, and so it would have been easy to make friends with him. But now...he's revealed his power. There will definitely be many who want to befriend him. The difficulty level will be much greater." The commanders all understood this principle, and it was indeed the case; if earlier, during the gathering, they had come over and acted in a friendly manner towards Linley, Linley would indeed have been kindly disposed towards them.

But now...

Given that he had revealed his power, those who now came to befriend him clearly did so in order to ingratiate themselves with him. Linley wouldn't even want to bother with them.

The Darkness alliance had already gained victory earlier in the other corridor. Given that Linley had defeated Magnus, the Darkness alliance's morale was at an all-time high!

Morale was an invisible, illusory thing.

But it was also true that whichever side in the corridor had the bravest, fearless, and more numerous soldiers would be the side to win. When Linley and Magnus had battled, they very naturally became viewed as representatives of the Darkness alliance and the Light alliance. The forces of each side were naturally cheering for their experts.

Linley had won. Magnus had lost!

The impact of this on the Light alliance soldiers was quite large, and the impact on their commanders was quite large as well. This was because in their heart, they couldn't help but constantly reflect on the fact that the enemy had a Paragon in their ranks. Those commanders simply didn't dare to go all out and charge forward with abandon, for fear that Linley might intervene to act against them. These commanders had no confidence at all in their ability to deal with Linley.

Given their depressed morale, and how the commanders didn't dare to lead the way, the soldiers of the Light alliance were being repeatedly driven back!

"Haha, kill. Kill!"

The commanders of the Darkness alliance, upon seeing this, were absolutely delighted.

As the soldiers of the Darkness alliance roared heroically, under the leadership of their commanders, they inexorably ground forward like the wheels on a chariot, constantly advancing and attacking. The greater the advantage they held, the easier the battle became. The morale of the Darkness alliance had risen to a crescendo!

By the banks of the Stellar River. Linley and Bebe were watching the battle atop the Stellar Corridor.

"Boss. Our side will win for sure." Bebe said, very confident.

Linley watched the slaughter within the corridor, then nodded. "That's how the battles in the Stellar Corridors are. Once one side begins to cower and retreat, even if there are fresh troops ready to support them from behind, it is useless. Once the front lines collapse, the rear will be affected as well. They've definitely lost!" As soon as Linley's words came out, the rainbow radiance emanating from the Stellar Corridor suddenly faded away.

The Darkness alliance had gained victory!

They were victorious in both corridors, and so for this Planar War, the side of the Divine Darkness Plane was the victor.

The soldiers of the Darkness alliance all began to turn and depart en masse.

"Second Brother, the Boss died. Alas. Still, we weren't too misfortunate; things were much better than we had anticipated. The two of us are both still alive!" Two soldiers flew shoulder-to-shoulder, laughing loudly.

"We three brothers have finally adventured through the Planar Battlefield, and have had the chance to witness so many commanders do battle. We even saw two Paragons fight. I regret nothing. To be able to leave this place alive is an unexpected plus. Haha...right. I even acquired seventy six soldier badges. You?"

"I have fifty as well. When the two of us add them together, we will have enough to swap for a drop of Sovereign's Might."

"Haha, yet another gain."

The surviving soldiers were all very happy, chatting and laughing amongst themselves. Those soldiers who dared come here to the Planar Battlefield had all been living for countless years; they wanted to see for themselves the Planar Battlefield and perhaps watch a group of commanders battle amongst themselves. They felt no regrets. For them to survive it? It was an unexpected, pleasant surprise.

"Boss." Bebe suddenly said.

"Hm?" Linley looked towards him, and Bebe continued, "Boss, if you were a Six Star Fiend who had trained for countless years without making any progress, would you have made the same choice as them?"

"Trained for countless years with no progress?"

Linley was stunned.

If he truly was unable to make any further progress, and had to live a long, endless life...when he grew tired of everything, perhaps he truly would choose to give up his divine clone and enter the legendary Planar Battlefield to experience it personally.

"I would make the same choice." Linley said in a low voice. "If I cannot reach the peak, then I must at least see for myself the place where peak experts gather; the 'Planar Battlefield.'"

Anyone who had the heart of an expert would be filled with eagerness towards the battlefield of the supreme experts, the 'Planar Battlefield'.

"Haha, Linley!" A joyful call rang out.

Linley and Bebe turned, only to see Reisgem and Reihom fly over at high speed. Linley laughed and said, "Reisgem, from that look on your face, you acquired enough military merits, yes?"

"Naturally!" Reisgem raised his eyebrows, saying smugly, "But it really was dangerous. The Light alliance was defeated too quickly, resulting in the commanders of the Light alliance fleeing quite quickly as well. If Reihom and I hadn't joined forces and moved fast enough, we probably wouldn't have been able to gain enough badges."

"Linley, look. Quite a few people are paying attention to you." Reisgem said in a lowered voice.

Linley turned his head to look.

Many amongst the thronging masses of returning soldiers were looking towards Linley.

"That one dressed in the sky-blue robes is Linley. Him, over there!"

"He defeated a Paragon?"

"I personally witnessed it. How could it be false? That was so motherfucking incredible. In my lifetime, I've seen all sorts of experts fighting. I've even seen two Paragons exchanging blows. This was worth it."

"Linley is too powerful...after this battle, I am going to return to my material plane. The treasures that I've accumulated over all these years are worth enough to teleport me back. It's time to go back to my homeland. Haha, from the material plane to the Netherworld, and then countless years adventuring in the Netherworld...I've seen many things. It is enough for me. It is time to go home. I wonder what has happened to my homeland in the countless years since I've been gone."

Every single soldier had their own thoughts, their own plans.

Actually, every single person capable of participating in the Planar Wars was an expert. After all, generally only experts at or above the Six Star

Fiend level would be chosen as soldiers. But of course, as long as it was approved by a commander, even Five Star Fiend level experts could enter. These soldiers...all had their own dreams. Many of them had come to the Planar Battlefield in pursuit of their dreams.

Earlier, only a portion of the soldiers had witnessed Linley battle Magnus. The news of that battle now spread orally at high speed, and quite a few soldiers turned to look at Linley, wanting to take a look at this Paragon. It wasn't just the soldiers who were paying attention to Linley; even the commanders were staring at Linley from far away.

"He...is actually a Paragon." Woodbridge stared at the distant Linley, not daring to draw near. "If Linley remembers and hates me and kills me when he sees me, that would be terrible." Woodbridge hurriedly made his way towards the planar gateway along with the rest of the army.

There were some who made haste towards the planar gateway, but also some who wanted to make friends with Linley.

"Mr. Linley, during our last meeting, I had no idea that you were this capable."

"Mr. Linley..."

Some commanders walked over, all of them appearing quite friendly.

Linley just said a few polite words, then said towards Reisgem, "Reisgem, Bebe and I are going to the Netherworld. Let's part ways here." The Planar Battlefield was connected to eleven planes, and so there were eleven corridors, each of which led to a different location. Linley and Bebe were going to return to the Netherworld, while Reisgem was returning to the Infernal Realm.

"You are returning to the Netherworld?" Reisgem was stunned.

"Right. We still have something to take care of." Bebe nodded and laughed as well. "Reisgem, after we return to the Infernal Realm, when we have some free time, we'll pay a visit to your Amethyst Mountains and have a stroll."

"Fine, then." Reisgem said with resignation. "Then let's part ways here. When we return to the Infernal Realm, we'll meet again."

Linley, Bebe, Reisgem, and Reihom went their separate ways. Linley just said a few more words of courtesy to the other commanders, then flew with Bebe at high speed towards the Netherworld corridor. Those other commanders could only watch from afar as Linley flew away, not daring to continue bothering him.

The corridor linking the Planar Battlefield and the Netherworld. Linley and Bebe descended from the skies, instantly drawing quite a bit of attention.

"Hm?" As Linley landed, he saw a black-robed figure fly towards him.

"Boss, another one who wants to make friends with you." Bebe sent mentally.

Linley felt rather repulsed by all this; he recognized this black-robed figure, who was indeed a commander. The black-robed figure had a rather pale face, and his eyes glowed with a faint, oily green light. Upon seeing Linley, the black-robed figure bowed slightly, then sent mentally, "Mr. Linley, on behalf of my master, the Flameforge Sovereign of the Netherworld...I would like to invite you to consider becoming the Emissary of my master."

"Netherworld. Flameforge Sovereign?" Linley couldn't help but chuckle.

After revealing his power, he would soon receive invitations from various Sovereigns; Linley was prepared for this. But he hadn't expected... that he would be invited even before he left the Planar Battlefield. Sovereigns truly did work quite quickly.

"Mr. Linley, as a Paragon, I'm sure that the Sovereign will agree to provide you with any sort of Sovereign artifact you desire. But of course, there is a one artifact limit. As for Sovereign power...we won't be stingy with it." The black-robed figure urged.

"Pardon me. At present, I haven't considered becoming a Sovereign's Emissary." Linley smiled.

"Bebe, let's go." Linley immediately led Bebe to move towards the corridor.

"Mr. Linley..." The black-robed figure wanted to say a few more words of persuasion.

But Linley and Bebe didn't slow down at all. They flew directly into the corridor, disappearing from the black-robed figure's field of vision.

Seeing this, the black-robed figure couldn't help but shake his head. "After he leaves the Planar Battlefield, there will definitely be many Sovereigns who will invite him. My master probably has no hope of succeeding." There were differences between Sovereigns as well. For someone at the Paragon level, it was indeed up to them who they wanted to serve as an Emissary for.

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 62, Who Is Alive, Who Is Dead?

The planar corridor was filled with countless people, and the walls of the corridor flowed with rainbow-colored light.

Linley and Bebe were amidst the crowds, flying towards the exit.

“Almost there!” Linley felt his heart trembling.

“Dixie. Boss Yale. George...and, and my father!” Although he had reached the peak of power, Linley was currently extremely nervous. “I hope they are still alive!” The constant slaughter going on amongst the undead, and the fact that his father had died close to three thousand years ago, meant that the chance his father had truly died was very high.

Linley turned to look at Bebe, who clearly was rather nervous as well.

“Bebe, it’s fine. Everyone will be alive and well.” Linley sent.

“Right.” Bebe hurriedly nodded. As they chatted, they saw that up ahead, a gateway that was completely filled with a black, netherworldly light had appeared.

They advanced into it alongside the crowds of people. Bebe and Linley entered the gateway, arriving at a vast, wide hall.

Flamebone Mountain. At the dimensional gate.

When Linley had come from here to the Planar Battlefield, there had been very few people here, but now, the entire hall was filled with people. A shouting voice could be heard. "Everyone, come here to turn in your badges and have your military merits recorded! Soldiers, all of you, line up and go over there! Commanders, come to me!"

Linley and Bebe turned and saw that the speaker was that Sovereign's Emissary, the silver-haired elder, Gallen.

Within the hall, there were multiple tables, each of which had scribes seated behind them. The scribes were constantly recording military merits, and within the corridors, there were now long lines; everyone had to turn in their badge and have it recorded before they were permitted to leave. Only the space in front of the Sovereign's Emissary, Gallen, was empty.

Commanders were quite rare, after all.

"Mr. Gallen." Linley called out with a light laugh as he flew over.

"Lord Linley, congratulations. You were able to return alive." Gallen, upon seeing Linley and Bebe, began to smile. That stern-faced shout of his was meant for the ordinary soldiers; to commanders who were of similar rank to him, he was still quite friendly.

"How'd it go? Did you acquire enough military merits this time?" Gallen chortled.

"I have enough." Linley nodded.

Gallen looked at Linley in surprise. To acquire a Sovereign artifact required ten enemy commander badges. "I had no idea. Impressive! Mr. Linley, give the badges to me. I will take care of this comrade of yours by your side as well. If he goes to my subordinates, he will spend a very long time in line."

Linley turned and glanced at the line. Indeed, the line had already formed a series of circles within the main hall, and many had to wait in midair.

Linley and Bebe each withdrew their blood-red badges and their black badges, handing them over.

This was a very strict rule; if they weren't in possession of their badges, they would be put to death.

"Since you already have enough military merits, there is no need for me to record them. You can go visit the Sovereign directly and have them make a Sovereign artifact for you." Gallen said with a laugh. "The Sovereigns all have a copy of the records indicating how many military merits the commanders who went through the Planar War possess. You only need to go provide the enemy badges you acquired, and the Sovereign shall know."

As he spoke, Gallen pointed towards a long, open corridor behind him.

"You can leave by this private exit and go see the Sovereign." Gallen laughed.

"See the Sovereign? See the Sovereign in person?" Bebe said, astonished.

Gallen laughed. "Of course not. Sovereigns aren't going to waste time coming. The Sovereign you will be seeing will just be an energy construct. The Sovereign's true body is still far away, in another part of the Netherworld."

"Mr. Linley!" A warm greeting rang out. Linley and Bebe both turned to look; the speaker was a violet-robed, black-haired man.

"Worthington [Wo'sen'te]!" Linley nodded slightly. Linley had met this commander before and remembered him.

Gallen, upon seeing him, immediately laughed. "Oh, Lord Worthington. Congratulations." Everyone who survived a Planar War deserved to be congratulated. Gallen continued, "Lord Worthington, did you acquire enough military merits this time? Tartarus Lord Linley has enough, and he entered a hundred years after you did."

"I'm not quite there yet. Here are three commander badges. Record them down." Worthington took out three golden commander badges and his own blood-red badge, then chortled, "Gallen, it is perfectly natural for Mr. Linley to have acquired enough military merits. How can I compare to Mr. Linley? Mr. Linley is a Paragon, after all."

A look of astonishment instantly appeared on Gallen's face as he turned to stare at Linley.

"Paragon?" Gallen was very stunned.

"Naturally." Worthington laughed loudly. "Mr. Linley had a grand duel with the Paragon 'Magnus' in the air above the Stellar Corridor of the Planar Battlefield. The other commanders and countless soldiers present had no choice but to step back and stop fighting! Magnus was even driven by Mr. Linley into chaotic space."

Gallen couldn't believe it.

"You two can keep chatting. I'll go visit the Sovereign." Linley said with a smile, and then went towards the corridor behind Gallen alongside Bebe. Linley could still hear the conversation going on behind him...

"Linley became a Paragon? What's this about. Tell me about it in detail."

"I'll discuss this with you later. Just now, you referred to Mr. Linley as a 'Tartarus Lord'; what's this about? Isn't he an Elder of the Azure Dragon clan?"

Linley didn't hear the following words, because he had already moved deep into the tunnel. This tunnel was very wide, at least five meters or so, and nearly four meters high. The walls of the corridor were all faintly glowing with a blurry green light, causing it to seem very dreamlike and illusory. After walking for a few moments...

In front of Linley, a four-way intersection appeared.

"Now where should we go?" Bebe was rather baffled.

Linley carefully looked at the tunnels, but there was no one else here. Suddenly, a voice rang out in Linley's mind. "Linley, the two of you, enter the tunnel on the left. After walking for a bit, you'll see me."

"The Chief Sovereign of Death!" Linley's eyes lit up.

"Bebe, come this way." Linley immediately led Bebe towards the tunnel on the left. After walking just a hundred meters, they exited the tunnel and arrived at a wide, shining hall.

Linley swept the area with his gaze. There was no one seated on the throne within the hall, but by the sides of the hall, there was a lithe, graceful figure dressed in a violet robe, with long blood-red hair cascading down her shoulders. Suddenly, this figure turned, and as she swept Linley with her gaze, he couldn't help but feel his heart tremble.

"Sovereign." Linley bowed slightly.

This person was the Chief Sovereign of Death, but Linley now had the feeling that although the Chief Sovereign of Death was emanating a perceptible aura of majesty, the aura wasn't that strong. Linley could tell... that this figure should have been a mere clone which the Sovereign created from energy.

"Admirable." The Chief Sovereign of Death looked at Linley, the corners of her lips crooking upwards slightly. "Linley, it's quite rare for me to admire someone. However...I now quite admire you. After all, although I am the Chief Sovereign of Death, in terms of the Laws, I have yet to become a Paragon. But you have! Formidable!"

Linley was stunned.

When chatting with Reisgem, Linley had learned that becoming a Sovereign didn't have anything to do with whether one was a Paragon or not. Many Sovereigns had yet to become Paragons. But Linley hadn't imagined...that even someone as powerful as the Chief Sovereign of Death was yet to be a Paragon.

However, Linley himself wasn't a Paragon, just a Soul Mutate.

Still, Linley temporarily didn't wish to publicize this. Thus, he accepted others calling him a Paragon. After all, a four-clone Soul Mutate was simply too astonishing.

"It's been just a thousand years or so, but you've actually reached such a level." The Chief Sovereign of Death let out a sigh of praise.

"Sovereign." Linley bowed slightly, then said respectfully, "According to our earlier agreement, for each commander badge I acquired, you would help me find one person and allow them to regain their memories. I've come now to ask you, Sovereign, to carry out this agreement." Linley went straight to the heart of the matter!

The Chief Sovereign of Death gave Linley a sidelong glance. She still naturally emanated a high, lofty aura of looking down at all other creatures.

"Be my Emissary." The Chief Sovereign of Death said casually.

Linley was slightly startled.

Linley didn't want to become a Sovereign's Emissary, but the speaker was the Chief Sovereign of Death. If the Chief Sovereign of Death were to use saving Linley's family and friends as leverage, there really would be nothing else Linley could do.

"Sovereign." Bebe said unhappily. "Can it be that you are going to threaten my Boss, Sovereign?"

The Chief Sovereign of Death glanced sideways at Bebe, and that clear, icy gaze caused Bebe's heart to tremble. The Chief Sovereign of Death said calmly, "Of course not! As the Chief Sovereign, whatever I have said, I will naturally uphold. For each enemy commander badge, I will find a person for you and allow that person to regain his or her memories. As for inviting you to become my Emissary, that's something else. You can choose to decline."

Linley bowed slightly, then refused in a roundabout way. "Forgive me, Sovereign. For now, I'm not yet prepared to become someone's Emissary."

"That's fine as well." The Chief Sovereign of Death's voice turned icy. "Per our agreement, take out your commander badges. Let me warn you in advance; the chances of death are very, very high...if the person you are looking for is already dead, you can't blame anyone else. I'm only responsible for searching for them and restoring their memories."

"Of course." Linley took a deep breath, then took out four commander badges, with Bebe taking out two.

"Six?" The Chief Sovereign of Death raised an eyebrow. "Speak, then. Who are you searching for?"

"The first is my good friend, also from the Yulan Plane. Yale Dawson!" Linley said quickly.

The Chief Sovereign of Death nodded slightly. "Wait a moment. My true body will search through the Netherworld Heart." After all, even the Chief Sovereign of Death, just by relying on her own powers, couldn't possibly search the entire Netherworld for a single undead with just a name. But the 'Netherworld Heart' was different; this was the solidification of the Laws which controlled the Netherworld itself, in material form.

This was the Heart of the Netherworld!

Through the Netherworld Heart, one could easily find any person who had been transformed into an undead after death.

"I hope Boss Yale is still alive." Linley felt nervous, while Bebe couldn't help but clutch at Linley's hands.

"Found him." The Chief Sovereign of Death nodded. "Hm? Strange. He's actually a netherblood spirit."

"Netherblood spirit?" Linley said, startled.

"Right. There are many types of undead; generally speaking, when an ordinary mortal dies and becomes a netherblood spirit, it is because they were filled with tremendous hatred, anger, and a desire to kill. Naturally, this means that netherblood spirits are fairly common amongst undead." The Chief Sovereign of Death gave Linley a sidelong glance. "Your luck isn't bad. Not only is he alive, he is also a Saint-level undead. Next."

Linley took a deep breath, then said, "My Second Bro, George."

"Oh?" A hint of a smile played at the corners of the Chief Sovereign of Death's lips.

Linley stared at the Chief Sovereign of Death. "Your 'Second Bro', George, is alive as well. In addition, he's a Demigod. There is no need for me to restore his memories."

"He became a Deity?" Linley couldn't help but feel delight.

It made sense. Dixie and George both died as Saints; a Saint-level undead did indeed have the chance to become a Deity.

"The third." The Chief Sovereign of Death said calmly.

"The third one is my wife's elder brother, Dixie." Linley said hurriedly. Linley had to admit, this Netherworld Heart was truly miraculous; with just some basic information, it was able to find his family and friends. Linley had no idea...that in reality, just based on the name 'Linley', the Netherworld Heart would be able to instantly find everyone connected to him."

To the Chief Sovereign of Death, finding one person and finding ten people was almost the same. Still...the Chief Sovereign of Death wouldn't possibly tell Linley this.

"Dixie? Hey, he became Deity as well." The Chief Sovereign of Death said. "However, his divine clone is dead, while his Saint-level body remains hiding within the Undead Realm. He doesn't need me to restore his memory either."

Linley felt a surge of joy in his heart. Although Dixie had become a Deity, then lost his divine clone, he was still alive. Now, only four were remaining. Next was his father...Hogg!

His father...

"My father, Hogg!" Linley said slowly.

The Chief Sovereign of Death searched for a moment, then nodded and said. "The four you searched for are all quite decent. Two became Deities, while the other two became Saints. Your father is currently a Saint-level undead...mm. No wonder your father is still alive. He's a member of the Azure Dragon clan. His soul is decent."

Although Hogg hadn't regained his memories, he was still a member of the Azure Dragon clan. His soul was still far more powerful than the souls of most undead.

"Father...is still..." Linley was wildly overjoyed.

He had been quite afraid, but the end results had been miraculous. All four of the people he had been searching for were alive.

Actually, this had to do with the four of them themselves. The stronger one was, the higher the chances for survival; two were Saint-level undead to begin with, and thus naturally had higher chances for survival to begin with. Yale had died in hatred and had become a netherblood spirit, and was quite powerful when alive. As for Hogg, his soul was also very powerful.

"Two others. My brother Bebe's parents." Linley said hurriedly. Linley realized that aside from the first person, 'Yale', the Sovereign was able to almost instantly reply to him with regards to the status of the others. It was as though the searching process was quite fast.

"Right, my father and my mother." Bebe said hurriedly. "But I don't know their names."

"I don't need the names. Still, you'll have to wait a time." The Chief Sovereign of Death glanced sideways at Bebe.

Linley looked encouragingly at Bebe. He sent mentally, "Don't worry, Bebe. Your parents were magical beasts of the ninth rank; they were quite powerful when alive, and they were also of Beirut's clan. Their souls should be fairly powerful as well. There is a good chance they are alive!"

"Right." Bebe took a deep breath, then nodded.

Linley could sense that Bebe was currently very nervous. Bebe had never met his parents before, after all. They waited a time, and then...

"Your luck is excellent." The Chief Sovereign of Death looked at Bebe in surprised. "Your parents are both Saint-level undead, and fairly powerful ones at that."

"Wonderful!" Bebe clenched his fist, so excited his face was completely red.

Linley was happy for Bebe as well. Ever since he had undergone his soul mutation, it seemed as though his luck had improved. Every single person he had searched for was still alive.

Suddenly...

A thought flashed past Linley's mind. "Bebe's parents. Then...my mother?" Bebe had never seen his parents, but Linley had no memories of his mother either; although he had never met his mother, she was still his mother. His own mother!"

"Sovereign, can you search for one more person for me?" Linley said nervously.

"No. Six badges, six chances." The Chief Sovereign of Death said calmly, not budging at all.

The nearby Bebe said hurriedly, "Sovereign, two of the people my Boss asked you to search for are Deities; there's no need for you to restore their memories. They shouldn't count, right. Or let's just say that those two just represented a single chance."

"And who are you to make that decision?" The Sovereign glanced sideways at Bebe. "The six chances are all used up."

Linley couldn't help but feel a bit frantic.

"But of course...if you are willing to become my Emissary, as your Sovereign, I would be willing to search a few more times for you, free of charge." The Chief Sovereign of Death suddenly said.

Linley was stunned.

Did he have to become a Sovereign's Emissary?

"Boss?" Bebe couldn't help but look at Linley.

"Sovereign." Linley frowned as he spoke. "Actually, a single commander badge isn't that valuable. Given my status, if I were to leave...I could find another commander and borrow a badge from him. It can be said that I would owe that person a favor. I trust others would agree to my request."

A favor from Linley, in exchange for a commander badge? Many commanders would be willing to engage in this sort of a deal.

"True." The Chief Sovereign of Death nodded.

"Then Sovereign...how about this. If you are able to find the person I am looking for, then I am willing to become your Emissary. If you aren't able to find this person, or if she is already dead, then let's drop the matter of becoming your Emissary." Linley looked at the Chief Sovereign of Death.

The Chief Sovereign of Death looked at Linley, pausing momentarily, then laughed and nodded. "Fine. I accept." Doing another search, as far as the Chief Sovereign of Death was concerned, didn't require much effort. The Chief Sovereign of Death knew that if she didn't agree, Linley probably really would go borrow another badge.

"I want to search for my mother..." Linley said slowly.

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 63, Return

"Your mother?" The Chief Sovereign of Death gave Linley a surprised glance.

As the Chief Sovereign of Death saw it, it would've made sense if Linley had immediately wanted to locate his parents. To first search for his father...and then leave his mother for later.

"Wait a moment." The Chief Sovereign of Death shut her eyes.

Linley felt nervousness in his heart. "Mother...I've never before met my mother!" In Linley's memory, 'mother' was a word that was very distant from him. He had no recollections of that word in his mind. But Linley was able to see the parents of others, and occasionally would think of his own mother. What was his own mother like?

"Strange." The Chief Sovereign of Death opened her eyes, her cold, gloomy gaze falling on Linley's face.

"What is it?" Linley said hurriedly. Linley was worried about his mother; after all, compared to his father or his friends, when she was alive, she was very weak. Although her soul was very pure, her strength wasn't very great.

"You weren't able to find her?" The nearby Bebe couldn't help but feel worried for Linley.

The Chief Sovereign of Death just frowned, looking at Linley with some irritation. "Linley, are you trying to prank me?"

Linley didn't understand. He hurriedly said, "Sovereign, how would I dare prank you? Sovereign, please tell me, what is the situation with my mother? Is she undead? Regardless of whether she is alive or dead, please tell me directly." Linley felt nervous, but the look on the face of the Chief Sovereign of Death became even more unsightly.

"Hmph, Linley, your mother isn't dead at all, nor has she become an undead! And yet, you ask me to search for her?" A hint of a baleful look was in the eyes of the Chief Sovereign of Death.

Of course the Chief Sovereign of Death would feel irritated!

Linley had made a bet with her earlier; if Linley's mother was dead, then at least the Chief Sovereign of Death had a chance for winning the bet. But if Linley's mother wasn't even dead, how could the Chief Sovereign of Death possibly find her? If his mother was alive, and yet Linley asked the Chief Sovereign of Death to search for her...then that meant Linley was just toying with her!

"My mother isn't dead?" Linley couldn't believe it.

The nearby Bebe stared, wide-eyed. "Not dead? No way. That King of Fenlai said it himself. It shouldn't be false."

"Your mother isn't dead." The Chief Sovereign of Death had a dark look on her face. "Or, she might have died with her soul being destroyed as well. One thing is for certain; your mother's soul isn't in the Netherworld at all, nor has she transformed into an undead. There is a record in the Netherworld Heart of every single person who was transformed into an undead. There's no way it wouldn't find her if she was here!"

Linley frowned.

What sort of status did the Chief Sovereign of Death have? There was no way she would lie! And yet, his mother clearly had passed away. What was going on?

"Sovereign." Linley hurriedly said. "My mother did indeed pass away long ago. Based on my investigations, when my mother died, her soul was offered by the Radiant Church of a material plane to the 'Radiant Sovereign', the Chief Sovereign of Light. The Chief Sovereign of Light is a Chief Sovereign; would he care about a common soul? Is it possible that the soul would actually be transferred through the planes to the Divine Light Plane?"

Linley didn't believe this at all.

The Chief Sovereign of Death, upon hearing this, completely understood. She gave Linley a cold glance. "If things transpired as you stated, then your mother's soul should indeed have gone to the Divine Light Plane. It is under the complete control of the Chief Sovereign of Light, now. In short, her soul isn't under my control."

"The Divine Light Plane?" Linley was frantic. He said, "Is there any way for me to bring my mother back?"

"Impossible!"

The Chief Sovereign of Death said this with absolute certainty. "All the souls collected by the Chief Sovereign of Light will never regain their free will. I will tell you this...the Angels of the Divine Light Realm are completely loyal to the Sovereigns of Light; there is no way they will ever be disloyal. Even if you find the Angel which your mother was transformed into, there is no way she will return."

"Angels?" Linley knew a few things about these Angels.

The Angels were a powerful military race controlled by the Sovereigns of Light. According to the legends, the Sovereigns created the Angels, and although they were intelligent, they were described as 'human-shaped war machines'. His mother had become an Angel?

"Why else would the Sovereigns of Light collect pure souls? The purpose is to strengthen their Angel Armies." The Chief Sovereign of Death snickered.

"There's no way for me to bring my mother back?" Linley didn't understand.

"Reincarnated undead at least have their freedom. But Angels..." The Chief Sovereign of Death glanced sideways at Linley. "Linley, you have heard of 'Deathgod Golems', human-shaped weapons of war, yes? Angels are a bit more special than Deathgod Golems; they have their own intelligence, after all. But there is one thing that they share; Angels will never betray their masters, the Sovereigns of Light. In addition, given the temper of the Chief Sovereign of Light? Forget about you; even if other Sovereigns personally visited him and asked him to give one of his Angels freedom, it still wouldn't be very likely."

Hearing this, Linley's heart sank.

The Chief Sovereign of Light was a Chief Sovereign, after all!

"Is there anything else? If there is nothing else, I am going to leave." The Chief Sovereign of Death said calmly.

Linley didn't think about it any longer, hurriedly saying, "There's one more thing I would like to ask about."

"You really are a lot of trouble." The Chief Sovereign of Death nodded slightly. "Speak, then." The Chief Sovereign of Death's attitude towards Linley was clearly much better now than back on the Abyssal Mountain. Clearly, Linley's becoming a 'Paragon' had improved her view of him greatly. This was only normal...Sovereigns generally admired people who were able to become Paragons.

After all, becoming a Sovereign was a matter of fate and luck.

But Paragons? That was a matter of true skill and ability.

"I'd like to ask, if a person's soul is dissipated, is there any way to bring that person back to life?" Linley said nervously. The nearby Bebe couldn't help but glance at Linley. "For Boss to discuss this...he must be thinking about Grandpa Doehring." Bebe knew very well how deep Linley's affection for Doehring Cowart was.

The Chief Sovereign of Death chuckled. "Are you joking? Once a person's soul is dissipated, that person is definitely dead. How can that person be brought back?"

"Oh..." That final hint of hope in Linley's heart was shattered.

He hadn't held much hope to begin with, just a tiny bit of it.

The Chief Sovereign of Death raised an eyebrow, and then a hint of a smile appeared on her face. "Actually, Linley, there might be one small chance for a person whose soul was dissipated to come back to life."

"Eh?" Linley's eyes suddenly turned bright and sharp, and he stared fixedly at the Chief Sovereign of Death. "Sovereign, what method is that?"

The Chief Sovereign of Death was startled by the look in Linley's eyes, but her amusement only grew. "A person whose soul is dissipated will definitely die. This is the view of the Sovereigns. But according to legend, the 'Overgod of Life' is the personification of the Edicts of Life; she, herself, is the Edict of Life. The way the multiverse functions is controlled by the Edicts. I'm not able to save a person whose soul was dissipated... but perhaps the Overgod of Life is."

"Right. Right." Linley couldn't help but feel filled with excitement. "The functioning of the multiverse is controlled by the Edicts. The Overgod of Life, as a personification of the Edicts, would definitely be able to save that person."

"This is just my opinion. I'm not an Overgod. I can't be completely certain as to whether an Overgod can save such a person or not." The Chief Sovereign of Death laughed calmly. "However, as I see it, Overgods are completely omnipotent. It would appear that there is nothing in the boundless multiverse which they cannot accomplish. They are the Edicts, after all!"

This was just a guess of the Chief Sovereign of Death, but this guess was something Linley felt was plausible!

The Overgod of Life had control over life; perhaps rescue truly was possible.

"I have no more time to waste here with you." The Chief Sovereign of Death said calmly. "The six people you mentioned are all spread out throughout the Netherworld. I will arrange for them to be brought to the Abyssal Mountain. You should now make haste to the Abyssal Mountain... and reunite with your family and friends." As soon as these words were spoken...

The Chief Sovereign of Death's body disappeared, the energy returning to the world.

This was just an energy clone, after all.

Linley and Bebe looked at each other.

"Boss, congratulations." Bebe chortled.

Linley was all smiles. All of Linley's doubts had been resolved upon hearing this news from the Chief Sovereign of Death. His father and friends were able to return...and as for his mother, she had become an Angel of the Divine Light Plane. As for Grandpa Doehring, perhaps if he were able to meet the Overgod of Life, Linley would be able to ask for him to be revived.

This slender hope filled Linley with will and energy!

"Everything will work out." Linley said quietly to himself.

"Bebe, let's go. We'll go to the Abyssal Mountain." Linley didn't want to stay here at Flamebone Mountain. He immediately left with Bebe, and then entered their metallic lifeform, quickly advancing towards the Abyssal Mountain.

The Netherworld. Northbone Prefecture. The lair of the bandits of the eighteen mountain ranges. One of the mountain ranges.

Dark clouds swirled in the air above like a black dragon, covering the night sky. The bloody, devilish moon could faintly be seen.

George was currently seated before the window to his room, his head raised as he stared towards the eerie, bloody moon.

"The wealth I have accumulated should be enough to buy a house within the city." George was musing to himself. "More importantly, I need to find a chance to go to the city. Right...three months later, a caravan will be sent to the city to sell off some things that we've robbed. Three months from now, then!"

This entire time, George had been slowly, unhurriedly waiting. Although he was a steward for these bandits, in charge of dividing up the wealth, George didn't dare to embezzle too much. Still, having spent so many years as an official, he was in charge of the wealth for these experts, most of whom only knew how to train and to kill but knew nothing about financial management. Thus, it was a fairly relaxed position for him. Over the years...the bandits had become quite fond of George.

As they saw it, this steward was generous and kind, and divided things up fairly. Everyone agreed with his judgments.

Suddenly...

"Twelfth Bro!" A bellow echoed out.

"Who is it?" George frowned, immediately heading to the living room.

Quite a few people emerged from within the castle. The leader of this mountain branch, a big, bald fellow, strode out as well. "Hey, Boss. What's the rush?" As he spoke, he took his guards to go welcome the person. He could tell that the speaker was the chief of the eighteen mountain ranges.

The light of the eerie, bloody-red moon seemed to cover the entire mountain range with a layer of blood.

"Twelfth Bro, hurry up!" A deep voice echoed.

George was behind the big, bald fellow. By now, George also recognized the bearded dwarf who arrived, alongside a violet-robed, golden-haired man. The bearded dwarf was the chief of their eighteen mountain ranges, 'Kleopatra'. "Who is the person next to the chief?" George was rather puzzled. How was it that there was a person amongst their ranks he didn't recognize, and yet held a high rank?

"The person next to me is the Seven Star Specter, Lord Beverly [Be'wei'li]." The bearded dwarf said.

The bald man immediately bowed. "Milord."

The violet-robed, golden-haired man gave him a calm glance, but then his gaze fell upon George who stood behind the bald man. George, seeing this, was secretly shocked. "Why is this Seven Star Specter staring at me?" As George saw it, an expert on the level of a Seven Star Specter was definitely one of the supreme experts of the Netherworld.

"You are George, yes?" The violet-robed, golden-haired man said calmly.

"Uh...yes." George was shocked.

"In your previous life, did you come from the Yulan Plane?" A rare hint of a smile appeared in the eyes of the violet-robed, golden-haired man.

George was stunned, but he still nodded in acknowledgment.

"Very good. Follow me." The violet-robed man said.

"Milord Beverly, dare I ask, why are you taking George away?" The bald man said hurriedly. He had been very satisfied with George being his steward over these many years; George carried out all tasks fastidiously, making it so that he hadn't had to worry about anything. He truly didn't want to let George leave.

The violet-robed man couldn't help but frown.

"Twelfth Bro." The big bearded dwarf couldn't help but bark in rebuke.

"Chief, let me follow him." George felt grateful to the bald man for standing up for him right now, but he also knew that the request of a Seven Star Specter was something which these bandits wouldn't dare refuse.

"George..." The bald man looked at him, then slapped George on the shoulders.

George squeezed out a smile as well, but his heart was filled with a sour feeling. "I had prepared for so many years. We were about to go to the city...why did this person suddenly appear to take me away? It's hard to predict what will happen on this trip. By the looks of it, my reunion with Third Bro and the others will become even more difficult."

"Don't worry, this isn't a bad thing for you." The violet-robed, golden-haired man gave him a sidelong glance, then said calmly, "The Sovereign made these arrangements."

"The Sovereign?"

George and the surrounding people were shocked.

"You. Follow me." The violet-robed man looked at George and spoke in a calm voice.

"Yes." George didn't dare to disobey, but in his heart, he was utterly mystified. "I'm just a minor figure. Why would I attract the interest of a Sovereign to the point of sending someone for me?" George didn't understand, but all he could do was follow this Seven Star Specter and depart.

Book 19, Metamorphosis – Chapter 64, Gathered From Many Places

The skies were dark, and the vast earth seemed dry and barren.

This was the northern part of the Undead Realm, the 'Ashbelle' [A'she'bei'er] Drylands. Group of skeletons were scattered throughout the drylands, along with groups of zombies. Undead generally moved in groups; very few dared to move about by themselves.

Suddenly, those slowly shambling zombies suddenly turned to look towards one direction.

A rhythmic sound could be heard coming from the ground. "Graaaaaaawr." A gold-furred zombie raised its head, releasing a howl. Instantly, the group of zombies all began to move at high speed, but moments later, more than ten black blurs emerged from the ground at high speed. These ten blurs were 'Black Knights', fairly powerful undead in the Undead Realm.

Even the weakest Black Knight was at least an undead of the fifth rank.

This squad of Black Knights had a total of nineteen members, with the leader being dressed in blood-red armor. His face was covered by a visor, but his cold gaze swept out through it towards the surrounding area. Those weaker undead were all so terrified that they hurriedly fled, but the Black Knights were able to easily catch up to them.

"Aaaaaaaah!" The leading Black Knight raised his head, letting out a furious roar, as though giving vent to his anger.

The eighteen Black Knights didn't understand; their lord was a very powerful Saint-level Black Knight, a monarch of the Undead Realm who had his own castle and a large number of Black Knights under his control. But today, their monarch had led his Black Knights to randomly, furiously gallop throughout the drylands.

Gallop around senselessly while venting!

"Enough. Let's return." The Black Knight leader said calmly.

"Yes, milord."

The nineteen Black Knights once more began to gallop backwards. In the Ashbelle Drylands, every single Saint was considered a supreme expert, and this Black Knight was one of the ranked experts of this region.

"I...I suddenly regained my memories from my previous life. What is going on?" The Black Knight leader's heart was filled with confusion and shock.

"I...will I ever be able to return to the Yulan Plane?" The Black Knight leader said quietly to himself.

"My sons. Linley. Wharton. How are they? It has been over two thousand years. Are they Saint-level Dragonblood Warriors now, or have they yet to reach the Saint rank? Did they become undead instead?" The Black Knight leader's heart was filled with complex emotions. Ever since he regained his memories, his mind had never stopped pondering.

This Black Knight leader was Linley's father...Hogg!

Ever since gaining his memories from his past life, Hogg was no longer able to remain calm-minded. He missed his sons. He also wanted to get revenge for his wife. But he understood that given that more than two thousand years had passed, Duke Patterson of the Kingdom of Fenlai had probably died of old age long ago.

In the blink of an eye, forty years passed since the day Hogg regained his memories.

The castle of the Black Knights. Hogg was still dressed in that bloody red armor. He stood at the very peak of the castle, his head raised as he stared into the dark skies. Suddenly, a figure flew over at high speed.

"Huh?" Hogg was startled.

"Whoosh!" The person charged straight downwards at extremely high speed.

"Who is it!" Hogg let out a low growl.

"Clang!" At the same instant, the many armored Black Knights within the castle all rose to their feet.

"Haha..." The person let out a loud laugh, and then a terrifying majestic presence spread out. A powerful divine presence covered the entire castle, and all of the Black Knights within felt as though the end had come. All of them knelt in terror; this was an absolute difference in levels.

Hogg raised his head to look at this person. This was someone who looked like a youth, with short silver hair and a baby's face.

"Hogg?" The youth said casually.

Hogg was shocked!

Before regaining his memories, he had no idea that his name was 'Hogg'. As Hogg saw it...in this world, aside from himself, there shouldn't be anyone else who knew who his true identity was. But this person before him had just addressed him by his name. "Who are you?" Hogg stared at this person. "Was it you who gave me my memories back?"

"I don't have that power." The youth laughed softly. "Only Sovereigns are capable of restoring your memories. Come with me!"

"Sovereign? I..." Hogg didn't even have the chance to argue before a surge of divine power swept out and bound him. The youth thus forcibly carried Hogg off, and the two flew towards the south. That youth even mumbled, "This undead was actually so far away. I had to go from the Netherworld to this place, and now go all the way back to the Abyssal Mountain. This really is quite a journey."

The many Black Knights of the castle stared, speechless, as their monarch was thus dragged away. They weren't able to do anything about it.

Linley's father. Yale. George. Dixie. Bebe's father and mother. The Chief Sovereign of Death arranged for people to take them all away.

The Netherworld. The base of the Abyssal Mountain. Within the Abyssal Inn.

Linley was seated in a chair, while Bebe was standing and frowning. "Boss. We've been here for more than ten years now, but no one has arrived. How much longer are we supposed to wait for?"

Linley and Bebe had arrived at the Abyssal Mountain long ago, but as there were no other residences here at the Abyssal Mountain, the Chief Sovereign of Death had permitted Linley and Bebe to remain within the Inn. But who would have imagined that despite the passage of more than ten years, Linley had yet to see a single person arrive?

"Keep waiting." Linley sat there calmly on his chair, flipping through a book. "The Sovereign arranged for people to find Boss Yale and the others and bring them back. They are all in different locations. My father is in the Undead Realm, and from there to here is quite a journey. It's not that they are slow; rather, it's that we were too fast in flying from Tartarus to the Abyssal Mountain."

Although they rode on a metallic lifeform, Linley had been able to infuse his Will into the metallic lifeform and make it move much faster. In less than ten years, they had travelled from Tartarus to the Abyssal Mountain.

Suddenly...

Linley raised his head to look towards the skies. Bebe looked at Linley in surprise. "Boss, what is it?"

"A powerful aura." Linley said in a soft voice. In the Netherworld, Linley had incredible powers of control over the surrounding area; after all, the spatial walls of the Netherworld were far weaker than in the Planar Battlefield. Upon sensing an expert draw near, Linley spread out his divine sense...

A hundred kilometers away, a metallic lifeform shaped like a golden fish flew towards the inn, with George and that violet-robed, golden-haired man within it.

George glanced at the violet-robed man. "This Seven Star Specter, Beverly, said that he came to receive me at the orders of the Sovereign, but says he has no idea why the Sovereign wishes to see me." George himself didn't understand; he was a Demigod, a minor figure. People like him within the Netherworld were beyond count. Why would the Sovereign want to see him?"

"Here we are." Beverly said.

The metallic lifeform suddenly disappeared, with Beverly and George appearing in midair.

"Second Bro!" An utterly delighted voice rang out, while at the same time, a figure suddenly appeared in front of George and Beverly.

"What sort of speed is this? I am a Seven Star Specter, but I wasn't even able to react!" Beverly was completely stunned. He had no idea; even commander-level experts, when faced with the speed of a Paragon, would find it hard to react, much less him, an ordinary Seven Star Specter.

George's body trembled as he stared at the person in front of him.

That familiar figure, that familiar face, that familiar smile...

"Third Bro!" George was so excited that his face instantly turned red, and he charged forwards, wrapping his arms tightly around Linley.

"Haha, Second Bro, I've finally found you." Linley tightly embraced his friend for a long while before releasing him. Linley was incomparably moved upon seeing George, his lifelong friend since youth.

"Third Bro, you...why are you here?" Only now did George finally think of this question.

As for Beverly, he bowed slightly towards the direction of the Abyssal Mountain, then turned and left. George, seeing this, couldn't help but feel surprised. "Beverly, this Seven Star Specter, was supposed to take me to see the Sovereign. He's leaving?"

"I asked the Sovereign to arrange for you to be brought here." Linley laughed merrily.

"Third Bro, you asked the Sovereign...?" George was stunned.

After having lived in the Netherworld for a long time, George had learned of the various tiers of power within the Netherworld. Even the highest level experts like Lord Prefects, however, were but ants in the eyes of the Sovereigns. To ask a Sovereign to help out...the difference between a Deity and a Sovereign was like the difference between an ordinary mortal and a Deity. A mortal, ask a Deity to help out? This was utterly inconceivable.

"Haha. What's the big deal?" Bebe suddenly appeared from nearby, chortling. "George, in a little bit, Yale and Dixie will come as well."

"Boss Yale?" George looked towards Linley in disbelief. "Third Bro, you actually asked a Sovereign to arrange for so many people to be found and brought over? This...what's the relationship between you and this Sovereign?"

"Come, let's go inside first." Linley said with a laugh.

George's starting location had been fairly close to the Abyssal Mountain, and so of course it hadn't taken too long for him to arrive. Shortly after George's arrival...Dixie arrived as well! And then came Bebe's parents, with Yale coming next.

Yale had arrived!

George and Dixie had died before Yale. They didn't understand how terrible Yale's death had been, but after arriving in the Abyssal Inn, they had learned from Linley and Bebe about what had happened after their deaths in the Yulan continent. After hearing the details, they couldn't help but blaze with rage as well.

"Third Bro! Second Bro! You are here?"

As soon as Yale arrived, upon seeing Linley and George, he was utterly overjoyed.

"Boss Yale." Linley and George couldn't help but rush forward. The three friends tightly embraced each other. When Yale thought of all the suffering he had endured over the years, and how today, he was meeting his dearest friends yet again, he couldn't help but shed tears.

That night, at the banquet.

"I really didn't imagine it!" Yale's eyes were moist, but his face was filled with an excited smile. "I thought that after dying, it all would have ended, but who would have imagined...that I, an undead, would actually regain my memories from my past life, and also be brought here. We three brothers are reunited once more! Third Bro, I have to thank you. You let me once more feel hope. Hope for continuing the lineage of my Dawson clan. Hope for revenge!"

The nearby Dixie sighed as well. "The Netherworld is incredibly dangerous. I had originally managed to train to the point of developing a divine clone, but soon after entering the Netherworld, I died. Fortunately, I was cautious and left my Saint-level original body within the Undead Realm. I had thought that I would have to continue to live and die in those fields of slaughter. Linley, thank you."

In the past, in the Ernst Institute, Linley and Dixie had been acclaimed as the two stars of the Institute.

But now...

That young magus held incredibly powerful influence, to the point of being able to ask a Sovereign for help.

"Enough about these matters. What matters is that we are all together again." Linley lifted his wineglass in a toast. "Come. What's past is past. Come, cheers!"

"Cheers!"

Bebe called out happily as well. Next to Bebe was a man and a woman. Bebe's mother looked very kind, and she was dressed in a long, violet robe. As for Bebe's father, a strong, baleful aura emanated from him, making him look very cold and remote. But in this situation, even he revealed a smile.

Yale, Dixie, and Bebe's parents. On the way over, Yale had been given a Demigod spark and refined it to become a Deity. The same had happened for Bebe's parents. Only Dixie...remained a Saint. Dixie still wanted to rely on his own efforts and continue to train.

For Saint-level undead, as long as they devoured enough souls, once their own soul reached a certain level of strength, they would become Saints.

But to go from being a Saint to a Deity required an understanding of the Laws. For Yale and Bebe's parents, they held no understanding at all regarding these matters, and so naturally they chose to fuse with a divine spark to become a Deity.

Linley was anxious and impatient by now. Everyone else had arrived, but his father, 'Hogg', had yet to come. Linley had even gone to ask the Chief Sovereign of Death, but the Chief Sovereign of Death had only told him to keep waiting.

"Swish!" A black, sword-shaped metallic lifeform flew over at high speed.

Within was the Saint-level Black Knight, 'Hogg', as well as the silver-haired youth. Hogg had already become a Deity, but of course, he had done so by fusing with a divine spark. Hogg had a very low level of insight into the Laws, and he would probably spend countless years without being able to become a Deity on his own.

"We are arriving up ahead." The silver-haired youth said with a calm laugh. "This mission is finally at an end."

"Thank you." Hogg still bowed gratefully.

"Why thank me?" The silver-haired youth made the metallic lifeform disappear with a thought. Hogg and the silver-haired youth appeared in midair, not too far away from the Abyssal Inn, and right at this moment, a blur suddenly moved through the skies, so fast as to badly startle the silver-haired youth. The blur solidified in front of them.

"Hm?" Hogg looked carefully at the person before him.

The man in front of him was dressed in sky-blue robes, and had long brown hair. His face looked exactly as it had in the past. "He is...?" But Hogg still didn't dare believe it. He had the feeling...as though the person in front of him had just teleported to him. Even this Seven Star Specter by his side was not capable of such speed. How could this expert be his son?

"You...you are...?" The silver-haired youth was rather frightened. But Linley's gaze was locked on Hogg!

In Linley's mind, one scene after another appeared.

His father's resoluteness and loneliness. Back then, he had protected Linley and Wharton, those two children.

His father's request to him. His hope that Linley would acquire the warblade 'Slaughterer'.

His father's bitterness, hidden within his heart, which he had borne alone.

His father's death. Only a letter had been left behind, and only when reading it had Linley learned how tragic his father's life had been.

.....

Linley stared at the man in front of him, so excited his eyes turned moist.

"Father!" Linley called out.

Hogg stared in disbelief at the person in front of him. When he died, Linley was just a youth. Although Hogg could somewhat see traces of the features of the young Linley in the face of the man before him, in terms of demeanor as well as everything else, the current Linley, one of the supreme Deities of the multiverse, was far too different from when he had been a child.

"Linley? It, it is you?" Hogg couldn't help but feel stunned and excited as he looked closely at Linley.

"It's me, father!" Linley was no longer able to control himself, and his tears came falling down.

Yale, George, Bebe, and the others just watched from afar, smiling as they saw father and son reunite again, after three thousand years had passed.

Book 20, The Crown's Riddle – Chapter 1, Father and Son

Hogg's eyes were moist. His body trembled from excitement as he carefully looked at this familiar-feeling youth.

He looked at those eyebrows...those two eyes...that nose...

At the same time, he compared them to the memories he had of the young Linley.

"Linley, it really...really is you?" Hogg's voice was hoarse, and his eyes were red.

"It's me, Father. It really is me!" Linley impatiently wanted to prove himself. "Father, do you remember how, back when we were in our ancestral hall, you asked me to pay my respects to the ancestors of our clan? Do you still remember how you tested me for the Dragonblood in my veins? And...I told you that I had three good friends at the Institute. Two of them are here!"

Linley immediately pointed towards the nearby Yale. "Look. That's Yale, of the Dawson Conglomerate. And there; that's George of the Yulan Empire!"

"And me!" Bebe flew out as well, staring at Hogg. "Uncle Hogg, remember me? I'm that little Shadowmouse." As he spoke, Bebe's body flickered as he transformed into a little black mouse, hopping onto Linley's shoulders while still speaking in the human tongue. "It was Boss who raised me!"

Hogg repeatedly nodded.

"Father, look, the Coiling Dragon ring! You know about it, right?" Linley stretched out his ring.

Hogg, hearing this, began to weep from joy. "Right. Right!" He couldn't help but stretch his arms out, taking Linley into his embrace. He clapped his hands against Linley's back repeatedly. "Haha, it really is you. Linley. This is wonderful. Haha. This really is wonderful." Hogg was so excited that he was stammering.

He had died, then been transformed into an undead. He had spent two thousand-plus years as an undead, then suddenly regained his memories and been brought here.

And then, his son had suddenly appeared in front of him.

How could he not be excited? Not be happy?

"Father, come. Let's go inside. Let's go inside and chat." Linley wiped his tears dry, then immediately took his father by the hand and led him flying towards the rear courtyard of the Abyssal Inn.

To be able to see his father was a sort of joy which surpassed the joy and excitement Linley had felt upon finding out that he had become a Soul Mutate. Linley felt like he had returned to his youth, when he learned from his father regarding culture and more. Whenever he didn't do well, he would be hit on the palm. Back then, he felt it was quite painful, but thinking back to it now gave him a warm feeling.

The death of his father had caused Linley to sink into an abyss of darkness. He was willing to give up everything for revenge.

But now...

Everything was better!

Within the room.

A group of people were seated around two tables, while Hogg was still feeling completely mystified. He hurriedly asked Linley, "Linley, what is going on here? Before, I was a Saint-level Black Knight. How did I suddenly regain my memory and be brought here, then see you?"

Hogg had never heard of an undead regaining its memories.

"The Boss asked the Sovereign to do it." Bebe chortled.

"Haha." The nearby Dixie sighed, then said, "Uncle Hogg, in the past two thousand years, Linley has gone beyond just being a genius student at the Ernst Institute. He is an expert who stands at the very peak of the Netherworld, the Infernal Realm, and the other Higher Realms. It was he who asked the Sovereign to restore all of our memories and send for people to find us, then bring us here. Myself, Yale, and George; we were all brought back by Seven Star Specter level experts.

"He asked the Sovereign to find us, and even arrange for people to bring us?"

Hogg couldn't help but look at his son, who stood before him. In the Yulan continent, Hogg knew that his son had potential, but Hogg only believed that Linley would one day become a powerful magus, or perhaps even bring back their family's ancestral heirloom. But...ask a Sovereign for favors? Hogg felt his head spin, just thinking about it.

"Linley, how are you..." Hogg didn't even know what to ask.

Ask about his son's level of power? What his son had been doing these years?

"Boss is a Highgod Paragon." Bebe said proudly. The nearby Yale and the others, over the past few years, had learned this as well.

"What's a Paragon?" Hogg asked.

Bebe was startled.

Previously, Yale and Bebe's parents were also unaware of what being a 'Paragon' meant. Only after hearing an explanation did they understand. Bebe's mother, that violet-robed woman, said with a laugh, "Hogg, being a Highgod Paragon means...amongst Deities, your son is an unmatched individual! Even Sovereigns would warmly invite him to become an Emissary for them."

"Amongst Deities...he's unmatched?" Hogg blinked several times, staring at Linley in astonishment.

Hogg had the sense that everything that had happened today – seeing Linley, hearing all these things – was all a dream.

Hogg's reaction was what everyone had thought it would be. When Yale and George had asked about Linley's abilities, after they were given clear answers, they had also been stunned for a long time. Everyone knew exactly how many Deities there were in the Netherworld and Infernal Realm. They were counted in the trillions.

There were countless Deities in the countless planes. How terrifyingly powerful must one be, to stand at the very top of this pyramid?

Hogg had experienced two thousand years of life in the Undead Realm, and his mental fortitude was now much greater than before. He quickly recovered, then his eyes lit up and he asked hurriedly, "Linley, your mother's death. It was that Duke Patterson of the Kingdom of Fenlai... were you able to get vengeance?"

"He died. I personally killed him." Linley said solemnly.

"And the person behind him? Did you find out who it was?" Hogg said frantically.

Hogg had found out that behind Duke Patterson, there was yet another figure controlling things from behind the scenes. However, he was attacked and pursued by Patterson's forces before he was able to figure out who that person was, and then Hogg had died.

"I did. Behind him was the King of Fenlai, 'Clayde.'" Linley nodded. "Afterwards, in the city of Hess, I killed Clayde!"

"It was King Clayde?" Hogg was stunned.

"Although I killed Clayde, this matter still wasn't finished. Mother had been offered by Clayde to the Radiant Church. It was the Radiant Church which killed my mother, then offered Mother's soul to the Chief Sovereign of Light." Linley's voice was very low. Linley still harbored tremendous hatred for the Radiant Church. It could be said that Doehring Cowart also died due to the Radiant Church.

Hogg, hearing this, frowned. A baleful aura gathered on his face, and he said in a low voice, "The Radiant Church?"

"Afterwards, I eradicated the Radiant Church, pulling them out by the roots." Linley continued.

Hogg glanced at his son, startled. In the Yulan continent, the Radiant Church had been an enormous entity. Still Hogg knew that, logically, given that his son was now at the peak of power, it made sense that in the past, he would be capable of eradicating the Radiant Church.

"Everything has been resolved!" Hogg let out a long sigh, then shook his head and laughed self-mockingly. "I was too stubborn. It has been two thousand years, but I still haven't been able to forget these matters. Still, what's the point of thinking of them? Lina died long ago."

"Father. Mother didn't truly die." Linley said.

"Eh?" Hogg's eyes instantly lit up, and he appeared full of energy as he stared towards Linley with hope in his eyes.

Linley nodded solemnly. "Father, when Mother was killed, her soul was offered to the Chief Sovereign of Light. She should currently be one of the Angels of the Divine Light Plane! Only, those who have been transformed into Angels are absolutely loyal to the Sovereigns of Light...to help Mother acquire her freedom and have her be with us again will be very hard."

"You...even you cannot accomplish it?" Hogg asked hurriedly.

Currently, as Hogg saw it, given that his son was one of the most powerful of Deities, and that even Sovereigns would fight over having Linley be an Emissary for them, his son's status should be enough for an Angel to be restored to her free will. Hogg felt that this shouldn't be hard.

"I have no confidence in being able to do so." Linley shook his head.

The nearby Bebe said, a sour look on his face, "The Chief Sovereign of Death said that even if she personally went to speak to the Chief Sovereign of Light about this, it still would be unlikely. For even the Chief Sovereign of Death to be unable to accomplish this...the chances of Boss going and succeeding are most likely very, very low." Bebe didn't have any confidence in Linley either.

Linley himself felt rather guilty over this!

"Haha, forget it." Hogg let out a long sigh, then laughed, "Linley, we should thank the heavens that the two of us, father and son, are able to meet again. To reunite with your mother as well? That's just a vain hope. Don't worry about it. That's just looking for trouble."

"Father..." Linley looked at his father, astonished.

From the final letter his father had left before his death, Linley understood how deep his father's love for his mother was. His father was willing to die for her; why was he now willing to give up so easily?

"Forget about it. How can everything in the world truly be perfect and as we desire?" Hogg said with a soft laugh.

That very day, Hogg, Linley, Yale, George, and the others began to energetically discuss the various matters that had happened to their homeland, the Yulan continent. Afterwards, Hogg began to discuss his life as an undead, while Linley discussed his experiences over the past three thousand years. Hogg now truly understood how long a journey Linley had embarked on. He felt worried each time he listened to Linley narrate one of his dangerous experiences, but at the same time, a feeling of pride swelled within his chest.

In front of the Abyssal Inn. Linley's group was preparing to depart.

"Wait a moment. I'll come over in a bit." Linley said to his father and friends, then walked to the pool which was in the center of the grassy area close to the Abyssal Inn. Next to the pool, there was a beautiful, red-haired maiden who was fishing happily. Others didn't know who the red-haired maiden truly was, but Linley knew.

She liked to personally witness one expert of the Netherworld after another come here in search the Abyssal Fruit, then die. The Chief Sovereign of Death.

Putting aside her fishing rod, the red-haired maiden turned to glance at Linley. "What, you are leaving?"

Linley could notice the spatial distortions nearby; the Chief Sovereign of Death had created a spatial barrier, preventing others from listening in and preventing their words from leaking out. Linley sighed inwardly at the terrifying strength of the Chief Sovereign of Death, then replied, "Yes, Sovereign. The six people I was waiting to receive have already arrived. Thank you, Sovereign, for the pains you have taken over during this period of time."

The red-haired maiden smiled slightly, revealing pearly, pristine white teeth. "The first time I saw you, you were just a little fellow who had just barely reached the level of a commander. In the blink of an eye, you've become a Paragon."

"Sovereign, there is one last thing I would like to ask you to help me with." Linley hesitated slightly, then spoke out.

"You really are troublesome. Speak." Over the past few years, Linley often met the Chief Sovereign of Death around the Abyssal Inn, and so their relationship had improved significantly.

"Sovereign, I wish to find a Seven Star Specter named 'Odin'. I don't know if you have any method by which you can accomplish this?" Linley asked expectantly. During this recent time period, Yale had always wanted to go find Odin, but unfortunately, the Netherworld was endlessly vast. Although Linley was powerful, looking for Odin was like searching for a needle in the sea.

"Find a Seven Star Specter? Odin?" The red-haired maiden frowned slightly. She couldn't help but give out a faint snort. "Do you really think that I'm bored and have nothing better to do? I have no idea what sort of spiritual aura this 'Odin' of yours has. All you give me is a name; how am I supposed to find him? Unless, of course, he was once undead. Only then can I use the Netherworld Heart to look for him. Otherwise, there is no way."

Linley could only laugh awkwardly.

It was indeed hard to find someone with just a name. It was precisely because it was hard that Linley had come to bother the Chief Sovereign of Death about this. Linley thought that the Netherworld Heart would be able to find him, but from the sound of it, only those who had once become undead could be found through the Netherworld Heart.

"To find a single person shouldn't be too hard, given your current status." The red-haired maiden laughed softly. "Just find a Specter Castle and issue a mission. Say that you want to find a Seven Star Specter named Odin. The missions that you, Linley, issue? I imagine there will be some commanders and Lord Prefects who would fight over the chance."

Perhaps few ordinary Highgods would have heard of Linley, but amongst the commanders and Lord Prefects, within a thousand years, most likely all of them would have learned of his name.

The red-haired maiden then turned her head and went back to her fishing. "Enough. You can leave now!"

"Thank you, Sovereign." Linley bowed slightly, then turned and left.

"Let's go. Let's go to the Sacred Undead Mountain!" Linley smiled towards his father and his friends, then released an enormous metallic lifeform. It hovered there in midair, and then this group of experts boarded it. With a flash, the metallic lifeform transformed into a speck of light, disappearing into the horizon.

Book 20, The Crown's Riddle – Chapter 2, An Inescapable Calamity

The metallic lifeform advanced at high speed, and within it, laughter rang out uninterrupted.

"Boss Yale, don't worry. Third Bro gave you his word. Odin is definitely going to die." George snickered nearby. Yale's hatred towards Odin had sunk into Yale's very soul. Unless and until he truly killed Odin, Yale would forever feel a thorn in his heart.

Yale nodded, then chuckled towards Linley. "Sorry to trouble you, Third Bro."

"From the Abyssal Mountain to the Sacred Undead Mountain will take quite some time." Linley said with a laugh. "On the way over, I'll use my divine sense to search, and also control the metallic lifeform to fly by some important areas. Perhaps on our journey, I will find Odin."

Linley's spiritual power was more powerful than even when using Sovereign's Might.

The spatial bindings controlling the Netherworld were far weaker than those which controlled the Planar Battlefield. In the Netherworld, through using his divine sense, Linley was able to reach to a distance of eight million kilometers! The metallic lifeform which Linley controlled could roughly fly roughly ten million kilometers each day. At this speed, Linley only had to search once a day.

Searching personally, and issuing a mission; these were two methods.

If searching failed, then he would issue a mission. Given Linley's prestige and power, finding Odin wouldn't be hard!

"If we find him on the journey, that would be wonderful." Yale said with a smile.

Linley, seeing Yale like this, couldn't help but sigh mentally. In the past, Yale had always been dissolute, free, and easy. But now, Linley realized how great a mental pressure Yale felt. Hatred had gnawed away at Yale's soul, and although Yale wanted to relax and be dissolute once more, he wasn't able to.

Under Linley's control, the metallic lifeform flew at high speed. In three years time, it reached the borders of Northbone Prefecture.

"After this prefecture, we will be very close to the Sacred Undead Mountain." George chortled.

Bebe mumbled, "Northbone Prefecture is the northernmost prefecture of the Netherworld. We still haven't found Odin. It seems that Boss is going to have to go to the Specter Castle to issue a mission...hmp. We'll just let Odin live a bit longer."

Linley saw that Yale's face was rather ugly right now.

"The impact of Odin's actions on Yale truly are severe." Linley sighed to himself.

Linley could completely understand. If, when Linley was a Saint, a Highgod were to control him to kill his wife, kill his son, kill his brothers, kill his friends...then torture him to death? Most likely, Linley would also go insane with the need for revenge! He would rather die than not get revenge.

Linley patted Yale on the shoulders. "Don't worry. He won't be able to escape."

"Right." Yale squeezed out a smile. "It's fine. I can wait. At least I have a chance for revenge now."

The Netherworld. Northbone Prefecture. The grasslands outside the city of Hide.

There were many soldiers stationed here, and quite a few castles. The number one expert of Northbone Prefecture here was Sayant, a Sovereign's Emissary and the Lord Prefect of Northbone Prefecture. Sayant had quite a few experts under his command, one of whom was the Seven Star Specter, Odin.

A black-robed blur descended from the skies.

"Milord!" The soldiers immediately bowed.

"Mm." The black-robed man nodded calmly, then strode inside.

Moments later, the black-robed figure saw Sayant.

"Lord Prefect, the matter is dealt with." The black-robed figure said respectfully to Sayant. Sayant was dressed in a white robe, and was reclining against a chair, holding a book and leisurely flipping through it. Hearing the report from the black-robed figure, he smiled and nodded. "Mm. Very well. Right, Odin. Have you heard any news regarding the Planar Wars while traveling outside? Nearly a century should have passed since this Planar War."

Sayant himself didn't participate in the Planar Wars. Given how far away Northbone Prefecture was, news came here at a much slower rate.

"Your subordinate ran into a few people, most of whom were fairly average in strength. I didn't run into a single Lord Prefect or Tartarus Lord level expert. I didn't hear any news regarding the Planar Wars; or, perhaps the news simply takes too long to arrive here. Still, on this trip, your subordinate did find out something else."

"What news have you?" Sayant raised his head, glancing at Odin curiously.

The black-robed Odin revealed a hint of a smile. "Lord Prefect. The news has been made public from the Abyssal Mountain that a fourth person has acquired the Abyssal Fruit! According to my investigations, the name of the person is Bailey."

"Bailey? It seems Linley failed." Sayant laughed as well.

"The Abyssal Mountain is incredibly dangerous." Odin laughed smugly. "Bailey succeeded, so I imagine that Linley must have died within the Abyssal Mountain. Even if he didn't die, given it has been a thousand years, he has probably left the Netherworld by now."

"If Linley knew what was good for him and so retreated, he might still be alive. But from what I saw, he definitely wouldn't easily give up his goal of meeting the Sovereign. Nine out of ten, he died there on the Abyssal Mountain." Sayant laughed calmly. "Enough. Odin, you should now be completely at ease."

Indeed, Linley was Odin's nightmare.

"I feel much more relieved. I won't disturb you any further, Lord Prefect." Odin bowed slightly, then departed.

In the air above Northbone Prefecture.

Just like before, Linley was using his divine sense to search while chatting casually. "We are about to reach the place where the Lord Prefect of Northbone Prefecture, Sayant, lives. Sayant was the one who told me to go to the Abyssal Mountain. To be honest, I need to go thank him for his role in my current accomplishments. Eh?" Linley's face suddenly changed.

"What is it, Boss?" The nearby Bebe said, puzzled.

"Third Bro, did you find Odin?" Yale immediately asked. Whenever he saw any changes on Linley's face while Linley was searching, Yale would suspect that it was Odin. But prior to this, every single time Yale had made this guess, he was wrong.

Linley looked towards Yale. He couldn't help but laugh loudly. "Odin. It's Odin! Haha, Odin has finally revealed himself, and he's right there with Sayant..." A hint of a cold light flashed through Linley's eyes. "It seems that Sayant and his wife intentionally deceived me back then."

Linley was no fool. Upon discovering Odin, he realized that Sayant had lied and was able to guess a few other things.

"Odin is right at Sayant's place?" Bebe understood as well, and he said furiously, "Boss, I told you that Sayant and his wife seemed a bit strange when they spoke with us. They told you go to the Abyssal Mountain, most likely with the intention of letting you die there."

"You still need to thank them." George laughed. "Third Bro, because of them, you had this extraordinary run of luck, allowing you to break through to become a Paragon. If Odin and them were to know, they would regret it endlessly."

Linley hadn't yet publicized the fact that he was a Soul Mutate, as when too many people knew a secret, it would easily slip out. He only said that he was a Paragon.

"Right. I really do need to thank them." Linley swept his gaze towards the northeast, then growled, "Let's go. Let's go pay a visit to Sayant and Odin!"

"Odin!" Yale ground his teeth, his eyes sharp.

Instantly, Linley controlled his metallic lifeform to fly forward at top speed.

The Seven Star Specters under the control of the Lord Prefect of Northbone Prefecture all had their own castles.

Odin was currently on the balcony of his castle, leisurely enjoying the sunlight and staring at the vast grasslands.

"Hrm?" Odin raised an eyebrow. There was a metallic lifeform flying over at high speed. The metallic lifeform flew so quickly that Odin was astonished. "Such speed. This metallic lifeform must be a top-tier one. The person who is controlling it must be a supreme expert as well."

"ODIN!"

The growling voice instantly echoed throughout the region in an area of ten thousand kilometers. Many soldiers of Northbone Prefecture, as well as Sayant himself, were startled by it.

"Who is it?" Odin's face changed slightly.

Within Odin's field of vision, the metallic lifeform disappeared, revealing a group of people, with Linley at the lead.

"Linley!" Odin's face changed from terror. "How...how is Linley still alive? Even if he is alive, why did he come back?"

"Swoosh!" The group of figures flew down from the skies.

"Who goes there!" A furious shout rang out. Instantly, the soldiers all rose into the skies, and over a hundred prefectural soldiers moved to block Linley's group.

"Beat it." Linley growled.

An invisible ripple spread out, and instantly this group of soldiers were impacted by it and sent flying back. Fortunately, Linley showed mercy, as otherwise, all of these soldiers would have died instantly.

Linley's group acted as though they were moving into an unpopulated region as they flew downwards, ignoring everyone else. All the soldiers who wanted to block them were sent flying back.

"This...what is this ability?" Odin was stunned.

It was easy to kill Highgods, but the technique Linley had used was truly astonishing.

Linley's group hovered there in midair, staring coldly at Odin.

"Odin. Do you recognize me?" A furious, hateful, teeth-grinding voice rang out. Yale stared death at Odin.

Odin turned to look, and upon seeing Yale, laughed coldly. "Haha, and here I was, wondering who it was. So it is the Chairman of the Dawson Conglomerate. I didn't imagine that after becoming an undead, you would then become a Deity. This really was outside my expectations. For you to be able to meet again with your brother after becoming a Deity; how rare!"

Odin didn't seem to be afraid at all.

"Linley." A gentle voice rang out.

Linley turned to look. From afar, five figures were flying over at high speed, with the leader being the Lord Prefect of Northbone Prefecture, Sayant, along with his wife, Anita. By their sides were three other subordinates, who were most likely experts at the Seven Star Specter level.

"Sayant." Linley greeted him.

"Linley, you should've let me know that you were coming. I would've gone to welcome you." Sayant said with a laugh. As he spoke, Sayant's group of five flew next to Odin, while Linley didn't move to block him at all.

The two sides stared at each other there in midair, with many prefectural soldiers watching.

Most likely, once Sayant gave the order, these prefectural soldiers would all charge en masse.

"Let you know in advance?" Linley let out a calm laugh. "Sayant, I imagine that if I let you know, you would've had Odin hide...haha, I really didn't expect that you, Sayant, a noble Lord Prefect, would play this sort of trick on me. This is a bit too laughable."

Sayant's face sank.

Linley's words made him feel very uncomfortable!

"Hmph. He's just an Elder of the Azure Dragon clan." Sayant snickered mentally. "Prior to this, I was worried that Linley was a Paragon, but since he didn't acquire the Abyssal Fruit at the Abyssal Mountain, he's definitely not a Paragon." Sayant had only been worried about Linley's level of strength due to the intelligence reports he had received from the eight great clans.

But the results of Linley's trip to the Abyssal Mountain had put Sayant at ease.

Indeed...if Linley had already been a Paragon, acquiring the Abyssal Fruit would have been very easy.

"Sayant, stand aside. This has nothing to do with you." Linley said calmly. "My target is just a single person. Him. Odin." Linley stared at Odin.

Odin looked at Sayant.

Sayant chuckled as he looked at Linley. "Linley, I've been fairly courteous to you. Why must you act so brazenly? Odin is my subordinate. If I were to allow you to kill him just because you asked me to, then how would I, Sayant, be able to hold onto my position as Lord Prefect? Since he is my subordinate, I definitely won't permit you to take him away. Linley...if you are wise, you will leave immediately. Otherwise, if we shed all pretense of cordiality, it won't be good."

Sayant was completely confident in himself.

"Sayant." Bebe began to curse furiously. "Last time, you intentionally lied to us to have us go to the Abyssal Mountain. We haven't even settled accounts with you about that; we are already giving you face. You are simply a Lord Prefect; who do you think you are, to put on airs in front of me and my Boss? Are you qualified to act like this?" After having experienced the Planar Wars, Bebe held Sayant in no regard at all.

Bebe was completely confident in being able to kill Sayant.

"Impudent!" Sayant's face turned ugly, and he let out a growl.

Suddenly, a long black spear appeared in Sayant's hands, and a terrifying aura spread forth from the spear. The nearby Odin, seeing this, laughed.

"Swoosh!" Sayant charged straight towards Bebe. Clearly, Bebe's words had infuriated him.

The strange thing was...

Linley's body didn't move, but a blurred figure had appeared in front of Sayant.

"Bang!" A kick landed directly across Sayant's chest. Sayant was like a sandbag, and was knocked back downwards. "Boom!" He smashed into the corner of the castle, and then landed on the ground. At this moment, Linley's 'body' slowly disappeared, while that blurred figure reformed into Linley's true body.

Odin, the other Seven Star Fiends, Lady Anita, and the watching prefectural soldiers were all stunned.

"Ugh." Sayant spat out a mouthful of blood. He lay there on the ground, staring at Linley in terror.

What sort of speed was this?

Linley stood there in midair, staring down at the prone Sayant. Calmly, he said, "Be a good boy and stand over there. If you continue to act so arrogantly, I will show no more mercy." After speaking, Linley turned to stare at Odin, his gaze cold.

Odin's face turned ashen, and his body began to tremble.

Book 20, The Crown's Riddle – Chapter 3, Power

Odin lowered his head, staring in terror at Sayant, who lay stricken on the ground. He sent mentally, "Lord Prefect, Lord Prefect!" Odin was now truly frantic. Having seen Linley's displayed power, Odin now knew...there was no way he could resist at all. In his desperation, all he could do was place his hopes on Lord Prefect Sayant.

"Shut your mouth!" Sayant snarled angrily through divine sense.

Sayant's eyes were red, and his heart was filled with rage. He had been kicked to the ground with so many soldiers watching. This was an insult! For someone of Sayant's status to suffer this sort of humiliation was something that had to be avenged. But he didn't have the ability to do so at all!

The surrounding soldiers all stared at Linley, stunned, then at Sayant, who lay there on the ground, covered in blood.

"To attempt to gain revenge will only result in one thing. Death. I have to endure it. Endure it!" Sayant felt all the more humiliated with so many people staring at him. "If I die, then everything is finished. Linley probably really is a Paragon. Even if others hear of this story, it's not embarrassing for me to have lost by his hand." This was how Sayant consoled himself.

He, Sayant, worried about his face. Odin, however, was worried about his puny little life.

"If I don't run now, I'll have no hope." With a 'whoosh', Odin dove underground, wanting to hide himself underground and flee.

"Hmph."

Linley smiled calmly, and then his body transformed into a blur as he moved to stand below Odin.

"Whap!" Linley delivered a slap directly to Odin's face, knocking him flying into the air. Odin slammed into the side of the castle wall like a sandbag. With a low, thudding sound, the castle wall split apart. "How terrifyingly fast." Odin had yet to recover from his terror, but Linley was already once more in front of him.

Odin looked at Linley, his face filled with terror.

Linley just reached out calmly while sending out 108 surges of earthen yellow energy which formed into a cocoon, completely binding Odin within it. The terrifying compressive power made it so that Odin wasn't able to move at all.

Even Hemmers, an expert whose material attack power was comparable to Paragons, was dramatically impacted by this technique of Linley's.

How could a mere Seven Star Specter possibly have the power to resist against the oppressive power of Linley's Will?

He was paralyzed!

"Yale, you choose how he dies." Linley turned to look at Yale, who flew over, his eyes filled with savagery.

"Ahhhhhhhh!" Odin howled, frantically trying to break free from the oppressive power binding him.

It must be understood that even when Linley had just become a Highgod, his Gravitational Space was already capable of making it hard for ordinary Seven Star Fiends to resist. Now that it was infused with the power of his Will, it was increased more than a hundredfold in strength. Odin was like a trapped beast in a cage; although he howled with savagery, he wasn't able to extricate himself at all.

"You want to kill me? Haha...kid, you think you are worthy of killing me?" Odin's eyes were scarlet red as he stared at Yale, contempt in his gaze.

"Linley, if you are so tough, kill me yourself!" Odin howled.

By now, Odin realized that there was no hope.

Sayant, Anita, their subordinates, and the soldiers all quietly watched from far away as Odin struggled like a trapped beast. Earlier, they wanted to intervene, wanted to attack and drive Linley back, but after Linley made his move, they no longer had any thoughts of fighting back.

"Kill you myself?" Linley laughed calmly. "In your dreams."

"Hmph." Odin suddenly laughed coldly, and a translucent ripple shot out from Odin's eyes, shooting towards Yale.

"Crunch." The earthen yellow cocoon which surrounded Odin spat out a translucent sword-shaped ripple which destroyed this soul attack. Linley gave Odin a disdainful, calm look. "Odin, now that you are trapped within my Gravitational Prison, you aren't able to fight back at all. Don't try to be tricky."

"Make your move." Linley looked at Yale.

Yale nodded slightly, a deep azure spear appearing in his hands.

"My brothers. My wife. My children. My parents..." Yale's body was trembling, and his lips were white as he stared at Odin. And then, Yale suddenly bent backwards like a greatbow being pulled, then savagely exploded forth, throwing the spear in his hand forward with endless power and sending it piercing towards Odin.

Swoosh...

"Clank!" The deep azure spear pierced towards Odin, but it wasn't even able to break through his skin.

Yale was stunned.

"Ha...haha..." Odin raised his head, laughing loudly, laughing wildly. "Linley, oh, Linley. You want your friend to kill me? Haha. He's a Demigod! I'm a Seven Star Specter, a Highgod! My energy defense alone is comparable that of a Highgod artifact. His bit of attack power isn't even capable of breaking through my skin. Haha, kill me? In his dreams!!!"

Yale's face turned pale.

"I...I..." Yale's body trembled. "I want to get revenge, but I..."

Linley had already captured Odin and gave him to Yale for Yale to kill, but Yale's attack power was simply too low; Odin was, after all, a Seven Star Specter. Even if he didn't use his fused profound mysteries in activating his divine power, his material defense was still close to a Highgod artifact in strength. In terms of soul defense, Odin, who trained in the Edicts of Death, was even mightier. Yale wasn't able to harm him at all."

Odin glared savagely at Yale, as though he wanted to eat him alive. "Punk, you want to kill me? In your dreams! The power you possess isn't enough to even harm a single hair on my body!"

"Odin." Linley gave him a calm glance.

"Linley, what are you being so arrogant about?" Knowing that he was about to die, Odin actually became fearless, and he stared at Linley, laughing loudly. "Didn't you want your brother to kill me? Unfortunately, he's too weak. Even though you captured me and gave me to him for him to kill, he still isn't able to do it. It is fated that he will never be able to personally take revenge! Haha...I still remember the look on the faces of Yale's family members when they all died. How delightful!"

"Bastard!" Yale bellowed.

"You aren't able to kill me. There's no way you'll be able to personally take revenge." Odin laughed delighted.

A layer of frost appeared on Linley's face.

"Absorb this into your body, then activate it." With a flip of his hand, Linley produced a drop of black liquid, which floated towards Yale.

"Huh?" Odin's face changed.

"Aren't you very powerful? You are only an ordinary Seven Star Specter, and one who trains in the Edicts of Death. I want to see if your body is tough enough to withstand a strike which uses Sovereign power!" Linley laughed calmly.

Yale's eyes lit up.

"Third Bro, thank you." Yale immediately absorbed the drop of Sovereign's Might into his body, and then, with a 'bang' sound, black light exploded forth from Yale's body as a terrifying aura spread out from it. Yale held that deep azure spear, which swirled with black light. Yale let out a deep growl...

"DIE!"

Yale struck out as fast as lightning, stabbing wildly with that deep azure spear towards Odin.

"NO!!!!" Odin only had enough time for one final, miserable scream.

Yale didn't stab directly into Odin's head; he wildly, randomly stabbed, leaving more than ten bloody holes throughout Odin's body before finally piercing through his head!

"Huff, huff.." Yale panted wildly as he launched several more stabbing blows, then began to tremble.

Odin just lay there limply, not responding at all. His divine artifacts fell out of his body, but because of the repulsive force, they remained next to him.

"Dead. Odin's dead. I personally killed him." Yale raised his head, laughing wildly, but his tears flowed downwards. Yale seemed to be gripped by madness.

But seeing this, Linley only let out a sigh of relief.

Yale was releasing the hatred that had been pent up deep within his heart. Afterwards, he would be much better.

A long while later, Yale finally regained his former calm. He turned his head to look towards Linley. A grateful look; that was it. Linley laughed, then walked over and patted him on the shoulders. "Let's go." They were brothers who had played together since they were youths. Some words simply didn't need to be said.

George and the others felt happy for Yale as well.

And then, Linley's group of experts boarded their metallic lifeform and left.

As for Sayant, the Lord Prefect of Northbone Prefecture, he and his men all looked at each other, letting out mental sighs of relief.

"Lord Prefect, this Linley is too, too powerful." A nearby azure-robed man said in a low voice. "Odin was a Seven Star Specter, but he was trapped by Linley to the point of not being able to fight back. What sort of technique is this? Also, Linley's speed is utterly inconceivable."

Given how fast they were, when ordinary commanders encountered Paragons, they weren't able to fight back at all.

"Given how fast he was, and how he could use energy to trap a Seven Star Specter...while only using ordinary divine earth power..." Sayant's face was solemn. "This Linley most likely truly is a Paragon."

The people by his side were all stunned.

Paragon?

"Let's go. All of you, go back!" Sayant's face was sinister, and his voice was dark.

"Whooooosh." A wild wind howled, and the wind slashed across the land like knives.

Ironknife Gorge. Within the castle.

Within the wide, empty area, there were two giant teleportation arrays. Suddenly, one of them flashed with countless sparkles of light, and the surrounding Bloodridge soldiers couldn't help but to turn their heads to look.

The light dissipated, and a group of people merged.

One of the Bloodridge soldiers recognized them, and his eyes lit up. He hurriedly bowed. "Greetings again, milord." Last time, when Linley had used this teleportation array to depart, this soldier had clearly seen Linley and knew that Linley had the Bloodridge Sovereign's medallion.

"Mm." Linley nodded slightly. "We will wait here momentarily. We will leave in a bit."

"Please feel free, milord." The Bloodridge soldier smiled.

Linley's group waited there in the air above the vast, empty area. Bebe mumbled, "Boss, it should be fairly fast for you to arrive from the Yulan continent. Why haven't you arrived yet? It's been a thousand years since I've seen Ninny, and Nana..." Bebe missed his wife and daughter.

"We are almost here." Linley said with a laugh. "It takes a bit of time for us to all fly from the Yulan continent to the Arctic Icecap..."

"Linley, little Wharton is coming as well, right?" Hogg was rather nervous and excited.

"Yes, Father." Linley laughed and nodded.

His father hadn't seen Wharton in a very long time. Wharton had been sent off to the O'Brien Empire very early on, and when his father had died, the last mental impression he had of Wharton was most likely the toddler Wharton. Linley said with a laugh, "Father, I imagine once you see Wharton, you won't be able to recognize him right away."

"I will definitely be able to recognize him." Hogg was completely certain.

"Oh, we just entered the teleportation array. We are coming." Linley said. His divine fire clone was coming alongside this large group of people.

Immediately, everyone turned to look at the teleportation array, only to see it once more flash with countless specks of light. Moments later, the light finally, completely vanished. A large group of people was gathered there, with the leader being Linley's divine fire clone and Delia. The divine fire clone flew towards Linley, merging into him.

Upon merging in, the five souls intermixed.

Instantly...

Linley's four mutated souls began to send surges of spiritual energy towards the divine fire clone's soul, which slowly began to change. After all, the five souls were one to begin with.

"Father." Wade, Taylor, and Sasha all ran towards Linley.

"FATHER!!!!" Wharton stood there, staring at Hogg, stunned.

Hogg stared at this burly, muscular youth in front of him. Wharton had a hint of Hogg in his face, and was fairly similar in appearance to Linley as well. But more importantly...when Hogg looked into Wharton's eyes, it was as though he was looking back into the big eyes of toddler Wharton. "Wharton?" Hogg said softly.

"It's me, Father." Wharton ran forward, tightly embracing Hogg.

"Wonderful. Wonderful." Hogg couldn't keep his eyes from turning red.

After a long while, the two, father and son, separated.

"Father, look. This is your grandson, Wade. This is Taylor. This is your granddaughter, Sasha..." Linley walked forward, laughing as he made the introductions.

Wharton hurriedly made some introductions of his own. "Father, this is your grandson, Cena...and him. Arnold, quick, come over here. This is your great-grandfather. Father, this chubby-faced fellow is Arnold's son." Many people had come on this trip. Everyone who had reached the Saint-rank had come, leaving behind only a few people.

"Wonderful. Wonderful." Hogg nodded repeatedly. All he could do was repeatedly smile.

"Alright, Father, let's head to the Skyrise Mountains first." Linley laughed.

This giant group of people immediately boarded the metallic lifeform and flew out from Ironknife Gorge.

Those Bloodridge soldiers all stared there, stupefied. They glanced at each other.

"Important people really are different! In one breath, he brought an entire family of more than a hundred people to the Infernal Realm. Grandfathers, grandchildren...there really were quite a few people."

"Right, Captain. Why did you address that brown-haired man as 'milord'. Who is he?"

"You don't know this, but last time, when I was on duty, that brown-haired man came bearing the medallion of the Sovereign, using it to activate the teleportation portal for free! Even most Emissaries don't possess that medallion. Only a person with a certain status will be able to acquire a treasure like that." The Bloodridge soldiers, bored, chattered amongst themselves.

As for Linley's family, they all made haste towards the Skyrise Mountains.

Book 20, The Crown's Riddle – Chapter 4, The Clan's Changes

The Bloodridge Continent. Indigo Prefecture. The Skyrite Mountains.

The Patriarch of the Azure Dragon clan, Gislason, was seated in his estate's living room. Gislason was currently accompanying a skinny bald elder. They were chatting and laughing.

"Gislason, why be modest? Haha, back when we were in the Chaotic Sea, when you, me, and those several other fellows took on that Fiend mission to go kill that Valentine [Wa'lun'ding]. Me and the others, we were just there to serve as props. It was you, Gislason, who released your might and unleashed that innate divine ability of your Azure Dragon clan, as well as that supremely powerful material attack to slay Valentine in one blow. That memory has always stayed with me." The bald elder said with a laugh.

"Haha, Bagleaf [Bai'ge'lei'fu], that was so many years ago." Gislason said modestly, but his face was still covered with a smile.

"Yes, it was long ago. Still, you were so incredible all those years ago; I imagine that by now, Gislason, your strength is so great that I am no match for it." The bald elder's words clearly contained flattery within them.

However, flattery depended on the speaker.

If an ordinary Highgod were to say such things, Gislason would be annoyed just listening to it. But the current speaker was a supreme expert whose power was no less than Gislason's, and one of Gislason's older friends. Flattery from a person like this naturally made Gislason feel quite happy.

"Haha, don't say that." Gislason grinned widely.

The bald elder, Bagleaf, said with a sigh, "This time, I've come to visit you, old friend, partially because I want to visit that Paragon your Azure Dragon clan produced. It seems my luck is quite poor."

Gislason, hearing this, immediately laughed. "Bagleaf, the Planar Wars concluded just a century ago. Linley probably hasn't returned from the Netherworld yet. Don't worry. After Linley returns, when you come visit, I will definitely introduce you to Linley. Linley...although he is a true genius of our Azure Dragon clan, he is quite a decent fellow and likes to make friends." As he spoke, Gislason let out a sigh of approval.

The bald elder stood up, then laughed. "Fine, then I'll wait for next time. I've disturbed you for so long...I should return as well. In the future, when I have time, I'll definitely seek you out and we can reminisce together."

"You are always welcome." Gislason stood up as well, then escorted the bald elder away.

"No need to escort me away." The bald elder smiled and nodded. Gislason stood there at the door to the hall, watching as the bald elder flew away.

Moments later, someone entered from outside. It was Elder Garvey.

"Patriarch, Commander Bagleaf left?" Garvey laughed as he walked in.

"Right." Gislason smiled back.

Garvey couldn't help but laugh. "Patriarch, this seems to be the ninth supreme expert who has come to visit in the past few decades."

Soon after the Planar Wars concluded, commander-level experts began to come to the Four Divine Beasts clan to pay their respects. The person these experts truly wished to see was Linley. Even if they weren't able to meet Linley, however, they still worked to improve their relationships with the four clan leaders of the Four Divine Beasts clan. The current Four Divine Beasts clan...now had a different status, in the eyes of these commanders.

"Hmph." Gislason snickered. "Nine of them! These commanders all saw that our Four Divine Beasts clan produced a Paragon, and so all of them came to express their friendliness towards us. But when our Four Divine Beasts clan was in such dire straits and forced to flee and hide by the eight great clans, aside from Mr. Beirut, none of them came to help us!"

"That Bagleaf, just now." Gislason snorted. "In the past, we had a good relationship, when our ancestor was alive. He would often come to visit. But after our clan fell, and when our Four Divine Beasts clan was forced by those eight great clans to the point of annihilation...I didn't see Bagleaf appear. But now, he wants to talk about our past friendship?"

There were few who would come to send coal in the snow, but many who would add flowers to a wreath.

Now that the Four Divine Beasts clan had a Paragon, its status naturally was different.

Paragons represented true supremacy amongst Deities! For example, the eight great clans that had been attacking the Four Divine Beasts clan; although they were powerful, a Highgod Paragon was more than enough to slaughter all of the experts within their clan.

"This is understandable." Garvey laughed. "Only...I still find it unbelievable that Linley has become a Paragon."

Hearing this, Gislason's eyes lit up as well, and he laughed loudly. "You aren't the only one. I find it inconceivable as well! Almost no one in our Four Divine Beasts clan dares to believe this news. When Linley left the clan, he was nothing more than a fairly powerful Seven Star Fiend, close to commander-level. But who would have imagined that a thousand years later, he would become a Paragon? If it hadn't been for the fact that so many people came and said the same thing, and that they were all supreme experts who couldn't possibly be lying, even I probably wouldn't believe it."

"A Paragon." Garvey let out a sigh of amazement.

Ever since the news that Linley was a Paragon had spread, the various commander-level experts began to discuss this amongst themselves, and so quite a few had come to pay their respects to the Four Divine Beasts clan.

This naturally caused the members of the Four Divine Beasts clan to feel as though the status of their clan was rising!

They had given birth to a Paragon! The status of the Four Divine Beasts clan was now far greater than before. Aside from Sovereigns, nobody would dare to offend the Four Divine Beasts clan. As for Sovereigns...how could they possibly lower themselves to go deal against a clan?

"Garvey." Gislason suddenly said.

"Patriarch?" Garvey looked towards him, puzzled.

Gislason said hurriedly, "Have the communications teams been assigned to the borders of the mountains?"

"They have all been assigned." Garvey laughed. "Patriarch, don't worry. If Linley returns from the Netherworld, as long as he reaches the borders of these mountains, the news will quickly be communicated to you and the other three clan leaders. All of the arrangements for Linley's return have been made as well, including the construction of his mansion."

"Very good." Gislason laughed and nodded. "Nothing can go amiss! Linley came from the Yulan Plane, and so he never had an extremely strong sense of belonging here in the clan. After those things happened with Forhan and his son...although Linley still treats the clan quite well because of Baruch's group, we still need to make up for the past!"

"I understand." Garvey nodded.

As far as Gislason and the Grand Elder were concerned, the current Paragon-level Linley was even more important to them than Beirut!

Beirut was powerful, but he was still an outsider. If the clan were to face a crisis, Beirut might not necessarily intervene.

But Linley was one of their own!

Although in the past, there were some misunderstandings, in the end, he was still a member of the Azure Dragon clan. What needed to be done now...was to remove those misunderstandings in Linley's heart and let Linley feel a true sense of belonging, here within the Four Divine Beasts clan.

Indigo Prefecture. An enormous dragon-shaped metallic lifeform was flying at high speed in the air above the mountains and forests.

Within the metallic lifeform was a rowdy scene of joy.

"Grandpa!"

"Great Grandpa!"

A group of youths surrounded Hogg, constantly discussing various matters. Hogg looked at his grandchildren, his face wreathed in smiles.

"Big Bro, look at how happily Father has been laughing." Wharton and Linley were at the edges of the central room of this metallic lifeform. The two brothers were chatting amongst each other.

Linley glanced at his father, who was smiling calmly while accompanying his descendants, then nodded. "In the past, when we were young, our Baruch clan had already sunk to a very low point. In Father's entire life, aside from Mother and the two of us, the only thing he cared about was the clan! Father cared deeply about the ability of the clan to thrive. Now that more generations have appeared in the clan...of course Father is happy."

Right at this moment, three people walked over.

"Third Bro!"

Yale, George, and Reynolds walked over. Reynolds had hurried over from the Yulan continent as well.

"Boss Yale, Second Bro, Fourth Bro. Come, sit over here." Linley laughed as he pointed. Yale and the other two all sat down. Reynolds chortled, glancing outside the window and sighing in praise. "The Infernal Realm, one of the Higher Realms. This is my first time here. Indeed...the density of the elemental aura here is very great. Only, it is filled with constant slaughter."

From within the metallic lifeform, they were able to see the constant battles going on below.

"That's what the Infernal Realm is like." Linley said with a calm laugh.

"It is the same in the Undead Realm. Experts live, experts die. Fourth Bro, I'm impressive, aren't I? I survived in the Undead Realm for so many years." Yale raised a smug eyebrow.

Seeing the look on Yale's face, Reynolds, George, and Linley all felt very happy. This was the real Yale. After killing Odin, Yale no longer felt as heartsick as he previously had.

In the entire central room, there were more than a hundred people scattered about, idly chatting.

Seeing this scene, Linley couldn't help but smile slightly.

Linley enjoyed this happy, content feeling.

"This world...in many cases, it is power which speaks loudest!" Linley looked at the warm scene, and he spoke softly to himself. "I worked hard to train. Only because my power reached a certain level is my father, my friends, and family able to reunite once more. I'm able to bring the entire clan over from the material plane!"

By now, Linley finally had the feeling...

That the bitter efforts he had put into his training over these years had been rewarded.

After flying for a period of time.

"We are about to arrive at the Four Divine Beasts clan." Bebe was within the main room inside the metallic lifeform, and he spoke out in a clear, laughing voice. "Everyone, make your preparations. Right, Uncle." Bebe looked at Hogg. "The ancestors of your Baruch clan are there, Uncle. Baruch, Ryan, the others..."

"The ancestors of the Baruch clan..." Hogg stood up, rather excited. He walked to the sides of the windows, staring through the translucent metal 'windows' to the outside.

He could already vaguely make out the Skyrite Mountains.

"The ancestors of the clan!"

Taylor, Sasha, and the other members of the clan all began to chatter about this. Ever since they were young, they were always, repeatedly reminded that they were members of the 'Baruch clan'. They were filled with great veneration towards the legendary figures of the clan, but didn't actually feel much towards the Four Divine Beasts clan.

"It's right up ahead." Linley said with a calm laugh.

The metallic lifeform instantly vanished, while Linley and more than a hundred people hovered there in midair, flying towards the Azure Dragon clan's location within the Skyrite Mountains.

"What a long carving. I can't even see the end of it." The sturdy Arnold sighed in praise.

Linley laughed. "That's not a carving. That's Dragon Avenue! It passes through almost a fourth of the Skyrise Mountains and is more than ten thousand kilometers long. It is the primary avenue which the soldiers of the clan guard."

Linley's group of more than a hundred flew over. The soldiers below naturally saw it, and the communications personnel, prepared long ago for this eventuality, were overjoyed. "Elder Linley is returning!" These communications personnel had divine clones stationed elsewhere, and many of them instantly relied on their divine clones to provide this news to various locations within the Four Divine Beasts clan.

"Patriarch, Elder Linley has returned."

"Oh, Linley returned?" Gislason instantly flew out.

Not just Gislason; the other three clan leaders, along with many other Elders, who had received this news hurried over as well.

Linley and his group of more than a hundred flew over, and as they did, the warriors of the clan all saluted.

"Elder Linley." The warriors were very respectful.

Linley smiled and nodded, then led his group towards the Dragon Avenue of the Skyrise Mountains. At the same time, he introduced the place to Wharton and the others. "The rules of the clan are fairly strict. You have just arrived. In a bit, I'll acquire identity badges for you all. Eh?" Linley suddenly frowned, staring into the distant.

"What's going on?" Bebe glanced at him.

Delia, Nisse, Yale, and the others all looked into the distance. From afar, a large, impressive group of people was flying, with the leader being Gislason, the Black Tortoise Patriarch, and the other two. Behind them was the Grand Elder and other figures.

"Why are all the high level, important members of the clan coming?" Linley was startled. "Even the Vermillion Bird Matriarch is coming. If they flew over from their residences, it should take quite a while. How were they so fast?"

The reaction time of the clan was simply too fast.

As soon as he had arrived, and just as he had reached Dragon Avenue, this large group had arrived as well. Even when Beirut came, only the clan leaders and the Grand Elder would go welcome him.

"Haha, Linley!" Gislason laughed loudly as he flew over.

"Patriarch." Although Linley was somewhat confused, he still went to greet him.

Linley swept the group with his gaze. The Black Tortoise Patriarch, Vermillion Bird Matriarch, and others, including even the Grand Elder who held a grudge for him...their faces were all smiles. They seemed so warm and friendly.

"Although we are in Indigo Prefecture, we've heard long ago of your exploits in the Planar Battlefield. Haha...our Four Divine Beasts clan has produced a Paragon. This is worth us organizing a banquet, to celebrate this joyous event." Gislason seemed quite pleased and excited. "The banquet is already prepared. We've been waiting for you. Haha, Bebe... and oh, these must be Linley's friends. Come, all of you you! Haha."

Book 20, The Crown's Riddle – Chapter 5, Refusal

Gislason's words were very correct. Indeed, the entire clan rejoiced!

Not just the high level members of the clan; even many of the ordinary clan members located throughout the Skyrise Mountains gathered together in various places, drinking, chatting, and laughing gaily. For the clan to have produced such an expert was something which made even the ordinary clansmen feel proud!

When the four ancestors had been alive, the clan had been in such a flourishing, vigorous state!

After they died, the clan had decayed, to the point of being loudly insulted by the eight great clans at the borders of the Skyrise Mountains. This was a humiliation! This caused the members of the clan, who had experienced those glory days, to feel very lost in their hearts!

Linley's sudden rise to prominence caused these clansmen to once more feel proud and arrogant.

It was a very wild celebration. Even the patrolling soldiers drank wine and celebrated. With a Highgod Paragon in the clan, the patrolling soldiers weren't concerned; no one would dare to come and make trouble for the Four Divine Beasts clan.

Late night. The Violet Moon hung high in the skies.

The Skyrite Mountains. Within a mountain controlled by the Azure Dragon clan. There was a large estate which stretched over an enormous amount of land built here. In terms of size, it was even larger than the residence of the Patriarch's. It seemed quite simple and plain from the distance, but if one took a close look...one would see that even the walls were covered with intricate, minute carvings. Given Linley's vision, he could instantly tell that these carvings were only accomplishable by someone who was at least at the grandmaster level in sculpting.

And right now...

In front of this mansion stood only two figures; Linley and Gislason.

Linley couldn't help but look towards the nearby Gislason. He mused to himself, "The Patriarch truly has prepared quite a few things for me."

"Patriarch, I'm going to live here?" Linley asked.

"Linley." Gislason laughed. "You are now the number one expert of our Four Divine Beasts clan! When people in the outside world discuss the Four Divine Beasts clan, the first person they will think about is you. Your residence has to match your stature. In addition, this place is fairly large, and you have many family and friends. It is enough."

Linley couldn't help but nod.

The size of this estate was similar to the 'Dragonblood Castle' of the Yulan continent. Even a thousand people could fit inside, much less a hundred.

"Then I will accept it." Linley was quite straightforward.

Gislason laughed and nodded. "Tomorrow, you can move your family and friends over here." Wharton and the others were currently staying within the large gorge already. Hogg went to go visit his ancestors in the Baruch clan. To Hogg and Wharton, seeing the ancestors of the clan was what mattered the most.

"No rush." Linley said. "My family members will want to spend some time with the Yulan branch and their ancestors."

"Fair enough." Gislason laughed and nodded. "Linley...look." As he spoke, Gislason produced a little jade bottle in his hands.

This jade bottle had a small opening. It was generally used for keeping items like already-refined Golden Soul Pearls or other small pills.

"This is...?" Linley frowned. "Sovereign's Might?"

"Right. Earth-type Sovereign's Might." Gislason laughed. "Linley, I know that you primarily train in the Laws of the Earth. Thus, it is better for you to use earth-type Sovereign's Might. That is why we prepared this for you! You are the number one expert of our clan; naturally, you have to use the most suitable type of Sovereign's Might."

Although this little jade bottle of Sovereign's Might was far from being comparable to the flask Reisgem had given Linley, it still had to have at least a thousand drops in it.

"Patriarch." Linley didn't accept, instead shaking his head. "This jade bottle has far too much Sovereign's Might. Ever since the four ancestors of our clan perished, our Four Divine Beasts clan lost our source for more Sovereign's Might. Each drop we use is a drop lost forever. It is best if you keep them and let the other Elders of the clan use them."

Linley knew that given his own power, even if he used Destruction-type Sovereign's Might, he had nothing to fear from Paragons, and in Dragonform even held a slight advantage.

"Haha..."

Gislason laughed. "Linley, you are worrying too much. In the past, our clan had to be stingy in using Sovereign's Might, partially because we no longer had a source for it, but partially because we were being put under great pressure by the eight great clans. We used up Sovereign's Might too quickly; each battle represented the loss of a drop of Sovereign's Might, and generally, we would engage in tens of battles before being able to kill an enemy Elder. Because they were being used up too quickly, the clan didn't dare to hand them out freely. After all, at that time, we had no idea what the future would hold for the clan...and so we had to be a bit more thrifty."

"But now, Linley, you are a Paragon. Who would dare come offend our Four Divine Beasts clan?" Gislason's laughter was very happy.

Linley, hearing this, was somewhat persuaded by Gislason.

Indeed, given his level of power, there would be few people who would be so blind as to come irritate his clan. There would no longer be that many situations where the clan would use up much Sovereign's Might.

"Take it, Linley." Gislason urged.

Linley hesitated slightly.

"Let's do this, then!" With a flip of his hand, Linley instantly controlled his divine earth power to draw in earth elemental essence from the surrounding area, which formed into the shape of a little black flask in Linley's hands. Linley pointed with one finger, and immediately, a stream of black water appeared out of nowhere in Linley's palms, flowing towards the black flask.

This black 'water' was actually Destruction-type Sovereign's Might.

Linley truly had a very large amount of Destruction-type Sovereign's Might.

Moments later, the flask was filled with it. This flask was roughly ten percent of the canteen in volume.

"What are you...?" Gislason stared.

"Patriarch, let's swap this flask of Destruction-type Sovereign's Might of mine, for that flask of earth-type Sovereign's Might of yours. It is indeed true that if I have earth-type Sovereign's Might, I will be more effective." Laughing, Linley offered the little black flask.

If the clan had a tremendous amount of Sovereign's Might, Linley would have accepted it. But the clan didn't actually have that much; most likely, that little flask represented a large fraction of the clan's reserve of Sovereign's Might.

"Linley." Gislason said hurriedly. "This isn't acceptable. You..."

"Take it, or else I won't take yours." Linley shook his head.

Gislason could only laugh helplessly, then nod. "Fine." He accepted the flask of Destruction-type Sovereign's Might, while Linley accepted the flask of earth-type Sovereign's Might. As Linley was concerned, he had a large amount of Destruction-type Sovereign's Might, but given his power, there would be very few cases in which he would have to use it. To trade it for earth-type Sovereign's Might was beneficial for him.

Time flowed onwards, and in the blink of an eye, more than ten years had passed since Linley's return to the clan.

Linley could sense that the attitude of his clansmen, including the clan leaders, had changed. Linley understood...that after having become a Paragon, he had already become the spiritual leader of the entire Four Divine Beasts clan. His position was now akin to what the War God had held in the O'Brien Empire or the High Priest had held in the Yulan Empire.

The estate in which Linley resided had become a holy ground for the clan.

Within the vast, grassy plains of the estate's courtyard, there was a large group of people gathered. Linley, Reynolds, Yale, and George were seated in a circle, drinking wine and chatting idly about various things. But of course...it was Linley's divine water clone that was chatting with them. The other clones, including his original body, were all training.

It was still Linley's original body that trained the fastest, after all.

"Elder Linley." A gate guard ran over and bowed.

"Hm?" Linley looked at him.

"Elder Linley, the Patriarch has sent word that a Lord Prefect from the Jadefloat Continent wishes to meet you, Elder." The guard bowed as he spoke.

Linley laughed and nodded calmly, then swept out with his divine sense, instantly encompassing the entire Skyrise Mountains within it. Naturally, this included Gislason and that Lord Prefect. Linley sent mentally. "Patriarch, just tell this Lord Prefect that I am currently training and unable to meet with any guests. Unless something important happens, please help me cope with them."

Gislason was startled.

He actually hadn't detected Linley's divine sense at all. He couldn't help but sigh. "Paragons really are incredible. The strength of their spiritual energy vastly surpasses mine." Gislason understood Linley's temperament as well; Linley couldn't be bothered to engage in meetings like this, which were solely for the purpose of people trying to befriend him.

"Alright, I'll help you deal with them." Gislason replied. "Then, in the future, unless there is an important matter, you won't meet with any figures like these?"

"Right." Linley sent mentally. "Aside from people I am familiar with, such as Reisgem. If I'm not familiar with them and have no connection to them, unless there is an important matter, I won't meet with any of them."

Linley's decision was quite wise, because after the arrival of this Lord Prefect from the Jedefloat Continent, every few months or every few years, someone would come. Some wanted to befriend Linley, while others wanted to ask Linley to help them with something. Still others wanted to take Linley as their teacher.

In short, many came to disturb him.

Fortunately, the Four Divine Beasts clan stopped them, making it so that no one could see Linley.

Actually, it was normal for many people to come see Linley. After all, Paragons rarely publicized their residences. It was very hard for people to locate Paragons.

Within his estate.

"Uncle." Ina looked suspiciously at Linley. "Just now, that person who wanted to come visit you thought up a method to deliver this letter. And indeed, the letter states quite clearly the nature of the injustice done to him, and he really is quite pitiable. Uncle, why can't you be so kind as to help him?"

Linley couldn't help but chuckle as he glanced sideways at Ina.

"Nana." Bebe stared at his daughter. "Who knows how many grudges and how much hatred the Infernal Realm holds? You want your uncle to help one person, but what about the countless other grudges? In the Infernal Realm, people are being killed at every moment of every day. Do you think every person who died deserved to die? They died unjust deaths as well. Do you want your uncle to make the entire Infernal Realm his enemy, and go get revenge for every single person who died?"

Ina was stunned.

Ina and Wade lived under the protection of Linley and Bebe, and so they had almost never suffered. They weren't like Linley, who had walked a fine line between life and death to his current level. They saw the affairs of the world so simply.

"If I were to help people who are neither family nor friends, then I would need a trillion clones." Linley chuckled.

Ina let out an adorable sniff, her nose wrinkled.

"Forget about the affairs of others; there are many personal matters that I haven't carried out very well." Linley shook his head and sighed.

"Eh?" Ina looked at Linley, puzzled.

Linley chuckled, not going into detail.

Although these days had been peaceful and happy, Linley noticed how his father, Hogg, would occasionally stare blankly into space when he was by himself. Linley understood that his father was missing his mother. Linley had always been thinking to himself...that one day, he should go pay a visit to the Divine Light Plane and ask for the Chief Sovereign of Light to restore his mother's freedom.

Time flowed on, and in the blink of an eye, a hundred years passed.

Quite a few people were gathered within Linley's estate.

"Third Bro suddenly shut himself inside a few days ago. All of his clones are in training. He said that he reached a critical moment...but a sudden flash of insight should be very fast. Why hasn't he come out yet?"

Reynolds couldn't help but glance at a distant corridor, while George just laughed calmly, "Why the rush? You have eternal life now."

Reynolds, hearing this, couldn't help but laugh.

Indeed, to Deities who were untouched by time, ten years or a hundred years was nothing.

"Eh, Third Bro is coming?" Yale said.

Reynolds and the others all turned to look. Even some of the chatting, laughing people located in the grassy area some distance away noticed that a figure had emerged from the corridor, a figure with long, unbound brown hair. It was Linley. Linley was in a fairly good mood today. "I've trained for a hundred years. I've finally fused these two types of profound mysteries."

It was exceedingly hard to fuse profound mysteries of different Laws.

After becoming a Soul Mutate, his soul had increased in power enormously, and yet he still had to spend so many years before making a true breakthrough.

"And this is just the beginning. Next I will fuse three kinds...and the amount of time I will have to spend will increase exponentially. My goal is fusing four." Linley was quite eager as well. If he was able to fuse four types of profound mysteries from different Laws, how powerful would he become? Most likely, he would be able to kill even Paragons.

"Boss." Bebe ran over.

"My father?" Linley asked.

"Uncle's in his room. I haven't seen him today." Bebe said.

"Right. I'll go find my father." Linley glanced towards the others, then moved towards his father's residence. After completing his training, Linley's first thought was that it was time to go to the Divine Light Plane.

“Regardless of whether or not I will be successful, I still at least need to go see the Chief Sovereign of Light and try asking.”

Book 20, The Crown's Riddle – Chapter 6, Overgod Artifact

"Father!" Linley stepped into the room.

Hogg, currently reading a book, lifted his head. Seeing Linley, he couldn't help but smile. "Linley, I heard you were in closed-door training. What, did you make a breakthrough?"

"Right." Linley nodded, then sat down to the side. "Father, in two days, I plan to head to the Divine Light Plane to go visit the Chief Sovereign of Light. I want to see if there is any hope of finding mother and letting her regain her freedom."

"Huh?" Hogg's hands trembled. The book fell to the table as he stared at Linley, stunned. "Linley, you are going to the Divine Light Realm? But... last time, didn't you tell me that in the Planar Wars, you killed members of the Augusta clan? Isn't the Chief Sovereign of Light the ancestor of the Augusta clan? For you to go will be very dangerous." Hogg was frantic.

Hogg knew about virtually all of Linley's experiences over the years.

"Father, don't worry. The Chief Sovereign of Light has 182 children, and that's just in the second generation. The one I killed was a third generation member. The Augusta clan has more than a thousand individuals in the second and third generations. The Chief Sovereign of Light won't care about it." Linley was absolutely certain about this.

If the Chief Sovereign of Light cared, Reisgem wouldn't have dared to have organized them to attack.

"But he is still a Chief Sovereign. It would be utter simplicity for him to kill you." Hogg was very worried.

"Precisely because he is a Chief Sovereign, he wouldn't lower himself to kill me." Linley said comfortingly. "Don't worry, Father! The Chief Sovereign of Light and I don't have a grudge against each other. If he wants to kill me, he has plenty of methods to do so. But he's done nothing!"

"Didn't you say that there is no hope?" Hogg asked.

"I said the chances were very low." Linley laughed bitterly. "But if I don't at least try, I can't be sure. If I give it a try, I might be successful. Sovereigns wish for Paragons to be their Emissaries. Perhaps, given my status, there's a slight sliver of a chance that the Chief Sovereign of Light would restore my mother to freedom."

"A slight sliver of a chance..." Hogg nodded slightly

Hogg looked at Linley, then said solemnly, "Linley, you are no longer a child. You have your own ideas and thoughts about what to do...but as your father, I must warn you that if this will be dangerous, you had best not go! I admittedly don't know much about Sovereigns and Paragons, and thus can't say much on that subject. I'll let you make your own decisions. But safety first! You and Wharton...the two of you are just as important as your mother to me."

"Right." Hearing this, Linley felt...as though he were a child again, listening to his father instruct him.

Linley's decision was to go find Patriarch Gislason the next day.

Within the hall.

"What?" Gislason, who had just sat down, couldn't help but stand in shock. "Linley, you say you are going to go to the Divine Light Plane to visit the Chief Sovereign?"

"Right." Linley laughed calmly. "I'm just coming to let you know that this trip of mine will take at least ten years and perhaps up to a hundred. All I can do is to go beg the Chief Sovereign of Light."

Gislason hesitated, then said, "Linley, based on what I learned from Father in the past, the Chief Sovereign of Light isn't a very amiable person. The Chief Sovereign of Light is extremely arrogant, and extremely domineering. If you go beg him...the chance for success truly is very low. In addition, I'm worried that if you say a single word not to his liking, he will kill you."

"Arrogant and domineering?" Linley frowned.

Gislason nodded. "Right. The countless planes of the multiverse have a total of eleven Chief Sovereigns. The strongest are, of course, the Chief Sovereigns of the four Edicts! As for the other seven, the Chief Sovereign of Light is the strongest."

Linley understood. The Chief Sovereigns of the Edicts were indeed mighty.

But he hadn't expected...that of the Chief Sovereigns of the seven Elemental Laws, the Chief Sovereign of Light was the mightiest.

"Why is the Chief Sovereign of Light more powerful than the other Elemental Chief Sovereigns?" Linley asked, puzzled.

Gislason was the son of the Azure Dragon, after all. He knew many secrets. He laughed and said, "This involves a certain treasure...an Overgod artifact!"

"Overgod artifact?" Linley's eyes instantly lit up.

Just from the term alone, Linley understood what it represented. Divine artifacts. Sovereign artifacts. Overgod artifacts! Clearly, there were three levels of artifacts.

"Overgod artifacts are created by the Overgods themselves! Because there are only four Overgods, the Overgods of Fate, Destruction, Death, and Life, there are also only four kinds of Overgod artifacts. The four most powerful Sovereigns are the Chief Sovereigns of Destruction, Death, Fate, and Life. They all have Overgod artifacts. This is why they are the most powerful Chief Sovereigns!"

Linley nodded slightly.

No wonder those four Chief Sovereigns were powerful. So it was because they had Overgod artifacts.

"Eleven Chief Sovereigns...five of them have Overgod artifacts. Aside from the four Chief Sovereigns I just mentioned, the last one is the Chief Sovereign of Light! Although the Chief Sovereign of Light has an Overgod artifact, it isn't a match for him, and so he's unable to use all of its power. Thus, he is weaker than the four Chief Sovereigns of the Edicts, but more powerful than the other six Chief Sovereigns of the Laws!"

Linley sighed to himself.

The power of Overgod artifacts must truly be tremendous. There were only four Overgods to begin with, and they were the personifications of the Edicts to begin with. It was only natural that the Chief Sovereign of Light wouldn't be suited to handling an Overgod artifact. It was only reasonable that he would thus be weaker than the four Chief Sovereigns of the Edicts.

"Overgod artifacts...where do they come from, and how did these five Chief Sovereigns acquire them?" Linley asked.

"I'm uncertain." Gislason shook his head. "This happened long, long ago. Even my father and the other three didn't know the details, much less me. The Chief Sovereign of Light's is arrogant and domineering, but he has the power to be domineering. After all, he has an Overgod artifact!"

"Overgod artifact..." Linley let out a sigh. "Can it be that despite the passage of so many years, there hasn't been a second Overgod artifact?"

"No. If there was one, wouldn't the Chief Sovereigns and Sovereigns go wild over it and fight for it? The Chief Sovereign of Light has one, but the Chief Sovereigns of the other six elements do not. I imagine that in their hearts, those six Chief Sovereigns of the Laws feel very unhappy about this. If they had any chance to acquire one, would they give it up?" Gislason laughed as he spoke.

Linley couldn't help but laugh. "I wonder what an Overgod artifact looks like. I probably wouldn't recognize one even if I saw one."

"Overgod artifacts? Only someone at the level of a Sovereign can make use of them. There's no point in us acquiring them; in fact, acquiring them would only invite disaster upon ourselves." Gislason changed the topic. "Enough about Overgod artifacts. That's a very distant topic. Linley, you say that you wish to go to the Divine Light Plane, but I urge you not to go. Truly, don't go!"

Linley chuckled. "He might be powerful, but he is still a Sovereign. Would he lower himself to act against me?"

Gislason let out a low sigh, then suddenly spoke through divine sense. "Linley, I will tell you a secret."

Linley was stunned!

The two were chatting in the hall, but Gislason actually used divine sense to speak? Could the secret be so great?

"Patriarch, what is the secret?" Linley was puzzled.

"Linley." Gislason's expression was solemn. "I've always suspected something about the deaths of the four ancestors of our clan!”

“Suspected something?” Linley didn’t understand.

“I suspect...that the killer was the Chief Sovereign of Light!” Gislason sent.

Linley was badly shocked. Gislason continued to speak through divine sense. “Although the four ancestors of our clan were merely Lesser Sovereigns, their innate divine abilities were very strange; their four divine abilities could actually combine into one, with their four types of divine ability energy able to fuse as well and result in an exceedingly powerful supreme technique. Even High Sovereigns such as the Chief Sovereigns were quite apprehensive.”

Combine four innate divine abilities into one?

Linley knew that the divine abilities of the Four Divine Beasts clan were rather unusual, but he had no way of understanding what they would be like when used by the four ancestors. There was one thing he did know; without question, it would have been far more powerful than when Linley and his peers used them. After all, Linley and the others only carried the lineage of the divine beasts in their veins; they weren’t true divine beasts.

“You say...that you suspect the killer was the Chief Sovereign of Light? Why would it be him?” Linley asked.

“First of all, very few people were capable of killing the four ancestors! The four Chief Sovereigns of the Edicts...the Chief Sovereign of Fate doesn't get involved in worldly affairs. The Chief Sovereign of Destruction was on excellent terms with our ancestors. The Chief Sovereign of Death... as long as someone doesn't offend her, she wouldn't do anything to them. The Chief Sovereign of Life is said to be quite kind-hearted and rarely kills mortals, much less Sovereigns. In addition, our four ancestors didn't have any conflicts or opposing interests with the Chief Sovereign of Life. Thus...the only one left is the Chief Sovereign of Light!" Gislason sent mentally.

Linley frowned.

"The Chief Sovereign of Light has an Overgod artifact. He has enough power to resist the combined innate divine ability of the four ancestors." Gislason's eyes held anger and hatred within them. Although there were eleven Chief Sovereigns, since the other six didn't have Overgod artifacts, there was no way they would be able to kill the four ancestors when they were fighting together."

"Did he have conflicting interests with our four ancestors?" Linley asked mentally.

"Not a conflicting interest per se, but...back then, our Four Divine Beasts clan was spread throughout the planes of the multiverse. We were extremely powerful, and there were quite a few people who believed that our Four Divine Beasts clan was the number one clan of the planes of the multiverse. But the Augusta clan...there were also many who believed that they were the number one clan. If there was a conflict...I imagine the only conflict was one of conflicting reputations." Gislason couldn't find anything else either.

After all, the four ancestors wouldn't have gone out of their way to go offend the Chief Sovereign of Light either.

"Fighting over the title of the 'number one clan'? That can't be right." Linley couldn't believe it. "The so-called struggle over the title of 'number one clan' was a reputational struggle. The Chief Sovereign of Light would kill our four ancestors because of it? This reason doesn't make much sense."

"I...I'm not sure either. But logically speaking, he's the only possible culprit." Gislason clearly also felt that his reason wasn't very convincing. "Linley, if he really was the one who killed them, then he definitely has malicious feelings towards the Four Divine Beasts clan. He didn't kill us because he didn't care about us, but now that you are a Paragon...I'm afraid that he would..."

"Patriarch, he might very well be the killer, but he also might not be." Linley sent. "Also, you said that the other Chief Sovereigns wouldn't be able to kill the four ancestors when they joined forces. But what if they were killed one by one? If someone truly intended to kill them, it's possible that they didn't give our four ancestors a chance to join forces."

Gislason was startled. He immediately sent back, "The four ancestors were extremely close to each other. They rarely separated."

"Rarely separated? That doesn't mean they were always together." Linley sent back. "Don't worry, Patriarch. Even if the Chief Sovereign of Light was the killer, would he act against me, a Deity? Even if he was nervous, he wouldn't be nervous of me, a Paragon. After all, a Paragon is still just a Deity."

Gislason, hearing this, let out a bitter laugh. "Linley, it seems you have set your mind on going."

"Right. If I don't make the trip, I won't be satisfied." Linley nodded.

After all, this involved his mother!

Both he and Wharton wanted to meet the mother who had given birth to them! As for his father, his father had always been thinking about his mother.

"If you want to go, you should at least let Lord Beirut know. Lord Beirut is on fairly close terms with the Bloodridge Sovereign, and he knows many things. It would be good for you to ask him his opinion." Gislason didn't want Linley to go, but clearly, he wasn't able to convince Linley. All he could do was entrust his hopes to Beirut.

Linley, upon hearing this, had to admit that this was a good idea.

"Then, Patriarch, please help me make some inquiries. I know that our clan should have a method to communicate with Lord Beirut, right?" Linley laughed.

"Right. In the past, my clone was there. However, now that the crisis is over, my clone has returned. Still, we still have intelligence agents there." Gislason nodded. "I will make the arrangements. I imagine that in a little while, Beirut's response will arrive."

Linley nodded slightly. He couldn't go wrong listening to Beirut.

"Then I'll go back now." Linley laughed. He planned to leave tomorrow.

"Patriarch." Right at this moment, a guard from outside the door ran in.

Linley and Gislason both turned to look. The guard bowed, then reported, "Patriarch, Elder Linley, someone has arrived asking to meet with Elder Linley." Gislason frowned. "Ordinary guests can be instructed to leave." Very many people wished to meet with Linley.

Linley wouldn't meet with any commander-level experts, but Gislason would.

For those who were too weak, however, they would be refused entry outside the mountain.

"But, Patriarch, this person says that he is Linley's old friend. His name is...Olivier!" The guard said hurriedly.

"Olivier?" Linley was rather surprised. "Come, I'll go with you."

Book 20, The Crown's Riddle – Chapter 7, Olivier

Linley traversed Dragon Avenue, flying downwards and quickly arriving outside the Skyrite Mountains. He saw Olivier there, floating in the air outside the mountain range.

Next to the location where Olivier was hovering, there was also a flourishing ironbark tree. Its lustrous, knife-like metallic leaves, under the light of the Blood Sun, seemed terrifying. As for Olivier, his black and white hair was tousled and rather mussed. His face was ashen. He seemed quite dispirited. In front of him was a black-haired youth.

"What happened to Olivier?" Linley, seeing this, couldn't help but frown. "He seems quite depressed."

In Linley's mind, Olivier was an expert who always strove to reach the peak and who wasn't afraid of loneliness. Even when in the most dire of situations, Olivier shouldn't be the sort of person to grow depressed and give up. Thus, the scene in front of Linley puzzled him.

"Elder Linley, that's the person who claims to be your friend, 'Olivier.'" The warriors of his clan reported respectfully.

"He is indeed my friend." Linley smiled then flew towards Olivier.

Olivier had noticed Linley as well, and he couldn't help but fly towards Linley while squeezing out a smile. It was still quite a stroke of karmic luck for two people of a similar age from the same homeland to meet each other here in the Infernal Realm.

"Linley." Olivier forced a smile.

"Haha, Olivier...after the last time we parted, a thousand years has passed without us meeting again." Linley said with a laugh, and then looked towards the youth next to Olivier. "Oh, Olivier, the youth next to you is...?" Linley realized that there seemed to be a rather baleful aura coming from the youth's forehead, and he seemed quite cold and emotionless.

Olivier took the youth's hand, then turned and glanced sideways at Linley. "This is my son. Deia [Dai'ya]."

"Son?" Linley was slightly startled.

Olivier had actually gotten married? Olivier had always pursued perfection, and he had never had a wife.

"Uncle Linley." The cold youth, 'Deia', bowed fractionally as he spoke.

"Excellent." Linley laughed and nodded, then said to the nearby Olivier, "Olivier, don't just stand there. Come, come to my place. Let's chat slowly once we get back. Haha, it has been so many years since I have seen you. You even have a son...and you've become a Highgod. Excellent."

Linley laughed as he spoke, then flew alongside Olivier back to his own residence.

Moments later, they arrived at Linley's residence.

"Elder!" The guards in front of the residence's gates all saluted respectfully, their eyes filled with a hint of veneration. There were many warriors who were willing to be a guard for Linley's residence. To be a guard for a Highgod Paragon? This was something one could feel very proud of.

"Deia, come in." Linley laughed as he spoke to the cold youth.

Seeing how Deia acted, Linley sighed in his heart. "In the past, Olivier was quite cold as well. I didn't expect that his son would be even colder than him, with such a strong, baleful aura, as though he is about to kill someone." Still, Linley understood that it wasn't that Deia was being disrespectful to him; it was that Deia had been like this ever since he was born, and so it was only natural that he had become like this at all times now.

After entering the residence.

"Heeey...Olivier?!" A large group of people was in the grassy courtyard, and Bebe, who was chatting loudly with everyone else, called out in surprise as he saw Olivier.

"Olivier. Long time no see." Reynolds laughed as he walked over to greet him.

"Olivier." Wharton and the others who were on friendly terms with Olivier all walked over. In the past, Olivier had stayed at Dragonblood Castle for quite a long period of time, and he was quite familiar with many of the people who lived there. "You all came?" Olivier was very surprised as well. All he could do was continue to force a smile as he greeted these people.

A large group of people immediately surrounded Olivier and Deia.

Linley watched this calmly, musing to himself, "Olivier seems to be rather...off."

Surrounded by so many people, Olivier had no choice but to chat with them.

"Father." Deia tugged at Olivier's hand slightly, clearly not accustomed to being surrounded by so many people.

"Enough, everyone, let's break it up. There will be plenty of opportunities to see Olivier in the future. Olivier just returned. Let him rest a bit." Linley said with a laugh. Immediately, the group slowly broke apart, and Linley then walked to stand next to Olivier. He asked softly, "Olivier, is there something on your mind?"

Olivier glanced at Linley, then shook his head. "Nothing."

Olivier clearly didn't want to discuss it!

Seeing the response, Linley didn't pursue this line of questioning. Laughing, he said, "Then stay here at my place. We have many people here...it will be more lively."

"Fine." Olivier laughed and nodded.

And then, Linley left as well.

Within a large, empty courtyard. Deia was seated at the corner of a stone table. The stone table was covered with fruit and food, and Deia was silently eating some of it, not chatting with the others at all.

Wharton, Reynolds, and Olivier were all seated together.

"That's the way Deia is. He likes the quiet." Olivier explained.

"This is a problem with your child raising methods." Wharton chortled.

Olivier forced out a laugh, but didn't discuss this any further. He suddenly looked around, then said, puzzled, "Wharton, Reynolds...when I originally came to the Four Divine Beasts clan, didn't Linley's group live in that large gorge? But on this visit, I can tell that Linley's estate is now incredibly luxurious and takes up a large space. It is quite eye-catching. What's going on?"

A person's residence would be commensurate to their status.

Naturally, Olivier would be puzzled as to why someone would have such a large residence within the Four Divine Beasts clan.

"You haven't met with my Third Bro in over a thousand years. The past thousand years, however, Third Bro has gained strength faster than ever before." Reynolds laughed.

"Oh?" Olivier was very surprised.

"I'll tell you." Reynolds laughed, then began to explain. "Let's start from when the Four Divine Beasts clan escaped their crisis. The eight great clans were pressing down upon the Four Divine Beasts clan from right outside the mountains..." Reynolds explained everything, including the events in the Netherworld, the events in Tartarus, and even what Linley had done in the Planar Battlefield. He explained it all in one go.

"Paragon?" Hearing that Linley had become a Paragon, Olivier's eyes turned completely round.

Wharton added, "But of course. During the Planar War, my big brother actually dueled another Paragon named Magnus, right there in the center of the Stellar River's corridor. While being watched by countless soldiers and many commanders, my big brother gave Magnus a kick and forced him into chaotic space. Hey! Olivier, why are you leaving?"

Olivier, hearing this, actually rose to his feet and hurriedly walked away.

"That's weird..." Reynolds didn't understand.

Olivier walked right next to Bebe, saying frantically, "Bebe, where's your Boss?"

Bebe laughed and pointed to the distance. "He's in that building over there. My Boss is right there."

"Thanks." Olivier hurriedly moved in that direction, his body flashing forward, reappearing before the building.

Bebe, puzzled, frowned. "My Boss is right there, just a few hundred meters away. Why use divine power to fly? It would only take a few seconds to walk that distance. What's the rush?"

Olivier pushed open the door to the study of that building, then walked in. He immediately saw Linley, who was currently reading a book. Linley, puzzled, lifted his head, then laughed, "Oh, Olivier?"

Olivier took three steps forward, walking to the center of the study.

Suddenly...

Olivier knelt down, his knees striking hard against the stone floor with a 'bang' sound. Olivier's face was solemn, and his eyes were filled with entreaty. "Linley, you have to help me!"

"Rise, quick, rise." Linley was completely stunned by Olivier's actions. Waving his hand, he sent a surge of Will-infused divine earth power forward, lifting Olivier up. Olivier looked straight at Linley, who hurriedly said, "Don't be like this. If there's something you need, just tell me. I will definitely help you."

Linley walked out from behind the reading table, hurriedly moving to stand in front of Olivier, then pulling Olivier to sit down at a nearby chair.

Linley sat as well. "What is going on? Tell me."

Linley had known as soon as he had seen Olivier today that Olivier seemed to be in a bad situation. But Olivier wasn't willing to discuss it, and so there was nothing Linley could do.

"This matter...when speaking of it..." Olivier smiled bitterly as he spoke. "Linley, in the past, when I left Dylin and the others to adventure alone, I did indeed make a breakthrough while walking that line between life and death. My divine light clone reached the Highgod level. And then, while taking on a Fiend mission, I met Diana [Dai'na]! Diana was also a lone traveler who had taken on multiple missions. During that dangerous mission, the two of us quickly grew close, and then Diana and I became husband and wife."

Linley nodded slightly.

It was indeed quite normal for two lone travelers to marry each other and become husband and wife.

"Roughly twenty years ago, Diana and I had children. A pair of twin boys; Deia and Leya [Lei'ya]." Olivier sighed. "Everything was beautiful. The four of us lived a life of peace. Diana and I were both Highgods, and so we were able to guarantee that Deia and his brother would live safe lives...but when Deia was five years old! A man named Bonin [Bo'ning] led a group of subordinates over. When he found us, do you know what he said?"

Olivier's eyes were filled with rage. "He said...Diana was his wife!!!"

Linley was stunned.

"This man named Bonin told Diana to go with him! Of course we weren't willing, but he had tens of subordinates, all of them Highgods. My wife and I weren't able to resist at all! But Diana and I would rather die than agree. But this Bonin threatened Diana...he said that if Diana left with him, he would spare me and our two sons! If Diana refused, then he would kill me and our sons." Olivier's eyes became filled with murder as he said this.

"This Bonin....he gave me a chance to fight him by myself. If I was able to beat him, he would let us go." Olivier clenched his fists. "But...I lost! I was far from being a match for him!"

Linley sighed in his heart.

Olivier explained it in a very simple manner, but Linley could completely imagine what that scene was like. A man who wasn't even able to protect his wife and children, and had to watch as others took them away, that sort of pain and grief..

"For the sake of myself and my two sons, Diana left with him!" Olivier's tears began to fall.

There were many unjust things in this world. If he, Olivier, was a supreme expert, he could have effortlessly killed this enemy. But he wasn't a supreme expert. Or at least...he wasn't for now! Thus, all he could do was watch as his woman left with someone else!

"But Diana was wrong!" Olivier said furiously. "That Bonin was a bastard!!! He actually didn't spare me and my children. After taking Diana away, he sent people to kill us."

Linley's face changed.

Bonin had first promised to spare Olivier and his children, so as to coax Diana away. But then, he had sent people to kill Olivier? This was indeed excessively vile.

"Haha..." Olivier just laughed coldly. "What he didn't know...was that after he took Diana away, I immediately left with my sons, and then I began to fuse with a darkness-type Highgod spark!" By then, Olivier had already reached the Highgod level in his divine light clone, but his divine darkness clone was still at the God level. Of course, he had already comprehended five profound mysteries, and was only missing the final one.

If he were to train normally, in just a few more centuries, Olivier would've broken through on his own.

But...

He wasn't able to wait any longer!

Olivier needed to get revenge! In addition, he was a Soul Mutate; even if he fused one divine spark, the other divine clone was one which had broken through on its own. Given that he had the soul of a Soul Mutate, he would still have a chance to fuse profound mysteries in the future.

Because Olivier had already comprehended five mysteries, the process of fusing with a divine spark was naturally quite fast. In a few short months, he had succeeded.

“Those people were able to locate me, though, and they pursued me and my children and attacked us. By then, I had already fused the divine spark. By using fused divine power and two profound mysteries I had fused long ago, I killed them! Kill them all!” Olivier growled. Even before becoming a Deity, Olivier had already sensed that there were areas in the Laws of Light and Laws of Darkness that were compatible, and had fused a profound mystery from each.

Centuries earlier, Olivier had succeeded.

After fusing with a divine spark, Olivier had access to fused divine power and fused Laws. Olivier’s power had increased exponentially, and he became comparable to a Seven Star Fiend.

Book 20, The Crown's Riddle – Chapter 8, Whither To?

"However..." Olivier said bitterly. "Although I killed all of those people, there were too many of them. I had to protect Deia and Leya, my two sons, at the same time. I was only able to block two or three of them, not all of them! Clearly, that person named Bonin had given the order to kill me and my two sons! In the battle, Leya died! My power was only enough to permit me to protect Deia."

Linley sighed in his heart.

Even though his power had risen exponentially, Olivier was by himself, while he had two burdens to shoulder! Meanwhile, the enemy consisted of a large group of Highgods. Once they launched mass attacks...it was quite impressive that Olivier was even able to protect a single son.

"Olivier, you had months. Why didn't you deliver your children to a city?" Linley couldn't help but ask.

If Olivier had left the children in a city, wouldn't they be safe?

"I didn't have enough time." Olivier said bitterly. "I wanted to. If I was travelling alone, I definitely would have been able to make it to a city, but I had to bring the two of them as well. They weren't even Deities, just Saints. Their flying speed was too fast. My speed was impacted because I had to help bring them along. In addition, Diana and I lived in a distant gorge. Given our power, bandits wouldn't dare to come make trouble for us, but that gorge was more than a year and a half away from the nearest city."

Linley sighed to himself.

Olivier's speed was simply too slow! Prior to fusing with a divine spark, Olivier was only an ordinary Highgod. How fast could he possibly move, given that he was burdened with two children?

"After killing those people, I finally managed to make it to a city with my son. I put Deia in a hotel, and then, by myself, I charged straight for the Yustone Mountains of the Skymount Prefecture!" Olivier growled.

"Skymount Prefecture?" Linley frowned.

Bloodridge Continent was extremely vast. Skymount Prefecture was located towards the center of Bloodridge Continent, and was hundreds of millions of kilometers away from Indigo Prefecture.

"Right. That person named Bonin was located in Skymount Prefecture." Olivier nodded. "Bonin had been extremely arrogant. When he took Diana away, he told me...that if I had any ability, I should go seek him out at the Yustone Mountains of the Skymount Prefecture. He would be waiting for me there."

Linley nodded slightly as he listened to this. He could imagine how arrogant Bonin had acted.

"The city I had entered wasn't too far away from the Yustone Mountains of Skymount Prefecture. Given that my speed increased dramatically after I fused those two types of Highgod power, in but a single year, I made it to the Yustone Mountains. After investigating secretly, I learned that this Bonin was actually the son of the Lord Prefect of Skymount Prefecture." Olivier laughed coldly. "I couldn't care less that he was the son of the Lord Prefect of Skymount Prefecture. All I cared about was killing this Bonin and saving my wife, Diana."

Linley understood that at that point in time, Olivier was at the brink of insanity.

"Bonin was untameably unruly, and was not on good terms with his father. Thus, he didn't live with his father, instead living within the Yustone Mountains, where he built a castle for himself." Olivier growled. "I stealthily made my way in, planning to find Bonin and then kill him. And, indeed, after fusing a divine spark, my power surpassed his by a level! I was almost able to kill him..."

"But...he...he actually had a drop of Sovereign's Might!"

Olivier laughed bitterly as he spoke.

Linley now understood. That drop of Sovereign's Might was most likely what the Lord Prefect of Skymount Prefecture had given to his son as a protective measure to save his life if needed.

"After using Sovereign's Might, his power vastly surpassed mine! All I could do was flee, and at that time, my wife, Diana, came out to block Bonin as well, threatening to kill herself. Bonin was disturbed, and in that moment, I made my escape." Olivier said bitterly. "After that failure, I understood that I wouldn't be able to kill him by myself. Thus, I had no choice but to secretly slip away. I returned, taking away Deia, and came to Indigo Prefecture. I was planning that since you, Linley, were quietly training here, I would do the same."

Although Olivier had grown far more powerful, the trip over to Indigo Prefecture had still taken more than ten years, as he was carrying his child with him. That child had grown into a youth as well.

Linley understood, now, why Deia was so cold, so remote, so baleful.

Clearly...Deia had grown up in the midst of hatred.

"I understood that after that battle, Bonin would only stay in the Yustone Mountains if he still had more Sovereign's Might and thus had nothing to fear. If he didn't, he would probably be afraid of my return and thus take Diana and leave. His father is the Lord Prefect. Even if I train for ten million more years, I won't be able to avenge my son or find Diana!"

He had been in the grips of despair. All he wanted to do was train quietly, but then...Olivier had heard others say that Linley had become a Paragon.

"I had already given up all hope. But...but I heard, Linley, that you have become a Paragon." Olivier looked towards Linley.

Olivier knew that Linley was very powerful, at the Seven Star Fiend level, but behind Bonin was the Lord Prefect of Skymount Prefecture. Thus, Olivier hadn't told Linley about this, as he didn't want Linley to get dragged into this.

"Skymount Prefecture?"

Linley nodded slightly.

Olivier's grief and misery caused Linley to feel quite moved. His wife had been taken, and one of his sons had been killed, yet he didn't have the power to fight back or even take revenge.

"Olivier, don't worry. I will accompany you." Linley nodded.

"Thank you." Olivier, upon hearing Linley's response, couldn't help but immediately thank you, then say, "Then Linley, when should we head out?"

"This..." Linley hesitated.

"How about we head out tomorrow?" Olivier couldn't wait at all. His wife had been taken and his son had been killed. Hatred festered in Olivier's heart, gnawing at his soul like locusts. Now that the flames of vengeance had been kindled within his heart once more, Olivier didn't want to waste any more time.

"Tomorrow?" Linley frowned.

Tomorrow, Linley was planning to go to the Divine Light Plane!

Actually, Linley felt a hint of nervousness about this trip to the Divine Light Plane, after what Gislason had said. He was afraid that the almighty

Chief Sovereign of Light really would stoop to killing him. But he had no choice if he wanted to save his mother. He had only one option; to ask the Chief Sovereign of Light to release her!

Thus, although it was dangerous, Linley was still going to go.

Linley had originally planned to allow his divine earth clone to head to the Divine Light Plane.

His divine earth clone was just one clone, but it too had a mutated soul, and it too was infused with his Will. Although the power of the Will wasn't as great as that of Linley's original body, the power of his divine earth clone was also comparable to the power of Paragons.

Linley's original body was more powerful in terms of power and Will than Paragons.

As for his divine earth, wind, and water clones, the power of their Will was slightly weaker, and so they were slightly weaker than Paragons.

For the sake of his mother, Linley was willing to send his divine earth clone over. Even if the Chief Sovereign of Light was so shameless as to kill him, Linley would at most lose a divine earth clone. Linley would still be a Paragon-level expert.

But...with Olivier's request, Linley was now put in a hard position.

Indeed, Linley could allow his divine earth clone to go to the Divine Light Plane and his original body accompany Olivier to the Skymount Prefecture.

But...if both clones simultaneously revealed Paragon-level power in the Divine Light Plane and in the Infernal Realm, anyone with deductive reasoning abilities would immediately understand that Linley was a Soul Mutate!

This was because Paragons generally had one element they specialized in. It was virtually impossible for a person to be in a Paragon in one element, and then also become a Paragon with his other divine clones. It was already quite terrifying for someone to become a Paragon in one element; a person who had two divine clones at the Paragon level was something utterly inconceivable.

If Linley revealed Paragon-level power in two different planes with two different bodies, of course others would find it bizarre and investigate!

The secret of his soul mutation...for now, Linley didn't want to reveal it!

"Linley, you...you are busy?" Olivier asked.

"I..." Linley hesitated.

"If you have an important matter to attend to, then my matter can be delayed. There's no need to rush it." Olivier said hurriedly.

But Linley understood that given Olivier's son had been killed and his wife had been taken, Olivier was undoubtedly thinking about revenge every moment. He wanted to rescue his wife.

"Boss, Boss, the Patriarch is coming." The voice of Bebe, from outside.

"Patriarch?" Linley turned his head and saw Gislason striding in, clearly in a hurry.

"Patriarch." Linley hurriedly rose to his feet to welcome him, and the nearby Olivier hurriedly dried his tears and rose as well.

Upon entering the room, Gislason hurriedly said, "Linley, just now, I did what you asked me to do and sent someone to deliver a message to Lord Beirut. Lord Beirut's response came immediately. He asked me to tell you...no matter what, don't go to the Divine Light Plane!"

Linley was stunned.

"Divine Light Plane?" Olivier now understood as well. Most likely, the reason why Linley had hesitated earlier was because he had to go to the Divine Light Plane on business.

"Why did Lord Beirut say this?" Linley was completely puzzled.

"Lord Beirut said that when your divine fire clone was on the Yulan continent, you had discussed with him the matter of saving your father, friends, and mother. He thus made a trip to the Divine Light Realm and sought out the Chief Sovereign of Light to help you make the request. After all, there are no grudges between Lord Beirut and the Chief Sovereign of Light."

Linley couldn't help but feel a surge of gratitude. His divine fire clone had merely mentioned this matter, but Beirut had actually made a personal visit to see the Chief Sovereign of Light.

"But...the Chief Sovereign of Light didn't agree!" Gislason said with a sigh. "Lord Beirut also asked the Bloodridge Sovereign, and the Bloodridge Sovereign responded...that it was impossible to force the Chief Sovereign of Light to restore an Angel's freedom. Even if a Sovereign went and asked in person, the chances would be low. If you went...there would be no chance at all."

That look in his father's eyes appeared in Linley's mind.

"Father...there's nothing I can do." Linley felt powerless.

The Chief Sovereign of Death had said this as well; that even if she went in person, the chances would be low. Now, the Bloodridge Sovereign had said the same thing, and Beirut had actually gone in person.

"Linley, when Lord Beirut was discussing this matter with the Chief Sovereign of Light, he also said that you were willing to be the Chief Sovereign's Emissary, in exchange for your mother's freedom. But the Chief Sovereign of Light still would not agree." Gislason said.

Even becoming a Sovereign's Emissary was useless?

Linley no longer had any cards left to play.

"In addition, Lord Beirut told me that I had to stop you, that you absolutely could not be permitted to go to the Divine Light Plane. It's fine if you don't go, but if you were to come face to face with the Chief Sovereign of Light, it was very possible that the Chief Sovereign would immediately kill you. This isn't just because of the issue between you and the Augusta clan; there's another reason as well." Gislason said in an urging manner.

"Another reason?" Linley couldn't think of anything he had done to offend the Chief Sovereign of Light.

Was it because he had driven Magnus into chaotic space?

But Magnus was a Paragon of Fate, and an emissary of the Chief Sovereign of Fate, not the Chief Sovereign of Light! The only reason he had chosen to help Montelo was because he had a long, close relationship with the Augusta Patriarch.

"What is the reason?" Linley asked.

"Lord Beirut said that for now, this reason could not be made public, which is why he didn't tell the messenger." Gislason said.

Linley nodded.

After so many years, Linley had developed great trust for Beirut.

"Then for now, I'll give up the notion of going to the Divine Light Plane..." Linley murmured to himself, and then turned to look at Olivier. "Olivier, tomorrow, I will accompany you. We will head out and go to the Skymount Prefecture!”

A look of surprise and joy appeared on Olivier’s face.

The very next day. At the gates to Linley’s estate.

“Boss, just let me go with you. I’m bored to death.” Bebe chortled. Linley wasn’t able to dissuade Bebe, and so Bebe tagged along as well. This trip to Skymount Prefecture, as far as Linley was concerned, held no dangers or challenges. Although, according to legends, the Lord Prefect of Skymount Prefecture was fairly powerful...

Compared to a Paragon, he was still much weaker!

This was a trip for Linley, Bebe, Olivier, and Deia. Deia was only a Saint. Although they hadn’t planned to bring him along, Deia himself had steadfastly insisted on going. His mother was at Skymount Prefecture, after all!

And thus, Olivier had asked Linley his opinion on whether or not they should bring Deia along...and Linley, being completely confident, had nodded and permitted Olivier to bring Deia.

“Let’s go. We will be able to reach Skymount Prefecture in under a year.” Linley smiled, and then, in midair, an enormous black sword-shaped metallic lifeform appeared.

Linley’s group of four immediately entered the metallic lifeform.

Under Linley's control, the metallic lifeform slashed through the skies, transforming into a black blur as it disappeared into the horizons of the Skyrise Mountains and flew towards the east.

Book 20, The Crown's Riddle – Chapter 9, Bonin

In the air above Skymount Prefecture. A black, sword-shaped metallic lifeform was hovering there.

Linley, Olivier, and the other two were standing at the front cabin within the metallic lifeform, staring through the translucent metal to the mountains ahead of them.

"Right. The Yustone Mountains are up ahead!" Olivier's eyes were shining.

While flying here, Olivier had been astonished at the speed of Linley's metallic lifeform. Within one short year, they had actually arrived at Skymount Prefecture from Indigo Prefecture. What he didn't understand... was that when Linley had gone from Tartarus of the Nether Sea to the Abyssal Mountain, a distance of tens of billions of kilometers, he had spent less than ten years travelling.

"Describe Diana's appearance to me." Linley said.

Olivier nodded. "Diana is slightly shorter than me, standing roughly up to my eyebrows. She has straight, shoulder-length hair which is a deep jade color, almost black. Within the castle inside the Yustone Mountains, she is the mistress. Finding her should be easy."

"Right." Linley nodded.

At the same time, the metallic lifeform disappeared, and Linley's group of four stood there in midair, with Olivier holding his son, Deia, by the hand.

"Wait momentarily." Linley willed his divine sense to spread out, instantly encapsulating nearly half of the entire Yustone Mountains, which naturally included that castle.

In the castle, there were 1556 individuals, mostly men, with a few women.

As for someone like Olivier had described, a woman with shoulder-length hair that was deep green, there was only one!

Within the castle. The balcony of a small room. A woman was staring into the distance, dressed in an ink-jade dress. She was the mistress of this castle...Diana!

"Leya, my child...mother is so sorry." Diana said softly, a hint of sadness in her eyes.

Ever since that day more than ten years ago, when Olivier had attacked the castle and informed her of Leya's death, Diana began to hate Bonin all the more! Originally, she hated Bonin for tearing her apart from her family, but now, she hated Bonin for not honoring his promise and for attacking her sons and husband, resulting in Leya's death.

"How could it have come to this? Why did all of this have to happen?" Diana shut her eyes, tears rolling down her face.

Right at this moment...

"Are you Olivier's wife, Diana?" A voice rang out in Diana's mind.

Diana was startled, and she hurriedly opened her eyes.

"Who is it?" Diana hurriedly looked around, but she was unable to see a single possible 'suspect'. And then, that voice continued, "Don't worry or be suspicious. I am Olivier's friend. He invited me to take you out of here."

Diana continued to stare around herself, but wasn't able to find the person who was sending her the message. She calmed down, then responded, "Right, I am Diana! But...I cannot leave."

"Cannot leave?"

"Right. If I were to leave, then the lord of this castle, Bonin, would definitely kill Olivier and our son." Diana said.

"He doesn't have that ability." That calm, yet assured voice echoed in her mind.

Diana wanted to say something else, but suddenly, a raucous series of noises could be heard from the distance. Diana couldn't help but stare towards the distant disturbance, confused. She saw a group of guards fly out from the walls of the castle, with one shouting rebukingly, "This is Castle Yustone. If you want to enter the castle, wait for us to send a message first!"

The shouts rang out repeatedly, and some people even pulled out divine artifacts as they flew over to block the newcomers.

But the four blurs didn't hesitate at all, flying straight past.

"Olly...and Deia?" Diana opened her eyes wide, stunned.

Linley's group of four flew past in awe-inspiring fashion, completely ignoring the blocking guards. Most of those guards were Gods, and only a few were Highgods. A gust of earthen yellow energy rippled past them, and it seemed as though those guards were like pellets of sand, carried away by the waves of the sea. All of them were knocked flying.

"Eh?" Diana couldn't help but feel surprised.

The other guards of Yustone Castle were all stunned as well.

"Milord, those four are too powerful. We aren't able to stop them." Those guards hurriedly reported to a black-robed man.

The black-robed man's face changed. "Olivier!" Last time, Olivier had secretly snuck in, and then battled with Bonin. Many of the people at Yustone Castle thus recognized Olivier. The black-robed man ordered, "Hurry up and find the master of the castle. He is elsewhere in the Yustone Mountains. Hurry and find him."

"Yes, milord."

Immediately, twenty nearby guards flew out of Yustone Castle in search of Bonin.

"The four of you, please halt." The black-robed man called out in a clear voice.

At the same time, many of the guards gathered together behind the black-robed man as he flew towards Linley's group of four. In addition, a large amount of guards continued to fly out from places throughout the castle, wishing to block Linley's advance.

"Rumble..."

Linley's group of four flew forward, and it was like a mountain was sweeping through. All of the guards who wanted to block them were knocked flying backwards by waves of earthen yellow energy. Linley's group of four...was completely unstoppable!

Seeing this, the black-robed man's face became exceedingly ugly to behold. He could tell...that the enemies were powerful indeed.

"Unless you want to die, stay away." Bebe called out smugly in a loud voice.

"The four of you, if you advance any further, then I will attack." The black-robed man said in a clear voice. Although he spoke quite boldly, after having seen Linley's power...the black-robed man knew very well that if these enemies wanted to kill them, it would be simplicity itself. After all, killing Highgods was very easy, but to do what Linley had done, to knock them backwards without injuring them...that was quite difficult.

Linley's group of four flew directly for Diana.

Diana stared as these four flew over, the castle guards completely unable to stop them. She couldn't help but feel stunned.

"Mother." Deia was the first to call out as he flew towards Diana. Olivier flew over alongside him as well.

"Deia." Diana's eyes instantly turned red. She hurriedly went over and tightly hugged her son. Although her son was already an adult now, that familiar spiritual aura...Diana instantly recognized him.

"Diana." Olivier said softly.

Diana turned to look at Olivier. She couldn't help but throw herself into Olivier's arms. These two, husband and wife, felt both excited and heartsick.

Linley stood there in midair. Bebe, seeing this, couldn't help but smile.

"Olly, why did you come back?" Diana raised her head, looking at Olivier. She said frantically, "Last time, when you came, it was because you didn't know how powerful Bonin was. And Bonin is very tyrannical...you were lucky to be able to escape last time. This time, you...alas!" Diana was very worried.

Bonin was extremely powerful, after all. And behind him was the Lord Prefect of Skymount Prefecture.

"Don't worry." Olivier revealed a smile.

"Mother, don't worry. We have Uncle Linley." Deia urged as well. That cold, emotionless youth, upon seeing his mother, seemed to have become a child again.

"Linley?" Diana raised her head, looking at the distant Linley and Bebe in confusion. "You mean them?"

"Right." Olivier smiled and nodded.

"But Bonin has his father, who is terrifying. He isn't just the Lord Prefect of the Skymount Prefecture, he is also a Sovereign's Emissary with a Sovereign artifact. He is extremely powerful." Diana said hurriedly. The Infernal Realm had 108 Lord Prefects, but not all of them had a Sovereign artifact.

Olivier couldn't help but laugh as he reflected on Linley's power.

A Sovereign artifact?

Even an expert with three Sovereign artifacts, much less one, was no match for a Paragon. The Paragon might not be able to kill such a person, but would still be able to drive that person into chaotic space.

"Uncle Linley is a Paragon." Deia said hurriedly.

"Pa, Paragon?" Diana blinked, stunned. She was completely stunned by this word, 'Paragon'. Paragon...these were legendary figures who represented invincibility amongst Deities!

"Diana, where is that bastard, Bonin?" Olivier's eyes had a savage light in them as he spoke.

"He..." Diana was somewhat hesitant, but she still answered. "He went to gather bloodmist flowers. He should still be within the Yustone Mountains."

"Bloodmist flowers? What's that?" Olivier didn't understand.

"There's nothing special about them. They are just a type of flower." Diana clearly didn't want to discuss it. "Forget about that. We need to go find Bonin, but the Yustone Mountains are so large. How can we find him?" The divine sense of a Highgod only stretched to a thousand meters or so. To rely on it to search an entire vast mountain range was indeed impractical.

Linley, hovering there in midair, finally spoke. "Olivier, I've already found that Bonin fellow."

Diana, Deia, and Olivier all stared at Linley, astonished.

"The castle guards have already located Bonin..." Linley laughed calmly. He had noticed the conversation between that squad of guards and Bonin, and so naturally he knew which one Bonin was, now. Actually...it was easy to tell who Bonin was. This was because although there were quite a few people within the Yustone Mountains, Bonin was travelling with ten subordinates, all Highgods.

In the Yustone Mountains, most likely only Bonin alone would be able to do such a thing.

"Follow me." Linley said with a calm laugh.

Olivier immediately led Diana and Deia to follow as Linley and Bebe flew out of the castle. As for the maids and guards of the castle, all they could do was watch as the mistress of the castle left. They weren't able to do a thing about it.

In a separate region of the Yustone Mountains.

Bonin was a big fellow, with a back as muscular as a tiger's and a waist as thick as a bear's. He was nearly two meters tall, and his face was fairly handsome. He had thick black eyebrows and a pair of energetic, lively eyes. Currently, Bonin was holding a flower in his hand. This flower seemed rather blurry, while at the same time it had a hint of red color swirling about it.

The bloodmist flower was a very pretty type of flower. But of course, it had no practical use, save for being admired aesthetically.

"What did you say?" Bonin's face changed.

"Master, that man named Olivier, he came back. And he brought someone!" The guard said hurriedly. "The person he brought is very powerful. All those guards were unable to stop him. We could only watch as he stormed into the castle. Per orders from his lordship, we came to notify you, master!"

"Bastard!" A savage light appeared in Bonin's eyes. "That useless piece of trash. I spared his life last time. Who would've thought that instead of being smart enough to f*ck off, he would actually return."

"Follow me." Bonin gave the order.

"Master." The leader of Bonin's personal guard, a white-browed, grim looking man, said hurriedly, "Last time, Olivier saw your power, and yet this time, he dares return. Clearly, he is prepared for you. The guards just now also said that all the guards of the castle combined were unable to stop them...this person's power is most likely comparable to a Lord Prefect's. If you go, the repercussions..."

Bonin couldn't help but come to a halt.

He clenched his fists, and the stalk of the bloodmist flower in his hand was twisted as well.

"Can it be that I'm supposed to just watch as someone takes my wife away?" Bonin said frantically.

"Master, your life is more important. As for the mistress, she...let's go find the Lord Prefect and then come up with an idea." The guard urged.

But right at this moment...

"Don't try to talk him out of it. It is too late for that." A calm voice echoed in everyone's mind.

"Hm?" Bonin's face changed dramatically, and he raised his head, staring into the distance.

Five figures flew over at high speed. Bonin instantly recognized Diana and Olivier. Diana and Olivier were currently holding hands, appearing quite intimate. Upon seeing this, Bonin couldn't suppress his rage from building. His face turned red, and his eyes began to blaze as he pointed into air and howled, "Olivier, release my wife!"

"Your wife?" Olivier was so furious that his eyes were filled with a ferocious light as well.

"Nana." Bonin roared angrily. "All these years, have I ever been the slightest bit disrespectful to you? Why are you always like this...I've always done whatever you wanted, and I've always given you whatever you wanted! You wanted to see bloodmist flowers, so I personally led my people to search the entire mountain range for bloodmist flowers! But you..."

Diana was stunned, but then she replied in a cold voice, "Bonin. I...am Olivier's wife. Not yours! Also, you sent people to kill Leya...do you think I could possibly forgive you after that?"

"But, but you and I were married first!" Bonin roared back angrily.

Diana shook her head, saying nothing further.

Bonin lowered his head, looking at the bloodmist flower. He had searched the entire mountain range for this flower, all because he wanted to coax Diana and make her happy. When he finally found the flower, he had been longing to bring it back and see her smile.

"Haha, women...haha..." Bonin began to laugh from sheer rage.

"I...my heart is dead towards you, now!" Bonin stared fixedly at Diana and Olivier. "So the two of you are quite close to each other, eh? Then I...I will let you two die together!"

"BANG!"

Bonin's body began to emit a black aura.

Book 20, The Crown's Riddle – Chapter 10, Right and Wrong

The aura of black energy swirled around Bonin, making him look like a savage fiend.

Bonin suddenly leapt forward, and the ground beneath him instantly split apart, with a deep crevice in the earth appearing beneath where his feet had been. Rocks and sand flew everywhere, while Bonin himself charged forward lightning-fast towards Linley's group of four. A long black spear appeared in Bonin's hand, and his longspear shot out like a giant python that was ravenously attempting to devour Linley's group.

Bonin's eyes were bloodshot, and he was filled with a murderous intent.

The adamantine heavy sword appeared in Linley's hand. An earthen yellow aura swirled around it, and quite casually, Linley swept it towards Bonin. Although his movements seemed slow, the adamantine heavy sword's speed was actually several times faster than that of the longspear, and it struck Bonin directly on his body.

"WHAP!"

Bonin, who had been charging upwards, was knocked down to the ground, smashing against the rocky mountain and shattering it.

"Impossible." Bonin looked at Linley, stunned. And this, his face steadied. Letting out a deep growl, he sent the longspear in his hand flying towards Linley...

"Swish!"

A translucent ripple shot out from the longspear towards Linley.

From the center of Linley's forehead, an extremely minute Voidwave Sword ripple shot out, effortlessly shattering that translucent spear ripple attack. However, because the Voidwave Sword was too small, after destroying that translucent spear ripple, it too collapsed.

The nearby Bebe gave Linley a puzzled glance. "Boss' soul is incredibly strong. When he uses his own spiritual energy, the effect is more than ten times more powerful than when he uses Sovereign's Might. When infused with his Will...although it might be a bit weak in terms of profound mysteries, the soul attacks of my Boss isn't much weaker than the likes of Magnus. To kill someone like Bonin is simplicity itself. So why is it that Boss intentionally spared him?"

Bebe had been with Linley for far too long. He knew exactly how powerful Linley was.

If that Voidwave Sword ripple had been just slightly larger, it would have killed Bonin. But Linley had chosen not to do so.

"Not good." Those guards all grew very tense.

But they were clearly far too weak. They couldn't even compete against Bonin, much less challenge Linley.

"Haha..." Seeing the situation, Bonin began to laugh wildly. "No wonder, no wonder! So you two adulterers managed to invite such a powerful expert to help out. Most likely, even amongst Lord Prefect level experts, this person would be ranked quite highly. Haha, if you want to kill me, then kill me. To die in the hands of an expert like you isn't shameful!"

Bonin actually stopped fighting.

"Eh?" Linley was rather surprised.

But as soon as Bonin's words came out...

"Whoosh!" He suddenly dove into the ground, fleeing so fast that even Linley was somewhat surprised. This was because the speed at which Bonin moved was actually even faster than the speed at which he had attacked just now. Linley secretly sighed in praise. "This Bonin seemed to have gone berserk, but he actually is quite the schemer."

Linley was in no rush, instead simply descending.

Linley's left foot stepped heavily onto the ground. "Rumble..." An invisible rippling surge of power spread out through the ground. Bonin who was currently fleeing for his life at high speed underground, wasn't able to dodge at all. This invisible ripple grew larger and larger, until it finally struck him!

"Bang!" Bonin's body trembled, and he spat out a mouthful of fresh blood.

Linley himself disappeared, then reappeared right next to Bonin. It was Worldwalking!

"You won't be able to escape." Linley stretched his hand out, grabbing Bonin by the shoulder, then charging upwards, preparing to leave the underground.

"Hmph." Bonin sent his longspear stabbing towards Linley's chest.

"Clang." A ripple spread out from Linley's body. The spear thrust didn't harm Linley at all.

"This...how is this possible?" Bonin's face changed dramatically.

He was still a Six Star Fiend, and one who was using Sovereign power. Linley didn't use any sort of armor at all, and yet, the defense he was using formed from divine earth power alone was able to block the blow. This was too terrifying.

"Even your father would be unable to harm me, much less you." Linley gave Bonin a calm glance while at the same time dragging Bonin aboveground.

Defenses infused with Will were quite frightening indeed. Even Linley wasn't able to kill Magnus, and was only able to drive him into chaotic space. From this, one could imagine how powerful that sort of defense was.

Linley's Will was even more powerful than the will of Magnus. Although he was somewhat weaker when it came to defensive profound mysteries, he wasn't that much weaker. It was indeed as Linley had said; the energy defense he created was impenetrable to Lord Prefect level experts. Linley could let them attack freely, and they still wouldn't be able to do anything to him.

"He...who is he?" Bonin was now completely stunned.

This sort of power was too vast. He was like a tiny creek who had encountered a vast, endless ocean. He no longer had any thoughts of fighting back.

Linley tossed Bonin towards the ground, sending him flying towards Olivier and Diana.

Bonin, who had been feeling dispirited, instantly was once more enraged upon seeing Olivier and Diana. He rose to his feet, wanting to charge forward and attack again. Seeing this, Linley couldn't help but frown. He stretched his hand out...and immediately, 108 rays of earthen yellow light flew out, surrounding and trapping Bonin within them.

A spherical prison was formed, with Bonin crushed inside it.

"Aaaaaaaaah!" Bonin bellowed ferociously, wanting to burst it apart.

"It is useless." Linley said calmly. "You are a Six Star Fiend. Even using Sovereign power, you are unable to escape."

Originally, this technique only had a compressive effect, but Linley had changed it and combined it with his Blackstone Prison ability. The spherical prison, aside from possessing a powerful compressive effect, also created an energy cage that was extremely tough to break. There was no way for a person to escape.

"So a day like this came for even you, Bonin." Diana said angrily.

"Father, kill him and avenge my older brother." Deia said frantically.

The corners of Olivier's eyes were twitching, and he angrily walked towards Bonin.

Bonin, trapped in the cage, began to bellow. "Diana, have I, Bonin, ever mistreated you? Whatever you wanted, I gave you. Whatever you disliked about me, I changed! In order to make you happy, I was willing to lower my head and bend the knee to my father, and ask to borrow money from him so that I could buy whatever you wanted! Diana, tell me, tell me... why did you betray me?!?"

Diana just stared at him coldly.

"Haha, you left our home, and I searched the entire world for you. This Bloodridge Continent is an enormous place, and by the time I found you, I saw that you had actually gotten married to this useless piece of garbage named Olivier. And you had children?" Bonin was so angry, he was laughing. "I didn't kill you. I took you back home, and I tried to coax you to come back to me, to change your mind. But you?" Bonin was in an utterly berserk state now.

"When we married, did I force you into it? You married me willingly!"

Bonin bellowed with rage.

Diana stared furiously at Bonin. "Bonin, yes, I did agree to marry you, but what did you do? You kept on taking a fancy to other women, and you'd bring them back. And...you didn't even spare my little sister! Before marrying you, you had me completely fooled, but after marrying you, I saw what type of person you truly are. Of course I was going to leave. The farther I could go, the better!"

Bonin looked like a caged, berserk tiger. His eyes flashed with ferociousness.

"Right. I took a fancy to those women, but that was just out of lust, understand!?" Bonin howled angrily. "So what if I, Bonin, took a fancy to some women and snatched them, bringing them back to serve me? I only had a single wife! I wasn't like my father and those others, who married multiple women. I only had one wife. You! As for those other women, that was just lust. Understand?! Look at those women! Did I keep any of them for more than a month? Is it wrong for me to be a bit lusty?"

"You are too domineering and tyrannical." Diana shook her head. "You feel that you did nothing wrong, but I can't accept what you did. Especially the way you treated my little sister."

"Fine, I admit it, I'm domineering and tyrannical!" Bonin laughed angrily. "But after I brought you back this time, I didn't touch another woman again, right?"

"Too late."

Diana said coldly. "Just because you didn't touch any women this time didn't mean that what you did in the past didn't happen. I've already seen through you. And what makes me the angriest...is that when I agreed to go back with you, you said that you would spare Olly and my two children. But in reality?"

"Haha..."

Bonin laughed loudly, savagery flashing in his eyes. "Spare them? My woman was together with another man, and even had children with him. You tell me. Could I possibly let that man live and let those two spawns of sin live? Nobody can touch that which belongs to me. If someone does, I'll make sure he dies!!!"

The black aura had already disappeared from Bonin's body. His Sovereign's Might had been used up.

Linley dispelled the prison part of his technique, leaving behind only the compressive power. This pure compressive power alone was enough to bind Bonin.

Olivier walked forward coldly. "Bonin, you killed my son, Leya. Today, you will pay with your life." Olivier didn't waste any words, and that mystic icesword appeared in his hands.

"Kill me?" Bonin snickered as he looked at Olivier. "Come then. Let me tell you something, Olivier! I, Bonin, always have a backup plan. The body I have been keeping at Yustone Castle is just one of several. My other bodies aren't even here; they are training in seclusion. It is no big deal if you kill one of my divine clones. There will come the day when I will let you know...what the consequences for angering me are!"

Bonin looked towards Diana. "Diana...you whore, since you are determined to leave me, then I'll tell you this...there will come the day when I will destroy you, I swear it! I will personally destroy you!"

Diana, hearing this, couldn't help but feel her heart tremble.

Olivier just stared coldly at Bonin. In an emotionless voice, he said, "Destroy her? If you have the ability to do so, then have your other divine clones come over. I'll be waiting for you."

"Fine. I'll come find you." Bonin had a man-eating look in his eyes.

As for Olivier, his gaze was as cold as his sword.

"I'll be respectfully awaiting your arrival at all times. Today, though, I'll first destroy this clone." Olivier finished his words, and then stabbed out with his mystic icesword. The compressed Bonin was completely unable to fight back. In reality, without the aid of Sovereign power, Bonin wasn't a match for Olivier at all.

A sword pierced through Bonin's skull.

Bonin's eyes dimmed.

"This is indeed just one of Bonin's divine clones. His other divine clones are not present." Olivier realized, through divine sense, that only a single divine spark was knocked out.

Linley and Bebe just watched these events occur. In their minds, they sighed.

Who was right? Who was wrong?

From Bonin's perspective, he was indeed sincere in his love towards Diana. But there was nothing that could be done; Diana's feelings for him were dead. As Bonin saw it, it was Olivier who had taken his wife. Of course he had to kill him.

But from Olivier's perspective, he and Diana loved each other and had children together. Their calm, blissful life was destroyed; Bonin had stolen his wife and killed his son. Of course Olivier had an irreconcilable hatred for Bonin.

As for Diana, she wasn't able to stand Bonin any longer and had left him in search of a new life. But Bonin had then killed her son.

Who was in the right? Who was in the wrong?

"Olivier, where is Leya buried?" Diana asked. "I want to see him." Leya's death had been a huge blow to Diana.

"Alright." Olivier nodded.

"Then let's go." Linley and Bebe immediately led Olivier's family of three into the metallic lifeform, then departed. Only, this time, they didn't head back to Indigo Prefecture, instead first paying a visit to the place where Leya had been buried. Linley didn't kill the members of Bonin's personal guard either.

"Master..." The guards had watched everything happen without being able to resist.

The white-browed leader of the guards furrowed his brows...

Skymount Prefecture. Blackcloud Mountains.

The Lord Prefect of Skymount Prefecture lived here. The prefectural soldiers stationed here numbered in the millions.

"Lord Prefect, young master Bonin's most powerful divine clone has died." The white-browed man suddenly appeared here. Actually, he also played the role of message relayer, and would often inform the Lord Prefect about what was happening to Bonin.

The Lord Prefect, who had been seated, suddenly rose to his feet, his eyes flashing savagely. "He died. And what did you do?"

"Lord Prefect, that person was too powerful." Terrified, the white-browed man fell to his knees.

In terms of being domineering and tyrannical, this Lord Prefect of Skymount Prefecture was even more terrifying than his son. The white-browed man was terrified that, in his rage, the Lord Prefect would kill him.

"Tell me what happened." The Lord Prefect of Skymount Prefecture growled.

"Yes, Lord Prefect. That day, young master Bonin..." The white-browed man began to explain in detail. He even gave a rough description of the 'battle' between Linley and Bonin. Listening to this, the Lord Prefect began to frown deeply. After the white-browed man finished speaking, he gave the order while frowning, "Oh, left after boarding a black, sword-shaped metallic lifeform? Fine. Per my orders, every single intelligence agent within Skymount Prefecture needs to be on watch. If any of them find a black, sword-shaped metallic lifeform fly past them, especially one with five individuals inside, they must report it."

"Yes." The white-browed man, upon hearing this, instantly understood that the Lord Prefect was going to take revenge.

But the white-browed man felt puzzled. "After hearing what I said, the Lord Prefect should understand how terrifying that person was. Why is it that he still dares to seek revenge?"

From watching that earlier battle, the white-browed man was able to guess...

That the brown-haired man's strength should be ranked amongst the top-tier Lord Prefects. The Lord Prefect of Skymount Prefecture shouldn't be confident in his ability to win.

After the white-browed man departed, the Lord Prefect of Skymount Prefecture waved his sleeves, and a surge of Destruction-type divine power swept out, closing the door.

“Bonin. This child is too arrogant and solitary. He never listens to me. I had wanted to let him go out and adventure a bit, but who would have imagined...ugh...” A faint, baleful aura appeared on his face. “Bonin’s most powerful divine clone is dead. His future is now uncertain! Hmph, you killed my son...hmph, a thousand years ago, I would’ve had to just let this stand. But now...I want to see who did it!” The Lord Prefect hesitated a moment, then waved his hand...

A jade green box appeared in his hand.

He opened the box, which had a sheet of green paper within it. Atop the sheet of paper, there was a bracelet, and atop the bracelet there were nine green beads inlaid into it.

The Lord Prefect of Skymount Prefecture looked at the bracelet. He couldn’t help but take a deep breath, and then his eyes began to glow.

“It is time to use it.” The Lord Prefect placed the bracelet on his right arm.

Upon wearing this bracelet, it seemed as though the Lord Prefect’s very aura had changed.

The Lord Prefect pondered for a moment, and then his body divided into two. One had long black hair, while the other had long silver hair. The one with long silver hair took the jade green box, storing it away, then left the room through the door. As for the Lord Prefect with long black hair, this one remained standing within the room.

"Once I use this..."

The Lord Prefect with black hair frowned. Instantly, the Lord Prefect with silver hair who was already next to the door came to a halt. He retrieved the jade green box, removing that slip of green paper from within it.

"Crackle..." A surge of terrifying energy emanated from his palms.

The green paper trembled momentarily, but didn't shatter.

"It is hard for even me to destroy this sheet of paper." The silver-haired Lord Prefect waved his hand and retrieved an interspatial ring, bound it with blood, then stored the green sheet of paper into the interspatial ring.

"Hmph." Applying a bit of force, he crushed the interspatial ring with his fingers.

That sheet of paper was gone now.

"Haha...from today onwards, no one else will know this secret." The silver-haired Lord Prefect laughed as he left. As for the black-haired Lord Prefect, he lowered his head to look at the bracelet around his arms, then smiled slightly.

Book 20, The Crown's Riddle – Chapter 11, The Lord Prefect of Skymount

The black, sword-shaped metallic lifeform sped through the skies of the Infernal Realm.

Within the metallic lifeform, Linley's group of five was seated around a table.

"Linley, the reason Diana and I are able to be together once more is all because of you. Thank you." Olivier raised his cup of wine, then took a sip.

"Haha..." The nearby Bebe laughed loudly. "Olivier, on the way over to Skymount Prefecture, I never saw you truly smile a single time. Even if you did smile, it seemed quite forced. But now it seems...you are smiling so widely, your eyes have turned into slits." Bebe teased him intentionally.

Olivier, hearing this, just laughed and glanced back at the nearby Diana. The two, husband and wife, glanced at each other. It was quite sweet.

Linley, seeing this, couldn't help but laugh as well, but suddenly he then frowned.

"How irritating!" Bebe let out a dissatisfied mutter as well.

Olivier, who was in an excellent mood, just laughed. "Don't worry about them. Our metallic lifeform is flying through the air, and the Infernal Realm is filled with countless bandits. It is very normal for them to use their divine sense to investigate us. Although they are rather irritating, there's nothing we can do about it. What, are we supposed to go out and chastise them, one by one?"

Just now, a divine sense had swept through the metallic lifeform.

The Infernal Realm did indeed have countless bandits. Although this sort of thing happened quite often, each time one was scouted out through divine sense, one would still feel rather uncomfortable.

"Hmph, all those bandits dare to do is to scout us out. Upon discovering that we are Highgods, they no longer dare make trouble for us." Bebe said disdainfully.

"Olivier." Linley said. "How much farther are we from that place you spoke of?" This trip they were making was to the place where Olivier's eldest son, Leya, had died. Her son had died, but Diana had yet to go see his grave. How could she feel at ease unless she went?

Olivier let out a sigh. "Soon. Given the speed at which this metallic lifeform that you control flies at, Linley, most likely in just five or six days, we will arrive. Linley...when the time is right, lessen the speed. I want to take a good look as well, as I need to verify the location. That place was in a mountain, after all."

"Don't worry. We were in a hurry to get to the Skymount Prefecture, but there's no need for us to be in a hurry on our return." Linley laughed calmly.

Linley had been planning to go to the Divine Light Plane, but after Beirut arranged for that message to be delivered to him, Linley temporarily gave up that notion.

Within the vast, boundless mountain range, there were two figures who were standing atop a mountain.

"A black, sword-shaped metallic lifeform, with five people inside, one a Saint. That's right, the one that just flew past." One of them, a man with short golden hair, stared towards the direction the metallic lifeform had flown. The bald youth next to him laughed, "This matches perfectly with the report that was sent to us by the communications squad earlier. However, this metallic lifeform flies quite fast. The last report came from tens of millions of kilometers away. It's only been two short days since that report. On average, this means they are able to travel ten million kilometers or so each day."

This speed truly was stunning.

After all, for most metallic lifeforms, travelling even a million kilometers a day was impressive.

What they didn't know...was that this rate of ten million kilometers a day wasn't even Linley going all out. In addition, this metallic lifeform was just an ordinary one, not a high level one.

"Given how fast it is moving, this metallic lifeform must be an extremely high level one. In addition, the controller of it must be extremely powerful." The intelligence agent came to this conclusion.

While tracking Linley's movements, they continued to immediately report back to their headquarters.

Their headquarters then transmitted this information to each of the other outposts.

Linley's journey was being tracked.

A solitary, sickle-shaped black metallic lifeform was hovering in the air above a mountain range.

Within the metallic lifeform.

The black-haired Lord Prefect of Skymount Prefecture was standing at the front, staring through the translucent metal to the land ahead of him. Three people were standing respectfully by his side, one of whom was the white-browed man.

"Hm? Based on your calculations, didn't you say that this group should be passing through this location?" The Lord Prefect said coldly.

One of the three men by his side, a silver-haired elder, bowed and said, "Lord Prefect. Based on the projected trajectory of this group, they should indeed pass by this location. In addition, not too long ago, a report came from an intelligence agent that the metallic lifeform was headed in this direction."

"But I don't see them." The Lord Prefect gave him a sideways glance.

The silver-haired elder couldn't help but tremble, then hurriedly said respectfully, "Lord Prefect, don't worry. Even if they changed their arc slightly, given our many intelligence agents, we will definitely discover them."

"Lord Prefect." Right at this moment, the white-browed man suddenly spoke.

The Lord Prefect couldn't help but glance at him, and the white-browed man immediately bowed and said, "Lord Prefect, I suddenly thought of something."

"Speak!" The Lord Prefect said calmly.

"Lord Prefect...in the past, young master Bonin sent people to pursue and kill that 'Olivier' and his two children. Back then, the warriors that were sent out managed to encounter Olivier within a few hundred thousand kilometers of this location. In that battle, all of the warriors died. However, they also killed one of Olivier's children! Now that Diana and Olivier are together once again, and given that Diana has never gone to visit her dead son, I think...she might perhaps be going now?" The white-browed man said.

Actually, after Linley and Olivier had killed Bonin, Diana had spoken aloud regarding her desire to go visit the place where her son had been killed. Although the white-browed man and the guards were fairly far away from Diana, they were still able to make out her words.

But the white-browed man also understood...that if he immediately provided this information to the Lord Prefect, and they went there to set up a trap, like a hunter waiting for a rabbit, and then Linley's group changed their plans for some reason...the Lord Prefect would probably, in his rage, kill the white-browed man after waiting in vain!

For him to now bring it up, however, meant that he was rendering a great merit!

For the sake of his life, he had to choose to act this way.

"Oh?" The Lord Prefect, hearing this, immediately felt that this made sense.

When a mother's son died, of course the mother would want to go see him one more time. This made perfect sense.

"Excellent." The Lord Prefect nodded slightly towards the white-browed man. "Let us now go to the place where Diana's son died."

"Your subordinate will guide you." The white-browed man said respectfully.

"Mm."

The Lord Prefect was quite satisfied with the white-browed man's cleverness. That sickle-shaped metallic lifeform instantly pierced through the skies, moving like a giant wind knife as it flew towards the direction of the location where Olivier had battled against his enemies.

This nameless mountain range was quite vast in scope, and its peaks and valleys extended off into the distance.

Actually, the majority of mountain ranges in the Infernal Realm were far larger than the Mountain Range of Magical Beasts of the Yulan continent, and they had far more experts as well. But of course, in the eyes of Linley and Olivier, those so-called 'Demigods' and 'Gods' truly weren't worth mentioning.

Within one mountain gorge.

There was a lake of black-colored water, and at the sides of the lake, there was a tomb that was made from an enormous stone sculpture.

Olivier, Diana, and Deia were standing in front of this tomb. As for Linley and Bebe, they stood to one side.

"Leya, my son..." Diana couldn't help but kneel down, her tears flowing. That cold, distant youth, Deia, began to cry as well. The death of his elder brother was clearly something that had been etched deep into his memories.

Linley and Bebe looked at each other. They could do nothing but remain silent.

From the reactions of this family of three, Linley could sense how they must have all been on very close terms with each other. Diana truly did love Olivier and her children. "Perhaps Diana didn't like Bonin's type of person, and preferred this sort of warm, gentle home." Linley sighed to himself.

Olivier, Diana, Bonin...their story was indeed a tragedy.

Bonin's most powerful divine clone had died, but he had sworn to destroy Diana.

"Given Olivier's abilities, I don't need to worry about him."

Linley couldn't help but walk over to the side of the lake, and Bebe followed him. Bebe sent mentally, a bitter look on his face, "Boss, I feel quite depressed as well, seeming how saddened Olivier's family is."

"Let's just wait over here." Linley sent back.

A long time later.

"Linley, we're fine now." Olivier led his wife and son over. "Apologies. We made you wait quite a long time. Let's return to Indigo Prefecture."

"Right." Linley nodded.

And then, Linley frowned and glanced off into the distance. He saw an enormous sickle-shaped metallic lifeform fly over at high speed. It looked like a giant wind knife, and was flying straight towards this gorge, so fast that it caused wild air currents to erupt, sending quite a few trees and branches flying everywhere within the gorge.

"Who is it?" Bebe frowned.

"Looking for us?" Linley mused to himself.

Since they had flown into the gorge, clearly they people inside were looking for them.

At this moment, Linley willed his divine sense to spread outwards, sending it into that sickle-shaped metallic lifeform to investigate within. "Oh, four Highgods! One of them, that grim, black-haired elder...that should be the Lord Prefect of Skymount, Molde [Mo'er'de]."

Linley had previously received a book from Beirut regarding the experts of the various planes. Molde was listed in that book.

"Can it be that Molde has come to avenge his son?" Linley sighed mentally. He sighed at how Molde was not amenable to reason. Although Linley had yet to use his full power, the power Linley had displayed at Yustone castle, and then yet again when Linley had dealt with Bonin, was at a level beyond that which ordinary Lord Prefects might be capable of.

Molde should have predicted that Linley's true power was greater than this. Why was it that he still dared to come?

Was Molde very powerful?

Based on what Linley knew, though, although Molde was an Emissary of the Bloodridge Sovereign, and in possession of a Sovereign artifact, in terms of power, he was a good deal weaker than the likes of Reisgem, Hemmers, and the like.

"Linley, what's going on?" Olivier walked over, worried.

"It is the Lord Prefect of Skymount, Molde." Linley said softly. "No need to worry."

"Him?" Hearing this, Diana was startled, but when she thought about how powerful Linley was, she relaxed.

The enormous metallic lifeform that had been hovering roughly ten meters above them suddenly vanished, revealing four individuals hovering there in midair. The leader, that black-haired elder, had a cold, hard face, and eyes that flashed like knives. Just by standing there, he gave off the aura of being an enormous, growling beast, prepared to attack at any moment.

On his right arm, he was wearing that bracelet, which had those nine green pearls studded into it.

"Eh? Carrying a bracelet?" Linley rarely saw people wearing bracelets. After all, when experts battled, they would generally wear some sort of armor, so a bracelet wouldn't be of much use. Still, there was still a very small minority of people who wore them...some, because of ancestral customs; others, because of local styles. Others just liked them.

In short, Linley was slightly surprised, but then he paid no more mind to it.

The Lord Prefect of Skymount, Molde, swept Linley's group with his cold gaze. He looked like a mighty lion staring at five little sheep. The white-browed man behind Molde bowed respectfully and said, "Lord Prefect, of the five, that man with long white-black hair is Olivier. It was he who killed young master Bonin. The most powerful person in that group, however, is that brown-haired man. It was he who bound the young master, giving Olivier the chance to kill him. I don't know his name."

Lord Prefect Molde of Skymount gave Olivier a glance, then turned to stare at Linley.

"Do you know that Bonin is my son?" Molde growled.

"I know." Linley said calmly.

Molde's aura was astonishing, but to Linley, he was like a small dog yipping and baring its fangs at a giant.

"Hey, you are that Lord Prefect 'Molde' of Skymount?" Bebe began to laugh. "We spanked the young one, and now the old one comes! The Boss and I are about to go back right now. If you don't plan on doing anything, then beat it. If you want to get revenge for your son, then stop wasting our time and attack already. After dealing with you, we'll need to hurry home. We're in a rush!"

"Impudence!" Molde was focused on Linley; he held Bebe in no regard. But these words by Bebe instantly enraged him.

"Rumble..."

The air seemed to explode as Molde charged leisurely towards Bebe, his right hand forming a claw which slashed through the air, easily ripping space itself apart.

"Crackle..." The claw howled through the air as it struck.

Linley frowned slightly. Instantly, a blurry, indistinct figure appeared in front of Molde. At the same time, with a 'bang!' sound, Molde's head was viciously kicked, and Molde himself was sent flying away by this kick, moving like a meteor as he smashed into the side of the mountain, several tens of meters away.

With a booming sound, a giant spiderweb of cracks appeared on the mountain side, with a large, human-shaped hole at the center of the spiderweb.

Book 20, The Crown's Riddle – Chapter 12, Not Dead

"Haha, you old fart, what makes you think you can act so arrogantly?" Bebe bent over in laughter, clutching at his belly.

As for the three subordinates of Molde, they turned their heads, staring, stunned, at the human-shaped hole in the distant mountainside. Their Lord Prefect had actually been knocked flying in an instant?

"Rumble..." The mountainside trembled, and rocks fell everywhere. A human figure flew out, emerging from the mountainside, then landed on the ground of the gorge.

Molde's body wasn't damaged at all. His focused gaze fell on Linley, and he said in a low voice, "I didn't act against you, and yet you sneak-attacked me? Hmph...your speed isn't bad. But your power is a bit weak."

Power, weak?

Linley knew that Molde was just engaging in braggadocio, because the Sovereign artifact Molde was in possession of was a defensive Sovereign artifact. Naturally, Linley wouldn't be able to kick him to death with one kick.

Molde knew very well that Linley's kick was extremely powerful, but he believed that Linley sneak-attacked him because Linley wasn't that much stronger than him. Even if Linley was a bit stronger, that was fine, because he was in possession of that miraculous bracelet. This bracelet filled him with boundless confidence.

"Let's not waste any more time. Go ahead and attack." Linley was still smiling calmly, not feeling the slightest bit of concern or nervousness.

Molde frowned, his eyebrows turning steely. He laughed coldly, "Since you want to die, I'll grant you your wish."

"Bang!" A surge of black light erupted out of Molde's body, exploding forth. It was Destruction-type Sovereign's Might! After using Sovereign power, Molde could sense power swelling in him, which made him feel all the more confident. Molde gave a confident, cold laugh, then suddenly moved.

He was like a bolt of black lightning...

"Haaargh!" Molde's right leg viciously chopped down towards Linley like a hatchet.

"Riiiiip." Space itself was ripped apart by this kick, and wherever Molde's leg passed by, a terrifyingly large spatial tear appeared. Molde, being in possession of a defensive Sovereign artifact, could use his entire body as a weapon.

Linley just smiled, then charged forward, his body moving like an illusion.

"Die!" Molde's kick pierced directly through Linley's body, but in the instant that it did, Molde's face suddenly changed. "Wait, that's not his body!" Molde's guess was correct; that was just an after-image Linley had left behind after moving.

Linley's body was actually directly behind Molde.

Linley stretched out his hand, forming it into a claw as he grabbed directly at Molde's left leg.

"No!" Molde felt a terrifying power suddenly constrict around the joints of his left leg, and his face couldn't help but change.

"Your speed is too slow!" Linley's voice echoed out within the gorge, and as it did, Linley grabbed Molde by his left leg, then, like snapping a whip, sent Molde smashing against the ground! He whipped Molde into the ground time and time again, smashing him down viciously.

"Bang!" "Bang!" "Bang!" "Bang!"

The floor of the valley trembled violently, as one giant, deep crater after another appeared. The collision force was so powerful that it even caused the rocky ground to transform into dust, down to a depth of ten meters or even deeper. Multiple enormous tears in the ground appeared, joining together and resulting in a terrifyingly deep crevice being formed.

"How can this be..." Linley's power wasn't held back at all. After having been whipped about lightning-fast like this, Molde was beginning to grow dizzy.

In an instant, Linley had smashed Molde into the ground more than a hundred times, and then, with a powerful sideways toss, he sent Molde flying, like a rock from a slingshot. Molde shot deep into the mountainside, creating yet another man-shaped hole.

The white-browed man and the other two watched, stupefied.

"Uncle Linley is so powerful." Deia's eyes were shining.

"He is indeed terrifyingly strong." Olivier's eyes were gleaming. He, too, was a person who sought perfection. Upon seeing the power that Linley had displayed, he too felt stunned.

"That, what's his name, Molde? I'm puzzled. What the hell was he thinking? He dared to fight my Boss? Although my Boss didn't reveal much of his power, the speed he displayed earlier should have made it so that Molde would've known to retreat." Bebe mumbled. "He just has a defensive Sovereign artifact. What is there for him to be smug about?"

Bebe was puzzled by the fact that Molde hadn't retreated.

"Bastard!" A furious bellow rang out from the mountainside. "BANG!" Molde once more charged out. After having been thrown about earlier, Molde's rage had risen to a breaking point. His eyes were scarlet, and he stared angrily at Linley while growling, "Punk, do you rely merely on speed alone? Hmph. That bit of attack power you have isn't able to wound me at all!"

Molde was growing frantic, but up till now...he still believed that Linley was just relying on his speed.

Linley's attacks weren't necessarily stronger than his.

"Oh?" Linley's face sank. "Since you want to die, don't blame me."

After reaching his current level of power, Linley would rarely act to kill ordinary commanders. This was because...for Linley to act against commanders would be an absolute massacre! It would be a form of abuse. Linley had simply wanted to teach Molde a lesson and have him f*ck off, but Molde seemed to be quite confident in his power. Linley couldn't help but begin to grow angry.

"Haha...if you are able to kill me, then do so!" Molde laughed wildly, and then, launching himself from the ground, he charged towards Linley, carrying the power of a mountain.

Molde's right hand was like a sword, piercing through space and shooting towards Linley.

"Whap!" Linley struck out, lightning-fast.

Fist against fist!

Molde was knocked flying back. After landing, he stared at Linley in disbelief. "You...how can you...you didn't use Sovereign's Might. How could you have blocked my punch?" Molde was very confident in his own strength, and he had also used a drop of Sovereign's Might. And yet, he was actually knocked flying back by Linley.

"Your punch? Compared to Hemmers, you are quite lacking." Linley said calmly.

"Hemmers?" Molde frowned, but then he seemed to think of something, as he began to laugh coldly. "Your power isn't bad. Then taste my soul attack."

Molde's face turned solemn, and then he opened his mouth...

"Swish!" A translucent ripple, shaped like a blade of wind, shot at high speed towards Linley.

"Die, then!" Linley no longer showed any mercy, and he growled as he attacked.

A single Voidwave Sword ripple shot out from Linley's body, the size of an ordinary longsword. It smashed onto that translucent wind blade, and with a 'bang', tore through it like rotting wood. The translucent wind blade disappeared, while Linley's Voidwave Sword ripple just decreased a small bit in size.

Molde's face changed dramatically. He seemed to want to say something, but it was too late.

The Voidwave Sword ripple silently and soundlessly entered Molde's body. Linley's most powerful type of attack was his soul attacks; even compared to a Paragon of Fate, he could be said to be on roughly the same level. How could an ordinary Lord Prefect possibly block Linley's soul attack?

Molde's body trembled, and then his gaze grew dim as he slowly collapsed.

"Lord Prefect..." The white-browed man and the other two were shocked. Their Lord Prefect...had died, just like that?

"This Molde didn't know his own limits. He really was seeking death." Bebe snorted.

Linley turned and walked towards Olivier and the others. Laughing calmly, he said, "Let's go!"

"Linley!" Olivier's face changed as he let out a cry of alarm, staring behind Linley, stunned.

"Hrm?" Linley turned his head, puzzled.

Lord Prefect Molde, who should have been dead, actually once more rose to his feet. His eyes were flashing as he stared at Linley, stunned. "You...who are you?"

Linley looked back at him, also stunned. "You didn't die?" Just now, he had clearly seen Molde be struck by his attack, and then collapse. His eyes had turned glassy and lifeless. How had he come back to life?

"Boss, this old fellow didn't die. That's odd." Bebe called out.

It was indeed quite odd. If Molde had a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact, then he shouldn't have reacted at all to Linley's soul attack. But just now, Molde had clearly collapsed, and yet, moments later, he had completely recovered and was completely fine. This was indeed bizarre.

"His soul attack is this powerful...and his material attacks are so strong as well...and he is so fast...he has no weaknesses at all." Molde was stunned.

"You are a Paragon? Which Paragon of the Infernal Realm..." Molde said. Aside from Paragons, Molde couldn't think of any other possibilities. "You are Mr. Linley?" Molde actually guessed the truth right away.

Truthfully, that wasn't surprising. There were only three individuals in the Infernal Realm who were suspected of being Paragons.

Molde had acquired information on the other two long ago. As for Linley, he had just risen to prominence two centuries ago after the Planar War. The Infernal Realm was simply too vast, and so in the past two centuries, news about him hadn't spread everywhere just yet. Although Molde had run into an old friend who had informed about Linley, all Molde had learned was Linley's name, and the fact that he was a member of the Azure Dragon clan who was capable of Dragonforming.

As for Linley's appearance, he had no idea.

"Yes, I am Linley." Linley laughed calmly.

"Paragon Linley?" Molde's three subordinates were utterly terrified as well. Their Lord Prefect had actually attempted to take revenge upon a Paragon. Wasn't this suicide? They were stunned, but Molde was both stunned and enraged.

"That punk, Bonin, is just a Six Star Fiend. No matter how much trouble he causes, how could he have gotten a Paragon involved?" Molde was incomprehensibly angry and shocked. He knew that the enemy was fairly powerful, but Bonin was just a Six Star Fiend, after all. Molde believed... that at most, the enemy would be a Lord Prefect level expert. A Paragon? Using a Paragon to deal with his son was a waste of talent.

How few Paragons did the entire Infernal Realm have? Just three, and that was including Linley! How could there be such a coincidence?

If it had been Dunnington or the other one, Molde would have immediately recognized him and given up. Unfortunately, it just so happened to be Linley. Linley was a Paragon who had just recently risen to sudden prominence, and he didn't have any accurate information about Linley at all.

His son had actually managed to offend a Paragon. Molde's luck really was quite terrible.

"This...Mr. Linley...I apologize." Molde forced out a smile. "Since it is you, Mr. Linley, then I'll leave now."

"Leave now? If my Boss was weak, he would've been killed by you, and the rest of us would have as well, right?" Bebe barked. "It's too late for you to leave now!"

"I am quite curious. How is it that you were hit by my technique but didn't die?" Linley looked at this Lord Prefect, Molde.

Molde's face changed dramatically. Not hesitating at all, with a 'swish', he rose into the skies, intending to flee! Against a Paragon like Linley, even if Linley wasn't able to kill him, he would be able to control a spatial tear and shove Molde into it. Molde didn't believe that his Sovereign would waste any time or effort in entering chaotic space to save him.

Linley blinked, and two Voidwave Sword ripples shot towards Molde, who was in mid-flight.

No matter how fast he moved, how could he move faster than a soul attack?

The two Voidwave Sword ripples entered Molde's body, and instantly, Molde's formerly flying body became powerless. He once more fell down from the skies, smashing onto the ground. But just an instant later, Molde actually once more flipped to his feet.

"Queer. How queer." Linley began to laugh. "If you have a soul-protecting Sovereign artifact, you shouldn't feel a thing from my soul attack. But clearly, you don't have one. But if you don't have one, how could it be that you are able to survive repeated soul attacks from me?"

Linley didn't understand.

"Mr. Linley, no, Lord Linley!" Molde's face changed dramatically. He was confident in his ability to escape anyone besides a Paragon, but Paragons...they were strong in every aspect, without any flaws.

"It really is strange." Linley frowned, puzzled.

"Swish!" "Swish!"

Two more Voidwave Sword ripples shot out, once more entering Molde's body. Molde's eyes immediately became lifeless, and he once more fell onto the ground. This time, Linley used his divine sense to keep a close watch on Molde, carefully inspecting Molde for any changes. Linley's divine sense thoroughly filled every single part of Molde's body; it was extremely forceful and dominating.

Molde's eyes opened, and he once more regained consciousness.

"So that's how it is." Linley finally discovered where the secret lay.

"Lord Prefect..." The white-browed man and the other two, seeing the situation was turning grim, hurriedly fled, leaving behind only Molde himself.

After regaining consciousness, the first thing Molde saw was Linley walking towards him. His face changed dramatically, and he suddenly tunneled underground.

"Haha, you won't be able to escape."

Linley laughed loudly, and then his body suddenly appeared next to Molde, and he grabbed Molde by the shoulders.

Linley's other hand then grabbed at Molde's 'bracelet'. "No!" Feeling Linley grab the bracelet, the Lord Prefect of Skymount instantly grew frantic, but Linley gave his left hand a forceful tug, and with a 'crack', the bracelet shattered as the nine green pearls flew into Linley's hand.

"The reason why you were able to survive despite being hit by me multiple times has something to do with these nine soul pearls, yes?" Linley glanced at him.

Seeing that Linley held the soul pearls in his hand, the Lord Prefect's face instantly turned ashen.

"Boss, the reason why you weren't able to kill him was these nine soul pearls? What are these nine soul pearls?" Bebe flew next to Linley as well, inspecting the nine soul pearls hovering in Linley's hands with curiosity. "Boss, I don't feel anything special about these nine pearls?"

Linley chuckled. "When I first saw the Lord Prefect of Skymount, I didn't sense anything special about these soul pearls either; I thought that wearing a bracelet was just personal habit of his. Only when I tried to kill him multiple times with no success did I notice that these soul pearls were rather unique."

How keen was Linley's judgment now?

He was able to immediately tell, at a glance, that the Lord Prefect of Skymount's bracelet wasn't a divine artifact, and so Linley had taken it for a mere trinket with no value. And, indeed, the bracelet wasn't a divine artifact. Linley was able to crush the bracelet with his fingers with ease. The truly valuable items were those nine soul pearls.

"Lord Prefect of Skymount, is my guess correct?"

"Lord Linley!" The Lord Prefect of Skymount's face was ashen. He hurriedly said, "Correct. Your guess is correct. These nine soul pearls are a precious treasure that were naturally formed, and they contain an incomprehensible life force within them. As long as you are wearing these nine soul pearls, an inexhaustible, endless amount of life energy will fill your entire body and soul. Although your soul attack was powerful, Lord Linley, the energy of the soul pearls continuously protected me, and so even though my soul was damaged, it was quickly healed."

Molde no longer had anything left he could rely on.

He had thought that by relying on his soul pearls, others wouldn't be able to kill him. And Molde's power was indeed quite great. Matching that with the soul pearls...meant that he could be considered one of the topmost commanders. This was why Molde had so confidently come to fight.

After seeing Linley's unfamiliar face, he had felt all the more confident.

But who would have imagined...that this was Linley, the Paragon who had risen to sudden prominence in the Infernal Realm! A Paragon...they were the most powerful entities amongst Deities. The soul pearls could protect Molde, but they weren't able to increase his attack power. In front of Linley, Molde was nothing more than a punching bag!

Now that he lost those nine soul pearls, he had nothing left at all.

"Oh, these soul pearls are so special?" Bebe mumbled in surprise.

"Molde. Did you bind these soul pearls?" Linley said calmly.

"No." Molde said hurriedly.

Linley willed a drop of blood to emerge from his finger, which then flew towards one of the soul pearls hovering above his hand.

"Drip!"

The blood fell atop this jade green soul pearl, splattered, then rolled down and fell onto Linley's palm.

"It actually didn't go in?" Linley said with a frown.

"Lord Linley, these soul pearls are a miraculous treasure which was naturally formed by the heavens, rather than a divine artifact. There is no way to bind them with blood." Molde said hurriedly. Linley gave Molde a sidelong glance, then held the nine soul pearls within his palm. Instantly, he felt a surge of unique energy fill his entire body. Under Linley's control, this surge of energy even flooded into his soul.

Comfortable!

Linley felt as though his soul was being protected by this very unique type of energy.

"How curious. This sort of treasure...only the heavens themselves could give birth to such a thing." Linley sighed in praise.

"Right. Right." Molde hurriedly said.

"Boss, these soul pearls are quite unique, but how can you be certain that the reason why Molde was struck by your soul attack without dying was because of these pearls?" Bebe pursed his lips. "Perhaps the soul pearls are unique, but they aren't necessarily the true treasure which protected Molde from dying. Perhaps he might have another treasure as well."

Molde's face changed dramatically.

"The best way to test it, Boss, is to give this Molde yet another soul attack. If this time, Molde dies, then that proves that it really was the soul pearls which were protecting him. If he doesn't die, then it means he was lying." Bebe laughed as he spoke, but in the eyes of Molde, Bebe's laughter was so evil, so terrifying!

"Molde, what do you think? Is my reasoning correct?" Bebe looked at Molde and laughed, but he didn't even attempt to hide the killing intent in his eyes.

These words were like the pronouncement of a death sentence upon Molde.

In terms of mentality, Bebe, a divine beast, still had a stronger desire to kill than Linley. Anyone who posed a threat to Linley or who had ever attacked Linley...as far as Bebe was concerned, such a person deserved death.

"Boss, if Molde doesn't die, he will cause problems in the future, eventually. He is currently the Lord Prefect of Skymount, and won't dare to take his revenge on you, Boss. That's only because he isn't strong enough. But if, one day, he were to make a breakthrough and become a Paragon, he probably would no longer fear you, Boss. Even if he isn't able to take revenge on you, Olivier will be in danger." Bebe sent mentally.

Bebe was farsighted. Anything that might pose a threat should be killed!

"Lord Linley..." Molde stammered in terror.

Molde's current attitude was completely opposite to his earlier, brash, murderous attitude.

"When you thought you were strong, you attacked; when you discovered that the enemy was too strong, you submitted." After having experienced the savagery of the Planar Wars, Linley wouldn't be as soft-hearted as a woman. "Swish!" A Voidwave Sword ripple shot forth from Linley's forehead, so fast that Molde wasn't able to react at all as it drove into his body.

Molde's body trembled, and then the light disappeared from his eyes as he slumped down.

"Clink!" A blood-red set of armor fell out from his body onto the ground. This was his defensive Sovereign artifact.

"This time, he's really dead." Bebe laughed.

Olivier, Diana, and their son, 'Deia', walked over now. Olivier looked at the deceased Lord Prefect, then looked towards Linley with gratitude. "Linley, thank you. You helped me yet again." If the Lord Prefect didn't die, Olivier definitely would have been unable to rest easy.

"Thank you, Uncle Linley." Deia said as well, and then he gave the corpse of Molde a vicious look, as though placing the blame for the death of his older brother upon the Lord Prefect.

"When I dealt with Bonin, I prepared myself for the possible eventuality of having to deal with Molde as well. Only...I didn't expect that Molde would actually be in possession of this sort of miraculous natural treasure." Linley looked at the nine soul pearls in his hand and sighed.

"How unfortunate. Molde, as suspected, has clones somewhere." Bebe dripped a drop of blood onto the armor, but it didn't go in.

"Forget it. Just leave it there." Linley said with a calm laugh. "After having lost his most powerful divine clone, Molde is no longer much of a threat." Without his most powerful divine clone, even if Molde had a Saint-level clone somewhere who was able to fuse with a divine sparks all the way to the Highgod level, he wouldn't be able to make any more advances. This meant that there was no hope for Molde to reach the level of Paragons. Anyone not at the Paragon level, as far as Linley was concerned, could be slaughtered easily by him.

"Hmph. I'm not going to let him get anything back." Bebe waved his hand, drawing Molde's interspatial ring towards him, and then with a vicious clench and a 'crack', Bebe shattered the interspatial ring.

If he couldn't get it, he wouldn't let Molde get it either!

As for that Sovereign artifact...it was made by a Sovereign, and Bebe didn't dare do anything to it. Sovereigns wouldn't care about you killing an Emissary, as that was the fault of the Emissary for being too weak. But destroying a Sovereign artifact or tossing it into chaotic space? The Sovereign would be angered. The artifact was something which a Sovereign had spent a tremendous amount of time and effort on, after all.

"This treasure isn't bad, but it's not very useful for me." Linley glanced at the nine soul pearls.

"Let's go."

With a thought, Linley stored the nine soul pearls into his interspatial ring.

"We're off to Indigo Prefecture!" Bebe laughed. Olivier looked at his wife and son, then laughed as well, content. Linley's group of five once more boarded their metallic lifeform and began to fly at high speed towards Indigo Prefecture, in the west.

Within Linley's interspatial ring.

This was a lifeless space. A large number of items was hovering there within it, including that canteen filled with Sovereign's Might, the adamantine heavy sword, Bloodviolet, inkstones, azurite...and atop a little mountain formed from inkstones and azurite, there was a tattered, tarnished, unremarkable crown.

The tattered crown just lay there.

Suddenly...

The nine soul pearls appeared within that lifeless space. The nine crystalline jade-green soul pearls seemed so brilliant and beautiful.

The strange thing was, that tattered crown actually levitated into the air and flew towards the nine soul pearls, which also flew towards the tattered crown.

The nine soul pearls formed into a circle around the tattered crown.

"Swish!" "Swish!" "Swish!"

The nine soul pearls suddenly shot towards the tattered crown from each direction, instantly merging into the 'settings' of the crown. And then, everything turned calm again. A green light flowed atop the tattered crown, causing it to emanate a faint green aura. It was no longer as tattered and tarnished as it was before.

There were nine small settings and one large setting to this crown!

The nine small settings looped around the crown from front to back, while the center-front of the crown had a large, rhombus-shaped setting. This rhombus-shaped setting was completely empty.

Linley had no idea as to what had just happened within his interspatial ring. Previously, Linley had spent quite some time inspecting the tattered crown, and after becoming a Soul Mutate, Linley had inspected it yet again. But he couldn't find anything special about it, and thus, he had tossed it into his interspatial ring and stopped paying attention to it.

Perhaps, one day, Linley would take out the crown or the pearls, only to discover the secrets of the crown.

But when would that happen? No one could say.

A metallic lifeform shaped like a vicious tiger floated there above the mountains. This enormous metallic lifeform had more than a hundred people within it, with the leader being a silver-haired, silver-robed Molde.

He was standing at the front of the metallic lifeform, staring through the translucent metal towards the distant mountains ahead.

"Go there and reclaim the armor." The silver-haired Molde said coldly.

"Yes, Lord Prefect." The white-browed man knew exactly where the battle had taken place. He immediately led a squad of ten people towards that gorge, flying at high speed.

The silver-haired Molde stared coldly at the distant mountains, his heart filled with a murderous intent. He could still sense the presence of the Sovereign artifact. Clearly...Linley's group didn't take it away or destroy it.

"My power is now much weaker. If someone were to challenge me..." This was what Molde was concerned about now. As a Lord Prefect and one of the 108 Asuras of the Infernal Realm, he had to face challengers, with the loser giving up the position and the winner becoming the new Asura or Lord Prefect. Thus, Molde had to reacquire that Sovereign artifact.

With a defensive Sovereign artifact, Molde was confident in his ability to maintain his position.

A long time later...

The figures of the white-browed man and his squad flashed forward, with the white-browed man holding that blood-colored armor in his hands.

"Hmph." The silver-haired Molde's eyes flashed, and a large corridor instantly appeared within the metallic lifeform. The blood-colored armor flew through the corridor towards Molde, then entered Molde's body.

"Move out. We're going back." Molde said calmly.

"Yes, Lord Prefect." The group replied in chorus.

And then, Molde strode to a private room deeper in the rear cabins of the metallic lifeform. The door to the rear cabin shut. There was no hint of light within this room.

The silver-haired Morde sat down quietly in the meditative position. Within the gloomy, dark room, Morde's face appeared equally gloomy and dark. His wolf-like eyes, in this dark room, appeared all the more terrifying and heart-shaking.

"You ruined my son, then also ruined my future prospects!" In that room, Molde didn't need to conceal in the slightest his killing intent. A wild, savage aura filled the room, but because of Molde's Godrealm, the aura didn't leak outside at all, and so those subordinates outside had no idea what was occurring within.

Molde's eyes flashed savagely. "Fine. Since you ruined me, then I will ruin you as well!"

"Unfortunately, I've already destroyed that sheet of special paper. Otherwise, it would be much easier for me to convince the Sovereigns. With just a simple plan, I could easily cause Linley to die! But now that I destroyed that paper, it will be a bit tricky!" Molde pondered silently for a moment, considering what to do, then laughed coldly. "Still, it doesn't matter. Although the paper was destroyed, at least I still know what the secret is. Since the soul pearls are no longer in my hands, there's no point to keeping this secret."

When Molde thought about what was going to occur, he couldn't help but feel a hint of eagerness in his heart.

"You ruined me. So I'll ruin you!" Molde growled. "I will publicize this secret...I will make it known to everyone, make it known to all of the Sovereigns!!!" His voice, filled with rage, made this secret room feel so sinister, so cold...

Book 20, The Crown's Riddle – Chapter 14, True, False

Although he wanted to make the secret public, this wasn't actually an easy thing to do.

If Linley were to learn of this secret before it made its way to the Sovereigns, then Linley would probably immediately return and immediately kill Molde! Molde pondered for a moment, then came up with a simple scheme.

Skymount Prefecture. The Lord Prefect's estate. The main hall.

A hundred Highgod warriors were standing respectfully before the main hall, awaiting the Lord Prefect's arrival.

"I wonder what the Lord Prefect summoned us all here for!"

They all mumbled to themselves, but then, moments later, a person emerged from a side door of the main hall. It was the silver-haired Molde. Molde's cold, sinister gaze swept across these Highgods, and all of them instantly stood up straight, not daring to look around or seem the slightest bit indolent. Molde strode to the front of the hall.

Seating himself atop his throne, Molde swept the people before him with his cold gaze. "I have a secret assignment for all of you! If you reveal this assignment...hmph, whoever reveals it will have his entire clan put to death." Military order was quite strict in the prefectural armies. Still, annihilating an entire clan because of revealing a secret was unheard of.

The hundred Highgods all felt their hearts tremble. They felt misery in their hearts. How was it that they were the ones to end up with this mission?

“But don’t worry. As long as this mission isn’t revealed, nothing will happen.” Molde said calmly. “In addition, once you accomplish it, every single person will be awarded a billion inkstones!”

All of the Highgods were shocked.

These Highgods spent countless years building up their wealth, and yet still probably only had a few hundred million inkstones. They weren’t Seven Star Fiends; they didn’t have an extravagant amount of money. A single assignment with a reward of a billion inkstones? This was an astronomical amount of money.

Molde waved his hand, and one piece of black paper after another appeared in front of him.

“Whoosh!”

These pieces of paper suddenly flew downwards towards each person. Every single one of the hundred Highgods received a piece of paper. These Highgods couldn’t help but look towards the paper, and with but a single glance, they completely memorized the contents of it.

At the same time, the faces of the hundred Highgods completely changed.

This secret...was truly terrifying.

"Did you see it?" Molde let out a cold laugh. "You don't need to worry about if this information is true or false, but you must remember one thing! You cannot leak it out! If you leak it out...hmpf." Molde swept the group below with his gaze.

"Your subordinates do not dare."

After one person fell to a knee, the other ninety nine soldiers all hurriedly knelt as well.

"Excellent." Molde said calmly. "Fifteen of you, stand over there. You fifteen, go over there..."

....

"...and that leaves twenty five of you. You will form six squads!" Molde's divine power flew out, easily spreading out across six people in the six groups. The first five groups had fifteen, while the last one had twenty five.

"Squad one, you will head to the western part of the Infernal Realm, to the Karol Continent. The fifteen of you will hand those sheets of paper to fifteen different people. This is the list of names and addresses! Remember, on the journey, no matter what, do not let this information be leaked out." Molde once more instructed, then sent a black parchment flying towards squad one.

"Squad two, you will head to the eastern part of the Infernal Realm, to the Jedefloat Continent. This is the list of names and addresses."

"Squad three, you will head to the southern part of the Infernal Realm, to the Muja Continent. Squad four, head to the northern part of the Infernal Realm, the Redbud Continent. Squad five, the five of you, head to the Starmist Sea...and squad six, you head to the Chaotic Sea."

Molde delivered the lists of names and addresses to these people. These names were primarily names of Sovereign's Emissaries. But of course, there were also many Lord Prefect level figures. The wider the net, the greater the chances of attracting interest from Sovereigns.

Six of the seven major regions of the Infernal Realm had squads assigned. The only region not assigned was the Bloodridge Continent!

Molde knew very well that if spread this news out to the Bloodridge Continent, it would most likely quickly spread to Linley's ears.

"Each of you, leave a divine clone here in my estate." Molde said calmly. "You have to keep a tight watch on each other. If anyone leaks the secret, immediately report it to me." The reason Molde selected these individuals was because they were all fairly loyal, and because they all had divine clones.

"Yes, Lord Prefect."

A hundred clones emerged.

“Then head out.” Molde didn’t wish to waste any time. The hundred Highgods assented, and then separated into six squads and left. With the members of the squads keeping an eye on the other members, and given how deadly the consequences of exposing the secret was, as well as the rich reward of a billion inkstones for successfully completing the mission, Molde felt confident that nothing would go amiss.

Molde laughed calmly. “Bloodridge Continent? I’ll go make that notification.”

Molde was still an Emissary of the Bloodridge Sovereign. It wasn’t hard for him to go pay a visit to the Sovereign. If he went in person, there was no way that Linley would learn the secret.

That very day, Molde flew out of the castle and headed towards the residence of the Bloodridge Sovereign.

The Bloodridge Continent. Cloudlink Mountains.

Deep within the Cloudlink Mountains, there was a lake that was a thousand kilometers in circumferences. The air above the lake was perpetually covered with mist and fog. This sort of scene was actually quite common in the Infernal Realm, and many few people would pay attention to it. As for those people who lived near the Cloudlink Mountains, they all knew that anyone who entered deep into the middle of the lake would disappear into the mist, and then, dazed, reappear on the shore.

No one knew what was in the center.

"Splash..." The waters of the lake gently rolled out in waves, lapping at the shore.

A figure descended from the skies at high speed, landing at the edges of the lake. It was Molde. Molde stood there at the side of the lake for a moment, then flew into that endless fog.

At the center of the lake, there was a small island. The island was filled with all sorts of beautiful flowers, and all sorts of flying birds that lived here peacefully.

On the island, there was a plain, unadorned, cone-shaped palace. In the rear side of the palace, amidst the flowers, there was a stone table, where two men were seated, facing each other, staring raptly at the many chess pieces on the table. Behind these two men, there were two maids, whose faces were covered in smiles.

One of the two men had long, blood-red hair. This man had a wavy, blood-colored tattoo on his face. He was currently smiling, his eyes gleaming as he stared at the chess pieces.

Opposite him was a silver-haired, hawk-nosed man. This hawk-nosed man had two long, narrow eyes. Occasionally, a hint of a cold aura would flash within his eyes, capable of causing one to tremble.

"Teresia [Te'lei'xi'ya], you lose again, haha." The blood-haired man said with a loud laugh.

"Another one, another one! I just learned this game!" The hawk-nosed man said hurriedly. "Boson [Bo'shen], you've been playing for years."

"Fine, let's play again. You'll still lose though." The blood-haired man said with a laugh.

This was a game with 256 pieces, representing soldiers and generals. Although it seemed to be simple, it actually contained within it many different ways of mobilizing armies. It also required a person to be adaptive and act based on the opponent's situation. The more powerful one's soul was, the more complicated one's thought patterns would become, and the more interesting this game would be. In addition, one side would only win after all of the pieces of the other side were completely eliminated.

Even if one was slightly losing at the beginning, one still had a chance to win by using fewer numbers to overcome superior numbers.

Different situations required different resolutions. If one managed to calculate things out thoroughly, a single game could last for a very long time. These two people could spend several years playing a single game.

This was a war simulation game that a general in a material plane had developed to be used to help train military officers. But Sovereigns with eternal life who had no real pursuits loved to find and play these time-consuming games.

"This game of the 256 Soldiers and Generals...where did you find it?" The hawk-nosed man laughed.

"This? I discovered it from the 'Siya' material plane. I must say, this game is far more complicated and exciting than those games I played in the past. It's quite fun!" The blood-haired man laughed as he began to control his pieces and make them move.

Those two women smiled as they watched, quietly chatting through divine sense.

"Sovereigns feel bored as well."

"Lord Teresia, Sovereign of Wind, probably won't be able to win. Last time, the Chief Sovereign of Destruction competed against our Sovereign for a thousand years without winning a single match."

Right at this moment, a maid flew over from afar, then bowed and said, "Sovereign, Molde has come. He has an important matter to discuss with you, Sovereign."

"Molde? Why is he coming at a time like this?" The Bloodridge Sovereign, Boson, frowned.

The hawk-nosed man laughed. "Haha, Boson, hurry up and deal with him."

"Don't try to rearrange the pieces and don't try to cheat. I've memorized all of the pieces' locations." The Bloodridge Sovereign, Boson, gave Teresia a glance, and then walked away.

Within the Sovereign's main hall.

The Lord Prefect of Skymount, Molde, was standing respectfully in front of the main hall. He saw a bloody mirage suddenly appear, and then, there in the main hall, the Bloodridge Sovereign took form.

Molde raised his head. Seeing the Bloodridge Sovereign, he couldn't help but feel his heart tremble, and he hurriedly knelt down.

"Is there something you need from me?" The Bloodridge Continent said calmly.

The Bloodridge Sovereign was a lofty, exalted Sovereign, after all. He might jest and jape with the other Sovereigns, but in front of Deities, he, a Sovereign, was far beyond them.

"Sovereign, I just learned of a tremendous, heaven-shaking secret." Molde said respectfully.

"Oh?" The Bloodridge Sovereign couldn't help but give Molde a careful look. "Speak!"

"Sovereign, please look at this." Molde produced a black piece of parchment. The Bloodridge Sovereign's gaze fixed upon it, and instantly, that black parchment flew over towards him, then hovering in front of him. Sweeping it with a glance, the Bloodridge Sovereign's face changed slightly as he then looked downwards towards Molde in surprise.

Molde remained on his knees, not daring to speak.

"Where did you obtain this information from?" The Bloodridge Sovereign said in a low voice. "How could a scroll containing such information possibly be made from such ordinary paper?"

"I acquired it by accident." Molde said hurriedly.

He didn't dare say that he had already acquired the nine pearls previously. If he did...the Sovereign might be so infuriated at the fact that he hadn't offered it right away that he might kill Molde.

There was nothing Molde could do. He had already destroyed that original piece of paper.

Would Sovereigns necessarily believe it when they saw an earth-shaking revelation on an ordinary piece of paper?

If that green paper was still here, the Sovereign would definitely believe it! Because Sovereigns, at a glance, would know exactly where that green paper came from. Naturally, they would believe the words it contained. But the words on an ordinary piece of paper...would the Sovereigns believe it?

"You claim that Linley has those nine soul pearls?" The Bloodridge Sovereign said.

"I'm not the one making the claim. It is this piece of paper which states it." Molde didn't dare say anything else. This secret was simply too great. If he got involved, then he, a Lord Prefect, would probably lose his little life.

"Your most powerful divine clone is dead? Who killed it?" The Bloodridge Sovereign suddenly asked.

Molde was stunned. It was Linley who destroyed his most powerful divine clone. If the Sovereign wished to investigate, this would be fairly easy to discern. If one was to lie to a Sovereign, one would have to consider what sort of lie one was going to tell. If one was going to tell a lie that would be easily discovered, it would probably be better to tell the truth instead. But if the lie couldn't be discovered, then never admit it, even under threat of death!

"It was Linley who killed it." Molde admitted it.

The Bloodridge Sovereign suddenly rose to his feet. Molde couldn't help but feel startled.

"Hmph..." The Bloodridge Sovereign icily swept Molde with his gaze, then barked, "Molde, if an Overgod issued a mission, the paper on which the mission was written would definitely not be ordinary paper. How is it that you dare counterfeit information of such gravity?"

"I didn't." Molde said hurriedly terrified.

The Bloodridge Sovereign stood there in his hall, staring down at the kneeling Molde. In a calm voice, he said, "Molde, you made three mistakes. First of all, a mission issued by the Overgods would definitely not come on a piece of paper like this. Second, if an Overgod issued a mission, even if it involved three talismans, the Overgod would at most give a basic description of the three talismans. The Overgod would definitely not name someone in specific as carrying a talisman! Even if the Overgod was going to do so, the Overgod would clearly state the locations of all three talismans. Why would the Overgod just mention one? And third, your most powerful divine clone, Molde, just so happened to have been destroyed by Linley! This information states that Linley acquired the nine soul pearls? How could there be such a coincidence? And you are the first person to bring me this information? This is all too coincidental, isn't it?"

Molde's face changed.

"Hmph. Molde, because you have served me sincerely and diligently for so many years, I will spare your life. Begone." The Bloodridge Sovereign said calmly.

"No rush, no rush. Talismans from the Overgods? Let me see?" A figure suddenly appeared in the main hall. It was that hawk-nosed man.

"Go ahead and look. You heard what I said earlier, right?" The Bloodridge Sovereign said calmly.

The hawk-nosed man swept the parchment with his gaze, then nodded slightly. "The likelihood that the information your subordinate provided is true...is quite low. The paper is wrong, and the information only mentions a single person, Linley. And your subordinate just so happens to have a great enmity with Linley? It is quite odd. In addition, it has already been countless years since the last time the Overgods issued a mission."

"However..."

The hawk-nosed man laughed calmly. "If your subordinate wanted to harm Linley, how could he come up with something like this on his own? Ever since the multiverse was created, the Overgods have only issued six missions. There are very few Deities who even know that such a thing exists. Thus, I believe there is a chance that this is real."

"That's just the first point. The second point is, based on how long it has been since the sixth mission...I have the feeling that it is about time for the Overgods to issue another mission. It has been countless years."

"Haha, Boson, I'm not busy anyhow, so I might as well go take a look. Haha..."

The hawk-nosed man disappeared from within that hall.

Book 20, The Crown's Riddle – Chapter 15, The Sovereign Descends

Within the main hall, Molde remained on his knees.

But upon seeing the Sovereign of Wind suddenly depart, he felt a surge of wild joy in his heart. "Based on the conversation they had, it seems this person was a Sovereign as well! Good. Although the Bloodridge Sovereign didn't believe me, at least one Sovereign has gone...this Linley, hmph, even if he hands over the nine soul pearls, he will find it hard to avoid death!"

When Molde thought about what that parchment had written on it, he couldn't help but feel smug. If he had described things clearly, perhaps Linley would simply hand over the nine soul pearls, and the Sovereign would release Linley. But...in disseminating the news, Molde had changed things slightly.

Although he wasn't able to make his scheme perfect in such a short period of time, as Molde saw it...it was enough to make Linley die.

"Linley, oh, Linley...a Paragon is going to die, just like that." Molde mused to himself.

"Molde!" A cold voice suddenly rang out.

"Sovereign." Molde hurriedly pressed his forehead against the floor, kowtowing.

The Bloodridge Sovereign's cold gaze fell down upon Molde from up high. "I ask you this. Is the information contained in the parchment true or false. Are you certain of the information?" The Bloodridge Sovereign was still quite surprised that Molde was able to deliver a piece of paper like this. The words of the Sovereign of Wind were correct; how long ago had it been since an Overgod had issued a mission?

Very few people even knew about such a thing. Even if Molde wanted to make something up, how would he even know about it?

"Sovereign, your subordinate doesn't know if it is true or false." Molde said respectfully. "Your subordinate simply came in possession of this parchment. Because the information it contained was simply too astonishing, I knew...that you, Sovereign, would probably be intrigued by it. And so I immediately came to give it to you, Sovereign."

Molde wouldn't dare testify as to whether it was true or false.

If he dared to testify regarding its veracity, then it meant that he, Molde, had seen the true original!

"Hmph. Scram." The Bloodridge Sovereign snapped.

"Yes." Molde hurriedly bowed with respect, then left.

But there, at the front of the main hall, the Bloodridge Sovereign began to furrow his brows while standing there. "Why did Molde have to come now, instead of earlier or later? Teresia just so happened to be here when Molde came. Now that Teresia knows this, things will be tricky." As he pondered, the Bloodridge Sovereign stretched out his divine sense.

Soon, the Bloodridge Sovereign's divine sense spread out to cover the entire Bloodridge Continent.

Moments later, the Bloodridge Sovereign retracted his divine sense. Shaking his head and laughing, his body also flickered, then disappeared from the main hall.

As for Molde, he traversed the hazy white mist, then quickly departed.

"Hmph. As soon as I retrieved my Sovereign artifact, I immediately began to plan this out, and then I delivered this news to the Sovereigns. Even as fast as Linley travels, I imagine he probably hasn't reached Indigo Prefecture yet." Molde was very efficient in carrying things out. He was afraid that if too much time passed, there would be new variables.

Thus, he had travelled here by himself at top speed to notify the Sovereign.

As for the Sovereigns, if they were to chase after Linley, their speed would be terrifyingly fast.

Mountains rose, one after the other in a never-ending chain.

A metallic lifeform was traversing the skies.

"We've already passed through the Indigo Prefecture border. In a short period of time, we will reach the Skyrise Mountains." Linley, standing at the front of the metallic lifeform, stared at the outside world through the translucent metal. He laughed while speaking.

"Indigo Prefecture." Diana and Olivier both stood there as well, staring into the distance.

Suddenly...

"Whooosh." A terrifying tornado suddenly appeared out of nowhere in the skies, surrounding Linley's metallic lifeform, causing the world to suddenly grow dim and hazy.

"What's going on?" Bebe was shocked.

"Not good." Linley's face changed dramatically. The sudden descent of this tornado caught even him completely off-guard. The person who had just come was too terrifying. Linley didn't have any reservations; with a thought, he instantly spread out earth-type Sovereign power, forming a protective barrier around the five of them.

The entire metallic lifeform trembled, then was blown into smithereens.

Linley's group of five were still completely dazed, but right at this moment, the tornado vanished.

"Eh?" Linley looked in front of him. There was a man currently standing in midair in front of them. This person had long silver hair, a hawk-nose, and pair of slender eyes. The man's gaze was like a knife, making those who saw his gaze feel coldness in their hearts. This silver-haired man looked calmly at Linley's group of five.

"Boss, who is he?" Bebe sent mentally.

The faces of Olivier, Diana, and their son Deia changed dramatically.

"Who else could it be? Aside from a Sovereign, who could possibly suddenly appear in front of us without me sensing anything?" Linley sent back. And then, smiling, Linley bowed towards the man in front of him. "Linley of Indigo Prefecture greets you, Sovereign!" After having met with the Chief Sovereign of Death and the Abyssal Fruit Tree, Linley understood one thing!

Sovereigns might appear as an energy construct or with their true bodies, or in the shape of a human.

In short, one couldn't judge a Sovereign through appearance, only by power. A girl might appear before you, but that girl could very well be a Sovereign. There was no way at all to judge such a person's strength from the outside.

The silver-haired man revealed a hint of a smile on his face as well. "Oh, you are able to infuse Will? You really are a Paragon. You were able to ascertain my identity so soon." This Sovereign of Wind could tell from the barrier Linley had created with earth-type Sovereign power that there was a surge of Will infused within it.

More importantly...

Linley didn't waste a single bit of his Sovereign power. This made it simple to judge Linley's power.

"Sovereign, might I ask why you have stopped us?" Linley smiled as he bowed. "Please instruct me!"

"The rest of you, step aside." The Sovereign of Wind gave a calm glance to Bebe and the others.

As Sovereigns saw it, the fewer Deities who knew about Overgod talismans and missions, the better. Sovereigns felt that Deities weren't even qualified to know about these things. Linley was a Paragon, and so he could speak amiably with Linley, but the Sovereign of Wind didn't want the other four nearby to listen in.

"Leave for now." Linley glanced at them.

Knowing that this person was a Sovereign, Bebe didn't dare say anything. He, Olivier, and the other two immediately flew away. Olivier's son, Deia, stared in amazement and disbelief at the Sovereign of Wind. Clearly, Deia was very curious about the legendary Sovereigns.

Moments later, Bebe and the others were thousands of kilometers away.

"Sovereign, there is nobody nearby aside from us now." Linley looked at the silver-haired man in front of him.

"My request is very simple!"

The Sovereign of Wind laughed calmly as he glanced at Linley. "A Overgod talisman, in the hands of a Deity, is completely useless. It's best if you hand over the Overgod talisman you possess to me!"

Linley couldn't help but feel completely lost.

"Overgod talisman? What Overgod talisman?" Linley asked.

The silver-haired man's eyes had a hint of coldness flash through them. With an icy snort, he said, "What, do you want to lie to my face and deceive me?" Actually, the Sovereign was now rather puzzled as well. "By the looks of it, it seems as though this Linley really has no idea what an Overgod talisman is. But then again, who knows. If a Paragon wants to put on an act, I wouldn't necessarily be able to see through him."

"Sovereign, I am willing to swear an oath in the name of the Overgods that I truly have no idea what an Overgod talisman is." Linley said hurriedly.

The silver-haired man felt puzzled now.

"Sovereign, what is this Overgod talisman of which you speak?" Linley said, puzzled. "Based on what I know, the four Overgods are the personifications of the four Edicts. They shouldn't have any human emotions. Why would there be Overgod talismans?" But as soon as he spoke, Linley knew that he was wrong.

If they didn't have human emotions, did that necessarily mean they couldn't issue talismans?

Where did Overgod artifacts come from, then? Since there was such a thing as an Overgod artifact, then naturally there could be Overgod talismans as well.

But this silver-haired man thought that Linley didn't know about the existence of Overgod talismans and Overgod artifacts. He said calmly, "Since Overgods are able to take the form of a person if they choose, why is it that you think you can understand them? Based on what I know, of the three talismans, the 'nine soul pearls' are in your hands, correct?"

"The 'nine soul pearls' of the three talismans?" Linley couldn't help but say, startled.

Linley was indeed startled, because he knew what this person was speaking of. "This Sovereign has come to find me for an Overgod talisman. So...he is referring to those nine soul pearls which allowed Molde to stay alive. That's the Overgod talisman. No wonder it is so unique and has such incomprehensible power. So it is an Overgod talisman...but what are they used for?"

At this moment, Linley truly wanted to send his divine sense into his interspatial ring to investigate those nine soul pearls.

However, with the Sovereign in front of him, Linley didn't dare act in such a way. Linley didn't know what sort of detection powers a Sovereign possessed. Given the divine powers of a Sovereign, however, most likely they would be able to pay attention to anything he did. If Linley was to immediately investigate his interspatial ring, wouldn't the Sovereign connect it all together?

"There are a total of three Overgod talismans?" Linley had a completely stunned look on his face.

The Sovereign of Wind looked closely at Linley, then let out a cold laugh. "Linley, although you have become a Paragon, you are still a Deity. An Overgod talisman is useless to you. I urge you to hand over this Overgod talisman. Don't say that you don't have it. I know...that the nine soul pearls are in your hands!"

"I will give you just a single chance." The Sovereign of Wind said calmly. "If you hand over the nine soul pearls now, I will spare your life. But if you try to dissemble even the slightest bit, then don't blame me for killing you, then taking the Overgod talisman from you."

The Sovereign of Wind actually wasn't completely confident about whether or not Linley had those nine soul pearls either.

In fact...

Whether the Overgods had even issued a mission, or if there were even three Overgod talismans, was unverified. However, to these Sovereigns who possessed eternal life, there were very few things capable of drawing their interest. Overgod talismans, however, were things which were more than enough to drive them insane with excitement.

If there was even the slightest chance of it being true, the Sovereign of Wind wanted to try and 'trick' Linley into admitting it. He pretended to be completely confident. If Linley did actually have the nine soul pearls, he might be nervous and thus hand it over.

Linley's heart clenched. "Can it be that the Sovereign knew that I acquired those nine soul pearls from Molde? Only my people know about this, and Molde himself. Can it be that it was Molde who told the Sovereign? But Molde and I have a huge enmity between us. If he wanted to entrap me, it shouldn't be as simple as this!"

Linley hesitated.

